General T. W. Rosser's cavalry came from Richmond a fortnight later and joined General Early with the avowed intention of "sweeping the invaders out of the valley." Lieutenant Townly, deeming that "a consummation devoutly to be wished," since Winchester and Edith were in the debatable ground, obtained permission to serve with them as a volunteer aid on General Rosser's staff. When Sheridan gave up the project of a winter campaign in the mountains and fell back on Winchester, the Confederate cavalry harassed his rear so daringly that he determined to turn and give them a lesson on the danger of getting too close to him. The ensuing trouble at Tom's Brook Crossing eventuated in an order to reverse of General Rosser's programme. The sweeping was done, but his cavalry were the swept. They were scattered in a rout, some by way of Columbia Furnace to the mountains, others up the valley pike into the Massanutten country and many never stopped until they got into General Early's camp south of Mount Jackson. Lieutenant Townly became among those who took the pike. He had been sent to the front with orders, was there when the tide of battle turned, and found himself inextricably involved and helplessly carried along by the panic stricken throng. Horses were falling about him, wounded horses dropped in the way, increasing the confusion, and the air was full of a deafening tumult made up of clashing steel, clattering equipments, pounding hoofs, cracking carbines and pistols, yelling voices and inarticulate cries of those struck by death. A bullet tore the officer's right arm from forearm; his saber dropped from his nerveless hand. The next moment his horse fell and threw him heavily. As he fell he had a dim perception of a huge Federal cavalryman aiming at his head a saber cut that would have slashed it like an apple had not another saber interposed, saving it off, so that the only weapon

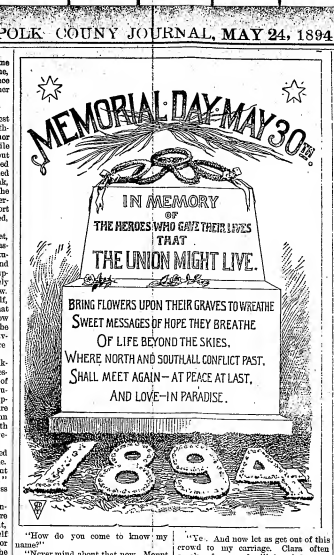
TOWNLY RESCUED.

the flat of the blade. But even that was enough to fell him unconscious. The next thing he knew he was lying in a thicket, a little way off the road, and a man in blue, with a cap full of water, sprinkling his face, said to him pleasantly, "You're all right now, Lieutenant Townly, barring a hole in your arm, which I have fixed up so that it will do until you get to a surgeon."



"How do you come to know my name?"

"Never mind about that now. Mount quickly, if you are able. There's your horse. Take to the south, through the woods, avoid the road and ride like Sam Hill until you find your friends."

"But I'm your prisoner!"

"Not much. Come, mount."

"You have saved my life and"—

"And so we're even."

"I don't understand you, but I wish I could adequately express my gratitude."

"Show it by taking care of the life you say I've saved. To do that you've got to get out. And while you are going remember that 'one good turn' deserves another.'"

* * * * * * *

The two men parted with a cordial handshake and gallooped away in opposite directions.

* * * * * * *

At the close of the war Lieutenant Calhoun Townly and Miss Edith Chandler married. Clara Farwell had already rejoined her father in the north and married there. Times were hard in the south, and Mr. Townly, who had four children and a little hope of building up a practice at home, deemed it expedient to seek fortune in New York. Entering as managing clerk the office of a prominent legal firm, he worked his way up by ability and steadiness of purpose until in a couple of years he was admitted as a junior partner and could look with confidence upon a very promising future. Edith after a time enjoyed much social life in the metropolis, but often regretted that she had quite lost sight of her cousin Clara, whose home was somewhere in that indefinite region "away out west."

TOWNLY MEETS HIS RESCUER.

One spring when Mr. Townly was a stout, middle aged lawyer with an established reputation some legal affairs called him out to Chicago, and he took a pleasure jaunt of his business trip by taking his wife with him. In the latter city by the lake he had the good fortune to find a couple of old Virginian friends, who received him very hospitably, and among other endeavors for his entertainment introduced him in their Southern society, an organization composed almost entirely of men who had worn the Confederate grey. Genial good fellows he found them, free from sectional bitterness, as almost all are who fought their fight out on the field, and the most amicable feeling existed between them and the members of a Grand Army post which met in the rooms adjoining theirs. So perfect was the good understanding existing between the two organizations that when Decoration day was drawing near the post extended to the society a cordial invitation to join in celebration of the anniversary, and the society with pleasure accepted.

Mr. Townly accompanied his friends on the occasion and found himself in hearty accord with the prevailing sentiment of the day. Toward the close of the public exercises one of the post officers approached him, and in the interrogative tone, "Lieutenant Townly, I believe?"

"That is my name," replied the gentleman addressed. "I trust you will pardon my defective memory, but though your face seems familiar I cannot place you."

"Did you get back to camp all right from Tom's Brook Crossing?"

"Ah, now I remember! You are the man who saved my life there! Well, I am indeed happy to meet you again, even if you did leave a puzzle in my mind that has worried me ever since by saying that it 'made us even,' and that 'one good turn deserved another.'"

The Grand Army man laughed. "You shall understand today. But, first, to introduce myself, I married your wife's cousin, Clara."

"Oh, then you are Mr. Gooding?"

"Ye. And now let us get out of this crowd to my carriage. Clara often speaks of you and will be glad to see you at dinner."

"But my wife is at the Sherman expecting me."

"Edith here! Better yet. We will go and get her."

Mrs. Townly received the Chicagoan as an old friend, and when her husband looked surprised said, "He came courting Clara at the same time you were courting me." That puzzled him, and when he wanted to know how it changed they had never met under such circumstances Mr. Gooding said, "Wait a little, and you shall know, but only at my bonse."

* * * * * * *

When the cousins, now middle aged women, but with hearts still young, had embraced and cried a little together out of sheer happiness at their reunion, Mrs. Gooding introduced her two pretty daughters, who sang a medley of southern and northern songs appropriate to the day. While this was going on Mr. Gooding caused himself for a few minutes on a plea of attending to some neglected business. Presently an old negro shuffled in, carrying a seattle of coal for the grate fire.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Mr. Townly, recognizing him at once. "Are you alive yet?"

"Yes, sah. Ah'm alive, yit—kain wuhf sumfin time Mars Goodin kem. Nebbuh bothah fob niggahs dan ma medicine tea." And he shoved the battered old coffeepot, which he carried suspended from a string about his neck. "Ma medicine, fuhr dis yeh coal do duhty up a body's hen's-ti."

"Jennie," said Mrs. Gooding to one of the girls, "get a basin of water for daddy to wash his hands."

Mr. Townly opened his eyes wide at the astonishment to a degree, but it was not his business to interfere. The water was brought, and the old man, with his head bent over the basin, washed one of his hands, but his face, meanwhile talking:

"Ah know'd you, sah, do minute Ah seed you. Ah'd cotch a lickin dat day her fob you. Ah nebber forgot dat, sah. Ah'd cotch a lickin dat day an spoiled Lowell fob a chance to mek me eben."

Mr. Townly started, but before he could open his lips, with movements as quick as those of a "lightning change artist," the aged darky, by a concealed twist and wriggle, divested himself of his rags, as he already had of his complexion, and stood revealed as Mr. Gooding in a blue uniform.

"Holy Moses!" gasped the astounded gentleman, visibly the room rang with the laughter of the cousins, who had only by great effort restrained themselves to avoid the denouement.

"I was," said Mr. Gooding when a good opportunity for explanations offered, "one of Major Young's scouts, and this was my favorite disguise. In it I used to visit Clara and would send my secret messages to Clara by a message from her father that he was alive and well, though rumor had him dead, and finally her so happy that she promised that night to marry me. Here is where I had Hidden." He uncovered the bottom of the old coffeepot, showing a concealed tintype plate, sunglassed to receive pencil marks. "Many an important dispatch has been written in there, and I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the old pot today. When you saved me from a whipping, you saved my life, for if I had been stripped and my skin found white your captain would have hanged me at once. So when I rescued you it was no more than even."

TOWNLY IS SURPRISED.

J. H. CONNELLY.

A REMINISCENCE OF SHILOH.

Story of a Famous Battle by a Private Who Was There.

"Would you like to have a private's opinion of the battle of Shiloh?" asked a veteran of the civil war. Deceiving in affirmative response, he proceeded:

I was a farmer's lad in northern Illinois and joined the Fifty-fifth Illinois in its march south when I was 18 years old. My experience was that of every boy under similar circumstances. Buoyed up by enthusiasm and natural youthful spirits, I took kindly to the drill and in a short while considered myself a model soldier. I was admitted to be an excellent shot and took great pride in my target practice.

"In the spring of 1862, during the first few days in April, I had all the chance I desired for target practice and availed myself of it. As every one knows, Grant was in charge of the Union forces and had landed about 35,000 men down below the little Shiloh chapel at a place called Pittsburg Landing. The Confederates had been run out of Nashville and were concentrating all their forces at Corinth, a little place over the line in Mississippi, while Grant's object was to cut off their communications in western Tennessee.

People may say what they please about General Grant's intentions and plans and knowledge of the enemy at Shiloh, but I have never given him a private who did not admit that the attack by General Albert Sydney Johnston on the morning of the 6th was a well planned and complete surprise. I do not see how the Union army could have been surprised more perfectly.

Take our own regiment, for example. We were, most of us, cleaning our guns or sitting around talking. A few were playing cards, while others were telling them they had better be going to church. I was myself practicing at a target down by the creek, where a large crowd of the boys were watching me. We had been continuous musket firing since very early in the morning, but as this happened every day no attention was paid to it. Some of us were surprised at the surrounding we heard, and one man mentioned it, but that was all.

Presently a volley of musketry opened up right in our front, and not 30 yards from it over the front line of the rebels. Then it surprised! If you had seen our men running and dodging through the woods that morning, some without boots, some without hats or coats, some even without rifles and nearly all without guns, you would need no further evidence to convince you as to the completeness of the surprise. Why, we didn't have a single picket or guard out.

Well, at first it was simply a race, but as soon as the enemy was observed out, which was very speedily done, the race stopped, for the Confederates at once abandoned us in order to plunder our tents. This gave nearly all our men the time necessary to escape.

The Fifty-fifth had scattered in every direction, as had a number of other regiments. I found myself running along with a member of some Michigan regiment, and having been down at the creek washing when the enemy came up he had on not a thing except a pair of drawers. There were a few of the enemy still following us, and as bullet came whizzing along and scraped the inside of his arm he turned off to one side and ran off down the ravine, while I ran over a little open place as fast as I could to reach some timber. The bullets whizzed around me in quite a lively manner as I was going across the open, but as soon as I got under cover I determined to turn the tables.

It now became almost like squirrel hunting or a game of hide and seek. Away off to my right was a bluecoat, while opposite him as opposite me were several rebels watching a chance to pick us off. We were better shots than they were, however, and they showed their realization of it, after a few shots, by keeping behind trees. Presently I saw a head creeping out from behind the front tree in the opposite timber, obliquely off to my right, and just where he could get a good shot at the Confederate on my side. He did not see me at all, and for the first time since I entered the army I took deliberate aim at a single human being.

Firing as one of a crowd at another crowd is a very different thing from picking out an individual human being and deliberately taking his life away. This thought flashed through my mind, and I had no sooner raised my gun and taken aim than I at once lowered it again. It was too much like plain murder. And yet there he was raising his gun and preparing to kill my ally and my friend. If he had been close enough for me to be sure of "winging" him by breaking his arm, any one would have been made so easily, but he was so far away. What should I do?

All this rushed through my mind while he was raising his gun to his shoulder, and my decision was formed in a flash as I threw my gun to my shoulder and fired. He fired an instant after I did, but my ball had shattered his elbow, and by destroying his arm had saved the life of my bluecoat friend. My comrade took in the situation as the Confederate, with an oath, leaped into the open space, his arm hanging limp by his side. Waving his blanket as one would a red rag, I ran up into the bright morning sun, with a bullet hole through his head.

I soon found a regiment of my own color—they were Michigan boys—and we at once reported to General Veatitis, who was just coming up, telling him the situation and who we were. Before he had time to issue any orders, however, a perfect cloud of the enemy swooped down upon us, and we were prisoners, about 5,000 of us.

HARRY W. COCKRELL.

THE THIRTIETH OF MAY.

These are not all
Here by the wall
Is the grave of one who died in the war,
Though her body hadn't a wound or scar.
Her hope and heart was broken when
In a mass of men
Her lover fell in the front of fight
With the flag he bore.
Her life and her love together fled
When he was dead.
Any efforts left after? Let them fall
Here by the wall.

These are not all
Go look and call!
The boys that carry the evergreen.
Here's a grave you men hain't seen.
It's old man Brown's. His heart clean broke
Most as if he was womenfolk.
He had five sons—his wife was dead—

UNCLE JOHN IN THE CEMETERY AFTER THE DECORATION.

Nothin could keep him at home, he said,
And every last one of that whole lot
Had to get enlisted.
Th' old man hadn't no call, no pride—
Just us and God!
Lay the evergreen softly down
Over the grave of old man Brown.

These are not all!
Let lilies fall
Here on the mute wee small grave in the shade.
I can remember the day we laid
The captain's baby in the green spot.
Cap, he was shot.
And some fool soldier made haste to tell
The captain's mother the news, and—well,
Down she went in a faint—but fell
And it killed the baby. She lived on,
Health and reason forever gone.
Lay lilies here.
She died a year!
I went to the war myself that year.

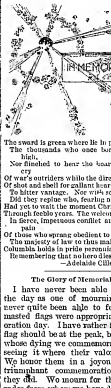
Put roses here.
This grave is dear—
She was my sister. The truest heart,
Always ready to do her part.
Give help or see.
Wasn't she?
Thundered at Sumter! She had but one,
And she died for him.
(With stronger men
He starved and died in a prison pen.
(We buy she had fed and clothed all blood,
And done for, as that he hardly missed
His father—dead when he was a child.
She never smiled.
She loved red roses when he was small.
Here let them fall.
We honor the soldiers. But they ain't all!
—Mrs. Melvin Adams.

Memorial Day Sentiment.

There is no danger that the real meaning or the true significance of Memorial day will be forgotten while thoughts of valor and patriotism have power to stir the soul of the American people.

It is indeed increasingly evident that this day, set apart in honor of the nation's heroic dead—whether they fought for the freedom of the colonies or defended American rights on sea or rolled around the Rebel flag when it was assailed—will find ever broader and truer observance as the years go by.

Honor for the brave dead, love of country, loyalty, reverence—these are the noble teachings which Memorial day emphasizes upon young and old alike. If such high ideals shall be sought and prized, as they should by the coming citizens of these United States, there is, there can be no doubt as to the glorious future of this republic of republics.—Boston Globe.



The sword is green where lie in peaceful rest
The thousands who once bore our banner high,
Nor finished to bear the hoarse, discordant cry
Of war's outriders while the direful quest
Of blood and death and hatred harvest pressed
To bitter vantage. Nor with pallid sigh
Did they relax their hold on life, but died
Had yet to wait the moment Christ has decreed
Enough freedom's years. Then welcome sudden fall
In fierce, impetuous conflict and the patient
Of those who spurn obedient to her call
The majesty of her dominion.
Columbia, holds in pride perennial,
Remembering that no sacrifice is in vain.
—Adelaide Cilley Waldron.

The Glory of Memorial Day.

I have never been able to think of the day as one of mourning. I have never quite been able to feel that half mantle of tears sometimes worn on Decoration day. I have rather felt that the flag should be at the peak, because those whose dying we commemorate rejoiced seeing it where their valor placed it. We honor them in a joyous, thankful, triumphant appreciation of what they did. We mourn for them as comrades from whom we have departed, but we feel the glory of their dying and the glory of their achievement has set them in an imperishable roll of honor.—Benjamin Harrison.

A Chance For Girls.

No, you won't be compelled to march in the procession, young ladies, if you enlist with the Daughters of Veterans, but you can stand shoulder to shoulder on the pavement or fill several rows of seats in the reviewing stands and cheer your favorite posts as they march along. You can wear pest colors, too, and flaunt them after the manner of girls doing on a college crew or baseball nine.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at.....6:05 p.m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Helena, and points north, at.....8:05 a.m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining car attached.

Round Home.

A. Grindeland and Gay Aubol were down from Warren Tuesday.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

T. G. Thompson is fixing things up in great shape at his place.

You can get a 100-pound sack of Valley Roller Mills flour for $1.80.

John Locken had $5,000 insurance on his life in the Equitable of New York.

Use Valley Roller Mills best patent flour—the best in the world—only $1.50 per 100-pound sack.

E. M. McCaslin was up from the Wolfs farm Tuesday, with a load of hogs for the market.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Another car load of cedar shingles just received.
[5-6] STEWART LUMBER CO.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Lewis Ellington went down to Fisher on Monday, to look after his farming operations at that point.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

The six-year-old son of Louis Duval was buried Monday.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lyons.

G. Krouse mabel, of Fertile, was doing business in the city Tuesday.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts consignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.
H. F. BROWN.

A. M. Childs went to Duluth this week on one of his insurance trips.

A. O. Tradeau, representing the St. Paul Pioneer Press, was in the city last week soliciting for that paper, and met with good success, owing largely to the recent reduction in the price of the Press from $10 to $5 per year.

This month you can get one dozen cabinet photos for the same money that it will cost for ½ dozen next month. CHAPIN.
[6-7]

Charlie Misner now has his shop fixed up in neat shape—newly papered and painted. It looks as slick as a whistle.

You can afford to build when prices keep pace with the times. A dollar is big enough now to cover up a pile of lumber. Try us and see.
[5-6] STEWART LUMBER CO.

The little child of Mrs. Oscar Strand, died Monday and was buried Tuesday. Mr. Strand died a couple of weeks ago.

The drum corps is being re-organized for Memorial Day.

Wm. Martin and Henry Nolan have the contract of building a bridge across Burnham's Creek, between the towns of Crookston and Fisher.

J. E. Harris, the machine man, is convalescing from a serious illness.

A meeting of the Polk County Teachers' Association will be held at the court house, Crookston, June 2. All teachers earnestly requested to be present.
MISS BELLE F. KYLE,
Secretary.

The rooms on the second floor of the Merchants National Bank building have been re-papered and painted and will be occupied as offices by E. M. Stanton, Deforest Buckles and O. L. Hamery.

Awarded
Highest Honor-World's Fair
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Frank Hertz received a 75-pound muskinge fish fishing boat yesterday, and will take it out to Maple Lake for the summer.

City Treasurer Christianson: If all the delinquent taxes in the city were paid up we would have probably $10,000 in the treasury.

W. H. Douglas, cashier of the Kittson County bank at Hallock, was in the city on Friday and took a Knight Templar degree.

B. C. Jorgenson, of the Town of Andover, last week collected $24 by subscription to purchase a cow for Christian Torgeson in place of one owned by the latter, which recently died.

Dr. Holte left Tuesday for Minneapolis, where he is to be married this evening to a Miss Loe. Mr. Holte has rented O. H. Luchau's house and is going to housekeeping as soon as he returns.

The pension examining board held a session on Wednesday afternoon to examine several applicants. Dr. Dampier being away, Dr. Just and Dr. Farley attended to the applicants.

The program in preparation for the next meeting of the Polk County Teachers' Association, Saturday, June 2d, promises to be an unusually interesting one. Teachers of the county are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Michel Brouillet and Eli Merril had a dispute over a claim, and the latter had Brouillet arrested on a charge of assault and battery. The case was heard before Justice Grossmann yesterday and the prisoner discharged, on the ground that no assault was proven.

Fishermen complain that fish do not seem to bite very well in the river. But very few pike and pickerel are being taken. It is broadly hinted that nets and fishtraps in the river below are responsible for the scarcity of fish in the river.

Rev. Squier left last Monday for a trip to Fargo, Detroit Lake, Minneapolis and other points to make final arrangements for speakers for the Detroit Lake Summer Assembly, which will commence July 15th, and continue till July 30th.

Edwin J. Murfin, manager and treasurer of the Griffith Faust company gave one day a pleasant call on Tuesday. Mr. Murfin says the last few days that tried men's souls and is one of those jolly good boys with whom it is ever a pleasure to meet.

Mine host Westerberg is taking down the old barn on the Sands property. He intends to build a large addition to the Scandinavian hotel, which will join the Sands house to the old hotel part. Westerberg must be doing a thriving business.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McArty have been called upon to part with their infant boy, about three weeks old. The little one died on Tuesday morning. The funeral occurred at the residence of Mrs. McArty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Monroe, at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon.

Edgar Sherman, of Chicago, general agent of the D'Unger telephone system—the system which Crookston is to have—was in the city Tuesday, and was shown around the city by E. M. Walsh, the agent here. Mr. Plowman will return in a couple of weeks, prepared to put in the telephone system here.

It is getting better all the time, cloudy weather is really better than bright sunshine at this season of the year. Cabinet photos are only $2 per dozen this month, June 1st, they will be $3. Remember that the terms are strictly cash at time of sitting, from everybody.
[6-7] CHAPIN.

Geo. Vlae bought the 11 pigs that E. M. McCaslin brought up from the Wolfs place on Tuesday. They were Poland Chinas, October pigs and their combined weight was 2400 pounds. That is not bad for fall pigs and the grain that it took to make them what they are was better sold in that way than it could have been in any market we have had since last fall. You can't convince McCaslin that it does not pay to raise hogs.

There will be a district convention of the Christian Endeavor Societies in this city during the last week in June. The Crookston city union is making arrangements for the holding of the convention, and a program committee was appointed Sunday evening, consisting of the following gentlemen: Rev. R. H. Batty, Rev. Daley, R. G. Woodman and W. L. Vannette. Miss Carrie A. Holbrook, state secretary, will attend the convention.

Si Plunkett will be at the Grand some time next month and Manager Hertz is negotiating for other first-class attractions for the season. Mr. Hertz is taking great pains to provide only first-class entertainments and always refuses to entertain propositions from such as are not of the very highest order. His efforts in this direction should be duly appreciated and meet with liberal encouragement and no doubt they will be.

Lots of hay coming into the market these days. It is selling at $4.00 per ton.

Miss Dina Arndt, of Fergus Falls, is in the city visiting her friend Miss Tillie Rauch.

Street Commissioner Creighton is around again after having a tussle with rheumatism.

Rudy Burkhardt, Will Hoch, Frank Montague and Dave Giese spent the Sabbath day at Maple Lake.

John Wyntt came home Saturday morning from St. Paul, where he attended a convention of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

Henry Peterson pulled one of his pop engines out of the river on Monday in time to save his life. Henry is always very saving of his help.

E. M. Stanton has purchased John Crombs law library, and is now fully equipped to attend to the wants of all who are looking for law or trouble.

The best way to avoid scalp disease but falling out, and premature baldness is to use the best preventive known for that purpose, Hall's Hair Renewer.

The Black Crook company on Friday evening had a good house and is a good company in the main. The audience seemed well pleased with the entertainment.

The copious rains of last week set vegetation on the east side to booming in great shape and was worth big money to the crops. They needed rain badly.

Harry Norrie is fitting up his old office on Main street adjoining the Germania house to be used as headquarters for the A. R. U. It will be fixed up in nice shape.

Elsewhere in this issue appear the articles of incorporation of the Red Lake Falls Milling Co., a concern organized for the purpose of operating a flour mill at that place.

A bicycle repair shop seems to be the one institution the city of Crookston as the one recently started by Hawkins & Co. is getting all the work in that line that can be properly taken care of.

A big moose walked into Warren last Friday and went into Snake river. A crowd held him there for an hour, but he finally got away, as no one wanted to shoot him on account of the game laws.

From the looks of things about four times the usual area will be sown to barley this year. Everybody seems crazy to get seed—and they are getting lots of it. Not much flax will be sown because it is difficult to obtain the seed.

T. A. Harris has contracted to move R. B. Gates' house and barn up on the ground that Mr. G. has just purchased, east of Mr. Crawford's place. Mr. Gates will put in 10 or 12 acres of potatoes this year.

A St. Cloud Dispatch to the Pioneer Press says:—P. J. McGuire of Crookston, candidate for state auditor four years ago, is again a candidate for that position and will make a canvass of the state before the convention meets.

H. A. Foss, editor of the Nye Neumanden, published at Moorhead, was in the city Monday. He seems to be booming Holston for congress, and Aaron Cooke's farm in Fairfax every time he came to town and finally began to covet the animal. Last Saturday he opened negotiations for him and just as soon as he found out how cheaply the animal could be bought he livested at once and became the owner. Mr. Cooke has a few choice young Jersey heifer calves that he would dispose of for cash or negotiable paper.

Judging by the way seed potatoes have been snapped up this spring that article will be a big item in the market next fall. Austin Larson says he has sold hundreds of bushels to farmers for seed and could have sold 2000 bushels, if he had had them. Everybody is planting all he can get.

Napoleon Rapin is going to give his family the pleasure of a summer's outing at Maple Lake, and has purchased the Barber cottage and now boat. Previous to making this deal he had purchased Hadyn Norrie's sail boat, so he is more than ready for boats. He will move his family out next month and let them remain at the lake all summer.

The Gibney Opera Company will appear before a Crookston audience on the evening of June 7th. This company is playing this week at the Grand in Minneapolis to crowded houses. It is one of the most popular companies ever in that city and Hertz is fortunate in being able to secure this attraction for his house. Lovers of the opera will thus have an opportunity of enjoying a rare treat.

J. G. McGrew came in on Saturday's N. P. train and kept right along to Grand Forks. He was in search of his son Willie, who had, a few days since, taken a notion to visit his old home and took a ride pass for Crookston. The lad had arrived here all right enough but just before his father came he had taken a notion to go elsewhere and had skipped out. Thinking he might have gone to the Forks, Mr. McGrew kept on to that point.

City council meeting to-night.

District court convenes next Monday.

The K. of H. expect to initiate five members tomorrow evening.

Roadmaster Dugan has a very lame leg, a hand car having run over it last Saturday.

Oscar Jenson received the contract for building a school house in school district No. 213.

J. R. Clements has returned from the land of oranges, Florida, to spend the summer.

S. C. Johnson has painted his feed store front and is now putting on as much style as any of 'em.

W. D. Bailey: I have my seeding all done with the exception of 25 to 30 acres yet to plow for barley.

E. B. Winship, of Fargo was up to visit with Mr. I. U. Jennings a few days. They were formerly neighbors in Racine.

R. N. Cochrane tells the JOURNAL that he has his farm all seeded in fine order with the exception from 50 to 75 acres yet to plow for barley.

Aaron Cooke received some flax from the Wells farm on Monday morning to sow on his place on section 9 Fairfax. Intends to sow 60 or 75 acres in flax.

O. S. Paulson, at one time a resident of Grand Forks, but lately of Seattle, Washington, was in the city on Monday en route to Seattle. He says the coast cities are dull, but he expects a reaction before long.

J. R. McKinnon: I made a mistake when I moved my business into that old building on north Main street. In order to do business you must have a good location in a place where business is being done.

Last week R. J. Montague sold a piece of land—22 acres—adjoining Jerome's Addition on the east—to Geo. Easby, who purchased it for R. B. Gates. Consideration, $653. Mr. Gates will probably start a market garden.

Carl U., youngest son of Peter Cornelius, died on Saturday evening of tubercular peritonitis at the age of 10 months. The little one had been ailing since some time in the winter. The funeral occurred at 2 o'clock on Monday Rev. P. T. Hillman officiating.

Pat Duffy was in on Tuesday with two fine milch cows for sale. He has a good many more like them at home, which is why he can afford to sell off the most profitable product of the farm at this time of the year. Pat says, "milch there's always money in cows."

Bill Erwin, the great criminal lawyer, will move to New York City to practice his profession. Bill is a native of Steuben county New York and came to St. Paul in 1878. He has the reputation of being one of the greatest criminal lawyers in the United States.

Ed. Rivlus came over on Saturday and purchased a thoroughbred Berkshire sow of Geo. Vine. George had several extra fine ones that he thought would be more valuable on some good farm than on the block just now. When Ed. brought his through town it seemed like every farmer in the county saw it and George had something like a hundred calls before dark.

J. P. Bullan has been noticing a fine full-blood Jersey bull calf on the Sands' farm in Fairfax every time he came to town and finally began to covet the animal. Last Saturday he opened negotiations for him and just as soon as he found out how cheaply the animal could be bought he livested at once and became the owner. Mr. Cooke has a few choice young Jersey heifer calves that he would dispose of for cash or negotiable paper.

Robert Stanton: "Was up Euelid way this week and never saw crops looking finer than they do at this time. They need rain up that way however. I notice what Richardson says about hogs becoming a drug in the market and I do not fully concur with him in his opinion. I should not be afraid to contract to pay $4 next fall and confidently expect pork will be higher than that. While hogs increase rapidly the shortage was too great to be overcome in one season and hogs will pay well for several seasons yet."

Warren Register: We are pleased to see the name of Hon. S. G. Comstock, of Moorhead, formerly in congress from this district, favorably mentioned by several papers of the district for the republican congressional nomination this fall. Mr. Comstock is a strong man in all the elements required to make a successful candidate and an influential member of congress. He has been tried and proved. We must put up a strong man, a man who stands above and is beyond the prejudices and bickerings of small fry politicians who are inflated with their own hungriness, and the ridiculous idea that they are competent for the position and possess the confidence of the voters. If we make the fight with a man like S. G. Comstock as our standard bearer, we can win; but if we put up a small fry politician, we shall be beaten, and deserve the defeat.

Jas. Rosanen and wife were up from Fisher on Saturday.

Henry Nolan and Wm. Marin drove to Fisher last Saturday.

Dave Morrow and Tom Stewart, two prominent Maralı farmers were chatting with friends in the city last week.

A cold wave last week caused fruit growers a bit of uneasiness. So far we have heard of no serious damage resulted.

The grass on all unsold railroad lands will be sold at public auction June 11th, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Rooms 35 and 36, Rockitt Block.

Col. Gorgas received a check for $135.00 as adjustment of the loss on Alderman & Sylvester's building that was damaged by fire awhile ago.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co. are driving as fine a span of matched black horses as one would wish to see and Larsen does solemnly affirm that he has to take no man's dust while on the road.

A. E. Brush and son were down from Angus last Saturday driving as fine a span of horses as one would wish to see. They were nicely matched, good steppers and would attract attention anywhere.

J. R. McKinnon has moved his agricultural implement depot from North Main street to the room in the McKinnon block, formerly occupied by A. Scave, where he will keep a full line of wagons, buggies and farm machinery, and would be pleased to meet all his old customers and friends and talk business with them.

Come and see us when you get ready to build. And if out of town, mail us your bill and we will make you satisfactory prices.
[5-6] STEWART LUMBER CO.

Veterans' Day

At First M. E. Church next Sunday. Morning sermon, "Paul's Marching Orders." Evening, Memorial sermon before the G. A. R. post, "What We Owe the Veterans." Special decorations and fine music.

S. C. Johnson has sold his branch store in Fosston.

Graham Manch drove down to Fisher on Sunday last with four lady friends.

The artesian well at Fosston—which Sam Dolmarl is driving—is down about 100 feet now.

J. P. Johnson and J. J. Stoverz were in from Mehlstedt Friday doing a little quiet work for county division.

W. B. Dawley is "making" the northern part of the state this week and spends considerable time at home.

Hood's and Only Hood's.

Are you weak and weary, overworked and tired? Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine you need to purify and quicken your blood and to give you appetite and strength. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other. Any effort to substitute another remedy is proof of the merit of Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box.

In all cases, where a mild but effective aperient is needed, Ayer's Pills are the best. They improve the appetite, restore healthy action, promote digestion, and regulate every function. No pill is in greater demand, or more highly recommended by the profession.

The First Sledgeride

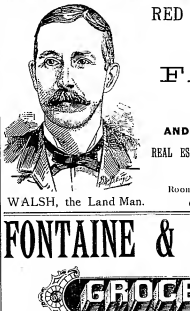
Of the season was taken by Uncle D. N. Taylor on Monday afternoon. He drove his thoroughbred roadster along Fletcher as prompt as you please, and looked as blasé and smiling as a basket of chips as he bowed right and left to the assembled thousands who crowded the sidewalks to see such an unusual sight. He had probably heard of the fact that ice formed on the pools for two nights which may account for the wholesomeness of the sky.

The vast facilities of J. C. Ayer Co. of Lowell, Mass., enable them to place The Superior Blood-purifier—Ayer's Sarsaparilla—within easy reach of the poorest invalid. Don't be induced to take a "cheap" substitute. Always remember that the best is the cheapest.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE



WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
UNIMPROVED
FARMS
FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.
REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,
E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fourset Block.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S
GROCERY
DEPARTMENT

Best Patent Flour, per sack	$ 1.50
Bakers' Flour, per sack	1.15
20 pounds Granulated Sugar for	1.00
15 " Best California Prunes for	1.00
30 " English Currants for	1.00
19 " Best Cooking Raisins for	1.00
Fancy Layer Raisins, per pound	15
All Package Coffees, per pound	23
Choice Guatemala Coffee, large, even bean, elegant, per pound	28
3 pounds Mocha and Java Coffee for	1.00
Choice Uncolored Japan Tea, per pound	25
Fancy " " " "	35
25 Bars Kirk's Soap	1.00
28 Bars Victor soap	1.00
Best Canned Corn, per can	10
" " Tomatoes, per can	12½
20 pound pail jelly	60
2 gallon pail syrup	60
Best California Canned Goods. Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums, Muscat Grapes, per can	12½

We carry a large assortment of Flower Pots. Our line of Crockery and Glassware is the largest in Polk County.
— FONTAINE & ANGLIM. —

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1894. NO. 7.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....David M. Clough.
Secretary of State.....F. P. Brown
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.....Halor E. Dorn

Legislative.

Senator, 53d Sen. Dist.....E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 53d Sen. Dist.....John D. Knutson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Judson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....J. J. Elliott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 11th Jud. District .....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court.....Nils Munn

County.

Auditor.....C. U. Webster
Treasurer.....J. T. Deasley
Register of Deeds.....John Amundson
Attorney.....A. R. Rideout
Sheriff.....Atay Grundysen
Judge of Probate.....C. N. Benson
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lommen
Surveyor.....O. L. Haserey
Court Com'r.....W. L. Averill
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.....John E. Oppegaard
Second District.....Anton Linden
Third District.....M. E. Hinds
Fourth District.....C. P. Demers
Fifth District.....A. C. Bhichert

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Blevins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eskstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Bray
Badger	F N Savalrud	Mentor
Brandsvold,	ote Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Barer	Euclid
Bristol,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grendeen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lanctot,	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Milner	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skeis	Gilby
Fairfax,	Ole Hunsbakack,	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Warren
Fanny,	J G McWatters,	Euclid
Fisher,	John Gieason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gieeson	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gn Forks	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J E Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Ivor J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Braaen	Hinpleal
Gentilly	H T Goudron.	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Defogno	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott,	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mcbeill,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendricksen	Northland
Hill River,	Fred S Syverson	Lindsay
Hubbard,	Andrew Aarosen.	Zetterlie
Kerstone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Huntsville,	G H Frosts.	G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	J D Knutson.	Gentilly
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunella	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebraan,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clemantson.	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Mallema	Oretla
Lorch,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbert	Hast
Nebbi,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
North	Harry Beye,	T R Falls
Nordeo,	H B Bardson	T. R. Falls
Northland.	M S Mercer	Northland
Numedal,	Hesme ? E Albne,	Tweed
Onstad,	W A Mavin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Blesu	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans S Hoskum	Fosston
R.L.V. village,	A P Temple	R. L. Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Hdwig Berli	R L Falls
Rein,	D C Hellock	Erlon
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rockebury,	P Engleseal	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Bookind	Roby
Rosebud,	John E Juverud,	Fosston
Russia,	Grens Simonsen	Crookston
sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	Northland
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	St. Hilaire
Steiner,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	T G Falls
Terrebonne,	F J Cormonck	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perreau	Terrebonne
Tilden,
Tynsid,	A O Sterinson	Roby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Roby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Rindal
Woodside,	Thos. Haddonton,	Maple Bay
Wylie,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Blunehart,	Oscar Wick	T G Forks
Thief River Falls	Adam Zeh,	T R Falls

Wanted.

A position in Crookston by a competent dressmaker. Call at JOURNAL office.

Plant in Your Memory,

That the North-Western Line offers the best trains service from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Sioux City, Duluth and Superior, and is the only line running pullman sleepers to all these cities, besides affording first-class day coach service. Try this line also to Ashland. [46-tf]

Mr. Ned Hindley, a prominent farmer and stockman of Mcnkeny county, Neb., says; "After trying your Hollen's Barb Wire Liniment, I am satisfied that it is the best thing on the market. I have seen horses cut so badly by wire that they were thought to be worthless, cured in fured in three weeks. I would not be without it, and can sincerely recommend it to all farmers and stockraisers." F. L. Durand sells and guarantees it.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The Largest Turn-out of Citizens Ever seen in Crookston on a Similar Occasion.

The Exercises at the Cemetery were Impressive.---This Address was Eloquent.

C. S. Speedley was Buried with all the Honors of the G. A. R. and Masons.

The 30th day of May, 1894, passes into history as one of the most successful events of the kind ever held in Crookston since Memorial Day was first observed in this city. The parade, which was organized according to program published in last issue (except the addition of the Masonic lodge as escort for the body of Judge Spendley, and a few minor changes rendered necessary by the funeral services), and it is thought that had all the carriages been in line the procession would have been two miles long. At 12 o'clock the G. A. R. Post formed at G. A. R. hall, and headed by the Queen City Band, marched up to the Masonic hall on Broadway, where the Masons formed in line and marched to the residence of the late Judge C. S. Spendley, and from thence, in grounds of honor, they escorted the remains to the Presbyterian church, where, after appropriate religious services, they joined in the Memorial procession and marched to the cemetery. Arriving at the cemetery the members of Col. Cobham Post circled around the grave where the G. A. R. burial rites were performed, the Post then gave way to the Masons, who performed the beautiful burial ceremonies of that order. Then the assembled multitudes repaired to the pavilion where the further exercises of the day—the Memorial exercises—were carried out as per program, and the march back to the city was taken, arriving at about 5:30. Although everybody seemed exceedingly weary, yet the universal verdict seems to have been that never before were the exercises of the day so solemn and impressive as on this occasion, nor better carried out to a successful issue.

A Veteran Gone.

Again has our community been shocked and saddened in the sudden death of one of our most prominent citizens—a man beloved for his many virtues by all alike, rich and poor, old and young—a veteran not only in the war of the rebellion but also of our county and city.

CHARLES S. SPENDLEY, who died suddenly at his residence in this city at 9:30 a. m. on Monday of a complication of diseases culminating in heart failure. On Thursday afternoon, May 24, while about his usual avocation down town he was suddenly seized with an attack of heart trouble. A physician was procured, and he revived sufficiently to be taken to his house, which he never left alive again. He had been in feeble health for a year, but such was his indomitable will power that he stuck to his post of business almost to the last hour. The loss of his infant son last winter was a severe blow to him which he never fully recovered and he never ceased to mourn the loss of the little one. Charles S. Spendley, son of William and Susan Spendley, was a native of Binghamton, Broome County, New York. He came to Minnesota in 1856, settling at Zumbrota, where he engaged in farming, in which business he continued until 1862, when he enlisted in Co. E, First Minnesota Heavy Artillery, in which regiment he served until October 1865, when he was discharged and returned home. When the first tocsin of war was sounded he repaired to Fort Snelling and offered his services to his country but at that time only the most rugged men were accepted and he was rejected, but later on, as we have seen, he was accepted and proved a brave and valiant soldier, always at his post of duty and ever ready and faithful in its discharge. In 1872 he came to Polk county and took a claim within two and one-half miles of the city. When Polk county was organized he was one of the judges of election and was the first judge of probate. In 1874 he was elected to the office of register of deeds, taking possession January 1, '75, and continuing for ten years, when he declined to accept re-election and for two years took a much needed rest from official life. In the spring of 1887 he was elected city justice, which office he filled up to the hour of his death. On February 17, 1885, he was united in marriage to Miss Elsie H. Newton, who with one daughter survives him. Mr. Spendley was one of the charter members of Col. Cobham Post No. 99, serving his post in almost every office within its gift as long as he was able to attend, was one of the post commanders, and the interests of the post, and of the old vets who compose it, were ever near his heart, and many is the comrade that he has cheerfully aided to secure a pension. He was a member of Crookston Lodge A. F. and A. M., and of Pierson Chapter No. 4, R. A. M. Though not a man of wealth as this world esteems riches, yet he had an inheritance that money can never buy, in the universal love and respect with which he was held by all with whom he came in contact. Always of a bright, genial, social disposition, scrupulously honest in all his dealings with his fellow-men, "None knew him but to love him, none mentioned but to praise," and in the hearts of all—especially of his old comrades in arms and members of the Post he loved so well, will his memory be kept fresh and green as long as memory shall last to the old comrades, as on each recurring Memorial Day tears will fall with the flowers that will decorate his last resting place.

A Model Farmer.

The JOURNAL, realizing that the basis of our prosperity in Polk county is agriculture, likes to get hold of instances wherein "pluck and muscle" have been a notable success and one was related us this week by a farmer who is too modest to allow us to use his name in this connection. He came to Polk county in '78 with just means enough to get himself and family located on a government claim. With a cow, a few pigs and chickens and the product of a small garden patch, supplemented, by what work he could find to do, he managed to carry his family through the year without running in debt. He also managed to break 10 acres the first year. The next season he went out and had 8 acres of his land sowed to wheat, the balance he planted to potatoes and garden stuff, cutting his wheat with the old-fashioned cradle, and before the rigors of winter set in, managed to thresh it with a flail. Meantime he had not neglected time as opportunity offered picked up a steer or so until he had four of them and by the next spring he had them well broken and in condition only for seeding. After seeding he hired a breaking plow and broke 20 acres more. He says he started in with a determination to pay no more debt, and always rigidly lived up to that determination; and while at times he had pretty hard sledding he now has a good farm, good team and farming utensils a good house and barn and does not owe one cent. Pays cash for everything and saves a little money every year.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms. [1-tf] A. F. GEORGE, Opera Block.

The Meaning of Protection.

In my opinion, the word protection should be studied as to its meaning and application. It is a word that should be held dear to the hearts of every American, man, woman or child. It means, as I have I been taught, defense, shelter from evil, a passport whereby we may be being molested. It is very hard to explain to a man that is not informed what a cartel of commerce is. Still it is a writing containing stipulations, that gives aid and comfort to him in his everyday transactions. It covers his head, shoes his feet, clothes his back and feeds his stomach. Protection is the safeguard to American liberty. The plan that will vote against protection who is a laborer and agriculturist is certainly a deluded man. I am now almost 70 years old, have always been a protectionist and expect to be until time is no more with me.—Logan Williamson.

The wilson tariff bill is only in favor of importers. Many so called Democrats in congress voted for it because they do not know what is right, or for the benefit of the people at large in this country. How many senators will vote for it we do not know at present. The elections we had lately in different parts of the country prove, however, what the people think of the Wilson bill. It is not so much the Democratic or Republican party as the tariff question, but nine-tenths of our present congressmen and senators who vote for the passing of the Wilson tariff bill may consider it will their last term in office. I suppose the majority of the people at large will look upon them as traitors of the country.—F. Pryibil.

From the White House Nursery.

Grover, grocery, Groves,
What shall he rave over
Over the hill? That makes him ill.
Better try as a cackle Grover.

CITY COUNCIL.

Report of the Adjourned Meeting Held Last Thursday Evening, May 24th, 1894.

A Sewer to be Built on Sixth Street at an Estimated Cost of $4,100.

Supreme Court Decisions of Local Interest—Other Matters.

An adjourned meeting of the city council was held last Thursday night, with all the members of the board present.

The city engineer reported upon the cost of grading State street in Jerome's addition, and the report was accepted. Alderman Hult stated that the majority of the property holders along said street wanted the grading done and were ready to pay their assessments. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for doing the work, and the bids will be opened June 6th.

The committee consisting of the Second and Third ward aldermen, which had been instructed to confer with a committee from the county board regarding the condition of a sewer from the court house to the river, along Sixth street, reported that it was the opinion of the city engineer that a twenty-four inch sewer pipe was all that was needed. The county board intended putting in a small sewer for the use of the county buildings only, and it is expected the county will pay the cost of a small sewer towards the construction of a large one. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for doing the work, said bids to be opened June 6th. The engineer estimates the cost of the sewer at $4,100.

The city attorney reported that Fontaine & Anglim refused to settle with the city for $250 for use of their engine at the sewer last summer. Considerable discussion was indulged in without any definite action.

The finance committee reported that they were unable to determine which of the bids for doing the city printing was the lowest. On a vote being taken it resulted as follows: For the JOURNAL, Jennings, Bubu, Gervais, Wheeler and Hult. For the Times: Kirsch, Norrie, McGregor, Manley, Walsh and Morrissey. Times awarded the contract.

Dr. Watts was appointed health officer, and the chief of police and street commissioner were instructed to see that his orders were carried out.

The mayor and president of the council were added to the sewer committee appointed at last meeting.

Henry Nolan was awarded the contract of constructing sidewalks across the Sampson's Addition bridge, his bid of $239.92 being the lowest. The work is to be finished by June 20th.

At his suggestion the city engineer was instructed to place the survey monuments which were purchased some days ago. There were 60 monuments purchased, and only 15 of them placed in position. The work will cost about $100.

A motion was carried to enforce the bicycle ordinance, and the chief of police was instructed to close all saloons as soon as their licenses expired and were not renewed.

The matter of opening up Sixth street, from Ash to Alexander, in McDonald's Addition, was brought before the council by petition, and was laid over till next meeting.

Aldermen Kirsch, Hult and Jennings were appointed as a committee to look into the question of grading the streets or putting them in better condition, and report at next meeting.

Council adjourned to June 6th.

Supreme Court Decisions.

The case of Gresham B. Ward vs. J. P. Johnson, which was argued in the Supreme Court lately by Halvor Dickenson on behalf of Johnson, and Jenkins & Trent of Alexandria on behalf of Ward, has been decided in favor of Johnson.

Johnson was the victim of a "horse company" deal at McIntosh.

He had signed a joint note for $2500 with the distinct understanding that unless 23 signatures—each liable for $100—were obtained, the note was to be void. Only fifteen signatures were obtained, the note was transferred to an "innocent purchaser," Ward, who in due time sued Mr. Johnson to pay $750 as his share. This the latter refused to do, and suit was brought to recover. The case was tried before Judge D. B. Searle, who instructed the jury that they could not take into consideration the question of the good faith of the transaction, and as a result the jury found for the plaintiff Ward. Johnson appealed to supreme court, and that body has reversed the decision of the lower court on the ground that the signatures to the note were obtained by false representations and the note is therefore void.

Mr. Johnson has spent considerable money fighting this case, but it has not been in vain. It will have a wholesome effect upon people who have been too ready to buy questionable paper, at a big discount, and then push their claim on the ground that they are "innocent purchasers."

In the case of John McLennan vs. Wyman & Lemon and M. & N. Elevator Co., a new trial was granted defendant Lemon, but denied as to the elevator company. Ed. George counsel for plaintiff, and A. A. Miller for defendants.

The Crookston Improvement Co. vs. Annie L. Marshall, et al., was decided in favor of the Improvement Co., of which B. Sampson is president. H. Steenerson for plaintiff, and A. A. Miller for defendants.

To Teachers of Polk County

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teacher should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be published later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMEN,
County Supt.

Morris Items.

Everybody is done seeding.

Rain is needed badly here to insure good crops.

Rev. Pettit, who will be the pastor of the Morris, Fisher and Glyndon churches, will take charge next Sunday, June 3d. Rev. Pettit is spoken of highly by everybody who knows him.

Mr. James McDonald loaded a car of wheat the latter part of last week.

Pony racing seems to be all the go here.

Some farmers who have much mustard and wild oats are planting corn and potatoes. Wm. Skinner planted 40 acres of potatoes, Joseph Jurvis planted 60 acres of corn.

MARIAS PENCILER.

Euclid Items.

EUCLID, May 28, 1894.

The school house is being papered.

The work has begun of putting a brick foundation under the church.

Strawberries and ice cream will be served at the church social, Thursday evening.

The town board meets in the office of the town clerk, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Chas. Benoit died at an early hour on Thursday last.

T. E. Bieyer came home this morning after being in Crookston since Monday. He will return this evening.

Nick Engel and Miss Mary Nelson drove to Crookston Tuesday, and were there united in marriage. They will make their home in this place.

The new church which was gotten up by the leading folks, will be their finest at the social Thursday evening.

Lewis Hancock and his sister, Ida, rode up from Crookston on their bicycles Tuesday evening.

Miss Olive Curtis, of Mentor, came home this morning and will visit the balance of the week with her parents.

Polk Co. Teachers' Association.

Following is the program of the Teachers' Association to be held on Saturday, June 2nd:

10:30 a. m.

Business Meeting—Election of Officers.

2:00 p. m.

Paper, Grube Method.....	J. F. Heiler
Paper, Practice.....	Andrew Morrison
Paper, Examinations.....	Marion Campion
Paper, Teaching Morals.....	Ida E. Bancroft
Paper, Denominate Numbers.....	B. R. Norwood
Paper, Memorizing.....	Ida F. Bruce
Question Box.....	R. W. Hitchcock

DISTRICT COURT

Convened Monday Morning With the Average Number of Cases on the Calendar.

Jos. Lajoie Indicted—Samuel Henderson Fined $50 for Grand Larceny.

The Runnells Divorce Case Comes up—Thos. O'Neill Discharged.

District court convened at the court house Monday morning, May 28th, at 10 o'clock.

The first order of business was the call of the grand jury. Twenty-one of the twenty-three summoned answered to roll call; the absent ones being excused from service. The court instructed them as to their duty and called their attention particularly to the fact that they should look after parties keeping houses of ill-fame and gambling houses in the county, and to bring such parties to trial. And also the parties selling liquor to Indians were to be looked after. L. H. Judson was appointed foreman.

A full quota of Crookston attorneys were present. M. A. Bradland, of Ada; F. H. McDermont, of Grand Forks; J. Walseth, of Fertile, were also in attendance.

A preliminary call of the calendar was then had. Sixty-five civil and six criminal cases appear. Several appeal cases moved on. About fifty jury cases are for trial. The petit jury is called for the third day.

After hearing a few motions argued court adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m.

The afternoon was taken up in arguing motions and setting cases. The grand jury returned one indictment against Samuel Henderson. The charge is grand larceny in the second degree, the offense being that on the 19th of April last, the defendant entered the meat market of John Martin, in East Grand Forks, and stole meat to the amount of $18.00. Deforest Buckley was named by the court to defend the defendant.

TUESDAY.

The morning session was mostly consumed in the arguments of motions, demurrers, continuances, etc. The case of the State of Minnesota vs. Samuel Henderson, charged with grand larceny in the second degree, was taken up. The defendant plead guilty and his attorney asked the leniency of the court. The sentence passed was $50 fine, or in case of default, sixty days in the county jail.

At the afternoon session not much business was performed. Lawyer Watts moved an appeal case, Ole Kvamme vs. Nels Vebrem, on the calendar and asked the court that he be allowed to file an answer. Granted.

A. A. Miller then moved to strike out the answer in the case of Chas. P. Chase vs. John Meier and Christiana Meier, as sham. Ira C. Richardson appearing as counsel for defendant. This is an action on notes. The motion was denied. The case will go over till the December term.

Chas. O'Neill who was brought to the county jail two or three months ago from East Grand Forks on a charge of breaking into a saloon there and stealing some whiskey, was dismissed today; the grand jury failed to find an indictment against him.

The grand jury returned an indictment against Jos. Lajoie on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. The charge is of converting to his own use the school funds of the district of which he was an officer.

The case of P. H. Runnels vs. Mary Runnels was brought up by defendant entering a motion for attorney's fees and alimony for her support pending the action for divorce. The court allowed defendant $100 attorney's fees and $40 per month for the support of herself and children pending the action.

Court adjourned until Thursday morning, Wednesday being a legal holiday.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure

F. J. Cheney & Co Props. Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo O.
Walding, Kennan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials

THE FACE OF THE CLIFF.

CHARLES EDWARD MONTAGUE
AUTHOR OF "RACKRENTED," "THE HUMOR OF THE DOOMED," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED, 1893, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER II.

The waves washed lonesomely on the rocks below. The night wind sighed in its dismal moods. The breath of the listeners came quickly and audibly. The. were no other sounds.

"I hear nothing," the physician. "but the wash of the sea."

"Hist! What's that?"

A faint cry, rising on the wind, mysterious, indescribable!

"A child!" cried the doctor, "or a dog!"

"Whatever it be, it has fallen over the cliff," said Maxey.

His sister shuddered, but her voice was very calm. "You forget the footsteps and the man I saw jump over the fence and run away. The snow is trodden and trampled all about us. There has been a struggle here where we are standing. I am afraid for what you will find down there. Stay with me, Julian, and let the doctor go down."

The doctor went down, and in a little while he came back again.

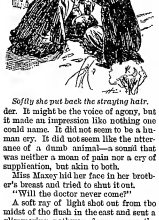
"There is something caught on a point of rock between here and the beach," he said hurriedly. "I could, by looking up, just see it between me and the sky—something which flutters in the wind. Maxey, you had better take Miss Ellen back to the sleigh. We need a rope and a lantern at once. I will run to the house you just passed. I shall return immediately."

No doubt of that, if he maintained the pace at which he set off.

Miss Maxey declined to go back to the sleigh.

"I am not a coward!" she said. "Something is suffering. Until it can be relieved, my duty is here. Hark, Julian! I hear it again."

Yes, again and again and again ere the good doctor appeared. It rose and fell like the pulsations on the beach below as the wind carried it, sometimes dying away into silence, sometimes welling up into loudness—a strange, forlorn sound to be listening to in a lonely place after dark. There was something unfamiliar—almost unearthly—about it that made its hearers shud-



Softly she put back the straying hair.

der. It might be the voice of agony, but it made an impression like nothing one could name. It did not seem to be a man or a woman cry. It did not seem like the utterance of a dumb animal—a sound that was neither a moan nor a shriek nor a cry of supplication, but akin to both.

Miss Maxey hid her face in her brother's breast and tried to shut it out.

"Will the doctor never come?"

A soft ray of light shot out from the midst of the flats in the east and sent a glimmering pathway down across the sea. They would have light enough anon. The moon was rising. Then came the sound of voices and footsteps hurrying up the road, and here were Dr. Lamar and two strangers with ropes and lanterns.

Miss Maxey stepped back several paces from the little band of men who were gathered upon the edge of the bluff. She saw them holding a consultation and making calculations. One of them hid down near the treacherous, ice clad edge of the bluff flat on his face, and crawled to the very verge, so that he might look over. A lantern on the end of a rope was then let down. After a few minutes it was drawn up. The man arose. Another, the smallest of the group, now submitted himself to be made securely fast to the end of the line and was lowered over the edge. Two of the men at the rope stood on the other side of the wall, with their feet braced against it. The third stood as near the edge of the cliff as he dared and used the line over the socks. He listened for the voice of the man at the end of the rope and repeated his instructions to the man on the other side of the wall.

"Lower! Lower! A little more. Steady! Hold fast! Now, pull! Steady! Pull! Once more! Now, again! Stop!"

Breathless, excited, Miss Maxey started forward. The man at the verge was already upon his breast, carefully reaching down to grasp the delicate burden. Again that strange, weird cry, louder and more at hand, a flutter of garments tossed by the wind, a final pull upon the rope, a gasp and a struggle, and a motionless object was laid down in the trampled snow. Everybody was bending over it, Miss Maxey among the first. The lanterns were held close down.

Softly she put back the straying hair from the face that she might look upon it, and she saw the features of a young woman cut so as to show by strong white and dark and beautiful like herself. The face was very pale, and it was slightly scratched and bruised, but there was no blood upon it there was something strained and unnatural in its appearance, but through all the harshness of the expression, all the ghastliness and pallor, the delicate charm of a classic outline, the regularity of chiseled features, asserted their presence still.

Miss Maxey saw all this with an added pang in her sympathetic heart. Somehow the very human thought that these things made the pity of it the greater obtruded itself even into Miss Maxey's sensible reflections. She sat gazing into the unconscious countenance alone, for the others had left her. The removal of all the men were taken in the task of drawing up him who had gone down to the beach, and then noticed that the unfortunate creature was well and warmly clad. Her clothing was of a modest and unpretentious character, but at the same time it did not indicate poverty.

"What a terrible thing!" exclaimed Miss Maxey in a burst of sympathy.

As she spoke the long lashes lifted. The dark eyes looked for an instant full into her own, and there came into the face a vague expression, a something, rather, that had not enough of intelligence in it to be called an expression, as if fear had laid the mold of his unsightly features upon it, and never stamped his image there forever. And from the tremulous lips came forth that strange, weird cry, more human than a moan nor a plea, not a human sound exactly, nor suggestive wholly of a dumb animal in distress.

"Poor child!" It was the voice of Dr. Lamar, who was bending over Miss Maxey's shoulder. "Poor child! A misfortune! This is a very serious matter indeed!"

CHAPTER III.
THE TOTAL ECLIPSE.

Ballavoice place is a very quiet street at all times. On a still day footsteps awake echoes there, not, because it is far from the busy center of the city, for it lends directly out of an important avenue through which there is much passing, but because it is not a thoroughfare. On two sides substantial brick houses present an unbroken front next to the street. On the third side a high picketed fence prevents it from leading over a solid pile of rocks, rising hilly to its level and known as a sea wall, directly into the river. Ballavoice place and all the streets in the other quarter of this is termed "made land," for the time was not long ago when the tide from the harbor flowed twice a day over the salt marshes 20 feet below the present paved and solid surface. Therefore it is that the houses have no cellars.

On the third side a high picketed fence prevents it from leading over a solid pile of rocks, rising hilly to its level and known as a sea wall, directly into the river. Ballavoice place and all the streets in the other quarter of this is termed "made land," for the time was not long ago when the tide from the harbor flowed twice a day over the salt marshes 20 feet below the present paved and solid surface. Therefore it is that the houses have no cellars.

Ballavoice place is a very quiet street at all times. On a still day footsteps awake echoes there, not, because it is far from the busy center of the city, for it lends directly out of an important avenue through which there is much passing, but because it is not a thoroughfare. On two sides substantial brick houses present an unbroken front next to the street. On the third side a high picketed fence prevents it from leading over a solid pile of rocks, rising hilly to its level and known as a sea wall, directly into the river. Ballavoice place and all the streets in the other quarter of this is termed "made land," for the time was not long ago when the tide from the harbor flowed twice a day over the salt marshes 20 feet below the present paved and solid surface. Therefore it is that the houses have no cellars.

Ballavoice place is a very quiet street at all times. On a still day footsteps awake echoes there, not, because it is far from the busy center of the city, for it lends directly out of an important avenue through which there is much passing, but because it is not a thoroughfare. On two sides substantial brick houses present an unbroken front next to the street. On the third side a high picketed fence prevents it from leading over a solid pile of rocks, rising hilly to its level and known as a sea wall, directly into the river. Ballavoice place and all the streets in the other quarter of this is termed "made land," for the time was not long ago when the tide from the harbor flowed twice a day over the salt marshes 20 feet below the present paved and solid surface. Therefore it is that the houses have no cellars.

"How does she seem today?" Julian Maxey questioned in a tone of deep anxiety.

"Just as she has been since we found her, just as she seems likely to be for the rest of her days—in a state of total eclipse." There was no air of jocularity about Dr. Lamar's manner. He was very much dissatisfied with the situation, although his concern was of a different nature from Maxey's. A medical problem that baffled him always aroused in him a grim antagonism that was far from humorous.

"You don't mean to tell me you are beginning to look upon this as a hopeless case?" Maxey exclaimed in consternation. Whenever Maxey got excited, his hair promptly exhibited a tendency to assume an erect attitude, and his uncle tie inevitably became awry. Lamar noted that he was now somewhat excited.

"I mean to tell you, as I have told you, that even partial recovery is very improbable."

"But you will not say impossible!"

"They are synonymous terms with most of us. For my part, I am cautious. There is the one chance in a million that always exists."

Miss Maxey had come into the room in time to hear this disheartening reply. She spoke up, with almost hysterical emphasis:

"And that one chance will save her. I believe too much in the justice of heaven to think for a moment that she will lie here and die with closed lips. I don't, I can't believe it. And even there is a God or any Providence in human events, the time will come when that poor girl will speak and denounce the inhuman monster who pushed her from the road!"

"You believe in poetic justice, Miss Maxey. Unfortunately for me, I am a practical physician and obtain my idea of human events from life and not from novels. The time may come, it is true, but to say that it will is to [illegible] a depth of confidence in my skill [illegible] which I hardly possess myself. This girl certainly cannot recover without medical aid, and it is utterly [illegible] to me that even if she does, the shock will reach her. That is how the matter stands at present."

"But the present is not the future," cried Miss Maxey, with a warm glow in her cheeks. Perhaps, in spite of all her enthusiasm, she felt it was because she spoke to. "Nothing can make me believe that she will die like this. God would not permit such a crime to go unpunished."

"Without discussing that, my dear Miss Maxey," replied the physician, smiling, "I need hardly remind you that there are other and much more obvious ways of accomplishing that end than by working a miracle in this poor girl's brain. And, by the way, Maxey, how does your part of the case stand?"

"Sit down," said Maxey. "Do you can spare a minute, I know, and of course you must be interested. We all are. True, I haven't much to tell you. There have been half a dozen reporters here daily and more or less detectives and police officers, but I rather think their interest is dying now rapidly."

"Shameful!" ejaculated Miss Maxey. "Just because of a few obstacles!"

"Obstacles!" echoed her brother. "I should say they were obstacles! Why, there isn't a shadow of light in any direction. I see nothing in the case now from a judicial standpoint."

Dr. Lamar had taken a chair by the window, where he seemed to be devoting his exclusive attention to the fine blocks drifting down the river. Miss Maxey had not seated herself exactly, but she had assumed an upright position on the sofa. She was eager, earnest and wholly absorbed in the subject of conversation.

An exceedingly sensitive and emotional creature was this Miss Maxey, and in a matter such as this, where her whole nature was aroused, she was a powerful friend and a most dangerous adversary. It was entirely at her solicitation that the poor waif of the cliff's cove chamber had been brought to the house. Miss Maxey listened to what her brother had to say with quick interruption and shining eyes. Ah, if Dr. Lamar had had the soul of an artist, he would have found something more inspiring to look at than the icy river.

"These are the facts," continued Maxey, tossing them off in the style of the center table with a paper cutter as he talked. "It is now the 16th of December. On the 13th was the 21st anniversary of the year. The evening of that day a belated sleighing party just after nightfall, discovered a woman's figure in the middle of a lonely road at a point where it runs along the borders of a rocky bluff. Investigation followed, and eventually results in the rescue of a young woman who was caught by the clothing upon a jagged rock that juts out between the top and bottom of an almost vertical section of this bluff. This young woman is so badly injured internally that she is incapable of giving the least clew either to her identity or to the strange position in which she was found. Nothing remains but to make a careful examination for the discovery of evidence in the case. This turns out to be exceedingly meager, but such as it is it all points one way."

"One of the pockets of the girl's clothes is found inside out, and she rest are empty. Her money and her valuables are lost jewels in her ears, although the ears are pierced. The dress of the unknown indicates that she was not in the middle class, but the refinement and delicacy of her face and hands, which are singularly white and free from any trace of hard work, are even stronger evidences that she is not an ordinary shopgirl, to say the least. This turning of the pocket and utter absence of rings or ornaments lead naturally to the conclusion that she has been robbed and thrown from the road. In substantiation of this, the snow is trampled just above the place where she was found and smooth all along the roadside. One of the sleighing party is positive that she saw a man leap over a fence and run across the field on the other side of the way. A close scrutiny finds footsteps leading into the field at the point indicated. They are followed, and after a short detour lead around in the direction of the city into the road again, where they are lost irreparably. In the absence of all other evidence we must suppose, then, that the girl was set upon and robbed by a person unknown and thrown over the bank to get rid of her. Let us suppose the police take this for granted as the outset."

"It is all they are good for, taking things for granted," commented Miss Maxey. "I can't see that they ever discover anything."

"Very well. So far it is all plain and natural. But where did the victim come from, and how came she upon the cliff road at that time? At this point we find ourselves utterly unable to form any plausible theory. There is not a single clew to her identity, not a crumb on the underclothing, not even an initial on the handkerchief. Suppose we are the police under the circumstances, what can we do? Nothing in the world except what they did do, photograph the girl and send her description, not omitting the smallest detail of clothing which she wore, and including the curious fact that one of the toes of her left foot is missing, broadcast over the community. The result is that the first day in it brought how the details are worn out with the footsteps of people whom only possible interest is that of curiosity, who come to see the victim under the pretext of attempting to identify her."

"And who stare and gawk about with open mouths until they have fairly to be pushed out of the room," added Miss Maxey.

"In short," continued the artist, "we are in danger of being turned into a museum for the exclusive patronage of all the idlers and deadbeats in the city. This clearly will not do, and we must get our medical adviser to declare a public inspection irritating and dangerous to the patient."

"I believe it did annoy her," said Dr. Lamar. "At any rate, it did her no good."

"And this is the strangest part of the mystery to my mind," continued Maxey. "After with all these [illegible] with the newspapers printing [illegible] talking and pictures and description [illegible], nobody appears to claim [illegible] all this time. It is as if she dropped down upon the cliff road from another planet. Whatever she has been people must have seen her; her friends must miss her. Then why are they silent?"

Dr. Lamar was still watching the ice blocks. Something suggested by Maxey's last words made him frown. He did not turn his head to answer:

"You exaggerate, Julian. Because this case seems all important to you and your sister and—so my perhaps, and because a few policemen and reporters call, and the rabble who read the newspapers look to your sister for the opportunity to gain them, you immediately think that the whole world has become excited over the mysterious affair. All, let me tell you, is a large word, and everybody cannot be thinking you dog! Imagine. How many thousand people in this very city today never read a newspaper and are too much occupied in their own struggle for existence to mind much about other people's! In your own case has not a week gone by, or ten, I'll warrant you nor more than half of the total population of this metropolis has ever heard of the mystery of the beach road."

Ellen sighed.

"The doctor is right, Julian."

"Perhaps. I am not disputing him. It is but a week yet, and there are peculiar circumstances. I am astonished at perfectly possible, under which a person might suffer such an accident as this poor creature has and not be missed for soon. Suppose, for instance, I were to announce to you that I was going away for a week or two and were to fall down at the end of the street and break my neck—"

"I should know all about it in two hours," interrupted his sister. "No, Julian, you have spoken about the friends, but you have not thought of the enemies. The blind in this case are willfully blind, Julian, depend upon it, willfully blind."

"Phaw," said Maxey, "that is going too far altogether! Better leave some other theory. Suicide is more probable."

"Ridiculous!" was his sister's comment.

"Very well, suppose this: Suppose that she has been known as long as she has as we see her now; that her friends had taken care of her, but that she had become a burden upon them; that in a moment of neglect she escaped and wandered over the edge of the bluff; that they knew if when it was too late, and forbore to interfere after the mischief was done, well knowing that it would make no difference to her and was willing to be bothered longer with her support. What different aspect would the case present then it does now?"

"A cruel, heartless theory, Julian, and you ought to be keener than that to get out of it yourself. What of the pocket turned inside out, the trampled snow and the man who ran away?"

"Appearances are often deceptive. Thieves are not the only people who turn pockets inside out. Men search for other causes than a guilty conscience. Besides, the fact that she was an idiot, and being known to the thief, would not prevent his waylaying her in a lonely place."

"You don't believe what you say, Julian. This girl's outer garments fitted her. They were made for her. Idiots are not provided with street costumes."

This was a climaker. Maxey, worsted, as usual, in an encounter with his sister, made an irrelevant reply and turned his attention, with momentary irritation, to Dr. Lamar.

"Do you think, too, that this girl had no friends?"

The same suggestion which had before caused the philosophic physician to wrinkle his brows again disturbed him in a similar manner. He suddenly bent a searching look upon the artist as he made the deliberate reply:

"For good reasons. I have more than once suspected it."

Lamar started. He became at once imbued with the suspicion which troubled Lamar. He grew excited at once.

"That is something I had not thought of. It would explain everything."

"Possibly," said the doctor, resuming his view of the river.

"And it would prove that I was something too hasty in allowing her to be brought here rather than to the hospital. If I possibly believed it, I would—"

"Julian!" Miss Maxey rose to her feet, with a flush in her face and a dangerous light in her eyes. She went on with increasing rapidity of utterance and unsteadiness of tones. The words came so fast they seemed almost to choke her.

"What you are saying is heartless, cruel, unmanly! You made me a promise, Julian Maxey. Do you think I have forgotten it? Do you think I will allow this helpless, innocent creature of whom one of these days you would blush to speak with the slightest disrespect—do you think I would allow her to go, after what has been, believing, as I firmly do, that a hospital would be the death of her? Oh, it does seem as if all the world were determined to turn the back on this poor, defenseless girl! I consider the refusal of Boston people to keep her in their house any longer when they knew it would be dangerous to move her utterly barbarous.

"It was brutal to think of sending her into a great, cold hospital where everybody is sick and dying and the doctors experimenting with the patients. Yes, Dr. Lamar, I'm very sure of it. I've been told so on excellent authority, and if it hadn't been for me she'd have gone there, too, and now—now after all you've said, Julian Maxey, for you to begin and talk about hospitals and—and—oh, it's too heartless, and I think you ought to be ashamed of yourselves, both of you, to sit here and—well, do what you will! Do your very worst! I shall not lift a finger to stop you! I shall not say another word to remonstrate!"

Just a trifle excited and hysterical, Ellen Maxey, but you look exceedingly well with the tears sparkling on your long dark lashes and your cheeks aglow.

Dr. Lamar turned with considerable haste from his scrutiny of the river, just she was gone before he had an opportunity to admire her.

"The theories!" ejaculated Maxey, with a faint sigh at the thought of his own subjugation. "Well, she will have her own way, that's all."

"Think so?"

"Oh, there's no doubt at all about it. When Ellen begins to act like Lady Macbeth, I know what's coming. But there's a good sister, Dunstan," added the artist feelingly, "and the best girl that ever lived. And then, I dare say, very many who she's quite right, quite right indeed."

"She causes you, however, to take a great responsibility," said Dr. Lamar gravely.

"I don't understand you."

"But you will before very long, for, mark my word, Maxey, the patient will make you tremble."

"Why?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean," said the physician, "simply that. You don't imagine she will lie there always as now? You must have seen in the case of idiots a tendency to fall, to dance, to walk on the foot of the stairs with her neck broken."

Maxey arose nervously and went to the window to look out. Was it to hide? when his mind was troubled. He had raised his glass to his lips when that last word, that one word was a mass of pain nor a plea for mercy, but akin to both, suddenly escaped the lips of the patient. Maxey set the glass down with a force that spilled the contents.

"There! Why will she do that? Anything but that. It will give me the horrors. How she startled me!"

He crossed the room and put a hand that was by no means steady on his friend's shoulder, while his troubled eyes searched the physician's face.

Maxey set his glass down with a force that spilled the contents.

"Lamar," he said, "what is the matter with her? I don't mean what is the long Latin term for her disorder. I mean, in good round English words, frankly and plainly, what is the matter with her?"

"Frankly and plainly," responded Lamar without the least hesitation, "I cannot tell you."

"You don't know?"

"No."

"What does Dr. Beatly say?"

"He says the girl's an idiot.'

"And you?"

"Since she fell."

"Not from her youth then?"

Lamar smiled.

"That would be hardly probable. Your sister stated it fairly. Idiots don't dress up in street costumes, in garments tastily made to fit them."

"Then do I understand this trouble is caused by a blow or by a shock?" thought by what you said the other day

THE BEST REMEDY.

Rosemary, Dec. 6, 1893.

DEAR ARAXTEE—I have never forgotten you during all my sufferings, and as you requested me to do so I have given your treatment and delight. I yesterday learned a number of the deepest importance to yourself. Your nephew, you have been deceived as to your parentage. Your real father and mother are known to me. I want to tell you all about it at once, but there are good reasons why I should not go to the house. You will understand this fully when you see me. I am engaging out in Somerset at present, but there are other reasons why we shouldn't meet at home. I have thought up a place that will be convenient for both of us to meet. You can remember the hotel at Cliff's Head, where you came with your mother two years ago last summer the road there is a seat, you will remember. Why can't you come out on the train and walk up the road and wait for me there about 6 o'clock tomorrow and Sunday night? I think seems hasty and very, very strange to you, Araxtee, believe me there are strange things to come, which I will tell you of. After you know what I know you will not be grieved, but again unless you wish. After all the trouble I have been to in this matter, and my own pain, I have no fear of any failure on your part in be at the place named. Your very true friend,

MRS. AGATHA G. HAPGOOD.

P. S.—I may be a little late, but I shall surely fail to keep my appointment.

Maxey read this remarkable epistle aloud in the presence of the man who had joined him in the hall. The excitable artist was aglow with enthusiasm.

"There, what do you think of that? Here is a woman with a name! You did right, my good man, to bring this document here. You were right in believing it important. You have done us all a great service. Send your letter by mail, good man, that I may be will bring me the envelope this letter was contained in. I'll make him a handsome present as well. I do not the bottom of this affair yet or my name's not Maxey. An unexpected good fortune, Lamar, and I can't see that this one that will throw much light on this obscure matter?"

Lamar frowned and replied cautiously: "I am not a detective, and I have not studied the letter, but it strikes me the wording is peculiar and the signature extraordinary. The name is explicit enough in all conscience. A woman writing a confidential letter like that to a friend does not often take so much pains to get in her full name, as if she were signing a check, and during these some crafty fellow hasn't thrown this letter in your way for the purpose of inducing you on the wrong scent."

Maxey looked a little bewildered, but he seized his hat and coat, without making a reply, and darted down the stairs.

"What very excitable people these Maxeys are!" thought the philosophic doctor as he went away. "And what a deal of trouble they take in this case! I wonder where Miss Ellen went to? How pretty she looked when her blood was up! She would be a valuable addition in crossing such a woman just for the picture one would get. But, bah, what am I thinking about? What is this to me?"

Nevertheless he sighed as he went back half a dozen times to work again. Till very recently this work had been his pride and his life. Now as he took it up it seemed a task, almost a burden. There was a woman's face—a handsome but not a welcome face—before his eyes night and day. Something was wrong with Dr. Lamar, something seriously wrong with him, something from which even his science might not save him.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

How to Bathe Plants.

Use a soft small rag or sponge. If in tepid water and rub each leaf gently on both upper and under sides. Tree stems do the same. A soft brush; good to use for rough leafed plants.

TAXING THE FARMER

A RECORD FROM THE LAWS OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES.

What May Be Expected From Southern Domination In Congress—Special Taxes Imposed Upon All Farm Products—A Tenth of the Yater Crop.

Business called me to Virginia last week, and of course I went to Richmond. There are a good many politicians in Richmond, and there are a good many free traders among them. They are all brimful of politics, but they seem pretty thoroughly disgusted because, with the large majority of their party in office, they have not been able to make a force bill out of the Wilson bill. They want to down the northern, eastern and western industries, and to down them quickly and thoroughly. They believe that free trade will kill all chance of future prosperity in these sections by preventing any American manufacturing unless at European wage rates, and they also believe that the income tax will squeeze out of these manufacturers and hardworking laborers a share of the earnings that they have been able to put by as the result of honest work and hard toil.

An income tax is about the only kind of a tax they believe in. As my friend, Mr. Screechorn, said, "We will take it out of them with an income tax."

"But won't they also in the south have to pay an income tax as well?" I asked.

"Oh, no," was the reply, "we can fix that. You see, our men will be in office as tax collectors, and if we put up a rich man or two, here and there, from whom some tax can be collected, then, you see, the rest of us in the 'poverty stricken' south needn't pay any tax. It won't hurt us to be called 'poverty stricken' then."

Friend Screechorn puffed away at his Virginia tobacco, smiling significantly, and said: "They do not really know what this income tax yet means up north, but they'll find out, though, after a bit. You see, it's called an income tax, but if you'll come along with me I will show you a copy of the acts of the First congress of the Confederate States, and then you will see what an income tax really does mean."

I accompanied my friend Screechorn to a very comfortable home. He took down from a shelf in his library a paper covered pamphlet that looked as if it had been well read and often used. It proved to be the statute for 1863-4 of the public laws of the Confederate States of America, carefully collated with the originals at Richmond, edited by James M. Matthews, attorney at law and law clerk in the department of justice.

The first thing I saw upon opening it was the tax which farmers had to pay by contributing one-tenth of their sweet potatoes was amended so that the payment might be made in the money value thereof, and that salt pork should be taken as the equivalent for the tax on bacon.

I remarked that I did not know that farm products had been directly taxed, and that farmers were compelled to contribute a certain portion of their crops directly to the government.

"Oh, yes," said Screechorn, "we taxed them on everything. A tax on income is only the beginning of it. Why, look here at chapter 64, pages 209-10, and here you will see a 5 per cent tax upon the value of property, real, personal and mixed, of every kind and description; a tax of 10 per cent on the value of gold and silver ware, jewelry and watches; a tax of 5 per cent on all shares or interest held in banks, insurance, manufacturing, importing or exporting companies or railroads; of 5 per cent on all gold and silver coin, gold dust, gold or silver bullion, whether held by banks, corporations or individuals; a tax of 5 per cent upon all sweet cream, and 5 per cent upon all currency."

I looked in astonishment and said, "Why, everything one owns or possesses, either money, investments or personal property, seems to be taxed."

"Certainly," said Screechorn, "but see how we rub it into people who are in business. Here is an extra tax of 10 per cent upon all profits made by buying or selling all farm products and manufactures, and these taxes were in addition to taxes that came under profits as income."

"Jehoshaphat!" I cried. "Why, you rubbed it into everybody in every kind of business."

"Yes, sir, you bet we did," he answered, becoming thoroughly aroused, "and we'll rub it into them again, by ——! We need to tax as well all profits made by buying and selling money, gold, silver, foreign exchange, stocks, notes, debts, credits or obligations. How do you think the Wall street bankers would like to pay a 10 per cent tax on that business? How are these for cumulative taxes?"

B. TINNKEN.

Prince Bismarck's Opinion.

"The success (under protection) of the United States in material development is the most illustrious of the modern times. The American nation has not only successfully borne and suppressed the most gigantic and extensive war of all history, but immediately afterward disbanded its army, found work for all its soldiers and marines, paid off most of its debt, given labor and bones to all the unemployed of Europe as fast as they could arrive within its territory and has done all this by a system of taxation so indirect as not to be perceived, much less felt.

"Because it is my deliberate judgment that the prosperity of America is mainly due to its system of protective laws, I urge that Germany has now reached that point where it is necessary to imitate the tariff system of the United States."

It is fair and pertinent to add that Germany has followed this advice to a limited degree and has found it very profitable and advantageous to her people and to her material interests.

A PROMINENT PRESBYTERIAN.

Moderator Motchmore Has Been Preaching For Thirty-six Years.

Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Mutchmore, who was elected moderator of the one hundred and sixth general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Saratoga, is pastor of the fashionable Memorial church of Philadelphia and one of the editors and proprietors of The Presbyterian, the weekly organ of the denomination in Pennsylvania. He has lived and worked in Philadelphia for nearly 30 years, serving three different churches as pastor, and two years ago was the moderator of the synod of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Mutchmore was born in Ohio of Scotch-Irish Revolutionary stock. His father was a soldier in the war of 1812, and his mother was a daughter of Colonel Thomas McCune, who served under Washington. Dr. Mutchmore was a student in Ohio university and studied law for a year and a half at the University of Indiana, after which he graduated at Center college, Danville, Ky., and studied theology at the Danville seminary. He began his active ministerial labors in 1858 as a home missionary in southern Kentucky.

The first settled pastorate to which the doctor was called was at Columbia, Mo., the seat of the Missouri university, and from there he went to Fulton, Mo., where Westminster college is situated, and started an extensive revival among the populace and students. At the close of 1869 he went to St. Louis and built the Memorial Avenue church, which he dedicated free of debt. In 1880 he took charge of the Cohokinik church in Philadelphia, added 300 members to it within a few months and built the handsome edifice in which the congregation still worships.

REV. S. A. MUTCHMORE, D. D.

After spending seven years at the Cohokinik church Dr. Mutchmore was transferred to the Alexander church, where he paid a large debt and made great improvements, contributing $15,000 from his own pocket toward the funds raised for the purpose. During this pastorate Dr. Mutchmore started the Memorial church as a mission, to redeem a promise to a little girl on her deathbed who gave him her missionary box. The mission soon outgrew the parent congregation, and since 1881 the doctor has devoted himself entirely to its service.

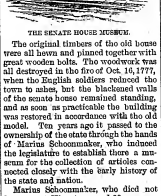
Dr. Mutchmoro purchased The Presbyterian in 1873 and has contributed to its columns ever since. He is the author of several books of travel and has a volume of sermons now in press entitled "Spiritual Volapuk."

AN INTERESTING MUSEUM.

The Old Senate House in Kingston, N. Y., Has Many Valuable Memorials.

Within the boundaries of the old colonial village on the Hudson that is now the city of Kingston stands a quaint stone house, erected more than two centuries ago, which has played an important part in the history of New York state. It is known as the old senate house, and within its walls on Sept. 10, 1777, after the adoption of the new constitution, the first state senate was organized, and there it met and legislated regularly for a month until its session were broken up by the approach of the British army.

The house was historic even then, for it was built by Colonel Wessel Ten Broeck in 1676 and was superior to the ordinary structures of the period. The walls, two feet in thickness, were built of the ordinary stone found in the vicinity, and the rear was pieced out with large sized brick, brought from Holland.



THE SENATE HOUSE MUSEUM.

The original timbers of the old house were all hewn and pinned together with great wooden bolts. The woodwork was all destroyed in the fire of Oct. 10, 1777, when the English soldiers reduced the town to ashes, but the blackened walls of the senate house remained standing, and as soon as practicable the building was restored in accordance with the old model. Ten years ago it passed to the ownership of the state through the hands of Marius Schoonmaker, who induced the legislature to establish there a museum for the collection of articles connected closely with the early history of the state and nation.

Marius Schoonmaker, who died not long ago at Kingston, aged 83, was one of the leading antiquarians of the state. He was a deep student and the author of many works on local antiquities. He devoted the last decade of his life to building up the institution he had founded, and by his acumen and industry accumulated a collection so valuable that the Senate House museum has taken its place among the repositories of rare historic p... of the country.

Myrtle at Royal Weddings.

Near the flag tower at Osborne and bordering on the carriage entrance to the palace is a charming garden, which contains a very large myrtle tree grown from a sprig taken out of the wedding bouquet of the princess royal in 1858. Each royal bride has since carried a piece of myrtle from the bush in her bouquet on her wedding day, and two bits were sent to Coburg for the use of Princess Victoria Melita. Even the Duchess of Coburg had some of the myrtle from Osborne in her bouquet when she was married, the queen having sent the pieces all the way to St. Petersburg in charge of Lady Augusta Stanley.—New York Sun.

Rabbit Skin Jelly.

According to Figaro, a new and successful industry has been discovered in the selling of rabbit skins to confectioners for the making of calf's foot jelly. The hair is taken off and used for the stuffing of couches, manufacture of hats, etc.; then the skin is subjected to certain processes until the oils are extracted. It is said that over 5,000,000 skins are annually imported into England from Melbourne alone.

A Woman and a Clock.

A woman who would spring on an unsuspecting husband such a ghostly looking object as an illuminated clock deserves to lose it, as a Biddeford woman did. The husband awoke in the night and saw what he took for a bull's-eye lantern staring him in the face. He made a rush for the supposed burglar, and the clock is no more.—Lewiston Journal.

When you start out on a journey you will get the best service, the greatest luxury, the most complete comfort if your ticket reads via the North-Western Line. For full information as to through rates and routes and for sleeping car berths, call on your home agent, and for map folder free. Address T. W. Teasdale, G. P. A., C. St. P. M. & O. Ry., St. Paul. [46-tf]

Two dollars per dozen for cabinet photos is within the reach of every one who knows and cares for the very best work. CHAPIN.

Never Never Forget.

E very morning in the year, on arrival of Great Northern and Northern Pacific trains from the West, the Hodge state Express via the North-Western Line leaves Minneapolis 7:30, St. Paul 8:00 arriving Milwaukee 8:00 p. m.; Chicago 9:30 p. m. It has Superb Parlor car and is the only day train every day in the year between these cities. [46-tf]

Group This and Hold It.

The North-Western Limited to Chicago via the North-Western Line is the finest equipped train out of Minneapolis and St. Paul. It has Pullman and Wagner Private Compartment and 16 section sleepers and Buffet-Smoking Library couches and leaves Minneapolis, daily 7:30 p. m.; St. Paul 8:30 p. m.; arriving Milwaukee 7:50 a. m.; Chicago 9:30 a. m. [46-tf]

Attacks of crimp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Hostetter's Pain Paralyzer is the best and never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 50c, it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quickly as Haller's Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY.

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the mind etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve forces; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, biliousness, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying the organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and liver. The nerve system is like a telegraph system. All the work done by the sending and receiving stations is performed by the nerves. The little white lines represent the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body, just as the electric current is conveyed along the telegraph wires to every station, town or city. Derangement of the telegraph instruments produces like confusion of the disorders arising therefrom may be read by the nerves.

Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., the highly celebrated specialist and author of nervous diseases, and author of the unparalleled success of Dr. Miles' New Discovery, publishes the truth of the first statement, and his Restorative Nervine is proved on that principle. It cures in curing all diseases arising from derangement of the nervous system. It wonderful, as the thousands of unsolicited testimonials in possession of the company manufacturing it respectfully sing.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a reliable remedy for all nervous diseases, such as headache, nervous debility, prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, hysteria, mental debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 express paid.

Restorative Nervine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

Fastest

The only train affording a full business day in Minneapolis and St Paul and still reaching Chicago next morning in advance of all trains on other lines, is the Atlantic & Southern Express via the North-Western Line. It has Wagner Buffet sleepers and free reclining chair cars and leaves Minneapolis daily except Sunday, 8:45 p. m.; St. Paul 6:35 p. m.; arrive at Chicago 8:00 a. m. 6-tf

Good Blood IS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH.

You cannot hope to be well if your BLOOD IS IMPURE.

If you are troubled with

BOILS, PIMPLES, ULCERS OR SORES

your blood is bad. A few bottles of S. S. S. will purify, vitalize and enrich the blood, and cause all these troublesome skin eruptions to disappear. If you have a sore that refuses to heal, or a persistent ulcer, S. S. S. will cure it. If you have that tired feeling, and have no appetite, no enjoyment of life, S. S. S. will restore your vitality, and make you a new person. Send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases, mailed free.

SSS

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

CLEARED AWAY

They're Daisies

That's what they are. Spring is almost here, and so are our daisy suits. Make it a point to be here, too, and make yourself look springy, spruce and stylish in one of our

SPRING SUITS.

Nature soon will be freshening up everything. A well-balanced man is nature's running mate and freshens up, too. To freshen up properly come and look at our stock; it's a regular exposition of spring styles in fabric, cut, make and finish. If you look well at our stock, you will look well yourself, for to look is to buy the correct thing. We have a new and freshline of just the thing for spring winds and rains.

Mackintoshes

THE BOSTON

One Price Clothing House.

Mossetin & Linoell Proprietors.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance, or any Good Security on Long Time and Reasonable Rates. Interest Coupons collected in Exchange. Exchange and Custody Bonds and Coupons Issued. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.,

CROOKSTON. - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office,

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTO

All work in my line promptly and carefully performed.

DR. PEFFER'S

FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. NEVER FAILS. A reliable cure for suppressed or painful menstruation. Prevents miscarriage. Regulates the menses promptly. Invigorates those organs. Restores vitality. Takes place of all other pills. Ladies ask your druggist for Peffer's Female Pills. Take no substitute. Sold by druggists. Address, PEFFER MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

They Wear Well

Because They Have the "Stuff" in Them.

They are made of good timber and done dry. We refer, of course, to the RUSHFORD WAGONS. They run so light you won't mind the load rounds. Call and see them, and also our well selected line of Buggies and Harness, Plows, and in fact everything in the implement line that thao merit.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.,

Broadway and Robert St., Crookston.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

Is Now on deck at the Old Stand on Second Street, with a Full Line of

PAINTS OILS GLASS AND WALL PAPER.

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

A NEW Serial

NOW RUNNING IN THE JOURNAL.

READ IT.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If paid outside of Polk County the same must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Populist County Convention, June 24th, at Crookston.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Moorhead.

The annual camp meeting of the M. E. church of the Fergus Falls district will be held at Wadena this year, commencing June 20th, and closing July 2d.

The profits in the growing of cauliflowers must be enormous. A farmer last week sued a seed house in St. Paul for $600 damages because they had sold him three ounces of rutabaga seeds when he called for cauliflower seeds. The plaintiff claims he could have raised $600 worth of cauliflowers off of three ounces of seeds—which would have cost him about $1.

The Argentine republic in South America is becoming a strong competitor in the wheat markets of the world. Their exports now are about 60,000,000 bushels annually. With India, Russia and South America to supply the foreign markets with all the wheat they require, at prices which the American wheat grower cannot meet, it is needless for this country to produce any more wheat than is needed for home consumption. The price of wheat may fluctuate up and down as the years roll by, but the tendency is downward, and the wheat growers will be compelled to depend upon other products for a livelihood.

The Post-News, of Alexandria suggests the name of C. J. Gunderson, of Alexandria, for Congress, saying that we ought to put up one of our best men for that position." Well, that's all right. Alexandria has already furnished one of the best men in the state and he will be re-elected in the person of Governor Nelson, and while Gunderson is all well enough yet he is not a better man than S. G. Comstock, Halvor Steenerson or others who have been mentioned from other localities. It is a time when locality will cut fully as much of a figure as any thing else and this office should go to the locality that must needs the strength of it. Pass this thing around, boys.

An Outside Opinion.

This is what the Grand Forks Herald has to say of Minnesota's popular governor:

"Gov. Nelson occupies a unique position in Minnesota politics. Always strong and popular, he was never more so than to-day. He has given such excellent satisfaction as governor, and is considered to be so much in harmony with the people, that he will probably be re-nominated without opposition. Besides, he is the first choice of a large element of his party for United States senator. Gov. Nelson has achieved his high standing in Minnesota because of his stalwart ability, unimpeachable integrity, and unblemished character. He is pre-eminently a man of the people; plain, straight, forward and unostentatious, he is just what he pretends to be, and that is why the people of the state of Minnesota have confidence in him, and will continue to honor him as long as he will consent to serve them. If every state in the union had a Knute Nelson, they would at least have one public man who could safely be trusted to faithfully represent every public interest without prejudice to any—and who in the discharge of duty would not be swerved by a demagogic public sentiment, on one hand, or corporate cupidity and avarice on the other."

THE MODISTE.

In Paris new petticoats of silk or satin are made with deep flounce loops which reach quite to the knees.

Sleeves as small made very wide, no longer the least ruralsed, but drooping, the shape of cape collars and sleeve caps still further depressing their fullness.

A novel way of edging a dress skirt is to put a roll as thick as the little finger at the extreme edge, covering it with velvet—a monster piping, in fact.

Fine openwork cashmere stockings can now be purchased. They look almost as "dressy" as lace fronted silk and lisle hose, at the same time being much warmer.

A new ornamental shoe is made of fret-work in dressed kid or patent leather. A new slipper for bedroom or boudoir is of white kid edged with fur and lined with pink kid.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, May 22.

Civil service gets black eye in the house, the occasion being the amendment to strike out the paragraph in the legislative appropriation bill providing for the civil service commission. It gave opportunity for some stirring and not a few amusing speeches. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 109 to 71, amid great Democratic applause and Republican cries of "spoils."

The senate debated the metal schedule for eight hours. The duty on iron ore was placed at 40 cents a ton, and on pig and scrap iron at 50 cents. Some of the provisions of the McKinley bill were adopted.

Wednesday, May 23.

There was a vote in the senate taken virtually as a test of Democratic sentiment. When Mr. Gorman had finished his speech in defense of the senate compromise bill Mr. Teller moved to lay the bill on the table. The vote resulted, nays 36, yeas 38, a strict party vote, Senator Hill and the Populists voting with the Democrats.

The onslaught on the civil service commission was continued in the house. The opposition members denounced clerks of the civil service harem having been stricken out the next paragraph providing for the transfer to the civil service commission of clerks from the departments was stricken down by 138 to 124.

Thursday, May 24.

When the legislative appropriation bill was reported from the committee of the whole separate votes were demanded upon Mr. Hayes' resolution declaring the laws repealed authorizing the docking of members' salaries for absence, and upon the amendment striking out the civil service commission appropriation. The Hayes amendment was lost—104 to 124—as was also the amendment striking out the civil service appropriation—86 to 153. The legislative bill was then passed.

The senate continued consideration of the tariff bill. The finance committee agreed to accept Mr. Allen's amendment placing barbed wire on the free list.

Friday, May 25.

At the conclusion of the morning hour the house went into committee of the whole for consideration of private bills. Mr. Springer gave notice that he would call up the Rawlins bill for the repeal of the state bank tax law.

Kyle's Hawaiian resolution was debated half an hour in the senate without action. The tariff bill was then taken up and considerable progress was made on the cutlery schedule.

Saturday, May 26.

The lead schedule was considered by the senate. Mr. Hill's amendment to place lead on the free list was defeated—33 to 3.

The house discussed the senate bill, providing for a repeal of the state bank tax.

Monday, May 28.

The senate spent eight hours discussing the tariff schedule. The tariff bill places lumber in the rough on the free list. The debate was on Mr. Hale's proposition to transfer lumber to the dutiable list at the rates fixed in the McKinley law. Senators Frye and Hale of Maine, Perkins of California, and Mitchell and Dolph of Oregon, occupied a large portion of the time in support of Mr. Hale's amendment.

District of Columbia business occupied the time of the house during the day.

NOT LONG IN CONFERENCE.

Predicted That Ten Days Will Settle Senate and House Differences.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The tariff leaders in the senate do not expect to have another long tariff fight in the house when the bill comes back from the senate. On the contrary the belief is that 10 days will be ample to settle all differences between the house and senate. The calculation is that the senate will get through with the bill by June 5 or 6, so that the 10 days allowed for reconciling differences will permit the bill to go to the president for his signature before June closes.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, May 28, 1894.

WHEAT—Market weak and lower. No. 2 spring, 56c; No. 1 Northern, 60c; No. 2, 58½c.

CORN—Quiet and lower. No. 2, 37½c.

OATS—Lower. No. 2 white, 32½c; No. 3 white, 30½@32c.

RYE—Weak. No. 1, 48c.

BARLEY—Weak. No. 2, 46c; sample, 41@43c.

RYE—Weak. No. 1, 48c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 28, 1894.

HOGS—One load and a wagon bunch received, selling 5c @5.1c lower than Saturday.

CATTLE—Receipts, 400; nothing to offer. Firm demand for good butcher stuffs and feeders. Steers dull.

Prime steers, $3.90@3.95; good steers, $3.70@3.85; fair to good steers, $3.50@3.65; prime cows, $3.25@3.40; good cows, $2.75@3.00; comm n to fair cows, $2.25@2.50; veal calves, $5.00@5.50; heavy calves, $3.00@4.00; stockers, $1.75@2.75; feeders, $2.75@3.25.

SHEEP AND LAMB—Steady.

Muttons, $3.00@3.50; wethers, $2.75@3.00; common, $2.50; $2.75.

Receipts, 200.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 28, 1894.

WHEAT—Ruled weak; by opened 49½c; highest, 50½c; closed, 50c; July opened, 50½; highest, 51½c; lowest, 50½c; close, 50½c; September opening, 45½c; highest, 46½c; lowest, 45½c; close, 46½c. On Track—No. 1 hard 50½c; No. 1 Northern, 49½c; No. 2 Northern, 48½c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, May 28, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 50c; May, 50½c; July, 50½c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 49c; May, 50c; July, 50½c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 48½c; May, 49½c; July, 50c. On Track—No. 1 Northern, 49½c; No. 2 Northern, 48½c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, May 28, 1894.

CATTLE—Higher. Prime to extra native steers, $4.15 @ 4.60; medium, $3.90@4.10; others, $3.45@3.75; Texans $3.25@3.60.

HOGS—Generally lower, stronger late. Rough heavy $4.25@4.50; mixed and packers, $4.40@4.70; prime heavy and butcher weights, $4.50@4.75; assorted light, $4.40@4.75.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Prices were steady; others weak. Top sheep, $4.25@4.80; top lambs, $5.00@5.35.

Receipts—Cattle, 13,500; hogs, 37,000; sheep, 18,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 28, 1894.

WHEAT—Firm. Cash, 46½c; July, 46¾c; September, 47½c; December, 50½c.

CORN—Stiffer. Cash, 37½c; July, 38¼c; September, 38c.

OATS—Easy. Cash, 32½c; July, 31½c; September, 28½c.

PORK—Easy. Cash, $11.80; July, $11.65; September, $11.87½.

LARD—Easy. Cash, $6.82½ July, $6.72½; September, $6.60.

THE AMALGAMATED ASSOCIATION.

The Iron and Steel Workers of the United States Talk Tariff.

A committee from our organization appeared before the ways and means committee of the house some time ago and gave reasons for not interfering with the McKinley bill rate of duties, and the arguments seem to have been unheeded by the majority of both the parties and the house of congress. We again sent answers to a list of questions to the finance committee of the senate, and although some changes were made in the metal schedules, or schedule C, the advances over the house bill were slight, and reductions were made on manufactured material that will work havoc with the wages of the workmen who are employed on those materials and in some instances will kill the manufacture of the article in this country entirely.

We believe firmly there should have been no change whatever from the McKinley tariff bill at this time of all others, and that the present rates of duty have not been given time to demonstrate their usefulness fully. Arguments to us have failed to stay the hand of the tinker. Perhaps votes in the future will be more effective.

M. M. GARLAND, President.
J. C. KILGALLEN, Secretary.

There was a man from Texas come,
With a wiley wanky noddle,
And all his talk was all about the sums
Tariff twiddle twaddle.

A Great Race.

The following is from the Burlington Hawkeye:

"There are two questions that have had a great run. It is a problem as to which will come out ahead. The horse which had the start is popularly known as 'McKinley Prices.' All the necessaries of life were to be increased in cost to the people of the United States by the McKinley tariff. It has been running since 1890. Wheezahorn on the track is it now? The other horse is named 'Better Times.' It was entered in 1893 and has been running one year. It was hacked by Cleveland and the Democratic party, and a great many workingmen staked their last dollar on the bag. Great anxiety pervades the public to discover what necessaries of life have been increased in cost by the McKinley tariff and in what respect the times have been improved by a Democratic administration. The race between the two horses is still on. They are running neck and neck, and the outcome is in painful doubt."

There is no doubt about the outcome. McKinley Prices is a thoroughbred, by Labor, out of Capital. The Times is a misnomer. He is a Rorer, by Fraud, out of Wild Bag. The race will be finished in November, 1894, when McKinley Prices will be leading out of sight, and the old Rorer's Wind Bag will have exploded. He won't be in it.

A Democratic Portrait.

"It takes a thief to catch a thief," and it takes a democrat to faithfully picture his own party. The New Haven Register, which even in these days of political uncertainty is always outspoken, Democratic, sketches the ownership and portrait of the southern Democrats in congress that we have encountered. They are, in truth, "men with a grievance against all that part of the world which is doing well; men who want what passes for a conviction that anybody who is shrewd enough to make money, and knows how to apply life and make his friends happy, and has the misfortune to look prosperous, is a proper subject for governmental highway robbery; men who reverse much quoted gospel words until they read 'To him that hath not shall be given, and from him that hath shall be taken away enough to supply him that hath not.' And these witless, and forced, great, bred children from the cave of Borons rough and ugly and scarred and hoof. Of their words no man listeth whence they come or why. And they swish and swash and mix things and overturn and never set up, and it takes a good executive or a country a long time to get over them."—Williamantic Journal.

What Is Protection?

My little boy (the query made)
"What is protection, pray?
I've heard you talk against free trade."
What could a father say?

I answered him: "It means, my son,
Just this, and this alone:
Our institutions should be run
To benefit our own.

"Affording work for those who toil
In factories and shops,
Assuring those who till the soil
A market for their crops.

"Our fathers fought to give this land
To freedom's holy cause,
We fight to make that effort stand
By wise protective laws.

"Protection is designed to give
To all the greatest good,
That brawny sons of toil may live,
And live as freemen should.

"Protection means that this shall be
Through years that come and go
A land of life and liberty, Protection makes it so!"

—A. L. Bixby.

WILL GO TO SMASH

Provincial Government of Hawaii Short Lived, Says Claus Spreckels.

A REVOLUTION UNAVOIDABLE.

The Natives and Many Whites Opposed to the Present State of Affairs.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Claus Spreckels has very positive views about the condition of Hawaii, where the sugar plantations lie.

"The present provisional government," he said to an Associated Press reporter, "is bound to go to smash. There has not been a revolution in the islands, but there will be one, and no mistake, before long. The measures by which the queen was overthrown were revolutionary enough, but the whole proceedings were as quiet as a district school election.

"I was there at the time and witnessed every detail. When the sailors and marines from the Boston landed with their superior rifles and machine guns resistance was on the face of things so useless that by any party that favored the maintenance of the throne. What the armed Americans were withdrawn the provisional government organized an army of 200 Germans who had been employed on the plantations at $15 a month. The command is known as "the Dreibunders," and the troopers lie around doing nothing at $40 a month.

Nothing Could Be Done

"I suggested the advisability of forming a republic in the beginning, but they were about ready to kill me for advancing such an idea. It was annexation to the United States or nothing. Since then they have written, asking me to come over and help them organize a republican government. I have told them that I was through with the whole business, and they could work out their own salvation.

Revolution Unavoidable.

"There are 14,000 voters on the islands, and the provisional government represents only 3,000 of that number. The natives, as a mass, and a large percentage of the whites are either openly in favor of the queen's house or, at all events, opposed to the present government. The natives are not to be despised. They are smart people, many of them highly educated, and their representative leaders are men of fine attainments—preachers, legislators and diplomats of no mean ability. A revolution under the circumstances is unavoidable. The overwhelming and able a majority is not to be kept down by a show of force that a little preparation could so easily overcome."

TRIENNIAL MEDICAL CONGRESS.

American Physicians and Surgeons in Session at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The present week will witness a notable gathering of medical men in this city, drawn here for the purpose of attending the triennial congress of American Physicians and Surgeons. The session of the congress will be held in Metzerot hall until June 1. The formal programme of the congress, of the sessions, together with those of the 14 individual component associations and societies, which meet during the same time, has been issued. These individual bodies will meet in the forenoon, while the congress proper will be available in the afternoon.

Thursday evening the president of the congress, Dr. Alfred L. Loomis of New York, will deliver an address on "The Influence of Animal Experimentation on Medical Science."

This will be followed by a reception to the members and their ladies by President Cleveland and family, from 9 to 10 o'clock. On Wednesday evening a dinner will be given to the guests of the congress at the Arlington. A large number of notable physicians are present.

GODFREY KNOCKED OUT.

The Colored Heavyweight Defeated by Peter Maher.

BOSTON, May 29.—At the Casino Peter Maher, Ireland's champion, knocked out George Godfrey, the colored heavyweight, in the sixth round, after a rapid and battle seen in Boston for years. It was a complete victory for Maher. Godfrey was "done" or not, im the fact remained that at no stage of the proceeding did the colored man hold the upper hand. Frank Stevenson of New York was referee.

Colonel Laird Bond.

SIOUX CITY, IA., May 30.—Colonel S. M. Laird of Pierre, S. D., United States district attorney for the Dakotas, died at the residence of the brother of the deceased, one of the directors of the South Dakota soldiers' home at Pierre, and a leader in Republican politics of that state, this morning of heart disease on a Northwestern train at Orange City, while en route to this city.

A Mail Route to Be Extended.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Congressman Pickler has applied to the postoffice department to have the mail service now existing between Milbank and Wilmot, S. D., extended to include Sisseton. It is understood the order to this effect will be made shortly.

Frye Goes to Pittsburg.

CINCINNATI, May 29.—Frye's industrial army of 400 tramps camp after dinner to take the barges on which they have for Pittsburg. The Cincinnati regiment that has piloted the army here numbers 150, so that Frye takes up the river over 900 men.

Lowell Journal.

Married.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—Miss Julia Marlowe, the actress, and Robert Taber, formerly her leading man, were married at St. James Protestant Episcopal church in this city.

FREAKS OF NATURE.

Some Curious Things That Amuse and Astonish Men of Science.

Nature's freaks of fancy afford a strange study. People are constantly sending to the National museum supposed fossil animals and other oddities which are in reality more accidental forms carved by water. A pebble in a stream gathers about itself grains of sand until an odd shaped lump is made. A favorite shape for such lumps is that of a turtle with four legs, a head and tail, even the lines of the shell being sometimes distinct. Similar concretions of carbonate of iron and clay assume the appearance of petrified pecans. Break one, and you will always find inside a small spiral wrinkle shell, which has served as the nucleus. A queer counterfeit of this kind, forwarded to Washington not long ago, was an alleged fossil foot of a child, with a little stocking on, the latter showing signs of wear on the ball of the foot and on the heel. It was only a concretion, as was likewise what appeared to be a petrified oyster on the shell.

One eminent scientist has been racking himself of late by making imitation spider webs out of quartz fibres. It is found that that copper wire can be drawn to a fineness much less than the thickness of a hair—in fact, to the diameter of the one-thousandth part of an inch. But glass may be spun finer than copper, while with the finest spun glass is not so fine as silk. Quartz fibres, however, is coarse compared with the latter, but that can be obtained by melting quarts under a blowpipe and pulling it out. Such threads may be reduced to a thinness of one-millionth of an inch. Drawn to such tenuity, they are invisible under a microscope of the highest power. Yet they are stronger in proportion to their thickness than the best quality of hat steel. Enough thread like this could be made from a single cubic inch of quarts to go around the world 656 times. A grain of sand barely large enough to be visible to the naked eye would yield 1,000 miles of thread.

Obviously no practical use can be made of threads so extremely fine. Comparatively coarse ones were woven into cobwebs by the scientist aforesaid. They would not catch flies because they were too slippery, having no glues or other like real cobwebs. This difficulty was got over by moistening a straw in castor oil and gently stroking the threads of it; but then the webs proved flies fairly well. But a cobweb is incomplete without a spider, so it occurred to the experimenter to attract an arachnoid to his web by the buzzing of a fly. It was difficult to make a fly buzz to order, but a satisfactory imitation was produced by permitting a tuning fork to vibrate against the quarts fibers. This fetched the spider right away. The spider also amused himself with blowing bubbles. Of quarts, which looked exactly like the most beautiful soap bubbles.—Washington Star.

Sponge Fishing.

The Greeks are considered the principal sponge fishers, and it takes much experience, skill and hardihood to qualify a man for a first class place among sponge divers. Many of the most valuable specimens are found at a depth varying from 10 to 35 fathoms. To aid in this descent, the diver makes use of a triangular stone, with a hole in one corner through which a rope is spliced. On reaching the deep sea gardens, which the rock ledges are clothed with marine growths of every color, retaining a hold on his rope, dexterously breaks away the holdfast of the sponges and places them in a basket until a sufficient load has been gleaned, when a pull on the rope signals his companions above that he is ready to ascend, and he is then hauled to the surface, hearing his ocean treasures.—Exchange.

Manuscript of "The School For Scandal."

The printed version of "The School For Scandal" was prepared for publication by Sheridan. He always alleged that he could not supply one with which he was perfectly satisfied. Yet he made the attempt, and Mr. Fraser Rae has discovered in the copy containing his final corrections of passages in many scenes, which Moore must have overlooked, the documents of his disjointed labors which he then put into Mr. Fraser Rae's hands by Sheridan's descendants for the purpose of writing a complete biography of the great dramatist and orator. The manuscript is imperfect, yet enough is extant to show how effectively Sheridan could add a fresh charm to his polished phrases.—London Athenæum.

Rulers of Horses and Men.

It is instructive to compare the virago of the ruler of horses with that of the ruler of men. The horseman's face shows command in the month, the ruler sergeant's in the mouth and the eye. The last is undoubtedly the most effective. Napoleon's mouth, as those of many of our own species. Here we get a hint of the cause of that want of dignity, that element of coarseness, which is discernable in the countenances of some men and women who have much to do with horses. The higher and nobler method of expressing authority is outweighed by the lower and more animal one.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Are Men Getting More Vain?

A local philosopher, who makes a practice of observing other people's manners and commenting upon their habits, states that nearly every man now carries a pocket mirror. According to him, this habit has grown immensely of late, and nearly every man can be observed at frequent intervals pulling a glass out of his pocket and looking into the set of his necktie or the appearances of his whiskers.—Philadelphia Call.

Out of Order.

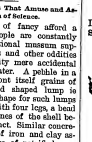
Little Girl—We has a new baby.

Neighbor—You have?

Little Girl—Yes'm, an its eyes open an shut, too, just like a grown up, something 'at ain't never goin to happen with our baby, 'cause our eyes don't always shut when you lay it down.—Good News.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences. Indigestion, headache, nausea, biliousness, and constipation indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy.



Mrs. M. A. Brockwell, Hackett, Ark., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is

No Better Medicine,

and have insisted many to use it."

Two years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and asked a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and buy a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 50 years old, but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 200 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread.—E. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

AYER'S PILLS,

Prepared by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss.
City of Crookston—ss.

I hereby certify that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said City of Crookston, and filed in its office, praying for the establishing of additional streets in the said City of Crookston, and designating the width of the same, which said application is in the following words and figures, to-wit:

A. B. and C. Ayer, and E. C. Building known as the eastern block situate on Lot 7, Block 6, Fletcher & Rousson's Addition to the City of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

And that a petition will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, on the 4th day of June, 1894.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 4th day of May, 1894.

(SEAL.) W. A. LANCTOT,
City Clerk.

6t2

C. A. FISCHER,

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH,

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-boring Barrels, Inserting Rubber Cushions, Sorority Repairing. Work done on other makes and all kinds of Sporting Goods. Shop at Rasmussen & Moir' Hardware Store.

Any work done by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

BEDROOM WALLS.

Hangings For a Room to Lull the Senses to Rest and Induce Sweet Sleep.

The tendency of the time is to separate the bedroom from the work of the house; to give it lighter colors; to allow within it full scope for individual fancy and to hang it with lace and delicate stuffs to exclude all noisomeness and gloom, to make of it a nest, a place of rest, where pleasant dreams flourish and tender colors hold sway; to bring within its precincts of worth; to display there no articles of virtu, but to make of it a spot sweet, restful and soothing as a whole. And so its walls are hung with lighter colors than those of more formal rooms. They are made sometimes of canvas by its themselves.

The dado is altogether banished; the frieze is brought well down upon the wall; conventional flowers are allowed to trail about; graceful designs are sought. No attempt at subduing the walls into a mere background is made, but the fancy furniture stands against them and claims individual notice. The picture as a whole is made sweet and inviting. And if some few critics carp and say that it is wrong, let them build up rooms that are better suited to their needs and that offer more tempting repose, they will find their judgment and flowered papers do not make perfect bedrooms, by the sole parts of an attractive whole.

Often, less well suited to such rooms, can be found to serve where sleeping and sitting rooms are combined and where pictures will be hung or the whole service decorated. But, concludes Harper's Bazar, for the room that is to be a bedroom, that lulls the senses to rest, that is designed for a bedroom and bedroom only, the shiny flowered papers and the bright colors, yet tender tone are good despite the appearance of the sample that have their pronounces with a background only, which in all other rooms would be obeyed.

An Artist's "At Home."

Every season it is the rage to give new designs in embroideries, new appointments in table arrangements, and to have unique lunches and dinners, but the scene "tin" is served in his studio recently. Small tin crocker jar is handed at all informal affairs from beginner to least.

In fact it is there any variation to the monotonous tea served everywhere, it is manifest by compound which is "tea" for "tea." At such a one, presided over by a charming Austrian woman, the fortunates who were permitted entrance were handed tea on a Vienna drink. It was rich, well made coffee, elegantly served and a delicious bun, and a lamp of ice cream nearly the size of an egg tastefully placed in the middle of the cup or glass, as the case may be, for it is served in both vessels.

The compound is delicate, nourishing and cooling. With it was offered chocolate cake in wafer-like shapes, the two preparing so agreeable that few relinquished the temptation proffered by the gracious hostess of more than one cup.—New York Times.

TO TRADE AT HOME.

AN ORGANIZATION TO PROMOTE NORTHWESTERN INDUSTRIES.

Leading Representatives of Surrounding Cities Meet in Convention at Minneapolis—Directors and Officers Chosen—Constitution Adopted.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 23.—The first joint convention of the Northwestern Home Trade association met in this city during the day with nearly 100 delegates in attendance, including some of the leading representatives of Northwestern cities. G. H. Parker of this city called the meeting to order and John A. Wilkard of Mankato was named as temporary chairman. A committee of 10 was appointed on permanent organization. George H. Parker then made a brief speech outlining the main objects of the organization, and a number of letters were read from prominent Northwestern merchants, showing the unanimous favor with which the plan was regarded when it was properly placed before them.

Constitution and Bylaws.

At the afternoon session of the convention the committee on permanent organization submitted a constitution and bylaws, the provisions of which are as follows:

Article 1 provides that the name of the organization shall be the Northwestern Home Trade association. In the second article the object of the organization is explained fully as follows: "The object of this association shall be to promote loyalty on the part of the Northwestern people to Northwestern commercial products and a sentiment in favor of buying all classes of merchandise from home merchants."

The principal office of the organization shall be located in Minneapolis and a branch office may be located in each city or town at the discretion of the board of directors.

Management of the Affairs of the association is to be vested in a board of directors, one of which shall be selected from each city having five or more general members, and one for each additional five or more members. Officers shall hold their places for a year, or until their successors are elected, and such funds and salaries shall be approved by the board of directors. The management of the branch offices for local work shall be vested largely in themselves, but they shall each pay $20 dues into the general association. The president of the latter shall be entitled to the same privilege as the general executive members. Active local members shall be subjected to ten day justice pronounced a judgment. A woman was summoned to answer a charge of withholding a pitchfork which had been lent to her by a neighboring gardener. She straightway declared that the fork had been the property of her late husband, and in proof thereof showed the justice her husband's initials, "M. W.," cut in the handle. The complaint demurred, and in turning the fork the other way asserted that the initials "W. M." were there. The justice was in a quandary and confessed his inability to determine which way the fork ought to be held in order that the letters, but the woman ruined her case by interposing, unasked, that although she knew the implement had been her husband's property, she wouldn't want to swear to it.

"Anyway," she added, "my husband died. He had a fork, and he didn't take it with him. If that isn't it, where is it?"

In the absence of better proof, judgment was given for the plaintiff.—New York Herald.

Night Air.

"It always amuses me," remarked Dr. T. L. Goodwin of Chicago, "when I hear people say that they are afraid to have their bedroom windows open at night, owing to the night air. What other kind of air can we breathe at night but night air? The choice is between pure air from without and foul air from within. It has been proved that a large number of the diseases we suffer from are occasioned by people sleeping with their windows shut. An open window most nights in the year can never hurt any one. In large cities the night air is the best and purest to be had in any of the 24 hours, and it would be a great deal healthier to keep the windows closed during the day than at night. The absence of smoke, etc., tends to make the night the best time for airing the rooms."

King of Belgium's Bodyguard.

Under the Belgian constitution the king's valet is responsible to parliament for the safety of the royal person. He might, therefore, when the Belgian monarch has retired to his vasils a concher. The valet nurses the person him and locks himself in the antechamber, where he himself sleeps, by turning the key also of the outer door. If, therefore, a miscreant had any designs upon the person of the king, he would first of all have to force the door of the antechamber, overcome the armed resistance of the valet and then unlock the door of the royal chamber.—London Tit-Bits.

Swallowed Her Dead Husband.

The only case on record of a disconsolate widow swallowing the remains of her dead husband is that of Artemesia drinking a glass of wine in which the ashes of Mausolus had been stirred for that purpose. The parties to this remarkable transaction were brother and sister and also husband and wife. Mausolus was king of Caria and reigned about 300 years before Christ. After his death his remains were burned and the ashes disposed of as related.—St. Louis Republic.

Flattron.

"The Chinese are a very ancient race."

"Yes. You will discover in our American cities that they belong to the age of iron."—Boston Gazette.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL WOOING.

A Pretty Girl's Request That Crushed Her Enchanted Admirer.

The drummer was leaning up against the hotel counter talking to the clerk.

"You look worried about something," said the clerk.

"I am," responded the drummer promptly. "I saw the prettiest girl on the train, today I have seen in a dozen years of travel."

"What ought'er to worry you."

"Pretty women have worried better men than I am," ventured the drummer.

"Who was she?"

"Blamed if I know."

"Didn't get acquainted with her?"

"Of course not. You must think I get acquainted with every woman I see."

"You do, don't you?"

"No, I don't, nor do any of us. That's a vile slander on the profession."

"Did you try to?" asked the clerk, with a smile of doubt.

"No, I didn't."

"Then what's worrying you?"

"The way she treated me."

"What did she do?"

The drummer fired his half smoked cigar at the cuspidor viciously.

"Well," he explained, "after I had been gazing at her for an hour or so, I thought I'd try her with a newspaper. She declined it with thanks and a beautiful smile. Then I tried her with a new novel, with the same result. Then I sent over some nice fresh fruit, and it came back. Then I wanted to fix the window for her, and again the thanks and the declination. That lovely smile in what broke me up," sighed the drummer, "said I was sure if I had half a chance I would get acquainted. About 10 minutes after I had made the last offer the train stopped at a station, and she nodded for me to come over. By George, I was sure I had made a 10 strike, and I fairly flew to her.

"'Will you do me a favor?' she asked, with that same enchanting smile, as if I wouldn't have done her a million," and the drummer sighed again.

"'Certainly with the greatest pleasure,' said I.

"'Well,' says she, 'suppose you get off at this station and take the train for Detroit that comes along this evening. You make me dead tired where you are.'"

The clerk's eyes filled with tears, and the drummer went out and stood in the door gloomily.—Detroit Free Press.

Solomon Might Have Hesitated.

Solomon had to sit in judgment in many difficult cases, but wise as he was he might have hesitated before deciding the simple case in which a latter day justice pronounced a judgment. A woman was summoned to answer a charge of withholding a pitchfork which had been lent to her by a neighboring gardener. She straightway declared that the fork had been the property of her late husband, and in proof thereof showed the justice her husband's initials, "M. W.," cut in the handle. The complaint demurred, and in turning the fork the other way asserted that the initials "W. M." were there. The justice was in a quandary and confessed his inability to determine which way the fork ought to be held in order that the letters, but the woman ruined her case by interposing, unasked, that although she knew the implement had been her husband's property, she wouldn't want to swear to it.

"Anyway," she added, "my husband died. He had a fork, and he didn't take it with him. If that isn't it, where is it?"

In the absence of better proof, judgment was given for the plaintiff.—New York Herald.

Night Air.

"It always amuses me," remarked Dr. T. L. Goodwin of Chicago, "when I hear people say that they are afraid to have their bedroom windows open at night, owing to the night air. What other kind of air can we breathe at night but night air? The choice is between pure air from without and foul air from within. It has been proved that a large number of the diseases we suffer from are occasioned by people sleeping with their windows shut. An open window most nights in the year can never hurt any one. In large cities the night air is the best and purest to be had in any of the 24 hours, and it would be a great deal healthier to keep the windows closed during the day than at night. The absence of smoke, etc., tends to make the night the best time for airing the rooms."

King of Belgium's Bodyguard.

Under the Belgian constitution the king's valet is responsible to parliament for the safety of the royal person. He might, therefore, when the Belgian monarch has retired to his vasils a concher. The valet nurses the person him and locks himself in the antechamber, where he himself sleeps, by turning the key also of the outer door. If, therefore, a miscreant had any designs upon the person of the king, he would first of all have to force the door of the antechamber, overcome the armed resistance of the valet and then unlock the door of the royal chamber.—London Tit-Bits.

Swallowed Her Dead Husband.

The only case on record of a disconsolate widow swallowing the remains of her dead husband is that of Artemesia drinking a glass of wine in which the ashes of Mausolus had been stirred for that purpose. The parties to this remarkable transaction were brother and sister and also husband and wife. Mausolus was king of Caria and reigned about 300 years before Christ. After his death his remains were burned and the ashes disposed of as related.—St. Louis Republic.

Flattron.

"The Chinese are a very ancient race."

"Yes. You will discover in our American cities that they belong to the age of iron."—Boston Gazette.

STRIKERS DEFIANT.

FURTHER SERIOUS TROUBLE AT CRIPPLE CREEK LIKELY.

Entire District Terrorized—Proposition to Arbitrate Not Acceptable to Interested Parties—Conference of Illinois Miners and Operators.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., May 29.—If trouble breaks out again, and it is impossible to see how it can be avoided, the results hid fair to be far more terrible than those already witnessed. The armistice declared Sunday was made use of by the sheriffs to increase their forces. Nearly 400 men have been enrolled in Denver and only await the slightest outbreak to be forwarded to Cripple Creek and to sworn in as deputies.

The strikers seem to have taken courage from the action of Governor Waite and affect to believe that the militia would tend to aid them in carrying out their purposes.

The Entire District Is Terrorized, and the strikers, encouraged by the temporary withdrawal of deputies, are becoming bolder and more imperative and intolerant. All day strikers have been searching for arms and ammunition in the mining camps, and wherever arms, ammunition or provisions were found they were confiscated and receipts given for them.

No one about the camp except strikers are permitted to carry arms, and the strikers, who reign supreme, have issued the order that every able bodied man found in camp when the contest commences will be forced to carry arms in their ranks. The result is that many people are moving away from the camps.

WILL NOT ARBITRATE.

Colorado Miners and Operators Disagree on Leading Questions.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 29.—President Solomon of Colorado college and some other gentlemen interested in a peaceful solution of the difficulties between the Cripple Creek miners' union and mine owners, had a meeting in Cripple Creek Sunday. The miners agreed to hold a meeting and decide upon whether or not they would appoint a committee to meet a committee of mine owners to arbitrate the difficulties. After the meeting was held Calderwood, president of the miners' union, called J. J. Hagerman up on the telephone at 3:30 p. m. and informed him that the miners' union had appointed a committee to confer with the mine owners and wanted to know when and where a conference could be held. Mr. Hagerman suggested Divide and Mr. Calderwood agreed to the suggestion. Mr. Calderwood, in answer to a question, replied that the principal condition on the miners' side was that only union men should be employed and that the question would not be submitted to arbitration. Mr. Hagerman refused to consent to any such proposition and the question of arbitration is off.

Troops Ordered to Coeur d'Alene.

ROSSE, Colo., May 29.—One thousand miners, the combined Fremont county and Trinidad forces, marched through camp during the day. So far there has been no trouble. One hundred and fifty miners are working and the willingness to continue work is afforded protection.

Troops for Indian Territory.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 29.—An order from the secretary of war was received at Fort Leavenworth, for three companies of infantry to move immediately to McAlester, I. T., to suppress the mine troubles and restore to owners the property now held by strikers.

THE SPRINGFIELD CONFERENCE.

Illinois Operators and Miners Will Meet on Thursday.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., May 30.—The conference of mine operators of the Central and Southern Illinois fields and members of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, called by State President Crawford of the mine workers, was held in this city during the day. State President Crawford presided. Operators representing about 90 properties were present. A letter much discussion a committee (consisting of Paul Morton of Chicago, Thomas Spellman of Danville, and Colonel John S. Lord of this city) was appointed, in accordance with a resolution passed to send invitations to all operators of Illinois to attend an operators' meeting to be held next week Thursday. A delegate meeting of Illinois miners will be held here the same day. The executive board of the United Mine Workers will be in conference with the miners, and they will submit a scale to the operators. President Crawford

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, May 23.

The Mississippi at St. Paul is receding and all danger is past.

The Ohio grand lodge Knights of Pythias is in session at Springfield.

General Bennett's division of the coxmonweal army has arrived at Seneca, Kan.

Governor Flower has signed the bill providing for a new system of rapid transit in New York city.

J. S. Kriese, a well known merchant of Bedford, Ia., committed suicide on account of financial trouble.

Henry Somerville, 50 years of age, a prominent resident of Dodgeville, Ia., was drowned while bathing.

The Brazilian chamber of deputies has approved the attitude of President Peixoto in regard to Portugal.

The Reading and New England railroad has begun turning hard coal in its engines, on account of the scarcity of soft coal.

The St. Paul city council is kicking on bills presented for stamping out the smallpox cases at Midway. Several of the claims they think exorbitant.

The California Populist state convention to nominate a full state ticket is in session at Sacramento. Over 300 delegates are present, some of them women.

Thursday, May 24.

Another case of smallpox has developed at St. Marys hospital, Duluth.

William Bickford, a pioneer of Goodhue county, Minn., died at Bowdle, S.D., aged 100 years.

The congressional convention of the First Minnesota district will be held at Winona Aug. 29.

Fire destroyed the warehouses of Archer & Howe at Henry, S.D. Loss, $6,500. Thought to be the work of tramps.

H. A. Taylor, editor of the Madison Journal, announces his candidacy for the Wisconsin Republican gubernatorial nomination.

California Populists in state convention demand the impeachment of Cleveland "for his arbitrary action in various matters to the detriment of the people."

Mayor John C. Koch of Milwaukee, who has been the leading candidate for the nomination for governor of Wisconsin on the Republican ticket, has announced his withdrawal from the race.

Friday, May 25.

Dobbins won the Brooklyn derby.

Lazzarone, the favorite, captured the Latonia derby.

The illness of Emma Juch has become quite alarming.

The Mississippi is higher at La Crosse, Wis., than at any time since 1881.

Representative Baldwin of Minnesota has introduced a bill to establish an assay office at Duluth.

Representative Breckinridge of Kentucky has left Washington for another round of speeches in his district.

The J. K. Gill company of Portland, Or., wholesale books and stationery, has assigned. Liabilities, $180,000.

The H. Witbeck Lumber company's dry kilns at Marinette, Wis., burned, with 150,000 feet of choice lumber. Loss $20,000; partially insured.

The attorney general has appointed Frank P. Van Valkenburgh of Milwaukee assistant United States attorney for the eastern district of Wisconsin, vice C. S. Carter, resigned.

Saturday, May 26.

President Cleveland has returned to Washington from his fishing trip.

Governor Flower has vetoed the bill prohibiting the display of foreign flags on public buildings.

The house committee on public buildings has decided to erect the new Chicago building on the site of the present postoffice.

Robert Schubring was fatally injured in the Little Badger pulp mill at Kaukauna, Wis. He was caught in the belting of the machinery.

Bulletin: "Mr. Gladstone passed a quiet night, free from discomfort. His eye is progressing quite well, and his general health is excellent."

B. F. McCormack, formerly a member of the South Dakota legislature, now superintendent of the Anadarko Indian school among the Kiowa Indians in Oklahoma, has resigned. J. C. Hunt, now in charge of the school at Fort Bennett, S. D., will succeed him.

Monday, May 28.

C. C. Colgate of the well known New York family died of paralysis.

The marriage of Princess Josephine of Belgium to Prince Charles of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen took place at Brussels.

Frank Barchard, manager of a disreputable resort near Huron, S. D., was shot and probably fatally injured in a quarrel with his wife.

The United States supreme court upholds the constitutionality of the assessment of railroad property by the Indiana state board of tax commissioners. The decision affects other states.

The house committee on public lands has ordered a favorable report on the bill introduced by Representative Lynch of Wisconsin effecting settlements on public land under what is known as the stone and timber act.

Tuesday, May 29.

The Presbyterian general assembly has adjourned. It will meet at Pittsburg next year.

The Upper Peninsular Chair company will remove its plant from Ironwood, Mich., to Marshfield, Wis.

The Prussian agricultural conference has opened at Berlin. Her Von Heyden, minister of agriculture, defended the government policy.

The steamer Greek, which has just reached New York from Glasgow, sighted no less than 81 icebergs, to say nothing of ice floes, in the passage.

Eastbound shipments from Chicago last week amounted to 48,816 tons against 47,269 for the preceding week and 51,485 for the corresponding week of last year.

The Western Passenger association lines have reached an agreement on the question of eastbound emigrant business, which has for so long a time been troubling them.

SENATORS EXONERATED.

Bribery Investigation Committee Makes a Formal Report.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The report of the senate committee appointed to investigate the charges of attempts to bribe United States senators to vote against the tariff bill, and the charges of improper influences being used in connection with the sugar schedule, was submitted to the senate so far as concerns the attempted bribery of Senators Hunton and Kyle. The report, after reciting the facts of Butts' proffer of money to the son of Senator Hunton and to Senator Kyle, says:

The Facts Established.

"Your committee are abundantly justified in stating that the facts have been established by the evidence, notwithstanding the denial on the part of Charles W. Butts. There is no evidence to show the truth of Mr. Butts' statement to Senator Kyle and to Mr. Eppa Hunton, Jr., that a syndicate of bankers and capitalists had raised a sum of money to be used for the purpose of defeating the pending tariff bill, or that there was an agent of such syndicate in Washington, or that any money was in Washington for that purpose. Butts' denials that he made any such statement, or that he had any knowledge of the existence of such a syndicate, or that he was the agent or representative of any one. He further denies that he has any money himself."

COMMISSION HAS POWER.

Supreme Court Makes a Very Important Interstate Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—In the case of the interstate commerce commission versus Brimson, Justice Harlan delivered an opinion to the effect that the interstate commerce commission had the power through the courts to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of papers and books upon matters into which it was empowered by congress to investigate, declaring that such proceedings by the commission are judicial in their nature. The decision is of importance, as had the commission lost it would have practically no power left.

GOES TO OTTAWA.

The B. L. E. Votes to Meet Next in Canada—The Coal Strike.

ST. PAUL, May 28.—At the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' convention Ottawa was chosen as the next place of meeting—receiving 299 votes to Columbus 170—and the Canadians are accordingly happy. The office of third grand assistant engineer, now held by E. M. Mortimer, was handed over to Albert Hudson of Ottawa. By virtue of the position, Mr. Hudson will have charge of the arrangements for the next gathering.

NO SHOW FOR ANTI-OPTION.

Hatch Admits That the Measure Cannot Pass This Session.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Representative Hatch has given up hope of his anti-option bill passing through congress during this session. He said that today until June 15 in taking up the bill in the house means that the measure will stand no show of passing the senate before the summer recess is taken. This outcome practically means that anti-option legislation is dead so far as the Fifty-third congress is concerned.

BANK WRECKERS GUILTY.

The Indianapolis Cases Result in Conviction.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—The jury in the United States court has returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Percival Perry, Francis A. Coffin and Albert S. Reed, on trial for wrecking the Indianapolis National bank. The attorneys for the defendants have moved for a new trial.

May Tax Railroads.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The supreme court decided in favor of the State of Indiana, in the Big Four and other railroad tax cases. It was held that the assessment of railroad property by a state board of tax commissioners was open to no constitutional objection, and the supreme court sustained the Indiana court. Justices Harlan and Brown dissented.

Sutherland Surrendered.

BROOKLYN, May 29.—Justice of the Peace Kenneth F. Sutherland of Coney Island, who was convicted of connection with the Gravesend elections scandal last November, and who disappeared early in April when threatened with arrest, has surrendered to the police authorities.

Wyman Granted a Stay.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Erastus Wyman's trial on the charge of forgery was postponed until June 11. The delay was granted on motion of Mr. Wyman's counsel.

Julia Marlowe Married.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—Miss Julia Marlowe, the actress, and Robert Taber, formerly her leading man, were married at St. James Protestant Episcopal church in this city.

Miss Wisdom to Wed.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Cards have been sent out for the wedding of Miss Ellen Wisdom, daughter of the late Secretary of the Treasury William Wisdom, and Bentley Wirt Warren, a son of the late William Wirt Warren of Boston.

Hangen for Governor.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Representative Hangen, who returned from Wisconsin Saturday, is confident that he will be the next Republican candidate for governor in his state. He said that the nomination was an election.

Blueberry Crop Damaged.

CUMBERLAND, Wis., May 28.—A severe frost did much damage to garden truck, small fruits and wild berries. The blueberry crop is seriously damaged.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

N. J. Soderstrom of Hutchinson has assigned.

Montevideo is to have a town hall to cost $11,000.

Danish Baptists hold a state conference at Kasson.

A 5 foot vein of asbestos has been found at Moose.

The St. Paul School of Fine Arts has been incorporated.

The Maney countermarital trial is in progress at Fort Snelling.

A receiver has been ordered for the Fergus Falls Water company.

The Lake View house at Park Rapids was destroyed by fire. Loss, $3,000.

Two 9-year-old Polish boys fell out of a boat at Winona and were drowned.

Val Blatz, the Milwaukee brewer, died at the Ryan hotel, St. Paul, Saturday.

The safe in the saloon of J. H. Roach at Maakato was tapped and $175 secured.

A large exodus of Scandinavians from Minneapolis to the old country is reported.

The St. Cloud chief of police killed one tramp and injured another in self-defense.

The Winona normal school graduated over 100 at the commencement this week.

The Second district Republican congressional convention will meet at Mankato July 10.

A new postoffice has been established at Nevan, Clay county, Lester H. Baker, postmaster.

Several indictments were found by the Otter Tail county grand jury for illegal liquor selling.

The American whist congress has selected Minneapolis as the place for their next annual meeting.

Mrs. Marit Holey died at Madelia aged nearly 104 years. She was born in Lesja, Norway, in 1790.

Eight thousand Sunday school children united in a mass meeting at the St. Paul Auditorium Sunday.

Charles E. McKean was elected president of the State Sunday School association at its meeting in St. Paul.

Ex-Alderman C. C. Heshaw of Minneapolis was drowned at White Bear Sunday by the capsizing of a boat.

The Minnesota world's fair commission held its final meeting and turned over a balance of $15,000 to the state treasurer.

Fifty-nine graduates received diplomas at the St. Cloud normal school commencement. Governor Nelson delivered them.

The Old Settlers' association held their annual meeting in the hall of the rooms in the state capitol last noon of Friday, June 1.

Adjutant General Muehlberg has granted permission to the Boys' brigade to use national guard tents during the brigade encampment.

Dr. S. G. Mitchell of St. Paul Park was treated to a coat of tar and feathers, for alleged undue fondness for a married woman of that place.

Mike O'Keefe and John Fitch, two of the ringleaders in the mob that assaulted Harry Moe and other Duluth men at Tower, are in jail at Duluth.

John Roche's liquor store at St. Paul was robbed in broad day. While one crook engaged the clerk in conversation another crook engaged the cash drawer of the safe, containing $170.

At St. Paul Samuel Robinson, railway news vender, indicted on two charges of selling and having in his possession books of an obscene character, plead guilty to the latter and was sentenced by Judge Kerr to nine months at the workhouse.

The state land sales this year have been unusually small. Those for May have amounted to 3,410 acres. The sales took place from May 14 to 19 inclusive, in the following counties: Wilkin, 680 acres; Otter Tail, 360 acres; Clay, 750 acres; Norman, 280 acres; Polk, 840 acres; Marshall, 200 acres; Pine City, 1,000 acres; Carleton, 700 acres.

The Birch Cooley monument commission has awarded the contract for the monument to be erected on that battlefield. The base of the monument is to be nine feet square, and the apex of the shaft will rise 30 feet above the ground. Rockville granite will be used, and the monument is to be completed and in place before September 2, the anniversary of the battle.

IT IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

Minnesota Supreme Court Upholds the Anti-Scalper Law.

ST. PAUL, May 28.—The supreme court has handed down its decision in the famous ticket scalper case, reversing the district court of Ramsey county and sustaining the anti-scalper law of the last legislature that wipes out of existence railroad ticket brokerage in Minnesota. As the matter stands under the decision no one can sell railroad tickets except he be the authorized agent of a railroad company.

The anti-scalper law requires that before a person can engage in selling railroad tickets he must first have secured a license from the secretary of state, and that in order to secure this license he must file with the secretary of state a certificate of the railroad company for whom he is authorized to sell tickets.

A Stay in the Dart Case.

ST. PAUL, May 26.—The supreme court has made an order staying all proceedings in the case of the State of Minnesota against C. H. Dart, suspended treasurer of Meeker county, until June 4, 1894.

IMPORTERS OF FOREIGN GOODS.

They Hold a Meeting at New York to Urge "a Speedy Passage" of the Wilson Bill.

A meeting was recently held in Cooper Union, New York city, calling signed by 120 "business men of mercantile interest" to urge "upon the senate the immense importance of passing the bill without further delay," the object stated in the call being "a speedy passage" of the Wilson bill.

The American Economist looked up the occupations of the 120 "business men or mercantile concerns" signing the call and finds that Trow's directory gives 58 of them as importers of foreign goods. There are also eight "merchants," one "hats," one "lamps," one "china," one "trimmings," one "chemicals," who, while not designated as importers, are doubtless such and would make a total of 71 importers of foreign goods out of the 120 "who desire a speedy passage" of the bill to give American markets to their foreign manufactured goods.

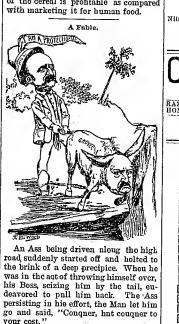
It was found that five of "the business men of New York" are not mentioned in the directory at all, while nine are "lawyers," one is a "chairman," one a "secretary," two "insurance," one "editor," one "treasurer," three "presidents," one "vice president," one "artist" and one "eating house."

It was further noted that the followers of the free trade Congressman Simms, a foreign manufacturer of china, glass, crockery and earthenware, are very numerous, comprising no less than 26, one half of those openly avowed as importers of foreign goods. It is not surprising that the speeches given at that meeting by these representatives of foreign goods were occasionally greeted with hisses, or that the name of ex-President Harrison was applauded.

That Dollar Wheat.

Farmers may well remember the fall of 1892, when, during the presidential campaign, they were told by the free trade party that all they need do in order to secure dollar wheat was to vote for Grover Cleveland and for every other candidate of the same political faith. Some farmers believed this dollar wheat promise and voted as they were directed. They are now reaping their harvest, as the March 12 report of the statistician of the department of agriculture points out in the following words:

"From the returns of the correspondents of the department throughout the great wheat surplus states indicate a new factor in the consideration of wheat—viz., the feeding of the same to hogs and other stock, a fact due, as declared, to the unprecedentedly low prices, the claim being made that this mode of disposing of the cereal is profitable as compared with marketing it for human food.



An Ass being driven along the high road, suddenly started off and halted to the brink of a deep precipice. When he was in the act of throwing himself over his Boss, seizing him by the tail, endeavored to pull him back. The Ass persisting in his effort, the Man let him go and said, "Conquer, but conquer to your cost."

The perverse generally come to harm.

BUFFALO, May 21.—A special to The Express from Olean says: A large number of houses were swept away during the night and outbuildings were carried away by the debris. The mills on only a few logs, but at Gordon's mill, which is owned by Bradley, almost the entire stock of logs is gone. Lumber was carried away by piles. The bridges of the Western New York and Pennsylvania were carried out. All stores are flooded. The people were driven scores of people from their homes and ruined all their household goods. At South Carrollton there is 20 feet of water in the canal pump station and it had to shut down as did every factory in the city. All the crops in the valley are ruined.

Scandia-American Bank
OF COOKSTON, MINN.
Capital, - $50,000.
Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.
Transacts a General Banking Business
Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.
Special Attention to Collections.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
C. HENRICKSON, ... President
L. ELLINGTON, ... Vice President
J. W. WHEELER, ... Cashier
A. P. HANSON ..... Assistant Cashier

MILLER & FOOTE,
TTY'S-AT-LAW,
Mci. ck. - Crookston, Minn

MOTHER'S FRIEND
LESSENS PAIN—INSURES SAFETY to LIFE of MOTHER and CHILD.
My wife, after having used Mother's Friend, passed through the ordeal with little pain, was stronger in one hour than in a week after the birth of her former child. J. J. GOODRICH, Bethel's Point, Texas.
Mother's Friend robbed pain of its terrors and shortened labor. I have used it in my practice for years, and find it a most valuable remedy. MRS. L. M. AHERN, Collins, Ga.
Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Book "to Mothers" mailed free.
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., ATLANTA, GA.
For Sale by all Druggists.

First National Bank
COOKSTON, MINN.
Commenced Business Oct 1881
Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - - 10,000
Interest on Certificates of Deposit.
Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.
GEO. C. GIBBINS, President.
WM. ANGLIN, Vice President.
CHAS. R. SAWYER, Cashier
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglin, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. C. Gibbins, J. E. McKinnon, A. A. Keller
C. N. Webb, Chas. R. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,
D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical
DENTIST.
Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
If you want a good Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 50 cents and your name and address and it will be honed and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.
RAZORS HONED.

OLD PAPERS
FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Rockitt Block, - Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome Addition.

McKINNON BROS.,
Dealers in all the leading— AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.
BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street - - CROOKSTON, MINN

$1.50
PER DOZEN
FOR THE BEST CABINET
Photographs
AT
P. E. Lynne's Gallery,
Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY
Roller Mills
CROOKSTON, MINN.,
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS,
MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.
BEAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS
Always on hand.

BROWN,
The Cigar Man,
Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Reckitt Block.
DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.
H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn

S. L. Collins,
Proprietor of Main Street
LIVERY AND FEED STABLES
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S
RESTAURANT
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.
Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.
TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

COUNTRY MINISTERS.

THEOLOGICAL GRADUATES OF 1894 WILL SOON SWELL THEIR RANKS.

Rural Pastors Are Devoted Men if There Are Any Such.—Their Small Monetary Rewards.—Funerals, Wedding Fees, Donation Parties.

Yet a little while, and the divinity students of 1894 will be graduated, and the army of evangelical ministers will receive large re-enforcements. And in the nature of things most of the young men who will then go out from the doors of the theological seminaries will serve country churches.

If there are any men on the face of the earth who are deserving of consideration from their fellow men, if there are men anywhere whose labors are ceaseless and earnest, if there are men in existence who give of their life and their strength for the benefit of others, they are the country ministers. If you have at any time spoken of these men as "working for their salaries" because from the force of circumstances they have to receive compensation for their services, my advice to you is to go away somewhere, alone with yourself, and blush for very shame as you never blushed before.

AND GET A LOAD OF PUMPKINS.

I do not mean to assert that all country ministers are perfect. They are all imperfect. If they were not, they would not be human, and so would not be available vehicles for the carrying to their fellowmen of the tidings of the gospel, the reception of which they and their supporters believe will bring peace to every troubled soul and eventually dominate the sin and with it the misery of the whole earth. But no one who has known country ministers as a class and has taken thought of the difficulties they meet in the way, the obstacles they have to overcome in the performance of their duties, their limited income and the things that are required of them will hesitate to indorse every word I have written.

Some of the theologues of 1894, who have friends or acquaintances to help them with their influence, will find pastorates in the larger towns and cities, where their income in dollars will be somewhat in keeping with the years of study and thought and labor that they have expended in preparing themselves for their life work, but the proportion will be small. In 1893 there were 16,449 Methodist Episcopal ministers in the United States. They received in the aggregate $10,898,916 as compensation for their services that year, or an average of a little over $620. The average paid to Baptist ministers is even less, being only $404, and the ministers of these two denominations are as well paid as any certainly. In the big cities and the prosperous towns and villages the average is higher, of course, but in truly rural localities it is correspondingly below it.

Even in the great centers of wealth and intelligence, where the salaries of ministers are large, they are far below the average income of men in other professions.

Yet the ministers of the United States are not a lot of gloomy mutterers who cast down and discouraged. On the contrary, they are cheerful and bright, as a class, beyond most men. Most of them know early in the ministerial career that they have reached the limits practically of their monetary emoluments, and that they can never hope to be more than safe from want in their declining years, much less rich. Many of them discover before they have preached many years that their annual income will never exceed a few hundred dollars. At the same time they cannot fail to perceive that in almost any other and more worldly pursuits, even if only moderately successful, they would be able to do better from a financial point of view, and yet the percentage of those who abandon the calling to enter one to which there is money to be made is so small as to be hardly in evidence at all.

SIT DOWN AND HAVE A GOOD CRY.

If you cannot explain this, I can. The country ministers as a class are men whose lives are ordered according to a strict interpretation of what they conceive to be their duty. This, coupled with a trust in the power above that is positively sublime, is what keeps them at their posts. That their influence does not make for good for the betterment of their fellows is a proposition that is not borne out by the facts. Considered simply from a temporal viewpoint, leaving things spiritual out of the question, the labors of the country ministers in behalf of morality, of right living, of uprightness in business and of the practice of virtues in every life are worth to the community many times more than the cost.

For it is many remote communities the minister who keeps alive the aspirations of the entire population for those things which make for education and for edneation and for manners. It is the ministers to whom the family troubles, the financial tangles and the penitences of the entire neighborhood are carried. If there is a bright young man or a clever girl in his congregation who has aspirations for the education of the schools and the broader life of the world, wide world that looks so alluring to youthful eyes, and that may be reached perhaps through the college gate, it is the minister who is consulted. When there is sorrious sickness, the minister is called in, and when there is death it is he who attends the last services over the body of the departed one, and who comforts the living. When there are marryings—

When there is a wedding, the country minister is joyful. It is quite possible that there is some element of selfishness in his joy, for after the ceremony comes the fee, and though ministers do not subsist on fees alone they form a not to be lightly regarded fraction of the total yearly income. It is small wonder if some country ministers whose salaries are small occasionally preach from the text, "It is not good for man to be alone," nor that some ministers are prone to encourage the extreme development of the feminine trait of matchmaking in their own worthy spouses.

It will be readily understood by the discerning reader that the accomplished matrimonial bureau of the wife of a country minister may, by skillful use of her talents, help materially in keeping the flour barrel filled. It must be stated, however, while we are upon the subject of wedding fees, that they sometimes fall short of expectation. To ask for a $6 bill and to get a load of pumpkins or half a cord of cross-grained wood with a foot wood is a disappointment sord and one hard to be borne.

Next in size and sometimes quite equal in importance with the wedding fees of the country minister as an auxiliary source of income is the annual donation party. It is almost always held in the winter season and often at the minister's house. Sometimes his furniture and his carpets are a sight to behold on the morning after a vigorous donation party.

I have known a minister's better half, who was a careful housewife, to sit down and have a good cry (a feminine cry, that is) over it. In these times some people are so fond of quilting fin de siecle on discovering that the damage to her home belongings has been greater than the net result of the donation party. The personal popularity of the minister is pretty accurately gauged by the size of his donation and when it dwindles he might shout as well make up his mind that his usefulness is a thing of the past in that neighborhood, and it is time for him to go a-candidating. If he be popular with his church and the town built, where, though there can be no dancing at a donation, there is room a-plenty for those curious games known as "snap-and-catch-'em," "needle's eye" and "pillows."

"SNAP-AND-CATCH"-EM."

It is the going a-candidating that tries the soul of the country minister. Maybe he has offended some member of his congregation by reason of the vice of stinginess, or perchance he has reproved a deacon's daughter for "sparkin her beau" before night in meetin," possibly the youthful exuberance of her companion; in the current couplet the minister's worn one has not comported himself aright; like enough the preacher's sermons seem stale and his congregation diminishes—then some cause it is evident to him that he must seek a "call" to a new field, and so he goes forth preaching "trial sermons," and his wife awaits anxiously until a church that will receive him has been found. Fortunate indeed are those ministers who succeed in pleasing one church for a whole lifetime in the manner that would by the day during the week among the farmers he preached to on Sunday, who cobbled in the winter and laid stone wall in the spring and autumn. I know another who sought to gain favor by doing a little trading in horses. He had a transaction of that sort one day with his leading deacon, and the next week the pastor went on a tour a-candidating.

I. D. MARSHALL.

INTERNATIONAL HYMN.

My country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing.
Land where the wheels are tied,
Land where industries died,
And to the English side
Took rapid wing.

My native country, thee,
Land to which paupers flee,
Thy name I love;
I love thy Cleveland frills,
Thy no trade tariff hills,
Thy Grahams, Smiths and Mills,
Born free from thorns.

Let music swell the breeze,
Democrats, to your knees,
And swell the song!
Let those who brought this fate
Their malisons take straight,
And these years longer wait
To right the wrong.
—Albert Lea.

The Truth Leaking Out.

"There appears to be no doubt that the government will have a large surplus on its hands as the result of the operations of the new tariff during the first year. Most of the estimates of revenue which have heretofore been issued have taken no account of increased importations. The treasury officials believe that these will be very heavy during July, August and September, and that the customs receipts are likely to exceed for those months what they were under the prosperous months of 1892 under the higher duties of the McKinley law."

The above from the special Washington correspondent of The Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin is confirmatory of what we stated only a few weeks ago. In making their "estimates of revenue" it has, of course, not been desirable for the free traders to draw any attention to "increased importations." The less said upon that subject the better. They will undoubtedly exceed anything we have known for very many years. It is well to remember, too, that every dollar's worth of these "increased importations" that may be sold in this country means correspondingly smaller sales of similar American goods made by American labor, and the smaller the sales of American goods the smaller will be the demand for American labor. There will be a large surplus of revenue in the treasury vaults, but no surplus, or evensufficiency, of revenue for the work people.—American Economist.

The Fox and the Mask.

A Fox entered the house of an Actor, and rummaging through all his properties came upon a Mask, an admirable imitation of a human face. He placed his paws on it and said, "What a beautiful head, yet it is of no value, as it entirely wants brains!"

A fair face is of little use without sense.

Had an Easy Job.

"Hello, Dan, what are you doing?" said a Blade caller, who looked into the open door of the sanctum, where Dangerous Blade was sitting at his desk, evidently enjoying himself at his work.

"Building a pyramid," he said.

"What kind of a pyramid?"

"Oh, a pyramid of the states which, by the spring elections, so far have shown their disgust at the Wilson bill and other tomfooleries toward free trade manifested by the Democratic party."

"Well, how do you make it?"

"It's dead easy. Look at it."

And he showed over the paper, on which the following appeared:

OHIO.
IOWA.
MAINE.
KANSAS.
INDIANA.
ILLINOIS.
MONTANA.
COLORADO.
NEW YORK.
NEBRASKA.
MINNESOTA.
CALIFORNIA.
NEW JERSEY.
CONNECTICUT.
RHODE ISLAND.
SOUTH DAKOTA.
MASSACHUSETTS.
—Toledo Blade.

Hero They Come.

The following letter from the English firm of brass founders, Samuel Heath & Sons, to a Hartford firm is a fair indication of with what haste the English manufacturer is watching Democratic legislation:

BIRMINGHAM, England, April 30.

To the ——— Company:

We have your name given us as one buyers of tacks, and as we no doubt aware we are the largest manufacturers of all kinds of fittings for these articles in the world, we beg to say that if the Wilson bill passes in your country we shall be very glad to call upon you some time next September with all kinds of vases, mounts, spindles, set rails, brass, etc., etc.

We should be very pleased to hear from you, stating if you would then be in a position to favor us with an order if the present must with your approval.

Thanking you in anticipation, etc.,

[Signed.]

It doesn't take a spyglass to discern the fact that if the Wilson bill becomes a law the firm of Samuel Heath & Sons, one of the largest manufacturers in the world, intends to flood the country with its goods. The success of this effort means a corresponding decrease in the production of American firms, Englishmen—not Americans—place the tin that binds their cans on the markets of the United States.—Rockland (Me.) Daily Star

DEALING IN HUMAN HAIR.

How Makers of Wigs and Switches Treat Their Stock in Trade.

"Dealing in human hair is a peculiar business," said the proprietor of a wigmaking establishment to a reporter. "People do not understand the ins and outs of a business that must on its face seem so simple.

"The mere matter of obtaining hair with which to make wigs, switches and other hairwork to adorn beads poorly favored by nature seems easy, but it is not so. We have to exercise the greatest care in buying hair, it being absolutely necessary to know from what source it has been obtained. A great deal of hair comes from the ash barrels and garbage piles. You can see the material of this kind would not be at all desirable, yet people often wonder why one wig costs four times as much as another when in appearance both are the same.

"The reason from which the hair is obtained has a great deal to do in determining the price of the goods. If hair has been on a fever patient, the price asked is considerably lower than if it had been cut from the head of a healthy person. Hair receives discoloration gorme longer than anything else. That this is apparent is shown by the fact that even after hair found in uncertain places has been put through the severe cleaning process to which all the material used is subjected, still it does not command the same price as the healthy article. One would think that this process would kill all disease germs, but it does not seem to increase the value of such hair.

"When hair is collected, it is thrown into vats of boiling water, where it is left to boil for a considerable time. After that it is put through a chemical preparation, and then, after being combed out and sorted in sizes, it is laid away for a year. We never use any hair that has not been treated at least a year. Each box is marked with the date on which the hair was treated, the place from which it came and the price we have a full history of every bit of hair in stock.

"We meet some peculiar people in our business. You would soon be convinced that women cannot claim exclusive title to vanity if you were to watch the men who are bald as more difficult to please than women. They insist every time having their hair shaved just so, and their way invariably happens to be the only way in which it cannot be fixed."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Horse With a Mustache.

"Look dar, Bill. See dat horse wid a mustache!"

This explanation from one street gamin to another attracted the attention of a reporter and a few friends with him who were standing on the corner. Looking in the direction of the boys, he discovered that Letter Carrier Thomas Brown had driven up his little wagon to collect the mail from the box. Attached to it was a small sized sorrel horse, which had, sure enough, an elegant mustache about 2 inches long and as black as coal, which was in strong contrast to the cray of any dude. From Mr. Brown it was learned that the horse was about 6 years old, and had been purchased him from a negro. The negro raised him from a colt, and in early life he commenced sporting his mustache. To relieve himself of the bother of answering questions, the animal had had his whiskers trimmed, but Mr. Brown, since he became possessed of the animal, has permitted them to grow.—Nashville American.

Power of Imagination.

A curious case of "cure by suggestion" is reported from a large German hospital. A girl of 16 was under the impression that she had swallowed a frog, which was alive in her stomach and often jumped almost up into her throat. The doctors had vainly tried to cure her of this idea. One day, and quite rapidly dying, when it occurred to one of the medical men to put a tube into the patient's throat, a small frog had been placed. The lively creature jumped almost immediately out of its prison house onto the table in front of the girl, and a youthful student put it into spirits, labeling the bottle, "Extracted from a stomach." The moment the girl saw the creature a beaming smile spread over her pale face, she took food at once and speedily got well, is now completely cured.—Westminster Gazette.

Boiled Water.

To restore the flavor to boiled water, mix air with it—blow in, shake it thoroughly in a cruse or other open mouthed vessel that will put more surface to it when spilling. It takes away the flat, insipid taste that is objectionable.—New York Times.

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment Cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Nervous Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of Alcohol or Tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in Insanity, Decay, Premature Old Age, Impotency, Nervousness, Lassitude, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses, Spermatorrhœa, caused by Self-abuse or Excesses. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail prepaid. We guarantee six boxes to cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by WEST MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

VIGORINE Cures Nervousness, Sexual Debility, Impotency, Nervous Prostration, Lack of Nerve Force, Nervousness, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, Nervousness after Alcohol or Tobacco Habit, Spermatorrhœa, Impaired Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of Self-abuse or Excesses. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail prepaid. We guarantee six boxes to cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by WEST MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

COTTOLENE
What is it
?
It is the new shortening taking the place of lard or cooking butter, or both. Costs less, goes farther, and is easily digested by anyone.
AT ALL GROCERS.
Sold in three & five pound pails.
Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.
CHICAGO.
Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cotolene Cook Book, containing 44 luscious recipes.

Hi, There!
DO YOU WANT
The Choicest Cuts
At Lowest Rates?
Try George Vine's New
MEAT MARKET.
Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.
Vine Block, Broadway CROOKSTON

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
RUNS
THROUGH CARS
TO
St. Paul,
Minneapolis,
Duluth
argo,
Grand Forks and winnipe
TO HELENA.
BUTTE.
SPOKANE.
TACOMA.
SEATTLE,
PORTLAND
Pullman
Sleeping Cars,
Elegant
Dining Cars
Tourist
Sleeping Cars
TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave Fer St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West
Crookston Superior. 7:34 p.m.
Daily For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:05 a.m.
Have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.
GRADUATE
McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.
Office in McKinnon Block

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE
CROOKSTON, MINN.
THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day House in the City. Good Sample Room in connection.
No. 302 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON
ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Wells Drilled or Bored.
Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.
Crookston, Minn.

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MI ING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under the laws of the State of Minnesota, by virtue of the laws of said State, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, we, the undersigned, hereby severally conceive as a body corporate and do hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of the company hereby formed shall be Red Lake Milling Co. The general nature of the business shall be the manufacturing of flour, feed and meal, and all other products manufactured from wheat, corn, rye or any of the cereals, and may buy, own and lease such land, water-power, machinery and other appurtenances as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying on the operations of said manufacturing business and may buy, own, lease, and operate such elevators, warehouses and buildings as may be necessary in storing and handling wheat, corn, rye and other cereals required in the operation of the company's business and shall have power to maintain, operate, acquire, possess, own and lease such buildings, railroad tracks, water mains and machinery as may be necessary for the complete and perfect operation of the company's business in the manufacture of flour, feed, meal and such other products as are usually manufactured in flouring mills, and in all other business incidental to the manufacture of flour, feed and meal, and to the operation of such elevators, but shall however be limited to the business of manufacturing the articles hereinbefore mentioned and to the lines incidental thereto.

The principal place for the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 1st day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of the continuance shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same shall be paid in at such times and in such installments as the board of directors may determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability this said corporation shall at any one time be subject to is the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming this corporation are as follows: F. E. and C. L. Wells, Minneapolis, Minn.; L. Van Hooke, Kiledale, North Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first board of directors are as follows: Frank E. Cowley, Charles E. Heywood L. Van Hooke and Frank E. Cowley shall be the president and treasurer, and L. Van Hooke shall be secretary, and these shall be and constitute the executive board of said company, which shall be held on the second Monday of August, at which time directors have been elected and have qualified.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be and is hereby vested in a board of directors consisting of not three persons, who shall be elected by and from the stockholders at the annual meeting such year as the annual meeting of stockholders, and as the board of directors shall hold office for one year and until their successors are chosen and have qualified.

The directors of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected by and from the board of directors annually and shall hold their offices for one year and until their successors have been chosen and have qualified. The president shall be the executive officer of said company, and shall have power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be found necessary, and shall have power to fill vacancies on the board of directors or any of the offices caused by resignation, death or other cause, and shall perform such duties as the board of directors shall require. Said board of directors shall meet annually for the election of directors or such other time as may be necessary to fill vacancies and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stock holders shall be held on the second Monday of August, in each year, and the annual meeting of the board of directors shall be held immediately after the annual meeting of the stock holders. The number of directors for the board of directors may be increased to not exceed seven by the stock-holders at any annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of the stock holders shall be held on the 12th day of January, 1895.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto set our hands this 14th day of May, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY. [Seal.]
CHARLES E. HEYWOOD. [Seal.]
L. VAN HOOKE. [Seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. S. LINDESMITH,
C. CROSBY.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Morrison. }

On this 14th day of May A. D. 1894, before me personally came Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Heywood, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing articles of incorporation, and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

C. S. LINDESMITH,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.
Morrison County, Minn.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Dickey. }

On this 16th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a County Judge within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Hooke, to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

A. T. COLE,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.
Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA } ss
Department of Statistics }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 17th day of May, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in Book "E C" of Incorporations on Page 387.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

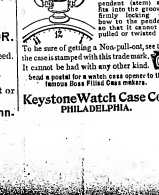
OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, }
STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
COUNTY OF POLK. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 7th day of May A. D. 1894.

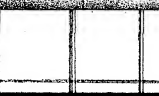
JOHN ARCHIBOLD,
Register of Deeds.

Going to Buy a Watch?

If so, buy one that cannot be stolen. The only thief-proof Watches are those with



BOWS.
Here's the Idea:
Every Watch has a groove on each end. Scrolls are punched inside the pendant and bow. Bow fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.



To be sure of getting a Non-pull-out, see that the case is stamped with this trade-mark.

It cannot be had with any other kind.

Send a postal for a watch case opener to the Inventors and Fine Case makers.

KeystoneWatch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

| | For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at - - -

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1894. NO. 8.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....David M. Clough.
Secretary of State.....F. P. Brown.
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 9th Dist....Halor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 53rd Sen. Dist.....E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 53rd Sen. Dist.....John D. Knox
Jason, B. M. Chesley and Hans Jackson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....J. J. Elliott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 11th Jud. District .....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court.....Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor.....C. U. Webster
Treasurer.....J. T. Beasley
Register of Deeds.....John Amundson
Attorney.....A. R. Holson
Sheriff.....Henry Grandgeyen
Judge of Probate.....C. M. Beeson
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lomen
Surveyor.....O. L. Hamery
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.....John E. Oppegaard
Second District.....Anton Lloten
Third District.....M. E. Kresh
Fourth District.....C. F. Demers
Fifth District.....A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Beebe	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Erickson	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Peterson	Bray
Bedger	N Swalrud	Mentor
Brandvold,	ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgian,	Henry Buver	Euclid
Bridel,	A P Plank	Warren
Brytland,	Halvor Grundseen	Fisher
Crookston,	R O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lorette,	Crookston
Columbus,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerugan,	Lindsey
Eastervills,	Charlie Aro	Bronbo
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Nort A Stone	Otga
Fairfield,	Wm Hammelsbeck,	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Warren
Fossey,	J O McCusker,	Euclid
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E Geauge	Fertile
Sis Forks	E J Hoose	S G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J H Johnson	S G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H T Gondrue,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Bedford	L L Falls
Grove Park,	D T Elsbell,	Mentor,
Godfrey,	D T Elsbell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Frold Syverson	Lindsey
Highland,	Andrew Stordahl	Nelsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	S G Forks
Huntsville,	G Forks	S G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Bendt	Gentilly
King,	J D Knutson,	Northland
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Fosston
Lake Pleasant,	August Beaulie	H L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebeau,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson,	Fertile
Lesser,	Chas Mattson	Grotta
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbee	Hoot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
North	Harry Beye,	T R Falls
Norden,	H D Basdson	E. L. Falls
Northland,	H S Mentor	Northland
Nameloi,	Ireane F B Allne,	Tweed
Onstad,	W A Steele	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Pepper River,	J B Hibert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans S Benhom	Fosston
R L V, village,	A P Swalrud	R L. Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildwig Hoft	R L. Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Eden
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Rosine,	P Bonlind	Soby
Rosebud,	John E Juverud,	Fosston
Rustic,	Geore Simonson	Crookston
Sanders,	Ella k Anderson	St. Hilaire
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	Northland
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	S G Forks
Tabor,	J J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edouar Perreau	Terrebonne
Tilden,		Tilden
Tyrnld,	A O Storicon	Soby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Soby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Hindal
Woodside,	Thos. Halderson,	Maple Bay
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhuehart,	Oscar Wick	S G Forks
Thief River Falls	Adam Zeh,	T R Falls

Electric Your Memory,

That the North-Western Line offers the best train service from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Sioux City, Duluth and Superior, and is the only line running pullman sleepers to all these cities, besides affording first-class day coach service. Try this line also to Ashland. [46-tf]

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.
[1-tf] A. E. George,
Opera Block.

OF LOCAL INTEREST.

The City Council Met Last Night, But Little Business was Transacted.

Nine Ballots Taken on the Selection of a City Justice Without Result.

A New Hotel for Crookston Talked of—Recent Supreme Court Decisions.

City Council Proceedings.

Council met at the usual hour on Wednesday evening, and after reading the new bills, appointed a committee to act with a committee from the county board on Thursday, and taking nine ballots on city justice, without result, adjourned till Thursday evening to allow the members to go to the commencement exercises. I. C. Jennings, George Holt and George H. Palmer were the persons balloted for and the vote each time stood: Jennings 1, Holt 4 and Palmer 2, until the 5th ballot which was: Jennings 5, Holt 3 and Palmer 3. On the ninth it got back to the original combination and as appearances indicated that it would stay then indefinately, a motion to adjourn prevailed. What the machinations of to-day will develope it is hard to say.

A New Hotel.

For some time there has been considerable talk about organizing a stock company for the erection of a first-class hotel in the city, and it is said that there is good prospects of the project being carried out.

The plan is to get the business men to take stock in the enterprise and a meeting will be called before long to discuss the matter and get the enterprise started.

Crookston is one of the best—if not the best—point in the northwest for a hotel, and there is no reason in the world why a good, hotel—properly conducted—should not be a paying investment.

The trains on all the branch roads centering in Crookston as well as on the main line of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, all leave the city in the morning and arrive in the evening, so that the traveling men make this their headquarters while working a large territory tributary to Crookston.

Besides this, Crookston is the geographical and railroad centre of northern Minnesota, and is the natural meeting place of conventions and gatherings of all kinds. The sessions of the district court bring many strangers to the city, and the county seat also attracts many visitors.

In fact there are a thousand and one reasons why a first-class hotel is the one thing needed to fill "a long felt want" in the city.

Supreme Court Decisions.

In the case of Yellow Medicine County Bank appellant, vs. O. J. Tagley et al respondents, the appellant was granted a new trial. A. A. Miller counsel for appellant, and H. Steenerson for respondents.

In the case of E. C. Davis respondent vs. The Crookston Waterworks, Power and Light Company appellant, and Hugh Thompson intervenor, a new trial was granted on the question of whether the assignment of the account of Davis to Thompson was an absolute assignment, or only a conditional assignment for the purpose of enabling Davis to carry on the contract. The judgment which Thompson got in the lower court against the Waterworks Company stands, but the supreme court holds that the judgment cannot be secured by mechanic's lien against the power house. H. Steenerson counsel for respondent, R. J. Montague and W. F. McNally for appellant, and R. M. Stanton for intervenor.

A Journalist Weds.

An Sunday afternoon a quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. P. T. Scotland in this city, the contracting parties being Mr. C. T. Lannan of Mcintosh and Miss. Ingeborg Scotland. Only a few intimate friends were present, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. Hilmar. The young couple left in the evening for a wedding trip, and will soon for a short time at Detroit lake.

The groom is the editor and proprietor of the Mcintosh Times and is one of the leading business men of that ambitious village. By industry and integrity he has worked up a good business, and by his genial disposition and accommodating manner he has made for himself a host of friends, not alone in Mcintosh but all over the county. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. P. T. Scotland of this city, and has a large circle of friends here, who are loth to lose her company.

The JOURNAL wishes the couple happiness and prosperity.

AGAINST DIVISION

The Farmers of the Thirteen Towns Are not all Deceived by the County Division Schemers

The following article taken from the McIntosh Tribune shows that the division sentiment is not solid even in that vicinity. We quote it entire as it contains so many good reasons why Polk county should not be divided as yet:

As we have noticed in your esteemed papers, lately, some articles alluding to a resolution which we published in "Rodhuggeren" the 7th of April, this year, on county division, we feel it our duty to contradict some of the statements made in the articles mentioned, as they are absolutely false and misleading. The resolution was written by Lars E. Nelson, and passed at an alliance meeting in the Town of Knute Alliance, but as no quorum was present we all signed our names to the resolution, individually. We passed this resolution, not for giving either C. M. Beeson or any other man any office, but simply because we are opposed to county division, as we all here are of the opinion that it would be cheaper to run the district which now is Polk county, with one set of officers and one court house, than it would be to run the same district with four sets of officers, four court houses, and four county seats. This will prove true, if we elect to our county offices, men who will consider our interest are cared for—men who will work for the people and not for themselves, or any ring, as now is the fact with the majority of our county officers.

The writer in the Tribune from Erskine, says that certain small counties are run at a comparatively small expense than the vast Polk county. This may be true. But before we, the farmers who toil and cultivate the fertile lands of Polk county, will have any desire to quit farming and run for office, are willing to take this under consideration, or want "county Division" to answer then the following question: "Is it a general rule all over the state that a small county always runs with a comparatively smaller expense than a big county?" If in our power this satisfactorily we have no objection to division, if proper territory can be secured for each county. As for the argument that our farms would be worth so much more if we get a county seat nearer, we have this to say: If we intend to live on our farms, the only thing that can make them more valuable for us, is an extended market for our products and better prices—not a higher assessment for taxes as would without doubt be the only result of the increase of farm value near county seats. Of course the towns that would get the county seats would grow and thereby extend our market but that is not going a village for that reason would have to be taken out of the increase of the farmers in the county. We would also wish to see the real names of those great friends of the farmers, who are for division and we also suggest that they sign them as they can have the credit for their noble actions.

LARS E. NELSON, CARL HAST,
MARTIN BERSON, HANS HANSON,
CARL MAGNELL, C. C. NESS.

Peculiar to Itself

So eminently successful has Hood's Sarsaparilla been that many leading citizens from all over the United States furnish testimonials of cures which seem almost incredible. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not an accident but the fruit of industry and study. It possesses merit "peculiar to itself."

Hood's Pills cure Nausea, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

The poisonous cats inflicted by barb wire, has caused the death of many a good horse whose life might have been saved by the use of Keller's Barb Wire Liniment. It is especially made to heal all cuts, sores and wounds quickly and thousands of farmers and stockmen have freely acknowledged it the best. F. L. Durand sells and guarantees this remedy.

DISTRICT COURT

Full Account of the Court Proceedings Since Our Last Issue.

The Jury Decide that Sheriff Grundgysen Keeps a Good Boarding House.

Nettie Johnson and Her Mars Again in Court—Nettie Wins the Heat.

The Grand Jury Are Dismissed, list Not Discharged—Routine Work.

THURSDAY, MAY 31ST.

Court convened at 9 a. m. the petit jury was on hand to begin work. The first case taken up was that of the Merchants National Bank of Grand Forks, N. D. vs. James E. Sullivan. This was an action to recover on promissory notes, the amount being eight hundred dollars. There being two cases of the same nature, the same plaintiff against the same defendant, it was stipulated that the second should abide the result of the trial of the first. The total amount involved in the two cases was about $2000. The defendant set up the defense that plaintiff was not bona fide purchaser of the notes in question. The affair in brief is about as follows: Doheny & Lyons, of Grand Forks carried on the business of dealing in "options" on wheat, or a "bucket shop" as some called it; dealing in "wind wheat." The defendant, Mr. Sullivan was one of the customers of Doheny, a patroniser of the "bucket shop" business. Sullivan staked his money on these margins and as in other games of chance sometimes he won and some times he don't win. He, as he said, "put up," until he had no more money, and then order to keep up his "deal" he gave his note to Doheny. Doheny & Lyons endorsed the notes and put them on at the bank as collateral security. When the notes came due the bank so notified Doheny & Lyons, who then asked Sullivan to pay the notes. Sullivan refused to pay on the ground that his agreement with Doheny was to the effect that the notes should not go to the bank for collection. Doheny told Sullivan that if he did not pay he would close out the "deal" in "margins" he then had with them. Sullivan claims that at that time he had an option on 20,000 bushels and wheat had gone up 7 cents per bushel, making him a clean profit of $1400. This he claims Doheny closed out. The jury, from the evidence in this action, brings suit to recover on the notes. F. H. McDermont and Mr. Bosard of Grand Forks and L. E. Gossman and A. A. Miller, attorneys for plaintiff. J. M. Cochrane of Grand Forks and R. J. Montague attorneys for defendant.

When the evidence was all introduced, defendant's counsel, Mr. Cochrane, moved the court to direct a verdict for the defendant on the ground that under the law in this jurisdiction and the undisputed evidence in the case there was no issue for the jury to find. The point raised was that the plaintiff under this law and evidence was not a bona fide purchaser of the notes. The court granted said motion and a verdict directed for defendant.

Priscilla H. Sheppard vs. Amy Grundgysen, is an action to acquire title to a team and dray owned by the defendant in East Grand Forks some time last fall, and to recover for the retention of the property. One Mr. Sharp swore out a writ of attachment against Mr. Sheppard, the husband of plaintiff. The sheriff attached the horses and dray; plaintiff replevined. Plaintiff claimed that the property was and is her property, her husband having no right or title in it. The case was given to the jury just before adjournment, with instructions to bring in a sealed verdict on Friday morning.

FRIDAY

The jury in the Sheppard case brought in a verdict in favor of plaintiff, that she is entitled to the property described in the complaint and assess her damages for the retention thereof at the sum of $60. Montague & Buckler and Mr. Bosard counsels for plaintiff, and A. A. Miller and E. O. Nash for defendant.

A jury was then called in the case of Edward Anderson vs. "W. E. Hovies and George O'Reilly. L. E. Gossman for plaintiff and Montague & Buckler for defendant. After selecting the jury the defendant gave the plaintiff $25 and paid the costs and the case was settled.

The case of Ole Ile vs. Tollef B. Landsverd and Levi S. Meyers was also settled.

J. Soloman & Co. vs. Dahl & Bergstrom appeal case, judgment of lower court affirmed.

The case of John Morrough vs. Levi Meyers et al, was settled.

In the case of O. J. Barnes vs. Stephen Duval and Sarah Duval, the defendant withdrew the answer and judgment was ordered for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

In the case of First National Bank of East Grand Forks vs. John J. Enright and M. J. Enright, A. C. Wilkinson attorney for John J. Enright, withdrew the answer in the case and counsel for plaintiff, A. A. Miller moved for judgment for the amount claimed. It was so ordered by court.

A jury was then called in the case of John K. Swenson vs. Andrew O. Halland et al. H. Steenerson counsel for plaintiff and Montague & Buckler counsel for defendant.

The plaintiff sues to recover a horse, buggy, harness and 70 bushels of wheat, or the value thereof, taken from him by defendant. Plaintiff purchased a horse from defendant, giving his notes secured by a chattel mortgage. These seems to have been some misunderstanding as to the time of the payment of the balance. The plaintiff gave defendant some wheat to apply on the indebtedness, with the understanding that the balance should go over to the fall of '94. Soon afterward the defendant took the property above referred to. The case went to the jury just before adjournment.

SATURDAY.

In the case of Geo. B. Bradbury & Co. vs. Crookston Hay and Commission Co. the answer was withdrawn and judgment entered for plaintiff.

Ole Mortenson vs. A. M. Stevenson and Wm. Eudman, was next called; Wm. Watts counsel for plaintiff, and H. Steenerson counsel for defendant. This was an action to recover damages claimed to have been received by plaintiff on the night of June 19th, 1893. During the progress of the erection of the Van Buck, on Broadway, it is claimed that on the south end of the building next to the alley an opening on the outside of the main wall was dug for an entrance to the cellar. This was left unguarded, as plaintiff claimed, and that particular night he came home across the street (he was living then over the Crookston Plumbing Co. building) and he was going through the alley next to the building in question with a pitcher in his hand. Not seeing the opening he fell head foremost into it. Plaintiff claims he received injuries from such fall as will result in his being laid up for a week and suffers from the injuries to this day. He sued for $250. After all the evidence on the part of plaintiff was introduced defendant's counsel moved the court to direct a verdict for defendant, on the ground that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Motion was granted.

The grand jury returned indictments against the car thieves as follows: Knute Grundy, grand larceny in second degree. He afterwards pleaded guilty. Nick Funk and Jas. Warring, grand larceny in second degree. Warring entered a plea of not guilty. Patrick Henry O'Brien, Nick Thoesen and Nick Ersinfield, grand larceny in the second degree; they pleaded not guilty.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against Jos. Patnode for selling mortgaged property. He entered a plea of not guilty. The case reported in our last issue against Jos. Lejambe instead of being for the conversion of school funds was for taking some blacksmith tools from Munn's shop in Crookston.

The change of assault preferred against Lawrence Lawson by J. S. Nichols of Fertile was dismissed.

Before adjournment the jury in the Svennes vs. Holland case was called in and asked if there was any possibility of an agreement, to which the foreman replied "not the 5slightest." This jury during Friday night in some way came across the proposed constitutional amendment giving the power of deciding a case to three-fourths of the twelve jurors. Thereupon they made up their verdict and informed the sheriff that they had agreed. He let them go. Saturday morning they came before the court and asked if three-fourths could make the verdict. They were informed in the negative and retired to further discuss the matter among

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.]

WE WILL CELEBRATE,

The Eagle Will Scream at Crookston on the Coming Fourth of July.

An Enthusiastic Citizens' Meeting Decides to Have a Grand Celebration.

The High School Commencement Exercises at the Opera House Last Night.

A rousing meeting of the citizens of Crookston was held at the city hall on Tuesday evening to consider the question of a celebration for the Fourth of July, 1894. Postmaster LePage occupied some leg-rockers and touched them off at 8 p. m. in front of the hall, and when the crowd gathered they all went into the hall, and after discussing the question pro and con for an hour, appointed the following executive committee to take full charge: M. R. Brown, F. E. Hertz, Fred Rauch, J. W. Wheeler, F. E. LePage, A. K. Austin and Martin O'Brien. The committee held a meeting after the meeting adjourned to organize and make further arrangements. Crookston will be right in the swim and have a royal celebration.

Commencement.

Wednesday night the friends of education gathered at the Grand opera house to witness the commencement exercises. From all walks of life they came and filled the house to its fullest seating capacity. It being an event that comes but once a year all were eager to see the young folks started in what Holmes calls the "Derby" race. The owners and trainers of these promising racers were anxious that they should appear at their best, and they did. This year there were but three graduates: Miss Addie Marin, Maurice Malone, (valedictorian) and John Sangsted. Where they will be at the next mile post in this race of life, facing a cold, cruel, selfish world for position and recognition, it is hard to conjecture. But at the word, "go" let us with our best wishes, kindest and most encouraging and helpful words make the course smooth and predict for them a successful future.

The exercises began at 8:30 with an invocation by Rev. Bisley.

Prof. Moore then made a few statements regarding the work of the school, its thoroughness, etc.; that the small number of graduates did not indicate the amount of work done. He said that the number of state certificates was the measure of the work done. This year about 300 state certificates will be received. Next year bids fair to send forth ten graduates.

In the course of his remarks the professor cited some three or four instances of success of the graduates turned out from the school during his term of ten years' here, claiming the success to be due to their being so thoroughly grounded. He did not think any man should be considered until it was shown that he has failed in some respect to perform his duty faithfully.

The time of going to press will not allow us to criticise the efforts of the graduates, or give the excellent program rendered. Suffice it to say that the graduates and those of the high school department taking part in the exercises performed the parts assigned them in a very creditable manner. Some of the graduates received an abundance of flowers, but the manner of presentation was not very graceful.

President Anglim presented the diplomas, and a trio by Misses Minch, Marsh and Tvedten concluded the exercises.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper are pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all druggists, 75.

Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers can be applied when at home, and is uniformly successful in coloring a brown or a black. Hence its great popularity.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE FACE IN THE ROSENFELT.

CHARLES HOWARD MCKINNEY,
AUTHOR OF "THE MYSTERY OF THE MARKS," "THE PRICE OF A SOUL," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER IV.
THE LOCKED DOOR.

When Maxey in his usual spirits was ascending the flights of stairs which led to his apartments, he came up two steps at a time. But somehow a mental depression had so mysterious and intimate a connection with his powers of locomotion that when anything troubled him very much he was apt to content himself with the ordinary rate of progress. This afternoon his footsteps lagged on every stair. He looked at his letter-key abstractedly for several minutes before he placed it in the lock, and when he did finally perform this operation it was with a savage thrust, as though he wanted to stab the door. It was not a quite dark when the key turned and he went in.

"Ah!" said Dr. Lamar from his chair by the bedside in the windowless alcove room, looking out between the looped curtains as the artist entered. "Years have at last! I am glad you have come. Dr. Beatly has just been down from the hospital. He is almost as much interested in the case as your worthy sister, and don't be surprised if you see no carried away by the same craze. He says he thinks there's a slight change in the patient's mental condition."

"Does that mean good?" asked the artist.

His sister answered quickly:

"Of course!"

"Oh, possibly," substituted the cautious physician. "You must not let your wishes dictate your conclusions so largely, Miss Maxey. You will make a very probable disappointment much more keen by so doing. Now, I don't always say what I think, you know, but you are my friends, and I cannot feel like a professional man in this house, and I must tell you that this case is developing some of the most remarkable mental phenomena I ever met with. Whether they are symptoms of a curious brain disease or simply reminiscences of the normal mental condition of the patient, I am unable at present to decide. Dr. Beatly is as much in the dark as myself, and when Dr. Beatly hesitates in a case of this kind it is of little use to inquire further. We have been making some interesting experiments in your absence. And that reminds me that Miss Maxey said you want out for a specific purpose. Have they learned anything? What about the letter they found on the beach yesterday?"

"Learned!" echoed Maxey impatiently as his sister helped him off with his coat, after which it appeared that both his hair and his necktie were in a terrible state. "Learned! What could you expect of such an exasperating affair as this? Is there anything about it like anything else you ever heard of? Does anybody concerned in it do anything that a rational being would expect him to do? Not a bit of it. Maxey would, now, if the thing ever does come out, it will be just what nobody thought it was. But may I know what you have ever got going to know any more about it than we do at present. Our only hope is that the girl will get well enough to tell us, and she won't. I know very well she won't."

"But the letter, Julian," urged his sister. "Surely the letter"——

"The letter!" echoed the exasperated Maxey. "The letter is just like everything else—a mystery. The letter leads just where the footsteps in the snow did —nowhere."

"But even they gave us a hint of the direction the fiend went," said the sister. "Oh, I think they are acting terribly stupid in this affair! If I could get out now, I believe I could do something."

"I believe you could do wonders, of course," returned Maxey a little spitefully, for he was still suffering the keenness of his disappointment. "But I would like to be informed, for instance, what you would do in this case?"

"Do? I would hunt up that Mrs. Hopgood who wrote that letter if I had to question every man, woman and child in the city to do so."

"Of course you would, and so would anybody. That is just what the police did do. Only they were sane enough to look in the directory instead of attempting the catechising. Why, they had a gentleman in conversation with Mrs. Hapgood before the letter had been in their hands an hour."

"Then there is such a person" cried the doctor and Miss Maxey together.

"Oh, yes, there is, but she never heard of or saw the letter before, and, what is more, she is not acquainted with any Annette and has not a single friend or foe to her knowledge missing or to whom such a fiend could be a friend or such an accident possible. And as this Mrs. Hapgood is a very worthy and respectable old lady indeed, it is not easy to say she would lie about such an affair. You see, I couldn't believe it secondhand, and I have been to see her myself, and that's the result."

Maxey flung his gloves moodily on the center table and dropped himself with a disgusted expression into an easy chair, which his sister had wheeled in front of the grate.

"How very strange!" cried Miss Maxey.

"Well, isn't it in perfect keeping with all the rest? I was so exasperated to think it should turn out in that way that I hardly spoke to the old lady civilly. I know her, or rather know of her, too. She's a sort of an amateur artist, and I've met her before. She was quite upset and distressed at the idea that anybody should think of connecting her name with what she called that shocking affair and cried out: 'Oh, they won't put my name in the papers, will they?' I shoved her the letter, and she let me see some specimens of her handwriting. There was no sort of similarity between them. She's a well meaning old soul as ever lived, and I'm sorry I disturbed her. That's all. But it's terribly exasperating."

"But, Julian, dear," pleaded his sister, "there must be some mistake. There must be some other Mrs. Hapgood."

"Oh, without a doubt, dozens of Mrs. Agatha G. Hapgoods! Why, there isn't a Hapgood family in Somerset and never has been, and the old lady assures me that there isn't another Agatha G. to her knowledge in existence."

"At any rate," Ellen insisted, "we have learned one thing beyond a doubt. We know the poor girl's name. In good time we shall know everything. Annette will get well, I am sure of it."

But Maxey did not want to be comforted. He locked unutterable disgust and changed the subject.

"You mentioned that you had been making experiments, Lamar."

"Yes," assented the physician, "we have discovered something. First, the patient has a most remarkable power of visualization, and next she is very susceptible to the influence of music. She was so excited by Miss Maxey's fine singing this afternoon that she fainted."

"The dence!" cried Maxey, beginning to brighten up at once. "Either I don't understand you or I am doing the least in the world, or this means very good news."

"Possibly."

"Possibly! There you go again. You use that evasive word to avoid committing yourself on any subject just as soon as anybody asks you a direct question. Be candid, Lamar. Doesn't this mean that there is a bare chance of singing her back to her senses again?"

"To a certain point in that limited and cautious way I would answer yes."

Maxey became very much excited.

"Why not begin now at once and sing till she gets well?" he cried.

"No, no," said the sister. "That won't do. Both doctors have forbidden any more music at present and for to-night—besides, it's late."

"That is another medical humbug which they think of when they haven't any sublime at hand to fool with," muttered Maxey. "Absolute quiet! Stuff! And what's that other thing with the long name you are she's subject to?"

"Visualization? It means the power of retaining the image of an object after it has disappeared from the actual field of sight so vividly that its exact form is still seen. We all have it in a greater or less degree. In her it is exceedingly strong. Some people who have the faculty in a marked degree can close their eyes and call up at will the face of an absent friend with such distinctness that it is quite like looking at him. At least I have been told so. I must say my own impressions are very faint."

"Now you are getting into my field," said Maxey, who was very much interested. "That is a faculty possessed by some of our best portrait painters, notably Sir Joshua Reynolds. I never heard it called by that name, but it is obvious that the man who can keep a subject before his mental vision sufficiently, other things being equal, will make the best picture.

"Why, I went into the studio of a friend of mine the other day, and I was struck at once by a splendid portrait in pastel that he had just completed. 'How many sittings did you have for that?' I asked him. 'If I tell you and you should repeat it to anybody, I might not get my price for the picture,' he said. 'There were really about 20 sittings, but 18 of them were shams. After the first two I threw away my work when the subject was before me.' Don't you see this is just a case in point? At the first he had sketched the outline of the face, and, as he told me, whenever he wanted to sit down and work at it he had only to retire to the darkness of his mind, and he can really do his best work from that mental copy alone by himself. The presence of the real face distracts his attention and makes him nervous. He has the power. Well, if it is a mental faculty and one girl gets well, she is going to remember all about this time and these events since we found her in a series of pictures, I take it."

Lamar laughed. "Something after the style of a panorama, I suppose? No, Maxey, you reason too loosely. You don't weigh your own words. Remember all about it. Do you know what it is to remember? It is to recall something that we have once known. This poor girl knows nothing of what is transpiring around her and has not since the moment when she lost her senses on the rocks at the sea road. What never is known cannot by any possibility be remembered. No. Whatever may be the future of the patient, this present time will always be a blank to her."

Dr. Lamar spoke very positively.

"Well," sighed Maxey, "if she but recovers enough to explain who she is and how she came where we found her, I shall feel reasonably satisfied. Still I can't see what your visualization amounts to if she cannot carry a picture which she has seen now into the future, whatever be her condition."

"Ah, that is another thing!" said Lamar, "quite another thing from memory. That might be. She might carry the picture, but it would be a picture simply, unassociated with the succession of events. If she were a painter, and though she never knew you, she might paint your face and think it an idea of her own. Not very probable, I admit, but still it might be."

Maxey looked serious.

"What a curious fancy, that!" he mused. "I believe if she does get well, I will teach her the first thing to paint. Heigho, but she's not well yet!"

It had grown quite dark in the sitting room while they had been talking, and early evening of a winter's day had already come. Lamar all at once broke in a realization of the flight of time. He turned the face of his watch to the fire and exclaimed:

"What am I lagging here for? It is nearly 6 o'clock! If I didn't look out, this girl will ruin my business. Let us see how the patient is before we go. No, you need not trouble yourself to get a light, Miss Maxey. I have more eyes than one. Ah, sleeping quietly! That is good, very good. I shouldn't wonder, after all, Maxey—but, ah, who knows, who knows?"

"I will strike a light while you put on your things," said Miss Maxey.

"Oh, no. Don't, pray. I know how comfortable this twilight is. Never spoil it with a light if you can help it. It is the best time of the day. Well, Maxey, good night."

"No," said Maxey suddenly; "I think I will go out with you. I have got something to say, and besides I want to smoke. Since our new arrival that's prohibited here, you know. Ellen, you are tired, and if I were you I would lie down a little while. I shall not be gone very long. I am just going to the corner with the doctor. But really, if you will take my advice, you will lie down and rest yourself."

"Don't worry about me, my dear, good brother. I know my strength and my weakness. I shall not over x myself. It has not hurt me to be up a little nights. I feel as bright as Sunday now."

This statement was not quite in strict accordance with the facts of the case, but Ellen Maxey had scarcely closed the door behind her brother and the handsome doctor when she threw her tired body upon the bed. You listened to their footsteps going down stairs. You hear them becoming fainter and fainter till they are lost altogether. The deep voice of Dr. Lamar is still sounding in your ears. Do not deny the fact that it is exceedingly good music to you. You think of Dr. Lamar, and you wonder.

The great house is so still, and you are so very tired! What was that? Somebody at the door? No. A rat gnawing behind the wainscoting? A bird fluttering in the grate. The wind rattles the panes. There is no other noise to be heard. Even the fire is paling now—is going out entirely. You are sound asleep.

* * * * * * *

"Open the door! Open the door! Ellen! Ellen! Open the door, I say!"

Still the silence of the grave within. Julian Maxey was thoroughly alarmed by this time. Already he had stood in the hall passage and rattling for what seemed an age to him. There was another thing very strange about all this. Strange that Ellen, expecting his return directly, should lock the door on the inside. Stranger still that she should go out and leave the girl alone.

"Ellen! For the last time, Ellen!"

Maxey had a momentary idea of breaking in the door. Then he reproached himself of his bunch of keys. He thrust one of them into the keyhole. He twisted heavily in his excitement. Ah, the key was indeed on the inside. By dint of much rattling he managed to push it from its place and heard it fall forth on ominous clink to the floor. After many ineffectual trials he picked the lock. The obstinate door yielded at last to his touch. He rushed in. It was totally dark everywhere. He felt his way to the sitting room. The only light was the dim glow of the coals in the grate, which told him nothing.

He blindly groped his way to the center table, where he knew there was a matchsafe. In the obscurity he struck against a chair and overturned it. It fell with a startling crash, and in the instant of its concussion, startling as it were, out of the very sound itself, he heard again that low, tremulous utterance that was neither a moan of pain nor a plea for mercy, but akin to both, just as he had heard it borne on the bitter wind from the darkening sea that night on the rocks above the surging of the waves. There was something in the cry that completely unnerved Maxey, as it had always been his terror. Now, intensified by the circumstances, it assumed the potency of fate itself. His hand trembled so he made several futile attempts before he could strike a light. Finally the powder flash fire and he blazed up. Maxey touched a gas jet. In the glare that followed he saw the girl they called Annette sitting, perfectly white, upon the edge of the little bed in the alcove room, wringing her hands in the old nervous fashion, her fearful white face turned toward him, her dark eyes regarding him with dread.

But it was not this that chilled him to the heart, that made the color fade from his lips till they were ashen. It was the spectacle of his sister, Ellen Maxey, thrown down across her bed, a silk handkerchief twisted about her neck and her fingers clasping the ends in desperate energy. Her face was black, and when he spoke to her she did not move. His voice seemed to awake an echo in the place.

Nothing else but the wind rattling the panes, and faintly the grinding of the ice against the stones as the tide flowed to the sea.

CHAPTER V.
THE BURNED PAPER.

For once the genial Lamar lost his composure.

"For God's sake, how did it happen?" In a hollow voice Maxey made the reply:

"They were alone."

The physician was speechless. Maxey thought him horrified. On the contrary, he was amazed. When he found his voice again, there was but a single word in his vocabulary equal to the situation, and he used it.

"Impossible!"

Maxey did not need him, but went on in a hopeless tone:

"It was my fault, of course, entirely my fault. I allowed myself to be led by her girlish whim when I ought to have looked the matter squarely in the face and asserted my own will. I ought to have taken your advice, Lamar. I knew it—you foretold it all. You warned"——

Dr. Lamar interrupted him.

"Not of any such occurrence as this, Maxey. Never. Do you mean to tell me that you think the patient tightened that handkerchief around your sister's throat?"

"I tell you," said Maxey, "I left them alone—absolutely alone. When I came back the door was locked."

"On the inside?"

"On the inside."

Lamar swept a bewildered glance about the apartment, stared at the pale face on the bed in the alcove room, at the swollen features behind the torn drapery, at the professionally anxious face of the nurse, who was moving about between the two. He looked at the doors, at the windows, at the chimney pieces. He stepped from [illegible] where he had been talking with [illegible] to the center table and began very carefully to pick up his surgeon's case and put back into the case from which he had lately removed them. When he had completed this task, he tossed the key with a sudden snap, and turning to the artist with the positive energy of a man who has scrupulously made up his mind said:

"Maxey, you are crazy!"

His emphatic manner roused Coe young man from his stupor. From the moment when he heard the key fall from its place on the inside of the door as he broke in, everything had seemed forced to him like the illogical, haphazard happenings of a dream. If he had acted mechanically, as one in the emergency, he had done so mechanically, in a sort of instinctive fashion, without reflection. After exertion and nervous fear and the immediate excitement was over he found about in a daze. The physician's sharp tone made him start. He lifted his eyes from the floor, unclasped his hands, which had been locked behind his back, and passed his palm over his throbbing forehead.

"I believe you are more than half right," he murmured. "The blow was so sudden and unexpected that it crushed me. Lamar, you have always been the best of friends. We were boys together. I know you wouldn't deceive me about a matter of this kind. Tell me the truth at once. You have grave fears for Ellen"——

"No, I haven't," returned Lamar quickly. "I have no fears at all. She will be herself again with proper care in three days. Now, I will confess that there has been no danger. It was a terribly narrow escape, a terribly narrow escape."

"Escape from what, from whom? You said just now that I was crazy, Lamar, because I suppose what I have seemed to me the only possible suspicion a man could entertain. I come home, find Ellen alone, and I infer that the most monstrous possible creature had indeed fulfilled her prediction and brought terrible trouble upon us. And now you say"——

"Impossible," the physician interposed positively.

"Annette did not do it?"

"Annette could not have done it."

Maxey looked relieved. He glanced around the room with an air of suspicion and excitement. Then with characteristic impulsiveness he seized his hat and coat.

Lamar, who had been watching him with a look of grave concern in his hand, some features, laid his hand gently on his shoulder.

"What are you going to do?"

"Do? I am going to the police. I am going to have this matter investigated at once."

He stopped short, amazed by the expression which he saw in the physician's face.

"No, Julian Maxey, not if I can prevent it."

His serious, earnest gravity, the utter solemnity of Dr. Lamar's speech and manner, frightened the artist.

"What is it, Lamar? For heaven's sake, what are you thinking about?"

"I cannot tell you here. Let me see you in private."

A nervous trembling took Maxey all at once. He did not know why. He led the way to the front of the house. There was a dim light in the parlor. Maxey did not turn it up. He sat down close beside the physician on a sofa. Lamar did not seem to see his way clearly to what he wanted to say, and after a moment's silence Maxey spoke up excitedly:

"There's something on your mind, Lamar. I know it. There is something which you know and I don't know, so serious that you hesitate to tell me of it."

"No," said Lamar gravely. "I know nothing which you do not know—much less, in fact, than you ought to know. I only have waited to say what I have to say before you act. You have not told me everything—"

"Good heavens, how am I to tell you everything? We must question Ellen."

"I had rather not question Ellen."

Maxey was silent from astonishment. His sister seemed to awake an echo in the place.

"Why dear boy," said the physician in a low and not wholly steady voice, "can you say your sister has been entirely happy of late?"

"I am quite sure she has not!" cried Maxey impetuously.

"Do you know what troubled her?"

Maxey did not answer, but he became scarlet to the roots of his hair. The light was dim, but the change in the artist's manner did not escape the observant physician. Dr. Lamar became slightly embarrassed.

"I beg your pardon if in my anxiety for your welfare I have touched on a family matter."

"It is nothing to be ashamed of," blurted out Maxey, "but it is her own secret, and I have no right to mention it. She has never whispered a word to me. But I am not blind."

"Don't betray her, I beg of you," said the physician earnestly, "but when she recovers, if you have any power to remove the cause of her unhappiness, do so. I say this in all earnestness. She must not be allowed to mourn."

Maxey suddenly arose. For the first time the nature of his friend's suspicion dawned upon him.

"You believe this was a sister's own act?" he exclaimed in an unnaturally calm voice.

"I believe the handkerchief about her neck. I noticed it there this afternoon."

"She did!" cried Maxey, losing his calmness all at once. "She did, but don't you flatter yourself, Lamar, that the unhappiness I spoke of was of sufficient strength to induce the poor girl to take her own life. Not a bit of it, sir. Not in the least! Proposterous! It would have urged her rather to live. The idea! Why, there isn't a naturally more cheerful and contented person alive than my sister Ellen. Kill herself! I guess not! One of these days, Lamar, you'll see what a fool you've made of yourself in this your ground for believing Annette is capable! Enstrec, if I am crazy, you're a raving maniac."

The artist was pacing the floor excitedly and spoke as if he was addressing a multitude.

"Don't talk so loud," said Lamar, a little impatiently. "I am the last man in the world to wish to believe this theory. You know I would never mention it to any other than yourself. Nothing but a sense of duty and personal friendship would induce me to speak of it now. If it is true, it is necessary that you should be warned. If it is not true, you will forgive me for speaking of it. You believe, Julian Maxey, that Annette pulled the ends of the handkerchief your sister wore. Did the imbecile also lock the door?"

Maxey stopped as abruptly in his walk as if he had suddenly encountered a wall. There was complete silence for a full a minute, and then the artist spoke in a deferential tone.

"I am acting like a lunatic," he said quickly. "I have too little system. I envy those who have self-possession and ignore the other half. There is a significance in that locked door, quite other perhaps than I had imagined. We can't jumped to a conclusion. We undoubtedly are both wrong. Lamar, I am going to search the house. Will you come too?"

His manner was so much more calm that Dr. Lamar felt relieved of a great responsibility.

"You have recovered yourself, Maxey," he said. "That's how you should again at the first now turn in affairs."

Maxey accepted the rebuke quietly.

"You are right, Lamar. I do look my head too easily. But I have recovered more than my knowledge. I am afraid we have lost very valuable time."

Dr. Lamar arose with a new light in his eyes.

"Then you think"——

"That somebody may have been here in my absence."

This seemed a positively luminous idea to the physician. Bad as the alternative was, under the circumstances both men would be glad to accept it.

Nevertheless Lamar said doubtingly: "Do you suspect anybody?"

"No."

"Is there any possible motive?"

"To kill my sister! In God's name, how could there be?"

"What enemies have you?"

"None, I think, God!"

Lamar sighed. After all, was there much plausibility in the artist's suggestion? Had it once so turned upon his friend with a now question:

"Maxey, are you sure you have not been robbed?"

Maxey started.

It was thinking of that very thing myself. I have not missed anything, but I have been very much excited, and I cannot be sure. Lamar, I see it all. We went out, and the thief who had been watching his chance crept in. All that he had to do was to wait while we were looking for valuables he alarmed Ellen, who was asleep on the bed. She thought perhaps it was myself returning and called to him. To save himself he sprang upon her and choked her. When she became motionless he ran and locked the door, perhaps to make sure of not being interrupted, or, better still, because he heard me coming and was afraid. He could not conceive himself in one of the rooms, perhaps in the very place where we are standing. He waited till he heard me come in or till a suitable opportunity presented itself, crept through the two rooms to the door and got away unnoticed."

"Well done, Maxey!" cried Lamar, with something approaching enthusiasm. "You have devised at last a plausible theory."

He stopped abruptly, with an expression of doubt. His eyes rested on the floor, which closed immediately between the front parlor and the outer corridor.

"The obvious objection to your theory is that the supposed thief might have escaped through this door by simply turning the key in the lock. It was locked on the inside, was it not?"

"It was and is and will remain so until I get the leisure to bring a locksmith here to fix it. I tested the key off in the lock the other day and nothing will dislodge the stump."

Nevertheless Maxey tried the door. It was scarcely fast.

This was the only means of getting into the outer hall, except by the door which led from the little vestibule belonging to the suit, a passageway extending the width of Miss Maxey's sleeping chamber and connecting the large rooms with the back parlor. Maxey naturally saw no objection to his theory so far. Out of this private hall were three doors besides the outer door—one opening at one end into the sitting room, another at the other extremity into the rear parlor, and the third at the back into Miss Maxey's chamber. It would have been easy for the intruder, with this ample provision for his purpose, to have escaped observation until a suitable opportunity presented for his safe escape from the suit.

Maxey began his search of the premises by looking under a sofa and behind a bookcase. From this thorough beginning he went on in a most careful and methodical manner, peeping into closets, opening drawers to ascertain whether their contents had been disturbed and leaving no spot unvisited, the position of no carelessly thrown aside article unexplored. The search was fruitless. Not an atom of evidence to substantiate the theory advanced by Maxey could be discovered. Both men were disappointed and thoughtful when the tour of investigation was finished.

They stood at last before the grate in the room, with the nurse and the two sufferers, warming their hands. Once in a while Maxey's troubled gaze sought Dr. Lamar's face, but the physician's glance was downward and his brow contracted.

Lamar tapped his foot moodily against the fender and seemed wrapped in a brown study. Maxey longed for some word of encouragement or comfort from his friend, the physician. He had the greatest confidence in Dr. Lamar's carefully considered opinions, but this time the physician did not seem to have any opinion to offer.

Suddenly Lamar's attention was caught by something on the hearthstone. He stooped and picked it up.

"Have you been burning paper, Maxey?"

"No," returned Maxey quickly. "I have not."

"What is that?"

Maxey took from his hand the corner of a newspaper with a charred edge. He scrutinized it suspicion. Ordinarily he would have [illegible] such an object made contemptible [illegible] in the present emergency he was much interested. He pinched a pin if Lamar had handed it to him.

"Have you burned any paper in this grate, Mrs. Davies?" he asked of the nurse. "Think before you speak. It may be a very important matter."

"I have not had any paper in my hand since I have been here. That's easily settled."

"There has been a very large piece of paper burned here," said Lamar in a low voice. "See there, and there! The black ashes are all about."

The physician stamped his foot near the grate, and the little breath of air caused by the concussion scattered a rustle of light burned paper on the floor.

"It is the newspaper containing the story of our finding Annette," exclaimed the artist, with growing suspicion, "a paper which I was very anxious to keep, and which Ellen was quite as particular about. I left it here on the table. What do you make of it, Lamar? What would you do?"

"What is that?"

"I confess I am in the dark. But I am very certain you want to save that scrap of paper and to keep the event in mind. If not now, the time may come when it will supply a most important evidence. And now, I would suggest that you question the people in the house."

Maxey proceeded at once to act upon the suggestion. The physician, after stopping a moment to examine his patient, got on his feet and followed him. The occupants of the floor below had heard nothing and seen nothing, but Maxey persisted with the determination of despair. He found the janitor at the foot of the stairs.

"My good man," he said to him, "do you recall seeing me go out with my friend, the doctor, here, just after dark?"

"I do, sir, very well, sir."

"It is very important that you should not give a hasty answer to the question I am going to ask you—very important, for a failure in your recollection may get us all into trouble."

"I hope Mr. Maxey, there is nothing serious in the matter."

"Our hopes are vain then. There is something very serious indeed. Did you see anybody about the hall after my departure?"

"No, sir."

"You are sure?"

"I am, because, you see, I was going down cellar at the time to look after the furnaces, and I staid below there for an hour. No sir, I am sorry I can't help you, but I haven't seen anybody. That's the fact of it, sir. I'd [illegible]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

The Light of Love.

[FOR THE MESSAGE, BY MRS. E. M. STANTON.]

It was morning in my life-time,
And the world seemed, oh, so fair
There were bird-songs for my music,
There was fragrance in the air.
Dew and sunshine, breeze and blossom
Made this life so bright and gay,
That God's love, though all around me,
Shone unnoticed on my way.

It was twilight in my life-time,
Hushed was every morning song,
And the Nightingale's sad music
Caused sad memories to throng
Round the slumbering altar fires
I had kindled hours ago,
And the shadows of past failures
Flitted hither, to and fro.

Like a jaded, silver crescent
Mourning evening's early sky,
Seemed God's love to me that twilight;
But I felt his love was nigh.

It was midnight in my life-time,
And I sat with head bent low.
All was silent, save the tree-tops
And the dashing waves below;
And the sighing in the branches,
And the sobbing on the shore,
Like the Raven in his mutterings,
Answered only:—"Never more"

When I raised my eyes to Heaven,
Then God's love beamed on my sight,
Like the glorious, full-orbed planet
That, resplendent, makes the night.
And it flooded, with its mercy,
Every recess of my heart,
And the peace that settled o'er me,
From my life will ne'er depart.

There's a Valley, whose deep shadows
Are far deeper than midnight;
And the River, bowing through it
Never knows a ray of light.
But, when we have passed its portals,
And have stemmed the river's tide,
And our bark has cast its anchor
Over on the other side;—
Then God's love will burst upon us
Like the sun in all its strength;
Lighting up the beauteous city
In its breadth, and in its length.

Crookston, Minn., May 28, 1894.

Valuable Waste.

"Refiners of nitrate of silver for the use of photographers," said one of the profession, "have agents travelling continually about the country collecting the waste clippings of sensitized paper that accumulate in every photograph gallery. They buy all they can find and pay for it in new nitrate, allowing the photographer a good named price for his waste. The waste is shipped to the refiners, where the nitrate in the paper is separated from it by chemical processes and prepared for market again. This re-refined nitrate is as good as it was originally and is sold for just as much. The refiners, of course, make a big profit out of the waste, and the photographer is able to get a good supply of material for the scraps that would otherwise be of no use to him.

"When one thinks of the great number of photograph galleries and studios in the country and the fact that the waste paper of them all is closely gathered by the refiners at a price that will average $1 a pound, he may get some idea of the proportions of a business that is utterly unknown outside of the persons directly interested. Not only the scraps of silver sensitized paper, but those of the paper treated with solutions of gold are eagerly sought by the refiners, and the photographer is always very glad to exchange his accumulation of, to him, worthless waste for a neat stock of valuable nitrate."—New York Sun.

The Clever Brahman.

Speaking of the great power the Brahmans in India possess in localising thought, Purushotum Aor Telang said the other day: "We would consider a game of chess as played in this country more child's play. An ordinary Brahman chess player could carry on three or four games at a time without inconvenience. The usual game played by the Brahmans consists in checkmating with one pawn, designated when the play begins. I have seen a man perform a long problem in multiplication and division, at the same time noting the various sounds and discussions going on about him in the room. I have seen a man compose a triplo acrostic in Sanskrit in a given meter, at the same time having three well versed men trying to overthrow him in his argument on religion."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Got Even With the Preacher.

A lawyer of this city tells a story of how he got even with a preacher. It was on the occasion of his second marriage. After concluding the ceremony the minister took advantage of the privilege accorded him by custom of kissing the bride. While so engaged the groom suddenly imprinted a resounding kiss on the cheek of the minister's wife, who was standing immediately behind the wedding party.

The lady was indignant, and the minister asked for an explanation. Coolly enough and in a few words, the groom expressed the opinion that it was a poor rule that would not work both ways and that he had as much right to kiss the preacher's wife as the former had to kiss the bride.—Louisville Post.

Her Scheme Failed.

The latest instance of crime bringing its own punishment comes, on the authority of Dr. Leonard Guthrie, from Italy. An Italian woman had a husband, and the husband had the dropsy. But the dropsy did not work quickly enough. The woman put a toad into her husband's wine to poison him. But the poison which the toad's skin secretes has an active principle—phrynin —which much resembles digitalis, which is the best possible remedy for dropsy pending on heart disease. So, instead of killing her husband, she restored him to health.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Detective—Yes, I've got the description of the missing jewelry written down all right. Now, how much money did the fellows take?

Mr. Billus—I don't know exactly Maria, my dear, how much money was there in my pockets last night!—Chicago Tribune.

Wholesome Gingerbread.

Ginger bread is a most wholesome cake for children and indeed for everybody who likes it. It is baked in a flat tin and is made with half a pound molasses, 2 ounces butter, 3 ounces coarse brown sugar, three-fourths a pound flour, half an ounce ground ginger, an egg, a gill milk, half a teaspoonful baking powder, if liked a little allspice and cinnamon. Mix all the dry ingredients together, melt the butter and molasses together, add the milk; let it be warm, but not hot. Beat the egg, mix with the dry ingredients, then make into a smooth dough with the warm molasses and milk. Well grease the tin, and when partly baked brush over with egg or milk. This will glaze the top. To be cut into squares for serving.

In the Kitchen.

Mrs. Bonce tells the readers of Good Housekeeping that the wood of the kitchen doors and moldings should be painted to match the wainscot. As for floor coverings, there are conflicting opinions. Some housekeepers declare that the floors should be of spruce or pine, and if well laid can be weekly scrubbed and kept spotless without being covered. Others assert that a linoleum cover is desirable, while the looms woman invariably believes that a good oilcloth is all that is required for the room where the culinary art is pursued. Any of the three is suitable; all are in good taste and will be found satisfactory, provided the sink, washtubs and rangs have before them an oilcloth mat for constant usage to preserve the floor in those exposed portions. For the windows a linen shade is all that is required, but that should be kept in good working order.

A Nine-year-old Giant.

Gurley, in the Point Rock Valley, north Alabama, has a prodigy in the shape of a 9-year-old white child. Her name is Lizzie Beals, and her parents are among the best people in Jackson county. She weighs 192 pounds and is possessed of enormous strength. She can with the greatest ease lift and carry off an navvi weighing 226 pounds and can carry off a big man who could scarcely lift her from the ground. Her hair is very long, and she has regular, beautiful features.—Birmingham (Ala.) Letter.

Found His Wine Into the Sewer.

William Greene of Moorlands, Bickley, Kent, England, was generous, rich strong, a Christian man with a wide influence, a beautiful family—and a cellar full of rare wines. God spoke to him one day, and he was troubled about his wine and banished it from his board, and there it lay in the cobwebs and mast of the cellar under safe lock and key. And day after day God said to him, "What have you done with your wine?" And he answered once, "I have locked it fast and safe in the cellar, and so it shall be to the end."

"What end?" said the voice.

"Aye, what end? I am an old man. I shall die some day, and what will become of my wine?" And this is the gospel of wine cellars according to William Greene. Satan said, "Sell it," and then the voice said, "To whom?" "Or give it to a hospital, and be a benefactor, and get your name in the paper," and the voice said, "Wine is a mocker." "Or get the dealer to buy it back. The price is a little fortune."

But the voice said: "It is yours, and your word is the infinite law for that wine. Wherever it goes it will carry a message from you." "Give the money away," and the voice said: "No blessing of money can commute for the peril or woe of wine. No matter how wisely or kindly your plan or how how long you postpone the denonement, at last like a serpent it biteth and like an adder it stings."

And this is the way William Greene met the question: He emptied the cellar at Highgate and into the sewer broke 2,500 bottles of wine.—Exchange.

Rabbit Skin Jelly.

According to Figaro, a new and successful industry has been discovered in the selling of rabbit skins to confectioners for the making of calf's foot jelly. The hair is taken off and used for stuffing of conches, manufacture of hats, etc.; then the skin is subjected to certain processes until the oils are extracted. It is said that over 5,000,000 skins are annually imported into England from Melbourne alone.

A Woman and a Clock.

A woman who would spring on an unsuspecting husband such a ghostly looking object as an illuminated clock deserves to lose it, as a Biddeford woman did. The husband awoke in the night and saw what he took for a bullseye lantern staring him in the face. He made a rush for the supposed burglar, and the clock is no more.— Lewiston Journal.

Boy Character.

It is the greatest delusion in the world for a boy to get the idea that his life is of no consequence, and that the character of it will not be noticed. A manly, truthful boy will shine like a star in any community. A boy may possess as much of noble character as a man. He may so speak and so live the truth that there shall be no discount on his word. And there are such noble Christian boys, and wider and deeper than they are apt to think is their influence. They are the king boys among their fellows, having an immense influence for good and loved and respected because of the simplicity of living the truth.

Dear boys, do be truthful. Keep your word as absolutely sacred. Keep your appointments at the house of God. Be known for your fidelity to the interests of the church and Sunday school. Be true to every friendship. Help others to be and do good.—Child's Paper.

How to Clean Fluff.

A grease spot may be removed from plush if a little turpentine be poured on the place and rubbed dry with soft flannel. Brush the pile of the plush upand hang in the open air. A child's plush coat may be cleaned by using a teaspoonful of borax in a quart of water, applied with a soft sponge.

GRAFTING BY WHOLESALE.

Record Breaking Operation Performed by a Kansas City Surgeon.

Local surgeons discussed with much interest yesterday the account which was telegraphed from Chicago to The Times of the skin grafting operation being performed upon Mrs. W. W. Blake at the Mercy hospital. The dispatch stated that 72 square inches of cuticle had been taken from Mr. Blake's body and successfully grafted upon his wife's arms, and added that this was the largest quantity of skin ever sacrificed by one person for the benefit of another.

The latter statement is possibly correct, but a similar operation of much greater difficulty and magnitude has just been performed at the Missouri Pacific hospital in this city by Dr. George Hamel. The patient is a man named McCarthy, who was injured recently in a railway accident, and Dr. Hamel found it necessary to remove no less than 258 square inches of skin from various parts of the man's body and graft it upon his injured legs. Each piece of skin was about three inches long and from one to two inches wide. The operation has been successful in every respect, and although McCarthy is still in the hospital he is declared there by other injuries than to his legs. The quantity of skin used in this case is said to be much greater than any other known to surgical records.

McCarthy has been visited by many physicians, and his case has excited much interest. He will be discharged from the hospital within a few days.—Kansas City Times.

How to Prevent the Rusting of Screws.

Before using dip them in melted tallow or raw linseed oil. This will also prepare them to be drawn easily.

When you start out on a journey you will get the best service, the greatest luxury, the most complete comfort if your ticket reads via the North-Western Line. For full information as to through rates and routes and for sleeping car berths, call on your home agent, and for map folder free. Address T. W. Teasdale, G. P. A., C. St. P. M. & O. R'y, St'Paul. [46-tf]

Two dollars per dozen for cabinet photos is within the reach of every one who knows and cares for the very best work. CHAFIN.

Never Never Forget.

E very morning in the year, on arrival of Great Northern and Northern Pacific trains from the West, the Badger state Express via the North-Western Line leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 arriving Milwaukee 8:00 p. m.; Chicago 9:35 p. m. It has Superb Parlor car and is the only day train every day in the year between these cities. [46-tf]

Grasp This and Hold It.

The North-Western Limited to Chicago is the North-Western Line's the finest equipped train out of Minneapolis and St. Paul. It has Pullman and Wagner Private Compartment and 16 section sleepers and Buffet-Smoking Library coaches and leaves Minneapolis, daily 7:30 p. m.; St. Paul 8:10 p. m.; arriving Milwaukee 7:50 n. m.; Chicago 9:30 n. m. [46-tf]

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and to many instances there is no time to hear the excruciating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Hallows Pain Paralyzer is the best and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 50c, it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all colics and cramps. Nothing cures colic in horses so quick as Hallor's Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance of a young girl, now 15 years of age, but for whose timely action would probably have had but the entire use of her right side. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and shamden her mails as soon. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance; and our opinion but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We refer to Dr. Miles' Nervine. She received no less than eight bottles of the latter, and began she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she took only three bottles of Nervine she now tackles 98 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and smiles with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no wonder we feel grateful to the makers of Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her health.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. H. E. Bloom, Bloomington, Ill.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee first bottle by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

Manifold Disorders

Are occasioned by an impure and impoverished condition of the blood. Slight impurities, if not corrected, develop into serious maladies, such as

SCROFULA, ECZEMA, RHEUMATISM

or other troublesome diseases. No cure than is equally as speedy and reliable as purely vegetable. Such a remedy is S. S. S. It removes all impurities from the blood, and thoroughly cleanses the system. Thousands of cases of the worst forms of blood diseases have been Cured by S. S. S.

Send for our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases, mailed free to any address

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE——

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block

They're Daisies

That's what they are. Spring is almost here, and so are our dalsy suits. Make it a point to be here, too, and make yourself look springy, spruce and stylish in one of our

SPRING SUITS.

Nature soon will be freshening up everything. A well-balanced man is nature's running mate, and freshens up, too. To freshen up properly come and look at our stock; it's a regular exposition of spring styles in fabric, cut, make and finish. If you look well at our stock, you will look well yourself, for to look is to buy the correct thing. We have a new and freshine of just the thing for spring winds and rains.

Mackintoshes

THE BOSTON

One Price Clothing House;

Mossetin & Linnell Proprietors.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance, or any Good Security on Long Time and Reasonable Interest. Prompt attention to Collections in all parts of the United and Canada. Legal and Insurance managers wanted. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS

SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.,

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office,

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTO

Iwork in my line promptly and ifully performed.

DR. PEIXOTO'S

FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. NEVER FAILS.
A new combined safe and reliable female remedy. Prepared from Pennyroyal, Tansy, Apiol and Rue. Superior to all others. Ladies especially appreciate them. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, $1 per box. Pamphlet free. Address PEIXOTO MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

They Wear Well

Because They Have the "Stuff" in Them.

They are made of good timber and done dry. We refer, of course, to the RUSHFORD WAGONS. They run so light you won't mind the bad roads. Call and see them, and also our well selected line of Buggies and Harness, Plows, and in fact everything in the implement line that thus merit.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.,

Broadway and Robert St., Crookston.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

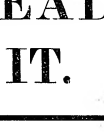
Is Now on deck at the Old Stand on Second Street, with a Full Line of

PAINTS OILS GLASS AND WALL PAPER

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

A NEW Serial NOW RUNNING IN THE JOURNAL.



READ IT.

Polk County Journal.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any citizen of Polk County. If subscription of Polk County 25 cents must be added for postage, if not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Populist County Convention, June 30th, at Crookston.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republicnn State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

THE ST. PAUL Globe editorially advocates protection—for birds.

THE supreme court has declared constitutional the law passed by the last legislature requiring all passenger trains to stop when running through county seats. The law was passed in the interest of a few small villages.

DR. DR. HOLSTON desires to go to congress to realize things in that body. As a regulator he would be a howling success, and it would be simply cruelty to animals for his populist brethren to refuse him such a little thing as that!

HON. HENRY BURKHARDT, who is in the field for state treasurer is one of the leading aspirants for the position—if in fact he is not the leading one. He is well-known all over the state and a man eminently qualified for the position. The JOURNAL would be glad to see Burkhardt nominated.

CONVENIENCE men, crooks, thieves, bunco men, gamblers, pickpockets and other light-fingered gentry are flocking into St. Paul in anticipation of being allowed to do business under the democratic administration. The papers are filled with accounts of people being robbed in some form or other every day.

THE democrats are doing all in their power to legislate in the interest of England, but they are too slow even for Johnny Bull as witness the following dispatch from London:

LONDON, May 28.—The Standard this morning says: Craven & Craven, worsted spinners, of Bradford, have failed, with liabilities amounting to £200,000. Their assets are unknown. Several others are expected in the trade of the town has been half-ruined by the McKinley bill and the delay in arranging a new American tariff.

MEMORIAL Day is not a day for games and glorious amusements. It has a higher and a holier purpose —the remembrance of our soldier dead who gave their lives for their country on many a battle-field. Nor is the habit some have of decorating the graves of their dead, other than soldiers, in keeping with the object of the day. All such should be attended to before the performance of the ceremonies to which the day is dedicated and for which it was set apart by government. The habit of making it a day of amusement is reprehensible and unworthy true American people.

EX-COUNTY TREASURER DART, of Meeker county, who was suspended from office by Governor Nelson on account of irregularities in his office, has made three attempts to have himself reinstated by the courts, but without success. Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court, in an opinion lately rendered, holds that the governor acted within his jurisdiction in removing Dart, and that gentleman will have to abdicate his position. He has one resource left and that is to apply to the United States supreme court direct: this he will hardly do. This is a case where the state executive steps in and saves the people from the corruption of their county officers. This man Dart had been allowing his friends to use the county funds, the public examiner found the discrepancy in his accounts and reported the matter to the governor, who suspended the treasurer, after an ineffectual attempt to have the matter settled. The county commissioners reinstated the treasurer, who then took the matter into the court, and the governor has been three times sustained.

THE lateness of the date for holding the republican congressional convention for this district—September 11th—does not seem to be in line with republican policy in the past. The other parties will have their candidates in the field long before that time—the populists almost two months—and will have a vigorous campaign started and a good deal of work done before the republicans get their candidate in the field. It will take a week or ten days after the convention to arrange a plan for the campaign and this will leave the nominee about two days for each county, provided he can stay in the field continuously—which is an impossibility. The seventh district is large and hard to cover and much work is needed on the republican side. Had the convention been held early, much work could have been done in the way of getting the records, the ability and qualifications of the different nominees before the people previous to the commencement of the actual campaign. The holding of a late convention conveys an idea of timidity and weakness, which belies the feelings of the republicans of the seventh district.

Only a few of the members of the congressional committee attended the meeting which fixed the date, and this may have had something to do with the unusual time fixed upon for holding the convention.

THE ST. Paul Globe, which is generally supposed to be good democratic authority, says that the democratic congress has gone over to the silver trust. During the last campaign they used to urge the people to vote the democratic ticket on the grounds that the democrats oppose all trusts.

SENATOR LOMMEN informs the JOURNAL in confidence that S. M. Owen will be the next governor of Minnesota and he wants to bet the cigars on it. The senator never made a wiser political guess than that in his life.

Poetry of the Campaign.

Said a young man of Princeton named Dunn,
I'm not in this contest for fun.
See the pine barons' wealth
Are we torn to our health?
If not, let us get out and run."

The head of the ticket is Knute,
The chieftain sent out to locate,
But no one is kicking
For he's known Viking,
His own hero he's not forced to irate.
—Minneapolis Journal.

There is also a man named McGuire,
Who on paid into wages made of wire.
His record's the strongest,
His head is the longest,
And the audience's chair he'll acquire.

Marais Items.

Rain needed badly here. The neighborhood has only had a little of those big rains.

Mrs. Robert Bain and family of Fisher have been visiting friends and relatives the past week.

Mr. Richard White went to the Queen City on Thursday to transact business.

Some one hundred and forty or fifty persons attended the Memorial Day exercises at the Marais church, given by the teachers and pupils of the Marais, Cummings and Mallory schools. Due respect was paid to the grave of the only soldier buried there—Joseph Robertson. Prof. R. R. Rowland had the church nicely decorated with flags, flowers and bunting.

Mrs. R. E. White and Mrs. D. Morrow were the guests of Mrs. Wm. Rogers Friday.

Rev. Petitt preached his first sermon Sunday last to a large congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hannum are rejoicing over a young daughter which appeared at their home Wednesday.

Miss Lena Ellingson, who died last Friday in Grand Forks, of consumption, was buried Sunday in the Marais cemetery.

John and James Morrow, Harry McKinnon and some other young men left for Thief River Falls to look up land.

MARAIS PENCILER.

THE REVIEW TABLE.

Our naval policy is one of the leading topics treated editorially in the Review of Reviews for June. In the same connection, projects of ship canal building in relation to sea-board defense are discussed. Other matters of general interest receiving comment in the "Progress of the World" department this month are: the Senate's tariff muddle, the Great Northern Railway strike and arbitration, the coal miners' strike, the rationale of Coxeyism, the New York Constitutional Convention, the last Friday in May temperance movement and news from the college world. English politics and social movements receive due attention also in this department of the magazine.

POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, JUNE 7, 1894

DISTRICT COURT.

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

themselves with the result of a disagreement.

MONDAY.

The first case called was that of School District No. 103, Polk county, vs. Joseph Lejambe. A jury was called. The counsels not appearing promptly on time the case was passed at the foot of the calendar. Afterwards the counsels appeared and agreed that the case should be continued to the next term.

The case of Sarah Swift vs. H. B. Withers was next in order. Cause for plaintiff not appearing, the case, at request of defendant's counsel, was dismissed. Counsel for plaintiff, after appearing in the court room and finding his case dismissed gave his excuses for being behind time and moved that the case be reinstated. The court allowed him to serve papers on defendant's counsel.

In the case of S. C. Bagley vs. John T. Johnson being on motion by respondent, judgment was allowed to be entered for defendant; for return of property or the value thereof.

In the case of John D. McKinnon vs. Girard Falen et al, judgment was entered for plaintiff.

The case of Olga Butz vs. Martin Butz was next considered. This is an action for divorce. H. Steenerson counsel for plaintiff and R. J. Montague counsel for defendant. Plaintiff's counsel moved for attorney's fees and alimony for her support pending this action. Motion was denied. The case was set for trial for the first Monday in July at chambers.

The first order of business in the afternoon was the hearing of the counsel in the Swift-Withers case. The court allowed the case to be reinstated, and upon defendant's motion for continuance the case was continued until the December term.

The J. R. McKinnon case, which was disposed of in the morning in a similar manner, owing to the non appearance of counsel for defense, was reinstated and will be tried by the court at chambers at the adjourned term.

The case of Larson Bros. vs. Hans Morberg, appeal from justice court, was placed on calendar, and judgment of lower court for plaintiff was affirmed. The action is brought to collect a store account from defendant.

TUESDAY.

James Warring was brought before the court and entered his plea through his attorney, Mr. Beelken, of guilty.

A jury was then called in the case of Nels Olson vs. Andy Grundyson. Mr. Steenerson appearing for plaintiff and A. R. Holston appearing as counsel for defendant. This action is brought by plaintiff to recover damages alleged to have been caused by bad treatment and insufficient food while a prisoner in the county jail. The plaintiff was sent to the Polk county jail from Norman county on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He was in jail here from March 18th, 1893 until Nov. 8th, 1893. Plaintiff complains that the food was insufficient and of inferior quality for a man to live on. That he lost in flesh during the twenty-five pounds. According to his own testimony it would appear that the sheriff did not keep even a second-class hotel. However the evidence on the part of the defense tended very strongly to show that the sheriff fed his boarders very well indeed. In fact the deposition of Jerry Herrick, part of which was read, would indicate that the food was good and of sufficient quantity and as good as $3.50 a board at most. Herrick was in the same cell with Olson and testified as to the personal habits and conduct of Olson during his stay in jail. This would have been damaging to plaintiff's case but was ruled out by the court. The case was given the jury about 4:30 p. m., and in about ten minutes they returned a verdict in favor of the defendant.

After disposing of the Olson-Grundyson case, a jury was called in the case of Nettie Johnson vs. Andy Grundyson; Montague & Bucklen attorneys for plaintiff, and H. Steenerson for defendant. This was an action in replevin. Steenerson Bros. had an old judgment against Bert Johnson, husband of plaintiff. Mrs. Johnson, it is claimed, owned a black trotting mare named "Maud J." This mare was entered in the races here last season, in charge of Thomas Hill. Mr. Johnson drove her in one race, and filled with pride over the fact that the mare won some premiums, he claimed that she belonged to him. Eli Steenerson found the mare attached and taken from those who had charge of her. The plaintiff replevined her, and brought suit in the last term of court to determine who is the owner. The jury decided that Mrs. Johnson was the owner of the mare and was entitled to the possession thereof. A motion for a new trial was made and granted. The testimony was about the same as given at the first trial. Mr. Johnson gave as his reason for telling it was his horse, that he was "ashamed to stand in the crowd and tell them it was my woman's horse."

The jury was out but a short time and brought in a verdict to the effect that the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the mare.

The case of Rasmus Johnson vs. Tobias Skjerping and Ole Larson was called next. This is an action to recover on two promissory notes one for $200 and the other for $43. The defendant gave his notes, and Larson signed as security. The defense set up is that usury was charged over and above the regular ten per cent. The jury thought the charge of usury well taken, and gave a verdict for defendants.

The grand jury was dismissed yesterday—but not discharged. It is thought that the judge suspected that gambling would be resumed at East Grand Forks as soon as the grand jury was discharged—and he didn't discharge them—and can call them together at any time. The judge is clearly no sport.

CARLISLE DENIES.

No Truth In the Statement That Another Bond Issue Is Contemplated.

CONDITIONS DO NOT REQUIRE IT.

Senators Agree on a Time to Vote on Amendments to Sugar Schedule.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—It can be stated on the highest authority that the published statements that another bond issue is in contemplation are absolutely without foundation. Mr. Carlisle, when questioned in regard to the matter, stated that the subject of another bond issue had not been mentioned in cabinet and he had had no conference with the president regarding it. It is believed by those whose opinions are of great value that the question of another issue of bonds will not be considered until the cash balance and the gold reserve are much lower than they are at present.

The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business was $117,445,039, of which $75,456,106 is gold reserve.

OREGON ELECTIONS.

Republicans Claim Entire State Ticket. Legislature Very Close.

PORTLAND, June 6.—The most exciting election in the history of the state took place during the day. Lord (Rep.) for governor is undoubtedly elected by a large plurality. The entire Republican state ticket is possibly elected with the probable exception of Irwin for superintendent of schools. The legislature will be very close and the Populists may hold the balance of power in the senate though the Republicans claim they will have a majority in both houses.

Hermann (Rep.) is elected to congress from the First district from 1,000 to 2,000 majority. Ellis (Rep.) is in the Second district by a small majority.

PENSION FRAUD CASES.

Van Leuven and Kessel Plead Not Guilty to Bunco.

DUBUQUE, Ia., June 6.—A special term of United States court was held this one day to dispose of demurrers in the Van Lnuven and Kessel pension fraud cases. Judge Shiras sustained the demurrer in one case in which Van Leuven is the defendant and in seven in which Dr. Kessel is sole defendant. However the cases are jointly interested. The majority of the indictments are sustained. Both defendants then pleaded not guilty. Their trial will take place at the December term.

A LYNCHING BEE.

Two Men Strung Up at Colfax, Wash., For Murder.

SPOKANE, Wash., June 6.—Colfax enjoyed a double lynching bee. Ed Hill and Fred Palmer, two inmates of the county jail there, were taken and strung up to a telegraph pole. Hill was charged with the murder of a prominent citizen several months ago, Palmer was also charged with murder and was awaiting his trial. Colfax is greatly excited and participators of the affair are very reticent.

Bridges Well Guarded.

ASHLAND, Ky., June 6.—Ohio strikers, estimated at from 1,000 to 2,000, are expected down from the Wellston district to blow up the Norfolk and Western railway bridge. The railroad has stood 100 pistols ready for the Ohio river bridge alone, all armed with Winchesters, while the militia is held in readiness for odds if needed.

Diseased Beef.

SANBORN, Ia., Jan. 6.—There is quite a flurry of excitement at our little city. City Health Officer Johnson, from Sioux City, was called here to hold an examination on the carcases of two beeves killed and placed on the market by our consolidated meat markets. The beeves had large abscesses under the jaw and were without doubt lumpy-jawed stock.

A Mexican Cyclone.

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—Advices from Tampin, Mex., state that a terrible wind storm passed over the village of Valmain a short 20 miles back in the country, one day last week, destroying a number of store buildings and dwellings and killing 10 persons and injuring 15 others.

KILLED BY MILITIA.

INDIANA MINERS SHOT WHILE INTERFERING WITH TRAINS.

Four Men Shot From Ambush at the Powellton Mines in West Virginia, Governor Wallace Reported to Have Settled the Colorado Miners Strike on a Basis of $3 For Eight Hours.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 6.—A special from Sullivan to The Sentinel says: Parties who have just come in from Farmersburg report that the militia fired on the strikers and killed four men. News has just reached here that the strikers are burning the bridges behind the coal train. Herbert and Sam Wilsey, coal operators, have just come in from Shelburn to escape the mob of miners that was after them with a rope. Colonel Ross has just arrived from the south with five companies of militia. They are waiting here for orders and will probably join General McKee's command. The country in direction of Alum Cave is very wild and hilly and no operations will be attempted during the night unless the strikers take to the brush.

FOUR MINERS KILLED.

Workmen Fired on From Ambush at Powellton, W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 6.—A telegram from Montgomery states that as the miners at Powellton were leaving the mines several shots were fired at them from the surrounding timber, resulting in four men being killed. None of the men who did the shooting were discovered. The proprietor of the Powellton mines telegraphed the facts of the shooting to the governor, stating that he had asked the sheriff for protection, and asked if nothing could be done to protect his men. The governor replied that he had taken the proper course in calling on the sheriff, but that under the standing military act could only be extended when asked for by the sheriff. The governor said that he is determined to use every means to prevent violence and is determined to maintain the law at whatever cost. He has ordered three companies of militia to be ready to march at a moment's notice. Evan Powell, the manager of the Powellton company, telegraphed to Point Pleasant for bloodhounds to be used in running down the men that shot the Powellton miners.

SETTLED BY WAITE.

Colorado's Governor Brings About an Adjustment of the Cripple Creek Strike.

DENVER, June 6.—The strike at Cripple Creek has been settled. The conference began at 8 o'clock at the request of Governor Waite. As soon as the triumvirate assembled Governor Waite announced that he was authorized to act as the mutual friend and the consideration of the various points was immediately begun. The articles of agreement provide that the miners shall work eight hours a day, with 20 minutes for lunch; that they be paid at the rate of $3 per day; that the mine owners, in employing men, shall not discriminate against either union or non-union miners.

At the conclusion of the conference Governor Waite issued a proclamation calling on all people in El Paso county, who were forcibly holding the property of others and who were bearing arms in violation of law, to deliver up such property and to lay down their arms. The sheriff of the county is called upon to go to Cripple Creek, El Paso county, and assist the sheriff in restoring order.

BRIDGES BURNED.

Strikers Stop Traffic on the Cleveland, Lorraine and Wheeling Road.

CLEVELAND, O., June 5.—Not a train was moved on the Cleveland, Lorraine & Wheeling road during the day owing to bridges being burned by strikers. The strike seems this road has been the only source of coal supply to local manufacturing establishments and stores closed down. The Lake Shore and Nickel Plate roads have also been supplied from the same source and many of their trains on these roads will be abandoned unless coal can be obtained promptly.

In the Hands of the Mob.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 5.—Governor Altgeld has received the following telegram from the sheriff of Williamson county at Marion, Ills.: "I am powerless in the hands of 1,000 men and women, armed with gunpowder and guns. I am compelled to withdraw my forces at Carterville."

Miners Release Prisoners.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 5.—A delegation of citizens waited upon the leaders of the strikers and interceded for the release of Mr. Woods, who, they represented, had always employed union men and treated them well. Upon learning that President Vandewood of their union had not been arrested, the strikers released Woods.

Four Thousand Miners In Line.

CINCINNATI, June 5.—A Commercial Tribune special from Wellston, O., says: Fully 3,000 miners visited town during the day and a monster demonstration was given with 4,000 men in line. Dr. Hoy and others addressed the miners, begging them to refrain from violence. The feeling against the railroad is great for hauling coal, on which hinges the result of the strike.

Coal From Wales.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Four thousand tons of coal from Cardiff, Wales, was brought into port by the steamer Cynthia, consigned to the Barwind-White Coal company. The coal is for supplying ocean steamers, and is furnished at a loss to the contractors of about $2.50 a ton.

COUGHING BLOOD DISEASES LUNGS THROAT CURES OTHERS WILL CURE YOU! PREVENTS CONSUMPTION PNEUMONIA BLOOD POISON STOMACH TROUBLES SOUND SLEEP CLEAR SKIN HEALTH LONG LIFE MENTAL ENERGY STRONG NERVES AYER'S SARSAPARILLA

S. P. SMITH, of Towanda, Pa., whose constitution was completely broken down, is cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He writes:

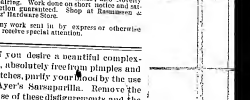
"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from constipation, kidney troubles, and indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition, and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 120 pounds; I now gain beng of 159 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could see me before and after using, you would send me for a traveling advertisement. I believe this preparation of Sarsaparilla to be the best in the market today." a

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Cures others, will cure you

C. A. FISCHER.



PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check Scoring Barrels, Broken Guns of all kinds; also Nearly Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Residence, four Blocks South of Bridge.

Any work entrusted by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

If you desire a beautiful complexion, absolutely free from pimples and blotches, purify your blood by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Remove the cause of these disfigurements and the skin will take care of itself. In short you get Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The nip of a poisonous snake is but a slight remove from being more dangerous than the poison of scrofula in the blood. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies the vital fluid, expels all poisonous substances, and supplies the elements of life, health and strength.

MISPLACED SWITCH.

Bad Wreck on the Wisconsin Central Near Merrill.

MILWAUKEE, May 31.—A special to The Evening Wisconsin from Marshfield, Wis., says: Train No. 4 on the Wisconsin Central road was wrecked at 1:15 a. m., the cars taking fire and resulting in a terrible loss of life. Four persons are dead and four others missing. Supposed to have been burned to death, and from 15 to 20 persons are injured, some of them fatally. Among the dead are the engineer, fireman, brakeman and one of the Tweedy brothers. All are being cared for at Marshfield. A misplaced switch was the cause of the wreck. Engineer Jones, No. 4 jumped the track. The forward cars took fire at once and Conductor Gavin succeeded in uncoupling the rear sleeper, and another coach and saved them from burning. Everything else burned, except some mail and baggage.

Probably a Wrecker's Work.

The opinion strongly prevails in official circles of the road that the wreck was the result of criminal tampering with the switch at Marshfield. It does not appear that it could be out of place except by design. Reports with, and it is said that some wrecker has caused the terrible accident by a murderous act.

THE REBELS WIN.

President of Salvador Escapes to Savannah.

SAN SALVADOR, June 3.—A few scanty details of the fall of Ezeta were received later in the day in the following dispatch from Commander Thomas of the United States steamer Bennington:

LA LIBERTAD, June 4, 1894.—Secretary Navy, Washington: The revolution has been successful. The president of Salvador has escaped and left for home and has gone on board a German steamer, all ready to leave La Libertad. The brother of the president has been dead three weeks. This fact has been kept secret.

THOMAS.

Violated Game Laws.

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis., June 5.—Deputy Game Warden Jules Walters made a large haul of fishermen who were using a seine in the river, contrary to law. The violators were Adelbert Wheeler, Albert Wheeler, Warren Wheeler, Henry Crombie and Eugene Matthews. They were fined $5 each and given six days each in jail. As it was the second offense imprisonment is mandatory.

IN MEMORIAM.

Rev. R. H. Battey's Patriotic Address, Delivered May 30th, 1894,

At Cemetery Grounds, Crookston, Minnesota, Before

The Greatest Memorial Day Assemblage Ever Known in Northern Minnesota.

A Mere Outline Only of the Eloquent Speech.

Soldiers, Civilians and Brethren:

It is both duty and pleasure that impels us to assemble here today. Since a year ago a rushing tide of events, greatly affecting the present and yet more to impress our future, has gone through American life. We however will not allow ourselves to become so excited by the rushing current of passing events as to forget to pay honor to our patriot dead.

Year follows year as links of a chain. The heart would be full of shadows, brooding over the losses of the past, did we live for this one life only. We have had three series of wars in this country. There were the colonial wars, which gave us land. There was the war of the revolution which freed us from England and gave us a flag and government of our own. Then the war with England in 1812 only emphasized our national independence and the war with Spanish Mexico in 1846, which unfurled the stars and stripes on the Rio Grande and staked out the full complement of territory of our nation on our southern and western borders. The third in the series of wars in our country was begun in 1861 between eleven southern states that had seceded from the Republic and the Republic itself, thus in prospective dismemberment, and it was that struggle of the sixties which gave us the great test of our national strength in the eyes of all other nations. When the struggle began, England jeeringly said, "now those states are fighting each other, brother against brother and we shall soon see the end" meaning thereby that her old American colonies would soon be returning to England's flag and dominion. France looked across the sea with bated breath doubting the further continuance among the nations of our Republic. Other nations over the sea lost faith in the future of our nation. But that war was to give our Republic inter-state unity, immigration from other countries, freedom of all races of men here, Republican character in all the world and leadership among all countries of the globe.

Thirty years ago to-day our beloved nation was in the dark days of that fearful civil war, known in our annals as "The Rebellion." In May and June 1864, General U. S. Grant was closing in all around Richmond, the metropolis of the Confederacy, with his Union army of 140,000 soldiers. Then occurred that dreadful four days battle of The Wilderness, one of the bloodiest struggles of the Rebellion, and but a few days afterward, June 3d, 1864, Grant threw his brave battalions against the outer entrenchments of Lee's forces at Richmond, and there, at Cold Harbor, in the brief space of half an hour, 10,000 union soldiers fell dead or wounded on the battlefield. You need not that I should recount many of those great battles. The four years of marching, fighting, suffering from heat, from cold, from hunger and from sore disease, have become a chapter of the eventful history of our country. Some of you here to-day, were brave soldiers then. Veterans of the rebellion, we salute you here and now for the heroism which thirty years ago saved our nation from the threatened and shameful ruin. The union army went not back to their covered homes in the north until they had broken the rebellion and saved this country. Not to revive a spirit of sectional animosity would I bring up the recollections of the sacred bravery and holy patriotism which our soldier-citizens exhibited to the on-looking world thirty years ago. But that eye of to-day and our children may, like Israel of old, keep aglow in the hearts of all a sense of responsibility and a flame of undying patriotism. Patriotism as an heritage of national greatness, of individual freedom, of associated privileges. We are the heirs of another generation. The brothers who fought and died on bloody fields for America thirty years ago had homes, factories, farms, churches, schools, steamship lines, railroads, gold mines, and leaving died they bequeathed their possessions to us. A man will sacrifice every possession to keep his own life. Our soldiers sacrificed life itself for the love they had for the principles of honor, freedom, and progress and their possessions of all earthly goods have we fallen heirs to.

Indeed, my friends, we have grave duties to perform as we face an unknown future. The providence of God forbid that we individually or as states or a nation shall cease to prize this, the garden country of all the earth. What nation can speak forth the glory of the oldest, strongest, noblest republic of the western hemisphere? What pen shall write the story of America's development that has been already, or of her undoubted future? Time never saw richer events, nor have the children of men beheld greater ideas, nor has the orb of day shone upon nobler men, nor has the queen of night looked forth upon sweeter homes at the midnight watch than these events, ideas, men and homes of our famous republic. It must be that our brothers and fathers caught visions of the coming glory of the American star of freedom when they left all else dear to them and went down into valleys of blood and suffered all things to save America the garden spot of the western hemisphere. And in passing I must remind you that the heroism of thirty years ago should be the heroism of to-day and of all the future. Nor was all the heroism in boots in that war. Tens of thousands of heroic wives whose courage rose with danger in every state of this union, gave the perfect test of their absolute loyalty and unswerving patriotism. I think it is no secret that our women have always held the highest place in woman's world in matters of education, convictions and public endeavor. But the test of their devotion to their country have never found American women lacking. How was it when our fathers and brothers enlisted and said "mother I am going to the war to defend my country." Why sir, ten thousand wives in 1862, from Maine to Mexico throughout the length and breadth of our national domain, choked down their heart beats and wept only in secret lest they should with feminine exhibits of tenderness deter their own beloved from enlistment. Then when the broad-volume and plowman had gone to war, for no one knew how long a time, how did mother and sisters do double duty at home. She did her own work and she also prepared the soil, sowed the grain, harvested the crop, marketed the grain, reared the livestock, all without man's labor. But she was nobly bearing such two-fold burdens as these while at the same time her sleep at nights was but wakeful dreamings. Her home she looked for a message from the war saying her husband and sons had fallen in battle, or what seemed worse had been captured by the enemy only to be tormented in prison.

All fellow citizens. I have remembered these things, and I announce boldly and cordially that I have read of no such heroines across the seas nor back along the line of the centuries.

But the hero often fell in bloody carnage and so five hundred thousand American women were transformed from loving, adoring, wives, mothers and brows heavy laden and self-dependent.

Sometimes the soldier husband did return to family wounded and helpless and ready to die. Others returned to find wife dead from overwork and his little children scattered in other homes for shelter and care. But turning away from the events and pathetic patriotism of that sad and departed time, I point you to the need and call upon you as made to excel other nations partly at least through the rich legacy which has come to us from that great civil war. Our American women in that dread struggle were taught by that unfailing teacher, experience, to explore and develop the hitherto unknown resources of woman's nature and capacity. Our virgin soil of unmeasured territory, west and northwest and southwest, had hardly been pressed by woman's foot when the war cloud burst upon us. After the war was ended and the spirit of bravery and heroism could no longer follow the fortunes of war then began in earnest western civilization. And no people in history has yet succeeded in describing the debt of this present age to the generation now nearly gone to the chambers of death. For not only did that war of the sixties sacrifice 1,000,000 of America's choice young men on the altar of their country, but it made generals of our citizens, and these generals of a once took rank as leaders of American life.

Gen. Grant soon after the war became president and he dwelt in peace as he had in war, as president of the republic he had helped to save.

But how shall we best and most honor our forefathers and our patriotic American soldiery?

First and always by exalting the influence of their noble deeds. If brave children were hidden to tell the children of enoh succeeding generation of the great deliverance of the sons of Jacob from Egypt, how much more should the children of America be told year after year down to the end of time, of the great fathomed deliverances of our people? The Jewish passover was left as their greatest Memorial Day.

But ours is a memorial day not of the freeing of 2,000,000 of slaves owning out of Egypt. Ours is the celebration of greater and grander events; events rich in blessing to all people. Second we are to honor the brave and patriotic dead by treating our opponents in our day as generously and justly as did our noble soldiers treat their enemies. You will do well to think of Gen. U. S. Grant on April 9th 1864, as he sat in the parlor of Mr. McLean that Virginian farmer listening to the pathetic proposition of the rebel Gen. Lee as he asked Grant to receive the surrender of 30,000 southern soldiers.

Gen. Grant in his generosity could hardly speak of war, he tells us in his autobiography. "What General Lee's feelings were I do not know. I felt like anything rather than rejoicing at the downfall of a foe who had fought so long and valiantly and had suffered so much for a cause, though the cause was, I believe, one of the worst for which a people ever fought." "We soon fell into conversation about old times. Our conversation grew so pleasant that I almost forgot the object of our meeting. After some time Gen. Lee said that he had asked for this interview for the purpose of getting from me the terms I proposed to give his army." This little incident indicates the true spirit of generosity which our union generals practiced toward their misguided brothers in gray, and we let us do toward our opponents. Would we perfectly and justly commemorate the devotion and patriotism of our dead patriots? Third, we shall keep this trust of honoring our valiant soldier dead by fighting bravely the battles for every good cause today, just as they battled bravely for the half of the great causes of their time. Fourth, we shall honor the old soldiers by toiling unselfishly for the good of future generations just as they did. How great their sacrifices for the then unborn generation composed of the young people about me to-day!

And that lends me to declare in closing that to exalt the spirit of our memorial service from year to year, to act honestly in our efforts to pay honor to the old Union veterans, we must be SELF-SACRIFICING. We must part with our money for the common good. We must give up our own ease for greater causes. Friends, too, must be given up for the right. Life itself, dear as that may be to us all, must be laid upon the altar of sacrifice if need be to protect, promote, honor and perpetuate the United States, the republic which we fondly gathered in its train of blessings to humanity a host of other American republicans. Old soldiers, I greet you again! We thankfully love you. I want, after this, that you shall have places of honor and that when Memorial Day comes year by year, we of the younger generation shall place you in the carriages of honor, we ourselves enter the foot path of march in honor of you and of the great army of dead who have already preceded you to the chamber of the dead.

I have not time left me to tell of the legacy my generation has received from the generation represented by those old soldiers. Our homes, churches, schools, farms, manufactures, yea, our republican government and the world encircling glory of America is our rich inheritance. Let me close by asking you all to teach these things to your children for ever.

Two Killed by Dynamite.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., June 6.—R. E. Crenshaw, a railroad contractor of Springfield, Mo., and Robert McConnell, a laborer, were instantly killed while at work on the Hot Springs, Little Rock and TEXAS railroad by a premature blast of dynamite.

Excursionists Injured With a Shell.

LONDON, June 6.—A party of schoolchildren near Tralee, county Kerry, Ireland, picked up an old shell near an artillery camp and began rolling it along the ground. The shell exploded and killed three of the party and wounded a dozen more.

Street Cars Collided.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 6.—A serious accident occurred on the Atlanta Traction Street Car line. Two cars collided, killing one motorman and mortally wounding another. Eight passengers were hurt.

Double Tragedy in Toledo.

TOLEDO, June 6.—Joseph Lozenski, a Polish Jew, shot his wife and then committed suicide. No one was in the room at the time and as both died instantly it is impossible to tell what was the immediate cause of the tragedy.

Sloane Requested to Resign.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The resignation of John D. Sloane, as inspector of steam vessels for St. Paul and Dubuque, has been requested.

Governor Renominated.

ATHENS, O., June 5.—General Charles H. Grosvenor, Republican, was renominated by acclamation by the Eleventh district convention.

ALONG THE FRASER.

DAMAGE ALREADY DONE ESTIMATED AT $4,000,000,

And There Are No Signs of Abatement. Some Think the Loss of Life Will Reach a Hundred—Many Town Entirely Under Water—Railroad Service Completely Demoral sed.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 5.—Four million dollars will hardly cover the present loss by the Fraser river flood, and there is yet no sign of abatement. The waters are still rising and as the warm weather continues melting the snow in the Rockies, there is no immediate prospect of beginning the work of restoration. One prominent railway official thinks the loss of life will reach 100, though conservative estimates are not so high. Bridges, trestles, tunnels and tracking along the Canadian Pacific have gone and the company has over 2,000 men at the scenes of danger, working night and day. From Revelstoke to the sea, 500 miles, the railway is Now a Watery Waste.

The last point above Vancouver which can now be reached is Ruby Creek, 62 miles distant. Thence all is water. Mission, Chilliowac, Hatzic and Laidley prairie and the towns of Centerville, Harrison, Langley, Chilliowac and Mission are all under water and most of the farm buildings is left standing. Fully 10,000 cattle have perished. The blockade was broken Saturday for the first time by a steamer from Ruby creek to Warner. Passengers on the delayed eastern train were brought down. Telegraph and railroad service are completely demoralized.

Vancouver Cut Off.

VANCOUVER, June 5.—The Fraser river is now four inches during the night and is still rising. Vancouver is shut off from the rest of the world except by steamer. All telegraph wires are down east and the Canadian Pacific railroad has stopped selling tickets.

STILL RISING AT PORTLAND.

The River Reaches the 33-Foot Mark. Much Distress Prevails.

PORTLAND, Or., June 5.—The river has reached the 33-foot mark and is still rising. Hundreds of persons, whose places of business are submerged, have moved out and established new temporary places. In the lower portions of the city, where a great many poor people live, the condition is most deplorable. Great numbers have been driven out by the invading waters and have taken temporary refuge wherever shelter can be found. Much distress prevails.

On the west side of the river the water extends almost to Washington street, within one block of The Oregonian building. The water has reached the first floor of Lipman & Wolff's, the largest dry goods store in the city. On the East side many of the elevated roadways leading to the river are submerged and the Madison street bridge at the south end of the city is the Only Bridge Open to Traffic.

A rise of six inches more will shut off the gas supply of the city. The Union depot is two feet under water and the Northern Pacific depot at Albina are surrounded by five feet. The Southern Pacific is the only railroad running trains into Portland and they are compelled to stop at the south and of the city, being unable to reach either depots. The Union Pacific is hopelessly tied up both by rail and by boat. The Northern Pacific takes regular trips with the steamer boat Tacoma between city and Kelso, Washington. It is learned from persons arriving here by boat that the storm did much damage along the Northern Pacific between Kalama and Tacoma. Bridges and fences were blown down and at Centralia much demage is said to have been done.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION.

Plan of a Non-Partisan National Commission Discussed.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The plan of a non-partisan commission to prepare a comprehensive code of laws restricting immigration has been informally discussed at a gathering of prominent Republican Congressmen. The members mat casually in one of the house clock rooms, but the discussion took such an interesting pirase, that about 20 members were drawn into it. The clock room doors were closed and the informal talk nearly developed into a caucus.

To Divorce It From Politics.

It was the general expression of such men as Messrs. Reed, Dolliver and Cannon that the immigration question should be wholly divorced from politics. In order to accomplish this it was suggested that congress could create a national commission of 15 members, representing all parties, so that every political effect of any restrictive code prepared would not be borne by any one party.

The commission would consider the entire immigration question, changing and adapting old laws and suggesting new ones. The case submitted would be passed on by congress, and in this way restrictive measures might be secured without exciting bitter party animosity.

Brewer Refused a Writ.

ST. PAUL, June 5.—Justice Brewer, of the United States Supreme court, has denied a writ of error in the case of Ernest Dart, of Meeker county, who was removed by Governor Nelson. Justice Brewer says the governor acted within his jurisdiction, and that in any event the matter is not a federal one.

River Improvements.

HASTINGS, Minn., June 5.—Nehemiah Martin and M. C. Adams have been awarded a government contract of about $25,000 to furnish brush and rock to be used in improvements in the river between Lake Pepin and St. Paul. They will take the rock from the Hastings quarry.

Hood's Cures

Mrs. O. E. Jagulah
Ithaca, Wisconsin.

Extreme Agony

With Rheumatism—Joints in Arms and Limbs Affected

Blood Purified and Pains Driven Out by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"O, I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I can say with all my heart 'Praise God for Hood's Sarsaparilla.' Three years ago rheumatism terribly affected my hands and feet, mostly in the joints. They became inflamed and swollen. The family physician treated me and for a time I thought I was free from my trouble, but shortly it returned with renewed energy. My heart was affected so that my breathing was suffocating during the attacks of Extreme Agony.

I would ha apparently well on going to bed but in an hour I would be awakened by shooting pains in the joints, and could not move without intensest pain. Anything applied did not give relief until the doctor recommended blistering which, though severe treatment, lessened the pain. During all my trouble I had thought seriously of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Finally I began with the medicine and I simply say that and thankful for what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I believe that if anyone troubled with rheumatism or anything caused by bad blood would take a course with Hood's Sarsaparilla they would be surprised that they still got well and be happy. I have taken eleven bottles and also Hood's Vegetable Pills and can now work all day and do not have any rheumatic pains." MRS. O. E. JAGUIAH, Ithaca, Wisconsin.

I am Well

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the Saskatchewan Valley,

Address

WM. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alcide Fernier, an unmarried man, of Crookston, in Polk county, Minnesota, dated the 9th day of April, 1891, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May, 1891, at 1:35 o'clock p. m. in Book "G" of Mortgages on pages 280 to 283, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred and thirty eight dollars and fifty-five cents, and no proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage debt, or any part thereof, and said mortgage containing a provision that in case default shall be made in the payment of said sum of money, or the interest, or the taxes, or any part thereof at the time, and in the manner, prescribed in said mortgage for payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, or his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeable to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with the costs and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars. And whereas said mortgage contains the further condition that in case default be made by the party of the first part in the payment of the principal sum of money, or any part thereof, or the interest thereof at the time, and in the manner, prescribed in said mortgage for payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, or his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeable to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with the costs and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars. And whereas said mortgage contains the further condition that in case default be made by the party of the first part in the payment of the principal sum of money, or any part thereof, or the interest thereof at the time, and in the manner, prescribed in said mortgage for payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, or his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeable to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with the costs and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars. And whereas said mortgage has, and does now hold the same as security for said notes, and whereas, there is now claimed to be due and owing and payable on said notes and mortgage the sum of $388.55 on account of principal and interest.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described and the said mortgaged premises will be sold by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor for cash, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 21st day of July, A. D. 1894, at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold are the north east quarter of section number eleven (11), township number one hundred and fifty west in the county of Polk, and State of Minnesota.

Dated this 4th day of June A. D. 1894.

JOSEPH FERNIER,
Mortgagee.

ALLEY & KNIGHT,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
Hallock, Minn.

[3-14]

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equipped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, May 31st, A. D. 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Charles S. Spendley deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Ellen H. Spendley, the widow of said deceased resulting in the City of Crookston, in the county of Polk, representing among other things that said deceased died in the county of Polk on the 19th day of May, 1894, and that on the 28th day of May A. D. 1894, letters of administration of said estate were issued being an inventory of said property at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Elsie H. Spendley granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on Monday, the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the court house, in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given by publication of this order in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published in Crookston, Minn., for six successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the English language.

Dated at Crookston, the 4th day of June A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. M. BERGEN,
Judge of Probate.

[6-10]

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS, and every thoughtful person will admit that our stock is well selected when they notice the following:

Rushford Wagons, John Deere Plows, Hollingsworth Rakes, Flying Dutchman Plows, Deering Binders and Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods. If you call we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston.

POWHATAN'S TRIBE.

LAST REMNANT EXISTS IN THE PAMUNKEY INDIANS OF VIRGINIA.

A Town of 800 Acres With 150 Inhabitants. Proud of Lineage, They Accept White Persons as Equals, but Will Have Nothing to Do With Negroes.

How strange it seems that a remnant of the once powerful confederacy of Powhatan should actually exist at this day not so very far from Washington? This last fragment of a nation, which, at the time of the landing of Columbus, occupied all of the region hereabout, including a large part of Virginia and Maryland, consists of about 150 individuals. They call themselves the Pamunkeys and dwell at what is known as "Indiantown," which is situated on and comprises the whole of a curiously shaped neck of land extending into Pamunkey river and adjoining King William county, Va., on the south. The "town" consists of 800 acres and is almost entirely surrounded by water, being connected with the mainland by a narrow strip. The comparative safety afforded by the situation in time of war is doubtless accountable for the presence of the tribe in this spot. Very likely their survival is due to the protection thus given.

On the death of Powhatan he was succeeded by Opechanacanogh, chief of the Pamunkeys. The tribe was at that time the most powerful of the 30 warlike tribes which composed the confederacy. The entire nation had 2,400 warriors, and comprised about 8,000 individuals. Of this population 1,000 were of the Pamunkey contingent.

Powhatan was a chief of remarkable valor and judgment. The confederacy organized under the direction of his savage genius was one of the most notable among the many unions of native American tribes. The prominence of this aborigine of Virginia in the early history of this country is partly due to the fact that Captain John Smith was a writer as well as an explorer. Opechanacanogh himself was a man of unusual ability. His leadership in the massacre of 1622 made him the most dreaded enemy ever encountered by the colonists of that period.

The Pamunkey Indians, whose distinction it is to be the only Virginia tribe that has survived the encroachment of civilization, have excited the interest of the learned in ethnology, which has turned a bulletin describing them.

Oddly enough, their number has varied hardly at all during the last century. Jefferson, writing in 1781, estimated the population of Indiantown at 100, and How, nearly 70 years later, placed it at the same figure. No member of the tribe is of full blood. While the copper colored skin and the straight, coarse hair of the aboriginal American show decidedly in some individuals, there are others whose origin would not be detected by the ordinary observer. There has been considerable intermixture of white blood and not a little of that of the negro, though the laws of the tribe now strictly forbid marriage with persons of African descent.

The Pamunkeys have a great deal of race pride. Though they acknowledge the whites as equals, they consider the blacks far beneath their social level. Their feeling toward the negro is illustrated by their recent indignant refusal to accept a colored teacher who was sent to them to conduct the free school which the state of Virginia provides for them. They are very anxious to keep their blood free from further mingling with that of other races, and how to accomplish this purpose is a serious problem of theirs, inasmuch as they recognize the danger of too frequent marriages within the pale of consanguinity. To obviate this difficulty the chief men have been trying to devise a plan by which they may induce immigration from the Cherokees of North Carolina.

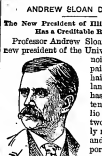
The Pamunkey Indians are not particularly strong and robust, perhaps because of frequent marriages between relatives. They are temperate, moral and peaceable. There is good feeling between them and their white neighbors. They are exceedingly proud of their lineage and love to tell how bravely and stubbornly their forefathers resisted the encroachments of the whites. Opechanacanogh is their hero. They take great delight in reciting the familiar story of how this noted chief, when old and infirm, was carried on a litter to battle that his presence might inspire his men to deeds of bravery. Aside from their mode of subsistence, there is nothing peculiar in their manners and customs unless it be an inclination to excessive use of gaudy colors in their attire. Their homes are comfortable and well kept. They all belong to the Baptist denomination and attend church on the reservation every Sunday.

They obtain their living for the most part in true aboriginal style. Their chief occupations are hunting and fishing, primitive dugout canoes being used. Farming they do on a small scale, but for manual labor they entertain a truly aboriginal dislike, frequently hiring negroes to attend to their little truck patches. Considerable numbers of raccoons, muskrats, otters and even deer are captured on the reservation. The skins are sold in Richmond and Baltimore as well as many of the fish they catch. They take shad, bass, herring and other fishes in large numbers by means of seines.

In the autumn they hunt reedbirds in a very curious fashion. They have what they call a "corn horse," resembling a peach basket in size and shape and made of strips of iron. Before they had iron clay was utilized as the material. The "horse" is mounted on a pole stuck in the marsh or placed upright in a boat. As night a fire is kindled inside it. The light attracts the reedbirds, and they fly around it, while the Indians knock them down with paddles. Every year white hunters visit the reservation for the purpose of shooting reedbirds, employing the Pamunkeys as guides.—Washington Star.

ANDREW SLOAN DRAPER.

The New President of Illinois University Has a Creditable Record.



PROFESSOR DRAPER.

Professor Andrew Sloan Draper, the new president of the University of Illinois, at Champaign, though he hails from Cleveland, where he has been superintendent of public schools for two years, is really a New Yorker and filled the important post of superintendent of public instruction for the Empire State from 1886 until 1892. Most of his adult life has been devoted to teaching and the study and illustration of methods of education, and he has won national fame of a brilliant kind as an educator and conscientious public servant.

Professor Draper was born in Westford, Otsego county, on June 21, 1848, and graduated at the Albany academy in 1866. Taking up the study of law, he was graduated from the Albany law school in 1871 and began practice in that city. He also served as principal of one of the public schools, as professor in the Albany academy and as an officer of the Albany normal school, and in 1879 became a member of the Albany board of education, which office he held until 1881, when he was elected to the state legislature.

President Arthur appointed Mr. Draper a member of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims, and he sat in that court during the last year of its existence, when over 2,000 cases were tried. He was one of the most discreet and exegetic of judges, and it was largely due to his efforts that the court was able to dispose of such a great amount of business.

As state superintendent of public instruction Mr. Draper made some judicious changes for the betterment of schools, and educators are agreed that the state of New York owes to his wisdom, discrimination and skill some of the most important educational improvements in its history. Professor Draper is a sturdy man of medium height, with a deep bass voice and a very affable manner. He is a thorough man of affairs and completely devoted to educational work.

BENEFICENT ICHTHYOLOGISTS.

Men Who Make Two Fishes Grow Where None Grew Before.

The recent convention of the American Fisheries society in Philadelphia was of more than ordinary importance to the people at large. It was not merely a gathering of anglers to discuss the fisheries question from a sportsman's standpoint, but a meeting of the leading authorities in ichthyology, fish culturists and fish commissioners from all over the United States to consider the best methods of propagating fish for the increase of the food supply.

The good accomplished by the organization is very great and the possibilities of the future incalculable. As a body and as individuals its members have formulated and secured the passage of beneficent laws for the protection of fishes and fisheries. But for them it is entirely probable that the rivers and lakes east of the Mississippi would today be entirely depopulated of their finny inhabitants, and even in the waters of the more sparsely settled west the same danger was not unknown.

Before the formation of the American Fisheries society there was no fish protection were few and practically unenforced. The whitefish industry of the great lakes was practically abandoned, and the shad fisheries of the eastern coast had become almost worthless. Now, owing to the stocking and watchful work of the various fish commissions and to the great skill which they have acquired in the artificial propagation of almost every species of fish, the lakes, rivers and coast waters are becoming once more fairly well inhabited.

From the hatcheries of Pennsylvania alone within the past three months 80,000,000 whitefish and 50,000,000 pike have been deposited in Lake Erie, and over 4,000,000 of the different varieties of trout have been planted in the different streams of the state, while untold millions of shad fry have been set afloat in the Delaware and Susquehanna. New York, Michigan, Wisconsin and many other states have similar stories to tell, and since fish culturists have learned to preserve fully 90 per cent more young fish than nature can in its ordinary course the food fish supply of the future is in no danger of curtailment.

PRESIDENT W. L. MAY.

The officers elected by the society for the ensuing year are: President, W. L. May, Nebraska; vice president, R. O. Sweeny, Minnesota; treasurer, Frank J. Amsden, New York; recording secretary, Edward P. Doyle; corresponding secretary, Dr. J. A. Henshall, Ohio; executive committee, H. H. Cary, Georgia; L. L. Hamilton, New York; Henry C. Ford, Pennsylvania; Calvert Spensley, Wisconsin; Charles F. Chamberlayne, Massachusetts; Hoyt Post, Michigan.

Inter-State Summer Assembly

OF DETROIT LAKE, MINN.

Season of 1894, July 15–30.

Interdenominational and Inter-State. Pleasure and profit For All. Lowest Rates. Best Accommodations.

REV. LEE W. SQUIER, Supt. of Instruction, Crookston, Minn.
REV. V. N. VERGIN, Pres., Fargo, N. D.
JOHN H. WEST, Sec., Detroit, Minn.

(From The Message for June.)

SEVEN miles below Detroit City is a tract of thirty acres, an isthmus between Lakes Sallie and Melissa. Through the river connecting these two lakes shouts may go in placid water at any time. The soil here is sandy, therefore never muddy. The ground is rolling; nature has thus provided most perfect drainage. On these romantic, lovely grounds is located the Inter-State Assembly. No more beautiful spot were ever chosen for a summer assembly. Nature might have made a better one, but she did not. This is the Bean-ideal!

A few special advantages:

1—Water.—The purest, coldest, can be had anywhere by drilling a well at small expense. Those the management sank last year supplied water in abundance and satisfactory to the most critical demands.

2—Bathing.—Parents need have no anxiety when the children go into the water among these benches; the slope is so gentle, the bottom so uniformly good, and underfoot so impossible that bathing along the shores is absolutely without danger.

3—Fishing.—In both lakes fish of many varieties abound. Bass, pickerel, pickerel. Lake Superior trout, and others too numerous to mention, furnish pleasure and profit.

4—Ease of access.—The Northern Pacific railroad, with its ready connection with other lines at terminal and junction points and its decent service, lands the passenger at Detroit City; connection is there made with the grounds by steamer, sailing across Detroit Lake into the canal and thence into Muskrat Lake, down through the lock into Lake Sallie and thence into Lake Melissa. This ride itself is worth a trip to the Assembly grounds.

DESIGN AND SCOPE OF THE ASSEMBLY.

Upon this lovely isthmus the people began to assemble before the Assembly was thought of. Among those who came and those who first wanted to come to this ideal place for their summer rest, were those who saw here great possibilities for the development of the Chautauqua idea. Even in such a delightful spot as this, rest might itself grow lonely; the Assembly provides sociability. Recreation might become monotonous; the Assembly brings instruction. Pleasure might be surfeited; the Assembly adds profit. Amusements might become dull; the Assembly interjects thought. The purpose of the Assembly is to combine rest, recreation, amusement, pleasure, with such study and thought as shall "promote the interest of liberal education in science, art, literature and Christian culture."

To realize this purpose, approximately at least, this year, the Assembly is organized as a great school as follows:

1. Department of Elocution, Voice Building and Physical Culture—Marguerite Craig Knowles, of the Manning School of Oratory, Minneapolis.

2. Music, Vocal and Instrumental —Prof. H. W. Mayne, of the Crookston Normal College, Crookston, Minn.

3. Botany and Horticulture—Prof. C. B. Waldron, B. S., of the North Dakota Agricultural College, Fargo, N. D.

4. Political Economy—Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson, Crookston, Minn.

5. Chemistry of Every-Day Life—Prof. E. F. Ladd, B. S., of the North Dakota Agricultural College, Fargo, N. D.

6. Sociology and Economics—Prof. John R. Commons, of the Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

7. Geology—Rev. S. D. Works, Wahpeton, N. D.

8. Anatomy, Physiology and Hygiene—Prof. T. H. Rinebaugh, M. S., V. S., of the North Dakota Agricultural College, Fargo, N. D.

9. Science of Instruction.

10. Ministerial Training:
a—Methodist Theology: Rev. C. M. Heard, D. D., Pres., Monticello, Minn.
b—Congregational Congress: Rev. V. N. Vergin, Director, Fargo, N. D.

11—Popular Entertainment. (See, Outline Program.) From The Inter-State Assembly Bulletin.

THE summer months are come again. Northern Minnesota has charming lakes, and we may enjoy the attractions of her cool, shaded shores. The shadeless villages and the crowded cities of our state are dull and dreary places in which to while away the hot days of July and August. The program of exercises for the two weeks assembly embrace a choice variety of popular and ably conducted institutes, lecture courses, musical conventions, etc. The last month will be a rest oasis of profit and pleasure, of cultured fellowship and toil-forgetting rest, and refreshing to all who attend. We should also say to our readers that there are beautiful lots bordering right on the lake shore, near the assembly grounds, which can yet be had for very reasonable prices.

For information concerning the assembly address one of the officers named above, asking for the Assembly Bulletin. For information concerning railroad tickets to Detroit, address Chas. S. Fee, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Humpty Grover sat on a wall,
Humpty Grover had a great fall.
All Europe's money and all Europe's men
Cannot pull Grover together again.

Grover's the Emancipator.

Our Grover he is mighty, he's great, he's good, he's wise;
He loves us, and he watches o'er our welfare night and day.
He is freeing us from labor; we're the apples of his eyes.
He is our emancipator, we who were protected then by prey.
He saw our toil, our greasy grime, our weary, sweaty plight;
He saw we had no leisure; that our backs were bent for hire;
He grieved, he mourned, he worried, he resolved our foes to smite.
He stopped the factry whistle, he put out the factry fire.
And now we're free to wander over hill and over dale.
In Europe will be done our work; which leaves us free from care.
We're gentlemen of leisure now; at us no boss can rail.
And relief foods and the sorghouse supply our bracing fare.
Our friend the jolly farmer, too, is happy and content.
Canadian hens will lay his eggs; potatoes he'll import.
We're all in Grover's clover, somewhat short of nourishment;
We're hungry, but we're happy, for our Grover holds the fort.
—Augustus Jacobson.

How He Wore His Shoes.

"I'll bet any one in the party," Colonel Jack Gambill said to a group of acquaintances one day, "that I did something when a growing boy out in old Tennessee that has never been done by any one before or since."

"What was that, colonel?"

"I wore out my first pair of shoes without both feet being shod at the same time."

"Explain."

"You see, it was this way. Shoes were a novelty to me. The secondary was slow, and I was impatient, as all boys are, for a new thing. He finished one pair of shoes on a Saturday and told me I would have to wait another week for his fellow. I couldn't stand that, so I put the one shoe I had got to such an extent that when I went for the other I had to leave the first one for repairs. I went on this way week after week, and somehow I never could bring that pair of shoes together on my feet. The family was too poor to think of buying me an additional pair. Odd thing, wasn't it, to have one foot shod, booted and paddling the hoof with the other? Boys'll do queer things sometimes."—San Francisco Call.

Scrambled Eggs.

Melt in a small saucepan a piece of butter the size of a small egg; into this break 6 eggs, put in a pinch of salt and pepper repeatedly, a little grated nutmeg and, if desired, a dessertspoonful of cream or fresh milk; stir this over the fire steadily with a wooden spoon till the eggs turn to a thick cream. Serve on hot toast. Fried asparagus tops, chopped ham or bacon, mushrooms, truffles, etc., previously slightly sauted in butter and made hot, are generally added to the scrambled eggs just before turning them out of the saucepan.

Boiled Water.

To restore the flavor to boiled water, mix air with it—that is, shake it thoroughly in a carafe or other open mouthed vessel that will not prevent it from spilling. This takes away the flat, insipid taste that is objectionable.—New York Times.

Scandia-American Bank
OF CROOKSTON, MINN.
Capital, - - $50,000.
Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.
Transacts a General Banking Business
Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.
Special Attention to Collections.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
C. HANI RICKSON, ... President
L. ELLINGTON, ... Vice President
J. W. WHEELER, ... Cashier
A. F. HANSON ..... Assistant Cashier

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW.
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn

MOTHER'S FRIEND
LESSENS PAIN—INSURES SAFETY to LIFE of MOTHER and CHILD.

My wife, after having used Mother's Friend, passed through the ordeal with little pain, was stronger in one hour than in a week after the birth of her former child. J. J. McCONAUGHEY, Bexar Co., Texas.

Mother's Friend robbed pain of its terror and shortened labor. I drew the bundles. Miss L. M. ARRIS, Cochran, Ga.

Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle. Book "To Mothers" mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., For Sale by all Druggists. ATLANTA, GA.

First National Bank
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Commenced Business Oct 1881
Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - - 15,000
Interest on Certificates of Deposit.
Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.
GEO. C. PERKINS, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. S. SAWYER, Cashier
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, S. P. Chase, P. D. Childs
Geo. G. Perkins, J. H. McKinnon, A. A. Stiller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. S. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,
D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical
DENTIST.
Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
SAGINAW HOUSE
If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 50 cents and your razor and address and I will Hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

OLD PAPERS
FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Rockitt Bloc., - Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jer on Addition.

$1.50
PER DOZEN
FOR THE BEST CABINET
Photographs
AT
P. E. Lynne's Gallery,
Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY
Roller Mills
CROOKSTON, MINN.,
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS,
MADE FROM SELECTED RED —RIVER HARD WHEAT.
BEAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS
Always on hand.

BROWN,
The Cigar Man,
Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Rockitt Block.
DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.
H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,
Proprietor of Main Street
LIVERY AND FEED STABLES
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S
RESTAURANT
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.
Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.
TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

McKINNON BROS.,
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
Dealers in all the leading
McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.
BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale on easy terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

CROKER'S SUCCESSOR

CANDIDATES FOR THE LEADERSHIP OF TAMMANY HALL.

Something About the Four Prominent Aspirants—Which Three Heads Would Fit the Retiring Chieftain's Crown—Mc Quade, Gilroy, Purroy and Martin.

The recent retirement of Richard Croker from the leadership of Tammany Hall was an event of national interest as well as of local political importance to New York city. Mr. Croker has long exercised an almost absolute control over the policies of the most powerful political club in the world, and his sudden retirement naturally causes considerable speculation concerning his successor. To four men in Tammany Hall the situation is full of potential possibilities. They are John McQuade, chairman of Tammany's finance committee; Mayor Gilroy, County Clerk Henry D. Purroy and Police Commissioner James J. Martin, each one of whom looks in his heart of hearts that the mantle of the retiring chieftain may fall upon his own shoulders.

JOHN M'QUADE.

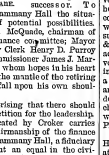
It is not surprising that there should be eager competition for the leadership. The place vacated by Croker carries with it the chairmanship of the finance committee of Tammany Hall, a fiduciary position without an equal in the civilized world. The holder of it is the custodian of funds aggregating millions, of which he keeps no accounts whatever, and for which he is responsible to no one. To a man who loves political power, too, the position is eminently desirable.

It seems to be generally conceded that the actual leadership will remain vacant for the present, or at least until after the fall campaign. Meanwhile Mr. John McQuade, who has for some years been treasurer of Tammany Hall, has succeeded to the chairmanship of the finance committee. Mc-



MAYOR GILROY.

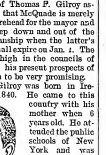
Quade has long been actively identified with Tammany, but is personally unknown outside of that organization. He was an aldermun a good many years ago and was a police justice under the Tweed charter of 1870, but lost his place when the reform charter of 1873 was enacted. Since then he has been a contractor and has made a fortune out of city work. He now lives in handsome style at 1336 Lexington avenue.

The friends of Thomas F. Gilroy assume to believe that McQuade is merely acting as a figurehead for the mayor and will quietly step down and out of the finance chairmanship when the latter's term of office shall expire on Jan. 1. The mayor stands high in the councils of Tammany, and his present prospects of promotion seem to be very promising.

Thomas F. Gilroy was born in Ireland June 3, 1840. He came to this country with his mother when 6 years old. He attended the public schools of New York and was graduated from the Free academy. He learned the trade of a printer, but soon found politics more to his taste. Through his connection with the Tammany Hall he secured a clerkship in the Croton aqueduct board in 1864 and was successively clerk in the county clerk's office and clerk in two district civil courts. He was appointed a deputy in the county clerk's office by James A. Flack in 1884, and upon the election of Flack to the office of sheriff he was made under sheriff. He held this position until appointed commissioner of public works by Mayor Grant in 1889. He was elected mayor in 1892 by the largest majority ever received by a Tammany candidate. Mayor Gilroy has a handsome wife and 10 children. He gets a salary of $10,000 a year.

HENRY D. PURROY.

County Clerk Henry D. Purroy has long been a leader of Tammany Hall and is perfectly willing to succeed to the position of paramount chief. He is 46 years old and a lawyer, but has practiced more politics than law. He stood very close to John Kelly in the old days and served a good many years in the board of aldermen. Mayor Gross appointed him president of the board of fire commissioners, and he left Tammany Hall and attached himself to the Grace faction. A few years ago he returned to Tammany with a large personal following and was rewarded with the county clerkship.



JAMES J. MARTIN.

James J. Martin, president of the police board, is another of those who hope to succeed Mr. Croker. He, too, enjoyed confidential relations with the late John Kelly and has been a member of Tammany Hall and a city official nearly all his life. He was both in Ireland in 1848. He is very comfortably situated and draws a salary of $5,000 a year.

PROVOST PEPPER'S SUCCESSOR.

Charles C. Harrison Honored by the University of Pennsylvania.

When Charles C. Harrison recently consented to temporarily fill the office of provost of the University of Pennsylvania, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Pepper, it was upon the distinct understanding that he should be allowed to retire as soon as the trustees could agree upon another suitable man for the position. The true CHARLES C. HARRISON.

reason, however, hope that if Mr. Harrison does not find the duties of the position too onerous his love for the university may induce him to retain it permanently, and in this hope the trustees are heartily seconded by the faculty, the alumni, the students and by all Philadelphians interested in the welfare of the university.

Mr. Harrison has been one of the university trustees for a long time and has been chairman of the ways and means committee of the board since 1882. He was formerly the senior member of the paper-making firm of Harrison, Fraser & Co. and since his retirement from active business several years ago has devoted most of his time to advancing the interests of the university. He has been a liberal benefactor of the institution, and recently he and his two brothers endowed the John Harrison laboratory of chemistry in honor of their grandfather, who was one of the pioneer chemists of Philadelphia.

Born in Philadelphia May 8, 1844, Mr. Harrison received his early education at the Episcopal academy. He entered the university in 1858 and was a classmate of Dr. Pepper, the retired provost, of whom he has ever since been a close friend. Upon his graduation in 1862, Mr. Harrison being the honor man of the class and receiving the Henry Reed prize, Dr. Pepper invited the provostship or not, Mr. Harrison has announced his desire to devote the remainder of his life to the service of his alma mater.

The resignation of Dr. Pepper was caused by the fact that the duties of provost had become so onerous that he had to give up the position or retire from his medical practice. He will still retain his professorship and take an interest in the university's affairs. With his letter of resignation Dr. Pepper sent the trustees his check for $30,000 as a contribution toward the new wing of the hospital.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH SOCIETY.

It Was Founded Five Years Ago by Colonel Thomas T. Wright.

The approaching meeting of the congress of the Scotch-Irish Society of America, at Des Moines, is likely to engender an interest and importance any of the five annual meetings of the society that have preceded it. Des Moines is the center of a large Scotch-Irish population, which may be relied on to supplement the enthusiasm aroused by an increased attendance of notable men from other sections of the country, and the local representatives have made arrangements that are sure to add an appreciable impetus to the fast spreading influence of the society.

The objects of the Scotch-Irish society are purely fraternal and historical. It is entirely nonsectarian and nonpolitical and includes in its membership men of all shades of religious belief and political opinion from every state in the Union, many of them eminent in politics, business and the various professions. Vice President Stevenson and Governors McKinley of Ohio, Knott of Kentucky, Jackson of Iowa, Northen of Georgia and Hogg of Texas are all members, and ex-governors, senators, representatives and lesser political lights too numerous to specify.

The society was organized at Columbia, Tenn., in 1889, by a convention called by Colonel T. T. Wright of Nashville, who thought the time was ripe for the formation of a society similar to the Scotch and Puritan historical associations, which should record and make history of the achievements of the Scotch-Irish race in America.

In the foundation and upbuilding of the republic this race was probably the most active of all. Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, Patrick Henry, Andrew Jackson, Lincoln, Sam Houston, Fulton, Greeley, Blaino and many other men noted in American history came of this stock, yet until the formation of this society the race was without a written history. Since then five volumes of the proceedings of its annual meetings have been published, and they make mighty interesting reading. The debt of the race to the founder of this society is not easy to measure, and it is best appreciated by the most eminent representatives of the blood. Such men as Robert Bonner, Dr. John Hall and Colonel A. K. McClure have been prominent in it from the beginning, and the first named has been president of the society from the start.

ENGLAND PREPARING

HOPES TO SECURE THE BULK OF AMERICAN TRADE.

Importing Largely of Raw Materials at Very Cheap Prices—They Acknowledge That They Are "Preparing For Increased Activity"—Free Traders Awakened.

The London board of trade returns for the first three months of this year present some features that are of particular interest to American manufacturers. In the British free trade country it appears that the value of the imports this year to March 31 was $84,000,000 more than during the first three months of 1893, an increase of 11.2 per cent. The exports of British and Irish produce, however, decreased by $3,120,000 during the same period, a falling off of 1.1 per cent.

The London Economist finds comfort in this large increase in the British import trade, stating that:

"The increase in the imports, apart from the exceptional movements in cotton and cereals, is to a considerable extent due to larger importations of the raw material for our manufactures. This goes to indicate that our industries are experiencing a certain quickening and are preparing for increased activity."

From the American standpoint this "preparing for increased activity" means that the British manufacturers are either preparing to defiance those great "markets of the world" that free trade theory would give to us, but which Great Britain largely controls, or else that she is "preparing for increased activity" in securing the American trade that our free traders desire to place at the feet of foreign countries by lowering our protective tariff.

Out of her total increased imports of $54,000,000, Great Britain purchased $37,000,000 more of raw cotton during the first quarter of 1894 than she did in the corresponding period of 1893.

It is a question how much of this raw cotton will return to the United States in the way of manufactured cotton goods should the Wilson bill become law. Certainly some of it will, and considerably more than we would otherwise purchase if the McKinley protective tariff were to remain undisturbed. It is well to remember that every dollar's worth of cotton goods imported means a dollar's worth less to be manufactured in the United States—a fact of direct interest to mill owners and to wage earners, both in the north and in the south.

So the interest of American manufacturers and labor it is well to look into the "preparing for increased activity" on the part of the British manufacturers in other textile raw materials as well as cotton, and thus we find that the imports this year to March 31, as compared with the corresponding period of 1893, were greater by the following percentages:

FOR THE TEXTILE TRADES.	—Per cent of Increase.— Quantity.	Value.
Raw cotton	18.1	7.0
Raw flax	16.1	19.2
Raw hemp	23.0	19.4
Raw jute	29.9	65.4
Raw silk	3.0	0.0
Raw wool	1.1	0.2

American manufacturers can form a very good idea, from the foregoing exhibit, to what extent this "preparing for increased activity" is being carried on in Great Britain. Large importations of raw cotton by 99 per cent, of flax by 16.5 per cent, of hemp and jute by almost 30 per cent each, and of raw silk by 3 per cent, within the brief term of three months, mean an almost corresponding increase in the output of the English manufactured goods, which have to be disposed of either in the "markets of the world" or in the United States. As England takes very good care that the former are always well stocked, it is but natural to suppose that she is "preparing for increased activity" in the United States.

But a still further very important point is to be noted in the foregoing exhibit. Where there has been an increase of 99 per cent in the quantity of raw cotton imported into England, the increase in value was but 7.1 per cent, and in the case of flax the increased value was 85 per cent less than the quantity, and in hemp it was 19.5 per cent less. In the case of raw silk the value has not changed, while in jute it appears to have advanced. Where the rate on material has been purchased much below the values of a year ago, the British manufacturer will have a still further advantage over the American, because he is well supplied with duty free raw materials, while we are not, owing to the uncertainty of our future industrial conditions through the tariff tinkering of the free traders.

CHARLES R. BUCKLAND.

Ride a cock horse to Cleveland cross
To buy little Dorrit a galloping horse.
It trots behind, and it canters before,
Will David ride it through Grover's door?

WHERE ARE WE AT?

WHO CAN TELL WHAT THE TARIFF BILL IS NOW LIKE?

A Complete Record of Its Checkered Career Through Congress—It Shows How the Country Is Governed by Democracy, Procrastination, but No Legislation.

It is interesting to follow the career of the bewildering tariff known as the Wilson bill, to promote the delay of prostration, which is briefly given as follows:

1. The Chicago platform of the Democratic party denouncing protection as a fraud, condemning trusts and declaring for a tariff for revenue only.

2. The labors of the schoolteacher—Mr. Wilson—to revolutionize the great industrial and manufacturing interests of the United States, he never having been engaged in business and never having done a day's work in a factory in his life.

3. The demagogic address to congress by President Grover Cleveland, urging the policy of prostration, the destruction of American prosperity and striving to create strife between capital and labor on lines laid down in his message, and the creation of his income tax.

4. The work in the basement of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, including invitations to the free traders of the country to give their ideas upon an American tariff, hearings of foreign vegetables growers and manufacturers, and a partial hearing of American interests.

5. The discussion of the bill by the house of representatives, a number of the schedules changed and its passage forced by Czar Crisp.

6. Sent to the senate.

7. Referred to the senate finance committee and there taken in charge by the trinity, not one of whom came from an industrial state or had the slightest knowledge of the conditions or requirements of laborers or manufacturers.

8. The refusal of the trinity to grant hearings to American interests.

9. The unauthorized addition of one and no additional days were given to the trinity committee, creating a quartet and a quintet of discord for both United States.

10. The completion of a new bill by this varied numerical committee after granting private hearings to the Sugar trust.

11. The submission of this new bill in the senate.

12. Its dissension in the senate.

13. The opposition of leading Democratic senators thereto.

14. Its discussion in committee of the whole senate.

15. The construction of a new bill by protectionist Democrats, with the aid of the secretary of the treasury, unknown to the trinity committee.

16. The recognition of the interests of the Lead, Oil and Sugar trusts.

17. The abandonment of a tariff for revenue only.

18. The adoption of a policy of protection on a modified form, forgetful that insufficient protection is no protection.

19. The presentation of 403 proposed changes.

20. The reference of this latest conglomerate to the senate.

21. Next?

Good For Canadian Farms.

"As the Democratic party in the States are talking the Canadians quite off our agricultural products, and next summer farming will be more profitable than heretofore, the subscriber would hereby intimate that she is about to sell her fine farm."

The above advertisement was copied from The Weekly Patriot, published at Charlottetown, P. E. I., under date of March 15, 1894. The latter explains clearly holiveas that the Canadians pay the duty and that good times are coming for Canada.

Myrtle at Royal Weddings.

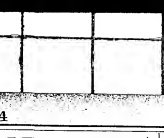
Near the flag tower at Osborne and bordering on the carriage entrance to the palace is a charming garden, which contains a very large myrtle tree grown from a sprig taken out of the wedding bouquet of the princess royal in 1858. Each royal bride has since carried a piece of myrtle from the bush in her bouquet on her wedding day, and two hits were sent to Coburg for the use of Princess Victoria Melita. Even the Duchess of Coburg had some of the myrtle from Osborne in her bouquet when she was married, the queen having sent the pieces all the way to St. Petersburg in charge of Lady Augusta Stanley.—New York Sun.

How "Turkey Red" Is Made.

An oil bath is prepared composed of 100 gallons of water and 50 pounds of oil—sufficient for 100 pounds of cotton—and in this bath the cotton is handled until thoroughly impregnated; then pressed out and dried at a temperature not exceeding 40 degrees C. For mordanting, a bath of aluminate of soda is made by dissolving 50 pounds each of alumina and 100 of soda from six to eight times their weight of water, the soda solution being slowly added to the alumate solution, and when all is added the liquor is made to stand at 0 degrees B. Into this bath the oil and dried cotton are entered, and turned over eight to ten times to impregnate the fiber; then allowed to steep in the bath over night, being next day wrung out and dried at a temperature of 40 degrees C. The mordanted cotton after being dried is worked for 15 minutes in a bath containing eight to ten pounds of chalk; then rinsed and dried.

How to Do Up Linen Shades.

After the shades are washed, starched and dried roll them down in thin cold starch, letting them lie awhile. Begin to iron at the lower edged end. Iron about a foot, and when perfectly dry tack on to the roller. When this is smoothly rolled, iron a foot more, and so on till all is done. All must be absolutely dry before rolling.



Before After Treatment

Is sold under positive written guarantee, by authorized agent only, to cure Weak Memory, Loss of Brain Power, Hysteria, Nervousness, Lost Manhood, Quickness, Night Losses, Evil Dreams, Lack of Confidence, Nervousness, Insomnia, all Desire, Loss of Power of the Generative Organs in either sex, caused by Indiscretion, Overwork, Worry, or Excesses. Use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, which soon lead to Misery, Consumption, Insanity and Death. Don't be a beat if hardly will write a positive guarantee to cure or refund money. WRITE COUPON STUBB, a certain cure for Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, Lack of Energy, Pimples, Blotches or Eruptions. Worst of blood and skin diseases. Don't let druggists impose on you and say they have something just as good because they make more profit. Insist on having VIGORINE or write for it. Sent by mail in plain wrapper, $1.00 per package, or six packages, $5.00. Pamphlet free. Address all orders to Dr. Green or Send for Manager. Correspondence solicited from druggists only. Agent for all local druggists. Address PERT MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

VIGORINE Acts powerfully and quickly. Every dose will vanish their lost manhood, and will bring it to them in a perfectly natural way. VIGORINE Absolutely Guaranteed to cure Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, Lack of Energy, Pimples, Blotches or Eruptions. Worst of blood and skin diseases. Don't be druggists impose on you and say they have something just as good because they make more profit. Insist on having VIGORINE or write for it. Sent by mail in plain wrapper, $1.00 per package, or six packages, $5.00. Pamphlet free. Address all orders to Dr. Green or Send for Manager. Correspondence solicited from druggists only. Agent for all local druggists. Address PERT MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fourset Block
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Hi, There!
DO YOU WANT
The Choicest Cuts
At Lowest Rates?
Try George Vine's New
MEAT MARKET.
Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.
Vine Block, Broadway CROOKSTON

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
RUNS
THROUGH CARS
TO
St. Paul,
Minneapolis,
Duluth
Fargo,
Grand Forks and Winnipeg
TO HELENA.
BUTTE.
SPOKANE.
TACOMA.
SEATTLE.
PORTLAND
PULLMAN
SLEEPING CARS,
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS
TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior. 7:54 p.m.
Crookston
Daily For Grand Forks, Grafton, Dreadod and Winnipeg, 8:05 a.m.
Have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.
For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Tickets Agent. N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. H. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE
CROOKSTON, MINN.
THIS HOUSE has been Refitted and Refurnished throughout. Only first class Dollar a Day House in the city. Good Sample Room in connection.
No. 232 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON
ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Wells Drilled or Bored.
Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.
Crookston, - - Minn

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of 1878 and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, we the undersigned do hereby associate ourselves in a body corporate and hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the corporate hereby formed shall be and Lake Milling Co. The business of the corporate shall be the manufacture of flour and meal and such other products as may be found convenient from time to time; and to carry on business in the manufacture of lumber, both hard and soft, and lath, and buy, own and have sold land, water-power, machinery and other appurtenances as may be deemed convenient thereof necessary in the operation of the same forming business and may buy, sell, in or, and operate such elevators, warehouses and buildings as may be necessary to receive and handling the products of the farm, and to transact in the operation of the same, and such business and shall have power to maintain operate, acquire, improve, own and have such mill or mills, together with all other buildings, railroad tracks, water power and machinery as may be necessary for the complete and perfect operation of said business in the manufacture of lumber, flour, meal and such other products as may be found convenient for carrying said business, and do all other business necessary and incidental to its said manufacturing business. The functions of said corporation shall however be limited to the business of manufacturing, the articles hereinbefore mentioned and to the lines incidental thereto.

The principal place of the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of the corporation shall be the 28th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of its existence shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same shall be paid in at such times and in such installments as the board of directors may determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability that said corporation may at any one time be subject to is the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming this corporation are as follows: P. E. Lee, C. L. Hyde, Little Falls, Minn., L. Van Hecke, Kiendale, South Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first Board of Directors are as follows: Frank E. Cawley, Charles E. Hyde and L. Van Hecke; and Frank E. Cawley shall be the president, C. L. Hyde shall be the vice president, and L. Van Hecke shall be secretary and treasurer, all of whom shall hold their offices until the first annual meeting of the stock holders, which shall be held on the 10th day of August, 1894, and until their successors have been elected and have qualified.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be and is hereby vested in a board of five directors, each of whom five persons, who shall be elected by and from the stock holders of said corporation each year at the annual meeting of the stock holders, and said Board of Directors shall hold office for one year and until their successors are chosen and have qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected by the board of directors annually and said officers shall hold office for the term of one year and until their successors are chosen and have qualified. The Board of Directors shall have power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be found necessary, and shall have power to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors as they may occur unless caused by resignation or by the removal of a director appointed by the board. The annual meeting of the stock holders shall be held on the second Monday of August, in each year, at the office of the company, and after its annual meeting of the stock holders, the number of directors on the Board of Directors may be increased to not exceed seven by the stock-holders at any annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of the stock holders shall be held on the second Monday of August, 1894, at which meeting the undersigned hereby covenants and agree to take the 10th day of Aug. A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY. [Seal.]
CHARLES E. HYDE. [Seal.]
L. VAN HECKE. [Seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. S. LINDERMAN,
B. E. CARLSON.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Morrison }

On this 11th day of May A. D. 1894, before me a Notary Public within and for said county, personally appeared Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Hyde, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing instrument, and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

C. S. LINDERMAN,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.
Morrison County, Minn.

STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Hanley }

On this 12th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Hecke, to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing instrument, and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

A. C. CASE,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.
Hanley County, S. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Department of State }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 14th day of May, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in Book "E 2" of Incorporations on Page 387.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, } ss.
STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
COUNTY OF POLK }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office and recorded on the 7th day of May A. D. 1894.

JOHN SWENSON,
Register of Deeds.

Going to Buy a Watch?
If so, buy one that cannot be stolen. The only thief-proof Watches are those with Non-pull-out
BOWS.
Here's the Idea:
The bow has a groove cut in each end. A collet runs down inside the pendent (stem) and fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendent. The collet is made of hardened steel.
To be sure of getting a Non-pull-out, see that the case is stamped with this trade mark,
It cannot be had with any other kind.
Send a postal for a watch case opener to the famous Boss Filled Case maker.
KeystoneWatch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at.....6:12 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at.....8:05 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

The county board met yesterday. Weather somewhat cool for June.

W. R. Kelsey went to Fisher on Monday.

Julius Voelker is up from Fisher on jury duty.

C. C. Lawton was down from Mentor this week.

Chris Widenhoefler, of Fisher, is doing jury duty this term.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

You can get a 100-pound sack of Valley Roller Mills flour for $1.50.

Geo. M. Swift was in from Mentor on Monday to do a bit of courting.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes at the Californian wine house. (3-tf)

Todd Farden was in from Mentor on Monday as a witness in the Swift case.

T. A. Harris commences this week the work of moving R. B. Gates' residence up to the new site.

Go to the Californian wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Frank Brown: How is the flour mill running? Full blast; we have 50 cars of wheat on the side track to-day.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Myron H. Collins, after a pleasant visit with his son S. L., left for his home in Iowa on Friday evening of week.

S. L. Collins is mending his ways a bit—lenstwise he is laying a new sidewalk fornhust his business place on Main street.

Rev. R. H. Battey goes to the twin cities next week to attend the temperance convention. Will he come home at the week.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lynne.

Frank Brown has purchased Frank Kermott's interest in the steam laundry, and will put A. A. Buckingham, of Argyle, in charge of it. Mr. Kermott will probably return to the drug business.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Brown.

The river drivers were paid off Saturday night—and trade was lively for a few hours.

I am prepared to make a few first-class farm loans at straight 10 per cent with no bonus. Call on E. M. Walsh, the land man, Fournet block, Crookston. [8-10]

Ed Martin attended the A. R. U. dance at Barnesville last Friday night, and reports the biggest crowd in attendance that he ever saw at a dance.

The grass on all unsold railroad lands will be sold at public auction June 11th, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Rooms 33 and 35, Rockitt Block.

City Clerk W. A. Lauctet went over to Grand Forks on Tuesday morning, returning on Wednesday.

Dressed hogs cured and sold on commission at the Crookston packing house. Always ready to receive them during the summer months. [5-12] ROBERT STANTON.

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter, buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit. [47-tf] D. N. TAYLOR.

Awarded Highest Honor World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

W. C. Kelso was down from Halstock this week.

Tom Erwin, of Fisher, is doing jury duty this term.

The McKinnon Bros. start their ditching contract this week.

H. B. Budd was up from Elma on Wednesday doing some trading.

A little rain would do lots of good. One or two of Hick's showers are due.

B. M. Chesley was up from Ada on Wednesday looking over the political field a bit.

E. M. Walsh made a business trip to Chicago this week, returning Wednesday.

The street sprinkler makes its daily rounds, but Hicks does not get in his work.

Chris. Greenhalgh has sold Brown Beinet to a Fertile man at a long figure—said to be $800.

Agent Sharkey is enjoying a visit from his father and a sister and his uncle, from Floyd, Iowa.

All who desire fresh Jersey cream should address a postal card to Mrs. M. E. Bartlett, city office.

S. S. Chapin has disposed of his business interests at Argyle and has returned to the city for the present.

E. M. Walsh: Money is loosening up in Chicago. I secured quite an amount to loan out on good farm security.

Lovers of fine music should not fail to visit the opera to-night. No finer entertainment ever given in our city.

Of course W. A. Marin has worked hard enough for the pop cause to entitle him to an office—but of course he won't get one.

Morehead will pave a few streets in the business center with cedar blocks. It would be a good idea for Crookston to follow.

The business men and citizens of East Grand Forks turned out on June 1st, and built a fence around the race track at that place.

Aaron Cooke, on section 9, Fairfax has a few choice Jersey heifers for sale at prices to suit the times. Will sell for cash or bankable paper.

It is said that Henry Steege is figuring to acquire an interest in the Commercial hotel. Henry would no doubt make a model landlord.

Hans Jackson was in on Wednesday consulting with Chesley, Knudson and Lommen. Great matters seem to be at stake all of a sudden.

Rev. R. H. Battey preached at Barnesville on Sabbath last. He received a call from that church, but as yet has not decided to accept.

D. D. Horton came in on Monday with a scow that he had sold to Rudy Durston and now Rudy proposes to drink cream all the time hereafter —on the side.

T. B. McManus yesterday received his commission as deputy collector of internal revenue for the district —and our friend Kirsch is still a democrat.

Is it not about time the republican county committee issued their call for a county convention? Some counties have held their conventions already.

Mrs. H. E. Cooke has so far recovered from her illness as to be able to ride out to Fairfax on Monday afternoon, for a few days visit in the family of Aaron Cooke. She has had a severe seige but seems improving nicely.

A few changes in farm property indicates an awakening in real estate that is encouraging. It will not be long before the enquiry will cause prices to double, then everybody will wonder why they did not catch on before.

In April the firm of Peterson Bros. & Wurninger purchased Nat Hunt, a fall brother of Hans Nut, and the colt is expected to arrive in a few days. He is entered in the three-year-old race at the coming fair. Some say the sire of these horses has this spring showed a 2:12 gait, and the boys naturally expect something great of the sons of such a sire.

John Quinnell, a prominent French Canadian farmer of Mentor was in on Monday. By the way John is mentioned as a candidate for sheriff on the populist ticket and a worse choice might be made. John is a hard-working honest farmer and while he is not making a great scramble for the office is far better qualified to fill it than many a man who belongs to the seek'n the office to secure the nomination.

Jake Ills comes to the front with a fish story some what out of the usual order of things. He reports having killed one Mr. sturgeon with a pitch-fork, in Anderson creek one day last week. He saw the fish in the creek and the only thing he had to get the fish with was a pitch-fork which did the business with a good bit of exertion besides.

W. O. Wilson is enjoying a visit from his father, mother and a sister from Madison, Wisconsin.

The grain is pretty much all sown in Polk county with exception of perhaps a little barley yet.

John Sylvester Whitten and Miss Zelma Lichty, both of Devils Lake, were married on May 31st, by Rev. Squier at the M. E. church in this city.

Louis Fontaine took Joseph Nethier out to the farm of the former on Friday of last week where Mr. Nether is to put up a big stock barn for Mr. Fontaine.

Hon. H. Steenerson has bought the celebrated LaChapelle trotter, P. J. That looks like business, though he says he wants the horse for his dog to amuse himself with.

Children's day exercises at M. E. church next Sunday. Sermon to children and baptism of children in the morning; children's day festival of song in the evening.

R. S. Hurd, of Hallock, formerly of Crookston, was united in marriage to Miss Lavinia Arnold, at the residence of the bride's parents in this city, on May 31st, the Rev. L. W. Squier officiating.

The McGibeny opera company that opens up this evening in the opera house has just finished a week's engagement each in St. Paul and Minneapolis playing to crowded houses every night. It is said to be one of the finest troupes on the road and Manager Hoyt deserves great credit for getting this company here. He should be rewarded by a full house.

John J. Ellingson was up from Wellsville on Saturday in the interest of a county road to be laid out between the Red River country and Crookston. This road would be of vast importance to our commercial interests and this city should be ready at any time to take hold and do all in her power to further the project and no doubt our business men would gladly do so.

It begins to look like Halvor Steenerson intends to enter the congressional race next fall—at least we saw him out on the streets one day behind LaChapelle's famous trotter P. J., scoring for position. Hobston should have got Doc Robertson's trotter or some other equally good racer and joined in—to make it interesting.

Dr. C. E. Dompier returned on Friday from a trip to Mexico, where he went to recreate a few weeks. The farthest point he visited was Corsova, and while in Mexico he witnessed an old-fashioned bull fight, wherein two men were killed, and several horses and a number of men and horses badly wounded. The Dr. says it was an interesting sight as a relic of barbarism. He enjoyed the trip very much.

The readings given by Miss Lootta Swanton at the opera house last Thursday evening were much enjoyed by those present. Her readings took quite a wide range—from light to heavy, from humorous to pathetic. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Masons.

T. M. Nelson was up from Fertile on Wednesday. Mr. Nelson has recently had the misfortune to lose his right eye by disease and the other eye was threatened though it is now probable that it will save to it's right again and in this hope his friends will all join with him.

Pops were around thicker than bees on Wednesday. This about slates! Why the G. O. P. in its palmiest days was not in it with the pops for sunite-making. They profess to believe in the idea that the office should seek the man—and every pop seems to think he is the identical man for office.

T. A. Harris is raising the old Sherman house preparatory to laying a foundation put under it. We learn that J. R. Clements the owner, intends to raise the old part as high as the addition, thus making it all three story, and will thoroughly remodel the whole structure and make a first-class hotel out of it. He will also add a brick building facing Robert street for store purposes. The erection of a new building would be a much wiser move.

On the 12th inst. will be witnessed a production of "Si Perkins" by the Inimitable Burton-Coleman Company. This company has won great praise from the press and people all along its route. The company is first-class and is going right ahead despite the hard times, because they possess real merit and on that account receive a paying patronage. Their orchestra, directed by Prof. S. V. Downs, is composed of twelve skillful musicians. It is the strongest ever presented to the public by a traveling company. One of the most necessary features for a first-class performance is the best of music rendered in an artistic manner —especially is this so in Si Perkins, running over with songs, dances, catchy music, where good music is absolutely necessary. Be sure and see the street parade; you will enjoy it.

The Cleveland house is doing a big business in these days—what with the district court and the big drive just in they have all the boarders they can accommodate.

D. D. Horton informs the JOURNAL that Maple Bay is getting up the biggest kind of a celebration for July 4th. They hope to get the road-bed that is all ready for ties and iron completed in time for the great event.

At the receivers sale of the Red River line of elevators the bid of Van Dusen was the highest and will probably be accepted by the court to which the bids have been submitted. Van Dusen has conducted the line since the failure of the Red River Valley company.

Rev. L. W. Squier tells us that he will soon have ready for distribution the "Assembly Bulletin," a pamphlet descriptive of the Detroit Lake summer assembly. It attended a meeting of the trustees at Detroit this week, and orders were given for the enlargement of the grounds and buildings of the assembly.

Among the varied features to be introduced during the performance of "Si Perkins," which will be presented by the Burton-Coleman Company at the opera house on the 12th inst. is their olio of specialties, and the famous "Si Perkins" orchestra, directed by Prof. S. V. Downs, which is sure to be entertaining. Of the play itself we need only to say that for laughing purposes there are no better, and this has been proven by the large audiences it always attracts. The parade given by the famous Pughtown farmer . . . . is great; be sure and see it.

Thos. Gibbon, a stockman w . . . from Rockport, Utah, under date of May 31, 1894. "Gents—I have used your Haller's Barb Wire Liniment and am so well pleased with it that I have no hesitancy in decaring it the best I ever used for curing wire cuts, sores and wounds. It is truly a wonderful healer, and I would not think of raising stock with out it." Mr. J. R. Clements, the proprietor of the Commercial, has taken charge of the house for the present.

J. R. Clements applied to the council on Wednesday evening for permission to raise the old part of the Sherman house to the same height as the new part and make a flat roof, covered with tin. The application was referred to the city attorney with instructions to report upon it at the meeting Thursday evening.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance Policies, Good Securities, Interest, Time and Reasonable Fees. Correspondence attended to cheerfully in all parts of the United States and Canada. Local and county references. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE,

o o CROOKSTON. o o

ONE NIGHT ONLY.

Monday Evening, June 12.

The Funniest Man on Earth,

SAM J. BURTON,

And the Charming Comedian,

MISS LILLIE COLEMAN.

In the new

oooooooooooooooooooooooo

o «SI PERKINS,» o

oooooooooooooooooooooooo

A Superb Scenic Production.

A Hip! Hurrah! Hilarious!

SENSATIONAL COMEDY. DRAMA.

A Roaring, Rousing, Rally Of Fun, Laughter and Yells.

PROF. S. V. DOWN'S SOLO ORCHESTRA of twelve skilled musicians, is the strongest ever presented to the public by a traveling company. One of the most serious, yet fascinating features for a first-class performance is the best of music rendered in an artistic manner—especially is this so in SI PERKINS, running over with songs, dances, catchy music, where good music is absolutely necessary.

See the Street Parade at Noon by The Pauns

PUGHTOWN FARMERS' BAND

FREE CONCERT

At front of Opera House, 45-7 o'clock p. m.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Battey has labored hard to establish a church at Mentor, and has been ably seconded in his efforts by the people of that locality.

A Rustling Landlord.

The grand jury yesterday found indictments against A. J. and M. J. Stoeser, the former the flighty landlord of the Commercial, and the latter his sister. Miss Stoeser was arrested last night, but A. J. is said to be in Chicago, where he is reported to have married a woman with some money, and he hopes to be able —with aforesaid money—to straighten out his financial difficulties here. The indictment is for grand larceny in the second degree, and Miss. Stoeser is implicated on account of allowing her brother to use her name in business transactions.

The cause of the indictment is briefly about as follows: About two months ago Stoeser made a deal with Henry Steege whereby they were to form a sort of partnership and purchase the Palace hotel furniture, and Steege was to conduct the Palace and Stoeser the Commercial. Steege was to put up $600 and Stoeser the experience, and each was to share equally the profits of the two hotels. Steege innocently gave Stoeser the money, but when the latter tried to get a lease of the Palace the owner refused to lease it to him. Stoeser drove on to the Sioux and has been scandaling Steege of since. The matter was brought to attention of the grand jury, with the result above stated.

A letter from Stoeser simmers, that he will return soon and "square up everything."

Mr. J. R. Clements, the proprietor of the Commercial, has taken charge of the house for the present.

A Rousing Dance will be given in the vacant store room to the Fournet block next Tuesday evening. Good music will be provided, and a good time guaranteed to all who attend.

The populist legislative committee met in this city on Wednesday and fixed upon Friday, July 6th, as the day for holding their legislative convention.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 2nd.

Eriksen, Ole Sawyer, Nora C.
Lindman, I.

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LEUAGE, Postmaster.

To Teachers of Polk County

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teachers should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

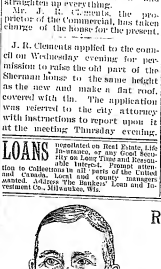
A. A. LOMMEN, County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs, address, ROBERT STANTON, Crookston Packing House, Crookston, Minn. [7-12]

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block. [42tf] ALEXANDER MCKINNON.



RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE ON LONG TIME AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,

E. M. WALSH,

Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

WALSH, the Land Man.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S

GROCERY DEPARTMENT

Best Patent Flour, per sack	$ 1.50
Bakers' Flour, per sack	1.15
20 pounds Granulated Sugar for	1.00
15 " Best California Prunes for	1.00
30 " English Currants for	1.00
19 " Best Cooking Raisins for	1.00
Fancy Layer Raisins, per pound	15
All Package Coffees, per pound	23
Choice Guatemala Coffee, large, even bean, elegant, per pound	28
3 pounds Mocha and Java Coffee for	1.00
Choice Uncolored Japan Tea, per pound	25
Fancy " "	35
25 Bars Kirk's Soap	1.00
28 Bars Victor soap	1.00
Best Canned Corn, per can	10
" Tomatoes, per can	12½
20 pound pail jelly	60
2 gallon pail syrup	60
Best California Canned Goods. Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums, Muscat Grapes, per can	12½

We carry a large assortment of Flower Pots. Our line of Crockery and Glassware is the largest in Polk County.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM,

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1894. NO. 9.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor..... Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor..... David M. Clough.
Secretary of State..... S. P. Brown
Attorney General..... H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.....Halvor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 56-1 Sen. Dist.....E. E. Leamen.
Representatives, 1st Sen. Dist.....John D. Knutson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Jacbson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court..... J. J. Elliot, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 11th Jud. District.....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court..... Nils Jensen.

County.

Auditor..... C. V. Webster
Treasurer..... J. T. Beardsley
Register of Deeds..... John Amundson
Attorney..... A. R. Holmes
Sheriff..... Aray Grundyson
Judge of Probate..... C. M. Bowen
Supt. of Schools..... A. A. Lommen
Surveyor..... O. L. Blamery
Coroner..... Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District..... John E. Oppegaard
Second District..... Aaron Linden
Third District..... M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District..... C. P. Dewey
Fifth District..... A. C. Bhinehart

THE CITY.

Mayor..... John Cromb
Office in Merchants National Bank.
Clerk..... W. A. Lanctot
Office in Mckinnon Block.
Treasurer..... Ole O. Christianson
Office in Anderson Block.
Comptroller..... E. M. Walsh
Office in Fournet Block.
Assessor..... C. H. Nix
City Attorney..... Holmes Buckius
Office over Merchants National Bank.
City Engineer..... George Ralph
Office in Fournet Block.
Street Commissioner..... Jos. Creighton
Chief of Police..... Louis Gouyea

ALDERMEN.

At Large..... J. W. Wheeler
First Ward..... I. D. Jennys, Geo. O. Bah
Second "..... J. E. Morrisey, W. H. Norrie
Third "..... Wm. Watts, M. E. Kirsch
Fourth "..... N. S. Gervais, Fred Hull
Fifth "..... E. G. Norlette, A. McGregor

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wiekstrom	Bray
Badger	S Savalrud	Mentor
Brandsvold,	ale Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Bierer	Euclid.
Briskel,	A P Fitik	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Sunderson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lanctot,	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Lindsay
Dandsville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid,
Eden,	Ovet A Sadle	Gilo
Fairfax,	Wm Hinnebakek,	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Warren
Fanny,	J O McWaters,	Euclid
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gn Forks	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J P Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Gordon,	John Hanson	Hingdal
Gentilly,	H T Goudron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	E L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Nikelell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Fred Sorenson	Lindsay
Hubbard,	Andrew Arneson	Nelleville
Kerstone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Nunsville,	G H Frank.	G Forks
Kentsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	J D Kutnson,	Goldrush
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	H L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Sebeau,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clemenston,	Fertile
Lowell,	Chas Mathieson	Gretis
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Lotsbville,	Benjamin Dalbee	Hoot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
North	Harry Beye,	T R Falls
Norden,	H D Bacerbon	T. R. Falls
Northland.	M E Mercier	Northland
Numedal,	Hennie E Albue,	Tweed.
Garnad,	W A Morin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Blenn	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre.	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans S Hanksun	Fosston
R.i.v, village,	A P Johnson	E L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Hdolp Biril	E L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Erlan
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rockbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Reome,	P Rowland	Nelsy
Rosebud,	John E Juverud,	Fosston
Rustic,	Owen Simmons	Crookston
sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	James F Sullivan	Northland
Silver,	St. Hilaire,	St. Hilaire
Silsteen,	J L Johnson	Wanger
Sullivan,	Ingebret Larson	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Carnousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Elonor Perrone	Terrebonne
Tilden,
Tynsid.	A O Rostrom	Neby
Vineland.	John Thompson	Neby
Winger	Albert Johnson	Hindal
Woodside,	Thos Halderson,	Maple Bay
Wrenbus,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	Adam Zeh.	T R Falls

The poisonous cuts inflicted by barb wire, has caused the death of many a good horse whose life might have been saved by the use of Hallo's Barb Wire Liniment. It is especially made to heal all cuts, sores and wounds quickly, and thousands of owners and stockmen have freely acknowledged it the best. F. L. Durand sells and guarantees this remedy.

DISTRICT COURT.

Warring and Thoosen, Two of the Car Thieves, will Have to Go to Stillwater.

Funk, O'Brien and Ersahledi Acquitted for Lack of Evidence to Convict.

The Calendar Will Soon Be Cleared—Only a Few Cases Left to be Disposed Of.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6TH.

After a verdict was received in the case of Rasmus Johnson vs. Tobias Skjerping and Ole Larson, a jury was called in the case of C. E. Harrington vs. Colman Keeley. Wm. Watts attorney for plaintiff. R. J. Montague attorney for defendant. This action is brought by plaintiff to recover for two horses and about one hundred bushels of wheat, claimed to have been sold to defendant through defendant's son Mike Keeley.

It appears that in the spring of 1889, plaintiff sold Mike Keeley two horses for $300 and 100 bushels of wheat at 90 cts per bushel. Plaintiff claimed he received as part payment on the above, one yoke of oxen valued at $70 and $100 cash. Defendant claims that he did not buy the stuff nor did he give his son Mike, who was then a minor, authority to buy them for him. Defendant refused to sign notes for the payment of the horses. His son Mike's first year of farming was a failure and he could not pay for the horses. Mike Keeley then went to work on the railroad, leaving the horses with his brothers. Defendant claims he wanted plaintiff to take back the horses and return the steer to the boy. This was done and defendant had to feed the horses. The case consumed the afternoon.

In the afternoon the grand jury reported that it had completed its labors. The Court instructed them to adjourn until the third Monday in September, at which time they should meet again if not otherwise instructed. If not needed they will be so advised by the clerk.

The last indictment returned was against A. J. Stoeser and Miss Mary Stoeser, the charge being grand larceny in the first degree. A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of the parties. Miss Stoeser was arrested and placed under bonds for her appearance. The bond was fixed at $600 and Chas. H. Sanke went on the bond. A full account of the facts in the case was given last week.

THURSDAY.

Counsels summed up the Harrington-Keeley case and it was given to the jury. A verdict was soon returned in favor of the defendant.

The criminal calendar was then moved. The first case being that of The State vs. Joseph Lejambe, County Attorney Holston prosecuting and H. Steenerson defending. A jury was selected and the case begun in the forenoon.

The defendan is charged with grand larceny in the first degree. It is charged that on the night of March 28th last, defendant entered the blacksmith shop of Munn and Flintrault and stole therefrom five steel plowers, five hammers, eleven fire tongs one horse rasp and one plow tile valued at $25. Lejambe was arrested, tried and placed in jail to await the action of the grand jury, which found an indictment against him. The defense set up was, that defendant found a sack of tools on the street Crookston on the crossing between First National Bank and Wallace's corner. He put the tools in his buggy, drove to a friend's house near Gentilly, remained all night and started on home. On the way, Peter Patenaude, who was with him and defendant talked about the tools and defendant consulted to come back and find out whose tools they were. He put the tools under the bridge near Gentilly and came on to town. They remained there until the Saturday following, when, from the instruction of Lejambe, Chas. Lejambe, one Patenaude and O. Langevin found them under the bridge aforesaid. In the meantime Flintrault had found his lost tools at the fair ground, as he claims from Lejambe's telling him they were there. The tools Lejambe claims he found and put under the bridge were produced in court. They consisted of two hammers, six tongs, three pinchers, file and rasp. The case occupied the attention of the court all the day.

FRIDAY.

The Lejambe case was resumed and completed and given the jury shortly before 12 o'clock.

The State of Minnesota vs. Victor Fontaine was next called. It is charged that on January 26th last at Fosston, the defendant assaulted one Wilhelm Sundsdahl, seriously injuring him "breaking his face."

It appears that this complaining witness, Sundsdahl, was pretty drunk, while in the waiting room, where several persons were waiting for the train to start. Among them being several ladies, two of whom Mr. Fontaine was talking with. Mr. Sundsdahl was in the rooms and as County Attorney Holston puts it having his "bible full of whiskey" and wanting to assist Mr. Fontaine with entertaining the two ladies, went over that way and as he approached in a staggering manner with arms somewhat extended towards the ladies, Mr. Fontaine knocked him down a couple of times after which the agent took a hand in the row and Mr. Sundsdahl was unceremoniously ejected from the waiting room. After being put out he staggered around against one thing and another and finally fell off the platform onto the track between the platform and the cars then standing on the track. Whether this was the cause of the broken bones in his face or the blows from Fontaine's fist no one is able to say.

The jury returned a verdict of petty larceny in the case of State against Joseph Lejambe. The indictment was for grand larceny.

The jury were out but a short time and brought in a verdict in the case against Victor Fontaine of "not guilty." A. R. Holston for prosecution and A. C. Wilkinson for the defense.

SATURDAY.

The trial of the men charged with robbing the Great Northern freight car here during the strike was the next order of the business.

Nick Funk and James Warring were indicted together. Warring plead guilty and Nick Funk] not guilty. A jury was then called to sit in judgment of Nick Funk.

Considerable time was taken up in selecting competent jurors. Very little evidence was taken before adjournment for noon.

The case is so well known that only a brief mention of the facts now is necessary. During the strike on the Great Northern road here, cars loaded with merchandise were left here on the track in the yards. On or about April 23rd, it was discovered that two of the cars had been opened and some of the goods taken. New investigation followed and the supposed guilty parties located and arrested, and some of the goods recovered from the houses of the parties arrested. The grand jury investigated the matter and found indictments against five or six parties: Nick Funk, James Warring, Patrick Henry (Dick) O'Brien, Nick Thoosen, Nick Ershfield and Knute Grindly. Grindly, Warring and Thoosen pleaded guilty.

Funk's case was the first to be tried. E. A. Young shipping clerk, for Winston, Farrington & Co., Minneapolis, was the first witness called. He testified to having shipped goods to different parties in North Dakota.

J. F. Perkins, receiving clerk for the Great Northern at Minneapolis, testified as to receiving the goods from Winston, Farrington & Co.

N. Peterson, forwarding clerk, forwarded the goods.

William Jordan checked the goods out.

Leonard McLean next testified to having sealed the cars, 4410 and 1326; the cars into which the goods were loaded.

D. B. Barstow, conductor, next came on and testified that he hauled the cars to St. Cloud; that the cars were sealed when he received them at Minneapolis.

Grant Mason, another conductor, brought the cars in question from Barnesville to Crookston, and testified that the seals were all right when he received them, and as far as he knew they were all right when he left them on the tracks here on April 15th.

A. C. Wilkinson testified as to the Great Northern leasing the road and cars operated on this line.

W. W. Fegan, that on the 22d or 23d of April he found cars 4410 and 1326 open and some canned goods, lard, sugar, tobacco, pickles, coffee, syrup, catsup, crackers, raisins and soap missing.

James Warring was next called and told his story; that he saw Funk break open and containing merchandise; I looked in and saw it; that was about 5 o'clock in the evening, they agreed to come at night and get some of the stuff; they came about ten or eleven; Warring got in car, carried goods out to Funk who stood on track watching; they carried goods to Funk's house, put it in cellar; few days after they divided it, Warring taking half to his house. After taking stuff to Funk's house they went down town, had a drink and went home; that Funk told him he (Funk) put his canned goods in a sack and threw them in the river.

The two cases of the State vs. C. L. Combgs were continued until the December term.

MONDAY.

A. J. Stoeser and Miss. Stoeser, against whom the grand jury found indictments, came before the court and entered a plea of "not guilty."

The Funk case again taken up.

Chief Gouyea came on and told of arresting the man Funk, of searching his house, not finding anything, and of afterwards finding the goods in Warring's house.

A. F. Noble, special agent for the Great Northern, testified that he went with Gouyea to make the arrest; that they found the goods as marked them, identified the mark on the goods.

The goods, consisting of nine bottles of catsup, part of a cheese, two cans of tomatoes, 3 cans mushrooms, one can of baking powder, keg of nails, two pairs of two butts of tobacco, two cans of soup, were in the court room.

Warring also testified that sometime about this time, (he could not fix dates), Funk brought some soup to the Minneapolis brewery while they were working there.

Charley Probst and Michael Palen testified as to the extra fine soup on that particular occasion. Probst fixing the date at the 17th or 18th of April.

John Kyle, policeman, testified that he saw the men, Warring and Funk together, on the night of the 17th, between 11 and 12 o'clock; that they looked as though they had been working; that Funk invited him over to Hoch's saloon to drink, that Funk never spoke to him before.

The state closed its case and defendant's counsel moved the court to dismiss the action on the ground that the state had failed to prove facts sufficient to sustain a verdict against the defendant at that time overruled the motion. Counsel for defense then opened his case to the jury and court adjourned.

After convening at 2 p. m., the court stated that he would reconsider his ruling made before noon and then the question of dismissal discussed. After hearing the argument on the question at issue, His Honor stated that he had given the question some thought during the noon hour and looked up the law bearing on the case, and as there was no positive evidence but that of Waring, going to prove Funk's connection with the theft, and that testimony not being corroborated, and testimony being that of an acknowledged criminal, and as stolen goods being found in his possession, he thought insufficient facts were before the jury to convict the jury, and the motion to dismiss the court was granted, and Nick Funk was allowed to go free. This decision caused considerable surprise, and of course some disapprobation with the prosecution.

After dismissing the Funk case a jury was called in the case of Dick O'Brien.

Funk, O'Brien and Thoosen were indicted together for grand larceny in the first degree. Their attorneys counsels demanded separate trials, which was allowed.

Some of the goods were found in O'Brien's house among which were one can of lard, one jar of lard, seven packages of matches, a large can of sugar about four or five pounds of "Newsboy" tobacco and a lard can cover and part of a can under the floor.

O'Brien explained that the matches belonged to Ersahledi who was then occupying a room in his house, and were found in his trunk. The lard in the place he claimed Mr. Fegan that his wife made. On the stand he claimed that his wife bought it of Mr. Delnard who was then in the butcher business. And the sugar

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.]

CITY COUNCIL.

Minutes of Two Meetings of the Council. Held on the 7th and 12th Insts.

George H. Holt Elected to Succeed Justice Spendley, on the 71st Ballot.

A Letter From Manager Murphy in Regard to Supplying Artesian Water.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council, held June 7th, 1894, the following business was transacted:

The committee to whom was referred the matter of the granting of State street, asked that the bids be opened at this meeting, and allowed further time. Report was accepted and committee given until next meeting to make their final report.

A petition from a number of citizens was read, asking that the ordinance relative to bicycles be changed to exclude certain streets of the city. Same was referred to a committee of three composed of Aldermen Wheeler, Norrie and Gervais to report at next meeting.

The bid of Henry Nahm for the construction of the Sixth street sewer was accepted and contract awarded to him, the work to be completed by August 15th, 1894.

The city engineer reported the bridge on the cemetery road to be in very bad condition, and the city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for repairing the same.

The city engineer reported the sidewalk on the west side of Main street, between Second and Third, in a bad condition.

Alderman Wheeler was appointed a committee of one to draw contract with Mr. Peterson for water at stock yards for use of herd.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the proper officials of the Great Northern Railway to, that a sewer was to be constructed on Sixth street, as requested by the company.

Aldermen Watts was appointed a committee to draw contract for the rental of the centrifugal machine used by the city, to A. B. & A. C. Merrill.

Bill of J. W. Kelley for $29 for boarding paupers was allowed and ordered paid.

Liquor bonds for N. Rapin, Knute K. Austin, Wm. O. Wilson, Henry J. Nicklason, Alfred Brosseau, Michael Merell, A. R. & E. K. Austin, Ole Lunch, P. Burkhardt, C. C. Hoch, Fred Reyer, E. Rolsch, J. J. Moistad, Wanterstarter & Schmunk and Berzinski Brothers were approved.

The city engineer was instructed to look up the matter of certain pipes belonging to Mrs. Dan McDonald with a view of purchasing the same for the city.

On motion a refunding order was issued to Alnin Clements for $27.42 on Second street grading.

The city attorney made a verbal report on the matter of the application of J. R. Clements for permit to make certain alterations on the Sherman house property, stating that an ordinance was in existence providing that such matters be settled by arbitration.

Geo. H. Holt was elected city justice to succeed C. S. Spendley, deceased, on the 71st ballot.

At the regular meeting of the city council held on Tuesday evening the petition of J. R. Clements to raise the roof of the old Sherman house was rejected.

The Crookston Gas, Light and Heating Co., asked further time for the completion of their plant, and were granted an extention of one week.

The committee to look up the matter of a supply of artesian water for the city made a report. An offer from W. J. Murphy was received to use artesian water provided the city will sink the wells and furnish connection with the power house. The committee was authorized to confer with artesian well diggers.

Lampe & Smith were awarded the contract for grading Sixth street.

The city assessor was allowed $50 for clerk hire.

Tom Young secures the contract for building bridge on the cemetery road.

The pay-roll for May—$954.88 was allowed.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of Col. Cobban Post, No. 90, G. A. R., held on Friday evening, June 1st, 1894, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Ruler of the universe, our Great Supreme Commander, to remove from our ranks our beloved comrade, Charles S. Spendley, whose funeral obsequies were duly celebrated by this Post on its body on Memorial Day, May 30th, 1894; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we humbly bow in submission to the Divine will, we recognize that in the death of comrade Charles. S. Spendley, we have lost a comrade whose loss will long be felt, whose memory we will long cherish and with feelings of sadness and tenderness we say:

"This grows the rasks,
And far apart they sank."

So few are left and these just hastening to the same bourne from whence no traveller returneth.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and that a copy be sent to each of the local papers and to the widow of our beloved comrade and that the chaplain be a committee to carry out these instructions.

School Board Meeting.

The school board held a session on Wednesday evening and selected teachers to fill the required number —Miss Tillie Fortier and Miss Olive Sweiten. The vote on superintendent still stands 3 for Moore and 3 for no more, and the question will have to be decided by the district at its next school meeting. Two of the members go out and if they are re-elected it will be conclusive evidence that the district does not want Moore returned. As the principal, the man who was elected at a previous meeting wants a higher salary than the district offers and the board has another man in view.

Supreme Court Cases.

The case of Valentin & Co. vs. Teddy Richards et als., an action brought to recover $2,000 in a house case was handed down on Tuesday in favor of defendants. Montgomery & Buckius for plaintiff, and Wm. Watts for defendants.

The case of Isaac W. Welsh, of Detroit, in this county, vs. W. H. Fisher, action for payment for goods furnished said Fisher. In the district court Welsh secured a verdict in his favor. The case was appealed and the supreme court decision sustains that of the court below. Wm. Watts for plaintiff and Barr & Catlin for defendant.

The People Want Him.

Thief River Falls Press: Despite his repeated refusals the friends of Hon. Halvor Steenerson are still urging his candidacy for congress from this district. If Mr. Steenerson can be prevailed upon to make the run he will be elected by the largest majority ever given a candidate in the State of Minnesota. And why not? There is not a man in the state better fitted for any position than is Mr. Steenerson.

The Why and Wherefore.

There is nothing marvelous in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla should cure so many diseases. When you remember that a majority of the disorders "flesh is heir to" are due to impure or poisonous condition of the blood, and that Hood's Sarsaparilla is an effective and radical blood purifier, the whole thing is explained.

Besides its blood purifying qualities Hood's Sarsaparilla also contains the best known remedies for stomach tonics, diuretics, kidney remedies and liver invigorants, and is thus an excellent specific for all disorders of these organs, as well as for a low condition of the system, or That Tired Feeling.

A Grand Feature

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and gives it a coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla made a new person of me." It overcomes that tired feeling so common now.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.
[5-tf] A. GRONOR, Opera Block.

An Englishman's Ambition.

The London dispatches announce that the destiny which Lord Rosebery mapped out for himself when at college has been fulfilled. He married the richest girl in England. Miss Hannah de Rothschild; he is prime minister of England, and he won the derby with his bay colt Ladas, the winner of the Newmarket stakes on May 26.

THE FACE OF O'PENEL.

CHARLES HOWARD MORTAGUE.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

membered it. If I had "I don't forget easy, and little by little the t... Rose, there was a friend of yours here this morning asking after you, and I could repeat his whole conversation."

"Repeat them, please," said Maxey quickly.

"The man came here to the foot of the stairs. 'It's too much trouble to go up,' he said, 'but have you seen my friend Mr. Maxey to-day?' I have," I said. 'How is he looking?' was his next question. 'Looking fine, sir,' says I. 'And that invalid of his, that they found on the rocks, how is she coming on?'"

At this point the janitor's face became troubled, and he looked a little confused.

"Well," said Maxey, "that's very important. What was your answer. Tell us exactly."

"Maybe I told him more than I had any right to tell, but the fact is, sir, I was in a hurry and wanted to be rid of him. Says I, 'Oh, she's all right.' 'All right?' he says. 'What do you mean?' 'I mean they're doctoring her up,' I says, 'and they'll soon have her out of it.' I thought he looked somewhat astonished, and I said to him, 'If you want to know any particulars, you'd better go right up and see the gentleman himself, sir,' I said. 'Some other time,' he remarked and turned square around and walked out."

Maxey and Lamar looked at each other. There was an interrogation in both glances.

"Did you ever see this lazy friend of mine before?" questioned Maxey.

"Only once, sir. That's how I knew when I saw him he was a friend of yours. He came day before yesterday and asked me the same questions."

"And wouldn't go up?"

"He was averse to climbing, sir."

"Can you describe him?"

"Well, he was a man, I should say, about 40, with small eyes, near together, shaky eyebrows, smooth face and a hook nose. He wore a handsome pin in his shirt front. I don't know as I can say much more definite."

"This means something," cried Maxey, with a touch of his former excitement as they remounted the stairs.

"And to think that our plans are tied! If only I might ask Ellen two little questions!"

Lamar made no reply to this, but as soon as he reached the room he went to the bedside, felt the patient's pulse and exchanged a few words with the nurse.

Ellen lay with her face swollen, her throat well bandaged, breathing with great pain and difficulty. The physician turned from an earnest scrutiny of her face to the artist. The emergency seemed so grave to him that he resolved to permit a matter which ordinarily he would have been too cautious to countenance.

"You may ask her just one question."

Maxey threw himself on a knee beside the bed and put back the hair from his sister's forehead with a tremulous hand.

"Ellen! Ellen!" he murmured.

A slight motion of the head indicated that she heard him.

"Don't try to turn your head, dear. Don't exert yourself to answer me, but tell me, if you can, who did it?"

The head nodded slightly in the negative, and the fingers made an unsuccessful attempt to frame an answer.

"Think, Ellen! Did you turn the key in the door?"

Again the negative motion of the head. Again the lips moved. Maxey put his ear close down and caught the pain fully whispered words:

"I don't know—I was—asleep—I heard Annette cry—and then—I felt—myself—grow faint".

"There, there!" cried Maxey, starting up. "You have told me enough, dear. Don't try to talk any more. Lamar, I tell you there is something wrong here. This must be placed in the hands of the police. Unless my instinct deceives me this dastardly attack on my poor sister is intimately connected with the matter that kept us waiting that cold night on the sea-wall."

Maxey had passed from the bedside and drew Lamar into a corner near the window, a window that looked out over the dark, lonesome river. The black tide flowed on silently beneath the thickening lace. A chill gust of wind from the sea passed the house with a rush. The windows rattled ominously in the sash. The artist started.

"How searching the wind is tonight! Ah, here is the mischief! The sash is not shut tightly at the bottom."

Abstractedly he closed and locked the window and came away.

"Yes, yes," he muttered. "It is better to go to the police at once."

Not to the police, good Maxey, not to the tardy offices of human justice—for not in that direction lies the thing of which you are in search, but down there—down there where the lonesome river flows silently beneath the thickening ice and all is cold and dark.

CHAPTER VI.

THE REPLY.

It seemed indeed that the artist's prediction that the mystery of the sea road would remain a mystery forever was destined to be fulfilled. The days came and went, and there were no developments to encourage a faltering and disgusted police. It was the strangest thing because a full description of poor Annette had been published in all the papers, and there had been a deal of interest in the matter. But public interest is to be kept alive must be fed, and one morning the city editors of the several dailies awoke to find a choice collection of new material for interesting reading and straightway pigeonholed the old till duller times. And so the poor creature with the wounded intellect was forgotten.

A very rich man had suddenly and completely disappeared under circumstances so suspicious as to warrant the most shocking speculations. And the newspapers did not spare their readers' feelings. The reason was simply that the newspapers had learned from long experience that their readers did not desire to be spared—in fact, would be rather inclined to resent any such forethought on the part of the newspapermen. For this and the other good reason that the supplemental mystery of the assault on Ellen Maxey never got into print at all the matter dropped.

And so Maxey's great double mystery remained in spite of his almost frantic attempts to dispel it. No new clews appeared, and the old ones, like the footsteps in the field at Somerset, led nowhere. The police were discouraged, and even Dr. Lamar gave it as his opinion that time spent in looking into this matter was time wasted.

Miss Maxey fulfilled the physician's predictions by getting well in a few days, but the poor, frightened face that looked forth from the pillows in little above room was as pale and pitiful as ever. The excitement with which, as a power for good, which promised so much in the beginning, justified Dr. Lamar's simple and beautiful idea of bringing her back to her lost world.

The thought was too poetic for reality. In vain did pretty Ellen Maxey sing her sweetest songs. The wan face still turned with the same mute terror upon her surroundings, and the eyes never ceased the restless search for the horror that did not come, and the small, white hands continued to clasp and unclasp themselves as of old.

But one day there was a change in the symptoms. A peculiar spasmodic action of the muscles of the face and limbs began to manifest itself. When Dr. Lamar saw this, his face lighted up with a sudden hope.

For a long time he had been very grave. He had given caution as a continual abstraction and had even been occasionally seen with his umbrella under his hand in the most unmistakable indication that he was becoming absent-minded. Never before had he met with a case which interested him so persistently as this. From the hour when he knelt beside her in the snow by the sea road with his flask in his hand and Annette in a "very serious matter" the patient had never been wholly out of his mind.

It made him angry to think that the information contained in this first statement of his impressions of the case as he knelt over Ellen Maxey's shoulder and saw the white face looking up by the light of the lantern was about the sum and substance of all he had been able to learn since, but such was the fact. What more could he say with any certainty today than this? To be sure, he had puzzled older men than he, but that was small consolation to a mind like Lamar's. The greater the obstacles the more determined he became to overcome them.

If Lamar will be the death of this problem or it will be the death of me," he said to himself, and with this conclusion he had set to work to save his own life. He saw the patient so often that he photographed every look and action she was accustomed to make upon his mind. Not the movement of a muscle, not the twitching of an eyelid escaped him. He went about studying every one of these apparent trivialities and trying to account for it.

Just as Maxey threatened up every scrap of evidence which promised to throw any light on the great double mystery which entirely confused the police, so the physician, constituting himself a medical detective, looked upon the various symptoms of the girl's condition as so many clews to the great pathological mystery which was baffling him. During the weeks following the discovery of Annette he reread almost his entire library on brain diseases. Afterward he borrowed from a friend.

One night he came across a passage which startled him. It was the particular statement of the symptoms of a patient in a German hospital who died with a strange malady that completely mystified the physicians. The result of the post mortem examination appended gave him the secret cause of his death. It was a cerebral complication, the chief factor in which was a tumor in the brain. A footnote suggested that this abnormal growth had probably been caused by a fall.

Perhaps it was because he watched with a new idea in his mind, but it was the very next day, when Lamar renewed his observations at the bedside of the patient in Ballavoine place, that he detected the spasmodic symptoms for the first time. The result was that he became convinced. He could scarcely conceal his delight when he came to take his departure.

Miss Maxey was a quick reader of faces, and of his face in particular. She stopped him at the door and said shyly, but determinedly:

"You have some good news for us, but you are so afraid that we shall be disappointed that you hesitate to tell it!"

"Oh," said Lamar, "but I think I have located her disorder. However, I am not an authority in this matter. I shall bring some friends here, with your leave, this afternoon."

He smiled so pleasantly to himself that Ellen was delighted.

"Surely, if this be true, you will know just what to do to cure her!"

"Cure! I said nothing about curing. No. It is necessarily fatal in its results."

She flashed one look of horror and indignation into his face and turned away without a word. Poor Dr. Lamar forgot to smile on his way to the street. But a moment before he had felt a glow of professional pride in what he ventured to hope was the success of a daring diagnosis. As he emerged into the sunlight an intimate friend caught his thought, from his crestfallen expression, that he had met with a severe defeat.

However, this did not prevent him from calling on some of his fellow physicians, and that afternoon a council of grave and dignified men stood around the bedside of poor Annette. If it had cost the artist anything, that little consultation in the back sitting room would have proved an expensive luxury. But fortunately for him Dr. Lamar was his friend, and there was sufficient interest in the case to make these wise and highly paid individuals in black coats think it worth their while to have a hand in it for their own information.

While they were present the artist and his sister were excluded from the room. When the meeting was over, Lamar called them in. They found the physician rubbing his hands in a state of unmistakable elation. In fact, his spirits were so slight that he somewhat obscured his vision. He did not seem to notice Miss Maxey's presence, and when Julian asked him how the case stood he burst out with an enthusiasm which would have done credit to the artist himself.

"I was right! I was right! They have agreed with me exactly!"

Miss Maxey suddenly burst into tears and left the room.

"She is overjoyed!" cried Maxey.

"Unfortunately, no," said the physician, biting his lip in vexation. "I ought to have known better. I told her

"I was right! I was right!"

this morning that if my diagnosis was correct the disease was necessarily fatal. You must tell her, Maxey, that I made a mistake. I thought so at the time, but I find I was mistaken. There is not a chance in a thousand that by submitting to a dangerous operation which will be very likely to either kill or cripple her the patient will recover. Without that operation she is doomed to suffering and death."

"What an alternative!" cried Maxey, aghast.

"I am sorry it is not in my power to offer you a better one, but in the present state of science I cannot. There is a relentless substance, no bigger than the end of my little finger, remorselessly eating its way into her brain. It is inevitable that it will do its work. It will do it fatal work. The only way to check it is to remove it. That is a rare and dangerous experiment, which very few of indeed in old books, such as Sir Astley Cooper's compilations of 60 years ago, but so rarely resorted to in practice that I did not know until today it was successful by accomplished very recently in England. There is scarcely a precedent for that operation. Now you understand the case. It remains for you to say whether the patient shall go to the hospital where he operated upon or remain here and die."

"Would the operation, if successful, restore her to her mind and memory?" questioned Maxey eagerly.

"It does not follow at all. The very matter that has confused and baffled all our calculations is the exact opposite of the symptoms. Beside the epileptiform symptoms arising from the tumor, which, by the way, must have been growing along in its dangerous work before the accident at the beach road, there are the psychical results of a certain cerebral disturbance. Perhaps the mental trouble was the consequence of the fright and would have been overcome by time for the work of the tumor. All this is conjecture. The possible result remains to be seen. Shall I go on or not?"

Two hours later Maxey gave his reply: "Go on."

CHAPTER VII.

MAXEY MAKES A RESOLVE.

Maxey rebd the letter in the fading light by the window, while the messenger who had brought the note to his rooms waited, cap in hand. It was as follows:

HOSPITAL, Dec. 9, 1884.

The girl has spoken. Her name is Dyo. Her father lives in Flood street.

JAMAR.

Short, epigrammatic, to the point.

"There will be no answer," said Maxey.

He heard the door close behind the retiring messenger and began to pace the floor, his hair erect and his head askew, while his impatient thoughts traveled over the wide range of possibilities which the information in the doctor's letter seemed to open before him. Surely now he was on the verge of the most important revelations, and yet he hesitated for the moment how to act in the emergency.

It was a question to him whether it were better at once to intrust this matter to those whose business it was to investigate crime or to attempt the investigation by himself, alone and unaided.

In the first case there would be the experience and educated acuteness of a gentleman playing his cautious. In the second case there would be the native shrewdness of a novice whose heart was fired with an enthusiasm, and whose mind was stimulated by an interest, for the intensity of which Maxey himself was sometimes in the rare moments when he indulged in self examination, at a loss to account.

While the artist was still debating with himself this problem Miss Maxey came in. She cried out almost before she opened the door:

"Oh, Julian, have you heard from the police?"

"I have. Annette has spoken. She has told her father's name."

Miss Maxey uttered a glad cry and somewhat astonished her brother by impulsively throwing her arms about his neck and kissing him.

"I am so glad I could cry," she exclaimed. "Who will get well, Julian. She will get well in spite of everything. Tell me the rest at once. Who pushed her from the road? Why did he do it? Why didn't her father answer the advertisement?"

"My dear sister, you forget that she must still be a very sick girl. It is a terrible operation to survive. Dr. Lamar told me something about it. Ugh! They have to go into the very brain itself."

Miss Maxey shuddered.

"Don't, Julian—please don't!"

"Forgive me. I forgot your sensitiveness. Let me come to other things. I want to know what you think about a certain matter that has been troubling me. Shall I put this new clew in the hands of the police, or shall I undertake to investigate it by myself?"

"By yourself, in the name of all that leads to success. How many times I've told you to do the police! And what have they done for us? Julian, we have found them. We know what they can do. Let us do it ourselves, and it will be well!"

"Yes," assented Maxey, "if I fail!"

"Why, then we shall see what I can do."

This was so good a joke that both of them—so ignorant are we of that which even a few days may bring forth—both of them laughed.

"Still I think you are right, Ellen. Our private affairs have been sufficiently discussed in the public prints already. It is about time that we again relapsed into obscurity. The police includes the press. That is my first objection, and that decides me. I will go on alone—at least till I encounter something that looks too big for me to cope with. Yes, I'll do that, and I'll begin at once."

So Julian Maxey, the artist, putting on his outer garments, set forth from his lodgings in the gathering dusk of a December evening to begin the investigation of a very tangled skein.

"Dyo! I am very positive I never heard that name before," he said to himself as he went along.

He was hardly probable that there is more than one family of that name in the city."

Maxey blamed himself for this fact as well as to save himself the trouble of undertaking a lengthy task in Flood street, where he went into a store and looked at a directory. He was very much disappointed, though not a great deal surprised, when an attentive perusal of the names beginning with Dy showed him that no such person as Dye was recorded in this neighborhood. The possibility of a man's having made a mistake occurred to him and led him to devise some curious combination of letters which he thought might be susceptible of a similar pronunciation. But his success was no better than before. Digh, Dygh, Dyr and similar barbarous expedients met with the same disheartening fate. Clearly there was nothing to be had to engage into Flood street and question the inhabitants.

Fortunately this was not an extensive avenue, but it made up in the density of its population what it lacked in length. There was more humanity here to the square foot than in 10 streets out of any average dozen in the city. So the artist street stretching between two brilliantly lighted thoroughfares, easy of access and not a thoroughly respectable, but pervaded with a general air of dilapidation and thronged with a most heterogeneous collection of people.

"Cheap lodging houses," thought Maxey as his glance wandered along the line of signs. "Cheap lodging houses."

"Truly I have undertaken a serious task. I may as well begin at the first house and go through to the end. I shall never find out anything by random questioning."

Maxey did not at all overestimate the magnitude of his undertaking. If he were not an ordinary errand or in an ordinary mood, he would have retired in disgust ere he was half through. He rang at every house bell in the street and followed each ring with a more or less tedious inquiry into the presence of the inmates of that house before he met with an encouraging response. At the door of No. 40 he got the usual answer to the ever-present urchin, who answered his summons, and received the customary reply:

"No such person here, sir."

"Sure?"

"I am sure," said the boy, "but I will ask pa if you say so."

Pa was a small, wiry man, with a sly face, who came up from the basement with a broom in his hand, as the overgrown urchin called to him. He looked at Maxey with no small degree of curiosity while the artist repeated his inquiry.

"I am looking for a man named Dye."

"Well, sir, you won't find him here. What did you want with him?"

"You won't find him here."

"In view of the fact that he does not live here," returned Maxey sharply, "I don't see what difference it makes to you."

"Nobody of that name lives here, true enough, but there are two rooms to let on the top floor to any upper floor. That is why I asked."

"Oh, that is why you asked! Very well, sir. Let me see the landlord at once, and pray tell him that my business is pressing."

The sly man surveyed Maxey with increasing curiosity and answered in a confidential tone: "Well, sir, you see I'm the landlord. What can I do for you?"

"Isn't there a place where I can speak to you privately without fear of being overheard?"

"To be sure there is!" exclaimed the sly man, with great alacrity. "Come right in."

In a minute or two Maxey was closeted in an unpretentious parlor with the landlord. The artist began by taking a card from his pocket and passing it across the center table. The sly man seized upon it with avidity and devoured it.

"Julian Maxey, artist. Happy to meet you, Mr. Maxey. My name is Belfry."

"Mr. Belfry," said Maxey, after a momentary deliberation, during which he had keenly scrutinized the landlord's face, "I have here an affair of some business, and business which is quite as private and confidential between you and me as it is important. I desire information, and for it I shall pay liberally."

Evidently the artist had made a felicitous beginning. There was no mistaking the radiance that lighted up the sly man's face at the mention of the last word in detail.

"Oh, don't mention it, sir! If I can be of any service to you, Belfry is your man."

"Thank you. Now I will be explicit. I want to know all about this lodger of yours who calls himself Dye, every possible detail connected with him, but I do not want him to know that I have made any inquiries concerning him. I desire to keep my interest in this matter entirely to myself."

The sly man's face visibly elongated at this announcement.

"But the first place," went on the artist, "who is Mr. Dye?"

"May I be blessed if I wouldn't give a tenth of a hen's nest myself. He's been living from what I have seen of him and of the people who inquire after him, he is a mighty curious and mysterious sort of individual."

"What do you mean by the people who inquire after him?"

The habitual sly look became a shade slyer.

"Well, you, for instance. There has been nobody else to speak of, with one exception, which doesn't matter, and never mind, for as that was confidential between me and her I am mum. But you're going to move, eh? I may say that a man giving his name as Leander Dye came to this house one morning something over two years ago and wanted to hire rooms. But being that there was that about the looks of this man that made me think of track events that never could be collected, and being that Belfry is a poor man and must live, I said at . . . [illegible] shabby gentleman that I w... looking for respectable, and if he wanted it to come here I could inquire into a few months' rent in advance. He gave me such a start then that I haven't got over it yet, for he threw me a roll of bills as big as my fist and counts out the money at once. That's the first I knew of that individual. He took the rooms at sight, and I dusted out, and he moved up a couple of trunks, and I didn't see no more of him for days."

"Was he alone?"

"Pretty much, only he had a woman with him."

"Was she young or old?"

"Middle aged. She wore a veil. He called her his cousin, I remember that was. Belfry is still undecided about him. He has kept a lodging house long enough to know a lodger when he sees it. I think I may remark that of Belfry and modest. I would mention that this woman wore a veil that concealed her features; that she got out of a hack at the door and went straight up to her rooms. Nobody got a good look at her, though drivers persons to my knowledge tried. All I can tell you about that personage, Mr. Maxey, is that she wore the clothes of a female and was of a melancholy disposition."

"How do you know that?"

"Because the partitions are not over thick, and the lodger in the next room heard her crying."

"Was he heard?"

"You are surprised, Mr. Maxey, at that lodger's stupidity. So was I. The man was an ass. Why, he didn't even take the trouble to put his ear to the wall. When I talked with him about it he answered and expressed my feelings plainly in a pitying smile, he could not see it even then. 'You don't know what you've missed,' says I. 'That's what he,' says he. 'If I got out of bed to listen every time I heard a woman squall, I shouldn't sleep at all. Women are always crying.'"

"Well, and what became of this man Dye?"

"As I was telling you, Mr. Maxey, he was invisible for two days, and then one night I saw him coming down stairs with the key of his door in his hand. 'Mr. Belfry,' he says, 'business calls me out of town'—them were his very words—'my daughter has taken her opportunity to go and visit friends of hers in the city. Unfortunately she went away in a hurry, and I forgot two things—to leave the key to the rooms with her or to give her my address.' And thereupon he handed me the key and fetched out of his pocket this very identical bill which I showed you now, Mr. Maxey, and went his ways."

Mr. Belfry passed over for the artist's scrutiny a crisp, new $20 bill.

"Then I was to give to the woman should she come back in his absence; but, as you have gathered, I guess, I have never set eyes on either of them from that day to this, which, if I do say it, in the estimation of Belfry has all the ear markings of sky-canary on the face of it."

"Mr. Belfry, you referred to another inquirer after Mr. Dye. Did I understand you it was a woman?"

"Very like, Mr. Maxey. Do you know her?"

"Well," returned Maxey in a noncommittal way, "what if I do?"

The landlord's left eye closed and opened in a suggestive manner.

"Nanso begins with F, oh! Pretty well up! Something of a stunner for looks?"

Maxey's blank face almost caused the sly landlord to smile, but he hit his lip and went on:

"Oh, well, if you don't come from her, I shouldn't feel at liberty to speak about a confidential matter, of course. That wouldn't be proper, not unless I felt and believed that I was working in a good cause. A man's conscience might sometimes lead him to do something which, generally speaking, he mightn't be close to do."

Belfry deliberately took a $10 bill from his pocket and placed it on the table.

"You are working in the best of causes," he said. "Let us know all about the lady. I know I am trespassing on your valuable time, Mr. Belfry, and I simply want to show you that I have no mean to overlook the fact that time is money."

"Oh, don't mention it, Mr. Maxey. I shouldn't think of charging you anything for my time and style, and I would like to feel sure that you are on the right side and that all is confidential between us."

"Rest assured of all this, Mr. Belfry."

The sly landlord's glance rested alternately on the bank note on the table. He seemed to have entirely forgotten its presence.

"The word of a gentleman ought to be enough for me, Mr. Maxey, and I will conceal nothing. Within about three weeks a certain mysterious female has rung my bell in most hour times. She always comes in the night pretty late, alone and with a dowdy shawl on and a good, thick veil over her face. But don't think I'm an idjet, Mr. Maxey. After being in the lodging house business for 20 years I am used to sly canary a little. She's no servant girl, for people like her can't pick up the ways of servant girls so very easy, and they only mince the matter when they try to pull the wool over the eyes of so old a bird as Belfry."

The sly landlord chuckled and continued:

"First two times she acted nervous and only came to the door and seemed to be entering up her real voice. The next two times she was nervous, but she came in. The last time she got a little excited and was boldness and left a letter to be delivered to this man Dye immediately on his return, to save herself the trouble of calling again, she said."

"A sealed letter?"

"Oh, bo, of course, of course, Mr. Maxey. Don't think she would tell Belfry any of her business. Oh, no! She was mighty careful, I tell you, but she brought me this envelope all sealed and directed in as pretty a little hand, as nice as you please."

"I suppose," began Maxey hesitatingly, "I suppose it would be scarcely meeting the eye to open that letter."

The landlord responded promptly:

"Oh, no, certainly not. And besides it—it would be of no use, you see. I think—in fact, I—I kinder guess what's in that letter."

"Guess? How? I don't understand you."

The sly landlord winked so profusely that he actually succeeded in simulating Maxey's limited knowledge of human depravity into a comprehension of his obtuseness.

"Oh, I see. You mean you have allready opened the letter."

"The letter was as good as ever it was," returned Mr. Belfry evasively. "It is sealed up as good as before, but a man keeping a lodging house can't afford to countenance any underhandedness, you know. I like to know the nature of any mail I'm carrying. Belfry is cautious, or he's nothing."

Maxey smothered his secret contempt and smiled.

"Well," he questioned, "and what did the letter say?"

"The letter said," replied Mr. Belfry, marking off the words on the tips of the fingers of one outstretched hand, "the letter said: 'Leander Dye—Come to me in the evening at 16 Livingston street. Come for your own interests and fail to come at your peril. I have some money for you. The sister.' That was the only document. What do you think of that?"

Maxey was silent.

"As for me," went on the sly landlord, "all these circumstances look queer."

"What did Mr. Dye leave in his room?"

He left two trunks locked and nothing in them but old clothes, one of them women's and the other men's. There wasn't much finery. His rags ain't up

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A CROP O' KISSES.

From her side I go a-singin in the mornin cool an gray,
When the dew shines in the furrow an the hills climb into day,
An I kiss her at the partin—she's the sweetest thing in life—
Like a "cue" to kiss my sweetheart 'fore my sweetheart was my wife.

It's kind o' "goodbye" kiss, though it's kissin mighty soon,
An I say, "I'll make it last me till the shadders point to noon,"
An the kiss larks sing "He kissed her," an the winds sing "So did we,"
When some wild rose comes a-climin an jes' steals her kiss from me.

Then the plow stands in the furraw, an my dreamin eyes I shoot
As I look where last I left her an I sing across the field:
"Here's the winds a-laughin at me, here's the lark a-singin shi,
He's kissed her, kissed her, kissed her, but the rose has stole the kiss."

Then with all the birds a-singin an a-twitin me so sweet,
I lose sight o' all the grasses roun the corn blades at my feet,
An my horse looks roun a-wonderin till he almost seems to say,
"Will you make a crop o' kisses or another crop o' hay?"

An I don't know how to answer, for I'm thinkin, too, in I were Like a feller jes' a-walkin from the middle of a dream,
An horse is out o' harness, with his mane a-flowin free,
An the roan that stole her kisses—well, she kissed him as me.

—Southern Magazine.

Origin of "Cases Pending."

"Cases pending," said a gentleman the other evening to a number of gentlemen as they sat watching the smoke form the Havanas curl upward in graceful clouds. "Now, there is a term in legal parlance you hear every day, and yet how many of you know how it originated?"

Not one knew, and he continued:

"Centuries ago in Germany, when people were just beginning to seek redress at law, the courts had not the intricate machinery and manner of keeping records they now have. Still the cases multiplied, and they used to write them down on a sheet of paper. These in time accumulated, so they stuck them on a long wire which hung over the judge's table. They used to take them off at the bottom of the pile, while the clerk always put the fresh ones on the top.

"Then there was always a pile of cases hanging over the judge's table, and so the term 'cases pending' naturally came into use."—Philadelphia Call.

Adulteration of Rubber.

The adulteration of rubber is something remarkable, and in order to make it weigh more heavier, white lead or most anything is used. The consumer is attracted to the product because it is cheap, but he pays just so much more per pound for the heavy minerals compounded. Insulating men use a very cheap rubber coming from the eastern coast of Mexico and Nicaragua. It sells for about 15 cents per pound and can hardly be called rubber. Chicle is very cheap and used in the manufacture of chewing gum. The whole subject is one of price, and as you cannot get something for nothing you cannot get lasting mechanical goods or a preparation which will not pay weight for weight for the rubber supposed to be in them.—Hardware.

The World Is Washing Away.

An interesting calculation has recently been made public through one of the many publications of the French Academy of Sciences. It is to the effect that, taking into consideration the wear and tear on the solid land by ocean lashing, river erosion and wind and weather, to say nothing of probable volcanic action, the world will by the end of the year 4,500,000 be completely washed away, and the ocean will roll over the present foundations of our great continents.—London Standard.

Expensive Warfare.

The cost of firing one of Krupp's 130 ton steel guns is £650, or, adding the cost of the projectile, £800, about $500 for each shot fired. The gun costs £99,000, and it can only be fired at the most 00 times. Two shots a minute can be discharged, so that if it were fired continuously it would become valueless in about half an hour. The gun has a range of 16 miles, and the projectile weighs 2,000 pounds.—London Court Journal.

Used to It.

"Well, Jennie, I hear you and Tom have fallen out."

"Yes. I gave him his quietus last evening. He really thought I would have him, when I was only flirting."

"How did he take his rejection?"

"Oh, easily enough. You know he is used to taking negatives. He's a photographer."—London Quiver.

Chinamen, when they refer to their wives—which is as seldom as possible—speak of them as "My dull thorn," or "The thorn in my ribs," or "The mare one of the inner room." Children similarly are styled "insects" or "worms," much as we say "chicks" or "cubs."

It is said that no book has ever been printed which did not contain typographical blunders. The nearest approach to perfection is "The Lusiad," printed by Joza Souza in 1817, which has but one, and that an accident caused by the press.

It is said to be a fact in natural history that in tropical regions a certain bird, whenever it finds a small snake, will perforate it with its bill and kill it, after which it will impale the body on a thorn of a thorn apple tree.

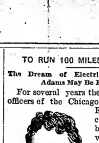
A Brooklyn deacon has invented a money sieve which sorts out the pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters which he collects in the church contribution box.

The number of marriages performed throughout the world each day is estimated at 8,000.

TO RUN 100 MILES AN HOUR.

The Dream of Electrician Wellington Adams May Be Realized.

For several years the efforts of the officers of the Chicago and St. Louis Electric Railway company have been directed toward the advancement of a system of rapid transit which they believe will revolutionize railroading in America, and now work has begun, and the construction of a road connecting St. Louis and Chicago will probably be pushed to completion. Under its charter the company is empowered to construct a practically straight line between those points.



WELLINGTON ADAMS.

The road will be double track, standard gauge, with 72 pound rails laid upon hard wood ties, with rock ballasted foundation. All bridges will be of standard steam railroad construction. There will be no railroad or country road crossings at grade. The line will pass over all railroads, and the country roads will be thrown over the tracks by means of bridges. The road will be operated from four electric power stations, each located at the mouth of a coal mine owned by the company and situated along the line. Fifty sections of five miles each will constitute the electrical divisions of the road. Behind each section having a car upon it there will be a dead section, on which it will be impossible for any car to run so long as a train is upon the preceding section, rendering it impossible for two trains to be upon one section at the same time, thus making a most complete and perfect block system.

It is the intention to run passenger, express and mail trains at the rate of 100 miles an hour, these cars making no stops between the two cities and making the entire distance in three hours, whereas it now takes all day to accomplish the journey. The motor passenger cars will be constructed of steel and will be long and low, the top of the car being but nine feet from the rails, and the front will be semiwedge shape to lessen atmospheric resistance. The rails will be fitted with mitered joints, doing away with the shock and click that prevail in the present methods.

The originator and general manager of the scheme, Dr. Wellington Adams, is a Chicago electrician well known throughout the west to financiers and railroad men, and the prospects are that we shall soon witness a great advancement in railroad travel.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY'S GRAVE.

A Huge Bowlder With a Bronze Medallion of the Poet Marks the Spot.

When a boy in his native town of Dowth, Ireland, John Boyle O'Reilly, the poet, carved his name on one of the stones in the wall of the ancient church at that place, and it was his wish that when life's journey had ended he might sleep in the old burying ground which surrounds it, with the stone he himself had carved to mark his last resting place. Later, when he visited the grave of General Sheridan at Arlington cemetery, Virginia, he was much impressed with the beauty of the surroundings and especially with the artistic memorial above the grave of the great soldier—a bronze medallion of the general set in a huge bowlder—and he was moved to remark, "It is worth while being dead to rest beneath a memorial like this."

When the poet editor died, it was found impossible to carry out his desire to lay his remains with his own, and he was buried in the beautiful cemetery of Holywood, near Boston, but the old stone from Dowth churchyard has been transferred from Ireland and set into the massive rock which fitly marks his grave, and a bronze medallion of the poet has been sunk into the face of the monument directly over the spot where his body reposes.

BOWLDER OVER THE GRAVE OF JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

The medallion of O'Reilly is beautifully executed in relief and is the work of Sculptor John Donoghue. It is a work of art, and Mrs. O'Reilly and the friends of the poet regard it as an absolutely faithful likeness. The placing of the stone from Dowth in the bowlder faithful as nearly as possible O'Reilly's wish. It is a block of yellow sandstone 16 inches long, 4 high and 7 deep. The letters "J. B. O'R." are plainly discernible and are quite regular in outline, but time and exposure have nearly obliterated the date of "90."

The immense rock above the grave is a part of the ledge underlying the burial plot, is pentagonal in shape, 12 feet in height and weighs in the neighborhood of 70 tons. Around its base are planted 100 trees from Dowth castle and two others from the grave of Martha Washington. The scenery around the grave is wooded and rugged and is considered the handsomest spot in Holynood.

War on the English Sparrow.

The ornithologist of the agricultural department has issued his annual appeal for the destruction of the English sparrow. He says by far the best way to fight the pest is by the destruction of its nests and young. Fully 90 per cent of the nests may be reached by means of a long pole with a hook on the end.

1894			JUNE.				1894
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fr.	Sa.
					1	2
3	4	5	6	7	8	9
10	11	12	13	14	15	16
17	18	19	20	21	22	23
24	25	26	27	28	29	30

A Point for Chief Arthur.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The court of appeal has decided to hear the Jenkins case, refusing to certify it to the supreme court. Attorneys for the Northern Pacific refuse to go on with the case. They claim that briefs were not filed in the specified time, and will probably appeal to the United States supreme court.

Wholesale Grocers Fail.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 3.—Steele & Walker, the largest wholesale grocery house on the Missouri river, has gone into the hands of a trustee. The failure grew out of the recent failure of A. N. Schuster & Co. Liabilities and assets large, but not yet known.

Train Robbers Broke Jail.

WICHITA, Kan., June 5.—Sylvia Young, Rigler and brown, train robbers lately captured at El Reno, have broken jail at Pond Creek. All officers of the southwest are after them. They are well armed and it is expected will fight to the death before being captured.

Continued the Jenkins Case.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The appeal of the labor unions and employes from the decision of Judge Jenkins refusing to dissolve the Northern Pacific injunction was continued till next Monday. The attorneys were not ready to argue the case.

When you start out on a journey you will get the best service, the greatest luxury, the most safety and comfort if your ticket reads via the North-Western Line. For full information as to through rates and routes and for sleeping car berths, call on your home agent, and for map folder free. Address W. W. Teesdale, G. P. A., C. St. P. M. & O. R'y, St. Paul. [46-tf]

Never Never Forget.

Every morning in the year, on arrival of Great Northern and Northern Pacific trains from the West, the Badger state Express via the North-Western Line leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 arriving Milwaukee 9:00 p. m.; Chicago 9:35 p. m. It has Superb Parlor car and is the only day train every day in the year between these cities. [46-tf]

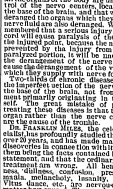
Grasp This and Hold It.

The North-Western Limited to Chicago via the North-Western Line is the finest equipped train out of Minneapolis and St. Paul. It has Pullman and Wagner Private Compartment and 16 section sleepers and Buffet-Smoking Library coaches and leaves Minneapolis, daily 7:30 p. m., St. Paul 8:10 p. m.; arriving Milwaukee 7:50 a. m.; Chicago 9:30 a. m. [46-tf]

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Hostetter's Pain Paralyzer is the best and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 50c, it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quick as Hostetter's Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.



No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that the nerves are the seat of the spinal cord, and hence the life of the brain and so much of the nerves is in the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a demonstrated fact primarily originating in the organ itself, but from the fact that when the nerves in these centers which control the organs are destroyed, paralysis is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the destruction of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement primarily originating in the organ itself, but from the failure of the nerves controlling it, and diseases in that they treat the organs rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

Dr. Franklin Miles, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied and treated the over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statements. He has the ordinary methods of treatment on trial. All headache, dizziness, "dullness, confusion, brain fag, sleeplessness, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principles. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on guarantee first bottle will benefit. Book on Nervous Diseases sent free by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle. Six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

S.S.S. Heals Running Sores. Cures the Serpent's Sting. S.S.S.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

In all its stages completely eradicated by S. S. S. Old ulcers and sores, and ulcerous eruptions yield to its healing power. It cures the poison and builds up the system with fresh, rich blood, as the doctors and patients testify.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court. Special term, June 4th, 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Charles S. Spendler deceased:

It is ordered that said petition be heard before said court, on Monday, the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston in said county;

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to all heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Ebbe H. Spendler granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on Monday, the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston in said county;

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to all heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 4th day of June A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. M. Dewey,
Judge of Probate.

(5-10)

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Adolf Forman, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Joseph Kelso, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of April, 1893, and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk aforesaid, on the 1st day of June, 1893, at 10:15 o'clock p. m. in Book "G" of Mortgages on page 99 of said, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of three hundred and ninety eight dollars and fifty five cents, and no action or proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof, and by reason whereof the mortgage contained the power of foreclosure shall be made in the payment of said sum of money, or the interest, or the taxes, or any part thereof at the time and in the manner, therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, and by reason of such default said party, his heirs, executors, administrators, assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell with the appurtenances, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeably to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said note and mortgage, together with all charges and costs and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars, as therein and herein mentioned; and whereas the said mortgage contains a power that the same shall be sold by the party of the first part in any of the premises of said mortgage described, at the front door of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns or his attorney is declare the whole sum thereby specified to be due. And whereas the whole sum of principal and interest is now due and payable and has not been paid, and whereas one note of $500 which became due October 28th, 1893, one note of $25 which became due October 28th, 1894, and one note of $10 which became due April 28th, 1894, and secured said mortgages has and does hereby so declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due. And whereas, there is now claimed to be due and is justly payable on said mortgage and debt the sum of $398.38 on account of principal and interest.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described and the said mortgaged premises will be sold by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure by proceedings described in said mortgage and so to be sold are those certain real estate and premises situate in the county of Polk, and State of Minnesota, described as the south half of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter (s½ ne¼ ne¼) section number eleven (11), township number one hundred and fifty (150), north of range number forty-three (43), west in the county of Polk, and State of Minnesota.

Dated this 4th day of June, A. D. 1894.

JOSEPH KELSO.
Mortgagee.

AILEY & KOZEEY,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
Hallock, Minn.

(6-14)

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office,

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skilfully performed.

DR. PEFFER'S

FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. NEVER FAILS. Relieve suppressed or painful menstruation. Best regulator for female system. Ladies, insist on having Dr. Peffer's Female Pills, or send for particulars. Beware of dangerous imitations. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail, $2 per box, or trial box 6, by mail, 50 cents. Pamphlet free. Sold by druggists. Address PEFFER MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS, and every thoughtful person will admit that our stock is well selected when they notice the following:

Rushford Wagons, John Deere Plows, Hollingsworth Rakes, Flying Dutchman Plows, Deering Binders and Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods. If you call we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

Is Now on deck at the Old Stand on Second Street, with a Full Line of

PAINTS and OILS and GLASS AND WALL PAPER

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

A NEW Serial

NOW RUNNING IN THE JOURNAL.

READ IT.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County it must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Populist County Convention, June 24th, at Crookston.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

A WEAK ARGUMENT.

The county divisionists are hard up for reasons to offer the taxpayers as to why Polk county should be divided. One point they dwell on is that small counties can be run more economically in proportion than large ones. Norman county is held up continually as an example of a small county which is run economically. Norman county is, however, an exception, and we are ready to admit that if the affairs of Polk county were administered as economically as those of Norman county, we could make a better showing for this county.

But last week the McIntosh papers attempted to make a comparison of Polk county with several smaller counties throughout the state as regards several expense items and the result was as follows:

Expenses of	Bds. C.	Jus. C.	Coron.	Print.	Total expense	4½ per twp.
Polk, 70 Tw.	$5,440	$1,955	47	$1,813	69	$9,309 70
Norman 37	2,695	69	1,455	75	1,550	50	1,961	50
Houston 17	1,833	80	171	72	446	17	716	50
Douglas 36	1,934	47	350	26	554	50	731	16
Norman 37	1,168	68	191	70	337	80	523	13

Now, to make a comparative table we should find the total of these expenses of each county, and then the cost per township. The following will be the result:

	Total expense	4½ per twp.
Norman	$9,309 70	$250 40
Houston	5,325 99	313 29
Polk	9,309 70	133 51
Douglas	7,965 49	184 32
Norman	5,480 11	150 67

It will thus be seen that even on their own showing the divisionists have no strength in their argument in favor of small counties. With the exception of Norman county, Polk will compare favorably with any other county in the state, and when compared with Stearns and Douglas —two of the counties selected in the table—Polk county is "way ahead.

If the divisionists expect to win they must give the people better reasoning than they are doing.

A RECEIVER NEEDED.

The State of North Dakota furnishes an excellent example of the effect of populistic statesmanship.

The populists have been in control of the state for about a year and a half and have brought its affairs to such a condition that if it were a private corporation a receiver would be appointed. Although the tax levy is up to the maximum, and but few bills outside of the salaries of the state officers are being paid, there is a deficit of $175,000 in the state treasury. In order to grind still more taxes out of the people the state auditor has instructed the assessors to assess all property at its full value. Thus, instead of trying to reduce the taxes of the people, these "reformers" are devising ways and means to increase the taxes.

The state institutions—which were equipped and operated by the republicans—are seriously crippled for want of funds and it is said that all of them except the hospital for the insane and the penitentiary will have to shut down, as the state cannot furnish funds to pay even the employes. In the midst of this ruin, these state officers are congratulating over the state on free passes, setting up plas for another election. Well, if they can go before the people with such a record as they have made and be re-elected, the people, as well as the state, should be taxed into bankruptcy.

SHOULD BE CHANGED.

The following letter from Capt. Donaldson explains itself. We believe that it expresses the sentiment of the majority of the members of the congressional committee. The convention should be held not later than the last week in July. The republicans should take an aggressive stand—as they always have—and not a weak, timid, wait-till-we-see-what-the-other-fellow-we-do policy which is one of the sentiments expressed by a late convention.

It is said a movement is on foot to have the committee meet in St. Paul during the state convention, and change the date of the congressional convention to an early date, so that farmer delegates can attend, and thus allay the suspicion that the politicians want to control the convention. This is as it should be.

NORTHCOTE, Minn., June 9, 1894.

ED. JOURNAL:—The copy of the JOURNAL containing an the action of the committee of the Seventh congressional district at hand and noted, and as a member of that committee I beg to say that I did not attend the meeting at Fergus Falls, but I wrote a letter to its chairman, Hon. Swanson, Strain, and suggested that either Crookston, Moorhead or Fergus Falls would be the most convenient point to call the convention, and that any time from June 20th to July 30th would be a suitable time for the farmers to attend. In my opinion it would have been much better for all concerned if the convention had been called for the last half of July, as at that time we all have plenty of spare time, while we are all crowded busy in the middle of September. This is a year when the republicans should make no mistakes, and if good nominations are made, Minnesota's next delegation to the 54th congress will consist of seven statesmen, none of whom will identify himself with "Coxey's tramp army."

Very truly yours,

H. W. DONALDSON.

EAST Grand Forks Courier: "It is hard now sometimes for a man to know where he is at." This is true as to the position of the editor of the Courier concerning division. A few weeks ago he was in favor of division, now he is against it. But the aforesaid editor must have known "where he was at" when he gained the information contained in the following paragraph taken from the same issue of his paper:

"What a strange coincidence—just as soon as the grand jury convenes at Crookston a special assessment is levied on the madams doing business in this city."

If the above is true, Editor Duffy of the Courier should expose the individual or county official, who levies these assessments—otherwise called blackmail, or blood-money—instead of performing his duties and rooting out the evil. We believe the above statement is of sufficient importance, and made with sufficient emphasis, to warrant an investigation by the grand jury, and Duffy should be given an opportunity to prove this broad, but-looted assertion.

At a meeting of republicans lately held in Washington, the question of the appointment of a non-partisan committee to report a code of laws to restrict immigration, was favorably discussed. It would be a blessing to this country if more restrictions were placed on foreign immigration. For years the steamship and railroad companies of this country have kept agents in Europe to induce immigration to America, until portions of the country have become over-populated with foreign laborers and the condition of the laboring man is little if any better than it is in Europe.

We have a vast, productive country, which as yet only partially developed, but it requires capital and time to develope it. But millions of men are now out of employment, and labor is a drug on the market. Until such time as this country is in need of more laborers, it should protect foreign immigration and turn its attention and taking care of its own poor. We should have more of the sentiment of "America for Americans," rather than "American for the whole world."

The sugar trust is to be protected, and the growers of sugar cane and sugar beets in this country are to be discouraged.

The sugar schedule of the Wilson bill as adopted by congress imposes a duty of 40 per cent ad valorem on all sugars, raw and refined, with a differential of one-eighth of a cent per pound on sugars above 16 Dutch standard, and an additional one-tenth of a cent against sugars imported from countries paying an export bounty. It continues the Hawaiian treaty, admitting sugars from the Sandwich islands free of duty, and places a duty of 2 cents per gallon on molasses testing above 40 degrees by the polariscope. The present duties goes into effect January 1st, 1895, and the bounty is continued until that date.

S. M. OWEN, who has always had the respect of men of all parties, is proving himself a demagogue and becoming a politician of the Donnelly stripe. The unemployed of Minneapolis have been holding meetings, and Mr. Owen has been addressing these gatherings. Instead of offering them something practical—something that will meet their needs—he gives them political harangues—tells them that populism will relieve them—and lays the blame for the present hard times and consequent lack of employment at the door of both the old parties. In heaven's name will Mr. Owen tell us how the republican party is in any way responsible for the present condition of the country.

THE honest of populist organs has been "economy in the administration of affairs" and now they advocate closing the Normal schools in North Dakota in order to "economize." What a reflection upon a government when its financial management brings it to such a pass. And the pops have only been in power in North Dakota a very short time. If they begin to close the public schools in a year or two, it would not take them long to wind up the affairs of government if they continue in the same ratio.

IN another column will be found the call issued by the republican county committee for a county convention to elect delegates to the republican state convention. Owing to the fact that the date for holding the congressional convention in the Seventh district will undoubtedly be changed from September 11th to some time in July, this call should have embraced in its objects the election of delegates to the congressional convention also—as has always been the custom here and elsewhere.

A STATE farmer's institute for Marshall county, will be held at Warren on June 22d and 23d.

THE congressional committee on buildings has recommended an appropriation of $1500,00 for a new government printing office, and $300,000 for grounds for the building.

THE Minneapolis boss, Mike Doran, seems to be losing his grip. At any rate it is said that Holbrook, the new democratic appointee as postmaster at Minneapolis is said to have been the choice of others beside the boss.

Who will be the democratic nominee for president? Someway the dems do not seem very enthusiastic on this subject. We don't hear any hurrahs for Cleveland.

Marsh Items.

Everybody doing road work.

Saturday's rain seemed to miss this neighborhood—it followed the the rivers, and more went east.

Miss Maggie Robinson, of Grand Forks, is visiting friends here.

A large collection was taken up in the Marsh church last Sunday, "Children's Day," which is to aid the home missionary work. Some exercises were given by the children, which were very entertaining.

Dr. Marshall, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign missions, will lecture on Saturday afternoon at the Marsh church.

John and James Morrow, Harry McKinnon and the other boys returned home Saturday from their trip to Thief River Falls hardly disappointed. They say the land is not the best in some places.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. White and Mrs. Wm. Rodgers went to Crookston Saturday on business.

Mr. Wm. Cameron and family left for their future home in Fosston Thursday. Mr. Cameron intends running a livery and feed stable.

He Got Turnip Seed.

There is a gentleman in Alexandria who involuntarily started a farm. It happened this way: His front yard was as barren of grass as Bill Nye's head is of any hirsute adornment. With a view to having it green and pretty he went over to the agricultural department and begged some lawn seed, which were willingly given him by Secretary Morton. He then returned home, and with much satisfaction and expectation planted them. Pictures of a beautiful green lawn and neighbors green with envy were conjured up before his fanciful mind, and he watched the heaving sunshine and refreshing April showers with the deepest interest.

In a few days the sprouts began to show above the earth. But they were very curious looking sprouts, and they seemed about as much like blades of grass as a spade is like a pick. The gentleman began an investigation. The sprouts began to grow with rapidity, and in a few weeks there was more prospect of having a vegetable garden than a lawn. Authorities were consulted, and after a time it was discovered that Mr. Morton had made a mistake. Instead of grass he had presented the Alexandrian with turnip seed.—Washington News.

He Knew Boys.

The boy had applied for a job.

"We don't like lazy boys around here," said the boss. "Are you fond of work?"

"No, sir," responded the boy, looking the boss straight in the face.

"Oh, you're not, ain't you? Well, we want a boy that is."

"They ain't any," said the boy doggedly.

"Oh, yes, there are. We have had a half dozen of that kind here this morning to take the place we have."

"How do you know they are?" asked the boy.

"They told me so."

"So could I if I was like them, but I'm different. I ain't a liar," and the boy said it with such an air of convincing energy that he got the place.—Detroit Free Press.

His Condition.

Old Doctor—So you think my daughter's happiness is safe in your hands, sir?

Young Doctor—I know she loves me, and I do not see how I could live without her.

Old Doctor—Well, you are a young man of good character, and I will give you my consent on one condition.

Young Doctor—Name it.

Old Doctor—It is that when she is ill you won't try to doctor her yourself. —London Answers.

Republican County Convention.

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 7, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk County, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the city of Crookston, on the 29th day of June, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing 12 delegates to represent said county at the Republican State Convention, to be held at St. Paul, Minn., July 11th, 1894.

The basis of representation shall be one delegate at large for each voting precinct, and one delegate for every twenty-five votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for Governor, at the general election in November, 1892.

The several voting precincts are entitled to representation as follows, viz:

Andover	2	3d ward	3
Angus	2	4th ward	3
Blackdune	2	Garfield	1
Bray	1	Garden	1
Badger	1	Gentilly	1
Brandsvold	2	Gervais	1
Belgium	2	Grove Park	1
Brisbe	1	Godfrey	1
Bygland	1	Hammond	1
City of Crookston—		Helena	2
1st ward	4	Hill River	1
2d ward	3	Huntsville	2
3d ward	3	Hubbard	2
4th ward	6	Keystone	1
5th ward	4	Kertsonville	1
Columbia	1	Klug	1
Chester	1	Knute	1
Emmrsville	1	Lake Pleasant	1
Euclid	1	Lambert	1
Eden	1	Liberty	1
Fairfax	2	Lessor	1
Farley	1	Lavell	1
Fanny	1	Louisville	1
Fisher	2	Nesbit	2
Fairview	1	Norden	1
City of E. G. Forks—		North	2
1st ward	1	Northland	1
2d ward	1	Nmedal	1

Onstad	1
Parnell	1
Poplar River	1
Polk Center	1
Queen	1
Red Lake Falls—
Village	2
Township	1
Reis	1
River Falls	1
Rocksbury	1
Roome	2
Rosebud	3
Russia	1
Shiecheart	1
Sanders	1
Sandsville	1
Village St. Hilaire	2
Sletten	1
Sullivan	1
Tabor	1
Terrebonne	1
Tilden	1
Tynsid	1
Underwood	2
Winger	2
Woodside	1
Wyandotte	2

By order of the County Committee.

P. J. McGUIRE, Chairman.

W. A. ROBERTSON, Sec.

Artistic Cotton Gowns for Ladies.

The materials for these gowns are the staple Scotch ginghams, light weight Zephyrs, heavier Chambrays and the Madras cottons. The new patterns show small figures, corded flues, stripes and dots. Some of the ginghams are more elaborate, and have interwoven white designs to imitate tambour embroidery, raised satin bars dots or stripes and some a crepe-like surface. Colors are light and dainty. Their style of making is similar to that of the cloth dresses, and very frequently the elaborate ginghams are shown with the dark color used as trimming. Dainty muslin, too, is in vogue this year, in lettings and fancy patterns. The Mc-Dowell Fashion Journals from which these fashion items are taken, contain a great variety of models for all sizes of these materials. Their coupon patterns, moreover, which are so popular, show many new designs which are unique in point of artistic style and in perfect stability. Of these fashionable publications, "La Mode de Paris" and "Queen of Fashion" cost only $3.00 each year or 25 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $2.00 per annum or 30 cents a copy. "La Mode," finally (journal which has no superior and no equal in this country, only costs the trifling sum of $1.50 per year or 15 cents a copy. The above first mentioned publications offer $1.00 worth of coupon patterns, and "La Mode" fifty cents worth of patterns as a premium for a yearly subscription. If you are unable to procure any of these journals from your newsdealer, do not take any substitute from him but apply by mail to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

MRS. Harrit A. Marble, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was for years a martyr to headache, and never found anything to give her more than temporary relief until she began to take Ayer's Pills, since which she has been in the enjoyment of perfect health.

"Is this hot enough for you?" is a silly question; but if you meet a man who complains of suffering from heat, ten to one you will find on inquiry, that he does not use Ayer's Sarsaparilla to tone up his system and free his blood from irritating humors.

Dandruff is an exudation from the pores of the scalp that serenate and dries, forming scurf and causing the hair to fall out. Hall's Hair Renewer cures it.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure.

Send for list of testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo. O.

Sold by all druggists, 75.

Pinet In Your Memory,

That the North-Western Line offers the best train service from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Sioux City, Duluth and Superior, and is the only line running pullman sleepers to all these cities, besides affording first-class day train service. Try this line also to Ashland. [46-tf]

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and have used more of it since operating, and have used none of it since the sale of the notice, on said mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid thereon the sum of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars ($548.75-100) and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described as and covered by said mortgage viz: Lot number twenty-six (26) in Schumacher's Addition to the original townsite of Melrose, according to the plat and survey thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds for said Polk county, and lying and being situated in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, public sale will be made by the sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1894, at (10) ten o'clock, a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars, interest and taxes if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

L. ELLINGTON, Mortgagee.

E. P. PIERCE,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [6-13]

Mrs. J. H. HORSNYDER, 152 Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, Cal., writes:

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald, and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair and I now have as fine a head of hair as one could wish for, being changed, however, from blonde to dark brown."

Began to Grow,

"After a fit of sickness, my hair came out in combfulls. I used two bottles of and now my hair is over a yard long and very full and heavy. I have recommended this preparation to others with like good effect."—Mrs. Sidney Carr, 1240 Regina st., Harrisburg, Pa.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years and always obtained satisfactory results. I know it is the best preparation for the hair that is made."—C. T. Arnett, Mammoth Spring, Ark.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

C. A. FISCHER,

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH,

Repair Guns, Revolvers, Check Lamps Patents, Rebuilding of all kinds; also Novelty Repairs. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Wold Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

MORTGAGE SALE.

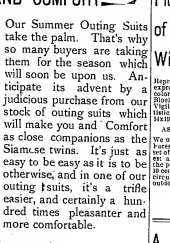
DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage dated on the 8th day of April, A. D. 1892, made and executed by Jens O. Rinde and Ingeborg Rinde his wife, mortgagors to Ellington Bros., mortgagee and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 16th day of July, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and recorded in book 31, of mortgages, on page 383, by reason whereof no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described as and covered by said mortgage viz: Lot number twenty-six (26) in Schumacher's Addition to the original townsite of Melrose, according to the plat and survey thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds for said Polk county, and lying and being situated in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, public sale will be made by the sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1894, at (10) ten o'clock, a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars, interest and taxes if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

L. ELLINGTON,
Mortgagee.

E. P. PIERCE,
Attorney for Mortgagee [6-13]



FOR EASE AND COMFORT

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as the Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of

Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE, And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
PROPRIETORS.

Pictures of Sport With Rod and Gun

Reproduced in 2 colors from originals painted expressly for the purpose. They are three water colors, each containing in Part I fishing at Black Island; Quail shooting; and one elk, Vigilant and Valkyrie II. sailing. All are artistic, beautiful and rich in effect. For frames $2.00. Price of set, 50 cents.

AS "FOREST AND STREAM" PREMIUM.

We will send the sportsman's favorite journal, Forest and Stream, one year (price $4.00) and a set of four pictures (a $2.00 value) for $4. Or four set and Stream 4 months and choice of two of the pictures for $4. This is a rare offer. Send 50 cents for specimen copy of Forest and Stream, circular and catalogue of the best books on outdoor sports.

Forest and Stream Pub. Co.,

P. O. Box 2832, New York City.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

DR. PEFFER'S FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. NEVER FAILS. Relieve suppressed or painful menstruation in 24 hours. Never known to fail. Perfectly harmless. Save money. Ask druggist for them. Beware of imitations. Take no other. Sent by mail, sealed, on receipt of price, $2 per box, or three boxes, $5. Pamphlet free. Sold by druggists. Genuine only when bought of PEFFER CHEMICAL CO., Proprietors, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand' Crookst n.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Proceedings of the Meeting of the County Commissioners Held June 6th.

Numerous Iron Bridges Contracted For, and Others Inspected.

$15,000 of 6 Per cent. County Bonds Sold—$2,500 Disbursed.

The board met June 6th; all members present.

Item 18 in the personal assessment of S. L. Dobson, Crookston, was ordered transferred to the assessment of lot 7, block 12, Fletcher & Houston's addition.

The board entered into a contract with the Great Northern Railway Co. in regard to the construction of a bridge across the Lowell ditch, where the road crosses said ditch.

The board will hear at the next meeting the petition of C. S. Richardson and others, who ask for the organization of a school district out of part of districts 143 and 119. The individual school petitions of Chas. Charlebois, Michael Quinnell, Edwin Niel and Frank Hanson will also be heard at next meeting.

Commissioners Hilmebart and Linden reported having inspected the iron bridge across the state ditch in Hubbard township, and found the same all right, and that the Wrought Iron Bridge Co. was entitled to the contract price of $1785. The bill was ordered paid.

Sections 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 35 and 36, twp. 151, R. 43, were organized into a new school district to be known as No. 88.

The petition of Silas H. Kennedy to detach his farm from school district 111 and attach it to district 109 was rejected.

$100 was allowed Fairfax township for grading county road bet ween section 6 and 5, township 149, range 46.

$300 was appropriated to Gurfield township in building a bridge across Sand Hill river near the mill dam of Kunkel and Hoss.

The personal assessment of G. Halvorson, in Crookston, for 1893, was reduced $150.

The board then revised the list of uncollected personal taxes of 1893, and ordered citations issued against the following persons:

Peter Tunstad, Andover.
Jennie Miller, "
L. Lauzebrigbe, Hebbet.
J. B. Cogswell, Crookston.
E. S. Chapin, "
A. Hanson, "
Frank Jerome, "
Iona & Kitsleben, East Grand Forks.
F. W. Hancock, "
Hattie King, "
North Dakota Elevator Co., E. G. Forks.
W. B. Houston, "
C. C. Lewis, Higdon.
G. G. Bower, Erskine.
H. Bowers, Reis Lake.
W. C. Smith, "
Frank Nelson, E. G. Forks.
L. Buxton, "
Henry O. Hogan, "
John Lewis, Fosston.
John Bellief, Earley.
M. Mcgillivray, "
John Glenn, "
Thos. Saunders, Grand Forks.
E. J. Severns, Hill River.
Berg & Nelson, Hiledun.
John Nelson, "
O. M. Frank, "
Olaf Brandvold, Lovell.
Gust & Gerberg, R. L. Falls.
C. L. Mcgillivray, "
C. Mcgillivray, "
Thos. Dahl, "
J. Severson, Soome.
L. O. Stanland, Sabten.
Barnard & Sarsed, Keystone.
Hugh Comrie, "
G. Bjorge, Melntosh.
A. & S. Miller, Nesbit.
Saml Dahlen Elevator Co., Nesbit.
Saml Thoreson, Northland.
Peter Wyse, "
N. D. E. Co., Crystal.
Henry Smith, Polk Centre.
N. D. E. Co., Parville.
N. D. E. Co., Fairfax.
Ed. Thomas, Steelton.
Mark Congdon Parley.
Wm. Hamilton, "
Tom Stenhouse, "
Wm. Wynn, "
Joseph Brewster, Fisher village.
Saunders Bros., Grand Forks.
J. H. Gosling, Garfield.
J. Christianson, Red Lake Falls.
N. D. Elevator Co., "
E. Bennington, Reis
C. Bennington, "
N. D. Elevator Co., Tilden.
John Cryan, Steleton.
Mrs. Nettie Johnson, Sullivan.

The taxes against the following persons were ordered cancelled:

Joseph Genereau, Rydund.
K. F. Jonson, Crookston.
W. J. Burr, "
A. Halvorson, "
M. B. Hayes, "
H. E. Erickson, "
M. L. Pratt, "
Mrs. C. wyall, "
Louis Labell, "

$600 was appropriated out of the road and bridge fund to be expended in the opening of a road commencing at the northwest corner of section 21 —151—46, running north along the west line of sections 30, 19, 18 and 7 of said township until the same intersects the high way commonly known as the old county road, at a point between said section 7 and 12—151—45, said expenditure to be conducted under the supervision of the commissioner of the fifth district.

A petition from residents in Keystone township, asking for an appropriation to open up a ditch originally constructed by the railroad company was read, and upon investigation the board found that they had no authority to expend public funds for such such purpose.

Klisch, Linden and Hilmebart were named as a committe to investigate the condition of the bridge between sections 1 and 2, township 152, range 50, with power to act.

The road and bridge committee reported having examined the bridge on the county road between sections 3 and 4, Fairfax township, and found the same in fairly good condition.

That they together with the supervisor of Fisher township, had examined the bridge between sections 1 and 36, Roome and Fisher townships and found the same unfit for travel, and recommended that $500 be appropriated out of the road and bridge fund to help said town construct a new bridge at said place, and that said new bridge had been constructed according to agreement. They had also inspected the ferry boat at Louisville and found it constructed according to agreement. The report was accepted.

The following road and bridge appropriations were made: To Fanny township $150; Tilden $75; Brandsvold $75; Gentilly $100.

The motion of Commissioner Oppegaard to appropriate certain amounts in favor of Knute, Klug and Woodside was defeated—Klisch, Hilmebart and Demers voting no.

By a unanimous vote $1439 was appropriated out of the revenue fund to aid the city of Crookston in constructing a sewerage sewer to connect with the court house grounds said amount to be due when said work is completed and accepted by the city council.

It was moved by Kirsch, seconded by Demers, that the official publication of the commissioners' proceedings be set in solid "brevier" type, and the matter be measured as "nonpreil". Carried.

The following bids for the issue of $15,000 Polk county 6 per cent bonds were presented:

J. D. Cleborn & Co., Minneapolis $16,000 at 6 per cent.

Farmers and Mechanics Savings Bank, Minneapolis $1500 at 6 per cent.

W. J. Hayes & Son, Cleveland, Ohio, $16721 at 6 per cent.

Parson, Leach & Co., Chicago, $12300 at 8 per cent.

On motion the bid of W. J. Hayes & Son was accepted; the bonds to mature in ten years.

The amount of $250, or as much thereof as is necessary, was appropriated out of the road fund to grade that portion of Sixth street between Broadway and Ash street, adjoining the court house, said work to be supervised by Commissioner Kirsch.

The board granted the petition of John B. Iren and others for the construction of a ditch, commencing at the quarter post on the south line of section 28—148—48, and running northwest through the towns of Tabor, Farley and Sandsville, and appointed the following viewers; M. R. Brown, J. J. Ide and John Driscoll, who are to meet at the county auditor's office on June 11th, preparatory to entering upon their duties.

Commissioner Kirsch was authorized to investigate as to whether the proceedings connected with the laying out of Fisher and Sand Hill river county road, were completed, or if such road can be legalized by any supplementary proceedings at the present time.

The personal assessment of Thomas Logan in Tynsid township, was reduced $40, and taxes paid in excess were ordered refunded.

Commissioner Kirsch was instructed to purchase transportation for Mrs. Martha Christenson., residing upon unorganized territory township 152—42.

Martin Pederson of township 151—41 was allowed $5 per month for the keeping of an old man named Quale.

The assessment of a building against lot 3, block 2, Red Lake Falls was ordered cancelled.

The application of Cyprien Gosselin for exemption in the assessment of lot 40, block 3, Red Lake Falls was referred to the council of Red Lake Falls for recommendation.

The chairman was authorized to procure materials for the fixing of the vault floors.

The petition of Peter Brandsberg and others, asking to be detached from district No 44, and attached to district No. 70, will be held at next meeting.

It was moved by Kirsch, seconded by Demers, that the bills of A. R. Holston and Adolf Bydni, for printing, allowed at last meeting, be reconsidered.

Motion carried, Linden and Oppegaard voting no. On motion of Kirsch the bills were then laid on the table.

The board decided to enter into a contract with the Wrought Iron Bridge Co. to build two bridges, one at the point where the Fisher county road across said ditch, and one at the section corner between sec. 14, 15, 22 and 23, twp. 150-47, the cost of said bridges not to exceed $636 each. The wooden bridges to be erected across said ditch are to be built under the supervision of the road and bridge committee.

Bills amounting to $2,328.57 were allowed, consisting mainly of court expenses, hospital expenses and county commissioner fees. Bills amounting to $614.92 were allowed for books and stationery.

DISTRICT COURT

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

be testified his wife bought that of Cleary Bros. George Yue testified that the lard was steam manufacture mixed with cotton seed oil, and not home made lard. Nick Thoreson refused to testify because he did not want to convict himself.

TUESDAY.

The case against O'Brien was finished and given to the jury about 10 o'clo k; Ed. George and E. M. Stanton counsels for defendant, and A. R. Holston for the state.

The case against Charles Lejeune, charged with petty larceny—wrongfully using $10 of the funds of school district 105—was dismissed by County Attorney Holston on account of not having sufficient evidence to convict him.

A jury was then called in the Thoreson case: Ed. George and E. M. Stanton defending Thoreson.

About the same character of evidence was introduced regarding the goods slipped and the finding of the car open, as in the other cases. Some goods were found in defendant's house—a can of lard, a sack of sugar, a package of matches and a plug of two of tobacco. After his arrest, trial and commitment, Thoreson sent for A. R. Holston and A. C. Wilkinson, by Mr. Noble, and in the presence of these witnesses made a written statement to the effect that he took 100 pounds of sugar and 30 pounds of lard; that Nick Eraldield took it out of the car; that he was watching; O'Brien was with him all went together: after I went up to O'Brien's house. Dick had some "Newsboy" tobacco. Dick had sack of sugar—100 lbs. Me and Eraldield went back again and each got a pail of lard. We didn't break the car seals. Mrs. Dick O'Brien brought me two pieces of tobacco and package of matches; said I might as well have some of it; didn't want it all found in my house. I met Eraldield and he told me the car of merchandise was there open. Told me in the day time. We went in the night about ten o'clock. O'Brien went ahead, we followed. I saw a stranger on the truck, didn't know him. Just before the noon adjournment the jury in the O'Brien case returned the verdict of "not guilty."

AFTERNOON.

Thoreson was put on the stand and said he found the sugar and lard on the truck of the Great Northern about ten o'clock on the night of April 17th or 18th, that he bought the tobacco and matches from the store between the postoffice and the Scandia Bank. He claimed he had been promised by Mr. Noble that it would be better for him to acknowledge what he had taken and that he then would help him if he would tell all.

He claims the statements he made to Holston, Wilkinson and Noble were all untrue that he made them with the intention of getting out; that he was not under oath and that he did not have to tell the truth then. The case was given the jury about 3:30 p. m. After remaining out one hour they brought in a verdict of "guilty of grand larceny in the second degree", and recommend the defendant to the mercy of the court.

The case of State vs. Nick Eraldield was next called. The county attorney objected to trying this case with the same jurors who were on the O'Brien case and did not want to call talesmen from the crowd, so a special venire for fifteen men was issued; returnable at 9 a. m. Wednesday. One juror was selected from the number yet undrawn and the O'Brien jurors were excused from service.

WEDNESDAY.

A jury was secured from among the fifteen jurors summoned this morning for the trial of Nick Eraldield. The evidence relative to the goods being shipped from Minneapolis and arriving here was submitted by counsel for defense, the several employes of the Great Northern who had testified having returned home. Two butts of tobacco (about four pounds), and six or seven packages of matches were found in Eraldield's trunk at O'Brien's house. Eraldield testified that last November he took a party of North Dakota men up to the Red Lake reservation; they had provisions, tobacco, matches and whiskey; they intended to stay three weeks but stayed only seven days; they gave him the matches and tobacco in question; that he "swiped" it on a farm three or four miles from Crookston until in April he came to O'Brien's, his tobacco and matches were furnished while on the farm; he knew nothing about the lard and tin can.

After being out a few minutes the jury in the Eraldield case brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Lieut. Mauley, who has been tried by a court martial at Fort Snelling for killing Capt. Heidburg at Fort Sheridan, has been acquitted, and will be suspended from duty for one year. The killing was found to be in self-defense.

THE STRIKE SETTLED

MINERS AND OPERATORS CONFER AT COLUMBUS, O.,

And Agree on a Scale to Take Effect Monday—Rope Exposed to Similar Action Will Be Taken in Other Districts.

COLUMBUS, O., June 13.—Miners and operators in this district have agreed to a compromise and work is to be resumed on Monday next, on condition that the new scale is approved by the national board. The conference began in session all day and about 6:30 p. m. the scale committee announced that an agreement had been reached and was being drawn up. The compromise was on a basis of 60 cents in Ohio and 69 for Western Pennsylvania. The agreement is not to take effect until next Monday, June 18, the miners desiring to have a week to submit the matter to the various districts, as much opposition to the compromise is expected and the miners will have to be prepared to accept it.

The Agreement Ratified.

At the joint conference in the evening the agreement was ratified. A. A. Adams, president of the Ohio Miners' union, who was a member of the scale committee, refused to sign the agreement. The settlement, however, is final. The scale agreed upon is as follows: Pittsburg, thin vein, 69 cents; thick vein, 69 cents; Hocking Valley, 60 cents; Indiana bituminous, 80 cents; Indiana block, 70 cents; Streator, Ills., 62 1-2 cents for summer and 70 cents for winter; Bloomington, Ills., 77 1-2 cents for summer and 86 cents for winter; La Salle and Spring Valley, Ills., 72 1-3 cents for summer and 80 for winter. Coal in Pittsburg district going west on the river after April 1.

Pay the Same Mining Price.

as that paid by the Pennsylvania Gas and West Moreland Coal companies. The scale of prices will be in effect and used both parties thereto beginning June 18, 1894, and continue until July 1, 1895; provided, that the above named scale of prices for the Pittsburg districts shall be generally recognized and observed. The operators and miners shall co-operate in their efforts to secure an observance of said price, and if, during the period covered by the agreement, recognition of the prices herein named cannot be secured, either party to this agreement may call a meeting of the joint board of arbitration and determine whether the agreement has been willfully complied with to warrant its continuance.

Speedy Settlement Expected.

While it has been announced that the agreement reached by the operators and miners in their joint conference in this city is final, its effect upon the strike remains to be seen. The fact that fully a week will intervene before the agreement is taken effect leads to the belief that the determination of the miners to accept no compromise can be nullified, a majority of the delegates left for their homes immediately after the adjournment of the conference, and those who could be seen were confident that the agreement would bring about a speedy settlement of the strike. E. W. Bent of La Salle, Ills., wee of the opinion that the settlement in Northern Illinois would follow the action of the rest of that state to come into line.

FAILED TO AGREE.

Operators Flatly Refuse the Demand Made by Miners at Pumeroy, O.

PUMEROY, O., June 13.—The conference of the operators and miners here left matters in worse shape than before. Forty delegates, in attendance, representing the 18 mines in the district met only the operators from the Ohio side appeared. They refused to vouch for West Virginia operators. It was shown, however, that those represented a lot more than half the output and the conference went on. The miners stated, in answer to questions from operators, that in case of satisfactory settlement work would resume as soon as approved by wire by the national board. Miners then made a proposition of mining for 2 1-2 cents per bushel, an increase of one-fourth of a cent over last year's rate. The operators flatly refused to consider the proposition and left the conference without any settlement.

AFIRE IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

Further Accounts of Fires in Michigan Several Buildings Burned.

DETROIT, Mich., June 13.—A special to The News from Bay City, Mich., says: The woods are afire in all directions. In Sidnaw five buildings, including the Central Ryan hotels, were burned. Loss $10,000.

A special from Rockland says: At Robbins, Ontonagon county, a store and five dwellings were burned, including the telegraph office.

Forest and Forest Officers.

ST. PAUL, June 9.—At the Forester's convention an all night session for the election of officers was determined on, and about 9:30 the first officer was elected in the person of Thomas H. Cannon of Chicago as chief ranger. Prof. J. Callen of Milwaukee was re-elected as vice chief ranger; Dr. T. F. O'Malleara to question: that he "swiped" it on a farm three or four miles from Crookston until in April he came to O'Brien's, his tobacco and matches were furnished while on the farm; he knew nothing about the lard and tin can.

After being out a few minutes the jury in the Eraldield case brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Lieut. Mauley, who has been tried by a court martial at Fort Snelling for killing Capt. Heidburg at Fort Sheridan, has been acquitted, and will be suspended from duty for one year. The killing was found to be in self-defense.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, May 29.

The bill to repeal the state bank tax was taken up by the house, and Mr. Cox of Tennessee opened the debate for the friends of unconditional repeal. Mr. Johnson of Indiana followed with an argument in favor of a substantial, stable currency. Mr. Black of Georgia spoke in favor of the bill. Adjourned until Thursday.

Senator Kyle withdrew his Hawaiian resolution with the understanding that a vote should be reached on the Turpie resolution. Vest offered a substitute for the Turpie resolution. A motion to lay the Vest resolution on the table was defeated, 18 to 38. The tariff bill was then taken up and Senators Pettigrew and Proctor spoke against it.

The report of the bribery investigating committee to the senate asks for the punishment of correspondents Edwards and Shriver, who refused to give the source of their information regarding the sugar trust.

Wednesday, May 30.

Both houses adjourned for Memorial day.

Thursday, May 31.

After the passage of the Hawaiian resolution the senate took up the tariff bill. The finance committee's amendment so as to place all kinds of lumber on the free list. The sugar schedule was then taken up and Senator Sherman of Ohio made a speech.

The house continued the consideration of the bill repealing the tax on state banks.

Friday, June 1.

The senate bill providing for carrying out of the award of the Paris tribunal of arbitration for the protection of seals in Behring sea was passed by the house, after which the Brawley repeal bill was taken up.

The senate discussed the sugar schedule. Mr. Manderson was the principal speaker.

Saturday, June 2.

The house spent the day in committee of the whole on the Brawley repeal bill. The senate discussed the sugar schedule of the tariff bill.

Monday, June 4.

The Brawley state bank tax was discussed in the house by Representatives Dalzell (Rep., Pa.) and Rayner (Dem., Md.) for the opposition, and by Representatives Cobb (Dem., Ala.) and Outs (Dem., Ark.) in favor of it, and the bill was agreed to a senate joint resolution appropriating $100,000 to defray the expenses of the sugar investigation committee. The final vote on the state bank question will be taken at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Speeches on the sugar schedule were made by Messrs. Allison, Jones, Hunton and Hoar. It was finally agreed to vote on the sugar schedule amendments Tuesday.

CONVICTES WERE CUTE.

Fourteen of Them Escape From Deputy Marshals at Helena.

HELENA, Mon., June 3.—Thirty-five Convicts who helped steal a Northern Pacific train at Bozeman, near the Idaho line, three weeks ago, and who have been under military guard at Aries since their capture, were before Judge Knowles for sentence for contempt of court. Two were discharged and the others given 30 days in the Missoula county jail. While being taken back to jail after sentence 14 of them escaped through the connivance of sympathizers.

They were being marched along in squads, the streets lined with people. When a deputy's attention could be attracted a convict would step into the ranks and a Cozzyite step out and mingle with the crowd. Several prisoners also made good their parents of them enabled the others to change places with friends in the outside. There is no prospect of catching the runaways. The whole crowd came from Washington state.

Silver Commission Adjourns.

BERLIN, June 5.—The silver commission which was convened in February last, has concluded its labors without arriving at any decision.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, June 4, 1894.

WHEAT—Market strong, higher. No. 2 spring, 58@c; No. 1 Northern, 60c; No. 2 Northern, 58c. No. 2 red, 58c.

OATS—Market firm. No. 2 white, 36@c; No. 3 white, 37@c, 36c.

BARLEY—Steady. No. 2, 52c; sample, 50@ 52c.

RYE—Steady. No. 1, 49@c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, June 4, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 58@c; July, 58@c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 56@c; June, 57@c; July, 57@c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 54@c. No. 3 Northern, cash, 54@c. No. 2, 52@c. On track—No. 1 Northern, to arrive 59@c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4, 1894.

WHEAT—June close, 56@c; July opening, 57@c; highest, 57@c; lowest, 57@@57@c; close, 57@c; September opening, 58@c; highest, 58@c; lowest, 58@c; close, 58@c. On track—No. 1 Northern, 56@c; No. 2 Northern, 57@c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 4, 1894.

HOGS—5 lower. Yards cleared early to packers. Quality good. Sales at $4.95@4.96.

CATTLE—Quiet. Butchers, steady and in good demand. Sales and Prime steers, $3.85@3.9; good steers, $3.65@ 3.85; prime cows, $3.50@3.60; good cows, $2.75 @3.00; common to fair cows, $2.25@2.50; veal calves, $3.00@4.00; heavy calves, $3.00@ 4.00; stockers, $1.75@2.75; feeders, $2.50@3.25; bulls, $1.00@2.75.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Steady.

Minneapolis ..12,0.4,46 lambs. 2,75@3.75 common $1.50@2.25.

Receipts: Hogs, 1,200 cattle, 10.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, June 4, 1894.

CATTLE—Market active. Prices to extra native steers, $4.40@4.90; native cows, $2.10@3.45; others, $2.35@3.10; Texans $3.30@3.35.

HOGS—Market steady and 5c lower. Rough heavy $4.90@4.95; mixed and packers, $4.90@4.95; prime heavy and butcher weights, $4.95@4.98 assorted light, $4.90@4.95.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Prime sorts steady; others slow. Top sheep, $4.40@4.45; top lambs, $5.25@5.35.

Receipts: Cattle, 10,000; hogs, 40,000, sheep, 8,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

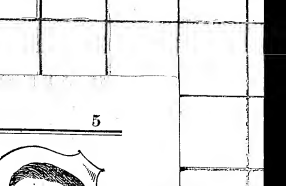
CHICAGO, June 4, 1894.

WHEAT—Steady. Cash, 54@c; July, 58@c; September, 57@c; December, 60@c.

CORN—Steady. Cash, 37@c; July, 38@c; September, 37@c.

OATS—Easy. Cash, 33@c; July, 32@c; September, 29@c.

PORK—Steady. Cash, $11.67; July, $11.72@c September, $11.82@c.



Profoundly Grateful

Symptoms of Cancer Removed—Rheumatism Cured

A Chicago Clergyman's Faith in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs: I am profoundly impressed with the medical virtues of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was threatened with cancer, and disagreeable eruptions on my back and other places. The cancer was appearing on my lip. Providentially I obtained a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and by the time it was gone, the bad symptoms had nearly disappeared. I have used four bottles, and I believe it has Saved Me From Premature Death.

I am now almost 73 years of age and I work like a tiger. And I know that Hood's Sarsaparilla has had much to do with my vigor and strength. I recommended it to my wife, who had suffered so much with rheumatic troubles,

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

as also with female weakness. In two years she has used about three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and today, and for the last six months, she seems like a new being. We are as the young people who live with us. We do want the afflicted to know what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for us, and I feel it a duty to let people know in this way of the help obtained. With grateful acknowledgment to C. I. Hood & Co." Rev. O. H. Power, 324 Mercer street, Chicago, Illinois. Get HOOD'S.

Hearty and Robust

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache. 25c. per box.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

In and to the Saskatchewan Valley,

Address

WM. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance or any kind of good security on Long Time and Reasonable Interest. Prompt attention to Collections in all parts of the United States. Local and county managers wanted. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, May 30.

The Bulgarian cabinet has resigned.

A list of aristocratic lady nihilists has been found at St. Petersburg.

The Upper Peninsular Chair company will remove its plant from Ironwood, Mich., to Marshfield, Wis.

The wedding of Emma Juch to Assistant District Attorney Wellman of New York, is set for June 26, at Stamford, Conn.

A child of Attorney Crozier of Oshkosh, Wis., has been missing since Saturday. It is supposed to have been kidnapped by gypsies.

The Prussian agricultural conference has opened at Berlin. Her Von Heyden, minister of agriculture, defended the government policy.

The Democratic convention of the Fourteenth Missouri district unanimously renominated Congressman Marsh Arnold.

Thursday, May 31.

The Southern immigration and industrial congress met at Augusta, Ga., Wednesday. There is a large attendance.

It is now almost certain that Yale will send an athletic team over to England to compete with Oxford some time in the month of July.

Ex-Premier Gladstone continues to very good health, and his eye is steadily improving. No further daily bulletins will be issued by his physicians.

Among the passengers who sailed for Europe Wednesday on the steamer New York were the Princess Colonna and her children. The princess says she expects to be away from America six months.

Chauncey P. Williams, president of the National Exchange bank of Albany, N. Y., is thought to have been drowned while fishing in the Adirondack mountains, his boat in which he set out having been found capsized.

Friday, June 1.

Gold shipments Thursday amounted to $2,000,000.

The fishing schooner J. R. Edwards, with all on board, was lost off Sable island.

Robert Hall, originator of the Broxburn oil works, the largest in Scotland, is dead.

Mrs. Samuel Rapheel of Brooklyn has given birth to four children, three boys and a girl.

Captain Nathan Peters, the oldest Freemason in the United States, died at Amesbury, Mass., Thursday.

An explosion, followed by fire, in a New York tenement, caused the death of one child and serious injury to four others.

The president has approved the act to provide for the sale of the remainder of the Otoe reservation in Nebraska and Kansas.

Saturday, June 2.

Professor W. D. Whitney of Yale college is at the point of death.

July wheat again touched low water mark at New York, going down to 57 5-16 cents.

The triennial congress of American Physicians and Surgeons at Washington has adjourned.

In the New Thames Yacht club race the Prince of Wales' cutter Britannia, beat the Iverna.

Colonel Edward Mason of the Third United States infantry has been brevetted brigadier general.

The Cripple Creek banks, fearing a riot, have shipped to Colorado Springs and stored in safety vaults $100,000.

Congressman Haines says that W. C. Whitney will be the Democratic candidate for governor of New York this fall.

The monthly debt statement issued Friday shows a net cash balance in the treasury of $117,464,935, of which $78,693,267 in gold reserve.

Monday, June 4.

The Field Columbian museum in Chicago was dedicated Saturday.

The damage by floods in Bonhker county, Colo., is estimated at $375,000.

Nebraska's anti-lottery law has been declared unconstitutional, owing to a technical defect.

The Knights of Pythias expect 12,000 delegates to attend their Washington conclave in August.

The daughter of Lieutenant Governor Brockmeyer of Missouri eloped with A. J. Walsh of St. Louis.

Mr. Gladstone's eye has so far improved that the bandages have been removed. He is now wearing dark glasses.

Tuesday, June 5.

Pullman strikers are in core straits for food.

G. W. Wilson, inventor of the Wilson sewing machine, died suddenly at San Jose, Cal., of heart disease.

R. W. Ransom, an old resident of St. Paul and partner of the firm of Ransom & Horton, furriers, is dead.

The terms of 32 presidential postmasters will expire this month. Most are in New York, Pennsylvania and Iowa.

Mrs. Anna Tisdell Raum has secured a divorce from Green B. Raum, jr., son of the ex-commissioner of pensions. Non-support and desertion were the causes of the suit.

Visible supply: Wheat 59,393,000 bushels, decrease 1,935,000 bushels; corn 7,409,000 bushels, decrease 132,000 bushels; oats 7,000,000 bushels, decrease 341,000 bushels; rye 252,000, decrease 49,000 bushels; barley 190,000 bushels, decrease 2,000 bushels.

Wednesday, June 6.

Prince Bismarck's health continues poor.

Mayor-elect Smith of St. Paul took the oath of office Tuesday.

Orders for gold for shipment at New York amounted to $1,725,000.

Premier Crispi and the rest of the Italian cabinet have resigned.

Joseph Haworth, the actor, is seriously ill at the city hospital in Boston.

The Arkansas river is rising again, and bids fair to go higher than at the time of the last flood.

Secretary Carlisle denies that another bond issue is contemplated at present or any time, unless the reserve becomes much lower than it now is.

Bernard Altenbrunner, who murdered Annie Sauper at Jersey City, claims to have been visited by his victim's ghost. He was evidently badly scared.

Judge Nelson Walter Phelps, ex-minister to Germany, is seriously ill at his home at Tea Neck, Englewood, N. J. Mr. Phelps has been in poor health for some time past.

Mrs. Cleveland, accompanied by her two children, a nurse and a maid, left Washington at 9:45 a. m. in a special car on the Pennsylvania railroad, for Gray Gables. At New York the party will take a boat for Fall River.

Thursday, June 7.

Roseberry's colt Ladas won the Engish derby.

Wheat went up 1 1-8 cents at Chicago Wednesday.

The Brazilian Government is taking steps to prosecute several Englishmen who are accused of aiding the revolutionists.

The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business Wednesday was $116,084,500, of which $75,000,237 is gold reserve.

Charles W. Pike, commission merchant at San Francisco, has assigned. Liabilities, $83,000; assets, $93,700, of which $60,000 is insurance.

At the same elections committee has decided the contested election case of Watson vs. Black from the Tenth Georgia district in favor of Black, the contestee.

All departments of the Reading Iron company, with the exception of one pipe furnace and the sheet mill, have been obliged to shut down owing to the scarcity of soft coal.

The state department has received further advices from United States Minister Baker corroborating the press dispatches concerning the overthrow of the government in San Salvador.

Friday, June 8.

Professor W. B. Whitney of Harvard college died at 10:30 a. m.

James A. Wright of the shipping house of Peter Wright & Sons, Philadelphia, is dead.

The South Dakota Sunday school convention at Miller, has adjourned after a two days session.

Dr. Thomas A. Jamison of West Superior has gone to Scotland to establish his claim to heirship in an estate said to be valued at $70,000,000.

Fire originating in the house of Jefferys, Coombs & Co., at Fort Worth, Tex., destroyed the entire block in which it was situated. Loss heavy, with only partial insurance.

Saturday, June 9.

The Cotton Belt has suspended local trains from lack of fuel.

The Hon. and Rt. Rev. Lord Arthur Chas Harvey, D. D., bishop of Bath and Wells, is dead.

The French government has decided to transfer the French consulate general from Quebec to Montreal.

Chief Justice Coleridge of England, who has been seriously ill for some time past, passed a very bad night and is much exhausted.

Roswell Miller, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company, was aboard the steamship Campania from Liverpool.

At Rawlins, Wy., Judge Knight sentenced Frank Howard, who killed Charles Horn at Dickson, to hang Nov. 23. Thomas Morrison, who was convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of Albert Peterson at Carbon, was given 40 years.

Monday, June 11

Electric cars were run for the first time Sunday, at Green Bay, Wis.

A dispatch from Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, states that the government troops have defeated the insurgents near Belotas.

Mrs. Dalton, wife of Bill Dalton, the outlaw, died at Perry, has admitted that her late husband was the leader of the Long View bank robbers.

The extensive nail mill of Ellis & Lessig at Pottstown, Pa., was destroyed by fire early this morning. The flames originated from the gas producers.

Mrs. Alice Ramsay, a niece of Andrew Jackson, died at Russia, A. T., of pneumonia. She was a field nurse during the late war, and was born in 1846, in Algiers, La.

Tuesday, June 5.

The thermometer registered 93 degs. in Boston Monday.

The trial of Erastus Wiman has begun at New York.

The cash balance in the treasury is $116,818,621, of which $78,373,326 is gold reserve.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Ward of the African Methodist Episcopal church died suddenly at Jacksonville, Fla.

Disputes announcing a local outbreak of cholera in Russia are not regarded at the marine hospital bureau as disquieting to the country.

As a result of the mediation of Mr. Asquith the delegates representing the striking cab drivers of London and the cab owners have accepted a compromise.

The eastbound shipments from Chicago last week were 83,007 tons, against 46,417 for the preceding week and 35,705 for the corresponding week of last year.

Bennington (Vt.) society is all agog over the marriage of Miss Jennie Mayo, a society belle of Middlesex, to Thomas Strong of Castletown, Vt., a negro hotel porter.

Colonge For May.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The monthly statement of the directors of the mint shows that the total coinage of the mints of the United States during the month of May, 1894, was $9,120,450, of which $8,445,450 was gold and $675,000 was silver. The silver coinage was entirely of half dollars and quarters.

Cricketz Eating Crops.

LANDERS, Wy., June 2.—Landers valley is threatened with destruction by the Mormon or Utah cricket. Many of these are 2 1-2 inches long. They devour all before them.

Breeding Pleads Guilty.

St. Louis, June 2.—J. S. Breeding, the lawyer who flooded the country with bogus Wells-Fargo money orders, pleaded guilty in the criminal court and was sentenced to three and a half years in the penitentiary.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis grocers have a sugar war on hand.

Burglars got $4 from the Milwaukee depot at Preston.

The Mankato normal school graduated a class of 72 on Thursday.

A thousand tons of coal was shipped East from Duluth Monday.

From 40,000 to 50,000 Twin City people visited Como Park, Sunday.

Captain Harries has succeeded his duties as internal revenue collector.

The annual camp meeting at Annadale will be held from June 29 to 27.

Herman Dickman of St. Paul, accused of incest, has received a 10-year sentence.

The monthly report of the state treasurer shows a cash balance of $1,050,545.70.

The Catholic Order of Foresters is holding its eleventh annual grand convention at St. Paul.

The wife of Judge Collins of the state supreme court died at St. Cloud Thursday, aged 42 years.

Two sonners from Fort Snelling were injured in a street car accident at St. Paul on Memorial day.

Two brothers named Donath lost their lives in a well near Paynesville, being overcome by noxious gas.

Farmers and dairymen met at Thief River Falls Saturday to provide means for the establishment of a creamery.

The bridge across the St. Croix river on the Grantsburg branch of the Duluth road was badly damaged by fire.

The manufacturing plant of R. R. Howells & Co. at Minneapolis was burned Saturday night. Loss $130,000.

For the assistance of worthy students a loan fund has been raised at Winona, to be administered by the authorities of the normal school.

At Hopkins, the 12-year-old daughter of George Hamm was seriously injured by falling through a window glass, cutting her arm and severing an artery.

Plans have been submitted to the state board of corrections and charities for new lock-ups at Wabasha, Barnum and Stewartsville and for a county jail in Big Stone county.

The Duluth, Mesabi and Northern railway has filed a map with the secretary of state, showing the route of the extension to the Adams mining camp. This line is designated the Adams branch.

The body of Ferdinand Louck was found in a haystack near Adrian, where it had lain since last December. He was evidently murdered, his skull having been crushed. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive.

The supreme court, Judge Canty writing the opinion, has finally decided the celebrated Pine county case, illegally brought to compel limited trains on the St. Paul and Duluth to stop at Pine City, holding the statute valid.

Before adjourning court at Grand Rapids Judge Holland sentenced the following prisoners: Comarnache, robbery, five years; Wm. Stone, assault, two years; Wm. Middlemist, robbery, one year; John Preston, robbery, four years.

The Populist convention of the Seventh district has been called at Moorhead, July 1. The basis of representation is one at large for each county, and one for each 150 votes (or fraction) in 1892, making the convention a little over 100 delegates.

Rev. Dr. Smith, pastor of the People's church St. Paul, has been appointed by the governor as the official representative of the state to visit the prisons and penal associations of Europe and Mr. Smith will travel in his capacity of a member of the state board of corrections and charities. He started on the trip Friday night.

Twenty-two of the employees of the state grain inspection department have been temporarily dismissed in consequence of the reduced amount of business in the department and the abnormally light receipts and shipments. All of the employes laid off are experienced men, and will be reappointed as soon as the business of the department will warrant it.

The state capitol commission, after several days hard work has prepared a set of instructions in the form of a prospectus to guide architects in the preparation of plans for the proposed new capitol building. The prospectus will be advertised, and the chances for favorable plans will be open to the architects of the whole country. The plans will be opened Sept. 15.

The farm of M. Altmann, in West Newton, five miles north of New Ulm, was the scene of the largest wedding celebration ever held in Southern Minnesota. The occasion was the marriage of Joseph Altmann to Mary Reinhart. Over 1,000 people were invited and nearly all were present. The festivities lasted for one day and were carried on well into the morning of the second day.

St. Cloud stores will closest 6:30 p.m. hereafter.

Faribault county veterans are in camp this week at Minnesota Lake.

Mary Baker, a servant girl, was drowned at White Bear lake, Sunday.

Fire originating from a gasoline stove destroyed Arnsdorf's Laundry at Stillwater.

Leonidas Merritt has axed the Biwabik and Missaba road for $30,000 for services.

Fire in the Tibbetts House barn at Preston destroyed the barn and burned eight horses.

Patrolmen Bunker and O'Brien of St. Paul were assessed $300 for making a false arrest.

John Day Smith of Minneapolis is making an active fight for Fletcher's seat in congress.

Minnesota has lost another considerable slice of land through interior department decisions.

Mayor Rustis has closed the Theatre Comique at Minneapolis because liquor was sold to a minor.

The work of laying the foundation for the Cathedral Redeemer monument at Montevideo has begun.

John E. Ward, a well known St. Paul newspaper man, died Sunday of inflammation of the bowels.

Fires destroyed 1,000 railroad ties and 20 cords of wood on Great Northern right of way at Fosston.

Burglars took a considerable quantity of cutlery from the hardware store of A. A. Cody & Son, at Dover.

The St. Paul school board has decided to abolish German instruction in all grades below the high school.

Professor Logger of the state experiment station will attempt to wipe out chinch bugs around New Ulm.

Fire at Mankato destroyed three small wooden business buildings. It is supposed to have been incendiary.

The 11th annual convention of the American Natural Association of Masters of Dancing is in session at St. Paul.

Mrs. Maud Graham, of Minneapolis, secured a divorce at Wahpeton and married Clinton Nickells within an hour.

Meeker county commissioners have appointed C. H. Dart county treasurer in place of his son, W. H. Dart, who was recently removed.

The government crop report gives the condition of wheat in Minnesota as 99 and the acreage 87. North Dakota condition is put down at 97.

Ramsey county Republicans endorsed Governor Nelson and Judge Gilfillan and instructed delegates to the state convention for Dar Rees for clerk of the supreme court.

A destructive fire took place at Minneiska, burning four stores buildings were destroyed and several others badly scorched. Gentzkow Bros. are the heaviest losers.

The jury in the case of William Conway, charged with the murder of Harry M. Walraven at Mankato, was out only 15 minutes and then returned a verdict of not guilty. The accused was immediately released after an imprisonment of nine months.

Governor Nelson Sunday honored a requisition from the governor of South Dakota for the custody of John Franzfelt, charged with burglary in the third degree, committed in Brown county, S. D. Franzfelt has been arrested and is now in custody.

A farmer who was held in the city jail at Virginia until an officer from Houghton, Mich., could arrive, cut his throat and made good his escape. He was wanted there for highway robbery. His pal is now serving a 10-year sentence in Michigan.

The Hubbard and Palmer and the Minnesota and Western elevators at Scotton were burned Thursday, loss $20,000. No fire was set by an incendiary, and was the fourth attempt to burn them in three days. A notice was posted on one of them stating that the elevators would be burned for revenge.

John E. Layne, indicted with William Conway for the murder of Harry Walraven, committed last fall, has been released from custody. Judge Lawrence dismissed the defendant, addressing him thus: "Mr. Layne, the people of this community entertain a very strong suspicion against you, and your presence in this community will be tolerated most grudgingly."

Ten Years in Prison.

GLENCOE, Minn., June 4.—At a special term of the district court, J. H. Rieger, charged with selling stored wheat, was sentenced to two years in state prison. An appeal was taken to the supreme court.

Russian Colony.

HURON, S. D., June 4.—It is expected that a colony of between 20 and 30 families of Russians will be located on the Jim Potter county within the next 90 days.

It Was Loaded.

ANTHO, Wi., June 4.—Joseph Conacher, a farmer six miles south of the city, accidentally discharged a gun. The ball passed through his heart.

Minnesota Firemen.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 18.—The annual convention of the Minnesota Firemen's association is in session at Century hall. A parade of the Minneapolis department was a feature of the day.

DO YOU EXPECT TO BECOME A MOTHER?

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

MAKES CHILD BIRTH EASY,

Allays Nausea, Lessens Danger, and Shortens Labor.

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with her other children than she did altogether with her last, after having used four bottles of MOTHER'S FRIEND," says a customer.

HENDERSON DALE, Druggist, Carmi, Ill.

Sent by express on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Book "To Mothers" mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. ATLANTA, GA.

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct 1881

Paid in Capital, - - $100,00

Surplus, - - - - 15,500

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. C. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President
CHAS. R. LAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, R. R. Lang, F. D. Childs
Geo. C. Erskine, J. B. McKinnon, A. A. Stiller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

DENTIST,

Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the latest style of the art.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 50 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

RAZORS HONED

OLD PAPERS

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Reckitt Block, - Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Ash Addition.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

C. HENDERSON, President
I. ELLINGTON, Vice President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTY'S-AT-LAW,

McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn

$1.50

PER DOZEN

FOR THE BEST CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.,

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BEAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Reckitt Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,

Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S

RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

McKINNON BROS.,

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM Lands for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street - CROOKSTON, MINN

SALVADOR KICKS.

President Guttierez Wants the Refugees on Board the Bennington.

DEMAND MADE ON CONSUL POLLOCK

Captain Thomes Action Discussed by the President and Secretaries.

LA LIBERTAD, Salvador, June 13.—The newly organized government is making desperate efforts to secure the surrender of the refugees aboard the United States steamer Bennington after making formal remonstrance against the extension of asylum in the late vice president and his staff. President Guterrez has made a demand upon Mr. Pollock, the American consul here, for the surrender of the men. For the time being he waives entirely the question of right of asylum, and charging that these officials of the late government have been guilty of robbery and embezzlement, demands their surrender under article 2 of the extradition treaty negotiated with the United States in 1870. Consul Pollock consulted over this new phase of the case with Commander Thomes of the Bennington and then informed the government that he could not meet the demand.

Had Instructed to Do So by the Washington officials. He was served with extradition papers, regularly drawn, and then cabled an account of the affair to Washington. So far he has not had a response. Meanwhile the refugees are being detained on the Bennington, and will not be permitted to take passage on the coasting steamers to a port of safety. The refugees insist that this move of Gutierez is nothing more than a pretext to obtain their surrender, when he will promptly avenge himself by punishing them for political reasons. The impression is general, however, that they must be surrendered, as all due legal forms have been observed in making the demand, but the United States consul will probably require a guarantee that the refugees shall be tried only on the criminal charges specified.

Thomes' Action Discussed.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Captain Thomes' action in affording asylum to fugitive officers of the defunct Ezeta government on board his ship, the Bennington, at La Libertad, Salvador, has very much embarrassed the government. For the third time since news of the action reached Washington the matter has been the subject of earnest consultation between the president and secretaries Gresham and Herbert.

POSTPONED TO NOVEMBER.

The Insanity Hearing of Assassin Prendergast Is Delayed.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Additional complications may arise in the case of Assassin Prendergast. The present question was to continue the hearing until September, when the trial was to come off. Judge Chetlain is not sitting in the criminal court and the case came before Judge Payne. When the continuance agreed on was submitted to him, he refused to enter the order, saying he knew of no reason why a continuance should be granted. The matter went over temporarily.

Judge Payne said later in the afternoon that he would not consider the motion for the continuance until after a case now before him is disposed of. An agreement has been reached by the counsel on both sides and State's Attorney Kerin said that a hearing of the insanity case will go over until Nov. 12.

THE SULTAN'S DEATH

It Occurred on June 7, but Has Been Kept Secret.

TANGIER, June 13.—It is now known that the Sultan died on June 7at Tadla, between Morocco and the Beni Blanen. Measures have been taken here to prevent anticipated disorder. Sensational rumors are in circulation as to the cause of the sultan's death, and the populace are becoming excited.

FIVE WOMEN FOUGHT.

Knives and Pistols Freely Used—Two Mortally Wounded.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 13.—At Breeden, forty miles south, five young women and a man fought, and in the melee, knives and pistols were used, and Mrs. Lizzie Maynard was killed and Jennie Morris mortally wounded. It is thought that the affair originated from jealousy.

Minnesota River Improvement.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Representative Kleiber has introduced a resolution calling on the chief of engineers for certain information estimated in relation to improving the Minnesota river from Chaska to its mouth. The banks of the river are said to be caving in and it will be necessary to construct riprap walls.

Defeated Duncan Ross.

NEW YORK, June 13.—At the Academy of Music Ernest Roeber, the champion Graeco-Roman wrestler of the world, defeated Duncan C. Ross, the champion all-around athlete, in a wrestling match. Roeber won three straight bouts.

Will Jail All Coxeyites.

DENVER, June 13.—Sheriff Burchnell, from now until the commonweal movement subsides, will arrest and imprison as vagrants all Coxeyites entering the city. There are several hundred of them headed for Denver from the West and Northwest.

Earthquake in Spain.

MADRID, June 13.—An earthquake took several districts of Andalusia Monday. In the towns of Granada and Murcia many houses were destroyed and several persons were killed.

HAWAIIAN CONSTITUTION.

The New Republic Comes Into Existence by Its Promulgation.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 13.—The steamer Arawa from Australian ports left Honolulu on the 2d of June, when the new constitution of Hawaii was the daily newspaper conversation and debate. It had just been promulgated and published. It contains many features peculiar to itself. In first section, dealing with the rights of persons and property, recognizes God as the supreme ruler of the universe and declares for universal equity and liberty of the press and Hawaiian subjects. Any newspaper, however, which advocates restoration of the monarchial government or any speaker taking the platform in the interest cause, or suggesting force to accomplish a change of government, shall be considered a traitor and treated accordingly.

The Right of Habeas Corpus is declared to be vested in all men, and only to be suspended in time of national peril. It is not available to persons who forcibly enter the country illegally. The right of trial in all cases is decried and slavery forever prohibited. Whenever a slave entered the territory of this republics the constitution enacts, "he shall be free." Article 11, 12 and 13, relating to the powers of taxation and appropriation vested in the legislature, of eminent domain, and military subjection to law, follow closely the lines of the American constitution.

BANK TAX REMAINS.

Brawley's Repeal Bill Defeated in the House by a Big Majority.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The state bank tax repeal bill was defeated in the house by a vote of 102 to 176. This vote was on the Cox amendment providing for unconditional repeal. The affirmative vote was entirely Democratic. The negative was cast by 88 Republicans, 76 Democrats and 9 Populists.

A viva voce vote on the bill was then taken and the bill was defeated.

TROOPS PREVENT TROUBLE.

Colorado Militia Take a Position Between Deputies and Strikers.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 9.—Late in the afternoon the militia marched up Bull hill and camped at Altman. The strikers are ready to surrender to them. The volunteer deputies are scattering for home, only paid men remaining, and their force will be small by this evening. Sheriff Bowers has stated his willingness to accept the situation and will only endeavor to make arrests. Calderwood, president of the union, has not been seen since the visit of Governor Sunday. "General" Johnson decamped during the morning, and Smith, who was then in command, left when he saw the deputies endeavoring to come up the hill. Other leaders have flown to the mountains and caves. The miners to be arrested will be given a military escort to Colorado Springs, where they will await trial.

Leaders Surrendered.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 9.—Six leaders of the strike have surrendered to them officers of the miners' union, have surrendered to the military authorities, and have been placed under arrest by each. The sheriff has warrants for their arrest on the charge of assault to murder. Three of the men have surrendered work and a number will resume operations in a day or two.

FOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

A Special Train Will Leave the Twin Cities July 15.

ST. PAUL, June 8.—The Minnesota Christian Endeavor Union will go to the Christian Endeavor convention at Cleveland with a special train of sleeping cars, starting from Minneapolis at 2:20 p. m. July 10, St. Paul at 3 p. m. Winona at 5:40 p. m., La Crosse about 7 p. m. and Cleveland the next afternoon. After June 15 sleeping car berths may be reserved by applying to W. M. Farrell, New York Life Building, Minneapolis. All who intend going should notify Mr. Carroll at once, or not later than July 1. Railroads have allowed one fare for round trip from Minnesota and Dakota points, to connect with the special Christian Endeavor train at St. Paul.

Nineteen Get Ninety Days.

HELENA, Mont., June 6.—Nineteen commonwealers from the state of Washington were sentenced to ninety days in jail. They took part in a gang which stole a Northern Pacific train at Heron a few weeks ago, and have since been under military guard here. Forty-four more of them will be up for sentence later. All of the prisoners refused to sign a pledge not to steal Northern Pacific trains. They will be imprisoned in the Missoula jail.

Warrants For Horse Killers.

CHADRON, Neb., June 6.—Warrants have been sworn out for the arrest of the parties riding and owning the four horses killed in Thursday's 100-mile race. The opinions as to the cause of the horses dying are various. Some think it was over riding, while others believe it was from the effects of stimulants. The members of the local humane society swear vengeance on the managers of the race and the parties connected with it.

Cleveland Indisposed.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Cleveland has been somewhat affected by the debilitating weather of last week and is indisposed. The regular public reception was abandoned, and Dr. O'Reilly was called upon for a prescription which is expected to restore the president to his usual health shortly.

Oregon Under Water Falling.

PORTLAND, Or., June 9.—The river here has fallen about 4 inches in 24 hours. In Eastern Oregon and Washington a lower temperature is prevailing, and the Columbia at Umatilla and the Snake at Riparia, are reported to be slowly subsiding.

MORE MOB VIOLENCE.

ANOTHER BATTLE IN THE PENNSYLVANIA COKE DISTRICT.

One Dead and Many Wounded—Indignities Offered "Black-s"—Workmen Precipitate the Trouble — State Troops Fired Upon.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 10.—The time is ended and again the armed deputies in the coke region have made a killing. One striker killed, two others dying and a fourth shot through, is the result of the battle at Lemont. There were six deputies on one side and a mob of strikers on the other. Unbiased testimony is to the effect that the mob not only proved 1 tut compelled the deputies to fire on them, after the strikers had compelled them to retreat and had fired several shots at them. The circumstances leading up to this

Latest of the Many Troubles of the coke region were developing since Saturday afternoon. Four American workmen, John Delaney, Oliver Atleby, John Britt and James Farlough, who live at Leisenring, have been working at the Frick Coke company's works for some time. They come to New Haven, where they were to take the Leisenring electric road for home, where they have not been for a month. As soon as they alighted from the train at New Haven they were surrounded by a mob of Several Hundred Strikers.

The strikers first beat the four men and then put tags on them, bearing the inscription "blacklegs," also covering them with chalk marks. They then marched their prisoners to all the works on the line from New Haven south, holding them up as decorated samples of "scabs" for the revilings and abuse of strikers everywhere.

The Frick Coke company was informed of the perilous position their workmen were in and Field Deputy Matt Allen and six men were sent to New Haven on the evening train. They were misled by false information and it was daylight when the squad of tired deputies reached Lemont,

Where the Fight Took Place.

They had been joined by Superintendent Slater of the Leisenring plant, who had helped in the all night hunt. Just long after daylight the men began to assemble on the commons by the hundred. They engaged in the wildest demonstrations and it was thought that they then had the four captives in their possession. When the deputies were discovered the mob raised a howl and surrounded them. Many of the strikers had revolvers and all carried clubs. They moved against the deputies, who retreated under a shower of clubs and stones. Rifling up to the

Advancing Crowd of Miners,

Deputy Allen told them to go back, saying he did not want any trouble, and that there would be trouble if he or his men were attacked and injured. The answer to Allen was a general rush, when one of the strikers covered him with his pistol and fired. The shot was a close shave for the top of Allen's head. The deputies opened fire together, and the strikers started to it and fought savagely. The first shots were fired by them and they fired as coolly and as rapidly as did the deputies and they kept closing in on the men, who were until they were driven to the extreme end of the company's ground, where they made a stand. By that time three of the strikers were down and several others were wounded. The strikers began at once a carry away their wounded.

Working the Winchesters

Deputies have been going through all the houses in the vicinity, but up to a late hour not a trace of the four men held as prisoners by the strikers has been seen and it is feared that they have been murdered by the strikers in revenge for loss of the men in the battle. Twelve arrests have been made and at least 200 more will follow.

IN ALABAMA.

Six Railroad Bridges Destroyed In as Many Hours.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 13.—During the night three more bridges of the mining district were destroyed by fire and dynamite. All these acts are charged up to the striking miners. So after the Memphis express on the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad had passed over the high trestle bridge that spans Chickasaw creek, near Carlson hill, one end of the bridge was blown up by dynamite which had been placed under the abutment. The train narrowly escaped. Two hours afterward, on the same road, three miles farther west, a fire was set to both ends of a long wooden bridge and several bents of it were burned before the flames could be extinguished by watchmen who discovered the fire. During the night a bridge on the Galbraith branch of the road was burned, making a total of six bridges destroyed by incendiaries in this district within as many hours.

WAITE GIVES ORDERS.

Deputies Must Obey or Force Will Be Used.

DENVER, June 10.—Governor Waite, in response to a telegram from General Brooks, commanding the troops at Cripple Creek, informing him that the deputies were advancing on Bull hill ordered the following telegram sent General Brooks:

If, as you say, Sheriff Bowers admits that the deputies refuse to obey orders and are acting in defiance thereof, they are not a lawful body; are only armed marauders and you must treat them as such. Order them to lay down their arms and disperse. If they refuse to obey and you have not force enough to suppress this new insurrection notify me, and I will call out enough militia to force the order.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, June 5.

The house continued the debate on the state bank tax repeal bill. A vote will be taken Thursday.

Besides voting on the sugar schedule the senate spent the time on a few measures of only local importance.

Wednesday, June 6.

When the senate took up the consideration of the tariff bill Mr. Jones asked leave to withdraw the compromise amendment on the tobacco schedule which made the rate on leaf wrapper and unstemmed $1.50 and $2.50 respectively and restores the house amendments, in which the rates are $1.25 respectively. This was done, and the other Jones amendments to that schedule were passed. The next schedule was agricultural products and provisions. All live animals, not especially provided for, were made dutiable by the bill at 20 per cent.

Thursday, Jun e 7.

The agricultural schedule of the tariff bill was debated in the senate.

The house considered the Indian appropriation bill in committee of the whole.

Friday, June 8

The house continued the debate on the Indian appropriation bill, the senate continuing debate on the tariff schedule under the five minute rule.

Saturday, June 9

In the senate the agricultural schedule, which has been hanging fire for several days, was finally disposed of, wool schedule H (spirits, wines and liquors) was entered upon. The feature of the consideration of the bill was the withdrawal in many instances of the Jones compromise amendments, allowing the committee amendments of the original house provisions to stand.

The house passed the Bean bill for the trial of criminal cases in the district of the state where the offense is committed. Debate was then continued on the Indian appropriation bill.

Monday, June 11.

The house considered District of Columbia business. No quorum was present and no bills were acted upon.

The senate made more progress on the tariff bill during the day than during any previous three weeks of the consideration of the measure. Sugar, molasses, spirits and wines, cotton and flax, jute and hemp manufactures, comprising 19 pages of the bill, were disposed of. The entire cotton schedule, 8 pages of the bill, was finished in 30 minutes—The Republicans made no opposition to the amendments proposed to this schedule, maintaining that the rates, though reduced, were so arranged as to afford the cotton schedule the most "scientific" ever prepared.

LARGEST EVER HELD.

Ohio Republican Convention Finishes Its Labors.

COLUMBUS, O., June 7.—The Republican state convention, which finished its business with a single session, was one of the largest in number of delegates ever held in the state, and the proceedings were not only harmonious but were satisfactory to all Republicans interested. The platform was a ringing one and declaration in favor of silver than in any former platform by the Ohio Republicans, but on the whole it was conservative. It was the sentiment to take a more advanced view as regards silver. Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Foster was the leading spirit on the occasion, after he had been chosen permanent chairman of the convention, and his speech was received with great enthusiasm. The nominations were as follows: For secretary of state, John A. Schaak, judge of the supreme court; C. E. Grice, board of public works, and O. T. Corson, school commissioner.

Meyer Sentenced For Life.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Dr. Henry C. F. Meyer was this afternoon brought before Smyth to imprisonment in Sing Sing prison for life. Dr. Meyer was convicted of poisoning Ludwig Brandt.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Minneapolis Grain.

MILWAUKEE, June 11, 1894.

WHEAT—Lower and irregular. No. 2 spring, 58c. No. 1 Northern, 60@61 July, 57@58c. CORN—Steady. No. 3, 34c.

OATS—Firm and active. No. 2 white, 43@44c. No. 3 white, 42@43c.

BARLEY—Nominal. No. 2, 58c; sample 49@54c.

RYE—Lower. No. 1, 69c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, June 11, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 62½c; June, 62c; July, 63½c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 60½c; June, 59½c; July, 60½c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 57½c; June, 57c; July, 57½c. No. 3, cash, 57½c. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 60½c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 11, 1894.

WHEAT—June sales, 60¼c; July opening, 59¾c; highest, 60¼@60½c; lowest, 59¾c; closing, 59¾c; September opening, 57½c; highest, 57¾c; lowest, 57½c; closing, 57¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 2c; No. 1 Northern, 60½c; No. 2 Northern, 57½c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 11, 1894.

HOGS—10c lower. Range of prices: Light, $5.05@5.15; rough packing, $4.80@5.00; mixed, $5.00@5.10; heavy, $5.00@5.15.

CATTLE—Not enough offered to make a market. Good demand for butcher and feeding stock.

Prime steers, $3.65@3.90; good steers, $3.00@3.25; prime cows, $2.75@3.00; good cows, $2.30@2.50; common to fair cows, $1.25@2.25; top veal calves, $3.00@3.25; heavy calves, $2.00@2.50; stockers, $2.00@2.75; feeders, $2.25@3.00; bulls, $1.40@2.15.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Dull.

Muttons, $3.50@4.00; lambs, $4.00@5.00; common, $2.50@3.00.

Receipts: Hogs, 1 0 cattle, 300; calves, 0.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, June 11, 1894.

CATTLE—Receipts 18,000. Unchanged. Export steers, $4.50@5.00; Texans, $3.00@3.75. Prime to extra native steers, $4.75@4.85; medium, $4.25@4.50; others, $3.60@4.15. Texans $3.00@4.15.

HOGS—Receipts 48,000. Active, little mild a shade higher, advance mainly on light. Rough heavy $4.85@4.95; mixed, $4.90@5.00; packers, $4.95@5.00; prime heavy and butcher weights, $5.00@5.05; assorted light, $4.90@5.00.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Prime sales steady; others slow. Top sheep, $4.40@4.50; top lambs, $5.00@5.50.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 11, 1894.

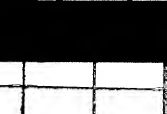
WHEAT—Unsettled. No. 2 cash, 58½c; July, 59c.

CORN—No. 2 cash, 40½c; July, 41c.

OATS—No. 2 cash, 31c; July, 31¾c; firm.

PORK—Higher. July, $12.10.

LARD—Higher. July, $6.70.



NEW LIFE

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee by authorized agents only, to cure Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Lost Manhood, Confirmed Night Losses, Evil Dreams, Lack of Confidence, Hysteria, Dizziness, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Loss of Power, Impaired Memory, Syphilis, Seminal Weakness, caused by over-exertion, Youthful Errors, or Excessive use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, which leads many to Insanity, Consumption, Insanity and Death. By mail, 1 package $1, 6 for $5. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund money. Pamphlet free. Sold by druggists, or send by mail. Address, Nerve and Brain Treatment Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

VIGORINE Cures Nervousness, Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Restores Fire and Vigor to the Sexual Organs. Wards off Insanity and Consumption. Vigorine is a positive and wonderful nerve substitute or tonic. Sent postpaid in plain wrapper to any address, $1 per package, or 6 for $5. Guaranteed to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Sold by druggists. Price $1.00. Address, VIGORINE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand.

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Former Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

Hi, There !

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates ?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.

Vine Block, Broad-way - CROOKSTON

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, Grand Forks and Winnipeg

TO

HELENA, BUTTE, SPOKANE, TACOMA, SEATTLE, PORTLAND

PULLMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS, ELEGANT DINING CARS, TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	7:34 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg.	8:35 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent. N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn

H. BERKHART, Proprietor. H. C. BERKHART, Business Manager.

CLEVELAND HOUSE

CROOKSTON, MINN.

THIS HOTEL has been Refitted and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first class Dollar a Day House in the city. Good Sample Room in connection.

No. 203 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON

ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.

Wells Drilled or Bored.

Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.

Crookston, - Minn

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE FALLS MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 34, Chapter 76 of the General Statutes of 1878 of the State of Minnesota and the acts amendatory thereof, and supplementary thereto, we, the undersigned, hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate and do hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of the company hereby formed shall be Red Lake Falls Milling Co. The principal business of the company shall be the manufacture of flour, feed and meal, and all other products manufactured from wheat, corn, rye or any of the cereals, and may buy, own and lease such grain, water power, machinery and other appurtenances as may be desirable, convenient or necessary for the manufacturing of said flour, feed, meal and other products, and may buy, own and lease such elevators, warehouses, mills and other buildings as may be necessary for storing and handling wheat, corn, rye and other cereals required in the operation of the company's business and shall have power to maintain operate and conduct the same and lease, hire and sell or rent, together with all other buildings, railroad tracks, machinery and appurtenances as may be necessary for the complete and perfect operation of the company's business. The manufacture of flour, feed, meal and such other products as are usually manufactured in flouring mills, and the sale of such products, and incidental to its said manufacturing business, and the purchase of wheat, corn, rye and other cereals for the purpose of manufacturing the articles hereinbefore mentioned to be its principal business.

The principal place for the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 25th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of its continuance shall be forty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, to be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, which shall be issued and paid up in such time and in such installments as the board of directors may direct.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability that said corporation shall at any one time be subject to is the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming this corporation are as follows: F. E. Ward, P. D. Hyde, Fisher, Minn.; L. Van Hecke, Ellsworth, North Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first board of Directors are as follows: Frank E. Cooley, Carlos S. Ward and L. Van Hecke; and Frank E. Cooley shall be president, Carlos S. Ward, secretary and treasurer, and L. Van Hecke, vice president. There shall be an annual meeting of the stockholders which shall be held on the second Monday of August, 1894, and each year thereafter, at which meeting a board of directors shall be elected by the stockholders, which shall be held on the 10th day of August, 1894, and until their successors have been elected and have qualified.

The government of the corporation and the management of its affairs shall be and is hereby vested in a board of directors, consisting of three persons, who shall be elected by ballot at the stockholders of said corporation each year at the annual meeting of stockholders, and said board of directors shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and have qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, and L. Van Hecke, vice president. The directors annually shall elect a president for the term of one year and until their successors are elected and have qualified. The board of Directors shall have power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be found necessary, and shall have power to fill vacancies on the board of directors or in the office of president, vice-president, secretary or other executive officers appointed by the board of directors and shall have power to call a special annual meeting for the election of directors and officers as aforesaid and until successors have been chosen and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the second Monday of August, 1894, and each year thereafter, at which meeting a board of directors shall be annually elected by annual meeting of the stockholders. The number of directors constituting the board of Directors may be increased to not exceed seven by the stockholders at any annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the 10th day of August, 1894.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto set our hands and seals this 10th day of May, A. D. 1894.

DIANE E. CAWLEY, [Seal.]
CHARLES T. HALL, [Seal.]
L. VAN HECKE. [Seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. S. LINDELOW.
J. B. CRAIGIE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Northern. }

On this 10th day of May A. D. 1894, before me a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Hall to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL.] A. T. COLE,
Notary Public.
Pickney County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Northern County, Minn.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Pickney. }

On this 10th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Hecke to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

[SEAL.] A. T. COLE,
Notary Public.
Pickney County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Department of State. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 11th day of May, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in Book "C" of Incorporations on Page 98.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, } ss.
STATE OF MINNESOTA. }
County of Northern.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 11th day of May A. D. 1894.

JOHN ANUNDSEN,
Register of Deeds.

Your Watch Insured Free.

A perfect insurance against theft or accident is the new famous

Non-pull-out

BOW,

the only bow (ring) which cannot be pulled or wrenched from the case. Can only be had on cases containing this trade mark.

MADE BY

Keystone Watch Case Company, of Philadelphia,

the oldest, largest, and most complete Watch Case factory in the world—1500 employees; 2000 Watch Cases daily.

One of its products is the celebrated

Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases which are just as good as solid cases, and cost about one half less.

Sold by all jewelers, without extra charge for Non-pull-out bow. The manufacturers will send you a watch case "proof free.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at..... 6:05 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at..... 8:05 a. m.

Trains having Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining car attached.

Round Home.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

You can get a 100-pound sack of Valley Roller Mills flour for $1.50.

A lovely shower on Saturday afternoon was worth thousands to the growing crops.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Times are not so wonderfully bad but that a circus threatens to visit us some time this summer.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

The McGibney opera company drew a fair house and the entertainment was highly appreciated.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

O. H. Myron was up from Ada on Friday chatting with friends in the city.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lynne.

Alderman & Sylvester are repairing their store building that was damaged by the fire.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Bacovy.

Rev. J. G. Smith has decided not to return to the city, and his family will leave for their new home in Cleveland Ohio, in a few days.

I am prepared to make a few first-class farm loans at straight 10 per cent with no bonus. Call on E. M. Walsh, the land man. Fournet block, Crookston. (8-10)

Chas. T. Lamman and bride returned on Saturday morning from a brief wedding trip.

Thos. H. Stevens, of the Warren Register, was in the city last Friday and gave the JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Don't let it escape your memory that Crookston is going to get up the biggest celebration for the coming Fourth of July. For the best time anywhere come to Crookston.

The weather for the week has been hot enough to satisfy the most insatiations fiend. Too hot for the best good of the crops some allege.

Westerberg's new addition will add largely to the facilities of the Scandinavian hotel.

Knute Anstis is decorating the front to his business place with a coat of fresh paint.

Frank Brunet, who has been confined to the house with rheumatism for so long is able to be about a little. He is trying to arrange for a trip to Hot Springs, Ark.

E. M. McCuaig was up from the Wells farm on Monday. Reports that Saturday's shower did a vast amount of good to the crops down there.

New classes in shorthand, bookkeeping, penmanship, elocution and physical culture will be organized at the Strawbridge College Monday, June 18th.

Dressed hogs cared and sold on commission at the Crookston packing house. Always ready to receive them during the summer months. [5-12] ROBERT STANTON.

For Sale Cheap.

One due driving mare, cutter buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit. [47-tf]

D. N. TAYLOR.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Thief River Falls will celebrate July 4th.

Fede Godfrey was in from Maple Bay this week.

Harry and Tim Bitver drove down from Euclid on Monday.

McIntosh has decided to issue bonds to buy fair grounds.

Engineer Craig Hunt is enjoying a visit from his mother and sister from Winnipeg.

The wife of John McLennan died at Angus last week, and was buried at Euclid on Saturday.

Dr. J. H. Thomas has laid a new sidewalk in front of his hotel property (the Minnesota house) on Main street.

Harry Norrie left Monday evening for Chicago, where he will attend the first general convention of the American Railway Union.

Mrs. Martha Johnson, who has been visiting her sister in the city, and Mrs. Goodwin Leppert left for Devils Lake on Monday morning.

Send your children to the Strawbridge school this summer. The rates of tuition are very low. Regular and special classes. Term begins Monday, June 18th.

Windom Citizen: "The salvation of Minnesota is in dairying." And choice dairy butter selling at seven cents per pound! It strikes us as rather slim "salvation."

Chas. G. Rapp drove down from St. Hilaire on Friday of last week and said that crops along the road seemed to be needing only a nice shower to put them in elegant shape.

Krohn & Renne have engaged the services of a professional cook in their new restaurant and everybody says their cooking is clear out of sight. We can vouch for its excellence.

The sale of hay on railroad lands on Monday was well attended and the bidding spirited. It sold at from $5 to $7 per forty. This indicates that farmers anticipate a shortage of the hay crop this year.

Si Perkins' car came in from the west via the Great Northern on Sunday evening. The company is returning from a trip to the coast and got in ahead of the washouts just in the nick of time.

Tom Harris got the Gates cottage on its new site on Monday morning. It occupies a very commanding position upon the top of the knoll where it can catch the gentle summer zephyrs and bowling winter blasts.

H. B. Budd, of Edna writes the JOURNAL: "I have 50 bushels of flax seed left that some good farmer ought to have to sow. To close out I will accept $1.50 per bushel free on board at Edna. Who wants it?"

Miss Mabel Holt left for St. Paul on Tuesday evening to attend the Rebekah convention at St. Paul, as a delegate from Crookston lodge, after which she will go to Hammond, Wis., to visit an aunt for a week or so.

Thief River Falls Press: John Bolton, a brother of Dr. Bolton, and an old settler from Middle River, was in the city Saturday. He brought in a large black bear skin which brought $17 and says it was a lucky shot, as the meat and all netted him in the neighborhood of $35.

McIntosh Tribune: L. J. Evenmoe, of Lessor township, was in McIntosh Tuesday and gave the Tribune a pleasant call. Mr. Evenmoe has killed eleven wolves since January 1st, 1894, amounting to $88 bounty, a record that can probably not be beat by any one in Polk county. He is one of the prosperous farmers of Lessor township.

Prof. McCrillis, of Fosston, has sold his interest in the Thirteen Towns to his partner, A. W. Foss, and it is said he would like to be a candidate for county superintendent on the people's party ticket next fall. The professor must have stumbled into a political revival meeting lately and experienced a change of heart.

Our report of the balloting for justice last week closed with the ninth ballot. On Thursday evening the council got down to business again, after a little routine work and on the 71st ballot Geo. Holt received the necessary six and was declared the justice elect. The vote was made unanimous and the council adjourned at midnight.

As E. M. Divine was coming into the city on Saturday with a load of wheat, the wagon reach broke and Ed. in some unaccountable manner managed to get thrown beneath the wreck of the wagon, and received various and sundry bruises, from the effects of which he was obliged to go about wearing a cane and looking like an interesting invalid for several days.

The contract for putting in the new sewer from the court house to the river, was awarded to Henry Nolan at the council meeting on Thursday evening. Mr. Nolan at once sent in his order for pipe and upon its arrival the dirt will commence to fly all along the line from as many shovels as he can hire to do the work. He is to have the sewer completed by August 15th.

A. J. McArty returned Sunday from Winnipeg.

Said to be 92 in the shade on Monday.

The thunderstorm Monday did not develope.

Fred Durand returned from the Lake Tuesday evening.

Miss Lottie Anglin returned from school at St. Paul this week.

Angus Mefsane came down from Euclid on Tuesday with a fine lot steer for the market.

Aaron Cooke finished sowing flax on section 9, Fairfax, on Monday. Will have about 25 acres of flax.

Si Perkins' hand was the source of a vast amount of amusement for the kids on Tuesday. It was as good as a circus.

The Salvation Army had a sociable at their barracks on Monday evening. A change of management has taken place.

John Wyatt has been having a siege of quinsy ever since Memorial Day. He was not able no be out that day and since has been confined to his bed.

Dr. A. A. Just left for Denver, Colorado, on Monday evening to attend homeopathic convention after which he will recreate for awhile, returning about July 1st.

M. C. Malone goes to St. Paul this week to represent the Odd Fellows of Crookston in the Grand Lodge convention. Frank Crowley goes along to see that he keep straight.

John Ristow was before the pension board on Monday for examination. John lost an eye in the service of his country, and the democratic administration seems anxious to know if he has got another yet.

Henry Nolan expects to be able to commence work on his sewer contract next Monday, when he will be able to furnish work for an army of laborers at good wages considering the times, at all events he will pay cash for the work.

George Young, A. C. Schmidt and L. E. Gossman left for St. Paul early this week, to represent the Crookston fire department in the convention in that city. An important affair at home prevented Chief Ranch from attending.

City Justice Holt, and City Clerk Lamont have rented the rooms over the Scandia American bank in the McKinnon block, that were formerly occupied by Lee and Herfert, and have taken possession. A better location for the city clerk could not be had in the city.

When Tom Young reached the N. P. depot on Sunday evening with the mail (as he supposed) he found the mail sack had been left at the postoffice and the train was only a short distance away. Jumping onto the dray Tom piled the bud and in in just four minutes (he says) he was back from the postoffice with the mail just in time for the train.

H. B. Budd drove down from Edna on Monday with an agent for the St. Anthony & Dakota elevator company, who is looking the ground over with a view to building a line of elevators along the Great Northern road. The company had a bid in for the Red River Valley elevator line and failing to get that line, are contemplating building one of their own.

The Strawbridge Business College and Normal school closes for the summer vacation to-day. Prof. C. M. Titus will go to Valparaiso, Ind. to perfect himself in Normal school methods. This school is just closing a very successful term and already the prospects for the fall term are most flattering.

J. Bailey cameln on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of having a cancer removed from his mouth by Dr. Dunlop. Four years ago such a cancer was removed from the same spot by a doctor who is not now a resident of this city and it seemed all right until last winter it began to appear and grew with great rapidity.

Sheriff Grandjean returned from Chicago on Monday having in custody A. J. Stoeser, of the Commercial hotel, who was last week indicted by the grand jury and arrested in Chicago on a telegram from our sheriff who at once went after his man. Stoeser claims to be able to make a satisfactory explanation of the affair and we are satisfied to let him do so before we comment further on the case.

Ole H. Bjorn purchased Chris Houston's four-year-old Star Bashaw colt last Saturday, and now considers himself right in it with the flyers. A full brother of this colt a year ago last spring netted Chris $250 cash and was sold later in the season for $800—having developed remarkable speed. Ole is not saying how much the colt cost him, but it was a long figure—and the colt is worth it, as he shows signs of good speed. He is a fine animal and Ole is justly proud of him. Looks like he weighed about 700, but actually tips the beam at 1060.

Bicyclists should respect that sidewalk ordinance far enough to obey it. If it is obnoxious they should have it modified.

Mrs. E. P. Pierce and Mrs. Wm. Watts went to Warren on Wednesday morning to attend the Presbyterian Missions convention.

The city board of equalization meets at the city hall June 25th at 9 a. m. All who have a kick to make on their assessment should be on hand to register it.

At 3 p. m. on Tuesday, at the residence of the bride's mother, Miss Tillie E. Roach was happily united in marriage to Albert H. Gnath, a prominent young business man of Fergus Falls, the Rev. Mr. Kuring officiating. A number of valuable presents attested the good will of friends and relatives on the happy occasion. Only a few near friends, with the relatives, witnessed the ceremony and sat down to the bridal dinner which followed. The happy pair left on the Great Northern train in the evening for their future home in Fergus Falls, accompanied by the best wishes of hosts of friends.

AN EXPERIMENT IN THIEVERY.

The Greasers Did Not Calculate on the Plunder Being So Heavy.

At the time Geronimo was massacreing people for ammunition and stirring things up generally along the border of old Mexico and the states I was with a party of American engineers who were constructing a branch of the Mexican Central railroad not far from the border and directly in old Geronimo's territory.

Down there the Indians and the poorer class of Mexicans are inveterate thieves and will steal anything they can manage to carry away without being detected. They will steal a thing totally regardless of whether it is of earthly use to them or not.

Our party had missed a quantity of tools, supplies of railroad iron, etc., and could not imagine how the thieves could utilize the material unless they were building a little railroad for their own amusement. Night after night we placed guards to watch for them, but it seemed they always knew when the guards were on the lookout and refused to attempt a foray on those nights. So we concluded that the culprits were members of the camp and knew all that was going on. After arguing at that conclusion we made it a practice to collect all portable property into convenient groups and guard it carefully.

In the outfit we had a large steam pile driver, a heavy piece of machinery—difficult to transport even under the most favorable circumstances—which for a modern necessary to guard, never for a moment thinking the thieves would attempt to make away with it. But, as subsequent events showed, we had underrated Mexican cunning and

It may be well to explain that a pile driver is a sort of derrick varying in height from 60 to 75 feet. It weighs several tons and is held in an upright position by strong guy ropes. This pile driver was located in advance of the camps and probably a quarter of a mile from the nearest.

One bright moonlight night the camp was aroused by an unearthly noise and a heavy crash, the disturbance seeming to come from the direction of our pile driver. We immediately surmised some devilment, knowing, as we did, that the "greasers" were none too friendly to "los gringos," as they called the Americans. Four of us hastily arose, buckled on our revolvers, and with a winchester apiece moved on the enemy. When we reached a knoll a few rods from and overlooking the location of the disturbance, we "limbered up" our artillery and cautiously peered over the knoll, expecting to see a band of Indians or "greasers" doing some sort of malicious work and were fully determined to annihilate the rascals on sight—no more than would have the whistling of a few bullets around our heads.

The Mexicans had attempted to steal our pile driver and had brought a team of burros to drag it away. They of course placed the team in the wrong position, cut the guy ropes and the pile driver fell squarely across the backs of the poor little burros, smashing them as flat as tortillos (pancakes).

After that our pile drivers were safe in Mexico.—Chicago Record.

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100% PURE

FOR CLOTHES.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CINTI.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Steam Threshing Outfit for Sale.

Second hand Straw Traction engine and Minnesota Chief separator for sale at a bargain. Everything is in first-class condition. To a responsible party long time will be given. Apply to or address,

[8-10] I. B. WELTER, Edna, Minn.

Why Women Should Vote?

Mrs. Julia B. Nelson the President of Minnesota Woman Suffrage Association and Superintendent of Franchise W. C. T. U., will deliver a lecture at the Baptist church Friday evening June 15th at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Nelson is the widow of a soldier and spent many years among the freedmen of the south. Her strength lies in her practical, solid common sense presentation of why suffrage is woman's right and how her enfranchisement is in the interest of purer and better laws.

Lecture free.

Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt received a telegram from her daughter Miss Mabel Arnold, who is safe from the washouts at a little place in Montana, called Thompson, impatiently awaiting the repairs on the roads so that she may come home. She has had quite an experience on her homeward trip from Vancouver, B. C.

Jas Greenhalgh, Sen., received a Seattle paper this week containing an account of the shooting of Ben McKinney, well known in Crookston—of one time on the police force—by a fellow gambler named Dave Black, at Tacoma, Washington, on May 29th. The two were partners, and had made some money at Seattle, which McKinney kept. Black wanted his share, and on McKinney refusing, he pulled a revolver on him to bluff him. McKinney struck the gun down. It was discharged, and the contents entered the latter's leg, making an ugly but not fatal wound.

Thos. Gibbon, a stockman writes from Rockport, Utah, under date of May 12, 1893. "Gents:—I have used your Heller's Barb Wire Liniment, and am so well pleased with it that I have no hesitancy in decaring it the best I ever used for curing wire cuts sores and wounds. It is truly a wonderful healer, and I would not think of raising stock with out it." R. L. Durand sells and guarantees it.

WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED FARMS

FOR SALE OR LONG TIME AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE.

E. M. WALSH,

Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Meeting To-Night.

To-night at the opera house will be held a very important meeting when the new hotel project will be discussed. Every business man in the city should be present, prepared to help the matter along to a successful termination. If there is anything that Crookston needs at present it is a hotel, and now is the best time to secure it. Let everybody turn out.

Eet up.

Came upon my premises, in the town of Onstad, on or about May 24th, three steers, two red and one red and one, all about 3 years old. Owner can recover by proving property and paying charges.

[9-11] SIVERT HANSON.

To Teachers of Polk County.

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teacher should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMES, County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address,

ROBERT STANTON, Crookston Packing House. [7-12] Crookston, Minn.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I can now proceed to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block. [52tf] ALEXANDER MCKINNON.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S GROCERY DEPARTMENT

Best Patent Flour, per sack	$ 1.50
Bakers' Flour, per sack	1.15
20 pounds Granulated Sugar for	1.00
15 " Best California Prunes for	1.00
30 " English Currants for	1.00
19 " Best Cooking Raisins for	1.00
Fancy Layer Raisins, per pound	15
All Package Coffee, per pound	23
Choice Guatemala Coffee, large, even bean, elegant, per pound	.28
3 pounds Mocha and Java Coffee for	1.00
Choice Uncolored Japan Tea, per pound	25
Fancy " " "	35
25 Bars Kirk's Soap	1.00
28 Bars Victor soap	1.00
Best Canned Corn, per can	10
" Tomatoes, per can	12½
20 pound pail jelly	60
2 gallon pail syrup	60
Best California Canned Goods. Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums, Muscat Grapes, per can	12½

We carry a large assortment of Flower Pots. Our line of Crockery and Glassware is the largest in Polk County.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 21 1894. NO. 10.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....H. M. Gough.
Secretary of State.....F. P. Brown
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist....Halvor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 1st Sen. Dist.....E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 1st Sen. Dist....John D. Knutson, R. H. Chorley and Hans Jacobson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....C. J. Elliott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 9th Jud. District .....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court .....Nils Jhnus.

County.

Auditor.....C. V. Webster
Treasurer.....T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds.....John Lundeen
Attorney.....A. R. Holston
Sheriff.....Amy Grandmeson
Judge of Probate.....C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lamson
Surveyor.....O. A. Hamery
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.....John E. Oppegaard
Second District.....Anton Linden
Third District.....M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District.....C. P. Demers
Fifth District.....A. C. Ritschcat

THE CITY.

Mayor.....John Crowe
Office in Merchants National Bank.
Clerk.....W. A. Lanctot
Office in Nicholson Block.
Treasurer.....Ole O. Christianson
Office in Anderson Block.
Comptroller.....E. M. Walsh
Office in Fournier Block.
Assessor.....C. H. Nix
City Attorney.....Deforest Buckler
Office over Merchants' National Bank.
City Engineer.....George Selph
Office in Fournier Block.
City Justices—L. E. Gosman, Fournier Block
G. H. Holt.....McKinnon Block
Constables.....A. A. Glenn and Wm. Bloom
Street Commissioner.....Jos. Creighton
Chief of Police.....Mat Lonis Gonyea

ALDERMEN.

At Large.....J. W. Wheeler
First Ward.....I. C. Jennings, Geo. O. Sahn
Second.....A. B. Forster, W. B. Norris
Third.....Wm. Watts, M. E. Kirsch
Fourth.....N. S. Gervais, Fred Hall
Fifth.....R. G. Nardecia, A. McGregor

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Ewing	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Berry,	Albert Wiskstrom	Berry
Badger	P N Savalend	Mentor
Brandsvold,	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Bolsjon,	Morry Bover	Euclid
Brisjet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Oliver Grundeon	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lanctot.	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Lindsay
Emardsville,	Charlie Aas	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Minor	Euclid
Eden,	Yori A Steele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Hinmichbach	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Warren
Fossum,	J O Nelson	Euclid
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gentilly,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city	J B Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Jeor J Ingebretson	Fertile
Gardon,	John Hinson	Hingtel
Gentilly,	R T Gendron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Jeforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E J Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hamm	Crookston
Higdem,	Ola Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Fred S Syverson	Lindsay
Hubbard,	Andrew Jenson	Seibertie
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Hanneville,	Jos Forks	Gentilly
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	J D Knutson,	Steinton
Emma,	Lars P Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brandle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gehrou,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson,	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Nettesen	Orotia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbee	Hoot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
North	Harry Boye,	T R Falls
Nordon,	H D Reardson	T. R. Falls
Northland,	M S Mesmer	Northland
Numedal,	Hesme r E Alison,	Tweed
Onard,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleen	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Robert	Brooks
Polk,	Chas. Peterson	Polk
Queen,	Hans S Honkom	Fosston
R. L. V. village,	A J Falls	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Bjalg Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallick	Elma
River Falls,	John Petrson,	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesond	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boaklad	Kelly
Rosebud.	John E Juverud,	Fosston
Reis,	Oven Simmon	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	Northland
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sieben,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	T R Falls
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edenor Perrine	Terrebonne
Tilden,
Tyrnld,	A O Stortroen	Nelsy
Tacland,	John Thompson	Nelsy
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Thos. Halderson,	Maple Bay
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Wanshak,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Third River Falls	Adam Zeh,	T R Falls

The poisonous cuts inflicted by barb wire, has caused the death of many a good horse whose life might have been saved by these of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment. It is especially made to heal all cuts, sores and wounds quickly, and thousands of farmers and stockmen have freely acknowledged it the best. F. L. Emmond sells and guarantees this remedy.

DISTRICT COURT.

Warring, Grindy, Thessen and Jes. Lejambe Receive Their Sentences.

The Two Latter Sent to Stillwater Penitentiary—The Others go to Jail.

A. J. Stoeser and Sister Acquitted—The Jury Discharged—Court Adjourned.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 13.

State of Minnesota vs. Joseph Lejambe; A. R. Holston prosecuting; A. C. Wilkinson retained by School District 103, and H. Steeserson defending. The defendant is charged with grand larceny in the second degree.

In April, 1890, the defendant was appointed to fill the unexpired term of treasurer of school district 103, this county. In July following, at the annual school meeting, another man was elected. This man failed to give sufficient bonds, and consequently did not qualify. Jos. Lejambe held over until the next year; at least no one else was appointed. At the next annual meeting defendant was re-elected. He promised to give bonds, but failed to do so. He held the office, receiving and paying out the money of the district until in February, 1893, when a special meeting of the board was called, at which time he was re-elected. He did not put up bonds, and Mr. LeMay, who appeared to be the chief inctotum of the district, and who had been keeping Lejambe's accounts since his appointment to office, complained that his accounts were short $298.30, consequently had Lejambe removed from office, and in March, 1893, arrested and brought before a justice at McIntosh, and bound over to the district court. His case was postponed from the December, 1893, term of court.

Patrice LeMay was the first witness called by the state. He testified that he had been clerk of district 103 since its organization; that he kept the books and accounts for defendant; that upon defendant's orders he drew some money from county treasurer, and showed how it was accounted for. The books of the clerk and treasurer of the district were introduced to show that moneys were received and disbursed. LeMay was on the stand all forenoon and until Thursday noon.

Thursday afternoon the cashier of the Red Lake Falls bank was put on the stand. He testified that he paid the $200 check to Lejambe. Mr. Matthews, deputy treasurer was called and showed the receipts for various amounts of money paid to district 103 during defendant's term of office as treasurer of said district.

The defense claimed that he turned the money over to Leavy soon after it came to him. That he did not sign all the receipts showing moneys received; did not know who signed his name that Leavy attended to everything. The evidence was all in and the case argued to jury before adjournment. The court allowed the the jury to go until morning before charging them.

FRIDAY.

After the jury in the Lejambe case had been instructed, that body then retired to settle the question at issue, "guilty or not guilty."

State of Minnesota vs. Ole Osberg west taken up. The defendant is charged with having sold whiskey without license. It is claimed that on the 8th of November 1893, at Erskine, the defendant sold one-half pint of whiskey to Jens O. Rude, for which he received 25c. Both parties are farmers, Osberg in the Town of Knute and Rude in the Town of Godfrey. Defendant claimed he was running a feed mill at Erskine and that he never sold any whiskey.

The case was given to the jury at 10:30.

The jury in the Lejumbe case found the defendant guilty of grand larceny in the second degree, as charged in the indictment.

The jury in the Osberg case were were out about long enough to take one ballot and returned a verdict of "not guilty." This was the shortest proceeding on record in this court. The defendant was arraigned, plead "not guilty," a jury was selected, the evidence introduced, case argued, jury instructed, a verdict returned acquitting the defendant, all in forty-five minutes.

There being another indictment against this same defendant Osberg and one Ole Osby, jointly, for selling intoxicating liquor without license, the case against Osberg was dismissed on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to sustain the indictment. It seems that Osby kept a place in Erskine where he sold "soft" drinks and some of the drinks got a little "hard."

The Great Northern car thieves were then brought before the court to receive sentence.

Jens Warring was first brought in. The court, in consideration of his pleading guilty, and his aiding the authorities to locate the others, would not impose the greatest sentence the law provides, but that he pay a fine of $100, or be confined in the county jail for 90 days.

Knute Grindy next came forward and received a like sentence. He too had confessed the crime.

Nick Thessen came forward. His attorney asked the leniency of the court in his sentence. The court, before pronouncing sentence, referred to his confession, and then going on the stand and denying his confession, stating that if he had not perjured himself by such contradictions he would impose upon him the same sentence as upon the other two. The judge then proceeded to give him fifteen months in the Stillwater penitentiary.

Joseph Lejambe then came forward to hear what his doom for petty larceny would be. He got $60 fine, or in default, sixty days in the county jail. In the other case against him for embezzling school funds, the jury having brought in a verdict of grand larceny, his counsel asked for a stay of judgment until he could have time to procure bonds and move for a new trial. This the court granted.

The next case called was the State of Minnesota vs. A. J. Stoeser and M. T. Stoeser; A. R. Holston prosecuting and Ed. George and L. E. Gossman defending. Counsel for defense asked for separate trials and it was granted. The case against A. J. Stoeser was tried first.

P. J. Russell was first called. He testified that he made out the papers, the article of agreement and the bill of sale conveying the half-interest in the Commercial hotel business and furniture, etc. to Henry Steege. That he asked Stoeser in the presence of Steege if there was anything against the property and the reply from Stoeser was that Steege was on the street from Reckitt block) "I owe a man across the street $300." The papers were duly signed, the money paid over. He also stated that a note for $600 signed by A. J. Stoeser and Mary Stoeser, payable to Henry Steege August, 1894 was made and delivered to Mr. Steege. This note was given to secure Steege for the return of his $600, if he did not want to continue the contract; it being set forth in the agreement that upon thirty days notice before August 1st. the money would be returned.

Mr. Steege was called and said that Stoeser represented to him that the mortgage to J. R. Clements had been paid; that he was told by Stoeser that he owed Nicholson but $35, Justend of $300 as Mr. Russell spoke about that the agreement conveyed to him the half interest of the business and furniture; that no mention was made of the $300 note. He was given over to Leavy soon after the case was opened

THE FACE AT THE CASEMENT.

BY CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.
AUTHOR OF "THE CONFESSION OF CLAUDE," "THE POINT OF A PENCIL," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED 1894 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

for over two months, you understand."

"I understand. What sort of a looking man is Mr. Dye?"

"Bilfry's notion of it is that he's some very badly run down parson. Belfry may be wrong, but that's the way he sizes up L. Dye. He might have been enjoying himself too much and the congregation got down on him. It's my experience, Mr. Maxey, after years in the lodging house line, that most of the reverses of this world can be traced, more or less direct, to shy-canery. If a man's down and you go hunting around in his records for the reason of it, 40 to 1 you'll run against a piece of shy somewhere, and bigger rather than little, generally, too. That's Belfry's ultimatum."

The lady landlord might have moralized for half an hour if the impatient Maxey had not interrupted him:

"I understand all about that. But what I am after now is Mr. Dye. Can you tell me the exact date of his coming and his disappearance?"

Mr. Belfry referred to a greasy pocket diary.

"He came on Dec. 7, Mr. Maxey, and he went on Dec. 9."

Maxey's hair rose at once, but he controlled himself and went on:

"Very well, Mr. Belfry. I now have a proposition to make to you—one that may prove exceedingly profitable to yourself. If you will by hook or crook —gentle means if possible, forcible means if necessary—bring that Mr. Dye to my rooms the day he sets foot within this house again, or failing to do that keep him a prisoner until I can be sent for—if you can do this, I will reward you most liberally. Meantime I shall probably see you again very soon."

Maxey, having transacted his business, arose to go. The landlord's eyes rested abstractedly on the $10 bill lying on the table, but again he did not seem to see it.

"Belfry is always glad to accommodate a gentleman," he said. "I want no pay for what I do. I'll see that the rascal is kept for you or brought to you for the sake of helping a gentleman in trouble. It will be all right, sir. Trust Belfry. If he ever sets his foot in the house again, you will know it, if you are at home, within 10 minutes."

"And be sure," cautioned Maxey, "that he sees me before he reads that letter."

The sly landlord chuckled and delivered himself of a comprehensive wink.

"I'm not an idjet," he murmured, "whatever I am, and I'm somewhat used to sly, Mr. Maxey—sly for short, you understand."

"By the way," suggested Maxey, turning almost on the doorstep as a thought occurred to him, "of course you don't know who lives at 16 Livingston street?"

"Oh, don't I, though! I may mention that Belfry looked that up at once. She's a widow, and she's very rich and very stingy. Her name is Forsythe."

There was a ringing in the artist's ears as he went out into the lighted street again. All the way back to Bellavoine place four little words of the sly landlord were sounding in his mind:

"Her name is Forsythe."

Was it possible that this was the lady whom Lamar was to marry?

CHAPTER VIII.
A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

They made an armchair of themselves by interlocking their hands and arms, Maxey and Dr. Lamar, to carry her up the long flights of stairs to her new home, this pale, sly girl whom the carefully driven carriage had just brought to the door of the house at the end of the quiet street.

How different from the ominous roll of the departing ambulance was the coming of this jaunty carriage! When Miss Maxey had listened to the first from the parlor window, high above the street, for somewhere heart felt as if a chill breath from the icy river had touched it. Now she waited at the top of the stairs with a rose in her hair.

Modern science had alone made this arrival possible. For the second time within the short period of a few weeks brain surgery had won another brilliant victory. But there was that about this second and more recent miracle which not even Lamar himself could explain. That the result had exceeded his most daring hopes he had acknowledged, at least to Maxey. To rescue from the grave a trembling paralytic victim, who realizes full well his doom, and himself give the word which authorizes the dangerous operation as his last fearful chance, is great indeed; but to flood a face the fullest, freest light into the darkness worse than death that eushrouds an intellect is something far greater than to raise at once out of the region of human achievement into that unfathomed realm of nature's mysteries where the wisest are as children. No. Lamar was too scientific a man to believe this triumph all his own, too honest to claim it as all his own, but nevertheless the world would count it his. Henceforth he would be great among his fellows.

The victim of the cliff road was still in a very sensitive and precarious state. Her memory of even recent events might fail her at times in the most alarming manner, but her pulse was normal, her appetite good, and every day would show a change for the better —every day away from the hospital, surrounded by sympathetic faces, kind voices and the quiet of a home. So they all believed. So had the carriage come.

This was scarcely the same young woman before had been carried by these four strong arms from the street to the artist's rooms. That form had been submissive and limp. This shrank in maiden modesty from mute contact. That face had been distorted with the hideous nightmare of perpetual fear. This gloved with all the sweet, shy, womanly emotions that rise in the breast of a young girl when necessity compels to cling in this bold fashion to strangers of the other sex. She obeyed their instructions for the most arms almost with a trembling reluctance that was too spontaneous to be counterfeit. I know not what philosophy Dr. Lamar thought, but to Julian Maxey the tremulous touch of that almost transparent little hand was a vague revelation of the possibility of a joy to come greater than any he had ever known.

It was toilsome, climbing the long flights of stairs in this slow, steady fashion, but it wound to Maxey in his present ecstatic frame of mind, with a tender sun such as this to carry, he would willingly have kept on mounting forever. As for the palpitating burden herself, she was troubled with more sentiments than one. This removal, her destination, her new friends, were so many mysteries to her. The truth had purposely been kept from her for a specific reason, and she had been informed only that she was to be taken to a more secluded place than the hospital, where she would be surrounded by brighter influences and would get well the quicker.

Notwithstanding her weakness and her trepidation at finding herself in the arms of the strange men, she was seen to glance with an expression of interest and curiosity upon the house and the entrance into which she was being taken. In spite of Dr. Lamar's assurance to the contrary, Maxey hoped that she would recognize the place and its inmates without a word to aid her. This was the object of his silence to her. In pursuit of the same end of an experiment,

Miss Maxey, waiting for them in the corridor, held the door open for them to pass in. The girl looked at her in a mute, questioning manner, without a shadow of recognition, that thoroughly disappointed the artist's sister. The doctor's strong toes were the first to break the silence.

"The stairs are your new friends, Miss Dye. Here your home is to be as long as you care to make it. From the time you expressed a desire not to be taken back to your father they resolved to bring you here."

"They are very good to me," said a faint voice. "But do they know that I am a poor girl without money to pay them for their care?"

"They know everything that is necessary."

Miss Maxey had drawn a great chair in front of the fire and had made it doubly easy with pillows. The comfortable, feminine touch was in a state of order and neatness wonderful to behold. Everything was in readiness for the reception of the patient. They placed her in the chair, and Maxey sighed as the clinging hand left its warm nestling place on his neck. Then the head sunk back from her, and she looked about, first at the strange faces of the artist and his sister and then at the various objects which went to make up the character of the room. Her glance wandered to the windows, with the fine prospect far away and the ice clad river underneath, to the huge, picturesque bookcases, even to the little white bed in the inner room, the curtains of which had been purposely drawn back that she might see it.

Maxey could not conceal his disappointment. She was the picture of the stranger. But there was another sentiment in the artist's mind, even stronger than this. In the anxious days when his face which now looked up from the pillows in the easy chair lay on the bed in the sleep from which it could not be awakened, he had with an insufferable feeling of regret and pity at his heart. The delicate outline of the oval face and the classic features, despite the unnatural expression which distorted the countenance and stood in the relief shadow, had whispered a sorrowful story of a lost radiance that would have dazzled the eyes of the beholder. And now, as the artist saw this face again, lit up with the light of reason and changing with the varying thoughts, despite the pale hollow though it was, he realized, with the keen interest of a student of the pleasing in nature, that the reality was even stronger than he had pictured it, and he was content.

"She will be beautiful."

There was a deeply troubled look in the dark eyes, as they finished the momentary survey of the apartment and came back to rest on Miss Maxey's face. The pale lips murmured something which sounded to her hearers like, "I do not understand."

At any rate, Dr. Lamar took it upon himself to say again:

"These are your friends, Miss Maxey and her brother, who took care of you in your illness. You are to stay here with them as long as you like, to make your home with them, if you will, until you are well, strong and able to go where you desire."

"Going?" whispered the voice, a slight color coming into the face. Dr. Lamar understood the delicate shrinking of a sensitive nature, and feared that it might have a tendency to retard her convalescence. The unscrupulous man lied:

"Not in the least. Your father has secured them to take charge of you during his absence. He was obliged to go away."

"He is not my father," she returned in a clearer voice. The sound of that voice made Maxey's heart beat faster. The accents and intonation were a revelation. They could have been the product alone of refinement and education.

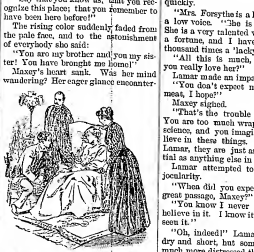
A joyous thought seemed to arise suddenly to the poor girl's mind, a thought that made her eyes glisten and her face flush quick. She looked eagerly first into Maxey's face and then into the face of his sister. Something seemed to tremble on her lips, but she forbore to utter it. The artist, who had been watching her every movement, started forward.

"Say that you know us; that you recognize this place; that you remember to have been here before!"

The rising color suddenly faded from the pale face, and to the astonishment of everybody she said:

"You are my brother and you my sister! You have brought me home!"

Maxey's heart sank. Was her mind wandering? Her eager glance encountered



"You are my brother and you my sister!"

ed their blank and amazed looks, and the trembling joy faded at once from her face.

Ellen spoke up quickly:

"Let it be so, dear Amrette. We will be brother and sister to you henceforth."

"Then you are not really so? No, no. I should have known better."

"And you don't recognize the room at all?" Maxey said in a tone of regret.

The dark eyes looked about in a lingering perplexity. She said at last falteringly:

"I cannot say, but in my forgotten childhood, which I have tried so hard to remember—"

"I don't mean that," interrupted Maxey. "I mean since you have been sick."

The dark eyes turned toward him in wild amazement.

"Was I not taken to the hospital?"

"You were brought here. You were placed in that little bed there. My sister attended you, and so you remained for weeks. Now, don't you remember it—just in a faint, vague way, I mean?" returned Maxey.

The dark hair moved on the pillow as the head shook.

"It is all strange to me," she said. "I must have been very sick."

Dr. Lamar looked triumphantly at Maxey, who was evidently disappointed.

"I can remember faces faintly, coming and going, as in a dream."

"Reminiscences of the hospital after the operation," communed Dr. Lamar in an undertone.

Maxey sighed.

"I must give it up," he said. "You were right."

The physician did not reply. His attention was taken by the patient. A gray pallor was creeping into her face. Her eyes closed wearily.

"No more of this," he said authoritatively. "This conversation has been too much for her. Get her to bed, Miss Maxey."

"But we have found out nothing," expostulated the artist. "It is already two weeks, and you have allowed nobody to question her. Meanwhile we do not know how important it may be in the cause of justice it is thus we should have this crime explained."

Lamar looked at the artist in stern silence for a moment, and then with a sudden movement seized him, as if he had been an unruly schoolboy, by his coat and led him from the room. When they were in the back parlor, he released him and said with a contemptuous flirt:

"Do you want to undo all that has been done? The girl remains here only upon condition that you obey her physicians's orders. These orders are that you shall absolutely refrain from bothering her or even hinting of the past in any way until you have my permission. I will tell you plainly, it may be for weeks."

"So long!" said Maxey in consternation. "You know I would be the last to do anything which would tend to her injury. But it does seem a shame, by Jove: it does seem a shame!"

He began to pace the floor with his hands behind his back.

"I have my suspicions," he continued. "If you know them, you would be as impatient as I am."

"I doubt it," returned Lamar, "but by and by you will tell them to me, and we shall see. Before that happens, I want to settle your mind on one point. Mrs. Forsythe does not know and never heard of this man Dye. It is useless and ridiculous, of course, that she should be told to satisfy you. I have asked her."

"But it is she who lives at 16 Livingston street."

"And it is also her servants who live there!" exclaimed Lamar impatiently.

Any reverence to his intended bride always had a depressing effect upon the physician. He folded his hands behind him, turned his back on Maxey and looked gloomily out of the window at the river. The artist crouched like a child and laid a friendly hand on his arm.

"Old fellow, I have offended you."

"Nothing of the sort," returned Lamar. "You did simply right. How could you know that the suspicion of the lodging house keeper in Flood street was preposterous? You never saw her."

Maxey was well aware of that. If there was any matter on earth in which he felt he was able to rely on his friend's confidence, it was this matter of his engagement with the Widow Forsythe, and no his esteem and regard for the man were too great to permit him to neglect an opportunity, such as this, to counsel him.

"Eustace," he began hesitatingly, "I wish I could feel that you wouldn't think that I was presuming on your friendship."

Lamar turned his head away very quickly.

"Mrs. Forsythe is a lady," he said in a low voice. "She is very handsome. She is a very talented woman. She has a fortune, and I have been called a thousand times a lucky dog—"

"All this is much, Eustace, but do you really love her?"

Lamar made an impatient gesture.

"You don't expect me to talk sentiment, I hope?"

Maxey sighed.

"That's the trouble I was afraid of. You are not much wrapped up in your science, and you imagine you don't believe in these things. But I tell you, Lamar, they are just as real and essential as anything else in our lives."

Lamar attempted to force a tone of jocularity.

"When did you experience your last great passage, Maxey?"

"You know I never had one. But I believe in it. I know it, because I have seen it."

"Then, indeed!" Lamar's words were dry and short, but somehow he looked much more distressed than indifferent.

Maxey went on earnestly: "Eustace, it has been your province on many important occasions to give me advice, and you must acknowledge that in however bad grace I accepted it I generally acted on it. I can't expect you to take mine, but I am sure you will be going to advise you. If you marry Mrs. Forsythe for her money, you will regret it all the days of your life."

Lamar turned upon him almost angrily. "Who told you that, Maxey?"

The artist smiled a little stiffly:

"Nobody. I inferred it from what you said. You do not love her. Don't marry her."

"Love her? No. But, what is more to the point, I esteem and respect her. That is enough. Maxey, this is not an agreeable subject to me. Don't let us refer to it again. My mother has set her heart on this match, and even if I were convinced of its unadvisability I could not honorably retreat now. If there was a chance that I had a little romantic feeling for Mrs. Forsythe, and if time and a better acquaintance with her have cause me to overcome it, why, that is my affair. If I was weak enough or foolish enough to take a hasty, impulsive step in an all important matter—a step which I have since had reason to regret—that is my affair too. If I have failed to you that which I had a right and shall tell to no other person upon earth, it is because I know you too well to believe that you would betray my confidence. Julian, you will not mention what I have said this much to you to a living soul—not even to—"

He stopped and averted his glance and went on again: "Not even to your nearest and dearest friend. There, let us change the subject."

Maxey sighed as his friend regretfully. Lamar coughed and drummed on the piano.

"Well," said the physician at length, "you were saying that you had a little suspicious. Whom do you suspect?"

"If anybody, man Dye. Isn't it somewhat remarkable that he disappeared from the house in Flood street at the same day that the crime was committed on the cliff road?"

"It is worth noting at least. What do the police think of it?"

"I have not employed the police at all in this matter. I do not propose to as long as it is possible to get along without them."

"That is very foolish of you. Suppose this man Dye should escape?"

"I have fixed that with the landlord. I shall know it in half an hour."

Lamar nodded. "Well," he said, "I am afraid he won't."

"So am I," said Maxey. Lamar looked out of the window at the vast white sheet of ice beneath which the tide flowed on unseen. After a little he turned again, put his hand on his friend's shoulder and said gravely:

"Maxey, we must cause the newspapers to lie for us. We must make it out that the girl is dead; that the operation killed her. If there is anything in this beyond a mere coincidence, Maxey, we must put the rascals off their guard by making them feel at their ease."

"Eustace, what are you thinking of? Your reputation!"

"My reputation!" interrupted Lamar, with a sudden impatience. "What will it be worth on in a more guarded tone, "that will take care of itself. My part of the matter will be known soon enough when the time comes. I am not dependent on the newspapers. However, I am not sure that my idea is not a wild one. Can this be done?"

"I do. I think so. The manager of The Herald is a friend of mine. He will print it, and everybody will copy it."

"The sooner you see him, then, the better."

"I will see him at once," said Maxey.

CHAPTER IX.
WHO SHE WAS.

"At last!" cried Maxey. He had been putting the finishing touches to a sketch in the light from the bay window in the front room and threw down his crayon to utter this exclamation. Dr. Lamar had just told him that the time had come to question Amette.

"But in saying this," the physician continued, "I must you distinctly to understand that she is still in a very delicate state. This examination may be conducted imnocuously, and it may stop at the first symptoms on her part of undue agitation or excitement. At the same time I am going to be perfectly frank with you, Julian, and confess that I am more afraid of you than of the strength of the reminiscences. This will cyed exhilaration in which you occasionally indulge is as communicative to a nervous temperament as the measles. Your principal fault is that your pulse rises too quickly. That will do now. They're coming."

There was a knock at the door.

"Coming!" echoed Maxey. "Why didn't you tell me so at once?"

His chief trouble at this moment was his hair and his necktie, the first of which had risen in a contentious manner, while the second somehow had arrived at a decidedly demoralized condition. Miss Maxey had time only to make one or two frantic dashes at each when the door leading from the little vestibule to the back parlor was pushed open and a playful voice said:

"May we come in?"

The artist was in a trifle confused by the suddenness of the arrival and blushed like a girl, all of which several symptoms on his part amused the philosophic physician very much. But Maxey was an artist, and he soon forgot his embarrassment in his admiration of the picture that was presented to him. The two girls stood in the doorway with their arms about each other. Miss Dye had already regained her color, and her eyes sparkled with the keenness of health. They wore about of a size, and both were dark, but there was enough difference in their faces still to make an effective contrast. Even Lamar, who was not an artist, was aware that his heart was beating a trifle faster, for his nose of his deeper emotions this was a fact known only to himself.

"Shall we sit here on the sofa?" Ellen asked.

"Sofa? No. Here, here! Let her sit here by the window," cried Maxey, "where she can see the river."

"Why, that suggestion of rascal already has eyes for only one, and she, except from a medical point of view, the least interesting," thought Lamar.

Still he ought to have been content, for this forethought of Maxey's permitted him to take a chair near his own preference.

Maxey sat beside his easel in a position that he could look into the faces about him.

Amette was just beginning to get sufficiently used to her new friends and her new home to be easy and natural in their presence. Her shyness had been wonderful, and it had taken a long time to conquer it. But now she sat easily and gracefully by the window, a faint smile on her pensive face, despite the boundless prospect. Maxey gazed at her with undisguised admiration.

"You are looking so much better today, Miss Dye," he said in a burst of enthusiasm.

"I am glad to hear that," she replied, with a look of pleasure. "It makes me happy to hope that the time is not far away when I shall be required by any one to go to work at something and in some small way repay you all for your great kindness."

She glanced furtively at Maxey's sketch. The artist observed the look.

"You like art?"

"In my poor way, yes, but I know so little about it. They were foolish enough once to fancy I had talent for drawing. I learned what I could from them. A good lady who had been entertaining my mother noticed some little sketches I had made, and she was so pleased with them that she wished me to give me lessons. She was very kind, was she not? Perhaps I might have learned to make a pleasing picture, but I had her as I lost every friend I ever had."

A painful expression drove away all the cheerfulness and animation in Amette's countenance. She turned her head to hide from the others a little scene filled Maxey with consternation, and even the loyal Ellen felt a momentary suspicion. The doctor alone remained perfectly calm. He spoke, and his rich strong voice had a consolation for all who felt its sweetness.

"But this same lady afterward wrote you a letter, did she not?"

"A letter? Yes, sir."

"Very recently, I mean?"

Amette instantly became pale. She spoke in a low voice and with an expression which gave them all a chill at the heart, for at that moment they saw the face which had looked forth from the little bed in the alcove room. Fortunately it was only the expression of an instant. It had lasted longer, Dr. Lamar would certainly have broken up the conference. But it was evidently only the transient reamht of the cloud to a calm which finds itself suddenly brought face to face with a forgotten horror.

"Yes, yes," she said in a faint voice. "I remember it now. She wrote to me."

"Her name was Haggood?" continued the physician after a pause.

She looked at him a little bewilderingly and in some degree regained her color.

"I am surprised at your knowledge, but of course you know all about it. Yes, my mother's name was Haggood."

"Then why was it that Mrs. Haggood should hate you?"

"Hate me? What a dreadful idea! She was fond of Ellen—I was so little to her indeed that I was quite sure she must have forgotten all about me. Ours was only the acquaintance of three days at the Somerset hotel, where my mother took me, and two years have passed since then."

"She is a very old lady," put in Maxey. "Somebody that I know explained. She forgot her—at least so much that the name Amette recalled nothing. It is perfectly possible. When you got the letter which you supposed came from her, you thought it was very strange, but still you went to meet her on the beach road?"

Amette looked into the artist's face and shuddered, but the tone in which she spoke was more the voice of desolation than of horror.

"My good, kind friends, it is due to you that I recall all this, however much it pains me. I have tried not to think of the past while I have been here, but it is too black a shadow ever to let me go."

Said Maxey eagerly, "When you have told the story once, you need never refer to it again."

"I do not complain. It was my misfortune to be born under it. I do not wish to conceal anything. Indeed I thought this letter very strange, but I was so unhappy that anything was better than the suspense. I had nobody to advise me. If I was imprudent, it was not wholly strange after the life I was leading. I got the letter in the morning, and at noon I had decided to get a room in the hotel on the beach road just before sundown. I had expected to find it just as I had seen it once before, full of people and stir. It was a shock to me to see it closed and deserted. It was very cold. At first I walked up and down the road, but after awhile, becoming tired, I rested myself on a seat in the way side. It grew dark very fast after the sun went down, and my heart was grave me that I had done wrong to come. The ocean sounded so lonesome moaning way below me, and it awoke such a lonely feeling in my heart that I believe I was foolish enough to cry as I sat there to think how miserable and friendless I was.

"What first brought me to myself was the realization that the tears were almost freezing on my cheeks and that it would soon be quite dark. I started up and looked along the road. There had been but few passers, but now I saw a man coming down on the side next to me, and I waited for him to pass. It was so muffled up that I could only see his eyes, and I thought he acted somewhat strangely. He simply saw me, but he turned his head away quickly when I looked at him, as though he did not wish to meet my glance. Then I began to realize what a danger I might be running alone at this hour in this deserted place. I watched him carefully as he went on, and I saw him look around to see if no one or two, and finally he crossed over and came back again on the other side of the way. This really frightened me, and as he seemed to be going by I thought I would run after him. I got past and then ran for safety with all my might. I started out for this purpose, but I had run but a little way when I heard a sleigh coming very fast from the direction of the town. It came, from the direction of the city. I thought by the sound the horses must be running away. I stopped back to the wall to be out of harm's reach, but it was only a man, driving rapidly. It was not so dark that I could not see him. He was one of those caps which let down over the face, with an oval slit for the eyes. Before he got to me he turned to speak to the horses. They stopped so quickly that I hardly realized what was happening. He was out of the sleigh and coming toward me almost before I really knew it. I did not even then fully understand that I could not trust him. He was old, and when I did I had not the power to cry out.

"He seized me with terrible strength, putting a cold gloved hand over my eyes and mouth and forcing me backward across the wall. I was filled with fear, and his glove pressed me so tightly that I could not breathe. I struggled to get my face free, but he held me with his hand. He pushed me down in the cold snow. He got my arms crossed at the knees and hurt me terribly. Then I felt his free hand searching my pockets. The rest is all a blank to me. I must have lost my senses at that moment. I suppose I had a fever, for I awoke in the hospital with a strange illness and my head in a fire.

Her voice ceased suddenly, and each of the three listeners drew a sigh of relief. Even Lamar seemed to think it time lest she should see how interested he was. She alone was free from excitement. The associations connected in her mind by her recollections seemed only to make her utterly and cast down. She did not need to tell them in so many words that her life had been very unhappy and unsatisfactory.

Maxey was fearless to know what the cautious physician would next do. He was afraid he would think that Amette had dwelt long enough on gloomy things for one day. To his intense relief Dr. Lamar instead disposed rather to encourage her to talk.

"Yours was a narrow escape, Miss Dye," he said, "and one for which your friends must all be very grateful."

The pathetic expression in the pale face deepened.

"My friends! All I have are with me here. I have no others; no, not one."

The eyes were raised to conceal that Miss Maxey's eyes filled with tears.

"Surely, surely, this cannot be!"

"Ah, it was strange to me once because your life has always been bright and happy. You cannot understand. Even in the little time I have been in your pleasant home that old life of mine has begun to seem like a dream. It comforts me so to have escaped from it that I have done all I could to forget it."

Maxey was much taken with a good home and refining influences. That is betrayed in all that you say and do."

Amette's whole soul seemed to be in her reply:

"All that I have to be thankful for I owe to the influence of my home and my life stood between me and degradation and ignorance, who put her very heart's blood into making me what I am!"

She stopped abruptly, overcome with emotion.

"Your mother?" suggested Ellen.

"Yes, yes, I shall always call her so! My mother! Forgive me for not having told you all about it before. But if you have how it pained me to bring back the old associations and the old feelings you would not wonder at my silence. Just now I was trying to please myself with the delusion that it had gone forever."

"It has!" cried Maxey and his sister

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SAMOA'S ISLES AGAIN.

THOUGH A GENTLE RACE, THE SAMOANS ARE OFTEN IN TROUBLE.

Can It Be That the Whites, Particularly the Germans, Are at Fault?—Bits of History. John C. Klein, Chief Justice Ide and the Aborigines.

That beautiful nest of islands known as the Samoan group, that has been likened to a cluster of cores in a desert of green sea water, has been attracting the world's attention again.

One of the statements that have been lately put forth about the lovely little archipelago is to the effect that the present administration proposes to abandon all American interests there, and this has caused heated discussion on the part of those who take an interest in the matter.

The Samoan islands are an even dozen in number, 10 being inhabited by about 30,000 natives and 700 whites. They were known as the Navigator islands by the old geographers and were surveyed in 1839 by the United States exploring expedition under Commodore Wilkes. The chief islands, in order of size, are Savaii, Upolu, Intrula, Manua, Olosenga, Ofu, Manono and Apolima. The largest contains 700 square miles, while Apolima contains but seven. The islands not here named are nothing but specks of land in a waste of waves. The harbor of Apia, of which so much has been printed during the last few years, is situated on Upolu, the most important and most populous island of the group, though not the largest. The harbor of Pago Pago is located on Intrula. The inferior importance of Savaii, in spite of its superior size, is due to its physical features, which are quite unlike those of any other of the islands. Its shores are low; a peak, the approaches to which are gradual, rises in the center, and there are no permanent streams. Intrula affords the finest scenery. The entire group appears to be of volcanic origin, though the natives possess no traditions of ancient eruptions. In 1867, however, a submarine volcano burst out near Manua, and for a fortnight jets of mud and dense columns of sand and stones were projected to a height of 2,000 feet or more.

A CONSULTATION WITH SAMOAN CHIEFS.

The archipelago is situated between 169 and 172 west longitude and 13 and 14 south latitude, directly in the track of commerce between New Zealand and Hawaii. This location renders the Samoan islands the key to the southern Pacific from a naval as well as a commercial standpoint, and it is this that has made them a bone of contention for so many years. The Germans were first on the ground in the capacity of traders, beginning operations as early as 1857. In 1870 they controlled the entire trade of the group. A line of steamers began to touch at Samoa that year, and an American company began operations. It was two years later that an agreement was made between the United States and the Samoan chiefs for the cession of the harbor of Pago Pago to this government for a coaling station. It was then proposed to annex the islands to the United States, and all the chiefs of the group joined in a petition asking that this be done. This government, however, suggested the formation of a local government composed of native king and advised by resident whites and natives. In 1878 a treaty was signed by the Samoans and the representatives of the United States, Germany and Great Britain. By the terms of this writing the independence of the islands was guaranteed, and there was to be no interference with the domestic affairs of the Samoans except by the joint action of the three governments.

The Germans were not satisfied with the way things went on under this agreement, but it was 10 years before they did anything about it. Then they fomented trouble among the natives, and a rebellion was started against King Malietoa by a native chief named Tamasese. Tamasese was with the aid of the Tentons and was made king, the Germans deporting the legitimate monarch. A new treaty was then made with Tamasese, who granted the Germans special privileges. It was then the Americans and the English who objected, and the Malietoa party among the natives organized under a new native leader named Mataafa. Each of the three governments sent its warships there, and it was during this period of disorder that a hurricane swept all that portion of the Pacific and wrecked so many warships, carrying hundreds of brave men to the bottom with the ill fated craft.

CHIEF JUSTICE IDE.

It was then, too, that Mr. John C. Klein made his record as a newspaper correspondent of exceptional ability.

Perhaps you do not recall him without a moment's thought. Mr. Klein was sent to Samoa by a newspaper in New York and one in San Francisco. He became a good friend of Mataafa, and the Germans made a big row about it. In fact, they got to hate Klein so bitterly that they demanded of this government that he should be obliged to leave. Mr. Klein has always claimed that he did no more than his duty in reporting the facts in what seemed to him the utterly defenseless course of the Germans in making war upon the natives. He finally had to take refuge upon a United States man-of-war. He is now a resident of New York.

The upshot of all the trouble was a joint treaty, signed at Berlin in 1889, by which Malietoa was restored to the throne and all the three powers were guaranteed equal rights. An advisory board to the king, composed of a representative of each power, was established, and it was hoped that everything would then go on smoothly. But dissatisfaction soon arose among the natives. Mataafa, by whose efforts alone the restoration of Malietoa to the Samoan kingdom was rendered possible, revolted, and a bloody warfare began in 1892, which was not quashed till some time in July of last year, when Mataafa saw that his contest with Malietoa was a hopeless one. He retreated to the island of Manono, and there American, German and British warships threatened to bombard him unless he surrendered. Malietoa celebrated his victory in most barbaric fashion, displaying the heads of Mataafa's followers on polls and in other ways exhibiting his savage nature.

The year there have been fresh disturbances in Samoa, Tamasese, who was made king by the Germans in 1888, being the leader of the revolt. He had been deported to one of the smaller islands, but he could not be controlled. He is now believed to be out on the details of the current complications in the space at command. It is stated in some quarters that the revolt has gained much native sympathy by reason of the action of Chief Justice Henry C. Ide of Vermont, who was formerly United States land commissioner in Samoa and was appointed to his present post in December, 1893, under the Berlin treaty of 1889, by the three signatory powers. It is stated that when there were signs of an outbreak in March last the chief justice disarmed the native forces in order to secure peace and imprisoned 23 chiefs, who were sentenced to work upon the roads, the same as if they were not chiefs at all. Of course King Malietoa resented this act, because such action tended to make him more secure upon his island throne, and his approval has heightened the adverse feeling of his disaffected subjects. Malietoa is described by those who have met him as a man of inferior mentality and caliber as well as of the most savage cruelty. When he has distinguished guests to entertain, it is said that he brings out nine or ten music boxes and sets them all going at once. Mentally Mataafa is said to be upon a much higher plane.

JOHN C. KLEIN.

Notwithstanding their bloody fights, the Samoans are spoken of by those who profess to know them best as an exceedingly gentle race. They are physically very near perfection. Dr. Klein says that they are wonderfully versed in the world's affairs, and that many speak the three chief European languages fluently. He has many letters from Mataafa, which show him to be a man of keen perceptions and good reasoning powers.

Like most aborigines of the isles of the sea, the Samoans do not relish hard work, and so fertile are their islands that it is not necessary for them to make great exertions in order to obtain food. As for raiment, until the whites invaded Samoa the natives were satisfied to be clad in the circumambient air alone, save for an apron of leaves, and their dwellings are for the most part simplicity itself. They are circular in form, from 30 to 40 feet in diameter and with no walls so low that the houses are spoken of as "principally roof." This latter is done shaped, thatched and rises almost 25 feet above the ground. Each house has but one room, but at night this apartment is divided by little tents of matting into sleeping places, under which ingeniously made instruments of torture, consisting of bamboo sticks and matting and used as beds, are placed. Except for their leaf aprons the Samoans are nearly, but inasmuch as these articles of apparel are too fragile to bear washing they are worn unpleasantly few. Beauty is deemed a necessary adjunct in the native woman, and she is not a pleasant creature to be near, however, because of the universal custom of smearing the body with rancid cocoanut oil. They bathe the hair daily in a solution of lime to give it a reddish tinge. The native religion, singularly enough, resembles the Greek mythology in many ways, but before the introduction of Christianity polygamy was largely practiced.

CHARLES APPLEBEE.

1894	JUNE.					1894
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fr.	Sa.
					1	2
3	4	5	6	7	8	9
10	11	12	13	14	15	16
17	18	19	20	21	22	23
24	25	26	27	28	29	30

Smallpox in Railroad Camps.

DULUTH, June 13.—Several new cases of smallpox have developed in the vicinity of Duluth. There is little fear but the disease can be kept in check in the city itself, since it has broken out in the lumber camps and among railroad laborers and may be hard to check. A man came in from the Mitchell-McCluer camp, where 300 men are employed, with a well developed case and a case has been discovered among laborers employed by the Minnesota road.

Ancient Order of Hibernians.

ST. PAUL, June 13.—The biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is in session in St. Paul. The fact that the convention was to be held in St. Paul was not known to the public until Monday.

Arrested For Embezzlement.

ST. PAUL, June 13.—Richard P. Black, a bar-keeper employed by the firm of William Rodger & Co., was arrested on a charge of embezzling $2,000 of his employers' money.

Whitewater, Wis., June 2.—The veterans of the four grand regiments which Wisconsin gave to the cavalry service during the civil war will gather at Madison, Wis., July 3 and 4 for regimental and brigade reunions. A very attractive programme has been arranged.

When you start out on a journey you will get the best service, the greatest luxury, the most complete comfort if your ticket reads via the North-Western Line. For full information as to through rates and for sleeping car reservations, call on your home agent, and for map folder free. Address T. W. Teasdale, G. P. A., C. St. P. M. & O. Ry., St. Paul. [46-tf]

Never Never Forget.

Every morning in the year, on arrival of Great Northern and Northern Pacific trains from the West, the Hodges Cafe Express via the North Western Line leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 a. m.; Chicago 8:05 p. m. has Superb Parlor car and is the only day train every day in the week between these cities. [46-tf]

Grasp This and Hold It.

The North-Western Limited to Chicago via the North-Western Line is the finest equipped train out of Minneapolis and St. Paul. It has Pullman and Wagner Private Compartment and 16 section sleepers and Buffet-Smoking Library cars and only leaves Minneapolis, daily 7:30 p. m., St. Paul 8:10 p. m.; arriving Milwaukee 7:00 a. m.; Chicago 9:30 a. m. [46-tf]

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pain before relief or remedy can be procured. Considering the fact that Hallers Pain Paralyzer is the best and a never failing remedy for all quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 30c, it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quick as Haller's Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

Offering grabby statements with no foundation in fact will not interest the sensible, every sensation detailed in any case, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat myself until my arms were sore, to every one I encounter the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition I had a tingling sensation in my back and around my kidneys. I could get no sleep on account of the pain in my stomach. Physicians called it nervous prostration, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they continue its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. I was in this condition when I began using Miles' Restorative Nervine. After using a year and a half steadily, but with no appreciable benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and I could sleep as well as ever. The slightest indication of pain soon disappeared as well as it ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 127. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation and it has been as satisfactory in each case as in mine.—James Kane, La Rue, O. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a guarantee first bottle benefits, or receipt of price, $1 per bottle at all bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

Your Heart's Blood

Is the most important part of your organism. Three-fourths of the complaints to which the system is subject are due to impurities in the blood. You can, therefore, realize how vital it is to

Keep It Pure

For which purpose nothing can equal S.S.S. It effectually removes all impurities, cleanses the blood thoroughly and builds up the general health.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin diseases mailed Free to any address.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court. Special term, June 8th, 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Charles S. Spendley, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Elsie Spendley, the widow of said deceased, representing that the City of Crookston in the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the 25th day of March A. D. 1894, at the county of Polk, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to her (Elsie Spendley granted).

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this court, on Saturday, the 23rd day of June A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston, this 8th day of June A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. M. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alvide Peterson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Joseph Bolin, mortgagee, bearing the 8th day of April, 1891, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 3d day of May, 1891, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of Mortgages on page 389 in said office, on which there is claimed due at the date of this notice the sum of Seventy-four and thirty eight dollars and sixty-five cents, and no action or proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to collect said mortgage debt or any part thereof; and said mortgage containing a power of sale contained shall be made in payment of said sum of money, with interest thereon, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 8th, 1894. L. ELLINGTON, Mortgagee.

E. F. PIERCE, Attorney for Mortgagee. [8-4t]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated on the 28th day of July, A. D. 1888, made and executed by Jens O. Rinde and Emma Rinde his wife, mortgagors, to Ellington Mortgage Company, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., and duly recorded in Book 36 of mortgages on page 389 of said records, which said mortgage was assigned, and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, on said mortgage and the note secured thereby, the sum of Four hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars ($448.75-100) and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt or any part of said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage and the note secured thereby, to-wit: Lot number two (2) in block number two (2) in the original townsite of Mcintosh, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county, and bring said sale at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10:00 ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said amount of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars and interest and taxes if any, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., June 14, 1894.

JOSEPH KELSO, Mortgagee.

ALLEN & KOZAEL, Attorneys for Mortgagee, Halbach, Minn. [6-14]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated on the 28th day of July, A. D. 1888, made and executed by Jens O. Rinde and Emma Rinde his wife, mortgagors, to Ellington Mortgage Company, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., and duly recorded in Book 36 of mortgages on page 389 of said records, which said mortgage was assigned, and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, on said mortgage and the note secured thereby, the sum of Four hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars ($448.75-100) and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt or any part of said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage and the note secured thereby, to-wit: Lot number two (2) in block number two (2) in the original townsite of Mcintosh, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county, and bring said sale at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10:00 ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said amount of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars and interest and taxes if any, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., June 14, 1894.

JOSEPH KELSO, Mortgagee.

ALLEN & KOZAEL, Attorneys for Mortgagee, Halbach, Minn. [6-14]

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.,

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS, and every thoughtful person will admit that our stock is well selected when they notice the following:

Rushford Wagons, John Deere Plows, Hollingsworth Rakes, Flying Dutchman Plows, Deering Binders and Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods. If you call we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

Is Now on deck at the Old Stand on Second Street, with a Full Line of

PAINTS OILS GLASS AND WALL PAPER

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

A NEW Serial

NOW RUNNING IN THE JOURNAL.

READ IT.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 25 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Populist County Convention, June 26th, at Crookston.

Republican County Convention at Crookston, June 29th.

Populist Legislative Convention for 51st district, at Crookston July 6th.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 5th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

THE report that the Coxeyites were planning to blow up the capitol and other public buildings at Washington is too silly for any use. They would not be liable to give it away so easily if there was anything in it.

THE Tribune man, county attorney Holston, administered a rich, rare roast to the Times man in his last issue in which he ably demonstrated his qualifications to represent this district in Congress. What a credit that genius would be in the halls of Congress.

THE Prattsburgh, (Steuben Co. N. Y.) News has enlarged from a 6 column folio to a nine column folio. The News has ever been an able representative of its field, ever in advance, and the JOURNAL is pleased to note this evidence of appreciation on the part of its patrons. We trust it will meet with its just reward in a continuance of abundant patronage.

THE Times complains about an "unofficial paper" (the JOURNAL) publishing the proceedings of the last meeting of the county board ten days in advance of the Times (the official organ), and says the county auditor furnished the aforesaid "unofficial paper" with the proceedings in advance of the Times. The facts are that the JOURNAL procured the proceedings of the last meeting in the same manner as heretofore, viz: by copying the minutes of the clerk of the board, and the Times procured the copy as heretofore—from the clerk as soon as that officer had them written out in full. If the official paper of the county will employ more printers that concern will probably be able to publish the proceedings in less than sixteen days after each meeting—and the publisher will not need to roast the county auditor either.

THE North Dakota populists—or independents as they call themselves—held their convention last week at Jamestown, N. D. and placed a state ticket in the field. Walter Muir, the father of the independent movement in North Dakota, was named for Congress, which is just recognition. The fourth plank in the platform—which we give below—sends almost like sarcasm when it is considered that the populists have had control of the state for a year and a half, and have reduced it to bankruptcy, the following is the ticket and platform:

Member of Congress—Walter Muir, of Cass.
Governor—E. B. Wallace, Steele.
Lieutenant Governor—L. A. Ireland, LaMoure.
Secretary of State—G. F. Slette, Walsh.
Treasurer—A. J. Peterson, Morton.
Attorney General—H. E. Briggs, Ransom.
Commissioner of Insurance—James Cuddie, Bottineau.
Attorney General—W. B. Standish, Nelson.
Supt. Public Instruction—Laura J. Eisenbuth, Foster.
Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor—M. F. Murchison, Dickey.
Railroad Commissioners—T. C. Connelly, Morton
B. B. Stevens, Ramsom, Peter Cameron, Pembina.
Judge of Supreme Court—Geo W. Newton, Burleigh.

PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS.

The Independent party in State convention, in the truest and we operation of all good citizens, regardless of former political beliefs, to further the following principles as government:

First—We reaffirm the national platform adopted by the national convention at Omaha on July 4th.

Second—We favor the free unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, supplemented by the government issued until the amount of money in circulation shall reach $50 per capita.

Third—We favor the government ownership of telegraph and railroads.

Fourth—We favor retrenchment in state expenses in every department.

Fifth—We favor the initiative and referendum, allowing the people to introduce or vote on laws.

Sixth—As the party of reform we do not favor a backward movement along any line and believe in rigid enforcement of all statutory laws without discrimination.

Resolved, that recognizing the ability of women in the state we favor equal suffrage.

Resolved, that in the use of money we earnestly decry monopolies and state-bondholdings for their baleful influence and state-bondholdings for their baleful influence and state-bondholdings for their baleful influence

MUST BE A DIPLOMAT.

NO OTHER KIND OF MAN CAN BE A SLEEPING CAR CONDUCTOR.

Not Only Kickers at Large, but Sinners, Somnambulists and Talkers Vex the Long Watches of His Night—Rigid Examination of Applicants for the Position.

No man who is not a born diplomat need apply for a position as a sleeping car conductor. It will be time lost for him. He may have all the other qualities that would make him a success at anything else, but unless he has that peculiar and indefinable ability to get along well with all sorts and conditions of men, which is called diplomacy for want of a better term, he had better keep off the sleeping cars and take up something easier, such as law, medicine or the ministry.

Few of the thousands who nightly sleep at the rate of 40 miles an hour or thereabouts realize how well the man who has charge of the car in which they sleep looks after their comfort directly and indirectly. They think it is all the work of the porter, whom they reward accordingly with tips. The conductor doesn't get many tips. Ho has the responsibility, which is a poor substitute, and he has his wages, which are good wages, to be sure, but he earns all that he gets. If he thinks he doesn't get enough, there are hundreds of others ready and eager to take his place.

"During this year," says an official of the Wagner Car company, "we have had, I should say, close to a thousand rejected applicants for every one accepted. The tests, though not ironbound as to form, are pretty rigid. In the first place, the candidate must have letters of recommendation. If these are satisfactory, he makes out an application blank, which gives us some idea of his educational limitations. This being satisfactory, he is talked to by some one of the officers and told to report for duty in a day or two, when he has another consultation with other officials who put to him such questions as they desire.

"In this way we get some inkling of the man's personality—whether he is of good appearance, intelligent, polite, easy in manner and of good address. These are very important matters, and many candidates otherwise qualified fail here. The successful candidate goes on the waiting list, and when his turn comes he is sent out under the care of some conductor to learn the ropes.

"First, last and all the time he is instructed to be courteous to his passengers and attentive to their wants. Often a man fails, for some unforeseen cause, to become a good conductor after he has been tried. Really first class men are hard to get, but we keep on trying candidates until we find the right one. On entering our service we are required to furnish bonds for $500. Our men are usually bonded by a security company. They get from $75 to $100 a month in wages and from this buy their own uniforms."

Having seemed bonds, a uniform and experience, the candidate becomes a full fledged conductor. He then rambles for gin. His duties are many, but he soon gets used to them. He must in the first place look after the sleeping car tickets, and at night must take the train tickets as well, handing them over to the train conductor in the morning. Then he must look after the car in general, keep an eye on the porters, apportion the berths properly, receive any matter sometimes, and see that the temperature and atmosphere of the cars are all right.

He must be up and moving at every station where passengers are likely to board the train, prepared to say number of questions, be prepared to take charge of matters in case of breakdown or other accident, furnish a full report later to the company, see that the passengers are all informed of the whereabouts of the dining car in the morning, wake them up in time, act as arbitrator in cases of difficulty between passenger and passenger or between passenger and porter and do a thousand other little things that come over and tear on his brain.

But these are not the matters that bother him. It is the personal eccentricities of the passengers themselves which turn the conductor's hair gray. Some one once said that to know a man as he really is you must travel with him. A conductor will tell you that to know a man as he really oughtn't to be you must travel with him in a sleeping car. In general, those who travel by night may be divided into three classes:

First—Those who sleep themselves and keep other people awake.

Third—Those who don't sleep themselves and don't let anybody else sleep.

It might be supposed that there is one other class—viz, those who lie awake themselves and let other people sleep—but these specimens are so rare as not to form a class. They are abnormal, like white crows or two headed calves. A Wagner conductor, who has grown gray in the service, says that he never knew but one of this kind, and he was an insane prisoner in charge of two officers. He fulfilled the conditions because he was bound, gagged and shackled.—New York Sun.

So Many Somatas.

Kissers have lipsomania.
Waiters have lipsomania.
Sailors have shipsomania.
Skaters have slipsomania.
Barbers have shipsomania.
Drivers have whipsomania.
Inebriates have dipsomania.
Deadbeats have slipsomania.
Tea drinkers have sipsomania.
Mild drinkers have nipsomania.
Poker players have chipsomania.—Detroit Free Press.

Education Triumphant.

Mistress (angrily)—See, Bridget, I can write my name in the dust.

Servant (admiringly)—Oh, mum, that's more than I can do. There's nothing like education after all, is there, mum?—American Hebrew.

RESUMING WORK.

Settlement of the Great Coal Strike Gives an Impetus to Business.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—The settlement of the great coal strike and the return to work of 15,000 of the 20,000 miners in this district, has given an impetus to all kinds of business, and the situation is more hopeful than at any time for many months. Among the large concerns in this city which resumed Monday after long idleness were the Carbon Iron and Steel company's works, Oliver's Twenty-eighth street works, Shoenberger's and Howe, Brown & Co. The latter has been shut down for two years, and started in full, giving employment to 500 men. The Black Diamond steel works will also begin operations this week, and the Edgar Thompson steel works will start as soon as a sufficient amount of coal is received.

At McKeesport everything is quiet, but it is thought the tube works will start up soon, as many of the strikers have expressed a willingness to return whenever the firm was ready to resume.

At Scottdale, the Scottdale Iron and Steel company's plant resumed in full after an idleness of several weeks.

WHY THE STRIKE ENDED.

Money Became Exhausted and Many Men Deserted.

COLFIELDS, O., June 19.—John McBride has just made a statement that being out of money and 4,000 men in Tennessee having deserted and 10,000 at work elsewhere, he had to throw up the sponge. On being asked: "What authority had your national committee to make a settlement for the miners?" replied:

"Our authority was delegated to us by the national convention at Cleveland, May 16, by resolution. The miners' representatives were told in plain terms before passing the resolution that cost the miners $1,000 a day. We reached I would favor saving all that could be saved rather than meet defeat, with its consequent demoralization and disaster."

What the Strike Cost.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—A well informed authority in the coal business estimates that the coal strike in this district has cost the miners in wages $1,500,000, taking it for granted that the normal output of the region had been maintained. In proportion to the general output this district mined about one-sixth of the coal dug in the area affected by the strike. With a reasonable proportion between the prices paid in this and other districts, the loss in wages alone, the same authority says, would be over $10,000,000.

WIMAN IS GUILTY.

The Noted Financier Convicted of Forgery in the Second Degree.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Erastus Wiman has been found guilty of forgery in the second degree. The maximum penalty for this offense is 10 years at hard labor in state prison. Under the recent laws passed by the legislature the minimum penalty has been abolished, and Mr. Wiman may be sentenced to a term of imprisonment from one day to 10 years.

Judge Ingraham remanded Wiman for sentence until Wednesday, June 20, and then discharged the jury. Deputy Sheriffs Brown and Kelly escorted Wiman to the Tombs prison. His sons accompanied him and bade him an affectionate goodbye at the prison gate.

In answer to the requests for an interview sent to him by several newspaper men Mr. Wiman sent back this written reply: "Impossible to see you now." .

General Tracy said: "I am astonished at the verdict and until I can confer with my associates I cannot say whether an application for a new trial will be made or not."

The Prendergast Case.

CHICAGO, June 16.—All hopes of a continuance of Assassin Prendergast's case until November 1 were been dispelled by Judge Payne. When the attorneys gathered in his court to make further arrangements about the trial, the judge announced that he would hold to his former ruling that the motion for a continuance would be overruled. The trial was set for next Wednesday.

COXEVITES GUILTY.

Commotion Created In Their Camp at Leavenworth.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 18.—When the verdict of guilty of guilty rendered by the United States court was conveyed to the camp of commonwealers in the suburbs yesterday quite a commotion was raised. The prisoners became excited and a rush for liberty was made. The Coxeyites marshals got the men, firing and bringing down one man, who afterwards crawled into the brush. During the confusion some 50 of the weelers made good their escape. Company F, Sixth cavalry, was called from Fort Leavenworth and the remaining prisoners surrounded and selling to an Iowa lawyer. Commissary.ected.

Ordered Out of Town.

FARGO, N. D., June 16.—"General" Jeffries, commanding the Seattle division of the Coxeyites, has arrived here with 150 followers, after having been on the road nearly three months. They camped in Island park and received notice from officials to vacate the city before daylight or else go to work. "General" Jeffries replied that the present job suited his men exactly, and they would "git" when daylight.

Determined to Ride.

JAMESTOWN, N. D., June 14.—United States Marshal Cronan and about 40 deputies are patrolling the Northern Pacific railroad between Jamestown and Bismarck to prevent industrials from stealing rides on trains. About 300 are between the points named. The industrials attempted to board a through passenger here, but failed. The men are quiet but determined to ride.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, June 12

The house passed the bill setting aside $50,000 from the funds belonging to the estates of deceased colored soldiers of the civil war for the purpose of erecting in the District of Columbia a national home for aged and infirm colored people. The Indian appropriations bill was taken up, but the house adjourned without completing its consideration.

The entire day in the senate was devoted to set speeches preliminary to the consideration of the wool schedule. Pettigrew, Power, Peffer, Mitchell, Quay and Hoar spoke.

Wednesday, June 13.

In the senate after routine business the tariff debate was resumed, the pending question being Mr. Peffer's amendment to restore 50 per cent of the duties on raw wools. Mr. Sherman was recognized and made a vigorous speech against free wool, and was followed by Mr. Perkins. Senators Dubois of Idaho, Stewart of Nevada and Hansbrough of North Dakota also argued the subject.

The house continued to debate the Indian appropriation bill.

Thursday, June 14.

The senate put in the day debating the wool schedule, having passed a few paragraph measures in the morning hour.

The house had a lively time over the Indian appropriation bill. The proposition to vote money for sectarian schools was overruled on the ground that it would change existing law. Several minor amendments carried.

Friday, June 8

In the house the Indian appropriation bill was again considered and a rule adopted to bring it to a vote tomorrow. The section of the bill providing for the sale of certain state bonds credited to the Indian trust fund was struck out on a point of order after a sharp debate.

Several amendments looking to a duty on wool were voted down in the senate. Afterward an amendment was offered placing all manufactures of wool in the free list. This was not voted on before adjournment.

Saturday, June 16.

The wool and silk schedules were disposed of by the senate, the Republicans plotting some concessions on certain manufactures.

The house passed the Indian appropriation bill.

PURE FABRICATION.

So the Washington Officials Claim in Regard the Dynamite Story.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Every police, secret service and treasury official here regards as a pure fabrication the story published in The Post, that a grave anarchist conspiracy had been unearthed. Hemon Jackson affects indignation that his name should have been used in connection with the story. Jackson's landlady is indignant that she should have been brought into the fiction by the street and number of her boarding house, and she does not scruple to say that Jackson wrote the article himself. Dynamiters, upon whose statements the article is supposed to be based, is regarded by Chief Hazen of the secret service and by the police detectives as utterly untrustworthy.

Captured Counterfeiters.

RICHLAND CENTER, Wis., June 16.—The federal authorities have made a raid on a den of alleged counterfeiters at Excelsior. They expected to make a wholesale arrests, but only captured two persons, Mr. and Mrs. John Dilly. Several persons prominent in business circles will be arrested later. It is charged that dimes, quarters, halves and dollars have been coined and circulated to the amount of thousands of dollars.

England's Lord Chief Justice Dead.

LONDON, June 16.—Lord Chief Justice Coleridge is dead. Sir Solomfjes was unconscious for a few hours before his death. His death was painless. His son Bernard will succeed him in the peerage.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, June 18, 1894.
WHEAT—Strong and higher. No. 2 spring, 65½c; No. 1 Northern, 65½c; September, 69½c.
CORN—Steady. No. 3, 45½c.
OATS—Higher. No. 2 white, 43½c; No. 3 white, 42c.
BARLEY—Nominal. No. 2, 56½c; sample 57@61c.
RYE—Firm. No. 1, 56½.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, June 18, 1894.
WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 64c; June, 64c; July, 64c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 62½c; June, 62½c; July, 62½c; September, 63½c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 60½c. No. 3, 59½c. Rejected, 56½c. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 64c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 18, 1894.
WHEAT — June close, 62½c; July opening, 62½c; highest, 62½c; lowest, 62½c; close, 62½c. September opening, 56½c; highest, 60c; lowest, 56½c; close, 60c. On track—2 spring, 1 hard, 4 c; No. 1 Northern, 62c; No. 2 Northern, 59½c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 18, 1894.
HOGS—In demand. Quality good. Selling to a packer at $4.60.
CATTLE—Steady. Good demand for good butcher cattle, and a few good steers sold. Quotations: Steers, $2.50@3.00; good steers, $3.00@3.25; prime cows, $2.60@2.75; good cows, $ 1.75@2.25; common to fair cows, $1.25@1.50; veal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $3.00@3.50; bulls, $1.75@2.25; feeders, $2.50@3.25; oxen, $1.50@2.00.
SHEEP—Dull. A few penholders were sold at weak prices.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, June 18, 1894.
CATTLE—In fair demand and a trifle higher. Prices ranged as follows: Extra native steers, $5.40@5.60; good to choice native steers, $4.75@5.35; fair to good native steers, $4.25@4.75; common to fair native steers, $3.75@4.25; good to choice cows and heifers, $3.25@4.00; fair to good cows and heifers, $2.50@3.25; common old cows, $1.75@2.25; veal calves, $4.00@5.00; Texas steers, $3.00@3.75; Texas cows, $2.00@2.75.
HOGS—Active and higher. Prices ranged as follows: Rough and common, $4.00@4.30; mixed and packers, $4.30@4.50; prime assorted light and butcher weights, $4.50@4.60; choice heavy shipping lots, $4.60@4.65.
SHEEP—Steady. Prices ranged as follows: Native muttons, $4.00@5.00; native lambs, $5.00@6.00; culls and common, $3.00@4.00.
Receipts—Cattle, 16,000; hogs, 38,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 18, 1894.
WHEAT—Firm. No. 2 cash, 59½c; July, 62½c.
CORN—Higher. No. 2 cash, 41½c; July, 41½@41¾c.
OATS—Firm. No. 2 cash, 34½c; July, 34½c.
PORK—Steady. July, $12.07½.

COAL PAYS A TAX.

EFFORT OF SENATOR HILL TO HAVE IT FREE DEFEATED,

Receiving Only Seven Affirmative Votes. Hill Demands the Right to Vote as He Sees Fit on Final Passage—Butler's Anti-Option Bill Finally Taken Up in the Lower House.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The feature of the day in the senate was the motion of Senator Hill to put coal on the free list and his appeal for the redemption of Democratic pledges.

When the tariff bill was taken up schedule M, pulp, paper and books, and schedule N, sundries, were quickly disposed of. It was not until coal was reached that opposition developed. The house bill placed coal on the free list. The finance committee amendment placed a duty of 40 cents per ton on bituminous coal and shale, 15 cents on slack and culm and 25 per cent ad valorem on coke. As soon as the clerk had read this paragraph, Mr. Hill and Mr. Peffer jumped to their feet. The New York senator was recognized and he sent to the clerk's desk an amendment to relegate bituminous coal and shale to the free list.

Senator Hill Pledged to Free Coal.

Mr. Hill supported his amendment with a speech. It was useless for him to enter into a lengthy argument. He simply wanted to call the attention of his Democratic colleagues to the fact that the country expected a Democratic congress in any tariff reform measure to place coal on the free list. It had been demanded by the Democratic platform and by every Democratic senator who had spoken during the campaign of 1892. If there was anything to which the party was pledged it was free raw materials and if there was any raw material it was coal. Mr. Hill declared that he was opposed to certain features of the bill, the income tax in particular, but no one, he declared, had a right to say he was opposed to the bill and was seeking to compass its defeat.

Sen aliette and Populistic

"God knows what the bill will be like when it passes this senate and comes out of conference," said he, pathetically. "God knows how many more concessions and concessions will be wrung from the unwilling hands of the committee. I reserve the right to vote for it or not when I see what it is as a whole."

A vote was then taken on Mr. Hill's amendment and it was lost, 7 to 51, with the following result: Yeas (Dems.), Hoi and Irby (Dems.) and Hansbrough and Wash urn (Reps.) voting in favor of the motion.

The finance committee's amendment was then agreed to.

ANTI-OPTION UP.

Hatch's Pet Measure Safely Launched on Its Congressional Voyage.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In the house, after routine business, the anti-option bill was taken up and Mr. Hatch opened the debate with a speech in favor of the bill. There was not a single provision in the bill, he said, which had not received the approval of the board of trade. There was only one objectionable feature in the bill, he said, which had not received the approval of the board of trade. That was section 5. By imposing a prohibitory tax of 10 cents per pound on all oleomargarine manufactured in imitation of butter, the bill would be maintained that while it was ostensibly drawn in the interest of the dairying people, a careful reading showed that it had been monkeyed with by Commissioner Miller and Congressional Democrats in order to benefit more a miller than the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Hatch) was a farmer." Mr. Mc. Crew, Democrat, followed Mr. Warner in support of the bill.

Defendency Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In the deficiency bill the department of justice receives $708,572, mostly for fees of United States marshals. The largest appropriation is $2,341,822 for the post-office department. Of this $1,040,174 is for railway mail service, $1,000,000 for star routes and $300,000 for railroads. Among the appropriations for completing public buildings under way is Sioux Falls, S. D., $50,000.

AFTER HAVEMEYER.

Charges of Contempt Against the President of the Sugar Trust.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The senate sugar trust investigating committee, after disposing of the witnesses available, held an executive session and decided to report to the vice president and certify to the district attorney the fact that President H. O. Havemeyer and Treasurer J. S. Searles, of the Sugar Refining company had refused to answer certain questions of the committee. The motion was offered by Senator Allen and was sustained by Senators Lodge and Dolph, both on the vote and in the discussion which followed the instruction of the motion, while Senators Grey and Lindsay opposed the motion by votes and arguments.

California Republicans.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 20.—Hon. F. H. Myers of San Francisco called the Republican state convention to order at noon. The report of the committee on credentials shows 845 delegates in attendance. A full state ticket will be placed in nomination.

Hemingway Pardoned.

JACKSON, Miss., June 19.—The governor pardoned State Treasurer Hemingway, who is with his wife and children the first time in two years. The petition contained 15,000 names.

Jerry Simpson R covering.

BRECKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., June 18.—Congressman Jerry Simpson has improved so rapidly in the last few days as to cause the belief that the waters will yet restore him.

Ex-Minister Phelps Dead.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 17.—William Walter Phelps, ex-minister to Austria, died at 1:20 a. m.

POLITICAL POINTS

There Is Great Activity Among Minnesota Republican Candidates.

UNCERTAINTY ABOUT NOMINATIONS

Politicians Have a New Place For Headquarters in St. Paul.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ST. PAUL, June 19, 1894.

The delightful uncertainty that always precedes the action of a Republican nominating convention is at its most pleasing stage just now, and the candidates for office are as active as bees in a clover field. The office for which the greatest contest is being waged is that of State Auditor, and the candidates for this office are making a vigorous, though apparently good natured, campaign. Two of the most prominent candidates are ecessful newspaper men, R. C. Dunn and J. P. Hunt, and their respective followers are confident of victory, while Messrs. Rich, Iverson, McGuire and the others are making what they each consider a successful "still-hunt." Ramsey County is the first of the larger Counties that has held its convention, and but little indication has been given of its choice for auditor, as the delegation is for D. F. Reese for Clerk of the Supreme Court, and the action of the delegation on candidates for other offices will depend largely on what the aforesaid other Counties can be induced to do.

New Political Headquarters.

Politic' .centers, like the centers of trade, shift around a good deal. For instance, a few years ago the political center of St. Paul was Third Street, with the political headquarters of the State at the Merchants Hotel. Today the political trade has moved "up town" to Sixth, Robert, Wabasha and Seventh streets, while politicians, especially of the Republican feith, now gather at the Windsor Hotel, which is about central located at the corner of Fifth and St. Peter Streets. Whether this fact is due to the personal popularity of Colonel Murfort, the genial proprietor, or to the fact that the Windsor is in a central location and near the Capitol, it is difficult to say, but that it is the new political headquarters, there is no question. During the last session of the Legislature the Windsor was the general headquarters of the leading Republicans, among them Governor Nelson, Governor Clough, Speaker Lee, Sargeant-at-Arms Bean and most of the prominent Senators and Representatives. Among those who have engaged headquarters for the coming campaign are L. F. Hunt, D. F. Reese, Mr. Block-burn, Iverson, A. T. Koerner, Albert Berg and the Republican State Central committee, the Ramsey County delegation, and a large number of leading Republicans of the State. The will guarantee that the Windsor Hotel will be the center of politics for society in Minnesota for some time to come.

Chance to Bet on Minnesota Congressmen

The things that the Democratic Congress has not done inspires the Republicans of the various Congressional Districts with great confidence, and bets are freely offered that there will not be a Democratic Congressman elected from Minnesota this year. This looks like a fresh bluff, but Democratic enthusiasts, of a speculative turn of mind, will find plenty of money around waiting to be picked up on these terms. Some of the Democratic papers seem to be wonderfully exercised over the selection of the next United States Senator, but as the next Legislature will be even more largely Republican than the last one, this universal interest seems a trifle overdrawn. Republicans themselves, so far as can be seen, seem to be waiting for the Legislature to be chosen before saying anything about the Senator.

Republican State Committee.

No convention that has been held for years has attracted so much attention or promised greater things than that to be held July 11 of this year. Whether a thousand of the leading Republicans of the State get together it is to be expected that they will remain some good work, and no fear is entertained but that the ticket nominated on that occasion will be elected by the old time Republican majority that was the rule before Populism, Free Coinage and other new political organizations began to cut a figure in State politics.

Republican Press Association.

It is generally conceded that the remarkable successes of the Republican party in Minnesota, when reverses were running riot in other States, has been largely due to the perfect organization of the party in this State, and the distribution of intelligent campaign material. This year the work of educating the masses promises to be very much simplified by the energy of the Republican Press Association, that was recently organized. It will be a potent factor in the contest of '94. All Republican editors of the State are eligible to membership, and it is presumed that before the campaign is ended they will all be enrolled as members. The Association is officered by

C. C. Whitney, president, Marshall.
Fred Barrett, vice president, Tower.
J. S. Vandiver, secretary, St. Paul.
A. N. Dare, treasurer, Elk River.

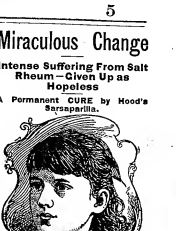
One vice president from each Congressional District.

There is also an executive committee of five, and it is expected that a general meeting will be held some time near the date of the Republican state convention.

Miraculous Change

Intense Suffering From Salt Rheum—Given Up as Hopeless

A Permanent CURE by Hood's Sarsaparilla.



Miss Blanche Clark
Duluth, Minn.

"Seven years ago our daughter Blanche, then four years of age, had a humor break out on her hands and face, which our physician pronounced eczema. She seemed to derive no benefit at all and at the end of seven months her face or hands, they would swell up at once and look almost purple, and beaded blisters would form and break, discharging a watery substance and

The Burning and Itching that attended it would drive the child nearly wild. Unless we encased her little hands she would tear patches of skin from her face and hands. The itching was intense. We tried many doctors and many remedies and at last gave up the case as hopeless. But in the summer of '93 our daughter Cora tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, to cure a scrofulous lump near the left breast, which caused her much pain and difficulty at times to breathe. After taking four bottles it entirely disappeared. Blanche, who is now eleven, had spent seven years of suffering, so I concluded to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She commenced the middle of June to take the medicine and at this writing has started on her fifth bottle. Her face is smooth and clear as ever.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

The Color of a Rose Petal

Her hands are soft and white, where four months ago they were blue and red and inflamed nearly like a burn. I cannot express my gratitude by words. It seemed a miracle and our friends are surprised." MRS. ANNA L. CLARK, 401 East 4th St., Duluth, Minnesota.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the Saskatchewan Valley,

Address

WM. RITTHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.
Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

LOANS

negotiated on Real Estate. Life Insurance at any Good Security on Long Time and Reasonable Rates. Prompt attention to Collections in all parts of the United and Canada. Loans and County warrants wanted. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, June 13.

E. O. Pickering has been named by Kansas Prohibitionists for governor.

James Slontervik was killed at Manly, Ia., by being thrown from his wagon.

The 24th annual session of the Master Car Builders' association is in session at Saratoga.

Senator Squire of Washington has introduced a bill for the free coinage of silver.

Lord Rosebery's Ladas, the winner of the 2,000 guineas, the Newmarket stakes and the derby, has been struck out of all engagements at Ascot.

J. C. Stutte, a contractor and builder of St. Louis, claims to have gone without a wink of sleep for 22 years. He is hale and hearty and about 64 years of age.

Mrs. Vance, widow of the late senator from North Carolina, is preparing for the press an elaborate biography of her husband.

Professor Hago of Fort Worth, Tex., has signed a contract to walk 1,000 miles on steel rails of the railroad, to average not less than 20 miles per day, for $5,000.

Thursday, June 14.

The convention of the Texas League of Republican clubs is in session at Fort Worth.

The cash balance in the treasury is $116,097,140, of which $69,193,627 is gold reserve.

Baron Giovanni Nicotera, ex-minister of the interior, died at Vico Equense, 10 miles from Naples.

The logs ills mills of Smith & Co. at Wilkinson, Ind., have been wrecked by a natural gas explosion.

Duncan McIntyre, Canadian director of the Grand Trunk railroad, is dead. His fortune amounts to $3,000,000.

An hour after having read to her mother an account of a suicide by hanging Laura Corbett of Baltimore hung herself.

William Deering, the harvest machine manufacturer, has given $50,000 to the medical school of Northwestern university.

Secretary Gresham and his private secretary, Mr. Landis, have left Washington for a short visit to Chicago and Indiana.

The Japanese government has sent large forces of troops to protect her interests in Corea. The king of Corea is reported to have fled to Japanese territory.

Friday, June 15.

Coal has been found at Brule, Wis.

Minnesota Good Templars are in session at Minneapolis.

Miss Frances Willard, president of the National W. C. T. U., hassailed for New York from Liverpool.

James Uhlman and Charles Hare, both aged 9 years, were drowned in a pond at Racine, Wis., while bathing.

A fire at Yamagata, province of Uzen, Japan, has destroyed 1,200 houses and 10 people lost their lives during the conflagration.

It is expected that through traffic on the Northern Pacific will be resumed within a week. The Great Northern hurshy expects to do so well.

Saturday, June 16.

John F. Brophy, county judge of Sawyer county, Wis., died suddenly at Hayward.

The Western Passenger association lines have decided to boycott the Lake Erie and Western.

Ex-Police Officer Charles Hellrich, despondent over money matters, suicided at Minneapolis.

Dr. Wheeler, city physician of Racine, Wis., has refused to vaccinate the poor of that place free of charge.

Three men were killed and three others dangerously injured by a premature explosion of dynamite at Cotean de la Quebec.

The Peoples' party congressional convention at Macomb, Ills., nominated J. M. Grier of Schuyler county for congress, by acclamation.

Judge Groscup, in a trial at Chicago, ruled that Letter Carrier Palmer could not be held for stealing a decoy letter and he was released.

Monday, June 18.

An attempt was made to assassinate Premier Crispi Saturday.

The Black Hills Chautauqua will open July 3 at Deadwood.

John Ward of the Dalton gang was killed in Missouri Sunday.

Thirty-nine elevators belonging to the Northern Pacific Elevator company have been sold to a Tacoma firm.

Secretary Hoke Smith will recommend in a few days that all topographers of the United States geological survey be placed under civil service rules.

The taking of testimony in the Northern Pacific investigation in Milwaukee is ended. The result is the material strengthening of Receiver Oakes' position.

Tuesday, June 19.

The president has returned to Washington.

Norwalk, Conn., is celebrating its 244th anniversary.

A disease suspiciously like cholera is raging near Paris, Ark.

During the past three days there have been 93 deaths from the plague at Hong Kong.

The cash balance in the treasury is $115,284,746, of which $98,484,440 is gold reserve.

The Traveling Men's Protective association is holding its annual convention at Milwaukee.

Nine race horses en route from Chicago to St. Paul were killed in a wreck on the Great Western.

Nominations are being made throughout the province for members of the Ontario legislature, the old house having been dissolved on May 30. The general election will be held next Thursday.

The military governor of Antwerp has apologized to Admiral Duncan for the oversight of the authorities in not replying to the salute of the United States cruiser Chicago when she arrived there on Friday last from Gravesend, Eng.

THREE LIVES LOST.

A Fatal Cloudburst Occurs in Turtle Creek Valley, Pa.

BRADDOCK, Pa., June 19.—A cloudburst over the Turtle Creek valley, six miles from here, destroyed growing crops and hurled houses from their foundations. The loss of three lives is reported. The storm clond covered an area six miles long by two or three wide. Turtle creek and Thompson creek were raised 10 feet above high water mark in 15 minutes. The strongest force of the cloud broke upon the shining towns above Plum creek and Sandy creek. Eight houses there were picked up by the current and borne with it. John Nodovisky, a miner, while running to the mills, fell into Plum creek and was drowned. Mike Bookl, another miner, was drowned while sleeping in one of the lower rooms of his home. A daughter of John Wansell, 16 years of age, also perished.

AFTER HAVEMEYER.

Charges of Contempt Against the President of the Sugar Trust.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The senate sugar trust investigating committee, after disposing of the witnesses available, held an executive session and decided to request the vice president to certify to the district attorney the fact that President H. O. Havemeyer and Treasurer J. S. Searle of the Sugar Refining company had refused to answer certain questions of the committee. The motion was offered by Senator Allen and was sustained by Senators Lodge and Davis, both on the vote and in the discussion which followed the instruction of the motion, while Senators Gray and Lindsay opposed the motion by votes and arguments.

HEAVY NEW YORK FAILURE.

Goodwin & Swift, Railroad Contractors, Have Liabilities of $750,000.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Wendell Goodwin and Frederick Swift, composing the firm of Goodwin & Swift, railroad contractors and promoters at 66 Broadway, have made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The cause of the failure was the general hard times and the inability to meet obligations as they became due. By a rough estimate the liabilities are placed at $600,000 to $750,000, probably pretty close to the latter figure. The creditors of the firm are largely in this city, lying in the main individuals, not banks.

RODE A FAST MILE.

John S. Johnson Breaks the World's Record at Waltham, Mass.

WALTHAM, Mass., June 19.—Over 10,000 people attended the bicycle races here during the afternoon. Harry C. Tyler's mile in half mile record held by himself one-fifth of a second. The record now stands 99 1-5. John S. Johnson rode the fastest mile ever ridden before spectators, and established the record of 2:02 3-5. P. J. Berlo and A. B. Rich broke the world's record for the tandem half mile, in 57 seconds. The quarter was ridden in 29 1-4 seconds.

Battle With Outlaws.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—A special to The Republic from Tahlequah, I. T., says: A desperate battle took place on the road between Tahlequah and Wagoner between Deputy Sheriff Goard and posse and the Cook gang of outlaws. Sequoyah Honston, one of the sheriff's posse, was killed, and one of the outlaws, Bob Martin, captured Several others of the sheriff's posse were wounded, some it is said fatelly.

American Railway Union.

CHICAGO, June 19.—A resolution by the Le Junta, Colo., mines, endorsing the sermon of Rev. Myron W. Reed of Denver, which he expressed sympathy for the Cripple Creek strikers, was enthusiastically received by the American Railway union delegates. The convention then began the consideration of a new constitution.

High Water at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—The Missouri river continues to rise, and Observer Connor of the weather bureau says that if conditions continue the danger line, 21 feet, will be reached by Thursday. The stream was 19 feet 9 inches above low water mark Monday morning, a rise of nine inches since Saturday.

E. J. Walker's Arrest.

WINIPEG, June 19.—E. J. Walker, miles Barber, has been arrested on a charge of the embezzlement of $9,000 at Gosben, Ind. Walker was accompanied by a woman whom he passed off as his wife. They submitted to arrest and have agreed to go back without extradition.

Kelly Not Allowed to Land.

OWENSBORO, Ky., June 19.—When General Kelly's industrial army, 1,200 strong, reached the outskirts of the city the mayor refused to allow them to land. They got contributions of food and started for Louisville. Kelly said he would reach Washington by the 4th of July.

Shot a Deputy Marshal.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 19.—Phillips Roberts, United States deputy marshal, was shot and probably fatally wounded by John K. Reddy at Tracy City. Reddy was suspected of running a blind tiger in Tracy City and Roberts went to Reddy's store to investigate.

Stov- Comb nation.

CLEVELAND, O., June 19.—Within 10 days the vapor stove combination will go into effect. The new corporation is to be named the United Vapor and Gas Stove company. It was incorporated in Illinois and is capitalized at $5,000,000.

Crazed With Grief.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Crazed with grief at the death of his wife, James F. Forshay shot and killed his son Walter, aged 12, and then ended his own life with a bullet in his brain.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

Work has begun on Adrian's electric and water plant.

The National Prison association is in session at St. Paul.

There was 137 graduates from the St. Paul high school this year.

The Keely cure is to be tried on Minneapolis workhouse inmates.

The Children's Aid Society of Minnesota met at St. Paul Thursday.

Thomas May, aged 20, was drowned in the Mississippi at St. Paul Friday.

A contract for a new high school building at Adrian has been let for $18,013.

Railway train despatchers will hold their next national convention at Minneapolis.

Governor Nelson spoke to 5,000 people at the G. A. R. encampment at Luverne.

The Wisconsin University club will row the Minnesota Boat club at Minnetonka Saturday.

The Great Northern depot at Carlisle was burned Friday with contents. Cause not known.

Bernard Leonerd, mailing clerk in the St. Paul postoffice, was drowned while bathing in Carver lake.

Edward Neumann, a local swimmer of renown, saved the lives of two drowning boys at White Bear lake.

A postoffice has been established in St. Louis county to be called Proctor Knott; Sherman G. Huyck, postmaster.

The comptroller of the currency has authorized the First National bank of Barnesville to begin business. Capital, $50,000.

The Western conference of Congregational churches was held at New Ulm. Twenty-five ministers were in attendance.

Phillip Rice, the alleged murderer of Josef Herda, made a desperate attempt to escape from custody in Judge Kerr's court at St. Paul.

About 1,000 people attended the reunion of the Welsh of Blue Earth and La Sueur counties, which occurred in Lake Crystal Park.

Rev. P. J. Sward, of St. Paul, has received the decoration of the Order of the North Star from King Oscar of Norway and Sweden.

The grand jury at Glenwood found indictments against A. H. Hildebrand, T. Callahan and J. Munsing, saloon keepers, for selling liquor to minors.

The recount of the ballots for city treasurer of St. Paul is completed, leaving Wagener, Dem., 14 votes ahead. The original count elected Horst, Rep., by six votes.

At the request of Senator Davis the secretary of war has ordered that the Third United States infantry at Camp camp at Lake City from June 22 to July 24 with the Minnesota national guard.

The fourth annual meeting of the Norwegian United Lutheran Church of America began at the Auditorium, St. Paul, Thursday. Including delegates, clergymen and visitors, about 1,000 persons were present.

All the railroads will sell tickets within the state of Minnesota to the Republican state convention, to be held in St. Paul on July 11, at rates of one fare and one-third for the round trip, good going on the 10th and returning on the 12th.

The State Historical society has received from Major Holcombe a number of valuable relics collected on the battlefields of Birch Coulee, Wood Lake and Marsh's battlefield. The collection also included relics from the Redwood and Yellow Medicine agencies.

Two daughters of Emin Hoyer, aged 17 and 19 years, were drowned in Twin lakes, two miles west of Spicer. They were in an old boat which leaked so badly that they became frightened and jumped ont. Another daughter who remained in the boat was rescued.

The state firemen's convention in Minneapolis adjourned Thursday after J. Wright of Moorhead, where the next convention will be held, was elected president of the association. A. Smith of Duluth first vice president and C. N. La Fond of Little Falls second vice president.

Major Hotchkiss of the old Second Battery, and Sergeant Downs of the Second regiment, who were appointed as a legislative committee to examine the six monuments erected by the state on the Chickamauga battlefield, have left to perform that duty. They will be gone eight or ten days.

At Glenwood Judge Brown sentenced the following to the state prison: Marin Iverson, three and one-half years, grand larceny; Lewis Sackloff, four and one-half years, grand larceny; Erick Swenson, one and one-half years, burglary; Carl Quist, two years, assault; Nels Olson, two and one-half years, grand larceny.

The Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., which closed its annual session at St. Paul Thursday evening, elected the following officers: Dr. Howard Lankester of Fisher, grand master; J. C. Belden of Austin, deputy grand master; H. A. Rider of Little Falls, grand warden. A. M. Bolton and C. M. Spregue were re-elected grand secretary and grand treasurer respectively, and Grand Master Wells was elected representative to the sovereign grand lodge for two years.

MINNESOTA DEMOCRATS.

The State Convention Will Meet at St. Paul Sept. 5.

St. PAUL, June 14.—The Democratic state central committee has called the state convention for Sept. 5, in St. Paul. It will contain about 750 delegates, based upon 1 for each 100 votes cast for Lawler, and 2 at large from each county.

An Old and Historic Watch.

"I repaired a watch when I was working in Pamelia, N. Y.," said a watchmaker now working in a Broadway store, "which, although it was more than 250 years old, had been previously repaired but three times—once in 1825, again in 1831 and then in 1842.

"The watch has an interesting history. It is now the property of David Minthorn, who has an authentic record of it. It was made by Thomas Linford of London in 1626, and in time came into the possession of George III, who presented it to Sir William Johnson, when he left England to take charge of affairs in the colony of New York. Sir William presented it to the famous Indian chief Joseph Brant, whose sister was Sir William's mistress.

"In giving the watch to Brant Sir William remarked that 'it was surely worth 40 rebel scalps.' When Brant had his headquarters in the Schoharie valley, the watch was taken from him with other booty by Brant Van Epps of Fultonville, who was a paymaster in the American army. Van Epps was afterward taken prisoner by Brant, who recovered the watch.

"The grandfather of the present owner of the watch becomes a warm friend of Brant's in Canada after the war, and Brant made him a present of the ancient timepiece. It has been in the family ever since and has always kept good time."—New York Sun.

FOR EASE AND COMFORT—

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as the Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, in a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of

Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE, And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House, MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office, SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skillfully performed.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

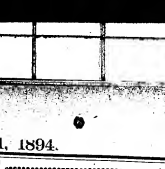
Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

O. HENDRICKSON, ... President
L. EGINTON, ... Vice President
J. W. WHEELER, ... Cashier
A. F. HANSON ..... Assistant Cashier

MILLER & FOOTE, ATTY'S-AT-LAW, McKinnon Block. Crookston, Minn

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"



To Young Mothers

Makes Child Birth Easy. Shortens Labor, Lessens Pain,

Endorsed by the Leading Physicians. Book to "Mothers" mailed FREE.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO. ATLANTA, GA.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital, - $100,00
Surplus, - - - - 15,000

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. C. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, E. F. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. C. Erskine, F. G. Atkinson, A. Miller
E. N. Wallace, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, - - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

DENTIST.

Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

If you want your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 10 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

SIGNS HOOKED.

OLD PAPERS

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Rockitt Bloc., Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jefferson Addition

McKINNON BROS.,

Dealers in all the leading—

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

McKinnon Block, Main Street, - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

$1.50

PER DOZEN

FOR THE BEST CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.,

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BEAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Reckitt Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S

RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN McKinnon Block, Crookston

WALLACE AND MUIR.

NORTH DAKOTA POPULISTS NAME A TICKET.

The Present Lieutenant Governor Nominated for Governor—Walter Muir of Fargo, for Congressman—Platform Favors Free Coinage and Women Suffrage.

JAMESTOWN, N. D., June 15.—The Independent state convention has concluded its labors and adjourned. Following is the ticket selected: For congress, Walter Muir, Cass county; governor, E. B. Wellnes, Steele county; lieutenant governor, L. E. Ueland, La Moure county; attorney general, W. S. Standish, Nelson county; auditor, A. W. Porter, Le Moure county; state superintendent, Laura Eisenhuth, Foster county; insurance commissioner, James Cudhie, Bottineau; commissioner of agriculture, Dr. Merchant, Dickey county; railroad commissioners, T. C. Connolly, Peter Cameron, B. Brynjulfson; supreme judge, George O. Newton, Burleigh county.

The Platform.

The platform is short and to the point. It favors free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at a ratio of sixteen to one, supplemented by government notes exclusively until the volume of currency reaches fifty dollars per capita; favors government ownership of railroads and telegraph; reduction of state expenses in every department, the initiative and and referendum, and strict enforcement of all state laws without discrimination. Resolutions approve female suffrage, and penalty clause in prohibition law. Platform contains nothing on prohibition although strong sentiment favored endorsement of it.

KANSAS POPULIST TICKET.

Lewelling Renominated For Governor, A Woman's Suffrage Plank.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 14.—The Populist convention here has nominated the following ticket:

GOVERNOR LEWELLING.

Governor, L. D. Lewelling, by acclamation; lieutenant governor, D. G. Furnbeck; secretary of state, J. W. Amidon; treasurer, W. H. Biddle; attorney general, John F. Little; auditor, Van B. Prather; congressman-at-large, W. A. Harris; associate justice supreme court, A. W. Clark. The platform contains a plank favoring women suffrage.

NAMED A TICKET.

South Dakota Independents Select Candidates For State Offices.

MITCHELL, S. D., June 15.—The Populist convention has closed its business. The ticket nominated is as follows: Governor, Isaac Howe, Spink county; lieutenant governor, S. H. Bronson, Miner; secretary of state, A. E. Johnson, Davison; auditor, E. B. Reed, Pennington; treasurer, H. B. Wynn, Yankton; attorney general, Ralph Beadle; superintendent of public instruction, Failing. Rueck, commissioner public lands, H. P. Smith, Lake county.

Will Vote With Populists.

OSHKOSH, Wis., June 14.—Action was taken by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor at its session here which will have have an important bearing on the state election. A resolution was passed by unanimous vote for the election of delegates to the Populist state convention to be held at Milwaukee, July 4, and asking the co-operation of the Socialist societies in the movement. The Federation claims to represent 20,000 voters. Among other resolutions was one demanding employment by city, nation and state of persons out of employment at not less than $2 per day.

Radical Fr. bibitionists.

MILWAUKEE, June 15.—The Prohibition state convention nominated Captain J. Cleghorn of Clinton for governor. The convention adopted with out discussion a platform or decidedly radical character. It demands the suppression of the liquor traffic and declares in favor of fiat money, woman suffrage and the restriction of immigration.

HUNDREDS PERISH.

The Austrian Mine Disaster Causes the Loss of Scores of Lives.

TROPPAU, Austria, June 16.—Details of the disaster in the Franziska mine at Karwin are yet very meager, but it is believed that at least 300 miners lost their lives. The explosion took place at 10 p. m. in a pit of the Franziska mines at the place mentioned, and resulted in the death of 126 miners. The first explosion was almost immediately followed by a series of other explosions in the mines, the most disastrous of the latter being in the Johannes pit, where 90 miners were killed.

A rescue party which descended into one of the pits at 5 o'clock a. m. also perished.

A. O. U. W. Supreme Officers.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—The following supreme officers were elected by the supreme lodge, A. O. U. W.: Master workman, Louis L. Troy, Illinois; foreman, Joseph F. Biggs, Kansas; overseer, J. G. Tate, Nebraska; recorder, H. W. Sackett; receiver, John G. Acker; medical examiner, Dr. W. C. Richardson; guide, John L. Miller, Ontario; watchman, R. F. Geiger, Michigan; trustees, G. B. Katzenstein, California; H. Sessions, Dakota; A. H. Vermilyea, New Jersey.

Husband Murderer Sentenced.

MARSHALL, Wis., June 16.—Mrs. Louisa Schroder, who was convicted of poisoning her husband, has been sentenced to 14 years in state prison.

HE STIRRED UP THE SENATORS

Newspaper Correspondent Edwards, Who Has Been Super Social Story.

Elisha Jay Edwards, the correspondent whose pen name of "Holland" is very familiar to American newspaper readers, has again distinguished himself, this time by revealing some of the secret processes by which the senate revised the cugar schedule in the Wilson tariff bill. In speaking Mr. Edwards has aroused the ire of the honorable senators, and they threaten him with all sorts of direful punishments because he refuses to violate professional confidence and reveal the sources of his information. Whether the correspondent goes to jail or not, the public knows a good deal more about tariff malking in the senate than it did a few weeks ago, and as a conscientious newspaper man Mr. Edwards will probably be satisfied with that result.

This is not the first time that Mr. Edwards has given to the world important and sensational information. It was he who first promulgated the much disputed story about the surgical operation on President Cleveland's jaw last summer, and he rendered important services in unearthing the star route frauds in the 80's. The Washington correspondent of the New York Sun at the time and was known as one of the ablest newspaper men at the capital. Mr. Edwards gave the first news of Mr. Blaine's ill health in 1884 and has scored many other beats of like importance.

E. JAY EDWARDS.

Editor Dana thought so highly of him that he was recalled to New York to become managing editor of The Evening Sun, in which position he ably maintained his reputation as an alert and sagacious journalist. Mr. Edwards is now in charge of the New York bureau of the Philadelphia Press and writes two columns a day on current political, commercial, scientific, literary and social topics. He frequently furnishes important and exclusive news to The Press, which is reprinted the following day in the New York papers.

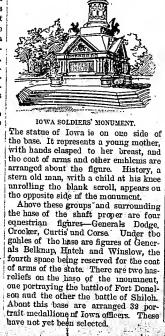
Mr. Edwards was born in New Haven about 45 years ago. He graduated from Yale in 1870 and in 1873 was graduated from the law school and admitted to the bar. He died very young in journalism and soon found it a more congenial field of labor than the law.

AN IMPOSING MONUMENT.

Iowa's Tribute to the Soldiers and Sailors of the War.

Models for the Iowa soldiers and sailors' monument to be erected at Des Moines at a cost of $65,000 have just been completed by Carl Rohl-Smith of Chicago and have been pronounced satisfactory by the Governor's council and a committee appointed to inspect them.

The monument is to be 136 feet high and will be an imposing shaft of gray granite surrounded by heroic bronze figures. At the base of the monument are four figures of colossal size, two representing soldiers of the infantry, cavalry and artillery, and the fourth the navy. The naval figure represents a sailor swinging a flag, which sways behind his athletic frame; the infantryman is a young soldier crowned with a laurel wreath; the cavalryman bears an upraised sword imbrued with flowers; the artilleryman holds a sweh aloft.



IOWA SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

The statue of Iowa is on one side of the base. It represents a young mother, with hands clasped to her breast, and the coat of arms and other emblems are arranged about the figure. History, a stern old man, with a child at his knee recording the blank scroll, appears on the opposite side of the monument.

Above these groups and surrounding the base of the shaft proper are four equestrian figures—Generals Dodge, Crocker, Curtis and Corse. Under the goddess of the base are figures of Generals Belknap, Hatch and Winslow, the fourth space being reserved for the coat of arms of the state. There are two bas-reliefs on the base of the monument, one portraying the battle of Fort Donelson and the other the battle of Shiloh. About this base are arranged 39 portrait medallions of Iowa officers. These have not yet been selected.

MONTE MEN TAKEN IN.

How Herrmann Astonished Some French Swindlers by His Tricks.

"I am not a lucky card player at any time," said Professor Herrmann. "I did win $2,800 at one sitting at Dalmonico's one night, but that was the largest sum I ever won. I can play only with my friends for in a company of strangers, if I were to win and they were to find out that I was a conjurer, the impression would be that I manipulated the cards, and that, you know, would be unpleasant. For amusement I frequently play and show a little party of friends what could be done with cards by practiced fingers. Yes, many times I have found my power to manipulate the pasteboards very handy, and I have frequently been able to outwit sharpers who purposed to fleece the unwary.

"I remember that in 1867 I sailed from New York to France to visit my relatives in Paris, and I carried four or five $20 goldpieces to give to my friends' children. Arriving at Havre, I met a friend in the person of the secretary of the Russian legation at Paris, who was also journeying toward the capital. We went on together and occupied toward the same compartment on the train. At one of the stations three men came into our compartment. They were Frenchmen, and it took only a glance to show that they were gentlemen who lived by their wits. They were dressed in the latest fashion, though, and apparently found a little trouble in getting an excellent living in their line of industry. When I gave the conductor my ticket, I took out my pocketbook, and one of the three, a nice little Parisian, caught sight of my gold double eagles. He was at my side, while his companions sat on the opposite seat.

"That flash of the gold was enough for the fellow, and he began his game. He asked me if I were an American, and if I knew anything about gold coins, this to open a conversation. I replied 'yes' to both questions, and on my asking why he desired to know he pulled a goldpiece from his pocket and asked me what it was. He had gotit for nothing, he said, in a card game. I told him it was a Spanish ounce worth $16. Then he and his friends began to play cards, and he said he would show them the game at which he won the ounce. It was the old three card monte trick, well known in America, but comparatively new in Europe. The three sharpers, posing as casual travelers, placed their legacy, and the little man at my side showed them how easy it was to pick up the ace from the overcast, which formed the card table. After a little money changed hands, and I saw that my friend, the Russian, was getting interested. Like all Russians, he had a passion for gambling.

"I have nothing to do with this game, I told him. 'Leave them to me.' I manifested an interest in the play, and when the fellow saw that a few hundred francs you can't pick up the ace!' I cried, 'I bet you,' and as I flung down the money I scattered it with my hand, hovering over the three cards in a row and overturned the ace. The winner was partly open, and swiftly and deftly the cards I flung them out, or rather they thought so. The sharpers raised a pretty row and talked very angry for awhile. Then I thrust my hand into the little man's vest and pulled out the cards one at a time. You should have seen the looks on those fellows' faces. 'You're a conjurer,' cried one of them. 'Yes, I am Herrmann,' I replied, 'and I know three card monte better than any of you.' They left the train at the next stop and sneaked away, looking very cheap. They were raw hands at it."—Chicago Post.

Perfumed Butterflies.

Fritz Muller discovered patches of singular scales on the wings of butterflies, which sent out more than 20 distinct odors. These scent scales are called androconia. An excellent study by microscopical sections of the wings of some of our butterflies, by Professor R. B. Thomas, appears in The American Naturalist. He shows that these scales are the outlet of unicellular glands situated at the base of each scale.

One especially pungent odor was detected beneath the androconia in the wing of Danais archippus. The surface of the wing above the glands is occupied and covered with a great number of papillæ, from the end of which the scent scales project, or it may be like the general surface of the wing. In the former case the androconia are quite small and but one to each papilla, at the base of which lies the gland. This gives the scent scale the appearance of a small rod placed in a flask.

The material elaborated by the local glands and distributed upon the surface of the wing by the androconia varies in which gives to many of the lepidopters their characteristic odor.—Philadelphia Press.

The Economy of Pure Food.

There are many persons who, from a misguided sense of economy, purchase food which they know to be impure, so that they may thereby save, in order to meet other demands of the family. Handsome clothing and fine houses for aristocratic neighborhoods are desirable, we admit, but not at the expense of the most important factor of our existence, especially when we know that pure, nourishing food is the indispensable cause of pure blood, and consequently more perfect nerve and brain power. It is not only false economy, but positive crime, to obtain edibles below the standard for the purpose of sustaining both the mental and physical health of any human being.—Baltimore Telegram.

Steady.

"I fear our new bookkeeper is not so steady as he ought to be," said the senior partner.

"Don't know about that," replied the junior partner. "He was out with a party of us the other night, and when the session was over he was the only one who didn't wabble a bit."—Indianapolis Journal.

IN A GOLD STAMP MILL.

Crushing Hundreds of Tons of Rock For a Small Amount of Ore.

For recovering free gold from its ores the only successful method, though crude, which has attained any measure of confidence is that known as stamp milling. Imagine a long, low building, one side lined with perforbles, through which rock is fed into huge mortars. In these, ranged along the wall, pestles, called stamps, drop at regular intervals, pulverizing the rock in a bath of water. One hundred and twenty-five of these stamps, weighing 600 pounds each, pound away at the quartzose ore, with 20 or 30 drops a minute, amid infernal din, contrasting strangely with the engine that quietly drives them all.

Each mouth of the water that seems glad to escape the noisy thraldom and ceaseless pounding drives a little of the pulp ore through screens in the front of the mortars and over inclined copper plates, the mercurial surface of which seizes the freed gold while the rock dispasses over the tailboard, onward to the creek. Formerly no effort was made to recover any value from these tailings, which still continued over 50 per cent of the mineral. Now, however, the use of additional plates and tables adds to the total receipts, which are further increased by the introduction of blankets in the nap of which some of the riches are mechanically collected. Though crude, this is an improvement upon the method of collecting gold in the Malay islands, where the washings sweat over primitive women, in whose hair the metal was caught. On every Sunday the giant pestles are hung up for rest, while the mercury gold alloy is scraped off the plates. After straining, the amalgam is of almost the consistency of thick cornmeal mush and contains about one-fourth of its weight in invisible particles of gold. From the results of each week's run the mercury is distilled, leaving a beautiful, porous cake of metal of the size of a baseball, as the fruits of prospecting for, mining and stamping of perhaps 200 tons of ore.—Cassier's Magazine.

His Order.

A speaker who has planned an address for a multitude and finds himself called upon to say a few words and after sometimes fails to readjust his remarks, and the result is apt to be ludicrous. A late story illustrative of this point is told in connection with a former president of the University of North Carolina.

One day as this dignified and stately personage was walking about the campus he observed an unusual crowd of students at some little distance. He did not hasten his steps, but proceeded slowly toward them, with his head down and his eyes apparently bent in contemplation of his own boots.

When this leisurely proceeding had brought him to the spot where the students had been gathered, only one young man remained, the others having precipitately departed.

The president raised his head and surveyed the solitary culprit with apparent severity, although the young man always contended that he detected a twinkle in his keen eyes.

"Sir," said the president in a commanding tone, "instantly disperse to your several places of abode."

The young man obeyed with accustomed certainly was, the young man executed it to the best of his ability by "dispersing" several further delay. —Youth's Companion.

"Dyed Milk" For Londoners.

A writer reveals some of the secrets of the milk trade as discovered by himself in an attempt to run a London dairy on Yorkshire principles. His first discovery was that all London milk has to be "dyed" to suit the London fancy. This is effected by putting about one teaspoonful of liquid "anotta," vegetable dye, to every gallon of milk, with every eight quarts of milk. In vain he explained to his London customers that their coverage of most milk was beautiful, rich and fresh. My milk was skimmed, etc. I gave up this thing as a bad job. I gave them their hearts' desire —the cream colored milk."—London Standard.

No Time to Waste.

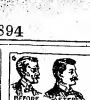
Mrs. de Style—Is Reginald just like to know who that young man is that you seem to be encouraging.

Miss de Style—His family came over in the Mayflower, and among his ancestors are William the Conqueror, King Edward the——

Mrs. de Style—That will do. People with family trees like that are always too poor to marry. Dismiss him.—New York Weekly.

NEW LIFE.

Dr. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is a positive cure for Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of Alcohol or Tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in Insanity, Decay, Premature Old Age, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Sexual Weakness, Impotency, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhœa caused by Self-Abuse or Excesses and Indiscretion. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent prepaid to any address. We guarantee six boxes to cure any case. With each $5.00 order received by us for six boxes, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by Crookston Drug Co., Crookston, Minn. Sold by druggists everywhere. Pamphlet free. Address: WEST & COOLEY, Props., Chicago, Ill.



VIGORINE Acts powerfully and quickly. Cures Nervousness, Sexual Debility, Impotency and all Diseases of the Sexual Organs, whether arising from the use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, or through indiscretion or over-indulgence. Each package contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a package, or six packages for $5.00, sent by mail prepaid to any address. With every $5.00 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Guarantees issued only by Crookston Drug Co., Crookston, Minn. Sold by druggists everywhere. Pamphlet free. Address: WEST & COOLEY, Props., Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Hi, There!
DO YOU WANT
The Choicest Cuts
At Lowest Rates ?
Try George Vine's New
MEAT MARKET.
Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.
Vine Block, Broadway CROOKSTON

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
RUNS
THROUGH CARS
TO
St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth Fargo, Grand Forks and winnipeg
TO
HELENA. BUTTE. SPOKANE. TACOMA. SEATTLE. PORTLAND
PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS. ELEGANT DINING CARS TOURIST SLEEPING CARS
TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave Crookston — For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 7.34 p.m.
Daily — For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8.30 a.m.
Have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.
For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent, N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or
CHAS. S. FEE, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn

G. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BURKHARDT, Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE
CROOKSTON, MINN.
THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Refurnished. Only first class Dollar a Day House in the city. Rates to commercial men.
No. 323 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON
ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Wells Drilled or Bored.
Will work by the foot or by the day.
Crookston, Minn

IVORY SOAP
99 44/100% PURE
FOR CLOTHES.
THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CINTI.

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of 1878 of the State of Minnesota, and the acts amendatory thereof, and supplementary thereto, we the under signed corporators hereby associate as a body corporate and do hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of the corporation hereby formed shall be Red Lake Milling Co. The general nature of the business shall be the manufacturing of flour, feed and meal, and all other products usually made in a flouring mill, corn, rye or oats or corn meal, and may have and have such local, water-power, machinery and other appurtenances as may be desirable, convenient useful or necessary in the operation of its manufacturing business, and may also own, erect and operate such elevators, warehouses and buildings as may be necessary in connection and incidental thereto, and may also own and operate required in the transportation of its commodities by rail and shall have power to maintain operate, connect, possess, own and hold a saw mill or mills, together with all other buildings as fixed tracks, water power and machinery appurtenances necessary for the using, sale and proper operation of the company's business in the manufacturing of lumber, lath, shingles and other products of timber, both manufactured in flouring mills and such as may be grown upon the land and incidental to the said corporation's business. The functions of said corporation shall never be limited to the business of manufacturing the articles hereinbefore mentioned but shall embrace incidentally thereto.

The principal place for the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of the corporation shall be the 30th day of June, A. D. 1894 and the period of its continuance shall be fifty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same shall be paid in at such times and in such installments as the board of directors may direct.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability that said corporation shall at any one time be subject to is the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming the corporation are as follows: F. E. and C. E. Boyle, Little Falls, Minn., L. Van Hecke, Lowdale, North Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the directors of the first year are as follows: Frank E. Cawley, Charles E. Boyle and L. Van Hecke; and Frank Cawley shall be the president, and Charles E. Boyle shall be the vice president, and said board shall be so many and compose all of whom shall be directors for the first annual meeting and shall hold their offices until the second Tuesday in the 6th day of August, 1894, and until their successors have been elected and have qualified.

The government of this corporation, and the management of its affairs shall be and is hereby vested in a Board of Directors consisting of three persons, who shall be elected by and from the stock holders of said corporation each year at the annual meeting of the stock holders, and said directors so elected shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and have qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected by the Board of Directors annually and shall hold their offices for the term of one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. The board of directors is hereby given power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be deemed necessary, and shall have power to fill vacancies in the Board of Directors or in any of the offices named for regular terms, and the Board of Directors or others appointed by the Board of Directors shall hold office until the succeeding annual meeting for the election of directors and officers, and until their successors are elected and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stock holders shall be held at the office of the company in Red in each year, and the annual meeting of the Board of Directors shall be held immediately after its annual meeting of the stock holders. The number of directors of the Board of Directors may be increased to not exceed seven by the stock holders at any annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of stock holders shall be held on the 15th day of August, 1894.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto set our hands and seals this 15th day of May, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY. [Seal.]
CHARLES E. BOYLE. [Seal.]
L. VAN HECKE. [Seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. E. LINDSTROM.
R. R. LINDSTROM.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Morrison, }

On this 15th day of May A. D. 1894 before me a notary public within and for said County, personally appeared Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Boyle, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL.] C. E. LINDSTROM, Notary Public, Morrison County, Minn.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Dickey. }

On this 15th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a notary public within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Hecke to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

[SEAL.] A. T. COLE, Notary Public, Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Department of State. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 15th day of May, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. and was duly recorded in Book "E" of Incorporations on Page 36.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, } ss.
STATE OF MINNESOTA. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 7th day of May A. D. 1894.

JOHN ANUNDSON,
Register of Deeds.

Here's the Idea
Of the Non-pull-out Bow
The great watch saver. Saves the watch and the bow. Cannot be pulled off the case—costs nothing extra.

The bow has a groove on each end. A similar groove down inside the expansion lever and fits into that groove, and is held there by the pendent, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

Can only be had with cases stamped with this trade mark.

Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases are now fitted with this great bow (ring). They look and wear like solid gold cases. Cost only about half as much, and are guaranteed for twenty years. Sold only through watch dealers. Remember the name

Non-pull-out

Keystone Watch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily	For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fergus Falls, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at	6:50 p. m.
	For Grand Forks, Larimore, Wheelock, Sanborn, Jamestown, Bismarck, and all points north, at	8:05 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Max Ericsson was visiting friends in the city on Saturday of last week.

You can get a 100-pound sack of Valley Roller Mills flour for $1.50.

H. C. Misner drove in from Euclid on Saturday last.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes at the California wine house. (5-tf)

At the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge in St. Paul last week Dr. Howard Lauchester of Fisher, was elected Grand Master. A worthy selection.

Judy Burkhardt drove out to Maple Lake Saturday afternoon to spend the Sabbath at Maple Bay. Took out a wagon load of his boarders.

Photographer Chadin has leased a gallery in Grand Forks and will devote part of his time to it. His family will remain here.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Oliver Mercil, the grocer in the Fournet block, made an assignment on Friday of last week.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lynne.

The decision of the jury in what is known as the Taylor case was a victory for the farmers. It is understood however that the case will be appealed.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. BROWN.

Saturday's Fosston train took quite a number of excursionists to Maple Lake. Agent Fegan sold 14 tickets. The company will try a Sunday train for a while.

Any person or persons who have "Merry-go-rounds," "Bont-Swings" "Ferris-wheels," "Riding-ponies" or any games of amusement in which there is no gambling—may confer with or write the secretary for space on fair grounds.

J. V. E. WYATT,
[4t] Sec'y.

I am prepared to make a few first-class farm loans at straight 10 per cent with no bonus. Call on E. M. Walsh, the land man, Fournet block, Crookston. [8-10]

J. B. Boome was out to Maple Lake before the late rains and up at Stephen later on. Says the crops about here beat any he saw anywhere on his travels.

Dressed hogs cured and sold on commission at the Crookston packing house. Always ready to receive them during the summer months.
[8-12] ROBERT STANTON.

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter, buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.
[47-tf] D. N. TAYLOR.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved Yorkshire pigs, ready for weaning next week. Inquire of John Van Thyl, on the farm.

AARON COOKE.

Don't forget that entries in purses races for July meeting close at 11 p. m. June 25th. Send in your entry now, and you can pay the entry fee the day of the race.
[1t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

It was Miss Emma Fortier who was engaged as a teacher in the city schools, and not Miss Tillie, as was stated in the JOURNAL last week.

There will be a Union temperance meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday evening. Rev. Illsley will deliver the address of the evening.

The Maple Bay boys laid out the Cleveland house nine in the game of base ball at the lake this week and the Clevelands are now wondering "where are we at?"

J. F. Cremer, of our city, was honored by being made Grand Marshal of I. O. O. F. ovlet at the grand lodge meeting in St. Paul last week. A worthy selection.

Rev L. W. Squier and G. F. Carpenter attended the Epworth League convention at Red Wing last week. Mr Squier also attended the Good Templars' meeting at Minneapolis.

Last week the body of W. C. Kops was brought from Hot Springs Ark., to Grand Forks for burial. He died of pneumonia after a few days illness. His death came as an unpleasant surprise to his many friends in this city.

Frank Benoit was in the city on Saturday visiting with his mother and brothers and his many friends in the city. Says he intends to take a furlough in a fortnight when he will make quite an extended stay in the city.

The price of butter at the present time emphasizes the necessity of winter dairying. Farmers who cannot provide for this conveniently should always have a supply of ice put up for use in the summer dairy and not be obliged to depend upon feeding their butter upon a summer market.

If you have failed to secure at least one grade or thorough stock that is one dairy in the interest of your city that you have neglected to perform. To say nothing about the intrinsic value of the stock this is a duty that every public-spirited man should hasten to discharge. Now is the time to subscribe.

In congratulating the citizens of Detroit, Minn., on the fact that Poppaugh's show would stop at that place, the Free Press says: "It is seldom that such a monster 'aggrivation' stops at such a small town. 'Aggrivation' is good." A circus is an aggravation to a community—this year.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Chapin, of Warren, were called upon to part with their little 10 months boy last week, who died of cholera infantum at their home in Warren. Mr. Chapin was for a time employed in Charlie Misner's tonsorial parlors in this city, going from here to Warren where he engaged in business for himself.

The district encampment G. A. R., will be held at Verndale this year beginning on July 2d and continuing through the 3d. A big time is expected and every old soldier in the district is cordially invited to attend. Quite a number of the members of the Crookston Post are talking of attending. Half-fare rates on the Northern Pacific will no doubt be given.

The Sunday train to Maple Lake continued, besides the Grand Forks corset band, a large number of the citizens of that lively burg. Quite a number Crookstonites boarded the train here. The Fertile band was at the lake, so it would seem that there was no lack of music for the occasion. The steamer "Belle of Maple Lake" did a thriving business all day, and everybody returned at night tired and happy.

Prof. John Moore is very much interested in the adaptability of our soil and climate to the culture of sugar beets. Says he can see no reason why, in a country so perfectly adapted to the raising of vegetables the German sugar beet cannot be successfully raised, and sugar produced in paying quantities. This question has never been fully tested here as yet though some beets have been raised, which appeared to be of excellent quality.

On Thursday afternoon and until late in the night one of the finest rains of the season occurred, soaking the ground up in the shape to a considerable depth and supplying all that was needed to insure an abundant crop. While the crops had not suffered to any considerable extent, rain was beginning to be needed and was highly appreciated by the farmers who now rejoice in the prospects of abundant yields. Wheat was all right yet but barley and flax recently sown was doing nothing until the rain set them growing at a lively rate.

A team belonging to A. K. Austin took a lively whirl along Main street about 2 o'clock on Saturday causing some exeitement for a time. The driver managed to keep them in the middle of the street, and make the turn on to Loring Avenue and from that on to Broadway all right, and again on Houston Avenue at the Caruan bridge, and finally brought them to a stop on Houston Avenue with no damage done. It looked a little scaly at one time with the prospects for general a wreck extremely probable.

During the storm Tuesday night a large tree blew down on Fred Anderson's kitchen, taking the end off the chimney, but doing no further damage of any account.

Dr. W. A. Robertson goes to Grand Forks this morning, where he is to read a paper before the North Dakota Dental association, which is in session at that place.

Pat Russell and Lawrence Lawson drove out to the lake Saturday evening and near Gentilly the forward axle broke disabling their vehicle and they had to procure another, which delayed them a good bit but they got there just the same, after awhile.

Miss Nellie L. Woodbury will be at the office of the Strawbridge Normal School from 2 to 5 o'clock p. m. Saturday June 23rd, to arrange with those who desire to join the classes in Physical culture and Elocution to be organized next Monday. One class will be especially adapted to children.

Prof. Thomas Cuss, of Red Lake Falls, and Prof. A. D. Wishard, of St. Hilaire, are luxuriating in the metropolis this week. The former has accepted a third term as principal of the Red Lake Falls schools, but the latter is undecided yet as to whether he will take charge of the St. Hilaire schools another year or not.

August George has been having a severe siege for a week or so. The JOURNAL mentioned the fact that he had an abscess on the back of his head lanced awhile ago. In some way he got a bit of the matter from it in a slight cut in his right hand which member swelled up frightfully for a time laying him up. He is getting about again.

A pony belonging to Ed Columbus attempted to cross the N. P. railroad bridge to Jerome's Addition on Sunday evening but fell through between the ties before he had gone very far upon the bridge. Several men, seeing the pony's plight hastened to his rescue and succeeded in getting him to terra firma with no serious injury to the animal.

For sometime Hon. B. Sampson has been trying to get a tannery established in our city and has at last so far succeeded as to get an experienced tanner to come up and look the field over. A Mr. Miller arrived on Tuesday morning and has been interviewing our citizens in relation to establishing a tannery here. A tannery in this city would be a most valuable addition to our manufacturing interests and would bring lots of business that we don't get now. We shall have more to say about this important matter later.

The woman's cause was very ably presented by Mrs. Nelson Saturday evening, and listened to by a highly appreciative and attentive audience and those who were not there lost a rare treat. She gave a history of the progress of woman, from the dark ages down to the present time, showing what education has done for woman, and why the ballot is necessary for her complete emancipation. As her lecture was so well appreciated the ladies of the W. C. T. U. have engaged her to lecture again Saturday night at the Methodist church, at 8 o'clock. Subject "Rond to Freedom," lecture free.

W. O. Wilson and wife and John Bergquist and wife drove out to Maple Lake on Saturday and established a camp wherein to enjoy a week's outing. On Sunday morning Peter Cornelius went out with the excursion train and dropped into the Wilson-Bergquist camp and enjoyed one of the finest collations that he has set down to for weeks for to, these many days. At train time W. O. drove Pete out to the station to take the train for home and the last Pete saw of Wilson, as the train passed around a curve out of sight on its homeward way, Wilson was sitting on the platform eating as though his heart would break, as homesick as a kid, because he had to go back to camp and could not accompany Pete home. P. S. Wilson returned from the Lake on Tuesday evening, and declares that he enjoyed out two weeks.

It is said that the Great Northern company will make the Sunday trains a test of the question whether it will pay to tie and iron a spur down to Maple Bay—if the trains are well patronized they will build, otherwise not. This would hardly be a fair test, from the fact that under the present arrangement people do not get directly to the lake, but have to hire a conveyance for about two miles, but if the train left them on the lake shore it would be an inducement to go and probably very many more would go than do now. The cost of completing the road, that is already graded to Maple Bay would be slight compared with the increase in trade that it would be sure to bring to the company. The road to Maple Bay should be completed by all means, and that at an early date; if that spur was built the travel would no doubt more than double at once.

Judge Benson went to St. Paul last week on probate business.

Mads Mossedin and family went out to Maple Lake with the excursion on Sunday.

Charlie Misner went out to the lake on Sunday. Says the lake is "way out of sight!"

N. B. Soper took a sub-contract of the McKinnon Bros. and went to work on Thursday last.

J. R. Clements bid in the furniture at the chattel mortgage sale of Comeroval house stuff on Monday.

Will Arnold, with a crew of surveyors went out to the Tabor ditch on Monday morning with the appraisers.

Will Marsh, Boyd Monroe, Fred Walker, Martin Mossedin, Ed and Will Martin took in the excursion to the lake.

J. C. Congdon arrived from Brainerd on Tuesday morning to attend the Congregational convention in this city to which he is a delegate.

The boys turned in on Friday with teams and a road machine and graveled a road from Elm street to the fair grounds. They did a good job.

Peter Stuhl is fixing up the building just south of the G. A. R. Hall and intends to occupy it about July 1st. Pete will fix it up in great shape.

D. S. Horwitz the piano man was in the city this week. He reports the sale of two pianos in the city on Tuesday. That dont look like hard times.

Esquire Holt performed his first marriage ceremony on Friday of last week uniting for life Miss. Lina Olson and Mr. Torger Swensingson. The judge has an extremely happy faculty in such important matters.

There will be an ice cream, strawberry, lake, lemonade, lawn social at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Slocum, on Friday evening. All go it is gotten up by one of the societies of the Congregational church, and a good time is promised.

Rev. R. H. Battey preached at Barnesville June 10th and 17th, and spent the week intervening in the two cities. While there he attended the session of the Grand lodge I. O. G. T. as delegate from Crookston. He reported a large and hearty Grand lodge.

The rain storm on Tuesday night was accompanied by hail, that in this city broke some window panes. As yet we have heard of no damage to crops in this county. The hail here lasted about one minute by boys under 15 years of age. Race to be held July 19th in afternoon on the Fair grounds.
[4t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The crops received a thorough soaking Tuesday night.

C. T. Lamman, of the McIntosh Times, was in the city on Wednesday consulting with Bro. Holston and the rest of the faithful.

Tired, Weak, Nervous.

Means impure blood, and overwork or to much strain on brain and body. The only way to cure is to feed the nerves on pure blood. Thousands of people certify that the best blood purifier, the best nerve tonic and strength builder is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What it has done for others it will do also for you—Hood's Cures.

Hood's Pills cure constipation by restoring peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 16th

Searle, H. R. Christopherson, H. Berg, Bessie
Allen, Flora
Mason, Lizzie
McManus, Mercy

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LEPAGE,
Postmaster.

Steam Threshing Outfit for Sale.

Second hand Straw Traction engine and Minnesota Chief separator, for sale at a bargain. Everything is in first-class condition. To a responsible party long time will be given. Apply to or address,
[8-10] I. B. WELTER,
Elma, Minn.

Thos. Gibbons, a stockman writes from Rockport, Utah, under date of May 12, 1893. "Gents:—I have used your Haller's Barb Wire Liniment, and am so well pleased with it that I have no hesitancy in declaring it the best I ever used for curing wire cuts sores and wounds. It is truly a wonderful healer, and I would not think of raising stock with out it." F. L. Durand sells and guarantees it.

As there are a number of trained harness dogs in the city the Fair association will give a special prize to the winner of one-half mile dash, trot or run; dogs to be harnessed to a two-wheeled cart and to be driven by boys under 15 years of age. Race to be held July 19th in afternoon on the Fair grounds.
[4t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

AS I have been very ill since May 30th the issuing of the premium list of the fair (July 17-18-19) has been delayed. The books are nearly completed and I expect to resume work soon and shall get all necessary assistance to issue the books in short order.
[1t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

Estray.

Came upon my premises, in the town of Onstad, on or about May 5th, three steers, two red and one red and one, all about 3 years old. Owner can recover by proving property and paying charges.
[9-11] SIVERT HANSON.

To Teachers of Polk County

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual merit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teacher should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMEN,
County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address,
ROBERT STANTON,
Crookston Packing House,
[7-12] Crookston, Minn.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms. Call at [14tf] A. F. GEORGE,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Old Fellows block.
[52tf] ALEXANDER MCKINNON.

WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED
FARMS
FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.
REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,
E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S

GROCERY

DEPARTMENT

Best Patent Flour, per sack	$ 1.50
Bakers' Flour, per sack	1.15
20 pounds Granulated Sugar for	1.00
15 " Best California Prunes for	1.00
20 " English Currants for	1.00
19 " Best Cooking Raisins for	1.00
Fancy Layer Raisins, per pound	.15
All Package Coffees, per pound	23
Choice Guatemala Coffee, large, even bean, elegant, per pound	.28
3 pounds Mocha and Java Coffee for	60
Choice Uncolored Japan Tea, per pound	25
Fancy " " " "	35
25 Bars Kirk's Soap	1.00
28 Bars Victor soap	1.00
Best Canned Corn, per can	10
" " Tomatoes, per can	12½
20 pound pail jelly	60
2 gallon pail syrup	60
Best California Canned Goods. Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums, Muscat Grapes, per can	12½

We carry a large assortment of Flower Pots. Our line of Crockery and Glassware is the largest in Polk County.
— FONTAINE & ANGLIM. —

Students in the Northwest.

Messrs. Strawbridge & Knudson have secured for their Normal School and Business College the finest and largest apartments of any school in the northwest. A deal which has been hanging fire for some time was consummated yesterday, whereby the Palmer hotel in the Rositt block was leased to the school proprietors.

They will have the third and fourth floor, including those over the club room. They will run a dining hall and give board and room for $2.50 and $3.00 per week. No change will be made in the furnishings of the building, but the entire building is to be re-papered. When it is considered that students can have large, airy, steam-heated rooms—with the furnishings of a first-class hotel—have the rooms taken care of, and be supplied with good board, all for $2.50 or $3.00 per week—this school should become the most popular in the northwest, and its proprietors should meet with the success their enterprise deserves.

Polk County Journal.

Historical Society

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 28 1894. NO. 11.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....David M. Clough.
Secretary of State.....F. P. Brown
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist....Haldor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist.....E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist....John D. Knutson, B. H. Chelley and Hans Jolson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....C. J. Effiott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 9th Jud. District .....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court.....Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor.....C. U. Webster
Treasurer.....I. T. Sneasby
Register of Deeds.....John Amundson
Attorney.....A. R. Holmon
Sheriff.....Amy Grandpre
Judge of Probate.....C. N. Benson
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lommen
Surveyor.....O. L. Ramsey
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First district.....John E. Oppegaard
Second district.....Anton Linden
Third District.....M. E. Hirsch
Fourth District.....C. P. Bennett
Fifth District.....A. C. Rhinehart

THE CITY.

Mayor.....John Cromb
Office in Merchants National Bank.
Clerk.....W. A. Lanctot
Office in Anderson Block.
Treasurer.....Ole O. Christianson
Office in Anderson Block
Comptroller.....E. M. Walsh
Office over Merchants National Bank.
Assessor.....C. H. Mix
City Attorney.....Reform Bookton
Office over Merchants National Bank.
City Engineer.....George Ralph
Office in Former Block.
City Justices—L. E. Grosman,...Former Block
O. G. Hoh.....McKinnon Block
Constables.....A. A. Glenn and Wm. Bloom
Street Commissioner.....Jos. Creighton
Chief of Police.....Louis Cosgrove

ALDERMEN.

At Large.....J. W. Wheeler
First Ward.....I. U. Jennings, Geo. O. Bohn
Second "J. E. Moriley, W. H. Norris
Third "Wm. Watts, M. E. Kirsch
Fourth "N. S. Gerrain, Fred Heil
Fifth "R. G. Marlette, A. McGregor

TOWN CLERKS.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Birdsa	Crookston.
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckerson	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Bray
Badger	F N Savalrel	Badger
Brandenold.	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Borer	Euclid
Brisbet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Hebror Grundeson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flaaten	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lanctot,	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Lindsay
Emardville	Charlie Aad	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Nisser	Euclid
Eden.	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Hinnebichek	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Warren
Fenny,	J O McWatters,	Euclid
Fisher.	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	E J George	Fertile
Go Forks	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	F B Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Ver J Jogshreton	Fertile
Garden,	John Henson	Ringdal
Gentilly	H T Goodreau.	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Delorge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Hunter
Godfrey,	H T Wilchelt,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Fred S Syverson	Lindsay
Hubbard.	Andrew Hanson	Nellsville
Kerstone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Hunterville,	G B Frantz.	G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	J D Kunte-on,	Acton Ton
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant.	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gehean,	Lambert
Liberty.	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lenor.	Chas Matteson	Owen
Lyvell,	Ole Christianson,	Rosenton
Lenlaville,	Benjamin Delbec	Hunt
Nesbit.	M E Sherman	Nesbit
North	Harry Sex.	T R Falls
Norden,	R D Bazedon	T. R. Falls
Northland.	M S Mercer	Northland
Numedal,	Hosmer E Albue,	Tredt
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bisan	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre.	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans S Houkom	Fosston
R.L. F. village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls.	Dhaly Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rockebury,	F Engleated	St. Hilaire
Roome,	F Bonkind	Nehy
Rosebud,	John E Juverod,	Fosston
Russia,	Owen Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils S Anderson	St. Hilaire
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	Northland
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	St. Hilaire
Stenton.	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan.	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne.	Edonor Perrese	Terrebonne
Tilden.
Tyrnid,	A O Stortreen	Nehy
Vineland,	John Thompson	Nehy
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Rindal
Woodside,	Thos. Haldorson,	Maple Bay
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	Adam Zeh.	T R Falls

The poisonous cuts inflicted by harb wire, has caused the death of many a good horse whose life might have been saved by the use of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment. It is especially made to heal all cuts, sores and wounds quickly, and thousands of farmers and stockmen have freely each so pledged it is the best. F. L. Durrand sells and guarantees this remedy.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

The New Hotel.

Of all the sites suggested for the new hotel, none strikes us more favorably, than the present site of the Episcopal church. Located at the head of Second street. It could be seen from both lines of road, and the N. P. road could put its depot on the track in rear of it, connecting to the hotel by a platform or, better yet, that company might take hold with us, help build it and have their depot and office right in the hotel itself. Located there the hotel would add less to the value of adjacent real estate than most any other site that could be selected, and thus remove any cause for jealousy that the selection of any other site might engender. But its child recommend is in its convenience to both rail-way depots. The Sherman house site would be a very good location, but its after removal from the N. P. depot. This site would give the hotel three fronts which would make a fine building. The Jacobson corner is also a good site, fronting on two streets. If some such site as the first one mentioned should not be selected, where the building could be erected by itself, with no very near neighbors, then a corner site should be selected by all means. Taking everything into consideration the site of the Episcopal church could not well be beaten.

A Tannery.

On Tuesday June 26th, the city council met in extra session to consider a proposition to raise $500 in aid of a tannery in this city. Hon. B. Sampson has had this matter under consideration for some time, corresponding with a good many tanners and finally inducing one, a Mr. Miller, to come up and look the field over thoroughly. After a week or ten days of careful investigation Mr. Miller has decided to locate in Crookston if our people will give him sufficient encouragement. We understand that Mr. Sampson proposes to give a site provided the council will provide for a bonus of $500 for the enterprise, and the sentiment in the council seems favorable. A committee was appointed to see what can be done in the matter. It strikes as that an enterprise of that kind in this city would be worth more than the paltry sum of $500 every year of its existence, and we could well afford to invest that amount for a tannery, provided the proper means were used to secure a permanent institution. Such a market for hides and furs as this institution would furnish would be invaluable in our midst, and the money required to start it would be a sound business investment.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 16th

Anderson Ole
Peterson August
Simonson Lodle
Horrie Willie
Hudolph
Stoltz Frank

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LEPAGE.
Postmaster.

W. L. Davies, was in from Angus, on Tuesday. Says that at the caucus on Monday evening, M. A. Campina, was elected delegate to the Republican county convention. Says that a young men's Republican club has been formed there, and that their work in the coming campaign will be very effective. He predicts a larger vote for the Republican ticket at Angus than ever before. Says crops are all looking quite good, and could stand a bit more rain.

We are told by those who have visited in the southern part of the state recently, that farmers there are not worrying over the "hard times." Each one has a little ready money for an emergency and plenty to live upon, and some have money in the bank, and money to loan. Yes ngo southern Minnesota was raising all wheat—and was hard up. Now all that is changed. They have fine dairy herds and facilities for handling butter; they have hogs; they raise a little corn; they raise timothy and other grass seeds, and they always have something that will bring in a little money at any time of the year, all of which our farmers could do here if they would. If they will persist in summer butter-making they should provide a place for cold storage any from June till the latter part of August, by putting up ice in winter, which could be done at small expense outside of actual labor.

"What man has done man can do" is a maxim that the southern Minnesota farmer has amply demonstrated by practice, i. e. they have made money in Minnesota at farming, thus demonstrating the fact that it has been done.

A. E. Brush was in from Angus, on Tuesday.

M. W. Jenson, was in the city from McIntosh, on Wednesday.

The populist caucuses were held on Saturday evening, in the various wards of the city.

Geo. M. Swift, drove in from Mentor, on Wednesday, to attend the alliance meeting.

Wild strawberries are ripening. The railroad lands up in Parnell town are said to be red with this delicious fruit.

J. S. Curryer, of Mankato, Minn., has also been engaged as judge in "Division A"—Horses and also as starter judge.

Secretary Wyatt, of the Fair association is now able to attend to business, and his office is in room 33 Beckitt block.

Chas. Probst, has resigned his position with the Minneapolis beer folks, and Alex. Thompson takes his position.

Some miscreants broke into the exposition building on the Fair grounds and destroyed about $45 worth of stationery.

Send your children to the Strawbridge school for special instruction in penmanship and physical culture. Penmanship 50 cents per week.

O. C. Gregg, of Minneapolis, the well known lecturer for the Farmers Institute on dairy cattle, has been engaged as judge in "Division B"—Cattle.

Miss E. Veromenna, is making especially low prices on all summer goods, to close out the stock. The ladies are cordially invited to call and get prices.

The wife of Ignatius Donnelly, who has been an invalid for the past year, died at their home, the Ryan hotel, St Paul, on Tuesday of this week, at the age of 61 years.

Tollef Farden, wife and daughter, were in from Grove Park, on Wednesday. Mr. Farden reports that there is still a good bit of republicanism floating about in his neighborhood.

P. LePage has been elected secretary of St. Anne's church, and C. Giraux treasurer. Upon the next visit of the bishop—which will be shortly—the church will be incorporated.

Dr. Dunlop, returned from the lake, at noon on Tuesday. He found Sam. Rosenthal doing nicely, with no bones broken and all he has to do is to rest quietly and let nature heal the bumps and bruises. It was a close call for Sam.

All purse-recve for the July meeting at the Fair have been reopened to 11 o'clock p. m., July 10th, 1894. Farmers who intend to enter the farmers trot and pace should make entry with the secretary at once, as after July 10th, no entry will be received.

For the benefit of those who were unable to be present Tuesday afternoon, Miss Woodbury will explain explain her work in physical culture on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Evening classes for ladies and gentlemen will be organized. A number of readings will be given. All are invited.

Charlie Misner, has been out in the dough practicing with his revolver very much of late. When asked to explain, he only mysteriously scratched his head and said: "I missed that rooster that was trying to steal my hens, but I'll fix that wood chief plenty some of these nights!"

Hicks' prediction for July indicate plenty of moisture, accompanied with plenty hail-storms and general devastation. You can look out for a storm most any day in the month and not miss it very far. Well, we need some rain, but can get along without the rest of it.

The directors of the Fair association met in Secretary Wyatt's office Monday night and perfected arrangements for repairing and improving the Fair grounds, exposition buildings, grand-stand and stables. Agents have been engaged to travel throughout the county to advertise the Fair, receive entries of exhibits and to sell tickets and stock.

To-day the average populist has piment for office is in the crucible—on the rack as it were, knowing not what the end will be. If it is true, as it seems to be, that the bosses have decided that fusion with democrats is the proper thing, many of those aspirants will go home after the convention wiser though madder men. A great deal of history was made yesterday and is being made to-day.

Miss. Dina Arndt, returned to her home at Fergus Falls, on Tuesday, after a pleasant visit to friends in the city.

Miss Louise Woodbury, the new teacher engaged by the Strawbridge school, arrived last week, and is making especially of elocution and physical culture.

The Grand Forks base ball club came over on Tuesday to try conclusions with our boys. The game was played on the fair grounds, and resulted in a victory for the Crookston boys by a score of 9 to 18.

Oliver Schneider, an employe, in the firemen's department, Washington, D. C., was in the city, this week visiting his old-time friend and school chum, Fred Rauch. Mr. Schneider is on his wedding tour.

There will be a celebration and picnic, at K. O. Berget's place, midway between Crookston and Fisher, on July the Fourth. There will be speech-making, music, etc., and a good time is promised all who attend.

At a chattel mortgage sale, on Tuesday morning, three horses that belonged to Jos. Lejambe, who goes to Stillwater, for a season, the bidding was not extremely brisk, so the horses were bid in by the mortgagee. One horse, the best one in the lot was bid in for $25. This would have been a good bargain at double that price. The mortgagee started the bidding on the next animal offered for sale, at $50 and no one raised the ante, so it went for that sum. The next one was sold in for $40.

In the last term of the district court an action was brought against Miss Cosy McAvoy, who had engaged to teach a district school at Angus, and had commenced to carry out the contract. The case was tried in chambers this week and Judge Ives decided that Miss McAvoy had no right to teach the school, on the ground that she had only a third grade certificate, and such certificate must specify the district the holder may teach in. This Miss. McAvoy's certificate failed to do.

Supt. O. C. Gregg with a corps of institute workers, went down to Fosston on Tuesday to hold an institute there. They have just finished a successful session at Warren, and the meeting is reported very profitable. These means of culture that our Minnesota farmers are offered could be made profitable to every farmer in the state, if he saw fit to attend them. Those who do so are enthusiastic, declaring them to be worth many times the cost, affording hints and instructions that are invaluable in every day life. They cost something and should be used by every earnest, practical farmer.

Appearances indicate a very short hay crop this year, which means a good price for hay next fall and winter and here we may also freely predict as much as $20 per ton before next spring. If hay should go to $10 or $12 even, it would have a tendency to coax all the cows to such an extent that prices would be on the boom next summer. Stock conveyer engagements a farmer has to contend with it will be noticed, that every so long the prices will come his way and he is shewed, and watching the current of events he can always take advantage of the bonums.

Euclid Items.

EUCLID, June 27, 1894.

John J. Ryan, of Red Lake, was on our streets Monday. Mr. Ryan, was principal of the Euclid schools, a few years and has many friends here.

Robt. Casmey, left Tuesday evening, for Faribault, with his little daughter Aggie and will place her in the school for the feeble minded, and it is hoped she will soon be well again.

The town board met as a board of equilization Tuesday, and as usual did not have much to do. Assessor, Peter Stuhr generally gives such satisfaction, that there is very little fault found here.

Peter Stuhr and Pete Kelly, visited Crookston, Wednesday.

Mrs. Dr. Chapin, will return Friday from an extended visit through Wisconsin and Michigan. The doctor returned some days ago and is again at work attending the sick.

The church which was damaged by wind some time ago is nearly torn down, and will soon be replaced by a brau new one.

The people party caucus was held at H. E. Misner's office Tuesday evening. Captain L. S. Hancock was elected a delegate to the convention at Crookston, Thursday.

The republican caucus was held at H. E. Misner's office Wednesday evening. E. C. Murney, was elected delegate.

Royal Myers was married to Miss. Nina Bever, last Saturday, at Grand Forks. Nina is one of our Euclid girls, having lived here eight years. May joy be theirs, is the wish of all.

Mrs. Charles Misner, son and daughter, of Crookston, were visiting friends here the first of the week.

George Easby, came up Wednesday, to see how the crops were looking and to swap yarns with the boys.

Marais Items.

The prospects are that there will be a good crop.

James McDonald and wife, drove to the Forks Friday.

School closed last Friday for a two months vacation. Mr. Norwood had a nice treat for each of the children.

Mrs. S. Miller, of Thief River Falls, is visiting friends here.

The Marais is not behind the times as there is going to be a picnic in Mr. Lee's woods on Friday the 29th.

The entertainment held at the church on last Friday evening, was an enjoyable one. A large attendance and the proceeds were used to pay for the school organ.

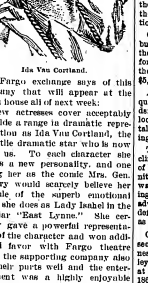
Miss Ida Hancock, of Crookston, visited the Mallory school Friday and attended the concert in the evening. She also gave a very nice recitation.

Richard Morrow arrived Sunday from Superior, Wis. Rich— and says times are dull there.

A republican caucus was held in the Marais school house Saturday evening.

Andrew Falke took the contract for building a large barn for Hans Nesbit. The work is in progress since last Friday.

Misses Jennie and Lizzie Ferguson, left for their home in Winona Tuesday night over the Great Northern. They have been visiting friends and relatives the past four weeks.



Ida Van Cortland.

A Fargo exchange says of this company that will appear at the opera house all of next week:

"Few actresses cover acceptably so wide a range in dramatic representation as Ida Van Cortland, the versatile dramatic star who is now with us. To each character she brings a new personality and one seeing her as the comic Mrs. Gen. Gilflory would scarcely believe her capable of the superb emotional work she does as Lady Isabel in the familiar "East Lynne." She certainly gave a powerful representation of the character and won additional favor with Fargo theatre goers the supporting company also did their parts well and the entertainment was a highly enjoyable one throughout. We must also make favorable mention of the specialties introduced between acts by Messrs. Warner and Robinson and Miss Vyse.

To night Miss Cortland will appear in her favorite role of Stephanie in "Forget-Me-Not." An exchange has the following to say of this play, as presented by this company:

Miss Van Cortland as the Stephanie the adventuress gave a characterization that in no way suffers in comparison with the best, giving to the part a delicate blendiur of light and shade that shows she has made of it a great study and thought, completely merging all personal identity and becoming in fact the scheming adventuress. Her dressing of the part was magnificent, her robes being marvels of the modiste's art. Praise is also due to every member of the support, each artist investing his or her part with a distinct individuality that stamps the true artist. Popular prices 15c, 25c and 35c.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

Rushford has voted $10,000 bonds for waterworks.

The Minneapolis Journal has bought The Times of that city.

The state conclave of Knights Templar was held at St. Paul Monday.

Faida voted to extend the waterworks so that the entire village will be covered.

Fire at Montrose damaged the shoe store of William Krefflow to the extent of $900.

The twenty-second annual turnfest was held at New Ulm, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The Minnesota state medical society met in the hall of representatives at the capitol Thursday.

A small sized cyclone swept through the neighborhood of Windom, doing considerable damage.

At St. James, Fred Johnson was arrested for attamptitg to dispose of a promissory note for $200.

Two brickyards have been opened at Watkins. One of them will make half a million brick this year.

Two more ticket scalpers have been arrested at Minneapolis since the ticket-scalper law was declared valid.

Three hundred and sixty thousand dollars has been appropriated for salaries of teachers in St. Paul schools the coming year.

On accounts of efforts of Senator Davis and Governor Nelson the State of Minnesota will probably be awarded a large amount of swamp land by the federal government.

Secretary Hart has received a request from Itasca county for advice and instructions for the erection of a new county jail.

The Minnesota Boat Club won the race at Minnetonka over the University of Wisconsin, leading the Badger eight from start to finish.

St. John's university, at Collegeville, graduated forty-three students this year. Gov. Nelson presented the diplomas and delivered an address.

Republicans of the Second Minnesota congressional district held their convention at Mankato on July 10. McCleary will have a walkover.

E. B. Smith, formerly a banker at Le Sueur, has been arrested, charged with receiving deposits when his bank was insolvent. His trial is set for July 2.

The Lone Jack mine on the Mesaba has been leased to Henry W. Oliver of Pittsburg at a royalty of 25 cents a ton, the minimum annual output being 100,000 tons.

A tramp at River Junction is suffering from confinent smallpox. He had just been discharged from the stone jile at La Crosse. Several persons were exposed.

Chief Justice Gilfillan of the supreme court has handed down a decision declaring the street car vestibule law passed by the legislature two years ago, constitutional and valid.

Congressman Fletcher's till to reimburse Minnesota for arms furnished for the state militia, which the state paid for prior to 1887, was passed under the deficiency bill. The state receives $5,821.

Advices from Carlton state that large quantities of grasshoppers have suddenly made their appearance in that locality, and in many places have totally destroyed gardens and are injuring meadows.

The secretary of the interior has declined to approve a list of 18,356 acres of land in Minnesota selected as indemnity by the Hastings and Dakota Railway company. All the settlers claiming rights to the lands involved will be advised generally to furnish proofs in defanit of which they will be considered as waiving their claims.

Colonel William F. Wheelar, private secretary to Governor Medary, of Minnesota territory, and to Governor Sibley, first executive of Minnesota, died at Helena, Mon., aged 70 years. In 1850 he located the first line of telegraph in Minnesota, from St. Paul to Winona. He was also one of the projectors of the railroad from St. Paul to Duluth and secretary of the company.

Wanted to See.

He gazed on the great giraffe,
Then sighed and turned away,
Thinking what a prize his neck would be Behind a high hat at the play.
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Great Efforts.

He—It was very rude of you to try to show your contempt for me before all those people.

She (sweetly)—I was not trying to show it, I was trying to conceal it.—Philadelphia Record.

THE RANTER.

Helen Bancroft is in London. She expects to get a chance to act there.

Valerie Bergere is at present the leading lady of "A Piece of Steel" company.

William Winter of the New York Tribune is writing a biography of Joseph Jefferson.

The Paris Opera House costs at the rate of $6,500 a seat. The Vienna Opera House costs $880 a seat.

Eleanor Carey is a member of Roland Reed's company and made a distinct hit in the new play called "Dakota."

Lillian Russell during her coming tour on the road, which will begin in Baltimore, will present only "Princess Nicotine."

Theatrical business is picking up in Chicago. In fact, there is apparently a better feeling in various other sections of the country.

In May, Willis Collier will produce a new play written expressly for him by Edward E. Kidder. It is now practically finished.

Lulu Don of the Don sisters, formerly with the "Two Old Cronies" company, has returned to America after an extended absence abroad.

Frank R. McNish, who lays great stress upon being the original "silence and fun" man, has joined Tony Farrell's "My Colleen" company.

Charles Cowles, formerly of Hoyt's forces and widely known as the "Yankee Clodhopper," has gone s-starring in "The Baxters," a New England comedy.

When Henry Irving returns to London, he will revive "Faust," and during its run will make preparations for the production of his new play, "King Arthur."

Ellen Vockey has decided to give up her proposed starring tour until she can procure a play better suited to her abilities than the piece she contemplated producing.

Gus Heege, the exponent of the Anglo-Swedish dialect, celebrated his one thousandth performance of "Yon Yonson." Since "Yon Yonson's" initial production Heege has never missed a performance.

THE HORSEMAN.

Budd Doble has become a Benedict.

In India they are developing trotting cows.

The Village Farm stable won $48,700 last season.

Owner Green will handle Directum next season.

The latest invention in horseshoes is the rubber shoe.

Indiana has a colt named Hard Times that is only 24 inches high.

The Bonnie Scotland stable cleared over $50,000 for Monroe Salisbury last season.

Alvin did not win a race the past season, although he lowered his record to 2:11.

In Spain once upon a time no man might ride a horse when the king had mounted.

The pacer Benton Boy, 2:26¾, by General Benton, out of Gazelle, 2:21, stands 17 hands high.

May Marshall, 2:08¾, was the fastest pacer of 1893 that started the season without a record.

The old gelding Factory Boy has started in 93 races and got a slice of the money in all but three.

The New York Driving club has secured an extension of its lease of famous Fleetwood park till 1896.

Despite the hard times the attendance at trotting meetings was greater in 1893 than during any previous year.

New tracks are being opened in every state, and the number of trotting meetings will be greater in 1894 than ever.

George W. Hooker was recently elected president of the Vermont Trotting Horse Breeders' association for the ninth time.

The champion yearling trotter was bred in Kansas, the 3-year-old in California, the 3-year-old in New York and the 4-year-old in California.

The Brewster sleigh at the World's fair, an artistic combination of shell, dolphin and graceful carving, was sold to A. H. Moore of Philadelphia for $5,500.

Seven British ships that have lately touched at San Francisco have left port with fully organized Christian Endeavor societies among the sailors, numbering from 5 to 15 members.

Says one ship's mate in a letter, "On leaving home we were the only Christians on board, and now we have 10 who confess having found the Saviour."

The Oakland Floating Society of Christian Endeavor was organized April 5, 1893, and already 96 sailors have signed the Christian Endeavor pledge. These represent 22 British ships.

Endeavorers from 13 churches in Oakland, Cal., have visited 63 ships and held 26 Sunday morning services on shipboard. They have led more than 400 sailors to Endeavor meetings and church services on shore.

FOOTSORE FAGIN'S TOUGH RUN.

The Smell of His Cigarette Resulted In a Fusillade of Scrap Iron.

"I have traveled from Maine to California and from Winnipeg to the City of Mexico. I never paid a railroad fare. I have been broke for eight years, and I never went without eating more than four days at a time."

A knight of the road was heard giving this wonderful record to a group of companions on a street corner.

"Were you ever in a wreck?" asked a reporter.

"Nope," said the man with a record. "I always was lucky that way. Once I was riding a blind baggage when the engine ran onto an open switch. The engine and car I was on was ditched, and I was t'rowed about 30 feet into a cornfield. I was shook up, but not hurt. The toughest run I ever made was out of Denver. The 'con' was onto me and said I could not go with him. I had to leave the town, so I goes and perches on the pilot.

"The fireman spotted me when we got a few miles out and amused himself t'rowing coal at me and turning the hose in my direction. At the first stop I drops down, and when she pulled out I was on the bumpers between the two box cars. When she pulled up next time, the 'con' spotted me and got a 'brakie' to keep t'rowing at me until he got tired.

"I thought I'd try the brake beam the next time, and hid in the ditch until she whistled. As she started I t'rung under the caboose. I got settled on a beam near the tall platform of the caboose. I always takes the last beam, so as if I fall off there is no train to run over me. I toght I was all right for Colorado Springs and felt as good on the beam that I lit a cigarette. The smoke gave me away. First thing I know I got a biff in the back with a coupling pin. It like to knock me off. I looks around, and there was that cussed brakie chunking me with all the scrap iron he could find.

"It was tough, I tell you. I hung on till we came to a grade, and I goes off backwards as soon as she was running slow. I had to walk the rest of the way to Colorado Springs."—Houston Post.

A Legal Tilt.

The following amusable contest occured in Westminister hall between Lord Campbell and an eminent pleader's counsel. The action was one brought to recover for damages done to a carriage which the Q. C. repeatedly called a hrong ham, pronouncing both syllables of the word. brougham, whereupon Lord Campbell pompously observed: "Broom is the more usual pronunciation. A carriage of the kind you mean is generally and not incorrectly called a broom. That pronunciation is open to no grave objection, and it has the great advantage of saving the time consumed by uttering an extra syllable." Half an hour later in the same trial Lord Campbell, alluding to a decision given in a similar action, said, "In that the carriage which had sustained injury was an omnibus"— "Pardon me, my lord," interposed the Q. C., "a carriage of the kind to which you draw attention is usually termed a 'bus.' That pronunciation is open to no great objection, and it has the great advantage of saving the time consumed by uttering two extra syllables." The interruption was followed by a roar of laughter, in which Lord Campbell joined more heartily than any one else.—Argosy.

Boston's Gilded Dome In Danger.

Hartford's gilded dome is believed to be all right, but there are disquieting reports about the other and older domes that crowne the Sam Adams statehouse on Beacon hill, Boston. The statehouse superintendent reports that the life of the supporting timbers is gone, signs of dry rot have appeared, the whole dome structure has settled perceptibly from its original position, and in his opinion something should be done immediately. The suggestion is that unless something is done the gilded dome may tumble in presently on the legislators' heads.—Hartford Courant.

A Singular Creature.

Squiddig—Dawriddle is absolutely the oddest man I know.

McSwilligen—In what way?

"I never knew him to suggest a remedy to any one with a cold."—Exchange.

Wait Till She Grows Up.

Now she pulls her father's whiskers.
She's too young to plead and beg.
But wait until she grows up.
Then she'll pull her papa's leg.
—Philadelphia Call.

AN IRISH BOY'S FORTUNE.

He Comes to America, Makes a Fortune and Buys a Castle In Ireland.

THOMAS NEVINS.

Thirty years ago there landed on our shores a young Irishman named Thomas Nevins. He was accompanied by his youthful wife and had in his pockets a few hundred pounds with which to begin life in the land of the free. He secured employment at Orange, N. J., and so well did he prosper that in a few years he was able to start in business on his own account. He became a contractor and built houses, roads and street railways, and now at the age of 51 he is a millionaire and one of the most solid and respected citizens of that beautiful town. Mr. Nevins' father was a farmer in County Meath, and as a youth he tilled the soil within sight of the towers of the baronial castle of Lord Killeen. However high his ambition soared, it is doubtful if the Irish lad had ever dreamed that in the future he should be the owner of that princely dwelling, but such he was destined to be.

Killeen castle is about 25 miles from the city of Dublin and is not far from the famous hill of Tara. The building covers 200 square feet of ground, and the estate comprises about 1,500 acres. There is not a tenant on the land. The castle was originally erected in the eleventh century and is supposed to be one of the oldest inhabited residences in the queen's domains belonging to a subject. History says that King John, signer of the Magna Charter, on one of his visits to Ireland, lived at Killeen castle, and that portion in which he resided is still known as King John's tower.

Mr. Nevins began negotiations for the purchase of Killeen castle more than a year ago. Learning that the estate was to be sold, he wrote to the Earl of Fingall, and a correspondence was begun which resulted in an offer of $300,000 by Mr. Nevins. This was accepted, and next November he will come into possession. The old castle has two drawing rooms, each 30 by 40, two dining rooms, one 40 by 24, and 20 bedrooms, with dressing rooms attached.

AN OLD TIME CARTOONIST.

Thomas Nast Removes to London, Where He Hopes to Be Better Appreciated.

During the period ex-ending from 1862 to 1871 the most talked of artist and the most powerful cartoonist in America was Thomas Nast. Since the latter year, when he reached the climax of his popularity as a caricaturist, he has done nothing to add to his fame and has been superseded by other and perhaps abler men in his line. His last famous work was his attack on the Tweed ring in New York city, which contributed in a great measure to the final overthow of that famous cabal. Finding himself superseded by the younger and more popular generation of cartoonists, Mr. Nast has finally abandoned the land of his adoption and removed to London, where he is now engaged in making cartoons for the Pall Mall Gazette. Thomas Nast was born in Landau, Bavaria, in 1840, and a few years later was brought to this country by his father. When a boy of 14, he spent six months in the drawing classes of Theodore Kaufmann, and then, with no other preparatory instruction, was engaged as a draftsman on an illustrated paper. In 1860 he went to England as a special artist for a New York weekly paper and later followed Garibaldi in Italy, making sketches for New York, London and Paris illustrated papers. Having returned to this country in 1862, he began his war sketches, which first brought him to public notice and put him on the road to fortune. During the closing years of the war he was more detested in the south than the most rabid abolitionist in New England. When he fought Tweed with his pencil, it was reported that his life was threatened and that bribes were offered him. Nast's pictures are said to have worried Tweed more than all that was written by his opponents.

THOMAS NAST.

Mr. Nast did not confine himself exclusively to newspaper work. He illustrated several books, notably those of Petroleum V. Nasby, and for several years after 1872 he published "Nast's Illustrated Almanac." He also appeared on the lecture platform, drawing caricatures on the stage by way of illustrations. He made a great deal of money while his popularity lasted, although he is said to have lost most of it.

Straightening the Eyes of the Japs.

The Japanese have become so progressive in their ideas and so set in their determination to get a position in the van of Caucasian civilization that they are even resorting to artifices to rid themselves of the most distinctive physiognomical feature of their Mongolian origin—the slant eye. A surgeon is doing a rushing business in Tokyo at straightening the eyes of the Japs.

Senator Cockrell's Memory.

Senator Cockrell of Missouri especially prides himself upon never forgetting a name or face, and so marked is this trait that his friends say he can visit the house of any of his constituents after an unlimited absence and speak to each member of the family by name. But no man is infallible, and this Senator Cockrell discovered on accosting one of his constituents while at home recently, whose name he tried by every means possible to remember, but unsuccessfully. Finally he hit upon what he considered a solution of the difficulty, and under the guise of taking the constituent's name down for the purpose of sending him some documents he asked him to spell it. He was almost staggered when he received the reply, "T-o-o-e-s." "Oh," said the senator, "I mean your first name."

Then again came another stagger when the constituent replied, "W-i-l-l-i-a-m."

The senator is not just at the present time bragging about his wonderful memory.—Washington News.

What She Wanted.

Mme. Parvenoo—I want a first class ticket to Rome.

Agent (representing the Tourists' International company)—Yes, ma'am.

Mme. Parvenoo—And I want it to include an excursion to Italy, do you understand?—Chicago Record.

FOR EASE AND COMFORT

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as the Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of

Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE,

And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office.

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skillfully performed.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits, 229,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

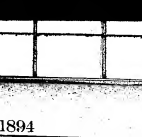
C. HENDRICKSON ..... President
L. ELLINGTON ..... Vice President
J. W. WHEELER ..... Cashier
A. P. HANSON ..... Assistant Cashier

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTY'S-AT-LAW.

McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"



To Young Mothers

Makes Child Birth Easy. Shortens Labor, Lessens Pain,

Endorsed by the Leading Physicians.

Book to "Mothers" mailed FREE.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO

ATLANTA, GA.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - - - 15,000

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. C. ERSKINE, President
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, N. T. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. C. Erskine, J. C. Jackson, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, - - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

DENTIST.

Nitrous Oxide Gas (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

If you desire your Beard Hunted and easiest bring it, send it to me with 50 cents and your name and address and I will hunt and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

RAZORS HONED.

OLD PAPERS

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Rexilit Bloc... - Crookston Minn

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Main Addition.

$1.50

PER DOZEN

FOR THE BEST CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street Crookston

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS and TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Rexilit Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S

RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN McKinnon Block. Crookston

McKINNON BROS.,

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Dealers in all the leading—

McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street - - CROOKSTON, MINN

The Hoover Potato Digger.
- - DIGS SIX ACRES PER DAY. - -
A Practical, Cheap Machine

See J. M. STEPHENS, Crookston, Minn.
For Full Particulars.

CLEVELAND TALKS

The Present Financial Condition of the Government Discussed.

OUR CREDIT WILL BE PROTECTED

The Actual Situation, He Says, Does Not Justify Apprehension.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The president, in speaking of the financial situation, said to an Associated Press representative:

"The offer of certain of the New York banks to replace from their vaults the gold withdrawn from the government's treasury for shipment abroad is certainly thoughtful and patriotic. It not only tends to maintain the treasury's gold reserve in good condition, but it adds to the stock of popular confidence, which is at all times important. The elements which make up our actual situation do not justify any apprehension, and the administration still adheres to its pledge and determination to Protect Our National Credit

at all hazards, and to keep the quality of our money equal to the best, so far as the limits of executive power permits.

"Of course crocking and the spread of disquieting tales is calculated to injure the stringent financial condition. I assume, however, that there is too much patriotism among our people and too much familiarity with our resources and capabilities to permit our reserved forces and financial vigor to be discredited. When the last government bonds were issued to replenish our stock of gold it was nearly as low as now, while outside of our gold we had as available money to pay ordinary expenses of the government only about $18,000,000. We have now besides our gold, and in money applicable to government expenses,

More Than $53,000,000.

I understand. It is charged in certain quarters that the payment of matured obligations is postponed to the amount of $80,000,000 or $75,000,000. This is not true. We are paying as we go in the usual way. Last year, up to June, the balance against us arising from the exports and imports of merchandise, excluding gold and silver, was $64,852,-040. The balance in our favor for the same period this year [was $92,9900,652, representing a change in our favor of $127,512,608. These conditions, taken in consideration with the willingness of our banks to help the treasury during any temporary and unusual drain of gold, ought to satisfy the most conservative of our safety.

"It must not be forgotten as another favorable feature in the situation that we are no longer purchasing silver or issuing gold obligations therefor."

CONGRESS ADJOURNED.

Both Houses Pay Respect to the Memory of President Carnot.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The death of President Carnot was the sole theme about the senate, and was recalled in a prayer marked by deep feeling, delivered by the Rev. Dr. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the senate. Immediately after the opening prayer, Senator Morgan, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the senate of the United States unites with the American people in expressing to the people of France their sorrow and sympathy in the national bereavement they are suffering from the cruel blow of an assassin, which was aimed at the peace of France and struck down the person of President Carnot. And as a mark of respect due to the memory of the wise, virtuous and patriotic president of the republic of France, the senate will, at the close of this proceeding, stand adjourned until tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

Second, that the president of the United States is requested to communicate this expression of national sorrow to the government of France, and to Mme. Carnot.

Senator Morgan made a brief speech, in which he referred to the patriotism of the people of the French republic, and the cordiality of the relations between the two republics.

At 10:05, the senate adjourned.

The house took similar action and adjourned for the day.

DECISION OF IMPORTANCE.

A Ruling of Hoke Smith Will Help Heated Dakota Settlers.

WASHINGTON, June 26. Hoke Smith renders a decision that overturns all previous rulings of the land department. He holds that the decision of an official in the land office becomes effective from the moment it is signed and not when promulgated. This decision is of great importance to settlers on seventy thousand acres of land in the Marshal land district, for it gives to them the Hastings & Dakota railroad lands upon which settlers had filed pre-emptions immediately following Secretary Noble's decision in 1891, when he rejected the selections of the Hastings & Dakota, but his decision was suspended for seven days, during which time the railroad company made a second selection on the lands involved.

Condemned by Populists.

DENVER, June 26. — An immense mass meeting was held in Lincoln to take action on the Terwey affair. Fully 10,000 people were present, all of them being either employed or unemployed Populists. Speeches condemning the episode were made by a number of Populist leaders, among them being Governor Waite and ex-Congressman Belford. Resolutions condemning the act and its perpetrators were adopted.

CHOPIN'S TWELFTH NOCTURNE.

Beyond the realm of being and of pain,
Upward and onward flits my charmed soul,
Captive to the ineffable control
Of master's wonder worker. Every strain
Of this heaven anointed harmony is rain
To the parched glebe of memory, a scroll
Wherein are graven cabalas that roll
Floods of bewildering transport on the brain.
In joy's whirlpool I revel as I soar.
And from the other heights where'er I climb
List the sound waves sweep back from Lethe's shore
In lessening cadence touched by the wand of Time.
Deeply in the Circean founts I dip
And with the wild winds mix in fellowship.

A season, and throughout my spirit runs
A pang of awesome desolateness, lone.
The somberness of some dead firmament
Of sheeted worlds and buried suns.
And then the recess of long vanished ones—
Soul fellows are youth's heritage was spent—
Glides palpably near. I am content.
My grasp infinitude no longer shuns!
A moment, and a mighty sorrow, born
Of exaltation's excess, casts a pall;
Tears start as drops of Nature's grief at morn
Adown chameleon shafts of sunlight fall;
My being quivers 'neath the sweet duress
Of pain more joyous than earth's joyousness!
—John Talman in Macfarlane's Magazine.

An Interesting Creature.

The slug and its habits and peculiarities are well worth a little attention from those who are fond of the unusual and curious things of earth. A family, upon moving into a house, remarked that the cellar was lined all over with thin, shining tracks where some slimy creature had crawled. For a long time the makers of the tracks could not be found, but were at last discovered underneath a box in one corner where the mice had carried some leaves and pieces of vegetables. They were put into a glass fruit jar and fed with leaves and scraps of vegetables. They seemed to eat but little, ant were continually crawling about the jar. At the slightest sound they contracted into a length of not more than 2¾ inches, remaining perfectly quiet for a few minutes, when they cautiously put out their feelers and began to move. The head seemed to go on, and the tail was still quite long, body measured almost 6 inches, when gradually the entire length moved slowly along. As it crawled up the side of the jar the under side of the body could be clearly seen through the transparent material. Its propulsive power seemed to be a sort of endless chain arrangement of close lengthwise from head to tail. This slug is as thick as one's little finger. The longest specimen measured 8 inches and 6 inches in length.—New York Ledger.

Straightening Slant Eyes.

The wheel of progress whizzes on! The Japanese have got the wrinkles into their head that their slanting eyes must straighten out like a white man's. The consequence is that a surgeon who was doing very little in this country is fast getting rich in the novel business. He has been there only two years, but he has indoctored several classmates to join him, and they are very fast compiling a respectable bank account. The operation for straightening the slant in the Jap's eye is described as comparatively painless. It is confined exclusively to the exterior corner of the eyelids.

The surgeon's sharp little blade is inserted under that part of the lid near the slant, an almost infinitesimal slit is made, a fine silk thread stitches the parts together, and, presto, change! the Jap arises from his chair a happy man, with eyes as straight as those of any white man.—Boston Advertiser.

The Soldier Was a Diplomatist.

A good story of the Duke of Wellington is told. After one of the battles in Spain he invited a young officer who had exhibited conspicuous bravery, to dine with him in his tent. Riding by some short while afterward, the duke overheard the young man exultantly proclaim, "I am going to dine with Wellington and sleep with him."

"You might vonchsafe me the prefix of 'Mr.' at least, Captain ——," remarked the duke dryly.

"Not at all, my lord," retorted the unabashed youth. "I should not speak of Mr. Cæsar or Mr. Alexander, so why should I talk of Mr. Wellington?" —Sheffield Telegraph.

Sells on Sight.

Peddler—Have you any daughters, mum?

Housekeeper—Sir!

"Pisen, mum. I don't ask out of vulgar curiosity, mum. I'm selling resonators."

"What are they?"

"You hang one up in the hall, mum, and it's so magnificent every sound that a goodnight kiss sounds like a cannon shot."

"Give me three."—New York Weekly.

A Dump Detector.

In England they have what is called a "dump detector," a silver trinket, not unlike a compass in appearance. At the back are small holes in the silver, through which the dump detector moves the needle until it points to the word "dump." By the aid of this contrivance unsaved sheets can be detected. —Hardware.

In a case in which a man was accused of forgery a witness for the defense managed to say, "I know that the prisoner cannot write his own name." "All that is excluded," said the judge. "The prisoner is not charged with writing his own name, but that of some one else."

The Zanzibar coast is the property of the Imperial British East Africa company, which administers its affairs and keeps up the civil government and a standing army composed of Sudanese. Its total area is estimated at 1,000,000 square miles.

Rudyard Kipling's mother said of her son that he was a clever man, but that he should never be allowed to talk. He used to read the dictionary and committed where required.

The bite of a venomous snake may be cured by inoculating the person bitten with the blood of the reptile which inflicted the wound.

CARNOT ASSASSINATED!

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF FRANCE FOULLY MURDERED.

While On His Way to the Grand Theatre at Lyons to Attend a Gala Performance in His Honor He Is Stabbed by an Italian—Infuriated Populace Nearly Tear the Assassin to Pieces Before He Is Rescued by the Police—He Refuses to Give the Motive for the Terrible Crime.

LYONS, June 25.—The deepest sorrow, distress and anger prevails throughout France. The cowardly assassination of President Sadi-Carnot at Lyons is most heartily deplored by all. Great anxiety is felt in regard to the future, and this will not be allayed until a successor to the late president shall be inducted into office. Added to all this is the anger of France at the assassin, Cesaro Giovanni Santo, the young Italian, whose deadly knife has plunged a nation into grief.

MARIE FRANCOIS SADI-CARNOT.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Detailed Account of the Murder of the French President.

The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival here he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition. After spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the Palais du Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor. At 9:25 o'clock p. m. President Carnot entered for the theatre, where a gala performance was to be given because of His Presence in the City.

Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the president.

When half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the step of the president's carriage. Just at this moment Carnot was waving his right hand and saluting with his hat in his left hand in response to the ovation that was being given him by the crowd. The people close to the carriage saw the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. Then a glare of the electric lights they saw the

Bright Blade Gleam In the Air

as the assassin's arm descended, and they heard President Carnot was struck back in his seat, his face deathly pale.

M. Rivaud, prefect of Lyons, who was seated beside M. Carnot, immediately struck the assassin a blow full in the face and knocked him from the step, thus preventing the man from again stabbing the president, which it was his evident intention to do.

The crowd in the immediate vicinity of the president's carriage swelled to enormous proportions, every member of it seemingly intent upon killing the assassin. He was

Grasped by a Dozen Hands and his life would have then and there paid the forfeit of his crime had it not been for several sergeants de ville, who seized him and attempted to draw him away from his captors. This was found to be impossible, as the infuriated populace were determined to lynch the man and the efforts of the sergeants availed nothing beyond saving the man from instant death. Blows were aimed at his face and head over the shoulders of the police, who had by this time received reinforcements, and many of the blows landed fairly. At last the police succeeded in driving the howling mob back a foot or so from their prisoner, who was then the centre through the crowd was a physical impossibility. In the meantime the news of the attempted murder had spread with lightning like rapidity and wounded guards were Sent to the Aid of the Police, who were still struggling to preserve the life of the assassin. With drawn sabres in their hands the guards rode down into the crowd, heedless of how their horses trampled upon. The crowd gave way before the horses and at last the center of the mob was reached. Then a cordon was formed around the 10 almost exhausted policemen and their captive and the march to the police station began. Even then surrounded the prisoner was not safe, for man in the crowd made frantic endeavors to reach him. The guards repelled these attacks with the flat sides of their swords, while at the same time keeping watchful eyes upon the crowd to prevent the prisoner from being shot.

Maledictions were hurled upon the captive and never before has such a wild indignation against a human being been seen in this city.

THE WOUND FATAL.

Physicians Hastily Summoned to Attend the President.

In the meantime physicians were hastily summoned to attend the president, who had almost immediately been conveyed to the prefecture. A careful examination was made of the wound and the doctors declared that the condition of M. Carnot was hopeless.

The receipt of the news of the assassination caused a great sensation at the Grand Theatre, which was filled to the brim by the elite of Lyons. When the first report had been fully confirmed the audience left the building, many of them proceeding at once to the prefecture, where they stood in the streets waiting for any report that might be vouchsafed to them from the building and discussing the crime that they considered had cast disgrace upon the fair fame of their city.

An Internal Hemorrhage.

After President Carnot was taken to the prefecture all the physicians in attendance upon him agreed that an operation was necessary, whereupon Dr. Ollier immediately probed the wound. While this was being done, M. Carnot came to his senses and said feebly, but distinctly, "How you are hurting me."

The doctors, however, continued to attend the wound, the outward bleeding of which had stopped. They knew, though, that the president's condition was extremely grave, as they more than suspected that internal hemorrhage had occurred.

Shortly after midnight the archbishop of Lyons was summoned to the bedside of the dying president to administer to him the last rites of the church. He was in the room but a short time when he emerged and retired to an adjoining room. Here he remained till 12:30 o'clock, when he was again summoned to the president's room, where he administered to him the sacrament.

M. Carnot remained conscious to the last.

ANARCHIST CONSPIRACY.

Little Doubt Carnot's Murder Was to Avenge Vaillant and Henri.

PARIS, June 26.—The inquiries of the police have resulted in showing that Santo was born at Motta Visconti, northwest of Pavia, in December, 1873. The prisoner is a baker by trade, and was tried in Milan in 1891, for breach of the peace, but he was acquitted, owing to lack of sufficient evidence against him.

Santo was known as a dangerous anarchist and delivered anarchist lectures of the wildest character before going to Switzerland last year.

The police are keeping a strict watch over anarchists in all the cities of France, and are expected to arrest several important arrests will be made during the day.

There no longer seems to be much doubt that the president's assassination was the result of an anarchistic conspiracy to avenge the deaths of Vaillant and Emil Henri, the two recently executed anarchists.

THEY ARE POPULISTS.

Peoples Party Platform Endorsed By the American Railway Union.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The Peoples party platform in toto was indorsed by the American Railway Union convention and by a unanimous rising vote the delegates pledged themselves to their constituents to support the Peoples party in its platform. This action was after a stirring address by Eugene Debs, and a set of resolutions was at once adopted with great enthusiasm. The delegates also declared by a unanimous vote in favor of the government ownership of railroads.

President Howard of the Longshoremen's union, addressed the convention, and pledged the assistance of longshoremen in any trouble that may arise in this city.

It is stated that so many delegates have already instructions from their constituents regarding the proposed boycott of Pullman cars, that the boycott is assured.

SENSATIONAL MURDER.

Ebie Allen, of St. Paul, Kills John H. Clapp, a Woman In It.

ST. PAUL, June 23.—About 10:30 p. m. Eale Allen, son of Col. Allen, known all over the country as the owner of the Merchants hotel, stabbed John H. Clepp, a cigar salesman. The affray took place on West Fourth street. There was a woman at the bottom of the affair, but reports are conflicting. The case at once is difficult to ascertain. Clapp was cut in the neck and bled to death very soon afterwards. Allen's story is, that the woman was insulted by Clapp and claimed his protection. He remonstrated and Clapp became abusive, drawing a revolver when Allen struck him with an ordinary pocket knife, severing the carotid artery.

FORTY-FIVE MISSING.

Number of Victims by the Nichol Disaster Increasing.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Forty-five persons remain unaccounted for among the excursionists on the tug Nichol which sank Sunday off the Jersey coast. The World, after careful inquiry, places the number of drowned at 45.

THE WELSH DISASTER.

Two Hundred and Thirty Bodies So Far Recovered.

CARDIFF, June 27.—Two hundred and thirty bodies have been recovered from the Albion colliery at Cilfyrdd, the scene of the explosion of firedamp Saturday.

Ex-Senator Perkins Dead.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Ex-Senator Bisbop W. Perkins of Kansas died here suddenly at 4 p.m. He would have been a prominent candidate for the next senatorial nomination for Kansas.

A COMEDY OF ERRORS.

Stupidity Mixed With Carelessness That Brought Mortification to a Lovely Woman.

"Talk of a 'Comedy of Errors!'" said a woman of society the other day. "I had an experience lately that might have been called by that name, although it was anything but a comedy to poor me. You know that I am rather an old fashioned body—proper and pride myself on my calm, which I make myself from time to time, and of which, when it turns out particularly well, I like to send a specimen to some friend. So the other day, when I had very good luck with a new recipe, I arranged my best looking cake, all daintily frosted, in a cardboard box, and telling my maid to bid the coachman take it to Mrs. S. with my card, I went out to do some shopping.

"Did you send the cake?' I asked on my return. 'Oh, ma'am,' exclaimed the Abigail, 'James made such a mistake! I told him to take the box in the hall, and when I came down stairs I found he had taken the big case that you brought home yesterday.'

"Well, of course it was a piece of stupidity, but I did not really mind, for the case contained a fine copy of an antique flying 'Victory,' and as Mrs. S. is a woman of rare appreciation I felt really pleased that she should have it, and that I, for my part, should have the credit of remembering her tastes and making what I knew would be an acceptable present. But I was not so well pleased when Mary, the overseer, continued, 'So, as soon as I found out, ma'am, what he had done, I told him to go straight back and say that it was a mistake and that you would like the case back, ma'am!'

"You may imagine how I felt! It was then too late to do anything, but all night the affair weighed on my mind like an incubus, and the very next morning I wrote Mrs. S. a long explanatory note, apologizing for the double mistake of man and maid and trying to explain how the confusion had arisen. It sounded awfully enough, but it was the best I could do, so I sent it off with the cake, which in the meanwhile had been left waiting in the hall. When the man came back, I asked him what he had done with the case, and what he said stupidly. 'Why, the case Mary told you to fetch back from Mrs. S.'s.' Hours, as I never got a line from her, was his most unexpected answer, which put the finishing touch to the altogether trying situation, for if I had never written my note of explanation it would have been all right. When, that afternoon, the expressman brought back the unfortunate 'Victory,' together with a note but puzzled note from Mrs. S. returning the unlucky present (which I afterward learned through a mutual friend I had been received with much pleasure and given a conspicuous place in the library), my mortification was complete. Of course there was nothing else to be done about it, but I could not bear the sight of the unlucky statuette and sent it to a distant relation by express. No. He is in the field not to be a hospital nurse, but to help up his advantage by hammering on the enemy who has departed, leaving his own wounded behind and who may be back again in the morrow to strike him while clogged in the live and dead debris of yesterday's fight. The victor will find himself in overtake or hang on the skirts of the vanquished army, leaving the wounded to both sides to deal with as may be possible by such surgeons as he can afford, in view of future contingencies, to leave behind, and to the ministrations of cosmopolitan amateur philanthropists of the Red Cross and kindred organizations, for there will be no more military bearer companies. In the hunger for fighting more than 1,000 bearers per army corps of the present will have been incorporated into n strong brigade, with arms in their hands and a place in the fighting line.—Archibald Forbes in Scribner's.

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee, by authorized agents only, to cure Weak Memory, Loss of Brain and Nerve Power, Lost Manhood, Insomnia, Nervousness, Lost Dreams, Lack of Confidence, Nervous Headache, Nervous Prostration, Lost Power of the Generative Organs in either sex, Impotency caused by over-exertion, Youthful Errors, or Excessive Use of Stimulants or Opium, which leads to Consumption, Insanity and Death. By mail, in plain wrapper, $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, with written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Write for circulars free. Sold by druggists. DR. E. C. WEST'S NERVE AND BRAIN PILLS, Cure Headache, Nervousness, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain, resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death, Premature Old Age, Impotency, Loss of Power, Lost Manhood, Nocturnal Emissions, Leucorrhœa, Failing Memory, Spermatorrhœa caused by self-abuse or over-indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail prepaid on receipt of price. We guarantee six boxes to cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied with $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to return the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Republican County Convention at Crookston, June 29th.

Populist Legislative Convention for 31st district, at Crookston July 6th.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 4th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

JUDGE IVES is talked of for candidate for judge of the Supreme Court on the populist ticket.

THE junior senator from Minnesota, Senator Washburn, seems to be in favor of free coin. Wonder how his Duluth constituents will like that?

THE fusion idea between the pops and the democrats seems to have been laid upon the shelf so far as the Minnesota state ticket is concerned. This knocks out some big calculations that have been hatching heretofore.

THE Wabasha Republican county convention last week endorsed Senator Burkhardt for state treasurer. This example might be followed by our county convention on the 29th, as there has not been a better man yet mentioned for the position than Senator Burkhardt.

THE meeting of the National Republican League at Denver this week is one of great interest, attended by loyal republicans from every state in the Union. Minnesota is well represented, almost every one of her entire delegation being in attendance.

THERE was one county office seeking a man of populistic proclivities and looking for him so earnestly, that it had its eye on a democratic attorney—and strange to say that gentleman seemed to have his lightning rod up, anticipating a stroke.

THE president of the French republic, M. Sadi Carnot, was struck down on June 24th, by the hand of an Italian anarchist known as Cesare Giovanni Santo. The wildest excitement prevails, and the fate of the assassin would have been a speedy death if the angry populace could have laid hands upon him.

MORE wire pulling observable upon the streets this week than was ever before known in the history of Polk county politics, and the candidates for offices are as thick as mosquasses in winter and twice as sweet (on the populist delegates) and sticky. These candidates all firmly believe in the populistic theory of the "office seeking" the man, but nevertheless are doing a wonderful lot of hustling for fear the particular office they seek might not see the particular man they want.

WILL the populist convention, which is in session to-day endorse the scheme to make a demo-pop ticket? Certainly some of their leaders are doing all in their power to bring about such a result, but the rank and file—what of them? Will they be led by the nose into a trap that will swamp us quicker than any thing else, simply because their leaders can carry out their private schemes better with fusion than without it? We shall see to-day how much of that independence that they profess they really do have.

From the present appearance of things it would seem that some of the pine on the Red Lake Reservation will be thrown upon the market before the coming winter. This will make a wonderful dent or difference in the business conditions of this country, by furnishing cheap lumber for farm buildings, by bringing in capital for investment in manufacturing industries, by furnishing employment, and by stimulating the building of railroads. It will without a doubt hasten the building of the Duluth & Winnipeg road which will tap this valley, thus affording direct communication with Duluth.

THE Times has been making its boast that there would be no fusion of pops and dems at the coming election. The Times doesn't seem to be on to its job, or else it cannot see what is going on right under its nose. Some prominent democrats have been heard to say that, unless a certain democrat was nominated on the pop ticket the democrats would not support that ticket. Of course the inevitable conclusion is that if their man is nominated they will support the pop ticket. It is certain that heroic efforts are being made to bring about a fusion.

ARE THEY SCARED?

We heard a great many heroic remarks from pops during the city campaign of "standing by party principle" and all that sort of thing and now wesee prominent pops deep in the scheme of trying to make a demo-pop fusion ticket at the pop convention to-day. What can the matter be? Are the pops getting afraid they cannot elect their ticket? It would certainly look like it.

THE Times, that never neglects an opportunity to belittle Gov. Nelson, now tries to pose the governor in the role of a dictator, a sort of a czar, who is endeavoring to dictate who shall be the republican state ticket from governor down. The Times is so used to the Kelley-Donm style of politics that it cannot conceive of any other way and now accuses our governor of trying to ape the democratic style. The Times, as usual, is thinking through its hat as there is absolutely nothing in what it asserts and only shows what a wonderfully wise (?) political prophet the Times is.

For Privileges for sale

I am prepared to receive "sealed bids" for the following privileges to be held on the Fair grounds, July 17-18-19th viz: 1st, liquor privilege, including soft drinks and beverages, 2nd, fruit and confectionery privilege, including distribution by basket or otherwise of soft drinks, peanuts etc. on any part of the grounds. 3rd, restaurant privilege, including distribution of sandwiches or other collations, on any part of the grounds. Bids for above privileges will be received up to 7 p. m. June 29th. At 10 a. m. June 30th these bids will be opened at my office and contracts awarded accordingly.

Persons making bids will please mark on face of envelope "Tender". No bids from persons out of the city or from persons not engaged in business will be received. Address,

[21] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, 75.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Purulyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by P. L. Durand, Druggist.

"It has cured others and will cure you" is true only of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The merit suits the medicine and the medicine the merit. What better assurance could you have that a remedy will cure you, than the fact that it has cure such multitudes of others.

As a blood purifier, the most eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful combination of vegetable alteratives ever offered to the public. As a spring and family medicine, it may be freely used by old and young alike.

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Hollers Pain Paralyzer is the best of and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 25c. it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic it possesses quick as Hollers Pain Paralyzer. For sale by P. L. Durand.

Appropriate.

A countryman and his bride applied at the box office for tickets.

"Orchestra chairs, parquet or family circle?" asked the ticket agent.

"Which'll it be, Marier?" said the groom.

"Well," she replied, with a blush, "bein as how we're married now p'raps it would be proper to sit in the family circle."—Texas Siftings.

THE BRITISH ARE ANXIOUS.

Their Exports of Goods to America Have Very Largely Decreased.

The New York importers of foreign goods were not satisfied with their first meeting at Cooper Union, when the name of ex-President Harrison was applauded and when they agreed to swallow the "carcass out of which the festering flies of lies and perjury constantly rise," they wanted another meal of it, so held a second meeting, but did not publish this time the names of any importers, lawyers, presidents, chairmen, free trade editors and eating house proprietors who signed a call, but held it under the auspices of the Manhattan Single Tax club.

The urgency for the passage of the Wilson tariff bill, so called, is becoming very pronounced. Trade and business are in a critical condition in England, where the volume of exports is decreasing, and particularly so far as the United States is concerned, the decrease in shipments to this country up to March 31 last exceeding the entire falling off shown in the total trade with all other foreign countries for the quarter. In anticipation of our lower tariff on cotton manufactures England continues to buy largely from us of cheap raw cotton, expecting to ship it back here in the shape of cotton goods later in the year. But in the matter of exports of British goods to the United States the London Economist gives the following exhibit:

BRITISH EXPORTS TO THE UNITED STATES.

	—First quarter.— 1894.	1895.
Beer and ale	£53,673	£67,247
Cotton piece goods	570,852	631,992
Jute piece goods	191,635	309,404
Linen piece goods	384,062	396,400
Woolen theses	92,100	164,882
Worsted theses	286,201	351,981
Tin plates and sheets	360,339	683,463
Steel, unwrought	44,881	106,337
Alkali	320,210	396,237
Earthen and china ware	117,721	264,466
Skins and furs	131,710	203,464
Machinery	91,862	185,875
Totals	£2,426,060	£3,782,707

Here we find that the British manufacturers have sold to American consumers $12,000,000 worth less of the goods enumerated during the first three months of this year than they sold us during the corresponding quarter of 1893, and this does not comprise their total sales, the aggregate of their exports showing a shrinkage of $19,855,000 for the three months this year, or at the rate of $6,000,000 a month.

When the British shopkeeper is dropping fewer shillings into his till, he is apt to go wild, and it is not surprising that a loss of $6,500,000 a month, during three consecutive months, of golden dollars that ought to be squeezed out of the American eagle should result in the issuance of instructions to the British merchants in New York to demand the immediate passage of the Wilson bill.—Charles R. Buckland.

1892.

1894.

The Cleveland Mess of Pottage.

Mr. Frederic R. Coudert of New York has aptly described the meal that the free traders in the senate are preparing for themselves under the direction of Chief Cook Cleveland. It is as follows:

"The income tax is a carcass out of which the festering flies of lies and perjury constantly rise, and the result has been, and the result must be, and the result shall be a premium upon perjury and a penalty for honesty and truth. But such is the importance of passing a tariff bill that I swallow it, income tax and all."

"Is Minuesotan Tightness.
Pin the dandy chief of the free trade clique.
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn,
And fight for a varlet "to Britannique."
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.
I'm president-o this great land
And all the people in command
To bow and join my Bourbon band.
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.

That Wilson bill it makes me ill,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.
Oh, Carlisle, go and tap the till,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.
No use, me lieges, the cash's run out,
The Wilson bill has closed the spout,
And darned if I know what I'm about,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.

Say, Carlisle, we will have to squeal,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.
And peel free trade from the Wilson steal,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.
For those cussed kickers, Hill & Co.,
Don't give us any out of a show
To make our free trade scheme a go,
Willy Willy Wick cum lumn.

—George A. Glahn.

Fourth of July Celebration

AT CROOKSTON.

PROGRAM.

Procession forms in front of City Hall at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bicycle Club.
City Police.
Band.
City Council.
G. A. R. Post.
Sons of Veterans.
Float.
Firemen.
St. Jean de Baptiste Society.
Harmonna Singing Society.
President and Orators of the Day.
Calithumpians.

Sports and Games for the Afternoon.

Prof. Montreuil will give one of his daring exhibitions on a tight rope stretched across Main street, from the C. O. D. clothing store to Fontaine & Anglim's store.

Greased Pole at cor. Broadway and Robert Sts. The successful climber will get $5 at top. Competition open to all on 15 minutes trial.

Greased Pig Race, open to all. Greatest feat on earth. Winner gets the pig. Rules governing this race are to run at least one block, catch hold and raise pig from ground, bare-handed.

Tug of War—eight to a side. $4 to winning side; best 2 out of 3 pulls.

Fat Man's Race—100 yards; $1 to first, 50c to second.

Putting the shot—three throws; winner $1, second 50c.

Free-for-all Boys' Race under 15 yrs. of age; 1st $1, 2d 50c, 3d 25c.

Egg Race, to boys under 7. 50c to 1st, 25c to 2d, 25c to 3d.

Tug of War, Second street—boys under 21; eight to a side; $4 to winner; best 3 out of 5 pulls.

Slow Bicycle Race, two blocks, open to the world. $1.50 to the winner.

Putting the Shot. $1 to 1st, 50c to 2d.

Boys' Race, under 20 yrs. old; 10 rods. $1 to 1st, 50c to 2d.

Tug of War, Broadway; 10 men to side. Best 2 out of 3 pulls.

Free-For-All Race; two blocks. $2 to 1st, $1 to 2d.

Putting the Shot; $1 to 1st, 50c to 2d.

Free For All Boys' Race under 15 years old. 75c to 1st, 50c to 2d, 25c to 3d.

Pie Contest; 10 to enter. For boys. $1 to winner.

Free For All Boys' Race under 7 years old. 50c to 1st, 25c to 2d, 25c to 3d.

Tug of War; 16 boys to a side. $4 to winning side; best 3 out of 5 pulls.

Free For All Backward Running Race, ½ blk. $1 to 1st, 50 to 2d.

Pie Contest, 10 boys to enter. $1 to winner.

Evening Performance.

Second performance of Prof. Montreuil on tight rope; same place.
Grand Display of Fireworks over Larsen & Carpenter's building.

The Prevailing Styles for Ladies' Tailor Gowns.

The tailor costume is exceedingly popular this season. These gowns are worn everywhere in town and country and even at the seashore and in the mountains. They are made of a great variety of material: light woolens, serge, duck, gingham and foulards. This prevailing fashion calls for a great variety of models and every style of dress and draperlish coats are brought into requisition. As for the skirts, although their simplicity is always adhered to, in accordance with the present extreme style of dressing, they, nevertheless, exhibit a diversity of styles. This fact is well exemplified in the latest McDOWELL FASHION MAGAZINES which contain, beside several pretty and very practical models, large numbers of which can be secured by means of coupons at exceedingly moderate prices. These coupons form an attractive monthly feature in the McDowell Magazines for they enable one to secure the patterns of the newest and most correct fashions. "La Mode de Paris," and "Paris Album of Fashion," cost only $3.50 each per year, or 25 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $3.00 per annum, or 30 cents per copy. "Ladies'," which is unequalled as a family journal costs merely the trifling sum of $1.50 per year or 15 cents a copy. The three first mentioned publications offer each $1.00 worth of coupon patterns with each year's subscription. If you are unable to procure any of these journals from your newsdealer do not take any substitute from him but apply by mail to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. In Probate Court. Special Term. June 20th, 1894.

In the Matter of the Estate of Fred J. Lanes, Deceased.

Petition for administration on the estate of said deceased having been filed in this court, it is Ordered, That all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court, for examination and allowance, at the Probate office in the City of Crookston, on the following day, viz: Wednesday the 26th of September, 1894.

It is further ordered, That six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to file their claims, and said order, at the expiration of which time no claim will be allowed by said Court, or any person in its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless for some cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, That notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks, prior to the day appointed for said examination, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said County.

Dated at Crookston, the 20th day of June, A. D. 1894.

By the Court.
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[11-13] [7-9]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONDITIONS of a certain mortgage executed by George B. Bates and Mary Bates his wife, mortgagors, to James W. Lawson, mortgagee, dated April eighth, 1893, eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, April seventeenth (17th) A. D. eighteen hundred ninety (1890), at eight o'clock forenoon, p. m. in book (65) sixty-eight of mortgages on page two hundred forty-four (244), and assigned by said mortgagee to the undersigned on the failure to pay the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars secured by said mortgage which by the terms thereof matured on the first day of June, 1894, and the whole of the said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars interest which became due April 8th, 1894, said mortgage was duly assigned by said mortgagee to the undersigned by an instrument in writing duly executed by the said mortgagee and said assignment duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county and State aforesaid on the 18th day of June, 1894, at 8 o'clock forenoon, p. m. in book (65) sixty-five of mortgages on page two hundred forty-four (244), and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and assignment thereof, the same will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot one hundred thirty-seven (137) in Block one hundred thirty-two (132) in the original plat of the town, now city of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county of Polk, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount due by said mortgage and the taxes on said premises, if any, with interest thereon, at the front door of the court house in the said city of Crookston, on the 28th day of July, 1894, at 10 o'clock forenoon, a. m. of that day.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

LEW A. HUNTLEY, Attorney for Mortgagee. } ATTYS. & LAWYERS, Moorhead.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 15, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Swanson against Ludwig Ludwigson for failure to comply with law as to Timber-Culture Entry No. 5,752 dated June 29th, 1893, made for N. W. ¼, section 19, township 153, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Ludwig Ludwigson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said land except about twenty acres, and that there are no trees, or any new growth, and that there are no trees for snow breaks or claims standing or growing thereon. Said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 28th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

WM. ANGLIM,
Receiver.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, as better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Thirst day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found the most absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

Permanently Cured

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. Perry, Sportsman's C. H., Va.

AYER'S PILLS

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

C. A. FISCHER,

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-working Barrels, Bottom Guns of all kinds; also Novelty Repairing. Work done on short notice and at reasonable rates guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Metz' Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

Pictures of Sport With Rod and Gun

Reproduced in 12 colors from originals painted expressly for the purpose. Size 22 inches wide by 28 inches high. Can be framed for $5 and the finest picture ever published at a popular price. Splendid shooting, fishing and yachting subjects. Every picture true to nature, beautiful and rich in effect. For framer 14x20. Price 50 cts. each, postpaid.

AS "FOREST AND STREAM" PREMIUM.

We will send the sportsman's favorite journal, Forest and Stream, one year (price $4) and the 12 pictures (value $6) for $4 value for $1. Or, For est and Stream one year and your choice of the pictures for $1.50. Or, any 2 for $2.50. Or, any 3 for $3.50. Or, any 4 for $4. Or, any 5 for $5. Or, any 6 for $6. Send 10 cents for specimen copy of Forest and Stream, circular and catalogue of the best books on outdoor sports.

Forest and Stream Pub. Co.,
P. O. Box 2832, New York City.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE FEMALE PILLS.

A new, reliable and easy remedy for Female Complaints, Nervous Prostration, Headache, Dizziness, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Backache, Nervous Exhaustion, and kindred troubles. Sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See guarantee printed on bottle wrapper. Price, 50 cents per vial. Manufactured at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Address: PEIFER MEDICINE ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by P. L. Durand' Crookston.

In 1880 in United States had population 3 Cities ulation over a million—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and The North western Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to these cities. [10-tf]

Only 14 in United States in 1870 Cities had population over 100,000, but in 1890, 28, and The North western Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to a large number of them. [10-tf]

A Great is the Stone Arch Viaduct Bridge across the Mississippi at Minneapolis, and The North western Line runs it. First Class Fast Express Trains across this bridge every day to Chicago, Duluth, Omaha and Kansas City. [10-tf]

Savage Used to wage war where Fort Snelling now stands. To-day these great cities are inhabited by people of culture and good taste and they travel via The North western Line. [10-tf]

Peace is enjoyed by Indians, but Pipe the traveler who likes comfort enjoys smoking best in the Buffet Smoking Coach on the Northwestern Limited. [10-tf]

Crows From point to point by the Fly shortest distance as winged they fly from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago they follow The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Soo & Sue Soars right out they don't look right for Sioux City through which The Northwestern Line runs Superb Pullman Sleepers between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha. [10-tf]

Happy days and restful nights result from using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It so regulates all the bodily functions and strengthens the nervous system that worry and fatigue are comparatively unknown and life is truly enjoyed. It is certainly a most wonderful medicine.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 15, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Swanson against Ludwig Ludwigson for failure to comply with law as to Timber-Culture Entry No. 5,753 dated June 29th, 1893, made for N. W. ¼, section 19, township 153, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Ludwig Ludwigson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said land except about twenty acres, and that there are no trees, or any new growth, and that there are no trees for snow breaks or claims standing or growing thereon. Said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 28th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

WM. ANGLIM,
Receiver.

[7-9]

Forty Days and Forty Nights

Of Health has been made in the consumption of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup by George B. Bates and Mary Bates his wife, mortgagors, to James W. Lawson, mortgagee, dated April eighth, eighteen hundred eighty-three (1883), and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, April seventeenth (17th) A. D. eighteen hundred eighty (1890), at eight o'clock forenoon, p. m. in book (65) sixty-eight of mortgages on page two hundred forty-four (244), and assigned by said mortgagee to the undersigned on the failure to pay the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars secured by said mortgage which by the terms thereof matured on the first day of June, 1894, and the whole of the said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars interest which became due April 8th, 1894, said mortgage was duly assigned by said mortgagee to the undersigned by an instrument in writing duly executed by the said mortgagee and said assignment duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county and State aforesaid on the 18th day of June, 1894, at 8 o'clock forenoon, p. m. in book (65) sixty-five of mortgages on page two hundred forty-four (244), and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and assignment thereof, the same will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot one hundred thirty-seven (137) in Block one hundred thirty-two (132) in the original plat of the town, now city of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county of Polk, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount due by said mortgage and the taxes on said premises, if any, with interest thereon, at the front door of the court house in the said city of Crookston, on the 28th day of July, 1894, at 10 o'clock forenoon, a. m. of that day.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

LEW A. HUNTLEY, Attorney for Mortgagee. } ATTYS. & LAWYERS, Moorhead.

A gentleman under forty years of age, whose hair was rapidly becoming thin and gray, began the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in six months his hair was restored to its natural color, and even more than its former growth and richness.

Baldness is either hereditary or caused by sickness, mental exhaustion, scarring diseases of the roots, and over work and trouble. Hall's Renewer will prevent it.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 10 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum is our address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Republican County Convention at Crookston, June 29th.

Populist Legislative Convention for 51st district, at Crookston July 6th.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 5th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

JUDGE IVES is talked of for candidate for judge of the Supreme Court on the populist ticket.

THE junior senator from Minnesota, Senator Washburn, seems to be ill favor of free iron. Wonder how his Duluth constituents will like that?

THE fusion idea between the pops and the democrats seems to have been laid upon the shelf so far as the Minnesota state ticket is concerned. This knocks out some big calculations that have been hatching horsbouts.

THE Wabasha Republican county convention last week endorsed Senator Burkhardt for state treasurer. This example might be followed by our county convention on the 29th, as there has not been a better man put mentioned for the position than Senator Burkhardt.

THE meeting of the National Republican League at Denver this week is one of great interest, attended by loyal republicans from every state in the Union. Minnesota is well represented, almost every one of her entire delegation being in attendance.

THERE was one county office seeking a man of populistic proclivities and looking for him so earnestly, that it had its eye on a democratic attorney—and stringe to say that gentleman seemed to have his lightning rod up, anticipating a stroke.

THE president of the French republic, M. Sadi Carnot, was struck down on June 24th, by the hand of an Italian anarchist known as Cesare Giovanni Santo. The wildest excitement prevails, and the fate of the assassin would have been a speedy death if the angry populace could have laid hands upon him.

MORE wire pulling observable upon the streets this week than was ever before known in the history of Polk county politics, and the candidates for office are as thick as mosquitoes in winter and twice as sweet (on the populist delegates) and sticky. These candidates all firmly believe in the populistic theory of the "office seeking" the man, but nevertheless are doing a wonderful lot of hustling for their particular office they seek might not see the particular man they want.

WILL the populist convention, which is in session to-day endorse the scheme to make a demo-pop ticket? Certainly some of their leaders are doing all in their power to bring about such a result, but the rank and file—what of them? Will they be led by the nose into a trap that will swamp 'em quicker than anything else, simply because their leaders can carry out their private schemes better with fusion than without it? We shall see to-day how much of that independence that they profess they really do have.

FROM the present appearance of things it would seem that some of the pine on the Red Lake Reservation will be thrown upon the market before the coming winter. This will make a wonderful slght of difference in the business conditions of this country, by furnishing cheap lumber for farm buildings, by bringing in capital for investment in manufacturing industries, by furnishing employment, and by stimulating the building of railroads. It will be without a doubt hasten the building of the Duluth & Winnipeg road which will tap this valley, thus affording direct communication with Duluth.

THE Times has been making its boast that there would be no fusion of pops and dems at the coming election. The Times doesn't seem to be on to its job, or else it cannot see what is going on right under its nose. Some prominent democrats have been heard to say that, unless a certain democrat was nominated on the pop ticket the democrats would not support that ticket. Of course the inevitable conclusion is that if their man is nominated they will support the pop ticket. It is a certain that heroic efforts are being made to bring about a fusion.

ARE THEY SCARED?

We heard a great many heroic remarks from pops during the city campaign of "standing by party principles" and all that sort of thing and now assess prominent pops deep in the scheme of trying to make a demo-pop fusion ticket at the pop convention to-day. What can the matter be? Are the pops getting afraid they cannot elect their ticket? It would certainly look like it.

THE Times, that never neglects an opportunity to belittle Gov. Nelson, now tries to make the governor in the role of a dictator, a sort of a czar, who is endeavoring to dictate to the Republican state ticket from governor down. The Times is so used to the Kelley-Doran style of politics that it cannot conceive of any other way and now accuses our governor of trying to ape the democratic style. The Times, as usual, is talking through its hat as here is absolutely nothing in what it asserts and only shows what a wonderfully wise (?) political prophet the Times is.

For Privileges for Sale

THE undersigned to receive "sealed bids" for the following privileges to be held on the Fair grounds, July 17-18-19th viz: 1st, liquor privilege, including soft drinks and beverages. 2nd, fruit and confectionery privilege, including distribution by basket or otherwise of soft drinks, peanuts etc., on any part of the grounds. 3rd, restaurant privilege, including distribution of sandwiches or other collations, on any part of the grounds. Bids for above privileges will be received up to 7 p. m. June 29th. At 10 a. m. June 30th these bids will be opened at my office and contracts awarded accordingly.

Persons making bids will please mark on face of envelope "Tender". No bids from persons out of the city or from persons not engaged in business will be received. Address,

[2t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, 75.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents—I consider your Polo Purvlanzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.

"It has cured others and will cure you" is true only of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The motto suits the medicine and the medicine the motto. No better assurance could you have that a remedy will cure you, than the fact that it has cures such multitudes of others.

As a blood purifier, the most eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful combination of vegetable alteratives ever offered to the public. As a spring and family medicine, it may be freely used by old and young alike.

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer does not hear the exercrutiating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Hedges Pain Paralyzer is the best and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that it gives no further reacts 30c. it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and easy of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quick as Hedges Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

Appropriate.

A countryman and his bride applied at the box office for tickets.

"Orchestra chairs, sah, or family circle?" asked the ticket agent.

"Which'll it be, Marier?" said the groom.

"Well," she replied, with a blush, "bein as how we're married now I spose it would be proper to sit in the family circle."—Texas Siftings.

THE BRITISH ARE ANXIOUS.

Their Exports of Goods to America Have Very Largely Increased.

The New York importers of foreign goods were not satisfied with their first meeting at Cooper Union, when the name of ex-President Harrison was applauded, and when they agreed to swallow the "carcass out of which the festering flies of lies and perjury constantly rise." They wanted another meal of it, so held a second meeting, but did not publish this time the names of any importers, lawyers, presidents, chairmen, free trade editors and eating house proprietors who signed a call, but held it under the auspices of the Manhattan Single Tax club.

The urgency for the passage of the Wilson tariff bill, so called, is becoming very pronounced. Trade and business are in a critical condition in England, where the volume of exports is decreasing, and particularly so far as the United States is concerned, the decrease in shipments to this country up to March 31 last exceeding the entire falling off shown in the total trade with all other foreign countries for the quarter. In anticipation of our lower tariff on cotton manufactures England continues to buy very largely from us of cheap raw cotton, expecting to ship it back here in the shape of cotton goods later in the year. But in the matter of exports of British goods to the United States the London Economist gives the following exhibit:

SECTIAL EXPORTS TO THE UNITED STATES.

	First quarter.
	1894.	1893.
Beer and ale	£53,264	£67,247
Cotton piece goods	191,838	350,000
Jute piece goods	102,635	305,404
Linen piece goods	380,000	431,250
Woolen tissues	82,300	93,000
Worsted tissues	280,873	709,173
Tin plates and sheets	600,520	985,000
Steel, unwrought	44,393	104,577
Alkali	265,320	284,818
Earthen and china ware	117,751	264,402
Skins and furs	175,720	297,219
Machinery	81,160	165,272
Totals	£2,430,049	£4,796,361

Here we find that the British manufacturers have sold to American consumers $13,000,000 worth less of their goods enumerated during the first three months of this year than they sold us during the corresponding quarter of 1893, and this does not comprise their total sales, the aggregate of their exports showing a shrinkage of £5,500,000 for the three months this year, or at the rate of $5,500,000 a month.

When the British shopkeeper is dropping fewer shillings into his till, he is apt to go wild, and it is not surprising that a loss of $6,500,000 a month, during three consecutive months, of golden dollars that ought to be squeezed out of the American eagle should result in the issuance of instructions to the British merchants in New York to demand the immediate passage of the Wilson bill.—Charles R. Buckland.

1892.

1894.

The Cleveland Menu of Pottage.

Mr. Frederic R. Condert of New York has aptly described the meal that the free traders in the senate are preparing for themselves under the direction of Chief Cook Cleveland. It is as follows:

"The tariff pie is a carcass out of which the festering flies of lies and perjury constantly rise, and the result has been, and the result must be, and the result shall be a premium upon perjury and a penalty for honesty and truth. But such is the importance of passing a tariff bill that I swallow it, bucomb and all."

In Hamerican Yghness.

I'm the dandy chief of the free trade clique,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum,
And fight for a tariff "a la Brlanique,"
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.
I'm president of this great land
And all the people do command
To bow and join my Bourbon band,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.

That Wilson bill it makes me ill,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.
Oh, Carlisle, go and tap the till
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.
No use, me boys, the cash's run out,
The Wilson bill has closed the spout,
And darned if I know what I'm about,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.

Say, Carlisle, we will have to squeal,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.
And peal free trade from the Wilson meal,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.
For those cussed dickers, Hill & Co.,
Don't give us any sort of a show
To make our free trade scheme a go,
Willy Willy Wick cum bum.

—George A. Glaun.

Fourth of July Celebration

AT CROOKSTON.

PROGRAM.

Procession forms in front of City Hall at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bicycle Club.
City Police.
Band.
City Council.
G. A. R. Post.
Sons of Veterans.
Float.
Firemen.
St. Jean de Baptiste Society.
Harmonna Singing Society.
President and Orators of the Day.
Calithumpians.

Sports and Games for the Afternoon.

Prof. Montreuil will give one of his daring exhibitions on a tight rope stretched across Main street, from the C. O. D. clothing store to Fontaine & Anglim's store.

Greased Pole at cor. Broadway and Robert Sts. The successful climber will get $5 at top. Competition open to all on 15 minutes trial.

Greased Pig Race, open to all. Greatest feat on earth. Winner gets the pig. Rules governing this race are to run at least one rod. Pig to be numbered by Secretary and drawn for by lot. Prize, pig. Entrance fee for a few days or weeks, on the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above.

I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

AYER'S PILLS

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

C. A. FISCHER,

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH,

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-barring Barrels. Stocks Guns of all kinds; also Novelty Repairing. Stocks guns on short notice and solicits a share of your patronage. Shop at Eastmoon & Stotz' Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

Pictures of Sport With Rod and Gun

Reproduced in 2 colors from originals painted expressly for the purpose. The finest sporting prints ever published. Size 14x20 inches, ready for framing at Black Island; Quail Shooting; and a Right and Wrong Cast for Trout. Each picture is artistic, beautiful and rich in effect. For frames 10 cents. Price of all, 25 cents.

AS "FOREST AND STREAM" PREMIUM.

We will send the sportsman's favorite journal, Forest and Stream, one year (price $4) and the set of pictures (a $5 value) for $3. Or, For set and Stream one year and choice of two of the pictures for $3.50. Sent to any other. Send 10 cents for specimen copy of Forest and Stream, circular and catalogue of the best books on outdoor sports.

Forest and Stream Pub. Co.,
P. O. Box 2832, New York City.

DR. PIERCE'S
FEMALE PILLS.

A GENTLE LAXATIVE. NEVER FAILS. Regulate and Promote Menstruation. Cure Female Weakness. Sold by druggists. Ladies Reading, Advisor, PETTER MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand' Crookston.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage executed by Lewis Bates and Theodora Bates his wife, mortgagors, to James M. Lewis, mortgagee, dated April 20th, 1893, and recorded in the county (1890), and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, April seventeenth (17th) A. D. 1893, at eleven o'clock a. m., in book 66 of mortgages, on page 1 of said records, and assigned by said mortgagee to Peter Sanborn by deed bearing even date herewith and recorded in the office of the register of deeds on the 26th day of June A. D. 1894, at 10

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, June 19.

The senate passed a bill to ratify an agreement with the Yankton tribe of Sioux in South Dakota. Considerable progress was made on the tariff bill.

The house passed the bill authorizing the sale of Chippewa pine wherever 100,000 acres shall have been surveyed. The house then went into committee of the whole on the anti-option bill.

Wednesday, June 20.

Very rapid progress was made on the tariff bill in the senate. The income tax on page 170, had been reached when the senate adjourned. Only 61 pages of the bill, the income tax and internal revenue features remain undisposed of.

The house reached an agreement to vote on the anti-option bill Friday, after the morning hour.

Thursday, Jun e 21.

In the senate Mr. Hill made a vigorous speech against the income tax, characterizing it as a Populistic scheme, which would surely work the defeat of the Democratic party. The sale of the termination of the tax was fixed at Jan. 1, 1900.

In the house the great portion of the day was spent on the income tax bill.

Friday, June 22.

The senate passed several bills in the morning hour, including one to make Labor Day a legal holiday, and one incorporating the supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias. The income tax section of the tariff bill was considered for the remainder of the day.

The house passed the anti-option bill.

Saturday, June 23

The debate on the income tax consumed the entire day in the senate. Several amendments to Senator Hill to reduce the limit at which tax should apply were voted down.

The house took up the general deficiency bill.

Monday, June 25.

Both houses adjourned on account of the assassination of President Carnot.

LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

Programme of the National Convention at Denver Outlined.

DENVER, June 28.—The state executive committee has decided upon the following programme for the national convention, League of Republican clubs, which convenes next week:

Monday, meeting of the state league convention in Broadway theater. Open meeting in the evening, at which speakers will be provided.

Tuesday, meeting of the national league convention in the Broadway theater in the morning; mass meeting in the evening.

Wednesday, second day of the national league convention; reception at Brown hotel in the evening by the ladies, and visit of the delegates to Arlington park to see the fireworks.

Thursday, excursions to the mountains and end of meeting.

Among the guests will be Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia and ex-Secretary Charles Foster.

Killed by Jumping.

OELWEIN, Ia., June 27.—Albert Parsons of Dunkerton was killed from a Chicago Great Western train one mile north of that place at 9 a. m., receiving injuries from which he died soon after.

Rowe Is Register.

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., June 27.—Clark S. Rowe has assumed the duties of register of the land office, there relieving the lest Republican to hold a land office position in the state.

Woman's Sentence.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Augustus Wyman has been sentenced to five years and six months in the penitentiary.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, June 23, 1894.

WHEAT—Wheat higher. No. 2 spring 67c; No. 2 Northern, 66@c; steady, 66@c.

CORN—Easy. No. 3, 43@c.

OATS—Active and firm. No. 2 white, 47c; No. 3, white, 46@45c.

BARLEY—Firm. No. 2, Nov. sample, 60@51c.

RYE—Steady. No. 1, 56@c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, June 23, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 61@c; June, 65@c; July, 66@c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 60@c; June, 63@c. July, 63@c; September, 65c; December, 63@c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 58@c. No. 3, 58@c. Rejected, 56c. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 60@c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 23, 1894.

WHEAT—June closed, 63@c; July opening, 64@c; highest, 65@c; lowest, 63@c; closed, 63@c; September opening, 60@c; highest, 60@c; lowest, 60@c; closed, 60@c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 65@c; No. 1 Northern, 63@c; No. 2 Northern, 63c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 23, 1894.

HOGS—Is higher. Not much offered, packers taking the choice hogs above at $5.25@5.30.

CATTLE—Quiet; not enough offered to make a market. Light demand for heavy feeders and fat cattle.

Prime steers, $4.25@4.30; good steers $3.90@ 4.25; prime cows, $3.50@3.75; good cows, $ 3.25@ 3.50; common to fair cows, $2.25@2.75; fair to veal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $2.00@ 3.00; stockers, $2.75@3.75; feeders, $3.50@4.00; bulls, $2.50@3.25.

SHEEP—Steady or good stuff common dull.

Natives, $2.50@3.50 mixed, 2.00@4.00; common, $1.50@2.00.

Receipts: Hogs, 103; cattle, 71; sheep, 23.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, June 25, 1894.

CATTLE—Prices 10 to 20c higher; receipts 25,000; active at 10@15c; medium $4.00@ 4.50; coarse, $3.50@4.00; Texans, $3.00@4.00; stockers—Good wild Rangers, $3.00@3.50; lower. Rough and heavy, $4.50@5.75; packers and mixed $5.00@5.25; fair heavy and butcher weights, $5.20@5.30; assorted light, $5.00@5.20.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Strong; receipts 7,000; shipments 2,000; fair inside $3.50@4.00; choice, $4.25@4.50; lambs, $5.00@6.00.

HOGS—Receipts 30,000; left over 5,000; shipments 7,000; active and 5@10c higher; mixed and packers, $5.00@5.20; prime heavy and butcher weights, $5.20@5.30; assorted light, $5.00@5.20.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 23, 1894.

WHEAT—Steady. No. 2 cash, 66@c; July, 67@c; September, 65@c; December 68c.

CORN—Easier. No. 2 cash, 44@c; July, 45@c; September 45@@c.

OATS—Strong. No. 2 cash, 46@c; July, September, 29@c.

RYE—Higher. July, $12.50@12; September, $8.

LARD—Higher. July, $8.72@; September, $8.

SHORT RIBS—Higher. July, $6.85; September, $6.57@.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, June 20.

Norwalk, Conn., is celebrating its 244th anniversary.

Mr. Williams, the engineer of the Manchester canal, has been knighted.

The cash balance in the treasury is $114,021,947, of which $68,432,023 is gold reserve.

Hugh M. Walters, president of the Kishcoquillas Valley Railroad company, is dead.

The senate has confirmed the nominations of J. George Wright as agent at Rosebud agency.

The jury in the case of Hawks, accused of embezzling funds of the Seven Corners bank of St. Paul, disagreed.

Congressman Harry C. Turner has been renominated for congress by the Democrats of the Eleventh Georgia district.

The West Virginia State Republican league is in session at Fairmount with 126 delegates in attendance, representing more then 1,000 Republican clubs in the state.

The Republicans of the Second California congressional district nominated Grove L. Johnson of Sacramento for congress. The Sixth district nominated James McLachlin of Pasadena.

Thursday, June 21.

Six thousand Lisbon bakers have gone on strike.

Gold engaged for shipment for the day amounts to $1,200,000.

Brookings, S. D., has a freak in the form of an eight legged calf.

The meeting of the National Prison association at St. Paul has adjourned.

The president has appointed Frank McCoppin postmaster at San Francisco.

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway will remove its general offices to Parsons, Kansas.

Eighty thousand tons of coal was contracted for abroad during the strike, about 30,000 tons of which yet remain to be delivered.

Fire in the tannery of Rothschild & Co., patent leather manufacturers at Newark, N. J., damaged the building to the extent of $90,000.

The president has appointed William D. Bigler assistant treasurer at Philadelphia, and S. B. Young assistant appraiser at the same place.

John P. Andrews of Rome, N. Y., now in his 91st year, claims to be the oldest living ex-congressman. He represented the Steuben district from 1837 to 1839.

Friday, June 22.

Texas Populists have nominated Judge Nugent of Fort Worth for governor.

Vice President Stevenson has recovered from his indisposition caused by the heat.

A strike of fabulous richness has been made in the Pike's Peak mine at Cripple Creek, Colo.

The Fifteenth Ohio district Republicans have renominated C. H. Van Voorhis for congress.

The 37th annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac is in progress at Concord, N. H.

Jacob Jones was fatally hurt and his son Robert killed near Walbridge, Ky., by an explosion in a saw mill.

Stephen Kirk, a telephone lineman, was killed by coming in contact with a trolley wire at Rochester, N. Y.

Saturday, June 23.

The gold reserve in the treasury is now $61,662,840.

Fire in Armour's packing house at Chicago did $150,000 damage.

The Northern Pacific has resumed through traffic, and flood damages having been sufficiently repaired.

The teachers in the state institution for the blind at Nebraska City, Neb., are on strike against a reduction of salaries.

News has been received that the government troops in Rio Grand do Sul, Brazil, have defeated the insurgents under General Pina.

At Pueblo, Colo., Ed Shaffer was shot and instantly killed by Thomas Cox. Shaffer was supposed to have been unduly intimate with Mrs. Cox.

Hedgepath, the Missouri train robber, made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the jail at Sedalia by filing a skeleton key when discovered by a guard.

Monday, June 25.

General E. Von Kreighammer, the Austrian imperial minister of war, broke his arm in a carriage accident.

Umpire James O'Rourke has telegraphed his resignation as umpire of the national league to President N. E. Young.

The Duchess of York, wife of Prince George of Wales, heir presumptive of the throne of England, was safely delivered of a son Saturday.

Holloway and Moose Lake, Minn.; Ellendale and Grafwold, N. D.; and Howard, S. D., have been made interstational money order offices.

Tuesday, June 26.

Four counterfeiters were arrested at Washburn and Glidden, Wis.

Reports from Oregon hop yards indicate bright prospects for a large yield.

Experiments are being made in India looking to the prevention of cholera by inoculation.

The first Northern Pacific through passenger train since June 1 arrived at Tacoma Tuesday.

The British ship Laomedon, bound from Calcutta for San Francisco, with a cargo of jute and gunnies, has been sold at Victoria and shipping and insurance men are becoming anxious about her.

Rufus Cummings Garland, son of ex-Attorney General Garland, and Miss Hettie Wooding Hobson, granddaughter of ex-Senator William H. Wooding, of Virginia, were married at St. Aloysus (Catholic) church, Washington.

Mrs. Mary E. Lease announces that she will visit Australia during this fall for the purpose of lecturing up an estate there in which she is interested. She also stated that she had an offer to make a lecture tour in Australia, which she may accept.

THE FRENCH CABINET

PREMIER CHARLES DUPUY AND HIS ASSOCIATES.

The Queer Fluctuations of French Politics. This Is the Thirty-third Cabinet Since the Republic—Sketches of the Men Who Compose It.

Ministerial changes are so frequent in mercurial France that, although it came without warning, the recent overthrow of the Casimer-Perier cabinet excites no particular surprise outside of Paris. We who try to keep the run of French political news are accustomed to that sort of thing, and so we were not at all astonished when M. Charles Dupuy was recalled to the premiership which he resigned last November and succeeded in forming a cabinet which appears to be sufficiently vital and cohesive to last until the presidential election of the coming autumn. M. Dupuy's first ministry was overthrown because it was too conservative, and M. Casimer-Perier's was beaten for a similar reason. Now Dupuy is recalled and receives a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies with a majority of 214 votes.

The chamber of deputies may well have confidence in the new premier. Before the echoes of Vaillant's bomb died away on the 9th of last December a loud, firm voice was heard, "Gentlemen, the sitting will continue." It was the voice of Charles Dupuy, president of the chamber. He stood upon the platform, with hands outstretched, to bring the panic stricken deputies to their senses. The effect of his words and of his calm demeanor was electrical. Enthusiastic cheers burst from all parts of the house, even from some of the galleries. The cheers were repeated again and again as M. Dupuy went on to say that the dignity of the chamber and of the republic would not permit such an outrage to disturb the progress of legislation; that officials would take suitable steps when the sitting should end, and "as for us, we remain here faithful to duty."

M. CHARLES DUPUY.

M. Dupuy is a philosopher turned politician. He is a grave and earnest man, with much intellectual and moral distinction and a good deal of personal dignity. He has always been an industrious worker since the days of his boyhood in the country town of Puy, when the dawn often surprised him over his books after a long night of study. After taking his degree in philosophy in 1874 he became a professor in various lyces and eventually became vice rector and superior kind of inspector—in Corsica. He was first elected to the chamber in 1885 and showed great interest in educational questions. He became prime minister in April, 1893, and resigned in November. M. Dupuy is now 57.

M. Poincare, the new finance minister, is a Parisian barrister and a doctor of laws. He was "chef du cabinet" to the minister of agriculture in 1886-7 and has for a year entered parliament as member for the department of Pierrefitte. His contributions to the debates gained him a considerable reputation for financial insight and knowledge. He was minister of instruction in M. Dupuy's former cabinet. He is 33.

M. Guerin, the minister of justice, has had a successful military career, but he has spurs to win as a statesman, having never sat in any former cabinet. He represents Vaucluse and was elected in the agricultural interest.

The minister of marine, M. Felix Faure, is a retired official of 53. He was under secretary of state for the colonies and commerce under Gambetta in 1881 and returned to the same post in the subsequent ministries of Ferry and Tirard. He is an authority on marine and commercial questions and was vice president of the last chamber.

M. Delcarne, the new colonial minister, made his mark in the chamber during the budget debates and the year before that, when he strenuously emphasized France's need of a vigorous colonization policy. He is 42 years old and has been in parliament since 1889.

M. Legrues is the poet of the new cabinet and fills the post of minister of public instruction. He is a lawyer by training and has published various collections of verse. He is also a harrister of Villeneuve-Lot, and his career in parliament began in 1886.

Probably the ablest man in the new cabinet is Albert Viger, who takes the portfolio for agriculture. He is a physician by profession and has written a number of valued works on political economy. He has served on many important committees in the chamber and was M. Casimer-Perier's minister of agriculture. General Mercier, who retains the portfolio for war, is the only other survivor from the last cabinet. He is one of the new school of scientific strategists officers and is generally regarded as one of the coming men of the army.

M. Hanotaux, the new minister for foreign affairs, is an ex-deputy and is at present chief of the commercial department of the foreign office. M. Barthou, the minister of works, is only 32. He is a lawyer and a municipal councilor of the town of Pau. He entered the chamber in 1889 and has taken a prominent share in its proceedings.

The personality of the premier will easily predominate over that of the colleagues in this the thirty-third cabinet under the republic.

TARRED MR. TARSNEY

THE COLORADO ADJUTANT SUBJECTED TO AN OUTRAGE.

He Was Given a Coat of Tar and Feathers and Left on the Prairie, Near Colorado Springs, Without Trousers—His Presence Was Not Desired in That Section—Waite Excited.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 23.—There is the utmost excitement here over a daring outrage perpetrated by masked men shortly after midnight. Adjutant General Tarsney has been in the city several days acting as counsel for the arrested Bull Hill strikers. He was stopping at the Alamo hotel. At the hour named a telephone rang and a call came for Tarsney. A party answered him and he responded. While standing at the telephone, seven masked armed men appeared outside and in various parts of the hotel, overawed the persons in the vicinity, took Tarsney out, forced him into a hack, drove rapidly north three miles into one of the numerous gulches, tarred and feathered him and left him, lying on the prairie before the police, who were at once notified, could overtake them on horseback. When the job was finished, according to the hack driver's story, they left Tarsney lying on the prairie with an injunction to get out of El Paso county or he was neither wanted in Colorado Springs nor Cripple Creek, and if he returned he would meet worse punishment than already given. It is believed that the outrage was perpetrated by deputy sheriffs, who held a meeting early in the evening at Antlers park. The police were handicapped by the darkness, and when they arrived General Tarsney could not be found. A large posse is searching for him.

Hackmen Didn't Know Them.

At 11 o'clock General Tarsney had not yet been found. The hack drivers, Sherman Crumley and Jean McKinney have been arrested and released on their own recognizances, as they declare they do not know any of the kidnappers, and were compelled at the point of revolvers to take the party to Austin Bluff. Crumley, who owns both hacks, says one masked man remained with Tarsney, ostensibly to show him the way back to the city. Some of the men wanted to kill Tarsney, but their leader held them in check. Tarsney thanked the man and shook hands with him. The citizens meeting has been called to denounce the outrage.

Waite Is Excited.

DENVER, June 25.—Governor Waite is greatly excited over the outrage on Adjutant General Tarsney at Colorado Springs, and has offered $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the participants.

Governor Waite did not go to Colorado Springs himself but sent on a special train a party of detectives to find Tarsney and her daughter also went.

Tarsney Heard From.

Governor Waite has received a dispatch from General Tarsney, who is at Manitou Lake, 18 miles from Colorado Springs. He will be met there by the governor's special train and brought to Denver.

Not Seriously Hurt.

DENVER, June 26.—The special train left Colorado Springs at 1:40. General Tarsney was taken out and now is now on the way home. He is badly bruised and dazed, but not seriously hurt.

BOYCOTT PULLMANS.

That Decision Reached by the American Railway Union.

CHICAGO, June 25.—At the afternoon session of the A. R. U., the committee which has been appointed during the morning to wait upon the officials of the Pullman Palace Car company made its report.

C. A. Timlin of Rocderous, Ills., chairman of the committee, reported that they had been received by Vice President Wickes of the Pullman company. They stated to Mr. Wickes that they were a committee of the A. R. U. appointed to once more ask the Pullman company to arbitrate the differences between the company and its employes on a strike. Mr. Wickes replied that they already stated the position of the company in the questions and the situation remained unchanged. He stated further that the Pullman company would not receive for arbitration any committees representing the A. R. U. The committee thereupon notified him that unless the before noon on Tuesday next, the A. R. U., will declare a general boycott on all of the dining and sleeping cars of the Pullman company in the country. No reply was given to this and the committee was ordered further parley. When this was made known to the convention in executive session, a motion was unanimously carried declaring a boycott on the Pullman cars, beginning at noon next Tuesday unless some word is received from the Pullman company before that time. This motion was cheered to the echo, and when it had been adopted the delegates arose from their chairs and cheered again.

Decision Is Reversed

After the discussion or the Pullman strike, the convention proceeded to elect directors for the insuring year. President Debs, Vice President Howard, L. W. Rogers, James Hogan, Roy Goodwin and W. H. Burns were elected directors by acclamation.

A. R. U. Adjourned.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The first quadrennial convention of the American Railway union has adjourned until June 18, 1896. All arrangements for the boycott of the Pullman company were discussed, and the adjournment was taken amid enthusiastic cheering for President Debs and the delegates.

Prendergast Jury Secured.

CHICAGO, June 23.—A jury was secured in the case of Assassin Prendergast.

A LEAP AND A RESCUE.

How a Tramp Saved a Railroad Train and What Came of It.

Extra Wallace, west bound, reached Emerson at 10 p. m. June 16, 1878. In switching out a car the forward brakeman was so badly injured that we left him for surgical tretment. I was braking behind. From Emerson to Chauncey, 12 miles, is up grade, and as Conductor Wallace had gone over to the engine I was left alone on the rear. The moon shone brightly, and I noticed a number of tramps riding out on top. We had almost reached the summit and the night express was only 15 minutes behind us when suddenly the speed slackened. The caboose, two cars of telegraph poles and three of cinders had broken off. I was standing on the load of poles and started for a brake when one of the poles became loosened from its position and rolled on my foot. I struggled desperately to free myself, for the cars had started backward.

I thought of the express with her cargo of precious lives and struggled again. I seemed to hear the crash, the shrieks and groans of the dying, the curses and prayers. Minutes were years, and I grew old in the awful suspense. Then I heard a whistle and saw our front end following down the hill. On the leading car the conductor was swinging a hack up signal, while the whistle blew a wild warning for No. 7. Faster and faster spun the wheels, and slowly, but surely, was the runaway overtaken.

I held my breath.

Only 20 feet.

A form shot out over the chasm, swung in quick relief for an instant against the sky and then dropped safely on board the car of cinders. At the same moment the conductor gave a stop signal, and the gap widened.

Well timed it was, for given a second sooner and the long rounds have been impossible; later, and a collision unavoidable.

In a short time every brake was set, and as we slowed down I shrieked frantically: "Fling No. 7! Take a red light and flag the express!"

He understood and obeyed without a word. Fortunately or providentially, they were late, and he got back in enough to stop them. I was unconscious when at last released. My foot was badly crushed, and it was many years before I was again able to report fit for duty. As for our hero, he proved to be one of the tramps I had noticed and had volunteered for his dangerous task. When the superintendent, who was on No. 7, learned the circumstances, he offered him a position as brakeman, promising him advancement as he proved his ability. That was the beginning. Today he is a prominent general manager, and his name is a recognized power in the railroad world.—Chicago Record.

A Queer African People.

Strange stories are told of the Dokos, who live among the moist, warm bamboo woods to the south of Kaffa and Susa in Africa. Only 4 feet high, of a dark olive color, savage and naked, they have no fire. They live only on ants, mice and serpents, diversified by a few roots and fruits. They let their nails grow long, like talons, the better to dig for ants and the more easily to tear in pieces their favorite snakes. The Dokos used to be invisible as slaves, and they were taken in large numbers. The slave hunters used to hold up bright colored clothes as they came to the edges of the woods, where these human monkeys still live, and the poor Dokos could not resist the attractions offered by such superior people. They crowded round them and were taken in thousands. In slavery they were docile, attached, obedient, with few wants and excellent servants. These queer people have one faculty—a love for ants, mice and serpents and a speaking to Yer with their faces on the ground and their arms in the air. Yer is their idea of a superior power, to whom they talk in this comical manner when they are disgusted or angry or tired of ants and snakes and prepare for unknown food.—Popular Magazine.

Henry E. Dixey's Country Friend.

I happened to be at liberty one evening in New York when Edwin Booth chanced to be playing King Lear—probably the last time he played that part before his death. In the man sitting next to me I recognized an old friend of my boyhood days whom I had not seen for many years. And when Booth was on the stage giving his magnificent impersonation of King Lear my old friend could not repress the expression of his joy at meeting me.

"Why, Harry," he exclaimed, "I am awfully glad to see you! So you come to see Ned Booth play King Lear, do you? I come from the country to see him play Hamlet last night, and I swow he didn't look a day older than he did 20 year ago. He was as chipper and pert that I thought I'd come tonight and see him play King Lear, and I'm gittin tarnation tired of old princess with the long white beard an hair that's nuthin an carryin on up there, an I think it's a goldarn shame that a fellow can't make that old rat dry up an bring out Ned Booth to let him play King Lear. I'm goin to have my money back."—Henry E. Dixey in New York Herald.

He Ate to Save His Friend.

A man was being tried for hog stealing in a southwest Georgia justice court. He had on his accomplice in the theft, to whom the judge said:

"You knew this fellow stole that hog?"

"I did, your honor."

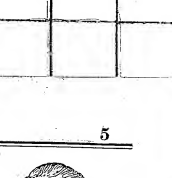
"And yet you helped him eat it?"

"I did, your honor, but he was a sickly man, an if he'd et that whole hog he'd ha' died certain!"—Atlanta Constitution.

She Had but Four Hats.

Miss Leftover—I once fished a whole day without getting a bite.

Miss Ray Budd—You must have been fishing for compliments.—New York World.



Mrs. J. N. Cooley
Claremont, South Dakota.

Another Victory

A Bad Sore Threatens the Loss of a Limb

Hood's Sarsaparilla Routs Disease and Gives Renewed Health.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I have used several doses bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla in my family and know its merits. I had a sore on one of my limbs below the knee which baffled the skill and treatment of several physicians. They were uncertain whether to call it erysipelas, cancer, scrofula or blood poisoning. Owing to my old age they thought I would have to have my leg amputated. It was badly swollen, nearly twice its usual size, and raw as well as painful, with a Burning, Itching Sensation.

"I had used Hood's Sarsaparilla before and so having great faith in its merits, I took it and effected a perfect cure of the eruption on my limb and also renovated and purified my whole system. Two years have since elapsed and I am now passed 76 years of age, and yet I have more energy and work harder than the average of men at 40. I have 350 acres under cultivation and work more hours per day than many men.

"My wife has not been able to attend to her household duties much of the time during the ten years we have lived in Dakota on account of Nervous Prostration.

She has been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for the past year and has found much benefit from it."

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Formerly her weight was 125 pounds, now she weighs 154 pounds and attends to all her household duties." JAMES N. COOLEY, Claremont, South Dakota. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache. 25c.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the

Saskatchewan Valley,

Address WM. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.
Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman, Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN. ARTISTIC Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate. Life Insurance, or any Good Security on Long Time and Reasonable Rates. Prompt attention to Collections in all parts of the United States and Canada. Local and county managers wanted. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE FACE OF A FIEND.

BY CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE,
AUTHOR OF "THE VERDICT OF THE JURY," "THE MYSTERY OF THE CLIFF," "THE POINT OF A NEEDLE," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

in one breath. Ellen crossed the room impulsively, and kneeling on the floor beside Annette's chair took her hand in hers and comforted her like a sister. In a little time Annette was able to speak coherently.

"If I had not always been so sensitive and so fanciful, it would not have mattered so much, but it was so hard for me to make friends. I had always to wait for somebody else to take the initiative. And then when I met persons whom I believed I could have loved and trusted, as sure as that day came, the acquaintance was suddenly broken off, and we were separated."

"Separated! By whom?"

"By—by Mr. Dye. He did not wish me to have friends, I am sure. I hope I do not wrong him, but I think so, because nothing disturbed him more than to find me talking with a stranger. My mother pitied my isolation, and she often tried to interest in me companions of my own age, and then the information would come to me very soon to break up our little home again and go to some distant place to live. That is why I had no friends. I was afraid to shout a time in any city, we changed our living place so often—I cannot say home—I never knew what that word really meant till I came here. But I am only mystifying you, my kind friends. I should tell you what I know of myself from the beginning.

"Way back, beyond all that I can really remember, there is a vague, imperfect sense of something different, which comes to me most vividly sometimes when I am not trying to think of it. But my first distinct recollection is of playing with my little rag doll at a window, very high up, looking out over the roofs. Mr. and Mrs. Dye were with me, and I called them father and mother. I always was afraid of him, and to be avoided me, but I loved my mother with the strength of a double passion. I can dimly remember that at that time both of them were rather different in their looks from what they seemed in later years. Mr. Dye has changed greatly. He used to be very well dressed and careful of his appearance. That was before he took to gravity to drink. Now he seems to have no care. My mother was pale, slight and sad. She wept so much when I first recollect her that her eyes were always red. Her husband made her very unhappy. It never used violence toward either of us. He rather seemed to pity us, but there is an unkindness that is quite as deep as the unkindness of hard words and blows. He was a silent and moody man and was very little in the house.

"I noticed as soon as I was old enough to notice at all that he did not like to have me even look at him. I sometimes caught him watching me furtively, but as soon as he saw that I knew it he would turn away quickly. If it was not so absurd, I should have believed he was afraid of me. And so my mother was a broken hearted woman. But the less he had in common with her husband the more she devoted herself to me. She often told me that she lived only for me, and when I think how feeble she was and what a struggle existence was to her I cannot help believing she told the truth. She taught me all I know. She saved me pennies and went without clothes to buy me books. In the long days and evenings when we were entirely alone we read and studied together. We had to devise places to hide our literary treasures, for whenever he found a book he sold it and kept the money. More than once our entire little library, obtained at so much cost and pains, was missed by us in the morning.

"I should not have been unhappy but for the little knowledge of the world and its ways that my reading gave to me. It made me feel the degradation of my position. All the time my mother was becoming paler and feebler every day. Finally she took to her bed. I attended her."

It was with difficulty that Annette controlled herself sufficiently to go on. But her recollection conquered her natural emotion. She was even able to speak in a calm voice.

"Before she died she told me that I was not her child. It was a secret she could not carry away with her. She had often and often begged her husband to tell her who I was, but he never would. One night when I was not 2 years old Mr. Dye had placed me in her arms, and in a hurried and agitated manner had told her that I was to be their child thenceforth, and that we three were to begin traveling about the country the very next day. Before that time he had been very good to her, but somehow my coming estranged them. The gulf that began then had been widening between them ever since. He had loved her once, she said, and there she was breathing out her last breath in my arms, while he was away with degraded men, careless what became of her. He had at last frightened her by declaring that if she ever told anybody I was not their child it would bring him to the gallows. Then she believed that he dared not be terrible indeed, and for years she had not dared to question him again.

"I was too weak," she said, 'to make any resistance then, but when you grew to be quite a girl and I realized the great responsibility upon me to bring you up as I ought in the sight of God and man I often on my knees begged and besought him to restore you to your parents, or at least tell me who you were. He only answered "I do not know." Oh; but he was good to me once! If he comes now before I die and sees me perhaps the sight of me lying so feeble here—for it is the same thing, Annette, the same face, though changed, that he used to kiss so fondly in the old days—perhaps that sight may touch his heart, and he will tell us, if I ask him, everything. So, Annette, I must not die yet. I feel strong. Arrange my pillows that I may sit up. I can hear better then, and the first sound of his footsteps on the stairs will drag me back from the very arms of death.'

"It was night, and everything in the house was still. I cried as I could hardly see. I lifted her up as she wished, and there she died, with her head turned, listening for the step on the stair. When he came, he found us both unconscious on the bed. Alas, mine was an unconsciousness that knew an awful outing! I almost hated him for awaking me. Oh, how like a horrid dream it seems—this, that was only a few weeks ago!"

There were no longer tears in her eyes. Those dark orbs burned with a light that the physician did not like to see in them.

"Let us forget all this, my dear young lady," he said. "What happened after that?"

"After that was the little funeral, attended by only us two. We sat in the carriage that followed her to the grave, strangers, as we had been all our lives long."

"The brute!" cried Miss Maxey.

"You wrong him," said Annette quickly. "He was not heartless. I never in all my life heard him speak a savage word to her. And in the carriage his grief was terrible to see. I never saw a man weep before. It frightened me. I tried to say something to console him. He almost struck me with a terrible oath, the only time he ever spoke like that to me. Oh, Mr. Dye is a strange man! He seems always to be brooding over some terrible wrong. I have sometimes even wondered whether his mind was not unsettled. That would make my life so unbearable. It was enough to feel the desolation of my mother's death, but to have him always absent or sitting in the same room without a word, without a look for me, that was terrible. And still we moved about. I could not bear to remain shut up all the time, and one night despair gave me courage to throw myself upon his mercy, to tell him my unhappiness and to beg him for a release. I thought if he could allow me to go out to work as a servant in a family where I could earn my bread even that would be better than this, for this was worse than death itself.

"He heard me out in astonished silence and never did he look to reply in a voice that trembled: 'You are my daughter, Annette. The law makes me responsible for you until you are 21. I must continue to take care of you.' Then I told him, for the first time, that I knew his secret. I was not his daughter. It he did not let me go. I should myself appeal for aid to some charitable person. The fact that we had just come back to the city, where I had met the kind lady, Mrs. Hapgood, made me think of her, and I spoke of her. He seemed utterly overwhelmed, and when I saw the strange pallor that my rash words had brought into his face my anger died away at once. I remembered that my mother had told me about his fear of the gallows, and I thought there might be truth in it. I was frightened. That was only the day before I got the letter that took me to the hotel de Semaine.

"I told him that I knew his secret."

"That is enough for that," said Lamar. "It is not necessary that you should allow your mind to dwell much upon the unpleasant past. Choose the bright things, Miss Dye, if you must think of it at all, and let the rest go. However, I wish to ask you a question or two, if you don't mind. In the first place, were you feeling well and strong previous to the 9th of December last, when you made your unfortunate visit to Somerset?"

"Not really well, sir. It had been increasing for some months. I think if I had been well I should not have had the deep dejectedness of my situation. I had trouble that person was standing before you?"

Annette suddenly became very pale. She looked at the physician, agitated and amazed.

"Why—why, how could you know that, sir?" she stammered. She seemed so excessively troubled and shrinking as everybody uttered an exclamation of surprise. In a few moments, however, she had partly recovered, and then she at once went on in a hurried manner, much as if she were trying to get away from a dangerous topic as fast as possible.

"Indeed I never forget faces nor anything else that I saw that interested me. Sometimes such a thing would haunt me for days. I suppose it was my loneliness and isolation that made me take so much interest in what I saw about me when I was young. I studied over them till they almost became a part of me—at least I fancied so. Sometimes when anything had impressed itself strongly on my mind it would come into my sleep night after night until it really terrified me with its vividness. And really, Dr. Laman, I should like to know if you consider this a part of my disease?"

She put the question anxiously, as if it were a most momentous one.

"Oh, no, not at all, not at all!" said the physician quickly, believing that he had alarmed her, though the fact seemed very strange and inexplicable to him. "I think perhaps, Miss Dye, we have talked sufficiently on such topics for one day. Some time when you are stronger we will discuss them more fully. Forget this past that troubles you. You are in safe hands here, and I can assure you that your old life is a closed volume if you will only agree to make it so. My earnest advice to you is to keep your mind free from it. The present and the future are much more to the point."

"But what can I do?" sighed Annette, passing from her former agitation to an expression of meekness and distress. "I do not, I cannot feel happy here. I know it is wrong, but I cannot help seeming to myself a burden on my friends. If I could only earn my own living!"

"You shall," cried Maxey, with an inspired look. "You yourself have already indicated the path. You have a talent for drawing and an admiration for art. I will become your teacher, and you shall be an artist."

"And make your fortune at once. Artists always do," added Miss Maxey, with a sly look at her brother.

"But I am not sure that I can. I spoke too much of myself perhaps. I may not have any talent at all," stammered Annette.

But the delight and hope in her face as she glanced at Maxey's sketch betrayed her real feelings plainly.

"You will not refuse?" the artist said.

"Not, not if you really would like to have me try."

CHAPTER X.
MR. DYE.

The tide flowed back and forth beneath the thickening ice mass, and the winter wore on. Maxey's new pupil was making much progress. The same was true, in another sense, of Maxey himself. Sometimes in the intense and preoccupation of their work the heads of their heads would get very close together. This was so entirely accidental and unpremeditated on occasions of that kind that a sudden interruption at such times started a blush into the faces of each seems strange and unaccountable, but it was unquestionably the fact. A knock at the outer door one afternoon was attended by this result. The artist's head bending over a sketch by a window in the rear room, and both became suddenly conscious that they were in rather unwonted confusion. Maxey was so painfully aware of his own betrayal of sentiment that he was very glad of the opportunity offered to conceal it by answering the summons at the door.

He stepped into the hall hastily and partly closed the entrance to the rear chamber before he looked into the outer corridor. Two men were in the hall railing. When he saw them, the artist's heart gave a great bound. The man he knew by sight; the other he knew by intuition. The foremost man was the sly landlord of 40 Flood street. The other, who remained a little in the rear, was a curious specimen of humanity. He appeared to be between 40 and 50 years of age. His face was smooth, his skin very pale and sallow. His cheeks sank into two cavernous hollows. His hair was long and of an obstinate straightness. It buried his ears and swept his coat collar. In perfect keeping with the rest of his appearance, his eyes looked as though they might have been of a definite color in his boyhood, but had faded into a dull, long usage. So did his hat, his coat and what was visible of the remainder of his habit. There were a telltale glossiness and a wobegone threadbareness about them all. If there was a forlorn and utterly cast down atmosphere unconscious his face, this was equally true of his hat and shoes. His greasy coat was buttoned up about his neck with a decided attempt to conceal the absence of a collar or the existence of a shirt. These were the only possible excuse for having taken so much pains about the matter. They seemed to be allowed the slovenly chance to amuse himself with a speculation as to which of the two was the worse. And with all this there were hard lines in the man's face which spoke of unhappiness, even perhaps despair.

Mr. Belfry bowed as soon as the door was opened. With a placid wink, of which his companion was blissfully unconscious, he said:

"I believe you was the man, sir, that wanted a man to write letters for you?"

"I believe I was," returned the artist. "And if you have found me the person I want I shall be greatly obliged to you. Let the gentleman come in. Perhaps you wouldn't mind yourself having a seat in the vestibule?"

The hireling gave Maxey a sly look and a profound bow. He motioned his companion forward, and when the door was closed immediately turned the key in the lock, drew a chair up against it and sat calmly down with his back to it.

The faded and forlorn individual did not notice this action, as it was done behind him. He had come into the hall, had removed his hat and was beforehand one or two unbecoming touches upon an obstinate hair, eying Maxey rather timidly meanwhile.

"You did not mention the gentleman's name," said the artist.

"His name is Dye," returned the sly Belfry.

At this the lips of the stranger unclosed to give slow and distinct utterance, in a dull, somber voice, to the cadaverous statement.

"Mr. Leander Dye, sir."

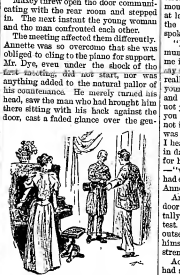
"Dye? Dye? Either or old Dye? That—that! But I think I have heard it before. I think I have. Come in, Mr. Dye, come in. I have recently taken it upon myself to become the protector and guardian of a certain young person to whom I shall take great pleasure in introducing you."

Maxey threw open the door communicating with the rear room and stepped in. The next instant the young woman and the man confronted each other.

The meeting affected them differently. Annette was so overcome that she was obliged to cling to the piano for support. Mr. Dye, even under the shock of the first startling, did not start, nor was anything added to the natural pallor of his countenance. He merely raised his head, saw the man who had brought him there sitting with his back against the door, cast a faded glance over the general situation, including the resolute artist standing before him, folded his arms across his breast in a manner that would have been dignified but for the inconvenient necessity of retaining his hat on the forlorn hat and made the remark as if he were announcing the most casual thing in the world:

"You have set a trap for me."

Maxey was intensely astonished at his coolness, though he thought his attitude a little theatrical. However it might have been for Dye, the scene opening was certainly a very painful one for the poor girl who had been caught in her early years to call him father. Her inconvenient necessity of retaining his hold on the forlorn hat and made the remark as if he were announcing the most casual thing in the world:



Maxey threw open the door.

"You have set a trap for me."

Maxey was intensely astonished at his coolness, though he thought his attitude a little theatrical. However it might have been for Dye, the scene opening was certainly a very painful one for the poor girl who had been caught in her early years to call him father. Her inconvenient necessity of retaining his hold on the forlorn hat and made the remark as if he were announcing the most casual thing in the world:

A LETTER TO HILL.

IS POLICY OF PROTECTION TO LABOR IS INDORSED.

Lower Rate of Wages Must Reduce the People's Purchases—Our Large Consumption When We Were Prosperous—Is the McKinley Tariff High Enough?

Hon. David B. Hill, United States Senator, Washington:

DEAR SIR—At a meeting of New York merchants last March you are reported as saying, "I am in favor of a tariff high enough to enable American manufacturers to compete with foreigners as far as the difference in wages is concerned." Now, as the cost of any commodity consists mostly of labor, a tariff to cover the actual difference in the cost of production—and which undoubtedly you intended—is all that any American protectionist ever asked or desired. But all true and loyal Americans favor a tariff only that deals out justice to every enterprise, wherever located within our country.

Aside from the injustice and selfishness of local protection, it is financially unwise, for no portion of the country can be injured without in being felt to a greater or less degree by the entire nation, and the converse of this is equally true.

Mr. Cleveland's agonizing desire, proclaimed by himself without considering its impossibility under our high rate of wages, is to reach out for the "great rich, retail markets of the world." He advised, a one of his messages to congress, the American manufacturers and farmers to turn from our "narrow" home market to the broader markets of the world. He also seemed totally oblivious of the facts, derived from statistics, that this "narrow" market of ours is or was, until a upset it, the most prosperous, the wealthiest, the broadest and the largest on the world.

He seemed to be ignorant of the fact hat we consume 20 per cent of all the ugar produced in the world, 30 per cent of all the coffee, 33 per cent of the copper, 33 per cent of the lead, 35 per cent of the cotton, 25 per cent of the rubber, 9 per cent of the coal and 50 per cent of the tin used in the entire world; that our railways and canals, until his lamentable advent, carried over them as much or more traffic than any three of the nations of Europe combined. And this is he "narrow" market our great president and the Democratic party advise he American people to forsake and mainly contend for the "broad, rich markets of the world," only a portion of which we could ever hope to gain and never could gain until we reduced our wages to the level of or lower than the rate paid by our foreign competitors.

But would it be wise to reduce the rate of wages, and as a consequence the purchasing power of the people, causing thereby a contraction in the volume of traffic with all the attendant evils? Although those expense would such a policy be? Obviously, as in Europe, at the expense of the workingman mostly. Not materially the capitalist, who, in any event, will not risk his capital unless he can realize a profit, which is and must be regulated by the wages paid and by open competition.

You say you are in favor of a tariff for protection "high enough to enable American manufactures to compete with foreigners as far as the difference in wages is concerned." Then as regards England the tariff should be as high as 77 per cent, which Mr. Harris and Mr. Carlisle in their report to the senate said was the difference between English wages and American, ours being 77 per cent greater.

It is true that an average tariff rate of 77 per cent would effectually prevent importation, but it is equally true that it would so for any length of time increase the price of a single commodity, notwithstanding the assertion of Mr. Cleveland to the contrary, for the most substantial reasons—first, because home manufactures would, as it has always done and will, regulate prices; second, the less we import the greater we will manufacture. Third, as manufactures increases as the volume of manufacture is increased, thereby enabling the manufacturer to lower the prices of his commodity. These are the chief factors that enter into every industrial enterprise, and clearly account for the invariable decline in prices under the protective policy.

It was the object of the framers of the present law, as was generally supposed, to so regulate the tariff as to make it "high enough to enable the American manufacturers to compete with foreigners as far as the difference in wages is concerned."

The interesting question is, Did they make it high enough to cover the difference as far as wages are concerned? The true answer to that question is in the fact that even under this tariff—denounced by the ignorant as robbery and as unconstitutional—the foreigner was enabled up to June 30, 1893, as statistics show, to rush into our market annually competitive commodities to the vast amount of about $400,000,000, and yet the present is denounced as a high tariff and a robbery. Who is robbed? The workingman, if anybody is, of the employment that vast importation would give him and our country be the wealth arising therefrom if manufactured in America.

The position you have taken regarding this question as reported, and particularly as regards the income tax, must meet with the approval of every man who is possessed of sound reasoning power regardless of party affiliations. The people will owe a debt of gratitude to the man who can claim that he defeated such a measure as the Wilson bill, which undoubtedly would bring upon the country disaster and ruin.

Very truly yours, W. S. MANNING.

Why Not Sold?

st, Strayed or Stolen—The fundaal principle of the Democratic par- Last seen of it was at Chicago, June 893.—Rockland (Me.) Star.

THRIFTIEST MAN IN NEW YORK.

A Ticket Chopper Who Is Saving Money In Phenomenal Fashion.

There are some men with whom thrift and miserliness are synonymous, but the humble hero of this tale can scarcely be called even penurious, despite the fact that in 15 years, out of a salary of $15.50 a week, he has accumulated over $6,000, all of which is drawing at least 4 per cent interest.

When the "L" roads were completed and the ticket chopping machines placed in position, he of whom this is written received charge of one at an up town station during the night hours. Since the day he went on his post, he has never taken or asked for as much as an hour's leave of absence. Seven days each week and 52 weeks each year has he continuously worked the handle of his machine up and down, receiving therefor the munificent sum of $1.50 a day. Out of this he has by rigid economy laid by $1 every 24 hours. The remaining 50 cents has fed, clothed and lodged him.

While waiting for a train the other night I asked him how he had done it, thinking of my modest dinner that had cost me more than his day's earnings.

"This way," he said as he ground my ticket into a shapeless mass. "In the first place, I never use tobacco or liquor. I hire a hall room for $1 a week, leaving me $2.50 for board and clothing. I am not a hearty eater, and a breakfast consisting of a bowl of oatmeal and a cup of coffee, both of which I prepare myself on a small oil stove, costs me about 5 cents. For lunch two good sized rolls cost only as many cents, and I find that they are sufficient. For dinner I have rice, some soup, a couple of potatoes, bread and coffee, the cost averaging about 80 cents a week. This leaves me $1.20 a week for clothing, but an occasional piece of meat on Sunday and other incidentals reduce that fund to 70 cents. That allows me $60 a year for clothing, shoes, etc., which is ample, as I have less wear and tear on my uniform than a guard. When I secured my position, I knew that unless I saved while I was earning something I would die a pauper, so I began to lay something by at once. I cannot expect to hold my present position much longer, as the company will root out the old stock to make room for new, but if I am allowed to continue chopping tickets for a couple of years more I will have $10,000, and on the interest of that, in some quiet country town, I can pass my last days in perfect rest."

"How have you got your money invested?" I asked.

"Some of it is in savings banks and the rest in good securities. Queer, isn't it, but I'm a stockholder in the road that employs me? City Hall train."

That cut short the conversation, but I often wonder as I pass his station if any of the officials of the road are aware that such a despised ticket chopper helps to elect them to their positions of trust.—New York Recorder.

A Theater Check Club.

There is a small social organization which occupies three rooms in a house not far from Herald square, and which has come to be known as the "Theater Check club." There are about 25 members, and they are mostly of the type of men who like to look in at a theater for an act or so two or three times a week, but who do not particularly care to sit through an entire performance. It is almost always the case that during the evening from half a dozen to twice that many door checks of the various theaters will be found sticking in the side of the mirror which is over the mantel in the reading room, and these are used by any member who cares to do so, but it is understood that if he does so he is to bring one back or have it in its place in the mirror within 48 hours. The theaters in many instances change the door checks from day to day, but the members of the little club in question are pretty well posted as to what color is good on each evening, and if they are wrong they never betray it, for a glance at the checks they have shows them if they have the proper check for that evening, and if not they do not attempt to use it.—New York Mail and Express.

New Yorks Women Fencers.

Miss Beatrix Jones, daughter of Mrs. Rhinelander Jones, fences in a bewitching costume of black china silk, accordion plaited, with a blouse waist of blue silk. A skirt, black as color and accordion plaited, with a waist of any bright color, has been one of the favorite fencing costumes the past winter. Miss Frances Brayton Ives, a this year's debutante, who has also been fencing occasionally to fencing, has worn an old rose silk waist with her black skirt. Miss Mary Turnure, a tall maiden, has been a member of the class to which Miss Ives belongs and is considered one of its bright and shining lights. Her costume, too, is a somber one, brightened only by the bodice. Miss Pomeroy of the Fencers' club has the reputation of "fencing like a man," which her amateur admirers thinks is the highest praise they can bestow upon her, and he adds, "Miss Pomeroy is capable of fencing with any man, no matter how expert, without suspecting that favor be show her because she is a woman."—New York Sun.

A Thoughtful Empress.

That was a womanly act of the empress of Germany, who, in consequence of the great want of work felt by the unlucky Berlin dressmakers, had all her spring and summer traveling and walking dresses made by 14 dressmakers in a small way of business. They worked at the palace under the direction of the empress' head dressmaker. The empress herself chose the materials from one of the big Berlin houses.—Berlin Correspondent.

Powers of Observation.

Little Ethel—Your sister is engaged, isn't she?

Playmate—Who says so?

"Nobody."

"Then how do you know?"

"When the letter carrier rings, she goes to the door herself."—Good News.

THE JESTER.

End of the Century Maids.

"What is the formula, professor, For maidens 'up to date?'" The wise man smiled and quickly wrote, "S. S. F. 90."

"Pray, what may mean this mystic scroll?" Said she, the Vassar part. "Why, one part salat and one part sage And ninety-eight a flirt."

—Wheeling Intelligencer.

An Ill Wind.

Jack—It's all over. I'm a cooked goose. Tom—Wouldn't she have you?

Jack—Confound it, no! Cool as a cucumber about it, and nothing green either.

Tom—Any chance of—er—her exercising woman's peculiar prerogative?

Jack—Changing her mind? Not a bit.'

Tom—I suppose, too, you had planned to buy her a ring if she'd have had you?

Jack—Yes, I suppose so

Tom—Had your money all saved up for it, didn't you?

Jack—I should say so. Had $30 all ready.

Tom—Ah, yes! I say, Jack——

Jack—Well?

Tom—You—er—couldn't lend me—er—that $50 till you find some girl who will have you, could you?—Harper's Bazar.

It Made Him Sorpe.

He belonged to a sailors' drum corps,
Tried to mash a young girl in a storps,
But she thought him quite rude,
And called him a dude,
And never would speak to him morps.
—Detroit News-Tribune.

A Traveled African.

"Now," said the intrepid explorer after he had shown the guileless native his side workings of the brass watch and had noted his native wonder at the mysteries of mechanism, "I will let you hear the tiess for two tasks. Then you can be the envy of the whole tribe."

The native gentleman yawned.

"I traded a secondhand waterfall for a bushel of those things when I was at the World's fair last summer," said he, "and there was not one of them that ran for more than a week. Got my chewing about your clothes!"—Indianapolis Journal.

A Phonetic Tale.

A young man who lived in Mo.
Was tried by a jedge and a jo.
For killing his wife
They demanded his life,
Which put the young man in a fo.
—Hallo.

Snowed Under.

This is the season of the year
When mankind's minor ills
Are buried quite Clear out of sight
By bills, bills, bills.
—Buffalo Courier.

No Frills on Him.

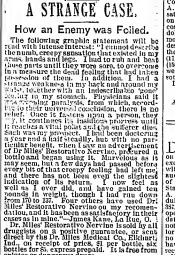
Old Mr. Dooley—Have ye a nunny w' that bear's soap?

Drug Clerk—Yes, sir. Do you want it scented or unscented?

Old Mr. Dooley—Aw, liver mesilf. I'll just take it with out.—Exchange.

Well Versed.

When we go sleighing, one can see
His knees when thereto appertains.
Without a single word from me
She smiles and slyly takes the reins.
—Life.



A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and box them to get any comfort. Physicians said it was a nervous breakdown, from which, according to their interpretation, there was no relief. Once in Farmers upon a person, they had me in their meshes, pounding away at my nerves, and I was fast getting under their thumb when my attention was called to Dr. Miles' Nervine. I bought a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every part of that creepy feeling had left me, and I was myself again. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 132. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine.—James Keyes, La Otto, Ind. Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists on a guarantee first bottle will benefit. Book on Nerves sent free. Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price. $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

Here's the Idea

Of the Non-pull-out Bow

The great watch saver. Saves the watch and the bow. Saves all fall—cannot be pulled off the case—costs nothing extra.

The bow has a groove on the back of the ring (see pendant items) and fits into the grooved, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

Can only be had with cases stamped with this trade mark.

Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases are now fitted with this great bow (ring). They look and wear like solid gold cases. Cost only about half as much, and are guaranteed for twenty years. Sold only through watch dealers. Remember the name

Non-pull out

Keystone Watch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

Your Heart's Blood

Is the most important part of your organism. The source of all the complaints to which the system is subject are due to impurities in the blood. You can, therefore, realize how vital it is to

Keep It Pure

For which purpose nothing can equal S.S.S. It actually removes all impurities, cleanses the blood thoroughly and builds up the general health; our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed Free to any address.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special term, June 4th, 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Charles S. Spendley deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Elsie H. Spendley, the widow of said deceased residing in the City of Crookston in the county of Polk, representing, among other things, that the said deceased died on the 25th day of May, in the city of Baltimore, on the 26th day of May A. D. 1894, at the county of Polk, aforesaid, leaving as heirs at law of said deceased at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and real estate within this county, and the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Elsie H. Spendley granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on Monday, the 2nd day of July A. D. 1894, 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office, in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that said hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 4th day of June A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. L. HUDSON,
Judge of Probate.

[4-10]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Kelso, a single man, of the county of Polk, and state of Minnesota, mortgagor, to Joseph Kelso, mortgagee, dated the 8th day of April, 1891, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of May, 1891, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. in Book "G" of Mortgages on page 104 thereof, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of three hundred and thirty-six dollars and fifty cents, and no action or proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage debt, or any part thereof; and said mortgage containing a provision that if default shall be made in the payment of interest, or the interest, or the taxes, or any part thereof, in the manner and at the time in said mortgage provided, or in any of the covenants, said mortgagee, or any part or parts of the said therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeably to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sales to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with all charges and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars. And whereas said mortgage contains the further condition that in case default be made by the party of the last part in any of the provisions of said mortgage or in the failure of the party of the last part, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns or his attorney to deliver to the said mortgagee receipts for taxes as in the event such default has been made in the payment of said notes mentioned in said mortgage, with one note of $100 which became due October 20th, 1892; one note of $75 which became due October 20th, 1893, and one note of $50 which became due October 20th, 1894, all bearing said mortgage lien, and dated herein and whereas the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable at the option of the mortgagee, now claimed to be due and is due and payable on said notes and mortgage the sum of $356.50 on account of principal and interest.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described therein and each and every of them, said premises will be sold by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at public meeting, to the highest bidder therefor for cash, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with interest thereon, and costs and attorneys fee as aforesaid, and taxes and dollars attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are the south-east quarter of section nine eleven (11), township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of range number forty-two (42) west in the county of Polk, and State of Minnesota.

Dated this 4th day of June, A. D. 1894.

JOSEPH KELSO,
Mortgagee.

ALLEN & HOSKEN,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
Gallock, Minn. [8-14]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage dated on the 16th day of July, A. D. 1892, made and executed by Thomas Hall and Emma Hall as his wife, mortgagors to L. Ellington, mortgagee, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 19th day of July, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock a. m. and duly recorded in Book 31, of mortgages on page 32, by which default the power of sale becomes operative, and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage and the note secured thereby, the sum of five hundred and seventy-five dollars and fifty-five cents, and no action or proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage viz: Lot number twelve (12) in block number two (2) in the original townsite of Belmont, now a part of the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat of record in and for said county, and bring said sale at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and the sum of seventy-five dollars and interest and taxes if any on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

L. ELLINGTON,
Mortgagee.

E. P. PIERCE,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [8-15]

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

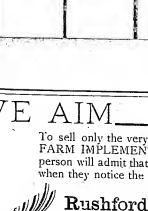
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS, and every thoughtful person will admit that our stock is well selected when they notice the following:



Rushford Wagons,
John Deere Plows,
Hollingsworth Rakes,
Flying Dutchman Plows,
Deering Binders AND Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods. If you call we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

Is Now on deck at the Old Stand on Second Street, with a Full Line of

PAINTS AND OILS AND GLASS AND WALL PAPER

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

A NEW Serial

NOW RUNNING IN THE JOURNAL.

READ IT.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west and Pacific coast at.....6:02 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Wilmot peg, Brandon, and points north, at.....7:22 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

Round Home.

Mrs. H. H. Dickmann returned to her home at Mylville, on Monday.

The Masonic socialable at the hall on Monday evening was well attended and a very enjoyable affair.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

A young son of S. M. Vance, had the misfortune to break his thigh on Monday morning.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

E. P. Pierce visited Grand Forks early this week.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lyme.

The boys had a good day for the ball game at the park on Tuesday.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Brown.

Parnell has purchased another road machine and will use it plenty this season.

John Lester returned from Canada last week, where he has been since last fall. Says times are as hard down there as here.

Any person or persons who have "Merry-go-rounds," "Bout-Swings" "Ferris-wheels," "Riding-ponies" or any games of amusement in which there is no gambling—may confer with or write the secretary for space on fair grounds.

J. V. E. WYATT,
Sec'y.

[4t]

Graham Munch drove out to Red Lake Falls on Sunday with two young lady friends.

The street south of the court house block has been nicely graded and a good sidewalk laid along the north side. A great improvement to the court house grounds.

Two fellows got into a fight down back of the round house on Saturday and it was a fight to a finish, for one of them at least, as he was knocked so cold that his adversary thought he had killed him, and lit out. The man was discovered later on and eventually came to and was all right again.

The repairs on the bridge in Jerome's addition were completed on Saturday and the bridge opened for traffic. Henry Nolan was the master mechanic in charge and though he did not seem to be doing much at the time he got there just the same and in short order. No flies on Henry.

One day last week Miss Dollie Bunnell caught one of the largest pickerels that has been taken from Maple lake this summer. She was so enthused over the fact that she came home, got Pa and Ma Bunnell, and on Tuesday morning returned to the scene of her triumph, determined not to rest until she has captured every last fish in the lake.

Dressed hogs cured and sold on commission at the Crookston packing house. Always ready to receive them during the summer months.

[5-12] ROBERT STANTON.

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.

[4t-tf]

D. N. TAYLOR.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved York-shire pigs, ready for weaning next week. Inquire of John Van Tuyl, on the farm.

AARON COOKE.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidts.

The Commercial hotel is receiving a fresh coat of paint.

The excursion trains to the lake on Saturday and Sunday were well filled.

On Saturday afternoon the crops were refreshed again by a fine rain that seemed to be general throughout the country.

Notice the change in the Northern Pacific time card. The train going east now leaves at 6:32 p. m. and the train from the east arrives at 7:22 a. m.

Courade C. Snyder had a valuable horse fatally cut on a wire fence on Monday night. The animal will be laid up for a week or ten days at the least.

John Keenan drove his trotter down from Warren on Monday. John has as fine a piece of horseflesh as one would wish to see anywhere.

Splendid showers on Monday evening have benefited vegetation and insures bountiful crops. It will not be for lack of moisture if we do not have an abundant yield, this year.

The Ida Van Cortland company will be at the opera house every evening next week, in a fine repertoire of plays. Our theatre going people may expect a week of enjoyment.

Irv M. De Camp has resigned his clerkship in the Hotel Buerkah at Grand Forks, and has been figuring with Mr. Clements this week to secure the Commercial hotel. If anybody could make a success of it Irv could.

Col. Cobham Post will meet on Friday evening at the Post room to arrange for the Fourth of July business. Every comrade is expected to be present at that meeting so as to be thoroughly posted on the program.

Crookston is laying out to have the jolliest Fourth of July celebration on record. If you want to enjoy a regular old-fashioned celebration just follow the crowd and come along to Crookston next Wednesday. A right royal time is assured.

Secretary J. V. E. Wyatt, who has been confined to the house since Memorial Day, with quinsy, is around again and getting a large sized handle on to himself, preparing for the grent event of next month. He will have everything in apple pie order by the time the fair opens.

The Valley Roller Mills here bought the wheat on the Trunz farm, 14,000 bushels, and it is being delivered at the rate of about 600 bushels per day. Delivered at the same rate it will require about 20 days yet to finish the hauling. This wheat is the largest portion of two farms.

A fine string of horses for the coming event are already in training at the driving park, and their performances indicate exciting times on the turf and many hotly contested events. Many noted horses are expected from the East Grand Forks farms and other places, and the July meet promises to be one long to be remembered in the annals of Polk county trotting events.

While the business of farming has been very unproductive for the past year or so, it must be consoling to the average farmer to reflect that his condition is really not so bad after all as the average business man in other lines. While it is true that the prices for his products are extremely low it is also true that what he has to buy is proportionally as low. Comparing prices now with those of the boom times the outlook does not appear so extremely dark, as many would seem to wish to imply.

The stockholders in the new hotel met at the city hall on Saturday evening to listen to the report of the committee, which report, showed stock to the amount of over $16,000 already taken and the probability that the balance would be taken within a few days. Our citizens have taken hold of this matter with an earnestness of purpose that is bound to win success and the result will be a hotel that will be a credit to our city. There is no doubt that before snow flies the building will be finished off.

August Wentzel drove in from his farm on Monday. Says that he has not cut any grain as yet, but he has cut one or two patches of Canada thistles, that if allowed to go to seed would furnish all the seed Polk county needs. He says the Great Northern road has some thistles growing over the right of way that ought to be cut before it goes to seed, as thistle seeds are carried by the wind and thus are more dangerous than a real old oats or mustard. As the thistles are now in bloom, some of them the matter should be attended to at once. He says that the company should also open their ditch between the towns of Lowell and Fisher, which has been allowed to become choked up, or otherwise much damage may be done should this matter be neglected.

Populist county convention to-day.

Republican county convention to-morrow.

Dr. Danlop went out to Maple lake Monday morning to see Sam. Rosenthal.

Judge Ives finished his work at Warren on Saturday last and returned to the city.

Mrs. Rose went out to Maple lake on Sunday to serve ice cream and cake to the picnicers.

Will Peterson, Ed. Clancy and Chas. Brennan drove out to Maple lake on Monday morning.

A. N. Hixson was in on Tuesday morning after men and teams to work on the Lowell ditch.

G. W. Lewis, "Uncle Lewis," as he is familiarly known has been quite seriously ill since Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Leick and son returned on Sunday morning from a visit to her parents in Rhode Island.

Samuel French, assistant chief of the fire department at Great Falls, Mon., was in the city on Monday.

The W. R. C. served ice cream and cake at the G. A. R. ball on Thursday evening. Quite a number dropped in to enjoy the occasion.

Mrs. Nelson's lecture at the M. E. church on Saturday evening, was well attended and highly enjoyed by all who heard it.

Oats is away out of sight and the price promises to be good enough for the fall. It looks like all who have early oats for market this fall will have a bonanza.

S. E. Chapin started on Monday evening for Phoenix, Arizona, with a view to locating in business should he be satisfied with the outlook. The Journal wishes for him a pleasant visit and a safe return.

Potato bugs seem to be more active and numerous than ever this year. It begins to look like the price of potatoes would be equal to the price of liberty this year. It is said that: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Thos. Olafson and wife, of West Duluth, arrived on Saturday on a visit with relatives and acquaintances in the city. Mr. O. returns home this week, but his wife will remain for a somewhat extended visit.

A number of teams and men, who were employed on the Lowell ditch passed through the city Monday morning en route to Leech lake, where they will commence grading the Brainerd & Northern railway, which is to run from Brainerd to Leech lake.

Miss Mable Arnold returned last week from a winter's sojourn away off in British Columbia. She reports having had a good time and seems very much improved in health. She was nearly a month on the way home being delayed by washouts.

Thos. Olafson said while in the city this week: "All that the farmers need to secure good prices for their products, is direct communication with Duluth where farm products of all kinds command good prices at all times. When you get the cheap rates that direct communication will give you, you will be all right in this valley."

Archie McKinnon has as fine a team of four-year-old Star Bashaws as can be found in the city. He broke them when they were fillies, can drive them either single or double and no other person ever drew a line over them. He built a light carriage especially for use with them, and it will be hard to wonder if he does not get away with the first premium for gentlemen's carriage team at the coming fair. It is as fine a team, as one could wish to see anywhere.

A team belonging to Fred Savory took fright on Thursday evening, while standing in front of the meat market on Broadway, adjoining the Central House and started in a mad dash, south on Broadway. The wagon collided with a telegraph pole on the corner of Fletcher and Broadway, leaving the box and hind wheels in the middle of the street and the team with the front wheels dashed on across the street, and ran with such force against the side of the Methodist church, as to throw both horses flat on the sidewalk, splitting a window sill; the horses quickly got up and started west along Fletcher street colliding with a horse and buggy that Mrs. M. E. Bartlett had but a few moments before been driving, throwing her horse over the sidewalk and nearly wrecking the buggy. About this time the wagon tongue broke letting it drop, and ploughing into the ground, which in a red hot brought the team to a standstill throwing one of the horses to the ground. Neither of the horses were hurt and the most extensive damage sustained by the runaway was to the buggy. Mr. Savory had just delivered a vest call to the butcher when the runaway occurred and did not have hold of the lines that were tied up somewhere about the wagon. The carelessness of leaving such a team (they are young horses) without tying is reprehensible and should not be permitted.

T. A. Harris, has been busy at the Commercial sample rooms, raising and putting a brick foundation beneath it.

T. A. Harris, went to Meutor, on Wednesday to move the Episcopal church into the village. It stands outside, about a mile at present.

Miss Frankie Beaton, a JOURNAL compositor, left for a visit with relatives in St. Paul on Saturday evening. She expects to be away until September.

Rudy Burkhardt took a load of Cleveland house guests out to John Bletow's on Sunday, returning Monday morning. Rudy says John is one of the best entertainers in the world.

A German picnic was the order of the day on Kroghmann's farm west of the town on Sunday. A large number of Germans went out for a good time and report that they had it.

Louis Fontaine went out to the farm last week and found upon his arrival that the wind had blown down the frame of his new barn, that had just been put up previous to the storm. The damage was slight.

Mr. Wm. Cunningham reports much damage to crab apples and currants by the hail-storm of Tuesday evening, June 19th. His apple trees were full of fruit and promised a big yield previous to the storm, but now the yield is problematical.

Rev. McClure preached his farewell sermon at the Presbyterian church on Sunday last, and leaves soon for other scenes. Services at the Presbyterian church will be kept up until a regular supply is provided for.

Fritz Burholts, was up from Fertile, on Tuesday, arranging for the material for an elegant bank building to be erected in that growing village. It is said that the building will be one of the finest in Polk county outside of Crookston, and that even Crookston has no fine bank building than this one will be.

Thomas Olafson informs the JOURNAL that the report of the death of Martial Fillatreault, that was circulated in this city last week was incorrect. He says that Mr. Fillatreault's wife died recently in a hospital, of small pox and the body was sent to Faribault for interment. It will be remembered that the statement was made that Mr. Fillatreault died at Faribault.

On Sunday morning Sam Rosenthal fell backward off the platform of the excursion train as it was nearing Mentor, landing in a culvert. The train ran into Mentor before it could be stopped, and a conveyance was sent right out and Mr R. was taken up and carried out to the cottage on the lake. Though considerably bruised and shaken up no bones seem to have been broken, and at last accounts Sam was almost himself again.

George Lipscombe was down from St. Hilaire last Friday. George was very indignant at the report that he was a wife-beater, characterizing the story as a lie out of whole cloth, and says that his wife has merely gone for a short visit to the home of her parents, intending to return to him after a short visit below. We can't imagine how such a sensational story could be circulated, as it had not a shadow of foundation in fact.

The JOURNAL is informed that at the populist caucus in the village of Fertile on Saturday evening, the enthusiastic reformers were present in surprising the whole of the caucus. At the republican caucus, held the same evening 28 republican voters appeared to attend to the business in hand. This would indicate that republican was at rather a low ebb in our sister village.

Mrs. C. E. Misner and the children went up to Euclid on Saturday morning, returning on Monday evening. Charlie intended to have gone out there on Sunday, but found that his watch wouldn't run—that is, not like the bicycle he traded for the watch with the idea that a watch would answer for a bike because both—to be any good—have got to run. Come to case in point, Charlie found that the Waterbury would not go.

On Friday evening of last week, J. W. Clapp was killed by Ehle Allen, a son of Alanson Allen, the well-known proprietor of the Merchants hotel, St. Paul. It seems that young Allen had been living with a woman under an assumed name and the altercation in some way grew out of this fact. Such things are the legitimate outgrowth of a life of sin. Mr. Clapp was well known in the northwest having traveled for a St. Paul house and was universally liked it is said, but it is said he was somewhat inclined to be gamey, some when in liquor. On the other hand Mr. Allen is said to be "anything but quarrelsome at any time. He was clerk of the Merchants' and a very popular

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Ida Cortland Company played a week's engagement at the Fargo opera house, to crowded houses, receipts, at 25, 50 and 75 cents. For next week in Crookston the company will put the prices at 15, 25 and 35 cents, which makes it possible for everybody to enjoy this excellent company during their stay here. Everybody should go.

Found.

An overcoat and cap. Owner can have same by proving property and paying for this notice.

[11-12] M. J. HALLA.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

Steam Threshing Outfit for Sale.

Second hand Straw Traction engine and Minnesota Chief separator for sale at a bargain. Everything is in first-class condition. To a responsible party long time will be given. Apply to or address,

[8-10] L. B. WELTEN,
Edna, Minn.

Thos. Gibbon, a stockman writes from Rockport, Utah, under date of May 12, 1893. "Gentlemen:—I have used your Haller's Barb Wire Liniment, and am so well pleased with it that I have no hesitancy in declaring it the best I ever used for curing wire cuts sores and wounds. It is truly a wonderful healer, and I would not think of raising stock with out it." F. L. Durand sells and guarantees it.

As there are a number of trained harness dogs in the city the Fair association will give a special prize to the winner of one-half mile dash, trot or run; dogs to be harnessed to a two-wheeled cart and to be driven by boys under 15 years of age. Race to be held July 19th in afternoon of the Fair grounds.

[4t] J. V. E. WYATT, Sec'y.

WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE ON LONG TIME AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,

E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fourmet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S

GROCERY DEPARTMENT.

20 lbs Granulated Sugar for	$1 00
20 lbs. Rolled Oats for	1 00
24 lbs. Good Rice for	1 00
25 lbs. Pearl Barley for	1 00
30 lbs. Best English Currants for	1 00
20 lbs. Cooking Raisins (choice) for	1 00
12 lbs. Extra Choice California Prunes for	1 00
36 bars Handy soap for	1 00
28 bars Victor Soap for	1 00
25 bars Kirk's Dome Soap for	1 00
Best White Vinegar, per gal	1 00
Fine Table Syrup, worth 50 cts. per gal	25
1 gallon can Maple Syrup	35
Pure Lard, per pound	6½
Best Canned Corn, extra quality, per can	10
Best Canned Tomatoes, extra quality, per can	10
California canned fruit, Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums and Muscat Grapes, you can find none better, per can	12½
2 gallon pails Syrup	60
Best Patent Flour per 98 pounds, lowest price

TEAS.

You all like a good cup of tea; of course you do—we all do. That's just why we can recommend the Seal Brand Teas, the only natural, uncolored Japan Tea now sold. Ask to see it when you visit us. Note prices:

50c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	40c
40c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	35c
30c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	25c

COFFEES.

We handle Chase & Sanborn's celebrated line of Coffees. They were served to 21,000,000 people at the World's Fair, and are known far and wide as the best Coffees in the United States.

NOTE PRICES.

3 lbs. Mocha and Java Coffee for	$1.00
3½ lbs. Golden Rio for	1.00
4 lbs. Guatemala Rio for	1.00
5 lbs. Crushed Java for	1.00

☞ Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention. ☜

Crookston can well afford to feel that cannery to get astart. Will we do it?

Wyakoop Lamm, came down from Angus, on Monday to enjoy the Masonic social, in the evening.

Wm. Davidson, was down from the Keystone farm, to attend the Masonic social, on Monday evening.

Estray.

Came upon my premises, in the town of Onstad, on or about May 28th, three steers, two red and one red and one, all about 3 years old. Owner can recover by proving property and paying charges.

[9-11] SIVERT HANSON.

To Teachers of Polk County.

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

The course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teacher should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMEN,
County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address,
ROBERT STANTON,
Crookston Packing House,
Crookston, Minn.

[7-12]

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.

[7-tf] A. STRONGE,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Gold Fellows block.

[32tf] ALEXANDER MCKINNON.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1894. NO. 12.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....Dan M. Clough.
Secretary of State.....C. P. Dorey.
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.....Haldor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 56st Sen. Dist.....E. Z. Lommen.
Representatives, 56st Sen. Dist.....John D. Knutson, B. M. Cherley and Hans Justson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....J. A. Elliott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 11th Jud. District.....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court.....Nils Mune.

County.

Auditor.....C. V. Wheeler
Treasurer.....J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds.....John Amundson
Attorney.....A. R. Holston
Sheriff.....Amy Grundysen
Judge of Probate.....C. N. Benson
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lommen
Surveyor.....O. L. Hamre
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.....John E. Oppegard
Second District.....Anton Linden
Third District.....M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District.....C. P. Bowles
Fifth District.....A. C. Rhinehart

THE CITY.

Mayor.....John Cromb
Office in Merchants National Bank.
Clerk.....W. A. Lanctot
Office in Mecklenor Block
Treasurer.....Ole O. Christianson
Office in Anderson Block
Comptroller.....E. M. Walsh
Office in Fournier Block
Assessor.....C. H. Nix
City Attorney.....Defrost Bicklon
Office over Merchants National Bank
City Engineer.....George Ralph
Office in Fournier Block
City Justice—L. E. Gossman.....Fournier Block
G. H. Hall.....McKinnon Block
Constables.....A. Allen and Wm. Bloom
Street Commissioner.....Jas. Creighton
Chief of Police.....Louis Gorges

ALDERMEN.

At Large.....J. W. Wheeler
First Ward.....L. U. Jennings, Geo. O. Bolin
Second "".....I. E. Morrisey, W. H. Norris
Third "".....Wm. Watts, W. E. Kirsch
Fourth "".....N. S. Cervels, Fred Hall
Fifth "".....R. G. Martinie, A. McGregor

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Zeiseman	Wylie
Brey,	Albert Wickstrom	Dray
Dedjor'	P N Sevalrud	Mentor
Brandvold,	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Beyer	Euclid
Brisbe,	A P Frank	Warren
Highland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lanctot.	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Lindsey
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Hinmelsback.	Crookston
Farley,	W A Lambert.	Warren
Fanny,	J O McWatters,	Euclid
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	L E George	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	F J Hogen	Fertile
Gentilly,	G E Forks	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J B Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Gesden,	John Hannon	Bisgdal
Gentilly,	H T Goudrou,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Delegal	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E F Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hamm	Crookston
Higdon,	Ole Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Fred Severson	Lindsey
Hubbard,	Andrew Morseon	Nelsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Hazarville,	G H Frosts.	G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
Kinn,	J D Jamieson,	Eraklee
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Eraklee
Lake Pleasant,	August Benedle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gehenu,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson,	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ozella
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dufour	Hoot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
North	Harry Deye,	T R Falls
Norden,	H D Dauphinon	T. R. Falls
Northland,	M S Mernger	Northland
Numedal,	Hemer F A Haug.	Tweit
Onward,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bean	Crookston
Payder River,	Ed Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queer,	Hans S Hoidem	Fosston
R. L. r. village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Hdalg Borll	R L Falls
Rinis,	D C Hallock	St. Hilaire
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Engerstad	Winger
Roome,	P Bosklind	Fosston
Rosebud,	John E Juvernd,	Crookston
Russia,	Gene Simonson	St. Hilaire
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	Northland
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	St. Hilaire
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	Winger
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	E G Forks
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	Tabor
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perrier	Terrebonne
Tilden,
Tynsid,	A O Sterineon	Seby
Vyneland,	John Thompson	Seby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Bisdal
Woodside,	Thos. Holderson,	Maple Bay
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Ramsbardt,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Third River Falls	Anne Zeh.	T R Falls

The poisonous cuts inflicted by birch wire, has caused the death of many a good horse whose life might have been saved by the use of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment. It is especially made to heal all cuts, sores and wounds quickly, and thousands of farmers and stockmen have freely acknowledged it the best. F. L. Durand sells and guarantees this remedy.

POPULIST TICKET.

The Pops Meet and Put Up a Ticket, Which has but Few Elements of Strength.

Two Office-Holders, Beaudry and Benson Renominated with Little Opposition.

Lommen Secures the Congressional Delegation—Ringdal for the Senate.

The populists met in convention on Thursday and put in nomination the following county ticket, viz:

For Auditor—John Gleason.
For Treasurer—John Beaudry.
For Sheriff—Andrew Steenerson.
For Register of Deeds—A. Wickstrom.
For Clerk of the Court—John Vig.
For County Attorney—L. E. Gossman.
For Superintendent of Schools O. McCrillis.
For County Surveyor—O. L. Hamre.
For Coroner—John S. Dwyer.
For Court Commissioner—D. E. Hatlestad.
For County Commissioner 2d district—Anton Linden.
For County Commissioner 4th district—H. Norlund.

A resolution was passed declaring that under no chreumstances should any man be given a third term. This for very obvious reasons, is a very foolish idea because it sometimes happens that the aspirant though he has already served two or three terms is by far the best fitted of any of the aspirants before the convention, and it is always true that an experienced man is better than an inexperienced one. When the position of treasurer was reached the convention seemed to take this view of the case and nominated the present incumbent John T. Beaudry. The sheriff office was hotly contested by Thomas Lawrence, Murvin Losey and Andrew Steenerson, the latter winning at length by a comfortable majority. There were many who were disappointed that Losey did not win as he has been an exceedingly efficient deputy and has made many friends. For the nomination for county attorney, Ed. George, Martin O'Brien and L. E. Gossman contested for first place the latter winning hands down. In the congressional contest that followed the county nominations, A. R. Holston was laid upon the shelf with neatness and dispatch by E. E. Lommen, who was instructed to select his own delegates to the congressional convention. This will also, doubtless remove the Boen et con. tention and nominate Lommen, as Polk county holds the edge on the convention and Lommen can get a list full of delegates from other counties to be breds them. The sight of Holston's elongated, peaked visage since his defeat gives us a pain—as it is truly pathetic to witness his disappointment for he really desired it, it would have tickled his vanity, pleased him and hurt nobody and he would have been an exceedingly soft snap—for a good republican to have beaten. But such is life—in the far west. The good die young—sometimes, and Holston is quite young. Harry Ives—he of the Spectator, desired to serve his country in the legislature next winter, but after endorsing P. M. Ringdal for Senator the convention did not monkey with anything else—preferring to leave something for the legislative convention to do.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 16th

Lesbe Damas	Smith Louis
Hamilton Christ
Nilson Ernest

Oscar Bernard D.

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LaPage, Postmaster.

A Good Appetite

Always accompanies good health, and absence of appetite is an indication of something wrong. The universal testimony given by those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, as to its power in restoring the appetite, and as a purifier of the blood, constitutes the best recommendation that can be urged for any medicine.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness, jaundice, indigestion, sick headache. 25c.

A PRE-HISTORIC RELIC.

Lo The Poor Indian Up a Tree.

On Thursday of last week, while sawing a log about 2½ feet in diameter, Frank Hawkins, hired sawyer at the Red River Lumber Co's mill, noticed what appeared to be an iron spike an inch or so long protruding from the log about the centre of it. Stopping the saw he took an ax and proceeded to cut out the "spike" and cut to the heart of the log before he released the said spike which by that time, had shown by breaking up that it was not composed of iron. As soon as he had removed the intruder and started up the saw he began to think about the peculiarity of a big pine saw log with bones in it, and then he gathered up what he could find of the bones, one long one over 9 inches long, from which 3 or 4 inches had been broken while first cutting into the log, and a chunked piece that had come from the heart of the log. When shown to a physician he pronounced the bones to be those of a human being, the long one a shin bone and the other evidently a head bone, no doubt a portion of the remains of some old Indian, who lived many years ago, but the puzzling is how came a portion of him in the pine tree? That would be interesting to know, and also how long a time was required to get him in that fix. It would have been interesting to have had a section of the log containing the bones cut, and sent to the historical society but it been known in time what the find really was.

Minnie Items.

Miss Rachel Dolly, of Grand Forks, is visiting relatives here.

A large number attended the circus on Monday in Grand Forks. Some went in the evening.

Mr. James Nesbit has improved his yard by building a woven wire fence around it.

Monday's picnic, which was held in Jas. Lee's beautiful grove, was a grand success. The day being pleasant a large crowd was present. A large amount was raised which goes for church purposes.

The Jr. ball nine of Fisher and the Jr. nine of Minnie had a contest on Tuesday. Fisher was the winner. The score was 11 to 12. We'll play the boys again in the near future.

The "wild cats" of Mayville and the Minnie "tame cats" had a ball game at the picnic. They came out a tie—the score stood 37 to 37.

Some farmers are engaged in pulling a weed of which the name is not known. The leaf and stalk resembles a pea in size and color. It has a long tap root which is full of little nuts. It is a hard weed to kill it is even worse than mustard.

Prof. B. R. Norwood left Monday morning for a pleasure trip to Maple Lake and Fosston.

A few went up from here to Maple Lake on the Fourth.

Some farmers have commenced buying. Marah Pengilly.

In 1880 in United States had pop 3 Cities ulation over a million—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and The Northwestern Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to these cities. [10-tf]

Only 14 In United States in 1870 Cities had population over 100,000, but in 1890, 28, and The Northwestern Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to a large number of them. [10-tf]

A Great is the Stone Arch Viaduct Bridge across the Mississippi at Minneapolis, and The Northwestern Line runs 16 First Class Fast Express Trains across this bridge every day to Chicago, Duluth, Omaha and Kansas City.

Savage Used to wage war where Indians Minneapolis and St. Paul now stand. To-day these great cities are inhabited by people of culture and good taste and they travel via The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Peace is enjoyed by Indians, but Pipe the traveler who likes comfort enjoys smoking best in the Buffet Smoking Coach on the Northwestern Limited. [10-tf]

Crows From point to point by the Fly shortest distances, so when they fly from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago they follow The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Soo & Sound right but they don't Sue look right for Sioux City through which The Northwestern Line runs Superb Pullman Sleepers between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha, [10-tf]

REPUBLICANS CONVENE.

For the Purpose of Selecting Delegates to the State Convention at St. Paul.

P. J. McGuire Endorsed for Auditor and Allowed to Name the Delegation.

The Most Noticeable Feature in the Convention was Perfect Harmony.

The Polk County Republican convention met at the court house, on Friday, June 29th to elect 12 delegates to attend the State convention to be held in St. Paul, on Wednesday, July 11th. Hugh Thompson, was elected temporary chairman and A. B. Christy, secretary. The following committees were appointed.

ON RESOLUTIONS.

A. D. Stephens, Dr. A. Nelson; J. D. Marshall, Harry Falk and B. S. Bennet.

ON CREDENTIALS.

R. J. Monteith, W. J. Walseth, J. B. Roome, J. W. Wheeler and Al. Kaiser.

ON PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

T. J. McAdam, Felix Fournet and W. A. Lanctot.

The committee on permanent organization reported, recommending that the temporary organization be made permanent. Adopted.

The committee on credentials reported over 70 delegates entitled to seats in the convention.

The committee on resolutions reported back the following resolutions that were unanimously adopted, viz:

RESOLVED—That we, the republicans, of Polk county, in convention assembled do renew our allegiance to the doctrines and principles of the republican party as set forth and embodied in the declaration of principles adopted at the National Republican convention at Minneapolis and the last Republican State convention, of Minnesota.

RESOLVED—That we declare that the democratic party now in power has shown its utter and absolute incompetency to deal properly with the affairs of the state, and earnestly look to the speedy return to power of the republican party in all branches of government and pledge our best efforts in that direction.

RESOLVED—That we heartily endorse and commend the administration of Governor Nelson, and especially appreciate his efforts in looking after this state's interests in procuring the funds which are due the state from the general government.

RESOLVED—That the only office in the state, of Minnesota, that is held by democrats is a glaring contrast between the proper and the improper management of public affairs by the two leading political parties.

RESOLVED—That we have, in one of our own citizens, P. J. McGuire, a man eminently fitted to fill the office of State Auditor, and that we heartily desire his nomination by the state convention, and that we request him to select twelve names to be presented to the state convention, at St. Paul, July 11th, 1894.

RESOLVED—That we believe in, and advocate international bi-metallism and demand that our government use every honorable means to bring this about; and to this end we endorse the views of ex-speaker Reed, as expressed in his recently published interview with the correspondent of one of the London magazines, in which he expresses himself as believing it to be the duty of the republican party to couple the question of tariff, and alive in such a way as to impose heavier import duties upon such products of those nations, who persist in adhering to the gold standard, and lighter ones upon those countries with us in working for bimetallism.

Mr. McGuire reported the following list of names to the convention, as they were unanimously elected as delegates to represent Polk county, in the state convention on July 11th, next, viz:

D. Marshall, Dr. A. Nelson, James Gilmore, M. P. De Woll, Lewis Lohn, James Rosaeau, Halvor Steenerson, E. M. Walsh, H. Thompson, Lewis Billington, A. D. Stephens and E. O. Flanders.

The convention then adjourned, peace and harmony prevailing.

The Republican county central committee met on Friday afternoon and elected Theodore Garceau, a member of the convention to fill a vacancy in the Red Lake Falls district, appointed Friday, August 3rd, as the day for holding the republican county convention and recommended that the county central committee be increased from 7 to 15 members.

Euclid Items.

Peter Keeler spent Monday in Argyle visiting friends.

H. C. Misner and George Easbey drove over to the Forks Monday.

Robert Causney returned from Fairmount Monday, where he left his little daughter, Aggie.

Bert Teel and W. A. Causey, took in Crookston Monday last.

Mrs. Chapin returned home Saturday instead of Wednesday as previously stated.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Chapin and son and daughter, of Warren, and W. L. Davis and wife, of Angus, took in the Fourth at Euclid.

P. Fairwether visited Argyle this week. He says crops at Euclid will compare favorably with any he has seen.

Peter Stuhr, Peter Keeler, Peter Qunst and Henry Stuhr took in the circus and Red Lake Falls last week.

Miss Edith Currie returned from St. Anthony Park Monday morning. Miss Edith has been attending school at that place for some time past.

Michael Blever, an old resident of Euclid, passed to his future home on Monday evening at 7 o'clock. The funeral was held at Crookston with interment in the cemetery at that place. Mr. Blever came to Euclid in the early days of '79, and has held many offices of trust, both in Euclid and Belgium, townships; he was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him, and there are a host of friends here who extend sympathy to the widow and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pfeil, of Argyle, drove down to attend the funeral of the late Michael Blever.

A. H. Pitkin, who went to Suburn, Iowa, after his wife and family, have got as far as Alexandria, where they stopped to spend the Fourth with Leslie Sanddauch, an old-time Euclidite. Mr. Pitkin intends going into business with H. C. Misner. We welcome Mr. P. and family.

Mrs. I. W. C. Misner, who went to Fond du Lac, Wis., her old home, some time ago, was taken sick soon after she reached there, and is now able to be up. Her friends here will be pleased to know that she is so far recovered as to discharge her physician.

May he Euclid don't know how to celebrate, but we think she does. Euclidites turned out bodily and cleaned out the E. B. Ballou grove and held a basket picnic. Swings were put up, base ball, foot ball, seesaw, tugs of war, and other games were indulged in, and when Euclid people get together that means a good time, you can feel sure of that. If you know of anyone who is bullious or has an overflow of bile, send them to Euclid to spend the Fourth of July. No cure, no pay—no Quack about Euclid. Speeches were made by Hon. Geo. Attwood and Capt. L. S. Hancock, which were highly appreciated by a patriotic assemblage. If all were not Americans by birth they were by adoption. "Our country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty," was drawn nearer to all of us by this assemblage. May the stars and stripes ever float in the wish of all.

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pains till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Haller's Pain Destroyer is the best and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure for all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels and that a large bottle only costs 50c, it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quick as Haller's Pain Paralyzer. For sale by F. L. Durand.

As there are a number of trained horses dogs in the city the Fair association will give a special prize to the winner of one-half mile dash, trot or run; dogs to be harnessed to a two-wheeled cart and to be driven by boys under 15 years of age. Race to be held July 19th in afternoon on the Fair grounds. [4t]

J. V. E. Wyatt, Sec'y.

THE EAGLE SCREAMED.

The Ever Glorious Fourth Was Properly Celebrated in Crookston.

Was celebrated in Crookston in great shape. The day was ushered in, when scarce five minutes old, by the booming of anvil and ammunition—crackers, which music was incessant until daylight did appear, and in fact up until midnight, when the 4th was to be ushered in. A fine program, which was published in our last issue, had been prepared and was carried out to the letter. In due time the procession was formed and marched to the grove on Ash street.

Hon. J. P. Love, of Lexington, Ga., was the orator of the day. He is in the government employ, and had been up to the Red Lake reservation looking up reported thieving depredations, and on his return he was secured by the committee to deliver the oration. He is a very smooth talker, and made an interesting speech, though a little different from the ordinary Fourth of July oration usually heard here.

A. R. Holson also regaled the people with some original Fourth of July matter. He wanted the cities of all the lands in the country torn up and the land divided among the people—called for a new deal, in fact a general shake-up of property all around. Of course there was no politics (?) in his remarks on such an occasion as this as that would have been entirely out of place, but we could not refrain from the thought that it was a grand good thing for this country that the gentlemen's confessional aspirations have been nipped in the bud. It is wonderful how little some know about the underlying principles of American freedom, and how little they can acquire of the true spirit of progress.

The afternoon exercises consisted of games of various kinds, succeeded by fire-works and dancing in the evening, and the great crowd seemed to thoroughly enjoy it all. The Fourth of July committee deserve credit for their efforts to furnish a fine entertainment.

THRIFT OF FARMERS.

Some Statistics Going to Show Their Condition in Minnesota.

St. Paul, June 28.—Some interesting agricultural statistics are being prepared in the office of Labor Commissioner Powver. Two townships in each of 12 counties have been canvassed with a view to finding out the general financial standing of the farmers. The figures received so far go to show the number of farmers, the number of years spent in Minnesota, the amount of their possessions and the exact amount of their present posses-lons, their possessions free from debt, their savings per annum, the percentage of debt to posses sions, and the averages and totals of all these it ms. It is found that the average present possessions of the numbers taken is $5,200. The average savings per an num has been $228, while the average percentage of debt to posses sat us is found to be 11.0. Similar sta stics are to be prepared regarding ten nts, and the whole will be published when complete.

Fish, as an Shipboard.

San Francisco, Sept 8.—Pacific Mail steamship Peru arrived last night from Hong Kong and Yokohama. She is the first steamer to arrive from the district of the black plague since it broke out in Hong Kong in May. After leaving Hong Kong a case of plague developed on board. A Chinese wiper in the engine room was taken sick and died in four hours. At the open port of Nagasaki the Peru was placed in quarantine a week.

Western Union Wires.

Denver Col., July 3.—The strikers have cut Western Union wires near Cesharas, and no news has been received from Trinidad since 11 o'clock p. m. The federal troops sent from Fort Logan headed for Trinidad and left there at 9:30. They should arrive at Trinidad at noon.

The Industry of the Sheriff.

The platform of the Democratic party at Chicago openly denounces the industry of the sheriff, which, it was claimed, had been fostered by protection. Remembering how many a time the sheriff has had since March 4, 1893, it is as well to see how the Democratic performance has agreed with its denunciation of the sheriff's industry.

During 1893 there were 15,560 trade failures in the United States, being 93 per cent more than in 1892. The liabilities of those who failed in 1893 were $469,000,000, as compared with $168,000,000 in 1892, an increase of $302,000,000 in a single year. Was there ever such an arrant humbug and fraud as this Chicago denunciation of the sheriff? United States to arise at once and demand the immediate cessation of the policy of prostration which the high sheriff is thrusting upon the American people and to "denounce a policy which fosters no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff."—American Economist.

THE FACE OF ROSENELLE.

CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.
Author of "The Struggle of the Lovelies," "The Point of a Needle," etc.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

house from a low resort. I stumbled up my steps unsteadily and fell over a handle that was lying outside my door. It was little Annette, stupefied by the effects of some drug which had been given her. I took her in to my wife, and that poor, unfortunate woman who wrecked her life when she married me conceived an affection for her at once. We never had any children. She desired to keep her. I permitted her to do so. That is the whole story. Do not think I wish to be short with you. I will answer any question you think it worth your while to address to me."

"Did you leave the city immediately after you found the child?"

"I did."

"Why?"

"My business, perhaps it would be franker to say my means of livelihood, necessitated it."

"What has been your means of livelihood?"

"Swindling in all its various forms."

Maxey sat staring in bewilderment for some minutes.

"By what methods?"

"By the meanest methods. Do you wish me to give a catalogue of my crooked ways? It would no doubt be instructive to you."

"Never mind that," cried Maxey, with sudden energy. "Answer me this: Were you concerned in the attempt to murder this child Annette?"

Mr. Dyre sprang to his feet with a force that overturned his chair and stood with a horrified look fixed full on the artist's face. His lip trembled and his voice faltered when he asked:

"Is that—is that your suspicion?"

"I am not here to talk of suspicions. I am asking you a plain question, susceptible of a plain answer."

Gradually the horrified look faded out of his face. The lack luster eyes sought the surface of the hat again. He turned and carefully restored the chair to an upright position before he replied:

"I would rather, I would much rather, sir, to accusation should come in any other form, just go on, sir, and ask even in this. If there has been such an attempt, arrest me, try me, convict me, hang me. I am utterly unworthy of the least respect, as you realize. A man who would steal would kill. He would shoot down even his dying and innocent girl who trusted him. Go on, sir. I shall not oppose you."

"I am half a mind to take you at your word!" cried Maxey, rising and impatiently pacing the floor.

"I shall not resist you, sir."

"Do you mean to tell me that you do not know of the foul attempt on this poor girl's life on the sea road the very day you disappeared from town?"

Mr. Dyre made no reply at once, but a harsh, grating sound issued from between his lips. Maxey even thought he heard him murmur through his clinched teeth:

"The black heart! The black heart!"

But his faded glance was scarcely lifted from the floor but that he became passive again.

"I can only say to you, sir, that I never heard of this thing before."

"Don't you read the newspapers?"

"Not except by accident. I have no interest in the world whatever."

"Do you never hear people talk?"

"I have heard nobody talk about this, but I have been away where I would be little likely to."

"Why did you go away?"

"Because it was necessary for me to have money. I have been engaged in an attempt to raise money by dishonest means—an attempt which failed as disastrously as it deserved. It was my belief until I came here that Annette had indeed voluntarily absented herself from my abode, as she had threatened to do. If you will ask the landlord at 40 Flood street, he will tell you that I left money in his charge to be given to her if she returned during my absence. I had, I could have, no possible ill will for that unfortunate girl. Neither was her life such that she could have acquired enemies. You speak in riddles, sir. Would it be asking too much that you should tell me the circumstances? But, no, you will not do that, for I am the man suspected."

"I think circumstances warrant a suspicion that you know more than you will admit. Nevertheless, lest I do an injustice, I will tell you what you ask."

He told it. Mr. Dyre listened motionless till the end. When it was over, he remained silent.

"Have you nothing to say to this?" asked Maxey. "Do you suspect nobody?"

"I have nothing to say, sir."

"Nothing?"

"Not a word."

"Well, then," cried Maxey excitedly, "there is only one course open to me."

He hurriedly stepped to a door at the door. Annette, whose eyes were not yet free from tears, implored his attention for a moment. He went into the parlor with her.

Miss Maxey, dressed for the street, sat in one corner of the room, apparently preoccupied, though the unusual color in her cheeks was evidence enough that she was disturbed by more than ordinary emotions. The artist barely noticed her. He was too much under the power of his new and contending feelings that filled his soul when Annette spoke to him to bend anything else, for Annette opened her heart to him and laid bare her sweet and forgiving nature as she never had done before. And she pleaded for the token of his regard for her which he was the least in the world desirous of granting. But what could he do under the spell of her presence? How could he say "No" even when the granting of her prayer would allow to slip through his fingers the first real key to the mystery of the sea road which he felt he had ever held? The beautiful face turned toward him so beseechingly, the dark eyes emphasized her words so eloquently that he had no power to resist.

He could not forget that Mr. Dye had brought her up, had given her a home; that he stood to her in place of a father. She could not bear to think of his being persecuted or molested on her account. If he would not speak, let him remain silent. The past was passed. Would not Mr. Maxey give her his promise not to follow up that dark matter further? Mr. Maxey did not want to, but for her sake Mr. Maxey would, and he did.

"I promise you," he said at length, "I will detain him no longer. I will tell him that he is at liberty to go where he pleases, and that I do it for his daughter's sake."

"Oh, no; please don't tell him that. It is not necessary that he should know that I interceded for him. I would rather not."

"Very well then," said Maxey. "It shall be it."

He left the room and dismissed Mr. Bailey from his post in the hall.

As he was holding the door open for the sly landlord to pass out, Miss Maxey came by him on her way to the street and as she went she flashed into her brother's face a look of mingled pity and contempt which made him feel decidedly uncomfortable.

"She thinks I have yielded to Annette too readily," he reflected, "and no doubt she is right. No doubt I have."

Still he could not retract his promise now. He went into the room where the somber man still sat.

"Mr. Dye, I have only one more question to ask you. Have you told me everything which you believe it is necessary for me as the guardian of Annette to know?"

"Sir, I have nothing more to say."

"I have done, sir."

Mr. Dye arose, calm and unmoved now as he had been at first, smoothed off his hat with his glistening sleeve, put it upon his head and made the following speech:

"Mr. Maxey, sir, to warn you, if you wish to retain me, to have me arrested. Necessity is a stern law. I must eat. If there is nothing for me here, I shall not remain here. I do not march think, in view of the manifold vicissitudes of life and the uncertainties of the applications which control human events, that if you let me go today it is at all probable you will ever see me again."

"You are at liberty to go where you will," said Maxey. "If you have told me the truth, there is no reason why you should not. If you have lied to me, settle it with your conscience."

He opened the door. Mr. Dye said not a word. He made a profound stage bow, settled his hat more firmly on his head and stalked out.

"And that is the end," thought the artist, with some bitterness, "of my experience as a detective."

CHAPTER XI.
MISS MAXEY TRIES.

Miss Maxey went out of the house in Ballavoire Square with no definite purpose in view. She was disappointed, vexed, even offended by what she considered, and justly, the slight-mindedness and Maxey's want of firmness, but she was entirely unable to see what she could do to remedy the mischief. She had waited for Mr. Dye's coming from the day she knew of Maxey's visit to Flood street with despairing impatience, and she had heard from the lips of Annette of his arrival in the house with an excitement which rendered her even incapable from the interview with him an almost unbearable hardship. Now at last she felt the long delayed time had come when something of the mystery of the cruel affair on the sea road was to be cleared away.

Miss Maxey longed to see the light of day poured in upon this dark deed. It was a longing not born of curiosity alone. All the sympathies of her broad and generous nature had been enlisted in the cause of the poor girl whom she had rescued from a nameless grave. Her outraged sense of justice made her adopt with a desire to know that the guilty had suffered for the wrong inflicted on a helpless girl. The thought that the perpetrator of this dastardly crime was left free to go about, unchallenged and unmolested, among his fellow creatures was at times almost maddening to her. And to think that after all that had transpired, on the very verge, it seemed to her, of the most important discoveries, the man who undoubtedly held the key of the whole matter in his hand, in all probability, who was himself the criminal for whom they sought, was, in order to satisfy the scruples of a too sensitive girl, to be allowed to put himself out of their reach forever. This distressed her almost beyond endurance.

And in spite of all this she had come to the conclusion, or at least to a reluctant acquiescence, that Maxey was right. Impulsive Miss Maxey undoubtedly was, but she was quite capable of putting a bridle upon her tongue in a moment of anger, for the very reason that she distrusted her own power of self control. Not for the world would she have uttered a syllable that could by any possibility wound the sensitive spirit of Annette, and she did not dare trust herself to enter into an argument with her brother in her presence. So she had come out into the freer atmosphere of the street.

It was a cold, gloomy afternoon in January. The sky was dark and threatened snow. Miss Maxey was well wrapped up and rather enjoyed the crisp atmosphere. It was certainly an antidote for the fever within her.

She walked down the few paces which were necessary to take her to the high picketed fence that separated the street from the river. For a moment she looked out over the wastes of wintered ice, and in that moment an idea came to her—out of so little do great issues sometimes arise. If Miss Maxey had gone her customary way up the street into the main avenue, she would doubtless have wandered about the neighborhood till she had got the better of her emotions and have returned home, resigned to the inevitable, and so the part that she was to play in the unravelling of the sea road mystery would never have been. But at the moment when she looked out between the pickets the idea came to her that she might, by remaining where she was, get a better view of the somber Mr. Dye than she had been able to obtain in the house through a half opened door. It was only this and no more. All that followed came gradually and step by step.

Her brother had expressed his intention of dismissing Mr. Dyre at once. The mysterious visitor ought by this time to be coming down the stairs and out into the street. She drew her veil over her face and turned toward the door. Almost at the same instant the door opened, and that, the shiny coat and all that appertained thereto emerged into the open air.

Mr. Dye did not look about him. His head did not seem to be capable of holding itself erect. His eyes were fixed on the ground. He plunged his hands deep into his coat pockets and set out with a slow and not exactly steady step toward the avenue. Almost involuntarily, certainly without reflecting upon what she did, Miss Maxey followed him at the same slow pace. When he reached the corner, he stopped and looked up and down the street, as if undecided which way he had best go. His shoulders were elackened her pace lest she should overtake him.

After a momentary hesitation he made his decision. He took the way to the right. Was he going back to Flood street? His hands remained deep in his coat pockets and set just with a slow and not exactly steady step toward the avenue. Almost involuntarily, certainly without reflecting upon what she did, Miss Maxey followed him at the same slow pace. When he reached the corner, he stopped and looked up and down the street, as if undecided which way he had best go. His shoulders were sl

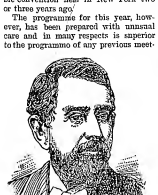
IN THE FOREST CITY.

THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

In Some Respects It Is Expected That This Will Be the Most Interesting Gathering of the Organization—Something About the Programme and Those Who Will Attend.

The Christian Endeavor society will meet in annual convention in Cleveland on July 11, the session continuing till the evening of the 15th. It is expected that in some respects this will be the most remarkable gathering of this altogether remarkable society that has ever been held, although it is hardly expected, probably, that the attendance will be as large as was that of the memorable convention held in New York two or three years ago.

The programmes for this year, however, has been prepared with unusual care and in many respects is superior to the programme of any previous meeting.



REV. GEORGE DANA BOARDMAN.

ing. On Wednesday, the 11th, at no n, there will be a preliminary meeting of the board of trustees for prayer, conference and transaction of business. In the evening, by which time it is expected most of the delegates will have arrived, 15 of the largest churches of Cleveland will be open for the holding of 15 simultaneous meetings. These will be addressed by some of the most interesting speakers in the United States, including Rev. George Dana Boardman of Philadelphia, Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago, Secretary Comstock of New York, Rev. John Henry Burrows of Chicago, Rev. Tennis Hamlin of Washington, Rev. J. S. Hanson of Chicago, Mrs. I. M. Alden (Pansy) of Germantown, Pa., and many others equally well known, including representatives from the Y. M. C. A., the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, the Christian Endeavor work among the life savers and lightkeeps, the Travelers' Union of Christian Endeavor and the Floating Societies of Christian Endeavor.

It will be seen that the work will be unusually broad this year, and the promise in that direction foreshadowed by the variety of speakers at the Wednesday evening's meeting is amply borne out by the remainder of the programme. The address of welcome will be made in the Saengerfest building on Thursday morning by Governor McKinley on behalf of the state and by Rev. J. Z. Tyler on behalf of city pastors and the committee of 1894, while the response for the Endeavorers will be made by Rev. F. E. Dille, D. D., of San Francisco. The same afternoon there will be denominational rallies in the churches of the city.

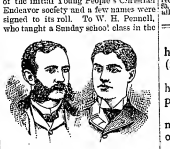
The evening meetings that day will be held in the Saengerfest building and a huge tent to be erected for the occasion. Special subjects have been chosen for discussion on Friday and Saturday mornings, the first being "Good Citizenship" and the second "International and Interdenominational Fellowship." These meetings will be held both in the tent and the Saengerfest, as it is expected that the attendance will be too large for either to hold, and will be opened by "free parliaments." Each afternoon there will be addresses delivered by leading lights, on Friday evening there will also be addresses, and on Saturday evening receptions and rallies of states, territorial and provincial delegations will be held in churches used as headquarters. The Sunday services will consist mainly of addresses and sermons, closing in the evening in both the tent and the Saengerfest building with two consecration meetings, conducted by President Francis E. Clark, D. D., and Secretary John Willis Baer.

MRS. I. M. ALDEN (PANSY).

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday mornings 10 churches will be open at 6.30 for 10 early prayer meetings. Throughout the entire convention the music will be a most attractive feature, the directors being Mrs. P. S. Foster of Washington, Mr. J. G. Warren of Cleveland and Mr. H. C. Lincoln of Philadelphia, the Park sisters, consisting of New York, leading the singing. Cleveland is getting ready to entertain the delegates to the convention in a manner that will cause them to remember that beautiful city by the shore of Lake Erie as long as they live, but inasmuch as fully 30,000 people are expected to be present Cleveland is fully aware that it will be a crowded city while they are there. Of course no free entertainment will be provided, but the utmost pains will be taken to secure desirable places for the delegates during their sojourn. Rates per day for board and lodging will not average more than $1.50. If you intend to go, however, do not write to Cleveland, but to the secretion and entertainment manager of your own state. You can learn his name and address by writing to your state headquarters. Competent members of the local reception committee will have charge of all depots and steamboat landings, and each will be responsible for the guests arriving at his station. The members of this committee will wear white yachting caps trimmed with gold bands, white and gold being the official colors of the Cleveland union and this convention. Delegates on arriving will be directed to their state headquarters, where badges will be distributed and assistance given in the matter of arranging for accommodation. Persons who desire to engage rooms only and to take meals near the tent and the Saengerfest hall will find large tent well arranged dining halls at no great distance from the auditorium.

So much for the advance arrangements for the thirteenth annual convention of this society, which, darker the few years of its existence, has become one of the most potent existing influences in the spread of what may be called the new Christianity—Christianity of love and good works, and not a Christianity of mere creed.

The story of the growth of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, if properly told, would read like a romance—a consecrated romance, if you please—and one of the most thrilling and inspiring that has ever been put into form. Its germ came into being in Portland, Me., in 1881. There had been a revival in the Williston church of that city, and many young converts had been added to its roll. Dr. Francis E. Clark, its pastor and the present president of the society, thought long and earnestly upon some plan to interest these young people in the new life which they had started out to live. On the evening of Feb. 3 he invited a number of them to meet him at his own residence to talk about forming a society, the work of which should tend to strengthen them "in the way."



PRESIDENT CLARK. SECRETARY BAER.

The meeting was an extraordinary one, not in point of numbers, for not more than a score or more were present, but its results have been vast beyond measurement. A rough draft was then and there drawn up of the constitution of the initial Young People's Christian Endeavor society and a few names were signed to its roll. To W. H. Pennell, who taught a Sunday school class in the Williston church and has ever since been prominent in the society's work, was vouchsafed the privilege of being the first to sign this roll.

It was not until August, 1881, that the Christian Endeavor movement extended beyond the limits of Portland, but its work there was so interesting and efficient as to arrest the attention of a writer for a Boston periodical. In its columns he told the story of "How One Church Takes Care of Its Young People." If 1,000 wires had been laid from Portland in 1,000 directions, reaching to the uttermost parts of the earth, and an electrical message had been sent over each of them, the result could not have been more interesting or more instantaneous. Everywhere in the large cities and in the remote hamlets Christian Endeavor societies began to spring up. By the beginning of 1890 there were 1,013 societies with 66,000 members. In 1891 there were rising of 16,000 societies, with more than 1,000,000 members; in 1892, 18,500 societies, with 1,100,000 members; in 1893, between 21,000 and 22,000 societies, with nearly 1,400,000 members. I have not the figures for this year at hand, but it is stated that the increase has gone bravely on and that the army of Christian Endeavorers is larger and more enthusiastic than ever before.

The names of the society's aims and work is too well understood by this time to make it necessary to go into details regarding it here, for Christian Endeavor societies are to be found everywhere. It is probably not too much to say that it would be difficult to get 100 young people of the better sort together in many places in the United States without including some who belong to the order. This fact cannot be paralleled with regard to any other religious organization.

More than that, the Christian Endeavor society has extended far beyond the lines that separate this republic from the rest of the world. It is to be found in Canada and in Mexico and across seas in Europe, under the burning sun of Africa, by the rushing waters of the Ganges and upon the shores of the China sea. In Brazil and Argentine, in Cuba and Chile, in Australia and New Zealand, in Samoa, in New Guinea, in practically every land where Christianity has made its way at all, there also has the Christian Endeavor society taken root.

To the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., the present president; John Willis Baer, the general secretary, and William Shaw, the treasurer, falls the distinction of being the leading executive officers of the most extensive and the most well beloved religious organization now in existence. What its ultimate strength and influence will amount to no person may foretell.

JOHN F. WILLOUGHBY.

mgus Need It.

It was "Mrs. Doodles," I believe, in the play which the late William E. Burton made so popular, who bought a secondhand coverplate bearing the name of "Thompson," because "Doodles might die, and she might marry a man named Thompson, and then it would be so handy to have in the house."

There never was a fiction that has not been equaled or surpassed by a fact. I heard the other day of a well known St. Louis lady—a widow of some years standing—who actually bought a wedding dress in Paris because it "was so very, very cheap, and she might need it for herself some of these days." How poor Burton would have laughed over this true story!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are listened to with interest. Mrs. Pinkham's letters, which have been published for years, have done a great work. For five years I was troubled with kidney disease, which finally developed into female complaints. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. I had given up all hope of ever being well, when I was induced by a friend to write to Mrs. Pinkham, asking her advice. In return I received a kind letter, telling me what to do. I followed her directions carefully, and in less than three months I was a well woman. I am now in the enjoyment of health, and can conduct my business successfully. I feel that I owe my life to Mrs. Pinkham, and shall always speak a good word for her medicine when a friend needs it.—Mrs. Morgan, 50 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialists in heart disease, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

Every Man whose watch has been rung out of the bow (ring), by a pickpocket,

Every Man whose watch has been damaged by dropping out of the bow, and

Every Man of sense who merely compares the old pull-out bow and the new will exclaim: "Ought to have been made long ago!"

It can't be twisted off the case. Can only be had with Jas. Boss Filled and other cases stamped with this trade mark——

Send for a watch case opener (free).
Keystone Watch Case Co., Philadelphia.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R. RUNS THROUGH CARS TO

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, Grand Forks and winnipeg

TO HELENA.	PULLMAN
BUTTE.	SLEEPING CARS,
SPOKANE.	ELEGANT
TACOMA.	DINING CARS
SEATTLE.	TOURIST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 7:34 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:05 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent, N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Those Pimples

Are tell-tale symptoms that your blood is not right—full of impurities, causing a sluggish and unsightly complexion. A few bottles of S. S. S. will remove all these and impure matter, cleanse the blood thoroughly, and give a clear and rosy complexion. It is most effective, and entirely harmless.

Chas. Heeren, 52 Laurel Street, Phila., says: "I have had ivy vepen a humor in my blood, which made me dread to shave, as small sores or pimples would be cut, thus causing disfigurement. S. S. S. cured me entirely, and I feel clear and smooth." Mrs. Mary Hall, Jacksonville, Fla., says: "I found S. S. S. to be just the medicine I needed. It toned my system, gave me a splendid appetite, sleep well and feel like running a foot race." Treat on blood and skin diseases mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alcide Perreau, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Joseph Kelso, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of April, 1892, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May, 1893, at 10 o'clock p. m., in book 27 of mortgages on page 500, by which default there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of three hundred and thirty eight dollars and fifty-five cents, and no proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage debt or any part thereof; and said mortgage containing a provision that if default shall be made in the payment of said sum of money, or any part thereof, at the time and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements, of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs or assigns, administrators or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said premises described in said mortgage, with the appurtenances, agreeable to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said note and mortgage, together with all charges and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty dollars, as therein stipulated, and the surplus remaining the further conditions of the said mortgage to be void, as by reference thereto will more fully appear; and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, and the whole sum secured by said mortgage is now due and payable on said notes and mortgage, and there is now claimed to be due thereon for principal and interest the sum of three hundred and thirty eight dollars and fifty-five cents, and no proceedings at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage debt or any part thereof; and said mortgage containing a provision that if default shall be made in the payment of said sum of money, or any part thereof, at the time and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements, of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs or assigns, administrators or assigns, are authorized and empowered to sell the said premises described in said mortgage, with the appurtenances

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 25 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Republican County Convention at Crookston, June 29th.

Populist Legislative Convention for 51st district, at Crookston July 6th.

Populist State Convention, July 10th, at St. Paul.

Republican State Convention, July 11th, at St. Paul.

Grain Growers Convention, at Minneapolis, July 12th.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 5th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th Distrfict, September 11th, at Fergus Falls.

AS NEAR AS we can figure it, at date of present writing, the deputy marshal business is the most lucrative employment going.

THE Norman county pop convention elected delegates to the congressional convention favorable to Boen, first choice, with E. E. Lommen, second. As Polk county can control and Lommen has Polk county, he is very liable to be the populist nominee.

IF the present is a sample of the way the government would run a railroad we are most emphatically not in sympathy with the populistic idea of "government control of railroads." The sample we have—the Northern Pacific railroad that is now under control of the government is sufficient for us, thank you.

THE indorsement by the Polk county pop convention, of P. M. Ringdal, for senator, probably knocks out the aspirations of B. M. Chesley, of Norman county, for that position. Our populistic friends are making a great mistake when they turn down their tried and experienced public servants and substitute men and inexperienced men in their place. But then, they, like the rest of the average race of humanity seem to have lots to learn yet before they reach perfection.

THE news from the great strike on Tuesday morning, gave indications of an early settlement of the matter —a consummation greatly to be desired. While in the country we have not felt the force of the strike, it has been bad enough to make everybody fervently long for a peaceable settlement. After a consultation with Stockholders the great wagon manufacturer, President Debs issued an ultimatum and outlined a basis upon which he would settle and declare the strike off. It is thought that a very few days will settle the matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

THE Minneapolis Evening Journal publishes a dispatch from Fergus Falls that gives the impression that Boen has a walk-away for re-nomination. It says that even "Senator Lommen is really working for Boen, and Boen will be nominated by acclamation." Interviewing Senator Lommen on Tuesday morning that gentleman said: "You may say that there is no truth in the Minneapolis Journal's Fergus Falls dispatch, which was very evidently dictated in the interest of Boen by his friends. If he wins in the fight, he must do it solely on his own resources as he can in no sense make a pack-mule of me, on which to ride into office. I have made no very great efforts to secure the nomination until I was so handsomely endorsed by my own county, but now I shall come up as big a fight as I can able to make and if I do not secure it, it will be no fault of mine. Norman county instructed for Boen first and one last and that is hardly showing the courtesy due to Polk county for past political favors and what she expects in the future. She will come before the legislative convention asking for two places in the house Hereabouts Polk county, that can absolutely control the situation has given her a more than generous share, and now at the very first opportunity she goes back on Polk county, which is not fair to say the least. I do not say that this will affect her chances in the legislative convention, but it would only be human nature to retaliate in kind. So far as I am personally concerned, it certainly will not affect my actions in the least. I am not running my campaign in the interest of H. E. Boen."

Probably the greatest strike in the history of the world has been on for about a week and as yet the outcome seems problematical. There is no question about the right of a man to labor for whom he choose or not to do so, but it does not seem so clear to us that he has any right to dictate to other men, who they shall or whom they shall not work for, or whom they shall or shall not board. If this system should obtain there would America cease to be a free and independent country.

THE reply of Cush Davis to a committee of the A. R. U., who had requested him to support Debs' resolution in the senate, has the right ring to it and shows that Senator Davis is made of the right material. Senator Davis said "No," most emphatically, saying that he could not support a resolution that sought to legalize an illegal action. If the head of the government was composed of the same kind of clay as Cushman K. Davis such a condition of things could not exist an hour. But Grover never did have any sand even in war times.

THE REVIEW TABLE.

Mark Twain has never written anything more striking than the article "In Defense of Harriet Shelley," the first instalment of which appears in the July number of the North American Review. As its title implies the paper is in the nature of a vindication of the memory of the poet's wife from biographical misrepresentation, and even those who are not specially interested in the subject cannot fail to be attracted by the manner in which it is treated by the famous humorist.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

The blind of Minnesota are holding a convention at Minneapolis this week.

A Windom, Robert Nolen was given a 6-year sentence for stealing fat steed.

A new postoffice has been established at Cowgrove, Watonwan county, with Conrad Riel postmaster.

The Elysian village council has decided to put in a system of waterworks. A contract for an 8-inch well has been made.

The first carload of California apricots of the season of 1894 was shipped East from Fresno Thursday. It went to Minneapolis.

The Minnesota supreme court allowed $125,000 for attorney's fees in four cases against the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad.

John Goodnow of Minneapolis has been elected chairman of the executive committee of the National League of Republican clubs.

An annual examination for entrance to Y le college was conducted at St. Paul by Professor Boyce of the chair of philosophy, Tuesday.

Ella Allen, who killed John H. Clapp at St. Paul the first force of the blow, It has been bad enough to make everybody fervently long for a peaceable settlement. After a consultation with Stockholders the great wagon manufacturer, President Debs issued an ultimatum and outlined a basis upon which he would settle and declare the strike off. It is thought that a very few days will settle the matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The Minneapolis Evening Journal publishes a dispatch from Fergus Falls that gives the impression that Boen has a walk-away for re-nomination. It says that even "Senator Lommen is really working for Boen, and Boen will be nominated by acclamation." Interviewing Senator Lommen on Tuesday morning that gentleman said: "You may say that there is no truth in the Minneapolis Journal's Fergus Falls dispatch, which was very evidently dictated in the interest of Boen by his friends. If he wins in the fight, he must do it solely on his own resources as he can in no sense make a pack-mule of me, on which to ride into office. I have made no very great efforts to secure the nomination until I was so handsomely endorsed by my own county, but now I shall come up as big a fight as I can able to make and if I do not secure it, it will be no fault of mine. Norman county instructed for Boen first and one last and that is hardly showing the courtesy due to Polk county for past political favors and what she expects in the future. She will come before the legislative convention asking for two places in the house Hereabouts Polk county, that can absolutely control the situation has given her a more than generous share, and now at the very first opportunity she goes back on Polk county, which is not fair to say the least. I do not say that this will affect her chances in the legislative convention, but it would only be human nature to retaliate in kind. So far as I am personally concerned, it certainly will not affect my actions in the least. I am not running my campaign in the interest of H. E. Boen."

Probably the greatest strike in the history of the world has been on for about a week and as yet the outcome seems problematical. There is no question about the right of a man to labor for whom he choose or not to do so, but it does not seem so clear to us that he has any right to dictate to other men, who they shall or whom they shall not work for, or whom they shall or shall not board. If this system should obtain there would America cease to be a free and independent country.

THE reply of Cush Davis to a committee of the A. R. U., who had requested him to support Debs' resolution in the senate, has the right ring to it and shows that Senator Davis is made of the right material. Senator Davis said "No," most emphatically, saying that he could not support a resolution that sought to legalize an illegal action. If the head of the government was composed of the same kind of clay as Cushman K. Davis such a condition of things could not exist an hour. But Grover never did have any sand even in war times.

THE REVIEW TABLE.

Mark Twain has never written anything more striking than the article "In Defense of Harriet Shelley," the first instalment of which appears in the July number of the North American Review. As its title implies the paper is in the nature of a vindication of the memory of the poet's wife from biographical misrepresentation, and even those who are not specially interested in the subject cannot fail to be attracted by the manner in which it is treated by the famous humorist.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

The blind of Minnesota are holding a convention at Minneapolis this week.

A Windom, Robert Nolen was given a 6-year sentence for stealing fat steed.

A new postoffice has been established at Cowgrove, Watonwan county, with Conrad Riel postmaster.

The Elysian village council has decided to put in a system of waterworks. A contract for an 8-inch well has been made.

The first carload of California apricots of the season of 1894 was shipped East from Fresno Thursday. It went to Minneapolis.

The Minnesota supreme court allowed $125,000 for attorney's fees in four cases against the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad.

John Goodnow of Minneapolis has been elected chairman of the executive committee of the National League of Republican clubs.

An annual examination for entrance to Y le college was conducted at St. Paul by Professor Boyce of the chair of philosophy, Tuesday.

Ella Allen, who killed John H. Clapp at St. Paul the first force of the blow, It has been bad enough to make everybody fervently long for a peaceable settlement. After a consultation with Stockholders the great wagon manufacturer, President Debs issued an ultimatum and outlined a basis upon which he would settle and declare the strike off. It is thought that a very few days will settle the matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The Minneapolis Evening Journal publishes a dispatch from Fergus Falls that gives the impression that Boen has a walk-away for re-nomination. It says that even "Senator Lommen is really working for Boen, and Boen will be nominated by acclamation." Interviewing Senator Lommen on Tuesday morning that gentleman said: "You may say that there is no truth in the Minneapolis Journal's Fergus Falls dispatch, which was very evidently dictated in the interest of Boen by his friends. If he wins in the fight, he must do it solely on his own resources as he can in no sense make a pack-mule of me, on which to ride into office. I have made no very great efforts to secure the nomination until I was so handsomely endorsed by my own county, but now I shall come up as big a fight as I can able to make and if I do not secure it, it will be no fault of mine. Norman county instructed for Boen first and one last and that is hardly showing the courtesy due to Polk county for past political favors and what she expects in the future. She will come before the legislative convention asking for two places in the house Hereabouts Polk county, that can absolutely control the situation has given her a more than generous share, and now at the very first opportunity she goes back on Polk county, which is not fair to say the least. I do not say that this will affect her chances in the legislative convention, but it would only be human nature to retaliate in kind. So far as I am personally concerned, it certainly will not affect my actions in the least. I am not running my campaign in the interest of H. E. Boen."

Probably the greatest strike in the history of the world has been on for about a week and as yet the outcome seems problematical.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

A Synopsis of the Work Done at Fosston.

Written for THE JOURNAL by Prof. Gregg.

The Institute held at Fosston was the last one of the summer circuit. Fosston is the terminus of the Great Northern Railway, which runs east from Crookston. It is situated in the centre of an agricultural district of more than ordinary richness. Fortunately for the future of the country the farms are smaller around Fosston than in many parts of the state.

The members of the institute corps were given a splendid reception by the citizens. They were treated to a drive through the country around the town on the afternoon of their arrival, and no pains were spared to make their sojourn pleasant. The cornet band of the town also played in honor of the occasion.

When the hour for opening the institute arrived, the people were called together by the excellent playing of a Highland piper from Argyle.

The institute was opened at 9 a. m. Supt. Gregg gave an address on the dairy cow. He was glad to notice that the country around was so well adapted to dairying, and he expressed the hope, that in the future this industry would be found to flourish throughout the whole neighborhood. He dwelt upon the importance of having cows to enlive in the fall, that the owner may be enabled to make butter in the winter season when it brings a good price. He dwelt upon the points of a good dairy cow. Prominent among these depth at the flank. A cow with good depth at the flank was seldom a poor dairy cow, and more especially if she had steepness of pitch at the crops. This indicated a lack of tendency to make flesh or in other words that the energies of the cow were directed to making milk rather than beef. The third important point was an udder, which should be large and capacious. It should be evenly quartered and should be possessed of glandular quality, to enable it to hold an ample supply of milk. The fourth important point is a good system of milk veins. The milk veins should extend far forward on the under line on the abdomen. The veins should be clearly discernible on the udder. The openings through which the veins pass into the body should be large, and if the openings can be found on each side so much the better. The farmers should sort out the cattle in the neighborhood by these marks, and then they should improve them by introducing good dairy sires. He had noticed a man leading a cow to pasture this morning. He felt sorry for the man, as the cow was of the greyhound type, with plenty of ability to run, but had little capacity to make milk, and very probably the owner was not aware of the miserable economy of the cow, arising from the fact that she was not bred properly for making milk. The points by which a good cow may be known are not difficult to learn, and every farmer should try and become acquainted with them.

Dr. Curryer followed with a short address on correcting certain bad habits in horses. Crowding and crowding in the stall and bunching. One of the most effective methods of curing a horse of bunching is to hitch him first on the left hand and leave him there till he is willing to go. In this way we give him an experience which he seldom forgets. A horse which lies down and obstinately refuses to get up will soon be brought to his feet if a little water be poured into his nostrils. Very troublesome horses can be managed easily, if we only know the proper methods of doing this. One of the most pleasing features about the doctor's methods of training and handling horses is this, he always recommends the adoption of methods that are humane.

Theodore Louis followed with an address on corn. He had noticed that the land around Fosston contained more sand than that around Crookston. This would probably be so far favorable for the growing of corn. If the farmers in this neighborhood succeeded in growing corn, it would certainly be a blessing to the country. It would enable them to practice a regular rotation it would give them a more perfectly to keep their land clean. It would vary the work of the season and it would provide a plentiful supply of food for different kinds of live stock. He then dwelt upon the importance of selecting the seed from the well perfected ears that were first ripe. By giving close attention to this matter, the ripening period of corn had been advanced fully two or three weeks. His son had in one instance selected seed by hanging blue, and they noticed the following year that much of the corn was late in ripening. He prefers a dover sod to plow under when he plants a crop of corn. Some farmers dying in the Red River Valley, had said to him that clover could not be grown. He thought that it would be found ultimately that clover would grow even there. He favored shallow cultivation for corn. In answer to questions he said that he planted his corn forty-four inches apart between the rows, but if smaller varieties had to be grown here, they might perhaps be planted closer. He commenced harrowing his corn about three days after planting. The harrowed it until it was about four inches high, and then followed with Breed's weeder until it was about eight or nine inches high. After that he cultivated it till it was too far advanced to admit of doing this any longer. He would not name any varieties as the farmers could best ascertain for themselves what varieties were best adapted to their soils, and which were the best results.

C. Clough, of Fosston, mentioned that he had grown corn for eight years in succession, and had only met with one instance of failure during all those years. He had also succeeded in growing sweet corn successfully.

Mrs. Tilson followed with an address on poultry. She dwelt upon the advantage of having revenue coming in at different times of the year. Those who grew wheat have but one harvest, whereas, those who kept poultry had a succession of harvests throughout the year. They might be small, but they were helpful nevertheless. Eggs laid in winter should be sought in preference to those laid in summer and kept till winter. They could be so kept, but they were not so valuable for cooking uses, nor were they so palatable as the fresh laid eggs. She had been informed that fully ten cents more per dozen would be given in winter for fresh laid eggs than for those laid in summer. She dwelt upon the evils arising from feeding too much corn. The egg product was diminished by so feeding it, and it also had a tendency to produce liver disease in fowls. Hens prefer a variety of grains, hence farmers who keep them should aim to humor them in this respect, as far as it might be practicable. It was very important that they should get gravel. When the supply of gravel is insufficient various diseases of digestion are caused, and the food is apt to become impaired in the crop. In answer to questions she said the best kinds of hens for laying the year round were Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The best kinds for laying in winter only were Brahmas and Javas. She preferred an earthern floor for fowls. It would be well to remove the top layer at least a cow to replace it with fresh mud. It would serve a good end to scatter chaff or some such substance over the floor in the winter season to scratch in for the grain. This would give the hens labor in scratching for it, and this was good for them. No more than fifty hens should be kept together.

Dr. Curryer talked on the education of horses. He should raise good horses, and we should raise them for some special use. We should not let them mature before breaking them. We should begin to educate them the very first day of their birth. Animals recognize the law that the stronger rule the weaker. We should demonstrate to them thus early that we are stronger than they are. We could also win their confidence by feeding them sugar. They would soon learn to come to us. He always liked to see horses and colts running around the corner when he went to the field where they were. It made it apparent that they were well treated. He then showed how they could be easily broken to lead by the halter.

Theodore Louis then discussed the question of growing clover. He spoke about the difficulties which attended his first efforts to grow this valuable plant. He had first to clear off a crop of barley and plow it under. Then to sow a crop of rye and plow this under. This he followed with a crop of corn which was harvested and cut off in the field. This crop was in turn plowed under and followed by a crop of rye sown to clover. He could now get clover to grow. He was very successful in doing it, and by the aid of clover and hogs he was able to get one hundred bushels of ears of corn per acre. Also he cleared the sown acre of lands and the common red or smooth on ordinary soil.

A copy of Farmers Institute Annual No. 6 was then given to each person present. In this way about four-hundred and fifty books were distributed, so that fully that number attended the morning session. The farmers have come to prize these books very highly They are eager to get them. Often times they enquire of different members of each institute corps on the cars or where they may happen to meet casually, whether they cannot obtain a copy, and they very seldom or never apply in vain.

After dinner the cornet band again played until the time for re-assembling, and the highland piper again called the meeting together with "The March of the Cameron Men."

W. L. Carlyle then gave an address on handling milk. He dwelt upon the great importance of cleanliness. The stable should be kept clean and all vessels connected with the dairy should be kept scrupulously clean. The dairy-man also should be a model of cleanliness. He preferred setting in deep cans rather than in shallow pans. The cans should be immersed in water at from 40 to 49 degrees. It should be skimmed in summer at the end of every twelve hours, and in the winter at the end of twenty-four. The cream should be kept sweet until twenty-four hours before churning, when it should be ripened. Every time cream is added to the vessel in which it is kept the cream in the same should be stirred. In summer when cream is being ripened it should be brought to a temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees, and in winter from 64 to 70 degrees. Cream should never be allowed to freeze. A small amount of butter color may be added to the cream before commencing to churn. It is important to strain the cream before churning. A churn without paddles is preferable. Churning should be done as frequently as twice a week in summer, and once a week in winter. Of course if it can be done even oftener the result will be more satisfactory Butter should come in from 25 to 35 minutes. Mr. Carlyle went over the whole process of butter-making. He showed how to wash the butter, how to salt it and how to put it up in pound prints ready for market.

Professor Shaw then discussed the question of destroying the Canada thistle and wild mustard. He described by sketches on the blackboard the habits of root growth, which characterized the Canada thistle. He said that any system of cultivation that would prevent the plants from breathing by means of the leaves for a single season would doubtless exterminate the thistle. He said that where trees were only some small patches a spade might be used and in the absence of a spade a hoe. The thistles should be cut off under the surface of the ground and the work should be repeated every week or two, throughout the season. It would be found at the end of the season that the thistles had all gone. Where a whole field was infected they might be destroyed by means of the bare fallow, the harrow should be followed by cultivator every week during the first half of the season, in order to induce the seeds in the ground to germinate to the greatest possible extent. Then the ground should be plowed about the middle of the season, and a similar process of cultivating should follow. Where corn will grow no better plan can be adopted than to grow two or more crops successively on the same piece of land.

Several questions were answered by each of the members of the corps before the meeting adjourned.

Prof. Shaw called attention to the ground work that was being done by the State Farm School, at St. Anthony's park. He addressed himself particularly to the young men who were present. He told them about lectures which were being given on the various subjects, which engaged the attention of the farmer. He dwelt upon the practical nature of the work. He spoke of the instruction given in carpentering, black-smithing and in slaughtering and dressing meat for home use. He told how they were posted in reference to dairy matters. He described the work done in the seed department, which related to the breeding, feeding and management of cattle, sheep and swine. He said these splendid opportunities were open to all. The only charge virtually that was made was for board, and last winter this was less than $3.70 per week. No farmer's son in the State of Minnesota should fail to neglect the splendid opportunities thus brought within the reach by this magnificient school.

In a few well chosen words Supt. Gregg closed the last institute of the summer circuit. Since May 23, eighteen institutes have been held. The average attendance has been between four and five-hundred. In no institute has one word been uttered with the intention to wound or cause pain. The attention in every place has not only been respectful but it has been most earnest. There has been a positive hunger manifested on the part of the farmers every where for information in reference to better methods of farming. The inquiry has dropped from many a lip at each meeting how long will it be before we get back. Without indeed has any work been undertaken in connection with agricultural matters, which has been so successful.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. Wilson, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried, and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, fourth ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, piles, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

Permanently Cured

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Hot Springs C. H., Va.

AYER'S PILLS

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

C. A. FISCHER.

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-barring Barrels, Rescues Guns of all Kinds also Novelty Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rousseau & Weis' Implement store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

Pictures of Sport With Rod and Gun

Reproduced in 8 colors from originals painted from life by Carl Rungius. They are three meter prints, 9x12 inches, entitled "Deer Fishing at Block Island," "Quail Shooting in the Virginia and Tennessee Foothills" and "Moose Hunting." All are distinct, beautiful and rich in effect. For framing. Size 12 inches wide by 9 inches high.

AS "FOREST AND STREAM" PREMIUM.

We will send the sportsman's favorite journal, Forest and Stream, one year and the 8 of the set of four pictures in $9 value) for $5. Or, Forest and Stream 3 months and choice of two of the pictures for $3. This is a rare offer. Send for illustrated catalogue of the best books on outdoor sports.

Forest and Stream Pub. Co.,

P. O. Box 2832, New York City.

NOTICE OF PET. TION.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In the matter of the petition of Ole Johnson Stadsvold, asking to change his name to that of Ole Johnson Stadsvold, minor female child, under fourteen years old, and for the change of name of said child.

The petition of Ole Johnson Stadsvold and Ole Johnson Stadsvold, minor female child having been presented to the court holding session at the court house in the village of Crookston in said county, and that said child has for more than ten years last past have been, now resides at the County of and claims to be a citizen of North Dakota, and is unknown under the name of Ole Johnson Stadsvold, but under the name of Ole Johnson Stadsvold, and the petitioners desired and asked from the said court that the name of said minor child be changed to that of Ole Johnson Stadsvold, as appears from the petition on file and of record in the office of the clerk of said court, and the said petition coming on to be heard before said court on the court house, in the city of Crookston, County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, the 26th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the 26th day of September, A. D. 1894, said day being one first day of the adjournment May 26th, 1894, of the regular May term of said court, and it appearing to the court that the petitioners are residents of the State of North Dakota, and that the said petition is based upon good and sufficient reasons, and that no one appears in opposition thereto, and that the prayer of said petition be granted, and that the name of said child be changed as prayed for in said petition.

Now, therefore it is ordered that the said petition be heard before this court at the court house, in the city of Crookston, County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1894, and the 26th day of September, A. D. 1894, said day being one first day of the adjournment May 26th, 1894, of the regular May term of said court, and it appearing to the court that the petitioners are residents of the State of North Dakota, and that the said petition is based upon good and sufficient reasons, and that no one appears in opposition thereto, and that the prayer of said petition be granted, and that the name of said child be changed as prayed for in said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly paper printed and published in said county and state, such publication to begin Thursday, July 5, 1894.

By the Court, FRANK DISS,
District Judge.

Dated June 29th, 1894.

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance, or any Good security on long Time and Reasonable interest. Prompt attention to collections in all parts of the United States, Canada, Local and County manager wanted. Address The Bankers' Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

MANAGERS ADMIT.

THAT THEY HAVE A LARGE JOB ON HAND

In Fighting the A. R. U. Strike, but They Have No Idea of Entering Into a Compromise, They Say—A St. Paul Manager Gives the Railroad Side of the Question. The Other Side by Debs.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The General Manager's association has issued the following statement regarding the strike:

"There is no attempt made to deny that the strike is widespread and serious. This embarrasses the freight traffic of the West to the most serious extent of any strike since the eastern labor troubles of 1877 and 1878. The companies have no idea of entering into a compromise with the strikers on any basis whatever. The railroad companies fail to see the justice of the position taken by the A. R. U. of fighting Mr. Pullman over the heads of the railroad companies, or have no control over Mr. Pullman's movements, nor his manufacturing business. The men who are now on strike are considered

As Employes Who Have Resigned

their positions, and who are not anxious for work. Any men, who desire employment under the railroad companies centering in Chicago, and who come here will be furnished positions and will be afforded protection. Men are now being hired in the East and brought to Chicago to take the place of men who will not work. It has been charged by the A. R. U. that the General Managers' association is importing men from Canada. This statement is absolutely false. The railroad companies do not propose to employ any men to take the place of the men now on strike, unless such men are American citizens, and wherever we find a man who wants to work to take the place of a man who will not work, whether the substitute comes from New York or from California, we propose to give him a job and see that he is protected."

THE RAILROAD SIDE.

The Question to Be Settled Not Entirely One of Pullmans.

ST. PAUL, July 2.—In an interview the general manager of one of the railroads gives the railroad side of the boycott. "The question," he said, "is a much deeper one than appears on the surface. Suppose, for example, the companies using these cars had the power to get rid of them and did so at the command of these gentlemen in Chicago. Now it is the Pullman car which is boycotted. Next week it might be some other car. That tells the story. For once concede the power of any labor organization to prevent one article in use by a railroad company, there would be no end to boycott business. It was only recently that the Knights of Labor declared a boycott against the product of a flouring mill at Minneapolis. This boycott was approved by the American Railway union. The railroad companies may soon be notified not to carry the flour under penalty of a strike.

Would Soon Become General.

"Very soon the product of every manufacturing concern which has had a quarrel with its employes would be boycotted and the railroad companies required not to carry them under the same penalty. But this is not all. Under all such demands lies the assumption of a power on the part of this labor organization to control the management and property of the railroad companies. The single question now is whether Mr. Debs and his associates or the owners of the roads shall control these properties. It is an issue which has been approaching a culminating crisis for some months past. It has got to be fought out some time and before long. It might as well be fought out now as ever."

AN ADDRESS BY DEBS.

He Sets Forth the Causes and Objects of the Present Strike.

CHICAGO, July 2.—President Debs has issued an address to the railway men of America, setting forth the causes and objects of the present strike. In his address he says:

"The struggle with the Pullman company has developed into a contest between the producing classes and the money power of the country. This was what Lincoln predicted at the close of the war, and it was this reflection that gave the great emancipator his gloomiest forebodings. We stand upon the ground that the working man are entitled to a just proportion of the products of their labor. This the Pullman company denied them."

Continuing, President Debs calls upon all Unionmen to refrain from acts of violence and in conclusion says:

"I have faith in the great body of railway employes of this country, and am confident they will maintain an unbroken front in spite of any opposition that may be brought to bear against them. I am perfectly confident of success. We cannot fail."

NOT INTERFERING WITH MAILS.

President Debs and Superintendent Troy Have No Interference.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Superintendent L. L. Troy of the Chicago division of the railway mail service, has arrived in the city. Superintendent Troy warned President Debs and Vice President Howard of the American Railway union, that if the mail trains are interfered with, the United States government would be compelled to protect against the strikers.

President Debs said the members of the union have no desire to come in conflict with the government, and none of the strikers will interfere with the mails. He assured Superintendent Troy that he would wire instructions to every point where the boycott is in operation that the mails must be allowed to proceed.

SEVENTEEN ROADS CRIPPLED.

Statement of the Situation Issued by the General Managers.

CHICAGO, July 4.—The general managers of the Chicago railroads have issued the following bulletin:

The worst reports come from the Rock Island road, which was not able to move any trains on account of a crowd of 2,000 people at Blue Island, who controlled the situation, the United States deputy marshals and the Cook county deputy sheriffs being powerless to handle the mob.

On the Michigan Central the indications are that there will be considerable trouble on the part of employes of new men to take the places of striking switchmen.

The Illinois Central is still in bad shape regarding suburban business, but is moving through trains.

The Milwaukee and St. Paul is also badly embarrassed by the striking employes. On these roads concerned the more serious difficulties.

Seventeen Roads Affected.

Seventeen roads in Chicago are all more or less embarrassed by the strike and many passenger trains are being moved, as on the Panhandle, under heavy guards of deputy marshals for mail trains and deputy sheriffs for other trains, in order to get them through the strikers and sympathizers who congregate along the tracks.

The railroads have not altered their position, the bulletin continues, and will not parley with men who want to strike. The places of men who strike will be filled as fast as possible and force will be met with force to the extent of asking the state for troops to keep the roads open wherever this action becomes necessary. If the state cannot afford ample protection the railroads will ask the United States government to send troops to the scene of disturbances.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT.

Mr. Debs Gives Out the Basis Upon Which He Capitulates.

CHICAGO, July 4.—President Debs said during the afternoon: The settlement will proceed on these terms only:

First.—There must be an armistice between Mr. Pullman and his employes on a basis satisfactory to the men. (They are willing to accept a reasonable compromise.) And all the men must be taken back at once.

Second.—There must be an adjustment between the railways and the strikers and none be restored to their old positions, and no wages shall be cut—all discrimination be made.

The General Managers' association has made common cause with the Pullman company, and we cannot settle with either side. There must be an agreement with both or none.

This statement was made after an interview with Mr. Peter Studebaker. Mr. Debs says he had an interview between Mr. Studebaker and himself. Debs and Howard were at the instance of George M. Pullman, and that the conference lasted six hours. Mr. Studebaker said he was acting in a private capacity.

Will Attempt a Settlement.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Mayor Hopkins and four members of the city council will confer with Eugene V. Debs and the members of the Managers' association, with a view to a meeting the great railroad strike. This was decided upon by the council, a resolution to that effect having been unanimously adopted at last night's meeting.

CONGRESS CAUTIONED.

Chief Arthur Warns them Not to Catch the Prevalent "Strike Fever."

CLEVELAND, July 4.—In reply to numerous letters and telegrams received from engineers and other railway employes throughout the West, asking that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers participate in the present strike, Chief P. M. Arthur of the latter organization has sent out a general reply covering all such communications. He cautions engineers not to let the prevalent "strike fever" overcome their better judgment, and reminds them that they are, as a rule, working under an agreement with various railways for a stated period, and says the engineers have no grievances and should not be influenced by strikers to take part in contests with which they are not concerned.

Chief Arthur, however, will uphold engineers who refuse to go out with green crews, where they receive assurances that discipline is properly

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. LOUIS.

Deputy Marshals Assist in Starting a Train to Albert Lea.

ALBERT LEA, Minn., July 4.—The battle situation here at the Minneapolis and St. Louis road is becoming more grave as time passes. Deputy United States Marshal Sheahan was here to assist in starting out a mail train for the north, but when at the end of the yard the air was turned on and the train came to a stop. A long parley ensued between the strikers, the result being that one Hogan, a striker, was arrested charged with assault. The train was turned out again for a time restored, sheriff Mitchell has a large force of special deputies and the mayor has issued several extra police, while the deputy marshal is still here.

Lying Off Strikers.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—The railroads are paying off the strikers here and employing new men. But only passenger trains are moving. At the stock yards the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific switch engine and with new switchmen is unable to relieve suffering live stock Gun Shops Closed.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 1.—The sympathetic strike has closed down the Minneapolis gun shops at Minneapolis, throwing a large number of men out of employment. Two or three days ago the company found its work so crippled as a result of the strike that it was found necessary to lay off one-half of the men in the shops.

FIRST SERIOUS CLASH

MARSHALS AND STRIKERS COME TOGETHER AT BLUE ISLAND.

Federal Authority Defied—Officers Surrounded by the Mob and Forced to Retire to Their Cars—Regulars Sent to the Scene.

CHICAGO, July 4.—The day's developments in the great A. R. U. strike have been prolific in sensationalism, the principal theater of action being in Chicago and adjacent suburbs. The first serious clash occurred when 200 deputy United States marshals were surrounded at Blue Island by 2,000 strikers, who openly defied federal authority. Hot words were drawn by both sides and Deputy Marshal John A. Logan was forcibly cut with a knife, but when a bloody conflict seemed imminent the deputies retired to their barracks car to await reinforcements, leaving the strikers masters of the situation.

In the evening an injunction from the United States court was issued but unheeded. The authority of the United States was openly ridiculed, and, after a few minutes' delay, the reasserted itself. At midnight reports of further disorder were current, it being stated that the strikers were looking down the bulletined numbers of the court.

Mistaken Spirit of Mercy

Fearing to precipitate bloodshed the Rock Island company decided after its 5:30 express had been gotten through not to make any further efforts to move trains. The strikers have now locked horns with the state and federal authorities, the railway officials are chafing under the continued embargo on their business, while the desperate determination of their late employes neither to work themselves nor to allow others to fill their places is evidenced by the flood of reports of individual conflicts here and there coming from all over the city. A number of

Trains Have Been Derailed

by misplaced switches. A Pacific passenger train was partially derailed at Kinzie and Canal streets but was not seriously delayed. The strikers are stealing braces from the axle boxes of cars, and, in some inst-nces, dropping coupling pins into the cross-heads pistons of locomotives, causing the destruction of cylinder heads. Tons of fruit, vegetables, ice, meats and other perishable goods stand in the cars, under a broiling sun, no one caring or daring to move it to its destination. Dumb animals, crowded into stock cars, suffer from hunger and thirst, and over-turned tables and fruits are going up. It is thought that no move likely to precipitate hostilities will be made before daylight.

Regulars Ordered Out.

CHICAGO, July 4.—The regular troops at Fort Sheridan have been ordered to move. Their destination is not known at present, but is supposed to be Blue Island.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

The Strike in the Northwest Still in Force as Strong as Ever.

ST. PAUL, July 4.—Another day has passed since the great boycott against the various railroads was put into effect. But to all appearances, as far as passenger train service out of St. Paul concerned, the casual visitor could scarcely have told that a strike existed. Several of the trains were somewhat late in getting out of the Union depot, but none of them over 30 minutes. All of the usual precautions had again been taken, and the several trains were guarded by United States deputy marshals and regular police officers.

Figuratively speaking there was scarce a ripple on the perturbed waters. At the foot of Sibley street, where the strikers were wont to gather each evening about train time, there was but a small crowd, and as compared with Saturday night. At the various trains passed by there was not even a shout or cheer. The boys did not talk nor appear excited and their leaders were conspicuous by their absence.

The Scene Is Indeed Tame

During the middle of the day the yardmen in the Milwaukee freight yards, between this city and Minneapolis ceased work, and from that time until night not a wheel of freight was moved. A look over the tracks along the river front showed everything at quiet and deserted as a graveyard. Not a single man could be seen about the tracks, and the scene was in striking contrast with the usual buzz of industry and life along this important highway of the great railway system.

On the Various Roads.

The Northern Pacific train to Fargo is running on time, but no attempt has been made to run the through train to the coast. Each train going out carries a score or more of deputies.

On the Chicago Great Western the South St. Paul motor and the mails trains are suspended.

The Milwaukee road is refusing all freight, but passenger trains are moving somewhat irregularly. All the switchmen are out on both cities.

There are no freight trains running into either St. Paul or Minneapolis on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha. The yards at St. Paul and the company's shops on West Seventh street are silent. Several passenger trains have also been abandoned.

Regulars Ordered Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—Two companies of the First regiment left on a special train for Los Angeles. They were joined at Port Costa by 50 soldiers from Benecia. They carry all preparations and are equipped with Gatling guns.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, June 26.

When the tariff bill was taken up in the senate Mr. Hill withdrew the amendment offered on Saturday to strike out the provision exempting the interests of United States bonds from the operation of the tax, and offered another to exempt from the operation of the income tax all state, county and municipal bonds. The amendment was defeated, 26 to 39. A second amendment offered by Mr. Hill, exempting state bonds from the operations of the income tax, was lost, 27 to 36. Some minor committee amendments were adopted.

The senate bill making Labor day a national holiday passed the house.

The bill providing that the oath of a private shall be equal to that of an officer in pension cases also passed.

Wednesday, June 27.

The income tax was discussed by the senate. Several amendments offered by Mr. Hill were voted down.

The house took up the New Mexico statehood bill.

Thursday, June 28.

The senate completed the consideration of the income tax features of the tariff bill. A motion by Hill to strike it out was lost—34 to 40. The Democrats voted in the affirmative and six Republicans in the negative.

The house passed the bill conferring statehood upon New Mexico.

Friday, June 29.

The senate passed a resolution extending the appropriations to July 30, and in committee of the whole repealed the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law. The tariff bill was reported from the committee of the whole, and the senate adjourned till Monday.

The house filibustered nearly all day over a contested election case, passing a few unimportant measures.

Saturday, June 30.

The house cleared the calendar of all the pension and election cases which have been agreed to in committee of the whole at the Friday night session and which have been accumulating for many weeks. It then agreed to the senate amendments to the bill fixing the limits of certain measures, and at 2:57 p. m. adjourned.

Monday, July 2.

The sugar bounty was repealed by the senate and as amendment passed making the repealing section go into effect with the rest of the bill.

The house conference master a quorum and waited till Tuesday.

REPUBLICAN LEAGUE CLUBS.

Convention at Denver Closed—Troy Re-Elected Chairman—Cleveland Next.

DENVER, June 28.—The convention of the League of Republican clubs has finished its work and adjourned. The election of officers resulted in the re-election of W. W. Troy president and A. B. Humphrey secretary. One vice president from each state league and the executive committee consisting of one member from each state league were elected, and to the executive committee was left the duty of selecting a treasurer and the time for holding the next convention. The committee appointed to select the place at which the next convention shall be held submitted a report recommending Des Moines. This was the signal for a fight skirmish. The report of the committee was ignored and a vote was taken, resulting in favor of Cleveland, the vote of 818 to 794. The convention then adjourned sine die.

In the evening the delegates attended a reception given them by the ladies of Colorado at the Brown Palace hotel.

Croker Sails For Home.

QUEENSTOWN, June 28.—Richard Croker and his two sons embarked Thursday for New York on the Majestic. Mr. Croker, before sailing, said he was in better health than when he left the United States. He said he was also suffering from malaria, had also greatly improved.

Wisconsin Dem. ocrats.

MILWAUKEE, June 28.—The Democratic state central committee has decided to call the convention for Sept. 6.

No Revision of Senate Rules.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Chairman Blackburn of the senate committee on rules says there will be no changes made to revise the rules at this session, but that the committee on rules will ask leave to sit during the recess for the purpose of revising the rules and will offer them to the senate at the beginning of next session.

Iowa Town Scorched.

DUBUQUE, Ia., July 4.—Fire at Guttenberg burned a flour mill, agricultural warehouse, hotel and four dwelling houses. A change of wind saved the town from destruction. Loss, $30,000.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, July 2, 1894.

WHEAT—Stronger. No. 2 spring 66c; No. 1 Northern, 69; September, 7.

CORN—Steady. No. 3, 46c.

OATS—Steady. No. 2 white, 41c; No. 3, 39@39½c.

BARLEY—Nominal. No. 2 Sic; sample 50@60c.

RYE—Scarce and wanted. No. 1, 56c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, July 2, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 69½c; No. 1 Northern, cash, 69½c; No. 2 68½c; September, 66½c. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 69½c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 2, 1894.

WHEAT—Close, 69½c; July opening, 69½; highest, 69½; lowest, 66¾; closed, 69½c; September opening, 68¾; highest, 69¾; lowest, 66¾; closed, 66¾. July 2, 67,478; September, 42,245.

CORN—Steady. July 36½; September, 37½c.

SHORT RIBS—Steady. July, 5.64; September, 5.65.

BOUNTY REPEALED

The Sugar Question Disposed of in the Senate After a Hard Fight.

SENATOR HILL GAINS A VICTORY.

Proposition to Make New Rates Take Immediate Effect Adopted.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The senate has begun formal consideration of the tariff bill as amended in committee of the whole and when a recess was had at night much progress had been made. The sugar schedule, which overshadowed in importance the other schedules, being considered the pivot upon which the fate of the measure depended, went through the trying ordeal and escaped with only one amendment. That amendment made the repeal of the sugar bounty and the sugar schedule go into effect immediately on the passage of the bill instead of Jan. 1. Adoption of this amendment signalized the first victory won by Senator Hill. In addition to the Republican votes in favor of it, four Democrats, Messrs. Coke, George, Irby and Pugh, and Mr. Peffer (Populist) joined with Mr. Hill.

KYLE'S RESOLUTION.

No Offense to Detach Pullman Cars From Mail Trains.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The Pullman strike had an echo in the senate. Mr. Call offered a resolution for the appointment of a joint committee of five members of the house and senate to inquire into the cause of the existing Pullman strike, the justice of the demands of the workingmen, and to report by bill or otherwise, and Mr. Kyle offered the resolution indorsed by President Debs of the A. R. U. and General Master Workman Sovereign of the Knights of Labor, looking to the protection of strikers from federal interference, except to move the transportation of United States mails, and declaring that the detachment of Pullman parlor or sleeping cars from such trains shall not constitute an offense against the United States. Both resolutions under the rules went over.

Held an Extended Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—An extended conference was held at the White House, lasting from 9 o'clock until midnight. There were present, besides the president, the secretary of war, Attorney General Olney, Postmaster General Scholield, Secretary Gresham and General Miles.

House Adjourns to Thursday.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The house held a brief session, and, on account of the difficulty of holding a quorum, nothing of importance was accomplished. Before 12 o'clock the house adjourned until Thursday.

National Editorial Association.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 4.—The Asbury Park auditorium was crowded at 9 a. m., when President Walter Williams of Columbia, Mo., called to order the tenth annual convention of the National Editorial Association. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 8,000. Thirty-four states and territories were represented by accredited delegates, while prominent members of the New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Press associations were present as fraternal delegates.

Bad Fire at Corning, N. Y.

CORNING, N. Y., July 4.—Fire starting in the cigar store of B. L. Segee, in Dundee, N. Y., destroyed seven stores, one dwelling, the new Presbyterian church, several barns, ice houses and other buildings. Professor T. B. Pitch was fatally injured, while trying to save some articles from his room, was overcome by the flames and burned so badly that he is lying at the point of death.

Fargo Plasterers Strike.

FARGO, N. D., July 4.—Twenty plasterers and 20 assistants, at work on new buildings, have struck. Plasterers were getting $3 a day and wanted $3.50. Hodmen got $1.50 and wanted $2. New men were immediately secured to take helpers' places and contractors have telegraphed for plasterers.

Ordered to Move Mail Trains.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Government orders have been issued to see that the mail trains at Los Angeles shall be allowed to move, work having been received that they have been held by strikers. This is in line with the government's policy to see that mail trains are moved at all hazards.

Three Thousand Men Idle.

PITTSBURG, July 4.—All the window glass factories in Pittsburg but the finest glass houses of the United States Glass company, the sheet mills and most of iron mills are shut down. As a result nearly 36,000 workmen are idle. This is largely because of the usual summer shut down.

Dissolved the Gas Trust.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Judge Windes has entered a decree modified from that presented last week dissolving the gas trust. The modification suggested by the court and ordered made is that the individual defendants in the proceedings be also bound by the decree.

Iowa Town Scorched.

DUBUQUE, Ia., July 4.—Fire at Guttenberg burned a flour mill, agricultural warehouse, hotel and four dwelling houses. A change of wind saved the town from destruction. Loss, $30,000.

Big Sale of Logs.

STILLWATER, Minn., July 4.—Loeser, McClure & Co. have sold 10,000,000 feet of logs to the Lumbering and Boom company. The price is private but aggregates about $160,000.

Mrs. E. E. Nickerson

Salt Rheum

On my hands often forced me to stop work. When I took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

the flesh built up, the blood purified and the skin had become smooth and my hands have been perfectly well since. Mrs. E. E. NICKERSON, Delavan, Wis.

Hood's Pills are safe, harmless, sure.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

In and to the

Saskatchewan Valley,

Address WM. RITCHIE, Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON, Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to A. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer.

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

DR. PEFFER'S FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. SINGLE DOSE. Prompt and Certain. Relieve suppressed or painful menses. Sure cure for nervous troubles. Save time by using 60c. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. Pamphlet free. Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

Dr. Peffer's Female Pills

Address: PEFFER MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 28, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Swanson, that Lars Larson, who made homestead entry No. 3,770, dated June 10th, 1893, upon the N. ½ W. ¼, section 12, township 151, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry contestant alleging that the said Lauder Arneson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said tract; that he has not resided upon said land since making said entry, for more than two years, and that there are no trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing thereon, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 20th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

WM. ANSLIE,
Receiver.

J1-10]

Cannot write Agents, $75 a week. Exclusive territory. The Rapid Dish Washer. Washes dishes, cleans, scours and polishes Knives, Forks, Tinware, etc., in 2 minutes without wetting the hands. You put in the dishes, the machine does the rest. Sells, pleases others. Every family buys. Sample, postpaid, 50 cents. Illustrated circular and terms free. Address Rapid Dish Washer Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

W. P. HARRISON & CO., Live Stock Commission Agents, Rooms 210, 211, 212, 213 Exchange Building, Chicago Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

ACROSS THE HUDSON.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY NOW ASSURED.

It Will Have a Span of Two Thousand Feet, Will Be Crossed by Six Tracks and Be Connected With a Mammoth Terminal Station and Hotel.

It really begins to seem probable that New York will finally secure the bon she has so many years been anxiously struggling for—in the erection of a bridge across the Hudson, connecting Manhattan Island with the New Jersey shore. A faithful history of the project to unite the island and the mainland in this way would be a story of much earnest endeavor and much lobbying at state and national capitals as well as bitter contentions between the different companies formed at one time and another to carry out the scheme.

Perhaps the most persistent opposition has come from those who have believed that the bridge would form an obstacle to navigation, and plans have had to be made over and over again to meet the requirements of the United States government in this matter. Two or three times bills authorizing construction have been passed by the legislatures of the two states, and early in the present session congress passed a bridge bill which was satisfactory to the parties interested. President Cleveland vetoed it, however, because, in his judgment, the part of the measure prohibiting the placing of piers in the river was not sufficiently clear. So a new bill, which met his objection, was drawn up, and on its passage a short time ago he affixed his signature in proper form, thus making it a law. Now, if the plans of the company are satisfactory to the secretary of war, the work, it is presumed, will be pushed to a speedy completion. This means, according to the promises of the company, within four years, but makes greater expedition is attained than was in the case of the Brooklyn bridge the next century will be started before trains cross the proposed structure.

NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY BRIDGE.

The bill provides that the bridge shall start on Manhattan Island between Fifty-ninth and Sixty-ninth streets, and that all railroads on both sides of the river shall be privileged to use the tracks. The lines likely to avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded to run their trains directly into the city of New York are the Central Railroad of New Jersey; the Pennsylvania; the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western; the Erie; the West Shore; the New York, Susquehanna and Western; the Lehigh Valley and the Ontario and Western. It will undoubtedly be much more convenient and much pleasanter for through passengers to cross the river over the bridge than by the present ferry lines, although it is not at all probable that its construction will affect the ferries out of use. In the case of the East river bridge, although it has proved to be a great convenience and is used by many thousands every day in the year, the ferries still continue to do business at the old stand, now carrying many more persons daily than they did before the construction of the bridge. It is predicted that the proposed bridge will affect the business of the ferries even less than was the one over the East river. The vast majority of the ferry passengers are commuters who go to New York every day to business and return every night to their homes. Their work in most cases is done below Forty-second street, and the ferries carry them very near to the places of their employment, whereas the bridge would land them miles up town.

Connected with the bridge and the railroad lines that will use it will be a vast union passenger station and terminal hotel, which will be located between Seventh and Eighth avenues and Forty-second and Forty-fourth streets, covering the whole of two large city blocks. The structure will be dual and will form one of the largest railroad depots in the world. The revenue of the depot and the bridge will be derived exclusively from the railroads, as no provision has been made for the carrying of passengers by the bridge company itself. It is believed that all the railroads that terminate on the Jersey shore will use the structure for their through trains, and it is not unlikely that they will combine for the erection of a mammoth union depot upon the Jersey flats besides the one in New York.

The total cost of the bridge, it is expected, will be about $50,000,000. It is to carry six tracks, to have a span of 2,000 feet, or more than one-third of a mile, the lowest point to be 150 feet above mean high tide. It is proposed to connect the New York station with the New England lines by running a two track road on a viaduct to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, thence through a tunnel to One Hundred and Sixty-third street.

In the circumstances it would seem to be the part of wisdom for the authorities of New York to hasten the construction of the long talked of rapid transit lines. It is getting easier every year for those doing business in New York to travel rapidly to suburban homes, whereas the provisions for rapid intramural traffic have not been improved for many years.

One Paper Mill's Monopoly.

For 900 years the paper from which Bank of England notes are made has been manufactured at Laverstoke in Hampshire.

MINNESOTA MONUMENTS.

Major Hotchkiss Says the State May Be Proud of Her Showing at Chickamauga.

ST. PAUL, June 25.—Major Hotchkiss of the Second Minnesota battery and Sergeant Downs of Minneapolis who composed the special committee, appointed by the Chickamauga monument commission to inspect the monuments erected to the Minnesota troops on that battlefield, have returned from their visit. Major Hotchkiss stopped at the Merchants for a short time while waiting for the train. "Minnesotans have every reason to feel proud of their monuments," he said, "and prouder still of the fact that they were constructed of Minnesota stone and by Minnesota contractors. The work is strictly Simclaas in every respect. Furthermore, that Minnesota stone shows up to a better advantage than even the most enthusiastic of the Minnesota veterans could have expected or hoped for. Sergeant Downs and myself looked at the monuments of all the different states on the field and we found none that equaled those of Minnesota or which showed up to such good advantage. When the Minnesota veterans go down there to attend the dedicatory ceremonies they will have every reason to feel proud of the manner in which this state has designated the field upon which so many of their comrades gave up their lives. All of the states are erecting handsome monuments, and the old battlefield will be one of the most interesting spots in America."

A MODEL LAUNDRY.

Quinces, like forest trees, need but little training. During the first two years remove branches that are likely to interfere or cross, for all branches then will be main branches in time and will seriously interfere if allowed to cross or touch each other. After that the trees will nearly take care of themselves, as far as training is concerned. Let them head now and remain so, for quinces are of a dwarf habit. If the head is formed within a foot of the ground, it will not be too low. The best tool for cultivating is a disk or cutaway harrow. These tools reach beyond the team and under the branches of the trees, thus stirring the soil and keeping down the weeds under the trees. A plow is not very satisfactory. It cannot be used under the trees without danger of barking them. It does not leave the ground level and must be followed by some other tools to smooth down the ridges. The other tools mentioned do not throw dirt enough to form a ridge at the trees or in the space between, either of which would not be desirable.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How to Remove Scorch From Wash Fabrics.

Put into a bowl of hot water as much borax as will dissolve and soak the scorched places in it, laying them in the hot sun to bleach. Repeat as often as the cloth becomes dry until the scorch is quite gone.

BOGUS TARIFF REFORM.

"Reform" is a sort of Jekyll and Hyde,
The double faced figure of Janus repeating.
The mantle is formerly hatched with pride
In now used to cover a still kindred cheating.

With copper and lead and stuff that is base
He made pieces of six that was "queer" and was funny.
And when the attorney of state called his case
He said it was only "reform of the money."

It had horns like a bull and a tail like a cat,
Claws, head, legs and trunk without any relation.
When the fellow that stuffed it came at
"What is that?"
He declared it was worthy "reform of creation."

When our mills are closed up and our industries dead,
And the product is shut off from foreign advances,
He tells the stranded workman to "dig up his head
It is only a needed 'reform in finance.'"

When the toiler is idleness, hunger and want
Tries to borrow a dime from his hungrier neighbor,
The goods he once made he could buy "cheap for cash."
And this is "reform for American labor."

Reform your protection and take off your tax,
Give the farmers of Europe your markets and wages,
Lay the burden of poverty on your own backs
Is the plan of the "tariff reform" and sages.
—Stephen E. Rose, in N. Y. Sun.

In the Dentist's Chair.

It has always been claimed by the party of free trade that "unprotected" industries are in no way affected by the tariff. This is all wrong. What affects one industry affects others, and if a protective tariff causes prosperity directly to one class of the community it indirectly brings prosperity to others.

The American Protective Tariff league has sent blanks to 120 different dentists in the city of New York propounding the following query:

"Supposing 100 represents your collections for the month of January, 1893, what percentage of 109 more or less will represent your collections for the month of January, 1894?"

The answers received showed a wide range. In one case a dentist had only collected 25 per cent as much last January as he did in January, 1893. In another case the collections were 20 per cent larger than last year. But the average of all the replies shows collections of only 59 per cent. In other words, for every $100 collected by these dentists in January, 1893, they collected only $59 in January, 1894.

It appears that the Cleveland hard times have not affected the amount of work of the dentists in every many instances. But people call for less expensive work. Consequently the earnings of the dentists are less, besides his being unable to collect what he does earn. It is a point that dentists in every city in the country should remember that under a free trade administration collections of money earned fell off 41 per cent within a year. For every $100 they only got $59. Protection to other industries makes the dentist's business the more prosperous.—Ex.

The Cleveland Badge.

The "Cleveland Badge" has we are pleased to know, met with pronounced success. In fact, it has been the most successful free trade party measure or emblem since March 4, 1893. It only got "caught on" with the people, who recognize its peculiar appropriateness. The Macomb Journal will long be remembered as the originator of the story, while the idea of adding a sketch thereto originated with The American Economist, where the original drawing is highly prized. Believing that this important "badge," the emblem that represents the free trade party of poverty, should be perpetuated, we submit a new design that we may expect to see worn upon the proud breasts of all free traders during the coming congressional campaigns throughout the country.

THE EMBLEM OF FREE TRADE.

Free Coal Would Be Worse.

One of the most unfortunate and regrettable recent events is the failure of the Cleveland (O.) conference to settle the soft coal strike.

The difference between the wages the miners want and the wages the operators want to pay is only 14 cents a ton. Of course the demagogue free trade journals are seizing upon the declarations of President McBride of the Miners' union that the wages offered by the mine owners mean starvation for the miners as evidence that protection does not protect wages.

But how long could the soft coal miners hope to maintain a strike for 70 cents or 70 cents a ton if the 73 cents a ton duty against the soft coal of Canada was taken off?

The highest wages paid in Canadian soft coal mines is only 40 cents a ton. Let it in duty free, as the original Wilson bill was going to do, and no American soft coal miners will ever be heard of again striking for a wage rate of 70 cents a ton.—New York Recorder.

Umbrellas and Lanterns in China.

If a Chinese leaves his home after night without taking with him a lantern, such as is assigned to the use of the class to which he belongs, he is liable to arrest by the police. As soon as it is dark every city seems ablaze with lanterns. They light up the houses of the rich and poor. They are attached to the angles of the pagoda. They are seen at every port and on every river. In fact, they make their appearance everywhere, and to call China the "land of lanterns" is by no means a misnomer. Umbrellas, too, are of much importance in China, because there the umbrella is a mark of rank. Two large red silk umbrellas, signal the approach of the governor general of a province. A red silk umbrella with three ruffles on it is the kind assigned to the four highest ranks of mandarin. The nobility of lowest rank are entitled to an umbrella of red silk, but many have only two ruffles. The two highest ranks of gentlemen commoners are entitled to a red state umbrella surmounted by a knob of tin. The third and fourth ranks have the knob of red coral instead of tin, but it is always painted red. An umbrella of blue cloth with two ruffles and surmounted by a red painted wooden knob distinguishes the fifth rank.—Philadelphia Times.

Trained.

The Southern Minnesota Dental association elected the following officers: Dr. S. Bond of Anoka, president; Dr. A. M. Lewis of Austin, vice president; Dr. R. L. Crittenden of Northfield, treasurer; Dr. F. D. Kramer of Minneapolis, secretary.

"Your little brother's in the hall," He muttered, "We must stop." "Oh, no," she answered. "Not at all. He's looking out for pop."—Truth.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. NO SQUEAKING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELED CALF. $4 & $3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO. $2.50 POLICE, 3 Soles. $2 & $1.75 WORKINGMENS EXTRA FINE. $2.1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES $2.50 & $2 & $1.75 BEST DONGOLA. Name and price stamped on bottom. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

You can save money by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes.

Because, we are the largest manufacturers of advertised shoes in the world, and guarantee the value by stamping the name and price on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and the middleman's profits. Our shoes equal custom work in style, easy fitting and wearing qualities. We have them sold everywhere at lower prices for the value given than any other make. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, we can. Sold by

FOR EASE AND COMFORT.

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as the Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise; and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of
Ready-made Clothing
And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE,
And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,
PRACTICAL DENTIST
Office over Times Office,
SECOND STREET. - CROOKSTON.
All work in my line promptly and skillfully performed.

Young Wives

Who are for the first time to undergo woman's severest trial we offer

"Mothers Friend"

A remedy which, if used as directed a few weeks before confinement, robs it of its PAIN, HORROR AND RISK TO LIFE of both mother and child, as thousands who have used it testify.

"I used two bottles of Mothers Friend with great success, and was with little pain delivered of my child, which is now two months old. I never will use Mothers Friend in any other confinement of mine as it is the best remedy for the relief of mother and child."
Mrs. Sam Hamilton, Montgomery City, Mo.

Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle. Sold by all druggists. Look for Mothers mailed free.
Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

First National Bank
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Commenced Business Oct. 1881
Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - - - 15,000
Interest on Certificates of Deposit.
Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.
GEO. G. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIN, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglin, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. G. Erskine, J. F. McKinnon, A. J. Miller
C. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, - - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,
Jr. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical.
DENTIST.
Nitrous Oxide Gas (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
If you desire a fine Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 40 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.
HAZORS HONED.

OLD PAPERS
FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL.
Attorney-at-Law
Rockitt Block, - Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon,
Residence and office on Jerome Addition.

McKINNON BROS.,
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
Dealers in all the leading—
McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN
BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans
Real Estate and Insurance
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Low rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street - - CROOKSTON.

$1.50
PER DOZEN
FOR THE BEST CABINET
Photographs
AT
P. E. Lynne's Gallery
Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY
Roller Mills
CROOKSTON, MINN.,
Manufacturers of FINE FLOUR
MADE FROM SELECTED RED —RIVER HARD WHEAT.—
BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS
Always on hand.

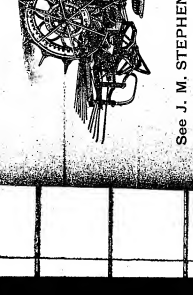
BROWN,
The Cigar Man,
Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
Manufactory On Second St
Opposite Reckitt Block.
DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.
H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn

S. L. Collins
Proprietor of Main Street
LIVERY AND FEED STABLE
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and in order by Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S
RESTAURANT
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.
Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.
TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

The Hoover Potato Digger.
- - DIGS SIX ACRES PER DAY. - -
A Practical, Cheap Machine



See J. M. STEPHENS, Crookston, Minn., For Full Particulars.

PARIS REPORTERS.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL THEY MUST BE BORN WITH THE TALENT.

What Is Expected of Them and How Their Work Is Graded—Why Three Men Are Old Men—One Reporter's Experience In Securing Important Information.

When the "chief of the service of information" wishes to annex a debutante, his aptitudes are first utilized in the "department des chiens creves." This is the professional slang for picking up such items at the police stations as are not sent in to the prefecture. For this work he will be paid 2 or 3 centimes a line for those inserted, on the average about one in twenty of what he hands in. These modest auxiliaries have only exceptionally the perspective of power to make themselves noted. Indeed their role is limited, for if they learn of an accident or an affair out of the ordinary run, they avoid bringing the fact to their papers, from whence the chief sends as soon as possible one or two staff reporters, but if the lateness of the hour or the gravity of the event justifies such an initiative, the titular of the "chiens creves" becomes somebody. In this case, if he is clever, he can render his journal special service by avoiding a "beat," and he will be well recompensed. This is why, over at the Cafe du Cog d'Or, consumers sometimes hear a young man at a neighboring table shout gleefully to his comrades, "At last I have my first crime!" and the comrades press his hand and congratulate him warmly.

Perhaps he is promoted to the dignity of "compteur," or interviewer. Now he receives a retaining salary of $50 to $60 a month and is paid extra for all the lines he writes, so that he usually earns $80 to $90 weekly. He must give his definite measure, however, and know if he really has the gift of the profession, for after two or three failures he would be thanked and have his head cut off. Of the 150 reporters who each year spring up on the Parisian press eight or ten at most survive and become corporals and sergeants in the profession. To succeed it is necessary not only to have good health, perfect hearing, a courtesy and education which permit of being received everywhere, but great clearness of ideas and a remarkable power of assimulation. The reporter may know nothing, but he must be quick at understanding everything. It is necessary that, a question being given, he should know in a few instants who he is the person in Paris the most probable to solve it. He must go to this person or some one else equally informed, and in 20 phrases of an interview gather a clear, net and precise resume of the responses to make. He must also have the scent of a detective and above all love for his profession.

I know a Paris reporter who was sent out to write about the doings of a foreign sovereign then at a fashionable watering place. He went to the chateau where the monarch was stopping, but was politely kicked out by the grand chamberlain. "We telegraph daily," the latter said, "mven relative to his majesty to our readers the most minute details from them for your columns." This did not satisfy our confrere. He had been sent at much expense on this special work, and it would never do for him to do nothing for his employers. He had a brilliant idea ctrnck him. He had got acquainted with an old man who had formerly been employed in the telegraphic department of the army. So he said to the ex-lieutenant, "Would you be capable of writing out the value of the letters transmitted by the Morse system by simply hearing the ticktock of the instrument?" "Parbleu, that is only the ordinary business," answered the other. "Well, sir, I will give you a louis every morning if you will come and read me a quarter of an hour at the postoffice."

The next day, at the hour when the dispatches from the chateau arrived, those two men were very busy in the office over an imaginary correspondence, but as soon as the Morse instrument began to tick the old man inscribed on a sheet of paper letters or foreign words he did not understand. The reporter read these words over his shoulder. He immediately translated them, and the official dispatch was scarcely off when he sent the same thing in French to his Paris paper. The telegraph employees naturally supposed that this literal translation was given to its writer by one of the sovereign's household, while, as for the royal guest and his grand chamberlain, they had the pleasure of reading in the Paris journal details concerning themselves long before their national papers arrived.

When a reporter has in analogous circumstances shown the resources of his mind, he generally obtains a fixed salary which assures him a revenue independent of the fluctuation of actualities. He is, for instance, charged with relations with a cabinet minister, reports of expositions, public reunions, etc., but even in favorable conditions it is exceptional that he gains more than $200 a month. Moreover, the fatigue is great and the nervous tension so constant that the employment cannot be filled for many years. This is the reason why there are no old reporters in Paris, and why those who are more than 40 years of age are pointed out with pride, for before that age those who are able to make their careers as journalists are classed as "articliers." They have shown that they can do reporting otherwise than with their legs, and then they know the hoops of the first page and the joys of signatures. I am glad to add that generally these "articliers," whatever their rank or employment, preserve in their hearts good opinion of these reporters, and there is a local saying to the effect that "one becomes a journalist; he is born a reporter."—Paris Correspondence Pittsburg Dispatch.

When you see a counterfeit coin on the sidewalk, always pick it up. You are liable to arrest if you try to pass it. —Texas Siftings.

CALLED TO ACCOUNT.

A WORKINGMAN ASKS THE PRESIDENT TO REDEEM HIS PLEDGES.

He Has Changed Goods, Labor, Wages and the Dependency—He Scowled Vote Under False Pretenses—Where the People Are Anxious to See Him.

One of the important things guaranteed under your campaign (the administration) was that you would make things cheaper. You have made some progress in that direction, which honesty requires you should be given credit for. Articles of bad, however, though much cheaper than under the lower tariff four years back, are not much changed in retail price from a year ago—a fact I thoroughly tested in my time of want—and such difference as does exist, storekeepers tell me, is temporary and due to the fact that the smaller quantity used by the working and other classes during the past year has left an unusual store of cheap products on hand, which farmers and others have had to sell in order to get money or avoid loss.

But some things you have made decidedly cheaper. You have cheapened clothing, dry goods and nearly all kinds of manufactured articles, temporarily down to one-third the wages price and one-half the cost to make, through bankrupt stocks on all sides, with many rare bargains which I would gladly jump at if I only had my old job and money to buy with. With these you have also cheapened our labor until over 2,000,000 workingmen have been months unable to sell it at any price and 5,000,000 more, through reduced time or pay, for more than an average of three-quarters its former value. You have cheapened the country by prostrating its industries, decreasing the consumption of its products and loss of over $10,000,000 of taxes in business in a single year.

You have cheapened the nation before the world by a miserable attempt to force a brass mounted queen over a friendly people. You have cheapened the presidency by its use to intimidate and corrupt the people's representatives in their official action and to secure their cooperation in an effort to degrade a large part and to cheapen the whole people. You have cheapened your party and country through its leaders its hypocrisy, want of settled principles, incapacity to legislate for the country's welfare and its treachery to American and favorite-land foreign interests. You have cheapened your supporters by exhibiting their weakness, cowardice, servility and their readiness to sell their votes and the interests of their constituents for official favors, and, lastly, you have cheapened yourself by betrayal of public trust, through misappropriation and use of a public office to repay money used to secure your election. In fact, you have been so generally successful in this particular that both you and your supporters will pass down to history as the Cheap Johns of American history.

Four years ago you were repeatedly told as that if we should ever lose our jobs there is always plenty of good paying work to be had. This you proceed to secure our help, through our votes, in your intended destruction of this salt-producing work besides many manufacturers and other industries, and the turning adrift of their help. A large number of us were also believed you now desire to see you about that statement. We want you to make it good, now or Never. We find jobs for you from 70,000 to 100,000 idle there; to go to Chicago, where you say there are 100,000 in that city; to Boston, with 30,000 there; to Buffalo, your old home, and growing manufacturing city, employed and, large numbers of whom helped to raise you from harmless obscurity.

We want you to find jobs for 50,000; to Pittsburg, with 50,000 more; to Chicago, with yet 25,000 more; to Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Louis and San Francisco, with over 75,000; to the manufacturing districts of the western, middle and western states; to the mining regions of Alabama, Colorado, Nevada, Montana, Idaho and California; the lumber sections of Michigan, Wisconsin and the northwest; the farming and wool raising territory of the central, western, northwestern, southwestern and Pacific states.

In fact, you are badly wanted in nearly every city and village and mining in the eastern, northern, western, northwestern, southwestern, Pacific and some southern parts of the country to show what over 2,300,000 of us have been unable to find for ourselves—good paying jobs or any at all. As we want you right away too. We want to go to work at whistle time tomorrow morning. Not to keep some yourself, but look up, the wrecking congress and bring the other Cheap Johns along with you. We want to see them also. They made the same statement and led us to give you and them government jobs on the strength of it. We don't want bombazine charity work or more promised cowpaths, but good steady jobs, with hard cash in the back of them—in fact, our old places and wages.—From a Workingman's Letter to President Cleveland.

A Word on Exports.

A free trader is always telling us that under protection we are not able to sell our goods in foreign markets, but that if we have free trade we shall be able to sell in every market in the world. During the last 20 years England has been a free trade country while America has been protected. We can see how the exports of the two countries have increased from the following figures:

	England.	America.
1870-1880	26.5	124.0
1880-1890	5.5	29.7
Average increase	21.0	94.3

It thus appears that during these 20 years the average increase of exports has been only 21 per cent in free trade England while it was 94.8 per cent increase in America. This fact is calculated to upset another free trade theory.

MAXIM'S NEW IDEA.

A Fort In the Air Which Would Cost a Fortune, but End a War.

The celebrated inventor of the Maxim gun, one of the most formidable of modern weapons, is hard at work, as he has been for a long time, upon the old problem of aerial navigation. In one important respect Maxim is working on different and less difficult lines than those which other inventors have tried to follow. They have aimed at the devising of a machine which would itself be operated at a cost not too great to rob it of their use in the ordinary business affairs of life. The inventor of the Maxim gun, however, is very appropriately working, primarily, to produce a machine which can be used in warfare. For this purpose it is not at all necessary that the expense of an navigation should be low enough to bring it within reach of commerce or travel. What he is aiming at is the creation of a new and terrible engine of war, and everybody knows that the great powers of Europe take little account of cost when they are dealing with the armaments which they regard as essential to their very existence.

If a flying machine or airship can be invented which will be efficient in ordinary weather and will enable the power possessing it to attack the fortresses and camps of its enemies from above, there will be a mad rush to obtain plenty of the new engines of destruction, no matter how much they may cost to build and operate. The picture of wholesale destruction which is held up before the military mind when an inventor talks of pouring dynamite shells down upon a beleaguered fortress from a great height and thus blow it into atoms, without risk or possible defense, is too attractive to permit money to stand in the way at all. Perhaps we shall see that wonderful dream of the poet come true which is told in the lines:

Hear the heavens fill with shouting, and there
Is heard a ghastly laughter,
From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue.

—Cleveland Leader.

An Expensive Cow.

There is a man in Chicago who pays $18,000 a year for the privilege of keeping a cow. He is a sane man, a business man, a man of family and generally respected in the community. His poor relatives declare him a freak, and his neighbors during their disorders and murmur things about rich men's whims. The way of it is that he possesses a valuable building lot in a choice residence portion of the city, and having nothing else to do with it he put a nice little house around it and quartered therein his pet Jersey cow. The cow was an artistic cow and harmonized well with the green corn turf and little bushes, so people rather admired the arrangement. One day a man came along who thought he would like to build a house on that particular lot, so he hunted up the owner and made him a good cash offer of $300,000 for the land. His offer was refused, decisively and politely.

"But," remonstrated a relative, aghast, "that would pay you $18,000 a year! Why on earth did you refuse it?"

The rich man lit a cigar and turned a protesting face on his accuser. "Yes," he assented in a gentle way, "but what would I have done with my cow?" —Chicago Record.

American Lovers.

Miss Aline Gorren, writing in Scribner, explains the frequency of international marriages by saying that as a rule the European is deficient in all of the "the average American male, who is a cold creature, courting and marrying only by instinct."

Dissatisfied.

Bingo—I hear your wife has a new maid. What was the matter with the last?

Kingley—She complained I wasn't home enough evenings.—New York Herald.

Qualified.

"Yes, but I don't think you'll do."

"I'orter, hum. I thinks dat's qualyfications."

"How?"

"Cause er wheelbarrow has been my perfession foh de las' fo' years."—Washington Star.

IVORY SOAP
99 44/100% PURE
FOR CLOTHES.
THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CINTI.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.
GRADUATE—
McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.
Office in McKinnon Block.

THE INDUSTRY OF THE SHERIFF.

1893—We denounce a policy which fosters no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff.—Democratic Platform at Chicago.

1894—We practice a policy which fosters no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff.—Democratic Performance at Washington.

Democratic Inaction.

The tariff bill has been before the senate for many weeks. Over 400 Democratic amendments have been proposed, and the long debate on each of these drags from week to week, from month to month. Meantime the country waits; industries of every sort, paralyzed by the threat of the repeal of the present protective tariff, stand idle or working on short time until some definite legislation is in sight. This long delay, this continued tension of the business situation, is wholly due to Democratic incapacity.

Look at the record of delays. Mr. Wilson's bill was so altered and amended in the house that it was hardly recognizable. It went to the senate to be revamped in secret caucus and loaded down with over 400 amendments. If they had a mind of their own, why did they not expect it in their first bill? Why, if the Wilson bill is wrong, are we to believe that the Wilson-Voorhees bill is perfect?

The mere careful consideration of a tariff bill demands time. If to that be added 400 amendments by a Democratic committee, many weeks must be consumed.

All the Republicans ask is fair discussion of each paragraph and principle. It is not their fault if a fluctuating Democratic mind brings 400 new topics to be debated.

They have a few rights; should be expected to propose some amendments, but they are not standing in the way.

They have dared the Democrats to bring it, to vote. They stand ready to press the matter to a speedy decision. All they will demand is that after fair and full discussion there should be yea and nay votes on all important topics, so that there can be no Democratic hedging, no hiding behind unrecorded votes.

The Democrats have the full control of the executive, the house and the senate. That they do, nothing except talk and ignoring themselves to be so fault of the minority. When the Republicans had charge, they knew their mind and spoke it and got their legislation onto the statute books in good order. That Democrats fail in this duty is because they have no mind or so many different ones; because they are unable to rise to the dignity of initiative, but prefer and dodder while a nation waits in idleness and distress.

"Protection, Protection, Protection!"

The Mark Lane Express, the representative organ of the English agricultural classes, in its issue of May 7 has the following strong and significant remarks:

"Protection, protection, protection! The Liberal leaders are the triplet in every political note, and there is truth in the sound now. The Liberal must recognize one fact or two. He will find his fetich ruthlessly dismounted from its feet of clay. This is a world which refuses to be governed by abstract principles applied with mathematical exactitude. Circumstances alter and vary, and to apply the same dominating inflexible principles to every social condition, no matter what the circumstances, suggests a mental stability absolutely out of harmony with common sense. The Gladstonians have asserted over and over again against the omniscient value of their free trade Manubo Jumbo until they have disgusted men with their senselessness, unthinking devotion. The principle for which agriculturists have so long contended is indeed a parliamentary recognition."

The Industry of the Sheriff.

The platform of the Democratic party at Chicago vigorously denounced the industry of the sheriff, which, it was claimed, had been fostered by protection. Remembering how busy a time the sheriff had had since March 4, 1893, it is as well to see how the Democratic performance has agreed with its denunciation of the sheriff's industry.

During 1893 there were 15,500 trade failures in the United States, being 93 per cent more than in 1892. The liabilities of those who failed in 1893 were $460,000,000, as compared with liabilities of $108,000,000 in 1892, an increase of $352,000,000 in a single year. Was there ever such a contrast humbug and fraud as this Chicago denunciation of the sheriff? United States to arise at once and demand the immediate cessation of the policy of prostration which the high sheriff is thrusting upon the American people and "denounce as grossly unfair" such a policy of prostration which the high sheriff is thrusting upon the American people and "denounce as grossly unfair" such a policy of prostration which the high sheriff is thrusting upon the American people and "denounce as grossly unfair" such no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff."—American Economist.

A New Name.

It is proposed at an early day to have a public christening of the tariff measure now before the senate. Great uncertainty has arisen as to the parentage of the bill, and in order to settle the controversy as to whose name it shall bear a public christening will take place, in which the name will be published by a proper representative from the executive mansion. This tariff bill will appear somewhat as a curiosity for the lack of a godmother. The godfather will be chosen from the Whisky or the Sugar trust.

Some of the names suggested are in the form of compromises, as follows: Voor-Harris, Gor-Mills, Voor-Hill-Mills or Gor-Voorhees-Jones. The committee on nomenclature and title of the bill object to the use of any long words, as it is expected in the next national campaign that the name of this splendid measure will need to be repeated quite often, hence a very short, pertinent name will be needed. Some of the following are most popular: Trust-Laud. Cleve-Hill. Among the names starting out with the original Wilson bill, the Voorhees bill, etc., the most popular seems to be the Sugar bill.

A dispatch has been received at the senate from some foreign beneficiary, without the fear of the Lord in his heart, who suggested the name Canadian bill. This would be a give away and would not do at all, as the purpose of this bill unquestionably is to cover, as far as possible, the exact results expected to be obtained. People are becoming so impatient in waiting for the passage of the bill that some one has suggested that the bill. The gentlemen of the press are requested to forbear making any reference to this variously misnamed bill until such time as the committee on finance are able to give out officially the name by which it must afterward be designated in all communications sent out from Washington.

This Was Under Protection.

Gradually, but surely, the United States is penetrating markets which Great Britain has tenaciously held and controlled for many years. In corroboration of this view one of the leading English trade journals says: "British trade with British Honduras, judging from the latest official statistics, is not in a healthy condition. The imports from the United States have increased from $744,000 in 1883 to $682,000 in 1892. On the other hand, the imports from the United States have increased from $261,000 in 1883 to $793,000 in 1892. The exports of the colony also show a decline as regards the United Kingdom, while those sent to the United States have increased from $333,000 in 1883 to $830,000 in 1892. The total foreign trade of the colony has increased, but the United Kingdom has been a loser." These are facts and are in every sense important. —American Mail and Export Journal.

Buy Homemade Goods.

If you are employed in a factory that makes dress goods and your wife and your neighbor's wife should each buy a dress pattern that was made in England, they are depriving you of a market, and there must be a smaller demand for the goods you are making, and your employer cannot make more goods than he sells and you may just for the sake of finding work for you. See that they buy goods made in your factory.

Tally Another For Free Trade.

A drummer man from Chicago dropped into one of the big hardware stores a day or two ago and stared in wonder at the busy clerks. As one of the partners approached him he said, with a deep sigh of satisfaction:

"Don't disturb me; don't say a word; just let me sit and enjoy this picture of activity. I haven't seen anything like it for the past six months."—Cleveland Examiner.

To the Credit of Brutus.

B.C. 44.

When Brutus did assassinate
Old Julius Cæsar, Roman great,
His dagger pierced one man alone—
The tyrannizer on the throne.

It was reserved for later times
To witness more flagitious crimes
The Roman Imperator's dead,
And Grover Cleveland reigns instead.

A.D. 1894.

Now our dictator on his throne,
His polecat sharpens on the bone
And stabs with much apparent glee
The busy hives of industry!

NEW LIFE

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee, to cure Weak Memory, Loss of Brain Power, Headache, Wakefulness, Lassitude, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Impotency, Nervousness, Lassitude, all Drains and Loss of Power in either sex, caused by over-exertion, Youthful Errors, or Excessive use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, which soon lead to Misery, Consumption, Insanity and Death. By mail, $1 a box; 6 for $5; with written guarantee to cure or refund money. Sold by druggists. Send for circulars free. Address for Canada, Quin, Arthur, Brockville, Ont., Winnipeg, Man., and Sarnia, Ont. Pleasant to take. Result the discontinued. Sold by druggists.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

DON'T VIGORINE DIE
BEFORE TAKING VIGORINE
AFTER TAKING VIGORINE

VIGORINE is a powerful, speedy, safe and permanent cure for Nervousness, Young men will regain their lost manhood, and old men will recover their youthful vigor by using Vigorine. Vigorine is a great Nerve Tonic and cures Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of Abuse or Excesses and Indiscretion. Ask your druggist for Vigorine. If he does not keep it, don't let him sell you worthless substitutes on you, because it pays a larger profit, but send to us direct and we will send it to you by mail in plain wrapper, sealed, upon receipt of price, $1 per package, or six packages for $5. Vigorine is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address all orders to Vigorine Medicine Co., 1 Madison Ave., New York. A Positive Written Guarantee to Cure or Refund the Money. Circular Free. Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston. PEPPER MEDICINE CO., Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a mortgage executed by George Sabin and Martha E. Sabin his wife, mortgagors, to James M. Lawson, mortgagee, dated April eighth, 1890, eighteen hundred ninety (1890), and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, April twenty-second, 1890, eighteen hundred ninety (1890), at eleven o'clock a. m. in book 46, page 337, of mortgages on page five hundred forty-four (544), said mortgage is now owned and held by the undersigned by virtue of assignment thereof, and there is due and unpaid on said mortgage and the debt secured by said mortgage is now due and payable and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of Two Thousand Nine Hundred and six dollars ($2,906) principal and interest.

Dated June 30, 1894.

JAMES M. LAWSON,
LEW A. HUNTSON, Mortgagee.
Attorney for Mortgagee.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court. Special Term, June 30th, 1894.

In the Matter of the Estate of Fred J. Linnee, Deceased.

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased having this day granted unto Jacob Linnee, of Crookston.

It is ordered, That all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this Court, for examination and allowance, at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston, on or before Thursday, the 26th day of December, 1894

And it is further ordered, That six months from the date hereof be allowed for said creditors to present their claims against said estate for examination, at the end of which time all claims not presented to said Court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, and that notice thereof be given as required by law.

And it is further ordered, That notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once a week for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said County.

Dated at Crookston, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1894.

By the Court,
C. M. JENSON,
Judge of Probate.

111-13

Hi, There!

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates ?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.

The Block. Broadway & Cookston

C. BERKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BERKHARDT, Business Manager

CLEVELAND HOUSE

CROOKSTON, MINN.

THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled, and is now a Model Hotel for a Boy House in the city. Good Sample rooms in connection.

No. 23 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON,

ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.

Wells Drilled or Bored.

Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.

Crookston, - - Minn

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fournet Block, Crookston, Minn

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at..... 6:20 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Fertile, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at..... 7:25 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

D. D. Overholt, drove in from Maple Lake, on Monday.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Krohn & Renne bring some on their new brand of cigars—the Record Breaker. Try it.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Senator H. Burkhardt came up on Friday morning of last week, returning in the evening.

Money is no object to me. I am offering the best cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen. P. E. Lyons.

Minnie Johnson, at one time employed at the Commercial hotel, died at the hospital Sunday, of consumption.

S. M. Dalnard was in from St. Hilaire late last week to attend the republican convention and chat with old friends in the city.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Brown.

Rev. Fr. Fayolle came down from Red Lake Falls on Monday morning, and left for Argyle, where he is to officiate in the future.

Any person or persons who have "Merry-go-rounds," "Boat-Swings" "Ferris-wheels," "Riding-ponies" or any games of amusement in which there is no gambling—may confer with or write the secretary for space on fair grounds.

J. V. E. Wyman,
Sec'y.

[41]

Prof. A. D. Wishard has been engaged as principal of the Fisher schools. The Fisher people have secured a good man, and Mr. Wishard has secured a good position.

John O'Brecht went down to Fergus Falls last week, returning on Sunday morning with his wife, who has fully recovered from her attack of insanity.

Pete Stubb opened out in fine shape on Monday in M. R. Brown's building, one door south of the G. A. R. hall, on Main street, which property he has purchased.

M. Evenson, of Thief River Falls, brought his little boy down last week, to have an operation performed on one of his legs by Dr. Dunlap. The little fellow is now at the hospital, and is doing well.

N. A. Severance, of the firm of Davis, Kellogg & Severance, St. Paul, was in the city last week on legal business. He says Geo. McManus is doing well in Minneapolis—is assistant manager of Minnesota for the New York Mutual Life, and is rated as A 1 insurance man.

W. B. Dawley is enjoying a fifteen days vacation at home now. He says that the crops in South Dakota are practically ruined by hot winds and drouth, and that the outlook in that state is very poor. Nowhere has he seen the crops looking better than up here in the Red River valley.

Dressed hogs cured and sold on commission at the Crookston packing house. Always ready to receive them during the summer months.

[3-12] ROBERT STANTON.

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.

[47-tf] D. N. TAYLOR.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Aldermen W. H. Norrie, was in St. Paul last week.

New hay is beginning to come in. It is being sold at $4.00 per ton.

A little picnic party was held at the farm of Frank Robert, on Sunday.

No entry fee will be charged on any exhibit at the fair at Crookston, July 17-18-19.

Rev. P. T. Hilman will preach in the Synod church next Sunday, July 8th, at 11 a. m.

J. S. Nichols was up from Fertile this week on two court cases, before Judge Ives.

Peter Stahl, opened out on Tuesday evening, with a violin harpist and the cornet band.

Sam Rosenthal came down from the Lake on Sunday evening. He is not quite as good as new yet.

Albert Lessay, started for Chicago, on Thursday of last week, where he has a lucrative situation offered.

R. J. Montague orated at Fertile on the Fourth, Halvor Steenerson, at Stephen, and E. M. Stanton, at Preston.

Miss Maud Legare who has been visiting in Tabor, for the past two weeks, returned home Saturday evening.

Gus Felsing, was down from Maple Lake last week. Says that business at the lake is quite brisk this summer.

The city board of equalization was in session last week, and the assessment of the entire city was gone over carefully.

On Tuesday Esquire Holt said the words that united Emil Tressman, of Carver county, to Miss Almira Turner, of Polk county.

P. J. Metzger made a flying trip to St. Paul, this week, going down on Sunday evening, and returning on Wednesday morning.

Miss. Nellie McGuire, who has been teaching school in Tabor, is home on a short visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Nolan.

Manager Hertz has secured an unusually good attraction for Saturday, July 14, when the great comedy success "June" will be presented at the opera house.

Carvon Cooke, drove in on Thursday, from his farm, in Fairfax, to shake hands with us and friends in the city—the event being his 33rd birthday anniversary.

Alex Running, died at his residence in Norman county, last week. Mr. Running was well-known in Polk county and highly respected by all who knew him.

Ole. H. Bang, was up from the westside, last week to attend the Republican convention. O. H. represents a fine class of the best in Polk county by any manner of means.

Geo. B. Roberts, was in the city, last week, looking into Mr. Sampson's tonsorial matter. Mr. Roberts was once a tanner by trade and still feels a sort of a fatherly interest in the tanning business.

N. B. Chase, one of the testimators, from the reservation, came down last Friday with the intention of visiting his home at Barinerd, but was unable to do so on account of the stoppage of trains on the N. P.

P. S. Ware drove in Friday to attend the Republican convention as a delegate from Thief River Falls, starting from that place at 3 a. m. and arriving here at 11 o'clock, and was a trifle chargrined to find that the work of the convention was over.

Nels Hendrickson, a prominent merchant of Spring Grove, Houston county, is in the city today, visiting with H. Steenerson and other old-time friends. Mr. H. is just returning from a western trip to the coast and was delayed five days by the strike on the N. P.

I. K. Messelt and his brother, came down from the town of Wiggen, on Monday, returning on Tuesday. I. K. reports crops looking nicely out his way. He says he is still a staunch follower of the old republican flag and expects to be as long as that party is the party of freedom—the party of the people.

We call attention to the new advertisement of W. L. Douglass $3.00 Shoe which appears in our issue to-day. We have every assurance from the manufacturer that the recent improvements in style and quality will give more satisfaction than ever to the wearers of these popular shoes.

L. Billington, C. E. Sawyer and Wm. Anglin visited St. Paul, last week, and sold nearly $2000 worth of hotel stock. A number of former residents of Crookston subscribed liberally. The committee visited T. B. Walker, but that gentleman did not respond with alacrity. It is thought, however that he will contribute something later on.

DISTRICT COURT.

A Number of Court Cases Tried Before Judge Ives in Chambers.

District Court was in session part of last week at chambers. All the jury cases having been disposed of before adjournment of June 16th, but several court cases were to be tried. The case of John R. McKinnon vs. Gerrod Paleu et al was tried. This was an action in replevin, it appears that plaintiff sold defendants a threshing rig in the fall of '01, taking notes secured by a chattel mortgage on the machine and some horses. The following year two of the notes came due. Plaintiff went to defendants and represented to them that they had better come to Crookston and thresh in this vicinity; that he had secured many jobs for them here. Consequently they packed up and proceeded to come. On the way they were met by the sheriff, and the machine and horse taken. The defendant had paid two or three hundred dollars on the account, and set up the claim that it was agreed that the notes should be extended one year. They also set up a counter claim for damages by reason of the taking of the property. Twenty days allowed for filing briefs.

The case of Connery & Body vs. J. S. Nichols was tried; appeal from justice court. This is an action brought by plaintiff to recover on a threshing bill. Case taken under advisement.

James Wallenbeck vs. Ole Larson was next taken up. This was an action to recover interest paid by plaintiff on a certain mortgage given by defendant.

The most important case was that of Nels P. Jevning vs. J. W. Wheeler; H. Steenerson and C. A. Severance attorneys for plaintiff, and A. A. Miller for defendant. It appears that some time previous to the assignment of Sylvester & Finseth the plaintiff, Jevning, endorsed notes for the firm to aid them in extending their credit. He took a bill of sale on their stock of hardware. Mrs. Anne Finseth also endorsed notes for them. The plaintiff and Mrs. Finseth continued to endorse the firm's paper until they had exceeded the amount covered by the bill of sale, consequently a second bill of sale was taken by Jevning. This was in December, 1892.

The amount for which plaintiff and Mrs. Finseth had become liable was something like $6,000. In February, 1893, Mrs. Finseth married Martin Hilland. Mr. Hilland in some way found out that his wife had signed no security for Sylvester & Finseth and he looked into the matter and found out that the bill of sale was made to Jevning alone. He had one-half interest in them assigned to his wife. They consulted Attorney Steenerson and were advised to take control of the stock immediately, under and by virtue of the bill of sale. Just at that time the question of the continued existence of the firm of Sylvester & Finseth was to be answered in a day or two by their making an assignment and a receiver being appointed. J. W. Wheeler was appointed receiver and took possession of the warehouse on the 4th of March, inventoried the stock, and in a few days made a demand on Mrs. Jevning and Mr. Hilland for the possession of the hardware stock. They refused at first to give it up, but finally did so without force. Plaintiff claimed he believed Mr. Finseth, of the firm of Sylvester & Finseth, to be worth $100,000 and that he loaned his credit because they said collections were hard to make that fall, and to help them through. He believed them good. The defendant attempted to show that the firm of Sylvester & Finseth was in very bad circumstances and could not meet their obligations as they came due as far back as October and November, 1892, and also that the bill of sale was given for the purpose of making plaintiff a preferred creditor.

The court continued until 8:30 Saturday night in order to finish, but could not. It was concluded Monday morning, July 2d. Thirty days were allowed attorneys to submit briefs and arguments.

After finishing the Jevning-Wheeler case on Monday morning the court then considered the case of Lunsen, Carpenter & Co. vs. J. S. Nichols. A. Miller attorney for plaintiff, and R. S. Montague for defendant. This was an action in replevin; appeal from justice court. Mr. Nichols lives at Fertile. The case was pretty thoroughly discussed through the papers a few weeks ago. The plaintiff sold defendant a drill, taking notes and mortgage. Part of it was paid; the balance was not paid when due and it was taken under the chattel mortgage. Defendant replevined it. Plaintiff again attached it. The action is to settle the matter. After introducing the testimony the case was submitted. A decision will be rendered later.

A divorce case was the next number to occupy the attention of the court. Mrs. Ogg Rute asks for a divorce from Martin Bats. H. Steenerson counsel for plaintiff, and Forks.

R. J. Montague for defendant. The parties live near Woodside. They have been married nearly two years. The plaintiff sues for a divorce, claiming an attorney's fee. After hearing the evidence on the part of the plaintiff the court came to the conclusion that the parties could never again live together happily, and asking each of them if they thought they could do so, they replied in the negative; he asked the attorneys to agree upon a division of property. Counsel for defendant submitted what he would agree to; plaintiff was not satisfied The court thereupon granted the decree of divorce, allowing the plaintiff judgment against defendant for $300, less $50 note claimed to have been taken by plaintiff, and return to defendant all watch and chain belonging to him. Now they are no more one, but twain.

TUESDAY, JULY 3.

The case of Barbara Johnson vs. John Gurnen was the first on the docket. Wm. Watts as counsel for plaintiff, and A. A. Miller for defendant.

This was an action on a farm contract. It appears that plaintiff rented her farm to Mr. Gilstrud, a minor, with defendant as sort of guardian to sign his contract with him. Plaintiff sues to recover for eight tons of hay and ten acres of oats, plaintiff claiming to have furnished that amount of hay with the agreement that it should be returned, and the ten acres of oats on an agreement for doing 40 acres of plowing for defendant. The plaintiff was allowed to take judgment for the hay—$24, but that under the evidence he had no right or title to the oats.

Then came of E. R. Frederick vs. J. J. Faust were tried. Wm. Watts appearing for plaintiff, and no appearance on the part of defendant. Parties live in East Grand Forks. Appeal from justice court. It is an action on a lease to eject a tenant and collect rent past due from him.

Court then adjourned until Wednesday morning, a case or two being set for hearing on that day.

The Ida Vaji Cortland company, that played at the Grand three nights this week, gave excellent satisfaction and played to fair houses. The company opened on Monday evening in Michael Strogoff, a play that has been presented many times in this city. It may be said to have been played this time if the encominms we have heard are my indication. On Tuesday evening "The Blacksmith's Daughter," a play written especially for Miss Cortland, was on the boards. If this company should re-visit this city sometime in the future when the hard times now prevailing shall be but a memory, they will no doubt receive a hearty welcome and play to a better business.

Hon. B. Sampson, has been busy all the week getting the site for the new tannery ready for a building so that if Mr. Miller decides to locate here, a building can be made ready for the tannery in short order. Mr. Miller is the owner of a valuable patent for tanning hides and furs that will give better results than any other known method. Mr. Miller has been offered big money for the new process but declines to sell. We saw some calf pelts tanned by this process that had an elegant appearance—finer than any we ever saw. This tannery, when complete, will furnish labor for many men with their families, and will make a noted increase in the business of our city, will also furnish work for many teams that now stand idle. It furnish a cash market for all kinds of hides and furs—will bring into our city lots of money for leather and tanned furs that now is sent abroad for that purpose. If our people wisely decide to aid this institution to get a start they will never regret it, as we have the tannery by all means.

Since the above was in type we learn that the council committee has taken the matter in charge and decided to give the bonus provided the tannery is built and operated.

While looking about for a plan for a hotel, our committee would do well to look over the Hotel Northern in Grand Forks, which is as neat and complete a structure in that line as can be found anywhere, its only fault over our way being that it is not quite large enough, being only two stories high. Another story however would remedy this defect and it could be made to occupy more ground space on the same general plan. By the way, the Hotel Northern, is now under the management of our old friend and fellow-citizen, H. N. Wells, who is making it one of the leading hotels of that city, and there are those who positively declare that for genuine home-comfort the Hotel Northern leads 'em all. As to that we dinna ken, but we are prepared to say that, if Grand Forks ins any better managed hostelry than the Hotel Northern, we do not know where it is. Our patrons can rest assured of the very best of care and attention if they stop at this excellent house when in Grand Forks.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Dr. Just, returned Monday night, from his western trip. He spent considerable time at Denver, and other points of interest in Colorado, took in the sights of Salt Lake City, and returned via Butte and the Great Northern railway.

Secretary Wyatt went to East Grand Forks Tuesday and got tomorrow (Friday) named as Crookston day at the East Grand Forks races, which are now on and will continue to and including Tuesday, July 10th. Three Crookston horses are entered in the races, and a good delegation should go from here tomorrow, as East Grand Forks has always turned out well to our races.

Champion Mowers.

Buy your champion mowers and extras, from S. L. Griffin & Co., the old reliable dealers. They have the best machines in the business at the lowest living prices.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co. doing Business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

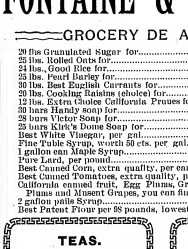
Sold by all druggists, 75.

Found.

An overcoat and cap. Owner can have same by proving property and paying for this notice.

[11-12] M. J. HALLA.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases where thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.



WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE.

E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S

GROCERY DE ARTMENT.

20 lbs Granulated Sugar for	$1 00
25 lbs. Rolled Oats for	1 00
24 lbs., Good Rice for	1 00
25 lbs. Pearl Barley for	1 00
30 lbs. Best English Currants for	1 00
20 lbs. Cooking Raisins (choice) for	1 00
12 lbs. Extra Choice California Prunes for	1 00
30 bars Handy soap for	1 00
28 bars Victor Soap for	1 00
25 bars Kirk's Dome Soap for	1 00
Best White Vinegar, per gal	25
Fine Table Syrup, worth 50 cts. per gal	33
1 gallon can Maple Syrup	65
Pure Lard, per pound	10
Best Canned Corn, extra quality, per can	10
Best Canned Tomatoes, extra quality, per can	12½
California canned fruit, Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums and Musent Grapes, you can find none better, per can	12½
2 gallon pails Syrup	60
Best Patent Flour per 98 pounds, lowest price

TEAS.

You all like a good cup of tea; of course you do—we all do. That's just why we ran to secure the Seal Brand Teas, the only natural, uncolored Japan Tea you ever bought. Ask to see it when you visit us. Note prices:

60c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to..... 40c
50c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to..... 35c
35c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to..... 25c

COFFEES.

We handle Chase & Sanborn's celebrated line of Coffees. They were served to 21,000,000 people at the World's Fair, and are known far and wide as the best Coffees in the United States.

NOTE PRICES.

3 lbs. Mocha and Java Coffee for..... $1.00
3½ lbs. Golden Santos Coffee for..... 1
4 lbs. Guatamala Rio for 1
5 lbs. Crushed Java for 1

Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved Yorkshire pigs, ready for weaning next week. Inquire of John Van Tuyl, on the farm.

AARON COOKE.

Thos. Gibbon, a stockman writes from Rockport, Utah, under date of May 12, 1893. "Gents:—I have used your Keller's Lash Wire Liniment, and can say well pleased with it that I have no hesitancy in deeming it the best I ever used for curing wire cuts sores and wounds. It is truly a wonderful healer, and I would not think of raising stock with out it." F. L. Durand sells and guarantees it.

To Teachers of Polk County

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your needs. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teacher should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMEN,
County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address,
ROBERT STANTON,
Crookston Packing House,
[7-12] Crookston, Minn.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.

[1-tf] A. F. GRONDY,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block.

[32tf] ALEXANDER MCKINNON.

Polk County Journal.

Historical Society

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1894. NO. 13.

CITY COUNCIL.

Proceedings of the Regular Meeting Held Tuesday, July 10th.

A Large Number of Bills Allowed—The New Tannery Gets $500.

Special Meeting Called for July 16th to Consider the Street Grading Question.

The city council met in regular session on Tuesday, July 10th; all members present except Aldermen Watts and Burlette.

The Finance Committee reported favorably on the following bills and recommended the same paid:

A. Chabot, index on poor fund, order.....	2 00
B. Allard, board for Pierre Bonnier in hospital.....	12 50
Hutchins, index on poor order.....	0 50
Larson Bros., index on poor order.....	6 00
J. W. Kelley, boarding paupers.....	31 15
N. A. Wallace, index on poor order.....	16 20
L. Bessette, index on poor order.....	109 10
I. N. Simmons, index on poor order.....	8 60
Sam Elmer, clearing grass.....	4 00
A. W. Dawley, index on poor order.....	16 00
Crookston Times, index on poor order.....	3 00
W. H. Norris, law to Hulbert and receivers, etc.....	12 55
Edward Allard, boarding F. Dersnier in Asyl.....	15 00
J. A. Lundgren, index on poor orders.....	2 00
J. W. Wheeler, services looking after poor.....	3 00
Scandinavian Bank, cash paid on poor orders.....	69 00
John Johnson, nails furnished city poor	2 25
Crookston Furniture Co., coffin and burial service.....	11 50
N. S. Gervais, looking after city poor and clerk.....	3 00
Gervais & Gervais, index on poor orders	6 00
Carle & Mann, index on poor orders.....	15 00
E. D. Childs, index on poor orders.....	16 00
do do do	2 00
do do do	2 00
Trenning & Anglim, index on poor orders	21 50
Edward Allard, boarding F. Dersnier in Asyl.....	15 00
L. D. Simmons, wood furnished on poor order.....	5 00
A. Chabot, index on poor orders.....	5 00
Crookston W. W. P. & L. Co., light and water.....	1699 98
C. W. W. P. & L. Co., hydrant rental from Jan. 1st to July 1st, 1894.....	360 00
Napoleon Beaulieau, labor for city engineer.....	11 00
Wm. Gervais, labor for city engineer....	3 00
G. H. Hull, index for.....	5 75
L. J. Hoult, index on poor orders.....	10 00
Crookston Grocery Co., index on poor orders.....	54 00
Crookston Furniture Co., index on poor orders.....	5 00
G. S. Chesterman, goods furnished on poor orders.....	16 00
Crookston Times, livery for May and June.	12 00
C. H. Mix, balance of salary assessor....	200 00
Wm. A. Lamont, aldermen's per diem...	144 00
J. W. Kelley, boarding paupers in May..	31 15
Wm. Watts, 5 days service on equalization board.....	15 00
J. W. Wheeler 6 days service on board of equalization.....	18 00
M. E. Kirsch, committee on sewer system, 7 days on board of equalization.....	21 00
Louis Belcourt, assisting city engineer..	36 00
N. A. Wallace, index on poor orders.....	16 00
Edward Allard, boarding F. Dersnier in June.....	15 00
Wm. Creighton, wood for Mrs. Nelson....	1 75
Pat O'Connor, work finishing sewer.....	14 95
A. Chabot, index per order of Louis Belcourt.....	36
C. O. Scudder, justice fees.....	2 75
H. S. Tweedie, 3 days as patrolman.....	4 50

On motion the above bills were ordered paid.

The committee appointed to inquire into the matter of the city granting $500 to aid the establishment of a tannery here, reported favorably on the plan, and a resolution appropriating $500 for this purpose passed the council without a dissenting vote.

The committee appointed to secure a water tap for use of street sprinkler reported having made arrangements with Messrs. Larson, Carpenter & Co., for same at the corner of Robert and Broadway; though no contract for any definite length of time could be secured; and recommended that the proper pipes and fixings be built at this place the probable cost of which being about $25. On motion the report was accepted, and the recommendations therein adopted by the council.

Committee appointed to inquire into the matter of granting extra compensation to the city engineer rendered a written report recommending the allowance of $250 extra.

It was moved by Alderman Norrie seconded by Alderman Gervais, that the amount be allowed and the engineer provided with the proper record books. Motion carried.

On the recommendation of the city engineer the bill of Messrs. Smith & Lamp for for the grading of Sixth street for $307.57 was acted on and same ordered paid. Also an order for $150 was ordered paid to Thomas Young on part payment on contract for the building of bridge to cemetery.

Superintendent Ponsonby of the Great Northern railway company, being present in the room, a short discussion was had on the matter of the Sixth street crossing under said company's tracks.

Mr. Ponsonby represented that he had written Mr. J. J. Hill in the matter, and not as yet received any reply; and believed that it would be advisable that the council correspond direct with Mr. Hill, the president of the council was asked to write to the officials of the road urging upon them the necessity of placing said crossing in such state of repair as is contemplated in the agreement between said Ry. Co. and the city, relative to the matter.

A resolution authorizing the construction of a sidewalk along the south side of Fourth street, along lots 12 and 13, block 15 original townsite, was passed without opposition.

Also a resolution authorizing the construction of a sidewalk along the west side of State street, in Jerome's addition, from the south side of lot 3, block 14, to the south side of Bridge street.

The city engineer rendered a written report showing the completion of sidewalks on the Sampson's addition bridge and the amount due on same as per contract, namely $328.62; also showing amount of $4.05 for extra repairs; total $333.67. On motion report was adopted and amount ordered paid to Contractor Nolan.

City engineer also made a report showing the progress of the work by contractor Nolan on the Sixth street sewer, warranting the payment of the one-third as per contract; being $1430. On motion report was adopted and amount ordered paid.

The committee appointed on street grading submitted a written report showing figures and styles of street grading. On motion same was referred to the city engineer for his opinion on the question.

By a resolution, $500 was transferred from the general fund to the poor fund of the city.

A motion prevailed to call a special meeting of the city council on the 16th, inst. to discuss the matter of grading the streets of the city. One and three property owners and business men be invited to take part in the discussion.

A petition from property owners residing on Brond way between Fifth and Ninth street was read, requesting the grading of Broadway street between the streets mentioned in conformity to the plans and profiles of the established grade on file in the office of the city engineer. On motion same was referred to the city engineer to report at next meeting.

On motion the city engineer was directed to correspond with the authorities of Kittson county with a view of getting a settlement of the matter relative to Fred Fisher, deceased.

On motion council adjourned until Tuesday, July, 17th.

Encouraging Home Industry.

A gentleman, representing the Moorhead Independent, was in the city last week, and from what we can learn he quoted prices on job printing to some of our business men which are below living rates, and with which no decent printer can compete. One business man—who by-the-way is under obligations to the JOURNAL—informs us that we must meet those prices or he will send his work away, because he can save from 5 to 10 per cent. by doing so. This is the way to build up a home paper—in some other town.

Does the local newspaper man, his family or his employes, send away for anything they require because they can save a few dollars? No; they never think of such a thing. They buy their clothing, their groceries, their meat, their fuel and other necessaries at home, and would as soon think of committing suicide as sending away for anything they can buy at home.

And right here we want to say to competing printers that the JOURNAL has never solicited a job in a place where there was a job printing office, and when business men from outside towns have written us for figures on work we have referred them to their own printers. But outside printers take work from here for much less than they get for the same work at home, and they reason thus: If we can get some outside work at prices on which we will not lose any money, it will help to keep our printers at work, and we will depend for our profit on home trade.

Champion Mowers.

Buy your champion mowers and extras, from S. L. Collins & Co., the old reliable dealers. They have the best machines in the business at the lowest living prices.

Found.

An overcoat and cap. Owner can have same by proving property and paying for this notice.

[11-12] M. J. HALLA.

THE POPS MET

In Minneapolis and put up a State Ticket Headed by Owen and Loomins.

The populists in convention assembled put in the field the following state ticket:

For governor, S. M. Owen; Lieutgovernor, E. E. Lommen; for State auditor, A. L. Stromberg; for secretary of state, P. J. Seaborger; for treasurer, F. Borchert; for attorney general, John A. Keyes; for chief justice, Stunner Lndd; for associate justice, John W. Willis; for clerk of the supreme court, C. A. Johnson.

Legislative Convention.

The populist legislative convention was held in the city last Friday. The following were the delegates: First district, A. Trovatten, T. B. Veseth, Lars. E. Nelson; Second district, Paul Simon, A. E. Strout, J. Steenerson; Third district, Ed. Divine, O. E. Hagen, O. L. Sargent; Fourth, H. Ives; John Berry, Swan Anderson; Fifth, J. Dwyer, Robt. Anderson, John Ray; at large, Chris. Houston, O. P. Rome.

P. M. Ringdal was nominated as candidate for state senator, L. J. Nelson, J. D. Knutson and A. T. Lee for representatives.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed in the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 16th

Olson Knut B.	Rue Elmo
Tvedtin H. T.
West Guy
Powers W. B.
Morland Frank

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LEPAGE, Postmaster.

Marais Items.

A great many men are traveling through the country looking for work.

Rain is needed to help the crops.

Haying has commenced in earnest.

A quiet Fourth was spent by nearly everyone.

A large number attended the fair at East Grand Forks last week, and reported that the races were very good.

Mrs. Henry Hannah went out to the Keystone on Thursday, to nurse Mrs. Wm. Gervais, who is on the sick list.

Mr. J. A. Hannah and daughter, Lottie, drove to the Forks on Tuesday, to transact business.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Geddes accompanied by Miss. Annie Ferguson, drove to Argyle on a visit with friends and relatives. They left Friday and returned Tuesday.

Messrs. Dan and James McDonnah have been engaged in converting the bottom of their cellars the past few days.

The Marias Jr. nine had another ball contest with Fisher on Saturday, in which Fisher was again victorious. We'll give the boys credit for being good ball players.

Mr. H. B. Haney was around among the farmers on Tuesday taking orders for State Prison binding twine. The sample was very nice looking twine.

Messrs. James and Thomas Nesbit and wives, went on a visit to Maple Lake on Sunday; they describe the place as a fine summer resort.

Three in One Day.

Three deaths were reported yesterday. The wife of A. O. Anderson, a tailor employed by Mossetin & Lindell, died of consumption, aged 52 years. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 p. m., from the Swedish church.

Mrs. Chas. Matson, an old lady living about three miles out in the country, succumbed to old age, she being about 80 years old.

Miss Kate Brislin, who has been ill for some weeks, suffering from a tumor, died on Wednesday afternoon.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions were recently passed by Washington camp No. 4, Sons of America. There is food for reflection here:

No sectarianism in any form should be tolerated in public schools of this country, nor should public property of any kind be appropriated for the support of sectarian schools.

Our immigration laws should exclude the degraded, vicious and the criminal.

The required time of Naturalization should be at least ten years and an educational test should be applied to every applicant.

No person should be allowed to vote until he can prove that he has lived in the State one year.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

A. C. Schmidt went down to Fisher on Monday.

Rev. McClure went down to Minneapolis on Monday evening.

Miss Kittie Carrisch, from Keystone, is visiting friends in the city this week.

D. H. Beecher purchased two Polk county farms, while in the city last week.

Remember the Schefstad concert to-morrow evening. Admission only 35 cents.

A big time at the Fair next week. Everybody should be on deck to enjoy the event.

Mrs. H. B. Davis and son, of Red Lake Falls, were in the city this week visiting friends.

Mrs. B. S. Chapin, of Warren, came down last week on a visit to the family of C. E. Misner.

Dr. Dunlop was called to Fisher on Monday to attend a severe case in Brown Knudson's family.

Dr. Warninger was summoned to Euclid on Tuesday on a case requiring the services of a veterinary surgeon.

Mrs. Wm. Watts and Mrs. C. P. Cahoon went out to Maple Lake on Saturday for an outing of a week or so.

J. A. Harris subs the mail route from here to Wylie, from Jack Kivel, who has the route from Crookston to Red River Falls.

Wednesday was a scorcher. At 5 o'clock p. m., the government thermometer showed 96 degrees in the shade, and still rising.

A number of teams from Grand Forks passed through the city on Monday on their way to Norman county to put up hay.

Martin O'Brien has been put on the papulist state central committee, and is now thoroughly identified with the populist party.

The pop delegates went down in force on Sunday evening to attend the pop convention, held at Minneapolis, to occur on Tuesday.

Ed. A. Ransom, deputy head consul of the Modern Woodmen of America, received a telegram this morning, announcing the death of his father in Vermont.

Fred Schmidt captured a small bull sense recently and has the little fellow so tame that he intends to track him and enter him in the 2:40 race next week.

Some of the delegates to the Republican State convention went down to St. Paul on Sunday evening, the balance following on Monday evening.

Conductor Scott takes a lit of a lay-off to enjoy an outing at Maple Lake, meanwhile Conductor Cooper does the agreeable on the train in Scott's place.

Dr. Warninger says "everybody who stole that dog wants to bring him back pretty sudden or there will trouble and plenty of it." See notice elsewhere.

Capt. H. W. Donaldson went through on Tuesday night enroute for St. Paul, as a delegate to the republican state convention from Kittson county.

Fred Rauch is bragging about a new machine that Gunsmith Chas. Fischer has just finished repairing for him. Fred says no better work could be done anywhere.

The work of grading State street is done. The dirt that comes out goes in to fill up the approach to the bridge, which makes an improvement there also.

Harry Walker came over from Minot, to go out with the band on the Maple Lake excursion on Sunday. He remained here over Monday chatting with friends in the city.

Herb Mason is on the road with a panorama and, informs us that he will visit this city sometime next fall. Herb talks of coming back to Crookston to engage in business again.

Chas. Yettu, a 15 year-old step-son, of Fred Schmidt, living in the Town of Maple Lake, was drowned in the Red Lake river last Sunday, and up till yesterday his body had not been recovered.

On Wednesday morning Ed. Haut dropped his pocketbook containing money and securities to the amount of nearly $500. At last accounts the book had not been found. A reward is offered.

The crops around Edna station, are reported to be in elegant condition, owing to copious rains early in the season, which so thoroughly soaked the ground as to enable the soil to withstand the subsequent drouth.

Rev. L. W. Squier and Will Olds were out to the Chautauqua at Devils Lake, last week where Mr. Squier delivered some of his famous 'round-the-world lectures.' They report a good attendance and a pleasant time.

After completing his sewer contract, Henry Nolan took the contract for making connections with the jail and court-house. Everything having gone off all right, he completed his first contract with over a month to spare.

The fair management is putting up more sheds for horses and cattle, and putting the track in fine condition to be all in readiness for the coming fair next week. Everything will be in readiness and a good time is assured for all who attend.

Rev. Squier leaves to-morrow evening for Detroit, where he will be in attendance at the Inter-state Sunday School convention. During his absence the pulpit of the M. E. church will be filled by the Rev. John Robertson, father of Hugh and Dr. W. A.

While in St. Paul this week Mr. Squier was assured by the Northern Pacific people, that they will be able to take care of all who want to go to the assembly at Detroit, as their usual train service will be resumed before the end of this week. The assembly begins next Sunday.

Should the present prospects be verified in a short crop of wheat this will there is one consoling thought yet remaining in the dust that it would enhance the price for next crop. However a few good showers, if received within a week, would materially change the prospects and enable wheat to fill out tolerably well.

Hay is an extremely scarce article in Polk county this year. In the big sloughs in Norman county, and near the Great Northern road there seems to be a good bit, and it will no doubt all be cut this year, as buyers are here as far remote as Grand Forks are going in there for hay as well as any number of Polk county farmers.

We hereby promise to refund all money paid us for Haller's Remedy if you are not benefited by their use. These remedies consist of Sure Cure Cough Syrup, Australian Salve, Pain Paralyzer, Sarsaparilla and Burdock, Condition Powders, Barb Wire Liniment, Corn Cure and Little German Pills, and are absolutely guaranteed by us. You take no chances. F. L. Durand.

M. B. McClellan, the genial old Mac., who used to represent Bishop & Co. of Minneapolis, was in the city this week drumming up trade for McClellan Bros., one of whom he is which, who have started in business just opposite the store the old firm occupied. The boys are hustlers from away back, carry a good stock and will without doubt do well.

Do not wait till your horse is cut by barb wire before getting a bottle of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment. Keep it in your stable and thus be prepared to effectually treat any cut or wound that may be inflicted upon your stock. The Haller Proprietary Co. absolutely guaranteed this best of all liniments and F. L. Durand will refund money for every bottle proving unsatisfactory.

August George rejoices in the arrival of a fine fifty on Wednesday morning. The sire is Ham Nut and the dam a Black Hawk Morgan, and August naturally expects something great in the line of a flyer. De Carryer, who was down to see the youngster this morning, says it is as handsomely formed as any colt he ever saw—a perfect little beauty, bearing all the points of a perfect flyer. Ham Nut is getting some great colts.

On Wednesday morning Deputy Sheriff Losey met a man on the street who looked as though he had been run through a threshing machine. When asked the cause of his battered appearance the man said he had been at work at the Beltrami ditch, and early that morning he was beset by foot-pads when a short distance from Carman, knocked senseless, and robbed of all the money he had, amounting to $50. The deputy sheriff referred him to Chief Gonyea to attend to the case.

The two little girls of Louis Hubel are laid up with quinsy.

Ed. A. Ransom received the prize offered for the best work in organizing lodges of the Modern Woodmen of America, consisting of a gold watch and an elegant badge. He was one of 15 deputies competing.

Ehle Allen, who killed John H. Clapp, in St. Paul, suicided at Lake Minnetonka, on Friday morning, July 6th, by shooting himself through the head. It is thought that brooding over the unfortunate event caused temporary insanity.

As there are a number of trained horses dogs in the city the Fair association will give a special prize to the winner of one-half mile dash, trot or run; dogs to be harnessed to a two-wheeled cart and to be driven by boys under 15 years of age. Race to be held July 19th in afternoon on the Fair grounds.

[it] J. V. R. WYATT, Sec'y.

Dr. Carryer, who is to be one of the judges at the fair next week, is in the city. He came over from East Grand Forks, where he acted as starter in the races, and speaks in terms of the highest praise of that event and the able manner in which it was handled. Says he never saw a finer track nor a more successful time for a first meet. The doctor is a great lover of a good horse and knows of the best veterinarians of Minnesota. He also publisher of the Minnesota Horseman, a paper devoted wholly to equine interests.

Attacks of cramp colic come suddenly and in many instances the sufferer has to bear the excruciating pain till some remedy is sent for and procured. Considering the fact that Haller's Pain Paralyzer is the best and a never failing remedy for the quick relief and cure of all cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels, and that a large bottle only costs 50c. it would be money well invested to keep a bottle in the house for the relief and cure of all aches and pains. Nothing cures colic in horses as quick as Haller's Pain Paralyzer. F. L. Durand.

Cone Payton and his merry company commence a week's engagement at the opera house on Monday, July 16th, in "The Plunger," using special scenery, calcium lights and handsome stage decorations. Among the special scenes is an elevated railroad station in New York, and a moving train. The prices are only 10, 20 and 30 cents. Ladies will be admitted free Monday evening when accompanied by a 30cent ticket if purchased before 6 p. m. of that day. Sale of seats begins Saturday morning at the usual place.

Some of the farmers in southern Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and other states, where early wheat cradle is suspended on account of the strike are beginning to make a great kick because they cannot get twine with which to bind their winter rye and wheat, which is getting ready to harvest. So far, up this way we have heard no complaints, but harvest is not quite ready and dealers appear to have enough on hand to commence on. There is said to be fifty or sixty cars of twine on track in Stillwater that cannot be handled on account of the strike.

An accident occurred in the yard on Wednesday, by which a young man will lose his right foot. The tenin from the north, which is a mixed train pulled in at the usual hour and, as usual some pulled out for Carman to leave the box cars on side-track. The young man, who was watching a change of cars, and thinking this was a south-bound tenin, got on between two box cars to get a ride. When the train slacked up at Carman his right foot got caught in the draw bar and so badly mashed as to render amputation necessary. He was the name as J. Brown; says his parents live in Winnipeg, and has the appearance of a well-to-do youth on a trip to see the world for himself—in other words it looks like he was a runaway, as he was very anxious that Conductor Birty should not give him away; told him to report a tramp hurt, but was finally persuaded to give his name. He was taken to the county hospital.

Notice.

Come to my premises on or about May 4th, one dark roan belter calf. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take her away.

A. HELDACK.

Found.

On May 5th, one note for $100.50. Owner can recover by proving property and paying for the notice. Apply at JOURNAL office.

THE FACE OF ROSENFELD.

By CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.

Author of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," "The Mystery of the Gilded Chair," "The Secret of a Million Dollars," etc.

COPYRIGHTED 1894 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Her contemplation. Even before she turned toward it she knew that this face was the handsome, disdainful face that had looked forth on the trembling Dyn from the carriage. She realized this in one instant. In the next the woman had caught her by the wrist, had with exquisite roughness pulled her about so that she faced her, and demanded in a voice in which much fear seemed to be sharply commingled:

The woman had caught her by the wrist.

"What do you mean? How dare you come in here?"

Oh, how strongly it came to Miss Maxey now—the feeling that she had seen this face somewhere before! And yet it seemed almost impossible that it should be so. Strange that she could not make this feeling seem reasonable and yet could by no effort drive it away.

The woman was dark, handsome, of queenly presence, though there was even a masculine air of firmness about the face and a nose too prominent for perfect symmetry. Her beauty was of a very varied, voluptuous kind and had in it neither classic purity nor refinement and yet so strongly did these same dominant impressions manifest themselves to the beholder in the younger face upon the bed, despite the unnatural expression and the silly leer, that Miss Maxey was almost ready to declare the relationship between them that of mother and daughter.

Even these reflections passed like a flash through Miss Maxey's intuitive mind while she stood bewilderingly returning the fierce look of the woman who held her by the wrist. The silence only exasperated the questioner. Her nervous hold on the arm tightened, and she said in a lower but still more intense voice:

"Do you hear me? Who are you? What do you want?"

"Do not blame me," said Miss Maxey at last in a voice the clearness and steadiness of which surprised herself. "It is not my fault that I am in this room. I asked only to see you. The servant brought me, I might almost say dragged me, here."

"The idiot! The idiot!" cried the woman, with more anger, but less suspicion. "This blunder will cost her her place. Whom did you wish to see?"

"You, madam."

"Me! You have chosen an odd hour for your call!" The woman brushed painfully in her agitation at Miss Maxey's arm and tore open the door in a fever of haste.

"There!" she cried. "This is not my reception room! Here, little fool, show this lady down stairs."

The frightened servant, who appeared, obeyed her. Ellen followed her to the door below. As she descended the stairs she passed an elderly female, with an energetic stride, coming up. Ellen was very sure the newcomer went into the chamber from which she had just come, and she thought:

"That is the person, whoever she may be, for whom I was mistaken."

Miss Maxey was conducted to a dainty reception room on the first floor. The gas was lighted, and she was left alone with her reflections. She sank into a chair. A long time, a very long time elapsed. She heard many footsteps go along the hall outside her door before any one sought again to turn the handle. She listened with all her power. She even held her breath in a mistake she had seen in the chamber had made so powerful an impression upon her that it almost seemed to be before her still. She did not understand it, but the very mystery made the possibilities so much the more dreadful. What was the nature of the strange horror she had surprised? Who was the fashionable woman who had such curious acquaintances in the outer world, who sheltered such nameless enormities under her roof?

Miss Maxey was a proper woman who had been protected from the rough breath of the great world from her infancy, to whom evil in all its grades and more repulsive forms had always seemed unreal and dreamlike, but yet as she sat there in that silent room her active mind, busy with the logic of the events of the past few hours, saw before it such possibilities of the depth of human depravity as made her tremble for the powers of her own imagination. What did it mean? What could it mean? The pretty girl who but a few hours before had been riding for pleasure in her carriage through the city streets now prostrate and insane? The other, the red-hot curling iron, the smell of burning flesh? Miss Maxey's mind reeled under the fancies of what it might mean, and yet in the midst of it all she was aware of a latent impression that nothing in all these wild speculations was plausible enough to be the truth.

What a hazardous, foolish thing this following of Mr. Dyn had proved! Was it not an unladylike action, and might she not live to regret having committed it? A vague fear loomed up.

The time came when her reflections were interrupted. She heard no warning step in the hall outside. The knob turned quietly. The door swung noiselessly, and she whom she had come into the house to see came in.

The woman was exceedingly pale, and her eyes were unnaturally large. There was a slight trembling of her hands, but no trouble of the lip. She spoke at once upon her entrance in a disdainful manner and a steady voice.

"To whom have I the honor of speaking?"

"To a lady who desires to remain unknown."

Miss Maxey would not have made that answer an hour ago, but events had brought her to a wise determination. A slight color came into the handsome woman's face.

"This is very extraordinary. What do you want?"

"I wanted to ask you a few questions."

"Oh, indeed! Well, I can relieve you of any further necessity of waiting on that score. I shall not answer questions addressed to me by a person who desires to remain unknown."

There was a most bitter irony and contempt in the tone of this speech. But for all that the hand trembled still, though it was laid upon the back of a cushioned chair to steady it.

Ellen arose at once, reddening in spite of herself.

"I have no means to force you," she said quietly. "We are at least on an equal footing. I do not know you any better than you know me."

The woman caught her breath in a painful way.

"You do not know my name, and yet you are in my house?"

"I came into your house because I saw a person about whom I am very anxious to know come out of it. I mean Mr. Dyn."

The woman gasped again. Her eyes were fixed upon Ellen's face with burning intensity. She did not even attempt to speak. Ellen went on:

"Perhaps I am very much interested in. It is a family matter. I am aware that I did a very bold thing, and I heartily apologize for my rudeness, but my reasons for wishing to see you are so very urgent that they led me to overstep the bounds of social custom. I thought if you had no objections to telling me what you know of that man the information would be very valuable to me. If you do object, I can only say again what I said before, that I am sorry for my intrusion, and go."

Ellen's voice as she went on grew stronger till it had almost a defiant ring. The woman answered her, with a forced composure:

"You saw this fellow—I have not the pleasure of his acquaintance—you say, come out of my house. I know nothing about him, and I know equally little about you. Your story is very suspicious. If he is a thief and you an accomplice, it will be well to let this matter go no further than the police."

The blood rushed into Ellen's face. She spoke impulsively:

"I have told you once, madam: that you fear the police less than I?"

If Ellen had had any idea of the effect of these words she could not have framed them. The woman flew into a fit of momentary passion, which ceased. Miss Maxey trembled for her presence of mind. She turned ashy pale even to the lips. She glanced upon the floor like an unruly child. She took a step toward Ellen, changed her mind suddenly, seized a costly ornament from the center table and flung it to atoms on the marble before the fireplace.

This extraordinary action, the fact that destruction in some form had followed her wrath, seemed to appease her in a degree. When she next was done, she stood glaring at Ellen a moment and then with a quick rustle of silk left the room.

Ellen would have followed her and made the best of her way out of the house, but the strange creature came back so quickly that she stopped just upon the threshold of the apartment.

She had recovered in calming herself and even looked at Ellen with a touch of fear in her icy eyes. Her voice trembled in spite of all she could do as she said:

"You insulted me, or I should suggest to you. I should have sent you away without a word the moment you told me that you desired to conceal your identity but for the fact that the stupidity of a servant has placed it necessary for me to explain a trifling matter. An unfortunate accident happened to a protege of mine this afternoon, and the result dies very so powerful that other was used. The doctor was called away before the effect of the other had passed off. I was afraid and sent for a lady physician in whom I have great confidence, who lives but a few doors below. The servant, expecting her at the moment of your arrival, showed you up. Do you understand this, that you are so foolish stories afoot? Mind that you do not, for the child will be herself again tomorrow to contradict you. That is all. Good afternoon."

"One moment, madam. If I should send somebody here who would tell you who I am and who he is and why we wish to know, would you?—"

Ellen hesitated. She was really afraid of this woman.

"Well, would I?"—said the haughty voice, and there was a look of affected surprise and incredulity in the cynical face.

"Would you tell me what you know about Mr. Dyn?"

"You insult me to my fault after what I have told you!" The woman stamped her foot upon the floor, uttered with fierce emphasis the single supplemental syllable "No!" and swept out of Miss Maxey's sight.

A servant bowed Miss Maxey out with grave politeness, and the heavy door closed after her.

It was near, and she felt like a child. For a moment a great weakness in all her body seemed about to cause her to fall down. She clung to the doorpost for support. As she did so she noticed a tiny silver doorplate just under the bell handle, which had before escaped her eye. With feverish impatience she bent down and scrutinized the delicate tracery thereon in the light from the street lamp. The force of what she read rendered her for the moment incapable of thought or motion. It was the simple name "Forsythe."

And this was the house 16 Livingston street! It was no longer a problem where she had seen that handsome face. It was the original of the medallion which Dr. Lamar during that memorable sleigh ride on the sea road had told her bore the features of the woman he was to marry.

"I must never tell Julian what I have dared to do today. Never. He would be terribly displeased. But, none the less, it is my duty to warn Dr. Lamar. How? I do not know. But one thing I do know. Whatever may be the result of this and complication, whatever happens, I never will do the foolish thing again that I have done today. Whatever comes, I have done with playing the detective."

CHAPTER XIII.

AFFAIRS OF THE HEART.

As with pretty Ellen Maxey, so with the others. The end seemed to have been reached.

When Mr. Dyn stalked out of the artist's rooms and the shiny surface of his workgowne soon had vanished from Maxey's sight, it seemed as if every ray of light that tended to illuminate the double mystery, to solve which Maxey had stooped to a subterfuge, had vanished too.

Here at last the good artist and the other acute investigators reached a dead wall. Here every thread was broken. Here to all appearances the matter came to a hopeless termination. The several actors in the drama settled down to the more ordinary happenings of daily life. New matters, quite as absorbing, however removed from the terrible, claimed their attention. The most ardent devotions of today gradually obscured the less vivid sensations of yesterday. They did not forget her they loved, but even about the fateful night on the sea road and all that grew out of it.

Lamar was unhappy. He was a frequent visitor at the artist's rooms even now, when there was no longer any need of his professional services. He seemed to come there in his leisure moments as to a refuge from himself. He was the most cheerful and witty of society, but the smile died on his lips when he crossed the threshold of his way out. It was as if a shadow fell upon him everywhere but here, as if the sun shone in only as the windows above the river, and all the rest of the world were dark.

Did Lamar know why this was? In a vague way perhaps, but he surely did not acknowledge it to himself and kept pressure his relations with the Widow Forsythe and still come here. Nor Lamar was not a man of that nature. He could by no means found himself out, that day would his visits cease.

As for the poor girl without a name, she gravely became a natural and necessary part of the artist's home circle. The time came when the face was every day a smile, and somehow that smile opened a world of joy to the lonely soul. In her art lessons she was making wonderful progress. The day that the lunch at the river was the startled teacher and pupil into a consciousness of how very close to each other their heads had come two evenings the first and it was certainly not the last on which the phenomenon occurred. Such a very appealing face the girl without a name, so devoted to art, so very earnest a teacher was Julian Maxey, so delighted with her pupil's progress that these little episodes were scarcely to be wondered at. But however much the familiarity of daily association might bring these two together, there was still a barrier to a mutual understanding, for poor Miss Dyn remained at last the same shy, timid creature that she had appeared at first. She became shy and natural and emilied because her surroundings were bright and she was young, but there was a certain delicacy and sensitiveness that betrayed themselves through all.

Neither was she wholly happy. When she thought herself alone, there were times when she sat with her head upon her hand, looking out over the broad ocean river to the hills that made the background, and when she was sitting thus if she smiled at all it was through tears. There was one thing that troubled her much. It was the sense of dependence and obligation. She could not feel satisfied to share in a prosperity to which she did not materially contribute. It was this that held her to a very close attention and studiousness in her new occupation. She hoped to earn all/cellhood with her pencil, and the day came/ astic Maxey, who partly realized what her feelings were, encouraged her in that hope. It is easy to earn a beginning a work one loves. Before she had been under his tuition a month Maxey told Dr. Lamar that her copies in crayon and charcoal were something marvelous for one whose instruction had been so limited. Maxey undertook to paint her face, and she fatalized by shaking a pencil in each of his fawnes which was wonderfully accurate. And so the days were spent.

The morning Maxey awoke to a realizing sense of his situation. He loved. Julian and why not? Was she not beautiful, intelligent, refined, virtuous? Was she not in verity a woman of all women, such a one as a man might be proud to be able to introduce to his friends as "my wife?" Was she any the less adorable because she took the name of her father? Was the fact that she was nameless a barrier of a feather's weight? Not to a man like Maxey.

But yet he hesitated. With all his impetuosity and impatience he was accustomed to count the cost of a momentous step before he took it, and the alternatives presented to him were painful. He had formed something of Arnette's character. To place himself in the position of a suitor from any reason whatever, to her was equivalent to driving a friendless girl from the only home she had ever known. Not to place himself in the position of a suitor was never to know his own fate. When a young man is burning with the intoxication of a first great passion, reason is not possible.

So Maxey thought he would wait and wait he did until he was brought to a sudden resolution in the matter in an unlooked for and extraordinary way.

One afternoon when the artist was alone with his sister Ellen she introduced a grave topic. Nevertheless she tried to make her remark seem a casual one.

"Julian, do you know how Dr. Lamar came to be engaged?"

Maxey looked at her with apprehension. He hesitated a little before he made his reply.

"Not from his own lips, Ellen. I understand in a general way that it is a family affair. Of course you know that Mrs. Widow Forsythe is very rich. She is understood to be very much in love with Lamar, and his mother, who is her executrix for her son's advancement, has set her heart upon it. Exactly how it came about no one knows. We know that Lamar was at Newport with her last summer, and that the engagement was passed toward the close of the season. But what is the use of repeating idle talk? I only know what people say, which is very poor authority."

"What do people say, Julian?"

"Oh, you want that, too, even when it may not be true! Well, remembering that it is rumor—scandal perhaps is a better word for it—the story is told to me that this Mrs. Forsythe, whose husband died when she was very young and left her with two-thirds of his immense fortune, has always used her great powers of fascination to break Lamar's hearts. That has been her chief source of amusement and delight for years. The story is that Lamar was madly in love with her before she married Mr. Forsythe, but that she rejected him to make a wealthy alliance with a man whom she monstrously. This last summer they met again after a separation of years. She allowed him unusual favors and did her utmost to win him back. It is said that she assisted all his chances, but that she finally triumphed by accepting and securing his mother on her side. That is the story as easily as with a man and worldly woman like Mrs. Lamar. They go on to say that this Mrs. Lamar himself and Forsythe were engaged to be married until finally, to rid himself of persecution, never dreaming that she would accept him, he so far forgot himself as to ask Mrs. Forsythe one evening if she had ever had cause to regret the little fib she had once given him. She told him 'Yes' with a warmth and fervor that took his breath away, and he left committed himself before he knew it."

"Just as I heard it, Julian. Was it not also said that this account of the matter is a mockery, so coldly and contemptuously framed that any woman with a spark of self respect would have taken it as an insult?"

Mr. Maxey spoke vehemently, with a bright red spot on either cheek. The artist moved uneasily in his chair.

"Ellen, Ellen, of how little value this gossip is."

"Let us not deceive ourselves, Julian. The gossip is true, you admit, comes most directly. I need hardly remind you that I have a friend who knows this Forsythe intimately, who was with her last summer at Newport, and who has seen something of her since."

"Indeed!" cried Maxey. "This is news to me. I did not know it. Neither do I know Mrs. Forsythe."

Said Ellen earnestly: "Julian, I know of her. I know that she has a terrible, ungovernable temper. I do not believe that she ever loved Dr. Lamar. She would Lamar wretched, more wretched than he is now. This match must be broken off. You, Julian, it is no longer needful to disguise the truth, even if we could. Dr. Lamar neglects his business. He neglects it to come here. He no longer cares to be first in his profession as he used. A physician as a physician is in danger. You have heard as well as I that he has refused to take important professional cases because he is averse to his interest to take. You know it and cannot deny the reasons. This woman has him in her clutches, and with a false sense of honor, most creditable to himself, he refuses to break away. This is the plain truth as you know, and I say again this match must be broken off."

Every word of this had its effect. Maxey knew too well its force and its truth. There was no doubt that the philosophical physician had undergone a change in the past few months, and there was also good reason to believe that Miss Maxey had caused the cause. But what could the artist do? He replied at last hesitatingly:

"Every word you say, heartily yes, to all that you have said, what then? I do not doubt the advisability of breaking off the match, but how?"

"Who could do it better than yourself, Julian?"

"You!" Maxey spoke bluntly, but strongly.

Ellen flushed a startled, apprehensive glance at her brother.

"You are not treating a serious matter seriously. Dr. Lamar has been very kind to us. We have no right to let him go blindfolded to a fate worse than death. You are his nearest friend. You will, you must warn him!"

"My dear sister, I have warned him and pleaded with him. How does he take it? He simply becomes angry, makes an admission to me that I am not at liberty to repeat and forbids me ever again to mention the subject. I feel that I have cleared my conscience—more, that I have done all that it is possible for me to do. Lamar is not a man one can advise as if he were a little child. No, Ellen; seriously, it is your turn."

"I? What a preposterous idea! What right have I to advise him? What would he think of me if—oh, no, Julian, never! I could not mention the matter to him."

"You are not so simple as to suppose I mean that, Ellen. You are a woman and a bright woman. Is it necessary for you to say? Act! That is what I mean. Teach him. You can do it better than anybody else. I have no confidence that this marriage will ever take place. Already it has been delayed nearly a year. Who do you suppose is to blame for that? Not she surely. She is said so far to have seen the folly of her youthful error that she adores him now."

Ellen answered him in a low voice: "Unfortunately, Julian, I happen to know to the contrary. The marriage has been postponed at her own request. I have that from Lamar's sister."

"Oh, you have it." Maxey regarded her with a fixed look. "You are so well informed on this subject, Ellen, that I do not feel competent to talk with you. Still I insist that my advice is good. You women have a wonderful power in such matters when you are really in earnest. But dropping that for a time, I have something very serious to say to you. It is to me the most serious subject in the world—our Annette."

"Well, what of our Annette?"

"I want to make her my wife."

Maxey was quite prepared to see his sister faint, to hear her scream or to give any other extreme vent to her feelings, but he was hardly prepared for entire calmness. Miss Maxey started, it is true, and threw a deep sigh, but when she did speak there was scarcely a tremble in her voice.

"I can well aware of that, Julian. Why don't you do it?"

For a minute Maxey was too astonished to speak.

"Well aware of it! What do you mean?"

"I mean that I discovered it some time ago, Julian. You are not one of those to keep such a matter to yourself. I found it out, I am sure say, before you did, and it made me very happy. You owe my opinion, my brother! I will give it to you. In a worldly way some of your friends will say you have made a great mistake, but in your own heart you will always be satisfied and happy. She is the most lovable girl I know. She will make the best wife in the world. I am sure of it. I say this with all my heart, Julian, with all my heart."

She tried to speak in a matter of fact tone, but the tears came into her eyes. Maxey could hardly conceal his delight, though he answered abruptly:

"Then you do not object, and I wished to consult you about the wisdom of this step. I decided that for myself."

"Object!"

"Because I want you to advise me—more, to help me. You know how sensitive Annette is. If once I spoke myself in the matter of a lover before her—one of two things will happen. She will either accept me or leave the house. Now, I don't want her to leave the house."

Ellen answered him gravely.

"I do not see how or about it, Julian. If she cannot be loved by you, she must, she ought to leave the house. Allow me to say that you are not the right one to make these things."

Maxey was very sober, but there was no hesitancy or faltering in her reply.

"You are not to blame for loving her. You cannot avoid the consequences. Speak to her in a manly, straightforward fashion and tell her the truth."

"The truth, the truth, of course—but—but what will she say to the truth?"

"I am sorry, Julian, that I cannot help you. I have foreseen this. I have tried to stand her, but on the subject of you her lips are sealed."

"Don't say so?" cried Maxey, running his hand through his hair till it stood up like a maniac's. "What is there that signifly, I wonder?"

"Why, Julian, it is no longer needful to disguise the truth, even if we could. Dr. Lamar neglects his business. He neglects it to come here. He no longer cares to be first in his profession as he used. A physician as a physician is in danger. You have heard as well as I that he has refused to take important professional cases because he is averse to his interest to take. You know it and cannot deny the reasons. This woman has him in her clutches, and with a false sense of honor, most creditable to himself, he refuses to break away. This is the plain truth as you know, and I say again this match must be broken off."

Every word of this had its effect. Maxey knew too well its force and its truth. There was no doubt that the philosophical physician had undergone a change in the past few months, and there was also good reason to believe that Miss Maxey had caused the cause. But what could the artist do? He replied at last hesitatingly:

"Every word you say, heartily yes, to all that you have said, what then? I do not doubt the advisability of breaking off the match, but how?"

"Who could do it better than yourself, Julian?"

"You!" Maxey spoke bluntly, but strongly.

Maxey sprang to his feet.

To your third, it does not follow that because she loves you she will consent to be your wife."

Maxey, speechless, stared at his sister.

"Does that seem strange to you? Oh, Julian, you do not know her as well as I do. The poor child has penned out her whole soul to me. She lives under a constant shadow. You can find out at first. She does, and it is the shadow of the past. I know you do not see it. She always smiles and looks happy when you are with her. But, depend upon it, she has moments, hours, when the broods and sorrows in silence. Julian, she is afraid the story of her birth is a story of shame, and that if it were known, respectable people would look upon her with suspicion, would close their doors against her. That there is a doubt is your only chance. The day that it becomes a certainty, that day you will lose her forever. Mark my words. I have been her mother, in a sense, and I know her. She would never disgrace or degrade the man she loves. Never! You may depend upon her that her fears are groundless."

"If indeed, Ellen, I need help in this matter, if I ever needed it in my life."

"Who can help you?"

"You."

"No. She would not take advice in such a matter. You will best win your own cause yourself. You are a man, and a bright man, and you can do it better than anybody else. You have a wonderful power in such matters when you are really in earnest. My advice is, act!"

Miss Maxey arose, smiled benignly upon her brother and left the room.

"The deuce!" thought Maxey. "She wants to be spirited with, because I could not aid her with Lamar! But this is too serious a matter for trifling, altogether too serious. What shall I do?"

CHAPTER XIV

THE EVENING.

The afternoon was drawing to a close. Miss Maxey had conveniently absented herself. The artist was alone in the rear chamber with his pupil. Annette was seated before an easel near the window while Maxey was standing by her shoulder, apparently at the sketch. She was not working. Her hands lay listlessly in her lap, and her eyes were fixed on the gray sky above the river.

"Are you studying the effect?" the artist queried, with a smile.

"No, Mr. Maxey, I was listening."

"Listening! To what?"

(CONTINUED.)

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Under a hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christopher Hoag, married man, of Polk County, Minnesota, and Emma Hoage, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which mortgage deed bears date the 2nd day of August, A. D. 1893, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 3rd day of August, A. D. 1893, at 11:45 o'clock a. m. in book 30 of mortgages on page 500, and was duly assigned by said mortgagee to the amount of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage deed, with interest at the rate of ten (10) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage deed and the coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the present owner and holder of said mortgage and notes for the principal sum of $400 and the interest thereon have now elected and do hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage and notes due and payable, and have caused the same to be done accordingly, by reason of the default of the mortgagors in the payment of the interest thereon when the same fell due, and there is now due and claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage and notes the said sum of $400, principal and $37.33 interest thereon to the 12th day of July, 1894, and the sum of $25.76 taxes for the year 1893, paid and forfeited against said premises and paid by said mortgagee, and no proceedings have been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the whole of said mortgage debt, together with the attorney's fee hereinafter mentioned, will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the northeast quarter (W½ of NE¼) and the east half of the northwest quarter (E½ of NW¼) of section twenty-one (21), in township one hundred and forty-four (144) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, according to the United States survey thereof, in Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, by the Sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, or his deputy, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay the said debt and interest, taxes and the said sum of $400 attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage, together with the costs, disbursements and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.) dollars, attorney's fees, as in said mortgage provided, and agreed to be paid by the mortgagors thereof.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee.
Angus G. Rhodes, Assignee of Mortgage.
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgage.
01372 Minneapolis, Minn. 84-71

AN ITALIAN CHURCH.

A HOUSE OF WORSHIP CALLED "CHURCH OF THE RAGPICKERS."

It Is the Queerest Place of the Kind in New York and Probably In the Country—Three Sons and Daughters of Italy Consolidate Religion and Business.

Not many New Yorkers have ever heard of the "Church of the Ragpickers." In the neighborhood of Roosevelt street, where it is located, this is the familiar name of the Roman Catholic church of St. Joachim, of which Father Vincini is the pastor. The members are Italians exclusively, inhabitants of the densely populated district roundabout, and as some of them are ragpickers and have rented the lower half of the church for the storage of their goods the nickname which designates the church as the peculiar place of worship of this class came into use.

Years ago, when Roosevelt street was not so squalid and as overcrowded with human beings as it is today, this church belonged to a Methodist Episcopal congregation. There were merchants and men of down town New York, living there, and the neighborhood was eminently respectable.

Now the church stands with a cheap lodging house on one side and a typical slum grocery store on the other. A row of tough saloons are near by, up and down the street. Organized in 1868, the Italian population thereabouts grew so rapidly within a radius of a mile that the church has now one of the largest congregations in the city.

The building is of brick and is dingy and dirty. It is only by standing across the street that you can see a small cross on the roof, the only thing about the edifice that suggests its religious character. Looking in on the first floor, you will witness a curious spectacle. The whole depth and breadth of the floor is filled with rags. Rags loose, rags in piles and rags in bales ready for shipping are all about. Big cranes and chains for hoisting purposes run here and there. Half buried in these piles of rags are men, women and children—the men and women busy assorting rags and the fat, brown youngsters tumbling about to play or sleeping, as the case may be.

It is the biggest ragshop in this city. It is wholesale and retail in the sense that here the individual ragpickers of the town dispose of their wares, which are assorted and baled and sold for manufacturing purposes. The pastor of St. Joachim's rents this lower floor to the company that conducts this rag business at a good rental, and indeed were it not for that the mission would suffer.

Italians are very practical about their religion, when they care for it at all, and they are very slow at contributing to the support of the church and expect a good deal of religion for a very little money.

The ragpickers in the rear of the floor over the ragshop, and this in itself gives an odd character to the services at times. On weekdays the men are at work in the basement when services are going on up stairs, and one can plainly hear them joining in the responses and chants during the celebration of the mass. While a reporter was there the other day one of the ragpickers in the basement sang a hymn to the Virgin while the services were going on, and his voice was of rare sweetness and purity.

At certain hours of the day laborers will come in, set their packs and shovels in a corner, and then join in the devotions. The peanut venders and fruit stand keepers in the neighborhood always attend the services for at least a few minutes each day. Bootblacks wander in with boxes on their backs and say a few brief prayers, and the Italian population generally comes and goes.

Six nuns are said in St. Joachim's church every Sunday, and from 1,200 to 1,500 persons attend every mass, so that some 6,000 or more people worship in the little church every week. Father Vincini, who established this mission, and who conducted it for years, has been sent to New England to organize Italian churches there. His place has been taken by a younger priest, Father Vincini. The position of parish priest of St. Joachim's is that of a patriarch. Not only does he marry his parishioners, baptize their children and bury their dead, but he is their constant adviser in other matters. He settles their disputes of all sorts, from business differences to lovers' quarrels.

One trouble the priest has to contend with is the manner in which his charges get married. Coming from Italy, where civil marriages are the proper thing, the Italians believe that the same laws obtain here. As a result the Italian quarter is filled with professional marriage brokers and matchmakers.

They bring couples together for a fee, then steer them to the city hall, where two men have for years done a steady business securing aldermen to marry couples, in getting certificates for them and arranging all the details of city hall weddings. Father Vincini tries to impress upon his people that he will marry them for nothing at all, but they still flock to the city hall. Some of them buy pictures of the building and send them to Italy so that their friends may see the palace in which they were married.—New York World.

Another Use For Paper.

Among the latest things made out of paper are artificial straws for sipping cobblers and various iced drinks. Everybody knows that real straws are apt to be defective, but the imitations never fail to draw. After they are rolled they are treated with paraffin to render them water tight and nonabsorbent. The same patent covers mouthpieces for cigarettes, which are manufactured in a similar fashion.—Philadelphia Times.

Over Long Ago.

He (who has just proposed)—Don't give me your answer now. Think it over.

She (eagerly)—I did think it over. I thought it was all over when I saw you flirting so outrageously with the Barstow girl.—New York Herald.

Two Opinions.

Lord Fitzdooley—Now—aw—Miss Evelyn—on this dower question, you know. Don't you—aw—think every wife ought to have a little money—aw?

Miss Evelyn—Yes, indeed, my lord. I'm right with you there. Because then, you see, if the girl makes a bad job of it, she will be fixed to back out.—New York World.

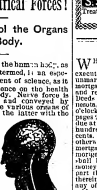
San Francisco is the most cosmopolitan city in the world. The holidays of every nation are commemorated by its public parades. Every civilized language may be heard, and the ships of every maritime nation from the British man-of-war to the Maltese felucca and the Chinese junk are seen in the bay.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the electrical energy needed.

The sympathetic nerve, or pneumogastric nerve, as it is sometimes called, is said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys and other nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As with so seen the catching up and descending from the organs of the brain and terminating in the nose and throat, these nerves are visited by numerous ills, as the branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered, the nerves which supply the various organs receiving the disordered energy are consequently weakened.



Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness, nervous prostration, headache, dizziness, epilepsy, etc., in fact from opinions or dangerous drugs, which only stimulate the nerves. Dr. Miles' Nervine, a remedy discovered by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

WITHOUT THE

Nox-pull-out

BOW (RING)

it is easy to steal or ring watches from the pocket. The thief gets the watch in one hand, the chain in the other and gives a quick jerk—the ring flies off the watch stem, and away goes the watch, leaving the victim only the chain.

This idea stopped that little game:

The bow has a spring on each end. A collar button inside of the pendant (stem) and bow into the spring, firmly locking the bow to the pendant so that it cannot be pulled out accidentally.

Sold by all watch dealers, without cost, on Jas. Boss Filled and other guaranteed cases.

A watch case opener sent free on request

Keystone Watch Case Co., PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO

St. Paul,
Minneapolis,
Duluth
Fargo,
Grand Forks
and Winnipeg

TO
HELENA,	PULLMAN
BUTTE,	SLEEPING CARS.
SPOKANE,	ELEGANT
TACOMA,	DINING CARS
SEATTLE,	FOR BEST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Duluth and West Superior,	7:54 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg,	8:35 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent. N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE, General Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Good Blood IS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH.

You cannot be well if your BLOOD IS IMPURE.

If you are troubled with

BOILS, ULCERS OR PIMPLES, SORES

your blood is bad. A few bottles of S. S. S. will thoroughly cleanse the system—purify and enrich. Appetite and build you up. All cancer of blood.

CLEARED AWAY

like as one. It is the best blood builder on earth. Thousands who have used it say so.

"My blood was badly poisoned from which got my system full of mercury. Your S. S. S. cleared away completely, to appearance of skin. Twelve bottles thoroughly purified me."—Mrs. Mary Hall, 1002 Cedar Street, Ohio.

Send for blood and skin diseases mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alcide Perreau, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Jerome Lefebvre, mortgagee, dated the 15th day of April, 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 9 o'clock, 9 m., in book "M" of mortgages on page 703 to 704, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of three hundred and thirty eight dollars and fifty nine cents, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage debt, or any part thereof, and said mortgage containing a provision that if default be made in the payment of the interest on said money, or the interest, or the taxes, or assessments thereof at the time, and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or any of the covenants, and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, are thereby authorized and empowered to sell the said premises described in said mortgage, or any part thereof, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said mortgage and mortgage, together with all charges and disbursements and an attorney's fee as twenty-five dollars, and otherwise legal costs, and render the further condition that in such case the surplus money arising from such sale be paid by the sheriff conducting the same, as in that behalf provided, to the party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns or his attorney to declare the whole sum thereby specified to be due, and whereby such default has been made in the payment of said notes mentioned in said mortgage, to-wit: one note of $100 which became due October 15th, 1893, one note of $75 which became due October 15th, 1893, and one note of $50 which became due October 15th, 1893, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof, and the whole sum secured by said mortgage due. And whereas, there is now claimed to be due and payable on said notes and mortgage the sum of $338.59 on account of principal and interest.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said premises will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises described and the whole thereof, or so much of said premises will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor for cash, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and state, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage and mortgage, together with costs and expenses of sale, and attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are the north-east quarter of section one hundred (10), township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of range number forty-six (46) west in the county of Polk, and State of Minnesota.

Dated this 4th day of June, A. D. 1894.

JOSEPH RELSO, Mortgagee.

ALLEY & ROSSER, Attorneys for Mortgagee, Bullard, Minn. 48-4c

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage dated on the 5th day of July, A. D. 1893, and executed by Jesse O. Bixby and Sarah A. Bixby, his wife, mortgagors to L. Ellington, mortgagee and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book "M" of mortgages on page 81 of which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay said debt and interest thereon at the time of said sale, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county of Polk, on Saturday, the 14th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in Polk county, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The south-west quarter (S. W. ¼) of section twenty-six (26) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-six (46) west of the 4th principal meridian.

Dated this 6th day of June, A. D. 1894.

L. ELLINGTON, Mortgagee.

E. P. PERRY, Attorney for Mortgagee. 49-7

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

C. HENDRICKSON, ... President
L. ELLINGTON ..... Vice President
A. W. WARELIUS ..... Cashier
A. P. HANSON ..... Assistant Cashier

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Frank Rogne and Annie Rogne, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 15th day of June, A. D. 1891, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 9:30 o'clock a. m. in book 42 of mortgages, at pages 502-3, and which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and two (2) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Northwestern Trust Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated the 1st day of July, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, at page 401.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $1,000, and the interest upon said mortgage indebtedness, and the sum of $1,000 principal and $60 interest is now due and claimed to be due and collected on the note secured by said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay said debt and interest thereon at the time of said sale, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county of Polk, on Saturday, the 28th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in Polk county, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section one hundred and one (101) in township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west of the 4th principal meridian according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 28th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of $25 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee, Assignee of Mortgage.

ANDREW G. BRADEN, Attorney for said Assignee. 51-6

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Hans Rogne and Gunhild Rogne, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 15th day of June, A. D. 1891, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 42 of mortgages, at pages 500-1, and which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and two (2) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Northwestern Trust Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated the 1st day of July, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages, at page 401.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $1,000, and the interest upon said mortgage indebtedness, and the sum of $1,000 principal and $60 interest is now due and claimed to be due and collected on the note secured by said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay said debt and interest thereon at the time of said sale, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county of Polk, on Saturday, the 28th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in Polk county, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The south-west quarter (S. W. ¼) of section twenty-six (26) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west of the 4th principal meridian according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of $25 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee, Assignee of Mortgage.

ANDREW G. BRADEN, Attorney for said Assignee. 51-6

The Linen Duster.

"It is a long time," said a traveling man, "since I have seen a linen duster of the old fashioned kind, which wrinkled and creased whenever you sat down in it, especially if the weather was a little damp, and which looked after you had been 100 miles or so in it as though you had worn it around the world 17 times, all the way by sail, and had sat up in it all the time, but ulsters and dusters are still worn."—New York Sun.

The Society Shifted.

The excitement of a theatrical company, traveling through Lake Geneva on their way to Canada, were communicating upon the gossipers of the country when the train came to a standstill. One of the men, becoming impatient, ventured out, and upon his return was asked the cause of the delay. "Well," he replied, "a pierce the country has fallen across the track."—Life.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Hans Rogne and Gunhild Rogne, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 15th day of June, A. D. 1891, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 42 of mortgages, at pages 502-3, and which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and two (2) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Northwestern Trust Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated the 1st day of July, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages, at page 401.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $1,000, and the interest upon said mortgage indebtedness, and the sum of $1,000 principal and $60 interest is now due and claimed to be due on the note secured by said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay said debt and interest thereon at the time of said sale, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county of Polk, on Saturday, the 28th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in Polk county, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section one hundred and one (101) in township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west of the 4th principal meridian according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of $25 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee, Assignee of Mortgage.

ANDREW G. BRADEN, Attorney for said Assignee. 51-6

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Hans Rogne and Gunhild Rogne, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 15th day of June, A. D. 1891, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 42 of mortgages, at pages 502-3, and which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and two (2) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Northwestern Trust Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated the 1st day of July, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages, at page 401.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $1,000, and the interest upon said mortgage indebtedness, and the sum of $1,000 principal and $60 interest is now due and claimed to be due on the note secured by said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay said debt and interest thereon at the time of said sale, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county of Polk, on Saturday, the 28th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day. The premises described in said mortgage are situated in Polk county, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The south-west quarter (S. W. ¼) of section twenty-six (26) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west of the 4th principal meridian according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of $25 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee, Assignee of Mortgage.

ANDREW G. BRADEN, Attorney for said Assignee. 51-6

FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. MEDICAL FACT.

Dr. Peal's Pennyroyal Pills. Safe and always reliable. Ladies ask your druggist for Dr. Peal's Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other. Refuse dangerous imitations and substitutes. Sent by mail, prepaid, for $1.00. Circulars free. Address, The Dr. Peal Medicine Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand, [illegible]

After "Paradise Lost" was printed it was translated into French, and this version falling into the hands of an innocent Englishman he translated it back into English and sent it to a publisher. The manuscript is now in the British museum.

Great Britain owns 31,000 square miles in Borneo, and so great is the confidence felt in the prosperity of the British rubber that over 1,000,000 acres of land have been leased for 999 years.

During the last century an original copy of Magna Charta, seals, signatures and all, was found in the hands of a tailor who was about to cut it up for patterns.

An Irish chiropodist announces that he has "removed corns from all the crowned heads of Europe."

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS and every thoughtful person will admit that our aim is well selected when they notice the following:

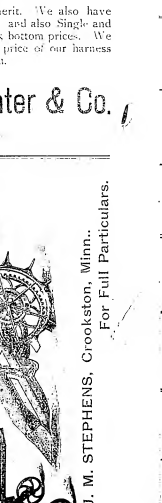
Rushford Wagons, John Deere Plows, Hollingsworth Rakes, Flying Dutchman Plows, Deering Binders and Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods, and we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston.



The Hoover Potato Digger.

- - DIGS SIX ACRES PER DAY. - -

A Practical, Cheap Machine

For Full Particulars.

See J. M. STEPHENS, Crookston, Minn.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 25 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Populist Congressional Convention, 7th District, July 17th, at Moorhead.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 5th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, August 14th, at Fergus Falls.

IN another column will be found the call for the republican county convention to elect delegates to the Seventh district congressional convention, and to the senatorial legislative convention, and to place in nomination a complete county ticket. The basis of representation has been enlarged, and 225 delegates will be entitled to seats in the convention. Each town should send a full delegation, and a good county ticket should be put up. Attend the primaries and select delegates who will attend the convention.

Much depends upon the kind of a county ticket that is put up by the republicans this year. It should be composed of men who are not only qualified for the offices, but who are active workers, and who will be found in the field until election day.

Another thing the republican party of this county should do in the coming campaign, and that is to talk local politics. Never mind the tariff question, or the silver question, or Grover; we will have plenty of speakers and those who are sent to the people on national affairs. It was local influences that brought about the rise of the populist party in this county, and its downfall can more quickly be brought about by the same means used to place them in power. Show up the record made by the populists and democrats in the administration of county affairs for the past four years, as compared with any four years of republican administration. Explain to the taxpayers the reason why their taxes are higher than ever before. See if the populists have carried out their pledges of "reform," which they have repeatedly made to the people.

The late populist convention was not a harmonious affair, and the ticket put up was not a strong one. Even the populists will admit this. It was so apparently a scramble for office, without any regard for principle, that the unprejudiced men in the party were disgusted with the whole proceedings. Who can trust a party that will break its pledge on the day they are made? The convention resolved that no office-holder should have a third term, and then turned around and nominated two of the present office-holders. These nominees are all right, but the action of the convention only shows the weakness of the party.

News flashed over the country on Saturday that a fight had occurred in Chicago between the strikers and United States troops, that twenty of the strikers had been shot dead and many wounded. Later reports showed that it was the mobs that resisted of the regular soldiers that were engaged, and that only one of the strikers is known to have been shot dead, though many were wounded and several were seen to fall and were carried away by friends, but whether killed or only wounded is not known. What is the beginning seemed a simple strike has developed into a fierce contest between labor and capital, and what the outcome will be is as yet quite problematical. While we have as yet seen no expression of sympathy for Mr. Pullman, yet it seems to be the sentiment of the public that the strikers have carried the matter too far when they have menaced the liberty and the property interests of the general public in the way they have, causing many innocent people to suffer great losses while the man they are after, Mr. Pullman, does not seem to be the loser by even a cent's worth. The cause of the strike, or boycott as it has become, seems to be this: Six months ago or so Mr. Pullman informed his employes—something like 3000 in number that at the then prevailing scale of wages he would be obliged to cut down quite materially or close up his shops entirely. He made his proposal as to cuts and the men accepted it for six months. He is the owner of the houses in which his laborers live, but somehow he overlooked a reduction in rents at the time he reduced the wages. At the end of the six months he met the men with the same old song and dance, but they informed him that it was simply impossible to live at those rates and when they could not prevail upon him to raise they urged him to submit the matter to a board of arbitration, but this he positively and emphatically refused to do. He made the statement in public that at the rates he offered he would be losing $20,000 per month, and yet refused to submit the question to an impartial board to decide whether he was or not. To us there seems to be something radically wrong here. If it was true that he would be losing money on the rates offered why should he hesitate to arbitrate? While there he and the men did not wrong, it is clear that the strikers also have done wrong and two wrongs never did make one right. By this question we have placed themselves without the pale of public sympathy, which is bad for themselves.

EDITOR CLARK, of the Marshall county Leader, has become disgusted with the ingratitude and actions of the men who are running the populist party in Marshall county, and though he will remain a populist he announces that his paper will hereafter be independent an "organ" for no party. He says that he has never been recognized in the councils of the party, nor has he received any financial support from the populist office-holders. He concludes his "Parting of the Ways" as he calls it, as follows:

One of the greatest objections urged against the old parties has been their trickery and deception. But there has been more trickery and dirty work by so-called populists in this county and this legislative district in the last twenty days, than both of the old parties have been guilty of during our two years acquaintance in the district.

These are some of the reasons which impel us to make this declaration of independence.

But last, though not by any means least every dollar's worth of patronage that the Leader receives comes from either republicans or democrats. Every advertisement in the Leader represents either a republican or a democrat. Every dollar's worth of job work turned out of the Leader office—or at least ninety-five per cent of it—is paid for by either a republican or a democrat. If republicans and democrats should withdraw their patronage from the Leader to-day—we say in all seriousness—it would not bring income enough left to pay the postage on its circulation.

Shall we continue to ask our republican and democratic neighbors and every-day friends to support a paper for us to fight them with, for a party that don't contribute one cent's worth of patronage to its support? Possibly we may, but we don't think so.

THE president is developing a good bit of backbone in handling the Hawaiian situation. A trifle slow about it, but gets there just the same eventually.

THE republican congressional committee of the 7th district met in St. Paul Saturday and decided to change the date of the convention to August 14th.

AT the republican county convention held at Warren, Marshall county, on the 9th inst the delegates to the congressional convention were instructed to vote for Halvor Steenerson.

IF the circumstances could be reversed and Geo. M. Pullman could enjoy the mechanic's side of it just for a day or so, wonder if he would be so unwilling to submit the question to arbitration?

THE government has taken steps at last to open the Northern Pacific road to traffic, as well as other roads that are in the hands of receivers. Now we shall see if Debs is a bigger man than Uncle Sam.

CERTAIN democrats whom we won't, of seemed extremely anxious to assist the pops in putting a ticket in the field that would be acceptable to democrats, for what reasons they alone best know—everybody else has to surmise.

IT is said that Grover has attempted to induce Mr. Pullman to submit this matter to arbitration and has sent Secretary Herbert, of New York, to confer with the great magnate. What the result of the conference was is not yet announced.

THE press of the country continues to denounce the strikers, and lay the blame for the riots at their door, while but little is said of Mr. Pullman, who by making a few concessions—which would affect him but little—could settle the whole business.

IF strikes us that Geo. M. Pullman is as much responsible for the killing that has occurred and may occur in this strike as anyone else. Had he consented to arbitrate the matter, as any candid man would have done, these lives would not have been sacrificed and the destruction of millions of dollars worth of property would have been prevented. Of course the men have done wrong, but Mr. Pullman should have submitted the cause to arbitration all the same.

THE republican county convention that is called to meet on August 3rd, should go to work and put up a ticket for county officers that could commend itself for its business qualifications and ability—with not a stick on the ticket, and we confidently believe that such a ticket would be elected.

HON. L. Fletcher has been renominated for congress and will no doubt be re-elected. J. T., McCleary is also re-nominated in his district, the second. Both of these congressmen are serving their first term and it is the part of wisdom to return them, as they have proved efficient members and, their first term has given them a valuable experience.

ONE of two things is sure—either Polk county has more office-seekers among the pops than any other county in the state or else the machine bosses in that party are desirous of perpetuating their power in this county by giving her everything in sight, judging by the lead Polk county seemed to have in the late convention in Minneapolis this week.

BRO. Lamphere, of the Moorhead News, has declared his intentions of becoming a candidate for congress, subject to the approval of the republican congressional convention. For sometime past Bro. Lamphere has apparently been grooming, but it did not have the appearance of preparation to run on the republican ticket. But Bro. Lamphere avers that he will run on a republican or nothing.

IN view of the great strike news from Chicago, the reading public almost lost sight of the fact that the administration building, the agricultural building and one other large building, in Jackson park, on the World's Fair grounds site, took fire and were totally destroyed on Friday of last week. Under the circumstances this seems a fitting disposal to make of them as the material would not pay the expense of removal and fire is more effectual and inexpensive.

PRENDERGAST will probably pay the penalty for cowardice and cowardly murder of Mayor Harrison tomorrow, that is if the courts do not again interfere, which is extremely doubtful. The jury before which he last appeared on a question of insanity, decided unanimously that he is sane enough to hang, and no doubt he will hang and justice get her dues. A few such examples would have a salutary effect and prevent cranks taking human life, expecting to get clear on the pretence of insanity.

THE great and only Donnelly was right in his element this week—seemed to have the pop machine well oiled and right under his thumb —running without any friction. What a power for good that man could be, if he would only ignore self and give his brilliant mind to the ameliorization of all the ills that do afflict the human race. But every move he makes must give promise of something in it for Donnelly. To the average mind of humanity this would stamp the man as selfish, but he was not in politics for the sake of his health—or the good of the country simply.

HENRY PEIX told the writer on Tuesday of this week: "I am a candidate for congress in this district providing the date, Sept. 11th, is changed to an earlier one, but otherwise. The date as fixed upon by the congressional committee gives the nominee not more than 25 days to canvass each county, which is altogether too limited a period. If the date is not changed I would not accept the nomination if it should be tendered me by acclamation. The last campaign was altogether too short, and that was two weeks longer than this would be. The date should not have been later than July 28th, and I wonder how ever the committee came to make the blunder."

AN ORDER TO STRIKE.

Sovereign Is Engaged in a Manifesto to Knights.

CHICAGO, July 11.—To an Associated Press reporter, General Master Workman Sovereign says he is now engaged writing an order for a general strike of the Knights of Labor everywhere. He says he expects the order will affect nearly 1,000,000 men—the present and former members of the K. of L. organization. Unless something unforeseen occurs, the order will go into effect within 24 hours.

Wonders Obey Debs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 7.—An order was received here from President Debs ordering out all A. R. U. men on the Louisville and Nashville road. A reply was sent that the men had no grievances against the Louisville and Nashville and refused to strike.

Debs Enjoined.

CHICAGO, July 7.—President Debs has been served with the injunction issued by the United States court some days ago. The injunction was served as Mr. Debs was leaving the Sherman House, after a brief conference with Grand Master Workman Sovereign.

THE REPUBLICANS

Meet In St. Paul and Put Up a Good Strong State Ticket.

Governor Nelson and Lieutenant Governor Clough Renominated.

Bob Dunn's Boom for Auditor Secures Him the Nomination.

The republican state convention met at 10:45 a. m. on Wednesday and was called to order by Tams Bigly, chairman of the state central committee. Ex-Gov. A. Barto was nominated temporary chairman, and Henry Feig secretary. The various committees were appointed, and then an address from Roswell G. Horr, of Washington, was listened to, after which the convention adjourned till the afternoon to give the various committees time to report. Upon re-assembling in the afternoon and listening to the various reports of committees, the convention proceeded to the nominations of a republican state ticket. Gov. Nelson was nominated by acclamation. As was also Lieut.-Gov. D. M. Clough. Up to the hour of going to press with the JOURNAL we have only the nominations of Albert Berg, as secretary of state, and R. C. Dunn, as auditor, to report. Next week we shall have a full and complete report of the convention.

PASSED THE SENATE.

AFTER THREE MONTHS DEBATE THE TARIFF BILL GOES THROUGH

By a Vote of 30 to 34, a Strict Party Vote, Except Mr. Hill, Who Was With the Republicans—Two Populists Vote Against the Bill and Two For It—An Anti-Trust Law Passed as the Bill as a Rider Without Division.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—In the midst of intense excitement at 10.41 p. m., after having been debated for three months and one day, the tariff bill, amended to take effect Aug. 1, 1894, passed the senate by a vote of 34 to 30, a strict party vote, except Mr. Hill who voted with the Republicans against the measure. The Populists divide their strength, two, Messrs. Peffer and Allen voting in favor of the bill and two, Messrs. Peffer and Stewart, against it. A very important piece of legislation in the shape of was placed on the bill as a rider, without even so much ee a division. It was designed, as Mr. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, said, to restore "integrity in the execution of the law," it being admitted that any tariff system afforded standard opportunity for the formation of trusts and combinations.

An Anti-Trust Law

The most dramatic incident of the night occurred when Mr. Hill arose and in ringing, fervid tones, entered an impassioned protest against the Populistic income tax," and arraigned his party associates for being false to their party pledges and their country. The Republicans drew around him, as he spoke, the galleries leaned over as he dealt his sledge-hammer blows. When in conclusion he declared theatrically that he would not support the bill, a wave of applause quickly checked by the vice president, swept over the gallery.

MRS. J. H. HORSNYDER, 102 Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, Cal., writes:

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of typhoid fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald, and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair

Began to Grow,

and I now have as fine a head of hair as one could wish for, being changed, however, from blonde to dark brown."

"After a fit of sickness, my hair came out in combfuls. I used two bottles of

Ayer's Hair Vigor

and now my hair is over a yard long and very full and heavy. I have recommended this preparation to others with like good effect."—Mrs. Sidney Carr, 1460 Regina st., Harrisburg, Pa.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years and always obtained satisfactory results. I know it is the best preparation for the hair that is made."—C. P. Arnett, Monmouth Spring, Ark. •

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Republican County Convention.

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 30, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk county, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the city of Crookston, on the 3d day of August, 1894, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing 12 delegates to attend the Republican Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls, Minn., September 11th, 1894, and for the purpose of electing 4 delegates to attend the Senatorial and Legislative Convention to be held at Crookston, Minn., September 12th, 1894, and also to place in nomination candidates for the following county offices:

Sheriff.
Auditor.
Treasurer.
Register of Deeds.
Clerk of the District Court.
Attorney.
Judge of Probate.
Court Commissioner.
Superintendent of Schools.
Coroner.
Surveyor.
County Commissioner for Second District.
County Commissioner for Fourth District,

and also for the purpose of selecting a new County Committee.

The basis of representation shall be two (2) delegates at large for each voting precinct, and one (1) delegate for every twenty votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for governor.

All citizens who believe in the principles of the Republican party, as laid down in the National and State Party Platforms, and who intend to support the Republican party and its candidates are cordially invited to attend the primaries, regardless of former party affiliations.

The several voting precincts are entitled to representation as follows:

Andover	3	3d ward	2
Angus	3	4th ward	2
Black River	3	Garfield	2
Bray	2	Garden	2
Badger	2	Gentilly	2
Brandsvold	2	Gervais	2
Belgium	2	Grove Park	2
Brisbet	2	Godfrey	2
Bygland	2	Hammond	2
City of Crookston—		Higbee	3
1st ward	5	Hill River	3
2d ward	3	Huntsville	4
3d ward	3	Hubbard	3
4th ward	8	Keystone	2
5th ward	3	Kertsonville	2
Columbia	3	King	2
Crookston	4	Knute	2
Chester	2	Lake Pleasant	2
Emardville	2	Lambert	2
Euclid	2	Liberty	2
Eden	2	Lessor	2
Fairfax	3	Lovell	3
Farley	2	Louisville	2
Fanny	2	Seslit	3
Fisher	3	Norden	2
Grand Forks	2	Nurta	4
City of E. Forks—		Northland	2
1st ward	2	Numedal	2
2d ward	2	Oostad	3
		Parnell	2
		Poplar River	2
		Polk Center	2
		Queen	2
		Red Lake Falls—
		Village	4
		Township	2
		Rocksbury	2
		River Falls	2
		Rocksbury	2
		Roome	3
		Rosebud	2
		Russia	2
		Rhinehart	2
		Sanders	2
		Sandsville	2
		Village St. Hilaire	3
		Sletten	2
		Sullivan	2
		Tabor	2
		Terrebonne	2
		Tilden	2
		Tynsid	2
		Varnden	2
		Wagner	3
		Woodside	2
		Wyandotte	3

It is recommended that the primaries be held on Saturday next preceding the convention, at the most convenient hour and place in each precinct. No proxies will be admitted except the holder is a bona fide resident of the precinct represented.

By order of the County Committee.

P. J. McGUIRE, Chairman.

W. A. ROBERTSON, Sec.

Run Down by Overwork.

"I have been teaching school until about a year ago, when on account of overwork I became thoroughly worn out. When my school closed I thought I could obtain rest. But I could not rest. I did not feel well and could not eat or sleep. I did not feel easy anywhere, hardly. I become nervous and consulted a physician. He gave me some medicine and I felt better for a while but soon I was as bad as ever. I undertook to teach some more but was obliged to give it up. I was then sick with the grip for several weeks and after this I concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I began taking it according to directions and in two days I began to have a good appetite, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt ten times as well as I did before." MRS. A. A. Woolsey, Lester Prairie, Minn.

In 1880 in United States had population of 50,000, but in 1890, 28, and The Northwestern Line was the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to these cities. [10-tf]

Only 14 in United States in 1850 Cities had population over 100,000, but in 1890, 28, and The Northwestern Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to a large number of them. [10-tf]

A Great Is the Stone Arch Viaduct Bridge across the Mississippi at Minneapolis, and The Northwestern Line runs 16 First Class Past Express Trains across this bridge every day to Chicago, Duluth, Omaha and Kansas City. [10-tf]

Savage Used to wage war where Indians Minneapolis and St. Paul now stand. To-day there are no Indians in these cities. The Northwestern Line runs Superb Pullman Sleepers between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha, [10-tf]

That Tired Feeling

Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for such a condition, and also for the weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life. Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, carefully prepared from the best ingredients.

NOTICE OF PETITION

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In District Court, 9th Judicial District. In the matter of the petition of Hans P. Sjolund and Anne M. Solsrud, for the adoption of Elena Opdahl, a minor female child, under fourteen years old, and for the change of name of said minor child.

Upon the petition of Hans P. Sjolund and Anne M. Solsrud in the above entitled matter having been presented to the court this day, stating that they are husband and wife, residents and householders of the county of Polk and state of Minnesota; that Anne Opdahl, is a minor child under the age of fourteen years, to wit, of the age of seven years, and that said child is the daughter of Ole Opdahl and Mary Opdahl of Mackinac, in the county of Polk, and State of North Dakota, and is now residing in the county of said county, and that the petitioners received said child from the parents thereof, Ole Opdahl and Mary Opdahl, at Fargo, county of Cass, and State of North Dakota, on or about the 1st day of January, 1893, and have ever since maintained and cared for her and do now and still desire to adopt said child. That J. M. McConnehy, who resides at Crookston, in Polk county, Minnesota, and Mary Dahoes, of Fargo, Cass county, North Dakota, have been appointed guardian, or such child, and that he consents to said adoption.

Now, therefore it is ordered that said petition be heard before this court at the courthouse, in the city of Crookston, county of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on Monday, the 27th day of September, A. D. 1894, said day being the first general term of said court, then, now, or thereafter next ensuing, and that a copy of this order be published for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a newspaper printed and published in said county and state, such publication to begin Thursday, July 5, 1894.

By the Court, FRANK IVES,
District Judge.

Dated June 29th, 1894.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Richard Hill and Lucretia Hill, his wife, of Polk county, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Loan and Investment Company, a corporation, which mortgage was dated the 15th day of April, A. D., 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for Polk county, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D., 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 61 of mortgages on page 12 and 13.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the principal sum of one thousand dollar and interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and the sum of $1,100 is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of $633.55, being for principal, interest, taxes and insurance premiums paid by said mortgagee, and the sum of $125.45 taxes for 1894 and insurance premiums expected to be paid by said mortgagee, and by said mortgagee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the money now due on said mortgage.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises, situated in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter (NE¼) of section fifteen (15), township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the courthouse, in said county, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will be due on said mortgage at the time of said sale, including the costs, disbursements and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00), attorneys fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 2nd, 1894.

INDUSTRIAL LOAN COMPANY, Trustee.
ANGUS G. BRIGGS, Assignee of Mortgage.
Attorney for said Assignee.
GILBERT & GILBERT, Minneapolis. 41-7t

KILLED BY MILITIA

Two Woman and an Unknown Man Meet Death at Danville, Ills.

THE SHOOTING WAS ACCIDENTAL.

A Thousand Indiana Troops Arriva at Hammond—Ragusara Leave.

DANVILLE, Ills., July 10.—Mrs. Michael Gleason and Miss Clera James were killed and an unknown man mortally wounded at Westville by a volley fired over the heads of a crowd of rioting miners by a company of militia.

The miners had been rioting in this vicinity since Sunday afternoon. During the night a number of freight cars were destroyed in the Eastern Illinois yards by incendiary fires, and a number of cars were derailed at Goose Creek on the Shelbyville branch. When the wreckage had been cleared the inbound passenger train proceeded without molestation until Danville was reached. When it stopped there it was surrounded by a crowd of miners and held. Word was telephoned to Danville and a special train with a company of the state troops started at once for the scene of trouble. About one mile from Westville a Crowd of Miners Had Collected, and upon the approach of the train bearing the militia began warlike demonstrations. Several pistol shots were fired at the soldiers, who returned the fire by shooting over the heads of the mob from the train, intending to scare them. Miss Clara James, the 19-year-old daughter of Thomas James, was standing in the doorway of her home. A bullet struck her just below her right breast and she died almost instantly. Mrs. Michael Gleason, a widow standing in her own yard, was also struck and died in five minutes. An unknown man received a mortal wound and will die before morning. The militia then left the train and charged the crowd, securing three prisoners. After this the crowd dispersed, and, no further resistance being offered, the troops returned to their train, which had been coupled in front of the passenger, and the trip to Danville was made without further accident.

QUIET AT CHICAGO.

Day Passes Without the Bad Between Strikers and Armed Forces.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The wheels of commerce still lay at the bidding of the A. R. U. Nevertheless the warcloud which has overhung this city and this land for the past 10 days shows distinct signs of lifting. Instead of stories of additional railroads tied up at various points throughout the country the day's dispatches almost without exception, bring advices of strikers returning to work and an increased resumption of traffic, amounting in some places to a return to normal conditions.

The day in Chicago has passed without a serious conflict between the strikers and the armed forces now on duty here. The feature of the day has been the action, almost all night long, of the federated trades unions of Chicago in deciding to unless George M. Pullman agrees to settle the differences between his company and his striking employes by arbitration or otherwise inside of 24 hours.

Call Out All Classes of Labor

Late in the afternoon the announcement was made that President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor had called a meeting of the executive committee of that organization to be held in this city on Thursday and that he would leave New York for Chicago at once. In view of this it is not believed that the federated trades of Chicago will take precipitate action before consulting with him. As President Gompers cannot reach Chicago before Wednesday night it will be impossible to decide upon a line of action to be pursued before Thursday, and probably, if it should be decided to declare a general strike of all these combined forces, it could not be put into effect before Friday morning.

The Situation in General.

Touching the situation in general it may be said that in Chicago the roads were all quieter than on any previous day since the strike began. Passenger trains were moving with more or less regularity and more freight traffic has been cared for. A large number of striking freight handlers of the Illinois Central returned to work and other roads noted accessions to their operative forces.

At St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver it was reported that railroad business had about returned to normal conditions. Nobville also reported an improvement.

About the only points at which the strike managers showed any gain were in the partial walkout of firemen at Fort Scott, Kan., the freight train on the Kanawha and Michigan at Charleston, W. Va., and the strike of the A. R. U. men on the Big Four at Charleston. It will thus be seen at the leading railroad centers the strikers have made comparatively little their gains are at comparatively unimportant points.

Traffic Improved.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Reports from the various roads having terminals in Chicago, as issued by the General Managers' association, showed that passenger trains were being received and sent out on nearly all lines. A sufficient number of freight trains to care for the traffic offered were run. All tracks were, however, heavily patrolled by police and troops.

CLEVELAND'S PROCLAMATION.

The City of Chicago Virtually Placed Under Martial Law.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Just before midnight President Cleveland issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, By reason of unlawful obstructions, combinations and assemblages of persons, it has become impracticable, in the judgment of the president, to enforce by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, the laws of the United States within the state of Illinois, and especially in the City of Chicago within said state; and,

Whereas, That for the purpose of enforcing the faithful execution of the laws of the United States and protecting its property and removing obstructions to the United States mail in the state and city aforesaid, the president has employed a part of the military forces of the United States.

A Word of Warning.

Now, therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby admonish all good citizens and all persons who may be or may come within the city and state aforesaid, against aiding, countenancing, conspiring or taking any part, in such unlawful obstructions, combinations and assemblages; and I hereby warn all persons engaged in or in any way connected with such unlawful obstructions, combinations and assemblages to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes on or before noon on the 9th day of July.

Those who disregard this warning and persist in taking part with a riotous mob in forcibly resting and obstructing the execution of the laws of the United States, or of the government or attempting to destroy the property belonging to the United States or under its protection, will do so at the extreme risk of their public enemies. The only safe course, therefore, for those not actually unlawfully participating is to abide at their homes, or, at least, not to be found in the neighborhood of riotous assemblages. While there will be no hesitation or vacillation in the decisive treatment of the guilty, this warning is especially intended to protect and save the innocent.

Interfering With the Functions

Practically Under Martial Law.

The proclamation, practically declaring martial law in Chicago, was decided upon after a full discussion in the cabinet meeting.

This is the action which General Miles has desired from the beginning, as it will give him more ample authority in the city. None of the cabinet officials were willing to discuss the proclamation at the conclusion of the conference, but the following dispatch, which was sent from the war department to General Miles at Chicago, is seen in a measure to interpret the intention of the president's action:

"In view of the provisions of statute and for the purpose of giving ample warning to all persons who may be disposed persons, the president has deemed it best to issue the proclamation."

Directed to Disperse Rioters.

CHICAGO, July 10.—General Miles issued a general order to troops, directing them to enforce the president's proclamation to disperse rioters.

MORE TROOPS ARRIVE.

A Thousand Ragusans Go to Chicago in Anticipation of More Trouble.

CHICAGO, July 11.—A thousand more United States troops arrived in Chicago Monday as reinforcements to those already in the field. They went into camp on the lake front on their arrival. These reinforcements were ordered forward in anticipation of a general strike in Chicago, and the fear of more violence resulting from the enlarged army of idle men on the streets.

From Fort Riley, Kan., came four troops of cavalry and three batalions of artillery, the former under command of Major Morris, and the latter under the command of Major Randolph. The detachment comprises 380 men. A squadron of the Ninth and one of the Sixth cavalry came from Fort Niobrara, Neb., consisting of 200 men, and eight companies of the Ninth infantry from Sackets Harbor and Fort Oswego, N. Y. In addition the entire Second infantry, 450 men, is held in reserve at Omaha.

Refused to Arbitrate.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The joint committee from the city council and the Federation of Labor with President Debent Wickes at the offices of the Pullman company at 2 o'clock. The chairman of the committee submitted a letter to Mr. Wickes the nature of the request and after a brief consultation with his attorneys, he refused emphatically to receive the proposed commitie of five. "The Pullman company has nothing to arbitrate," said Mr. Wickes, and we must refuse to receive the committee to which you refer. Our company has not receded from the position taken at the inception of the strike. This is final."

STRIKERS STILL IN CONTROL.

No Trains Moving on Any Part of the Southern Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—The Southern Pacific railway seems to be no nearer the management of their road in California. The striking A. R. U. men still control the road. Several newspapers published reports that the company had weakened and that the Pullman cars would be withdrawn within the state and the freight and mail trains started if the strikers would agree not to molest such trains. A. N. Towne, vice president and general manager of the road, stated that such reports were unfounded and that the company positively would not recede at all from its position. In other words, the company will run Pullman coaches or no trains at all. The freight outlook indicates no trains. At Oakland the blockade is still complete, not even suburban and ferry trains running. At Sacramento, where the situation is most serious, nat a wheel is turning.

FIRED ON THE MOB.

MILITIA MAKE HAVOC WITH BULLETS AND BAYONETS.

Strikers and State Troops Come Together at Forty-ninth and Loomis Streets—A Large Number of Rioters Went Down, Some Fatally Injured — Lieutenant Reed of the Militia So Badly Injured He May Die.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The strikers and the State of Illinois came together Saturday afternoon and a pitched battle was the result. The number of killed and wounded will never be known, for the mob carried off a number of men who were seen to fall, and whether they were dead or wounded or how many of them fell it is impossible at this time to ascertain.

The fight occurred at the intersection of Forty-ninth street and the Grand Trunk tracks, a locality which has always had an evil name. The trouble began early in the morning when the mob threatened to burn the Grand Trunk roundhouse. The militia were sent for and arrived before noon. After three or four hours in which all sorts of alms were heaped on them by the rioters, including the throwing of stones, the militia were ordered to charge. With leveled bayonets they rushed at the mob.

John Burke was standing in the front of the mob throwing coal as fast as he could move his arm. One of the first soldiers in the charge plunged his bayonet clear through his body, the point coming out at the back. Burke went down like a log and died in a few minutes.

The mob broke before the charge, but quickly rallied, and after a short pause came on again, sending a pattering of revolver bullets before it.

Storm of Leaden Death

swept into the mob. Men fell right and left, but the militia, deputies and police pressed forward rapidly, driving the crowd before them in the wildest confusion. It was all over in a few minutes, and the militia marched into their train and with the deputies returned to the city.

FIRED ON BY REGULARS.

United States Troops at Hammond, Ind., Use Guns on an Unruly Mob.

CHICAGO, July 9.—A serious fight occurred at 5 p. m. at Hammond, Ind., between a mob of 5,000 men and Company B of the Fifteenth infantry, in which two of the mob are known to have been killed and several others, including one woman, are said to have been injured. The mob became so violent shortly after noon that a detatchion of the First Illinois militia was sent down from Pullman. It drove the rioters over the state line, which was just west of Hammond, but were not able to do more, as they could not move into the state of Indiana. Word was sent to Chicago for a company of regulars, who could operate irrespective of the state line. Captain Hart, of Company B of the Fifteenth infantry,

Were Despatched to the Scene.

The regulars were patrolling the tracks in a passenger coach when they were attacked by the mob with stones, some shots being fired. The troops soon returned the fire through the car windows, killing Charles Fleischer, who was shot through the bowels, and wounding W. H. Campbell in the leg. Several other men and one woman were wounded, but their names are not known. There were additional companies of regulars were sent from Chicago on a special train. The mob has driven from the telegraph operators in town and has cut the telephone wires, making it very difficult to obtain information from the place, but it is certain that up to 9 p. m. there were no further disturbances.

Quiet at Hammond.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The Chicago and Erie railroad officials report that Hammond is very quiet. An Erie train went through the town at 9:30 a. m. without trouble and the indications were for a peaceful day.

AN UNEVENTFUL DAY.

Nothing Unusual in the Strike Situation at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, July 11.—Another unusually day must be added to the local history of the strike. Gradually affairs are recovering from the sudden-ness with which the boycott dropped upon them. The real interest now is in Chicago. When the blockade there is broken and all other elements have been subjugated, the imperfect organization of freights on all Chicago-St. Paul lines will be expedited. The situation here shows an improvement in that direction over Sunday and matters look hopeful for a much brighter outlook soon. Every line is making efforts to resume a normal traffic.

A MILLION DAMAGE.

From Twelve to Fifteen Hundred Pan Handle Cars Burned.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The number of cars on the Pan Handle road between Fifty-fifth and Sixty-third streets destroyed by fire is estimated to have been from 1,200 to 1,500. The total loss is said to be not less than $1,000,000. It is estimated that besides the loss of rolling stock, at least 10 and 12 tracks will be ruined. It is impossible now to place any value on the freight destroyed by the fire. Whole coal trains are sidetracked in the yard and they were entirely destroyed.

Railroads Decline to Arbitrate.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Reports to the post-office department state that the railroad officials have positively declined to accede to the demands of the strikers for arbitration. Their action is based on the assertion that there are no grievances to arbitrate.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, July 4.

Coinage for the year at the Philadelphia mint was $26,554,284.06.

The University of Michigan conferred degrees on 680 at its commencement.

Wellesley College's new president, Mrs. Julia J. Irvine, is a sister of "Buffalo Bill" Cody.

Swarms of what are said to be crickets have invaded Champaign and Urbana, Ill., to the distress of housekeepers.

The American Association of General Baggage Agents will hold its annual convention in Montreal, beginning July 18.

Beef was selling for 7 1-2 cents a pound at Boston Saturday. Monday afternoon the price was 10 cents. This is the first effect of the Pullman strike.

Eastbound shipments from Chicago last week were 23,263 tons, against 64,699 for the week preceding and 47,409 for the corresponding week of last year.

Thursday, July 5.

Fire at New Haven did $125,000 damage.

The mother of General Boulanger is dead. She was 92 years old.

J. S. Coxey, the leader of the commonwealers, spoke to a large crowd at Minnehaha Wednesday.

The total number of deaths from the plague at Hong Kong is 2,398 according to the official report.

It is announced that the marriage of the czarewitch to the Princess Alix of Hesse will take place in January.

James J. Corbett has declared his willingness to match Billy Plimmer against anybody of the same weight.

Russia has urged China and Japan to withdraw their troops from Corea and endeavor to amicably settle their disputes regarding that country.

Friday, July 6.

Freight through the Soo canal for June amounted to 1,842,260 net tons, of which 1,076,338 tons were eastbound.

The Calumet Terminal railway employes of Chicago struck, and as a result the steel mills in South Chicago will probably close down.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman reports lumber trade at a standstill on account of the strike. The general outlook, however, is fair, when business is resumed.

The contract for completing the state capitol but ding at Bismarck has been let to George Shickler, St. Paul. The work will begin as soon as the material can be moved. Workmen and material will only be accepted from North Dakota residents.

The Papale Romano states that the Italian authorities are in possession of proofs of an anarchist plot directed against Premier Crispi of Italy, President Carnot of France, Alexander III. of Russia, and other heads of European governments. All were to have been killed within a week.

Saturday, July 7.

Congressman Lisle of Kentucky is dead.

Dobbins won the Realization stakes at Sheepshead Bay.

The yacht Vigilant was again defeated by the Britannia Saturday.

The strike paralyzing interest in Duluth street railways has attracted Eastern capitalists.

The cash balance in the treasury is $119,002,005, of which $64,711,896 is reserve.

The Rock Island railroad is closing all of its city ticket offices west of the Mississippi river.

The more favorable weather of the second half of June has had a good influence upon the cereals in Hungary.

O'Donovan Rossa has returned to England and announces his intention of standing for election as city marshal of Dublin.

A dispatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, says that ex-Premier Stambouloff will be indicted for general abuse of power and for opening private letters.

At Upper Marlboro, Md., James Allen, colored, was hanged for assault and murder of Mrs. Sarah Gardner Thomas Simpson, residing near Woodmore.

Monday, July 9.

The German bundesrath has rejected the bill repealing the anti-socialist law.

The committee on appropriations will have the right of way in the senate during the week.

Thirty-nine new cases of cholera and 18 deaths from the disease were reported in St. Petersburg Sunday.

The prisoners in the house of correction at Boston mutinied, but were subdued by guards after one man had been shot.

Twelve hundred miners marched from Spring Valley, Ill., to Hall, where they looted the store of the Spring Valley Coal company. Attacks are feared at other points in the vicinity.

Tuesday, July 10.

The Britannia won the third race with the Vigilant.

The strike situation in Colorado is said to be improving.

Sixty persons were drowned by a Russian steamship accident.

The net cash balance in the treasury is $119,002,005, of which $64,241,416 is in gold reserve.

The number of new cases of cholera at St. Petersburg Monday was 66. Seventeen have proven fatal.

Representative Draper has introduced a resolution directing the committee on military affairs to inquire what is necessary, if any, should be made in the army.

Professor Goldwin Smith has returned to his home in Toronto, after a long visit to England, and is now hard at work on his memoirs and revision of his books, new editions of which will appear before very long.

Frank A. Lappen, who was a year ago known as the merchant prince of Milwaukee, writes a letter to C. A. Farhel of that city, stating that he is now driving a cab in London, and that he has been almost penniless for several months. Lappen left Milwaukee to escape prosecution on numerous charges of swindling. He conducted the largest house furnishing establishment in Wisconsin.

RIOT AT BUTTE.

Militia Called Out to Quell a Religious Disturbance.

HELENA, July 4.—The feeling between the A. P. A. and other elements in Butte resulted in the shooting of two men. One, a policeman named Dailey, was killed. A saloon men had an A. P. A. sign over his place and after this parade the opposition demanded that he remove it. He refused and an attempt to take it down resulted in a riot. City officials were powerless and the governor's consent was called upon for militia, which was ordered out. Soldiers were placed on guard and the town is quiet.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Decided That It Will Not Be Postponed on Account of the Strike.

CLEVELAND, July 7.—The Christian Endeavor committee of 1894 held a meeting to consider the advisability of postponing the convention of the society, which is scheduled to commence in this city next Wednesday, owing to the great railroad strike. After considerable discussion it was decided that owing to the extensive preparations already made, and for other important reasons it would be impossible to postpone the convention, and it will convene on the day heretofore announced, the big strike notwithstanding.

Patient's Successor.

PARIS, July 0.—M. Burdeau has been elected president of the chamber of deputies, in succession to M. Casimir-Perier, recently elected president of the republic. The votes cast were as follows: Burdeau, 259; Brisson, 197; scattered, 33.

Earthquake at Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 11.—Two violent earthquake shocks were felt here at 12:20 p. m. Each shock lasted about 20 seconds. Although some damage was done, the extent of it is not known as this dispatch is sent. The inhabitants have become greatly alarmed and are fleeing from their houses in anticipation of further and more serious disturbances.

Disbanded Troops.

MILWAUKEE, July 11.—The sheriff of Washburn county has notified Governor Peck that there is no further difficulty at Spooner. The troops at Hudson and Eau Claire have accordingly been dismissed.

They Wear Flags.

CHICAGO, July 11.—For answer to President Debs' call upon all his sympathizers to wear white ribbons, numerous United States flags are being distributed on the board of trade and worn on the lapel.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court. Special term, July 9th, 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Charles S. Spenley deceased.

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted to Ernest E. Spenley of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court for examination and allowance on or before the 9th day of October next, at said county, on Monday, the 9th day of October, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m.

It is further ordered that six months from the date hereof be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented or filed shall be forever barred.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of hearing, proving and allowing of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 9th day of July A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. M. DENSON,
Judge of Probate.

(113-15)

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance Policies, Chattel Mortgages, etc. Good Security and Low Time and Reasonable Rates. Collections of Personal Notes and Accounts in all parts of the United States and Canada. Legal Business generally. Address Northwest Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

(First Publication July 12th, 1894.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Nelson P. Rishi mortgagor, dated the 30th day of January, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of February, 1892, at 8:45 o'clock p. m., in Book "Z" of Mortgages on pages 83-84-5.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of Seven hundred dollars ($700) principal and interest, and no action or proceeding has been instituted to foreclose said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz:

The north half (N. 1/2) of the south east quarter (S. E. 1/4) and the south west quarter (S. W. 1/4) of section number five (5), in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north, of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county or deputy, at the front door of the Polk county court house, in the city of Crookston in said county and State, on the twenty-fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 30th, A. D. 1894.

NELSON P. RUSH,
Mortgagor.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Moorhead,
Clay County, Minn.

(113-19)

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

(First Publication July 12th, 1894.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Blakes Bostads and Ingeborg Bostads, his wife, mortgagors, to Nels Nelson, mortgagee dated November 3rd, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 3rd day of November, 1892, at 10:40 o'clock a. m., in Book Lof mortgages on pages 491 to 493.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of six hundred and eighty dollars ($680) principal and interest, and no action or proceeding has been instituted to foreclose said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: the south half (S. 1/2) of the north west quarter (N. W. 1/4) and the north east quarter (N. E. 1/4) of the south west quarter (S. W. 1/4) of section number twenty-three (23) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north, of range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres more or less, according to the Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, or his Deputy, at the front door of the Polk County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 25th, A. D. 1894.

NATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Moorhead, Clay County, Minn.

(113-19)

Mr. C. E. Bohall, W. Union, Minn.

Blood Poison

By ivy or live oak, caused inflammation, erysipelas and leprous itching and burning on my legs. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and do not have any poison symptoms. I have gained 12 pounds since taking Hood's. C. E. BOHALL, West Union, Minn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the

Saskatchewan Valley,

Address WM. RITCHIE, Grafton, N. D.
Or L. A. HAMILTON, Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to C. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston,
Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

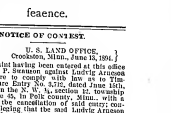
U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 21, 1894.

A complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Swanson, contestant, of Argyle, for failure to comply with law, as to timber culture Entry No. 8,376, dated June 15th, 1885, upon the N. W. 1/4, section 12, township 155, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said timber culture has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said tract except about twenty acres, and has not been cultivated for over ten years, and that there is no house on said land; and having appeared and filed his corroborated affidavit, and the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 30th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

WM. ANSLIN,
Register.

(113-16) ED. ROSSMAN,
Receiver.

C. A. FISCHER,



PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-boring Barrels, Reblocks Guns of all kinds. Also Key-fitting Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Mott's Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

AN ENGINEER TALKS.

AN ANSWERS A FEW QUESTIONS SUBMITTED BY VOORHEES.

Shows His Loss of Wages Under a Democratic Administration—Immigration One of the Causes of the American Laboring Man—Advice to Congress.

To the Hon. D. W. Voorhees, Chairman Finance Committee United States Senate, Washington:

DEAR SIR—Your circular letter of inquiry at hand and contents noted. In reply will say:

First—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Second—I am not in possession of any means whereby I could inform you accurately as to the number of people employed in the various industries in my district.

Third—The wool industry is one of the most permanent here. The wages of labor have been reduced 24 per cent and employment reduced about one-third. As to my own vocation I would give you a few samples for comparison.

I had steady employment since 1883 until March, 1893, when I had to go on what in railroad phrase is called "the extra list." In March, 1893, I earned $93; in April, $41; May, $35.50; June, $84; July, $18.60; August, $10; September, $47.10; October, our most prosperous month, $111.60; November, $106; December, $87. In 1892 I earned for the same time as given in 1893 as follows: March, 1892, $106; April, $93, and was on leave six days; May, $118. June, $143; July, $139; August, $180; September, $80, and on leave 15 days; October, $149; November, $163; December, $144.50. So far in 1894 I averaged about $40 per month.

Fourth—My industry from a workingman's standpoint is as present in a depressed condition.

Fifth—The expenditures of the families of workingmen have been lessened by reason of a reduction of wages and lack of work during the past 12 months.

Sixth—I had been working full time of 26 days per month if I so desired.

Seventh—A reduction of import duties, in my opinion, would cause more idleness.

Eighth—It is also a peculiar question for me to answer as to the best methods of placing the industries upon a prosperous basis because, I never was educated to make a good statesman. But it seems that such men as you and the rest of congress should be able to fathom these questions out and act honestly and not lay back in your seats and watch an honest man giving his honest views for no other purpose than for you to misconstrue them and make political capital out of them and feed them to ignorant foreigners for your re-election. This is not mainly for your benefit, but for all senators and representatives.

Ninth—Immigration is one of the curses to the American laboring man. I look at it as a living disgrace on all American statesmen for stooping so low as to aid the bidding of foreign steamship companies for the mere pittance of a free pass over the ocean or to be so cowardly as to be afraid to lose a few ignorant foreign votes.

If we had a few more men like the Hon. W. E. Chandler, we could expect some wholesome laws on that subject. Have you got the manhood to co-operate with such men and take a stand sir, that subject?

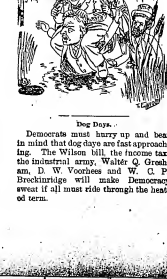
It seems to be the general opinion of every one in my district that if congress would adjourn and its members go home business would revive and confidence would come again.

This is all I can enlighten you, and hoping it will be of some benefit to you I am, yours respectfully,

T. W. REDDY,
Engineer U. P. Railway.

Japanese Woolen Manufacturers.

The competition that our woolen manufacturers are likely to meet with in a few years from Japan is considerable. Japanese buyers of raw wool in Australia continue to work away quietly and unobtrusively, and if their operations have not been large in the aggregate they have been at least constant. There is nothing in the present outlook more cheering in a small way than this gradually growing consumption of Australian wool by our Japanese friends, and we would add just here that there are no buyers in the market more pleasant to do business with than these same Japanese. With characteristic aptness they soon acquire an expert knowledge of the merits and demerits of the different classes of wool, and they act upon their knowledge with great shrewdness and confidence.



Dog Days.

Democrats must hurry up and bear in mind that dog days are fast approaching. The Wilson bill, the income tax, the industrial army, Walter Q. Gresham, D. W. Voorhees and W. C. P. Breckinridge will make Democracy sweat if all must ride through the heated term.

THE SUN SHINES.

A NEW YORK PAPER OWNS UP TO ITS BLUNDER.

It Helped to Elect Grover Cleveland as President and Now Tears Its Candidate to Pieces—Facts That Ought to Have Been Discovered Years Ago.

The exposure by the New York Sun May 20 of the socialistic teachings of Grover Cleveland deserves more than a mere passing recognition. Only two years ago The Sun waged a vigorous warfare against the prosperity of the United States by advocating the election of Mr. Cleveland to the office of president of the United States. It did so largely by creating class discrimination, and its cry of "No force bill! No negro domination!" will be long remembered. It set the south against the north. It advocated a policy that has damaged and destroyed the manufacturing and the wage earning interests in both sections. It descended to the level of the pro-British and anti-American organs that disgrace the American press of today, yet which were successful in the campaign of 1892.

It is indeed gratifying to know, though two years late, that The Sun finds its old record a stone upon its head to be mere clay, dross or brass. But even so it might have been discovered sooner. It was just as easy for The Sun to refer to the speeches and letters of the presidential candidate in 1892 as it is to do this in 1894. The documents of 1886, of 1888, of 1891, of April and July, 1892, were all at the disposal of The Sun as matters of public record prior to November, 1892. The Sun knew them, or should have known, the character of the man whom it wished to elect to the high office of president and that his teachings were "the teachings of the disturbers of society, and sometimes such teachings bear terrible fruit."

There can be no excuse whatever for a journal of the high standing of the New York Sun for advocating such teachings through its candidate. They were un-American and should have found no place either directly or indirectly in the columns of a respectable American journal. We trust this will prove a lesson to all American newspapers such as are truly American and have the interests of their country at heart. It is far better to take the trouble to ascertain whether the candidate for the high office of president has at any time been a socialistic agitator, an advocate of anarchy, a promoter of strife or a disturber of classes before his election than it is to do this after his election.

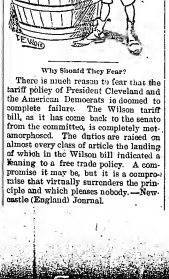
The light has come. The splutterings of the fog ends of the candle are extinguished. Now the light is good. The light is divided from the darkness. Let The Sun shine.

COST OF GROWING WOOL.

The American Sheep Rather Cannot Compete With the Australian.

Ignoring the difference in freight against the American woolgrower, the Australian woolgrower has the advantago of pasture all the year round, the pasture in Australia being better in winter than in summer. The wool grower in Australia reuts his land from the government for a smaller charge than the Ohio woolgrower in many cases pays in taxes alone, and the latter, owing to our rigorous winter climate for five months in the year, feeds his sheep hay and grain, nearly the whole of which is bought. It costs nothing to grow hay or grain. Nature does that.

The main cost to the farmer of hay and grain is in the preparing of the land, in cultivating, in the discarting and the feeding, which are all labor, and which represent 90 per cent of the whole cost of production, the remaining 10 per cent representing interest and taxes. Under these conditions the cost of raising wool in the United States is at least 11 cents per pound in actual outlay greater than the cost of raising the same class of wool in Australia or the Argentine Republic, and the McKinley tariff has placed the duty of 11 cents per pound on imported unwashed wool to put the American woolgrower on even terms with his foreign competitor. The latter has advantages of cheap land, of climatic condition and cheaper freight, which to him are fully equivalent to 11 cents per pound.



Why Should They Fear?

There is much reason to fear that the tariff policy of President Cleveland and the American Democracy is doomed to complete failure. The Wilson tariff bill, as it has come back to the senate from the committee, is completely metamorphosed. The duties are raised on almost every class of article the landing of which in the United States indicated a leaning to a free trade policy. A compromise it may be, but it is a compromise that virtually surrenders the principle and which pleases nobody.—Newcastle (England) Journal.

COURTING BY WIRE.

The Man Gushed Over the Ticker, but Was Disenchanted on Sight.

A telegraph operator in a Boston office once met with bitter disappointment early in his career by falling in love with a young woman at the other end of one of the old Western Union wires. She used to say sweet little nothings when a lull in the business gave her an opportunity to use the wire. The young man used to say sweet little nothings when a lull in the business gave her an opportunity to use the wire. The young man made up his mind to visit the girl, and the reputation of being a "dyf" sender and able to receive what he could send, as all important factors in the "sizing up" of an operator. The woman was proud to have him say even "Gm" or "Ge" (good morning or good evening) to her, and the other girls on the wire, with whom he never condescended to exchange even these ordinary salutations, were jealous. An interwore on their conversations over the wire became longer and more frequent. Finally an invitation to come to Boston and visit one of the theaters was given and accepted. The Lothario of the wire was to wear a red, red rose in his buttonhole—a white straw hat, with a blue band; she was to carry a small bouquet of pansies, shape in one hand and a fluffy lace handkerchief in the other.

The train arrived at the eastern station on time, and the satchel of peculiar design was sighted. It was indeed a peculiar design. It was an old fashioned carpetbag of a grayish green color and considerably older than the Morse alphabet. The girl was a sight that would have made Neil Burgess in the "County Fair" go and hide. She was forty-six years old. Long corkscrew curls of a past era hung down over her shoulders like twists of molasses candy, and a small loomed up under the eaves of her sunbonnet that would have done credit to a fixture in the side of Vesuvius.

She was extremely glad to see him, and he, with the instinct of a true gentleman, tried to appear that he was glad as glad to see her. He took her carpetbag, and they hooked a car for the home where he was staying. There were sly nudges and covert laughs at the tea table, all the girls and young men thinking the young operator was entertaining his aunt from the country. For the evening performance at the circus after the giddy maiden fished out an awful bonnet from the depths of her carpetbag and clicked it by her ears in the most approved fashion. The bonnet was a flower garden in itself, and the writer, the young man's aunt now said, that she and the bonnet attracted more attention than the play.

The next day he sent her home, but ever after he was careful not to allow himself to converse with any one on the wire except on business.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Antiquity of the Alphabet.

According to Philippe Berger's book, entitled "Histoire de l'Ecriture dans l'Antiquite," the alphabet was invented about 1500 B. C., that invented by the Phœnicians being without doubt the oldest of all the forms of expressing thought or sounds by character. Originally it and all other alphabets were simply a series of hieroglyphics or picture characters, the idea of an object or an act being expressed by rude sketches of such animals, abbreviations being in the form of a pair of tusks, horns, etc. Professor Ancr (see Vienna edition of his "Sprachelle," 1849) says that, taking both the ancient and modern alphabets into account, as many as 400 different sets of characters, hieroglyphics and letters may be enumerated, but these are all outgrowths of the Phœnician mode of naively expressing thought or sound, and that if we should set aside slight variations of form the grand total of 400 alphabets would dwindle immediately to less than 30.

The best oriental scholars have given it as their opinion that the original Phœnician alphabet was composed of but 16 characters, yet it is known that it contained at least 21 and probably 22 at the time when it was adopted by the Greeks. Why or by whom these extra characters were invented, or why such an addition was necessary, has never been explained. —St. Louis Republic.

Whistling Jack.

Jack McCarthy is familiarly known wherever he goes as "Whistling Jack." The prefix to Jack is reckoned on him 10 minutes after he lands at any city, and he has been in every town of over 1000 inhabitants in the United States. Jack could hardly be called a boy now. He is 23 or 24 years old. He made his first appearance in Pittsburg about 10 years ago, a thin, nervous little chap, who stuttered so distressingly that the charitably inclined willingly gave him the price of a beer rather than hear his pitiful attempts to cry his wares. Somebody told him one day that if he would whistle when he came to a word that he found unpronounceable he would soon cure himself of his painful stutter. Jack tried it, and in less than six months the whistle was as fixed a habit as the stuttering. At the end of a year he could no more speak a dozen words without 11 whistles than he could fly, and this was the way he got the sobriquet of "Whistling Jack."—New York Mail and Express.

CURES RISING BREAST.

MOTHER'S FRIEND" is the greatest boon to child bearing women. I have been using our many cases, and in each case it has done all that is claimed for it. Have recommended others and followed with like success. It is the best remedy for rising of the breast known, and worthy a place in every household.
Mrs. M. M. BROWN,
Montgomery, Ala.

I can tell all expectant mothers if they will use a few bottles of Mother's Friend they will go through the ordeal without any pain and suffering.
Mrs. MAY BRADFIELD,
Arguville, N. D.

Used Mother's Friend before birth of my eighth child. Will never cease its praise.
Mrs. J. F. MOORE, Colma, Cal.

Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.,
Sold by all druggists. ATLANTA, GA.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. CALF, NO SEAMS. NO TACKS.

$5 CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELED CALF $4.$3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.$2.WORKINGMENS EXTRA FINE. $1.75 $2.$1.75 BOYS'SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES $3.$2.$1.75

BEST DONGOLA. SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

You can save money by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes.

Because, we are the largest manufacturers of advertised shoes in the world, and guarantee the value by stamping the name and price on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and the middleman's profits. Our shoes equal custom work in style, easy fitting and wearing qualities. We have them sold everywhere, at lower prices for the value given, than any other make. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, we can. Sold by

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FOR FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed executed and delivered by Lyle Hanson, of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Fire and Marine Insurance Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 23rd day of March, A. D. 1892, and was filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 24th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was recorded in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 100 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of a promissory note for $97.75, and interest thereon from May 1st, A. D. 1893, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $97.75 principal, the sum of $15.00 interest, and $10.00 attorney fees paid by said mortgagee, and the sum of $7.05 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said property and paid by said mortgagee, besides the costs and disbursements of foreclosure and sale and attorneys fees to be allowed by the court in case suit is commenced to foreclose this mortgage, and no proceedings have been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

And whereas, the said mortgage gives that by reason of such default the mortgage may foreclose and therefore recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises, situated in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Lot three (3), and block eighteen (18), Second addition to Crookston, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County, Minnesota, will be sold by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the county court house in the city of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay said debt and interest and taxes as aforesaid, and the costs and disbursements of foreclosure, and the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees stipulated for in said mortgage, in case foreclosure, and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

NORTHWESTERN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.
Assignee of Mortgage.
Q1609 Minneapolis, Minn. 44-7t

FOR EASE AND COMFORT—

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as th; Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE,

And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office,

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skillfully performed.

Pictures of Sport With Rod and Gun

Reproduced in 2 colors from celebrate painted expressly for the purpose. They are three water colors; Jackspire Coming in; Bass Fishing at Black Island; Quail Shooting; and one oil, Chubbed and Yellowfin Yachtsmen. All are artistic, beautiful and rich in effect. For framing. Price of set, $1, postpaid.

AS "FOREST AND STREAM" PREMIUM.

We will send the sportsman's favorite journal Forest and Stream 3 months and the above set of four pictures a $3 value) for $1. Or Forest and Stream 6 months and choice of two of the pictures for $1. This is a rare offer. Send 10 cents for specimen copy of Forest and Stream, elevator and catalogue of the best books on outdoor sports.

Forest and Stream Pub. Co.,
P. O. Box 2832, New York City.

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - 15,500

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. G. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIN, Vice President
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglin, R. R. Chase. S. D. Childs
Geo. G. Erskine, J. R. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer. W. H. Crosby

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, - Minnesota.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Proprietor

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very best style of the art.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with directions and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

RAZORS HONED

OLD PAPERS

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Reckitt Bloc, - Crookston. Minn

M. LeGUEE,

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Second Street, 1st addition.

McKINNON BROS.,

Dealers in all the leading AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

McKinnon Block, Main Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms three to five years. Lowest rate of interest. Money ready annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street - CROOKSTON, MIN

$1.50 PER DOZEN

FOR THE BEST CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street Crookston

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.,

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Reckitt Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch counter in connection.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

TRY US.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN McKinnon Block. Crookston

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LIVELY CAMPAIGN.

IGHTING COLONEL BRECKINRIDGE IN THE ASHLAND DISTRICT.

something About His Democratic Opponents, Owens and Settle—Major McDowell, the Republican Champion, a Descendant of Henry Clay.

If there was ever a livelier political campaign than that which is now being waged for the congress nomination in the last part of old Kentucky that is known as the Ashland district, the American people would like to know about it. Happily, though often predicted since the beginning of hostilities, there has been no shooting as yet. This statement must be made with caution. It is time enough at the date of this writing, but it may not be so when these words meet the reader's eye in cold type, for it takes but a mighty short time to do a lot of very effective shooting, and it is a matter for surprise, this year of blood and disaster and general bloodshed, that no shedding of blood in the Ashland district has been delayed so long.

W. C. OWENS.

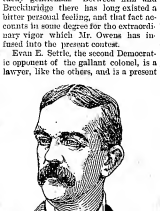
The public is well informed regarding the pre-existing facts of the situation—the circumstances, that is, of the legal contest in which the issue of the second best; that W. C. P. Breckinridge, the sitting member from the Ashland district, had to go through, with Madison Pollard for an opponent, and the opposition that has developed against him on social purity grounds. The public should also be aware of the fact that down to the present time a Democratic nomination in the Ashland district has been equal to an election; that the battle now raging is for the second nation only, and that it is quite within the bounds of possibility that there may be more than one Democratic nominee this fall. If there is, the fight for the election will doubtless be a harder one than that for the nomination. Colonel Breckinridge's chief opponents in the present fight are Owens and Settle, the first named being perhaps the more prominent of the two.

William C. Owens is citizen of Georgetown, Ky., a town located about 60 miles from Lexington, the state capital. He is a man who already made a record as a public official, having several many years in the state legislature and more than one term as member of the lower house. Moreover, he is not unknown outside of Kentucky, for at the last national convention of the Democratic party he was made temporary chairman and won praise by the dignified manner with which he acquitted himself on that occasion. He is about 46 years of age, a bachelor, and his family, like the Breckinridge family, is of the blue grass aristocracy. He is a lawyer with a good practice and a liberal income. His personal habits are indicated by those who know him when they speak of him as "a free liver and convivial spirit, but of manifold reputation." When it is added that he plays as stiff a game of poker as any man in the state, it will be clear to the reader that he takes to freebooting

On a income tax, till some's getting's got to host.

On their bluster, brag and blunder
Will pour some mild thunder
Till the wrangle tangle congress once adjourns,
And we'll turn from election heat to old,
beloved protection
Which the blue yolk election shell confirms.



EVAN E. SETTLE.

member of the state legislature. He has always been on terms of friendliness with Breckinridge, and they have spoken from the same platform during the present campaign. Mr. Settle's fight has in many ways looked much of being as vigorous as Mr. Owens'. In his addresses Settle has been so careful in the matter of allusions to the Pollard scandal as to excite serious apprehensions that his canvass is merely a blind in the interests of the colonel. In other words, it is claimed by some Owens men that Settle does not hope to be nominated, but does expect to divide the opposition to Breckinridge's nomination, and so bring about the latter's success. Of course this is indignantly denied by Mr.

Australasian Wool Exports.

The latest available statistics of exports of colonial wool from all sources for a period of nine months ending March 31 in each of the given years show the following:

NINE MONTHS, JULY 1 TO MARCH 31.

	Bales.	Bales.	Bales.
	1892.	1893.	1894.
New South Wales	691,035	599,600	685,733
Victoria	440,258	441,101	423,310
South Australia	160,732	144,035	157,664
Queensland	139,610	108,823	151,041
Tasmania	15,043	10,181	16,923
West Australia	24,366	16,062	22,512
New Zealand	330,117	303,603	388,797
Total	1,790,505	1,623,311	1,845,980

These figures show increased exports of almost 140,000 bales within the three given periods. Comparing these nine months' exports with the total clips for the entire season, given elsewhere, we find that only 67,000 bales remained on hand on March 31, 1894, as compared with 115,000 bales on hand a year earlier and 127,000 bales not exported on March 31, 1892. Perhaps the recent hard times in the colonies have compelled the quicker marketing of the clip this last season so as to secure prompt returns for the owners.

A Mischievous Man.

The most mischievous man in the United States today is President Grover Cleveland. He is mischievous because he is always insincere; he is mischievous because he is tricky; he is mischievous because he is deceitful; he is mischievous because he is a pretender; he is mischievous because he is ignorant; he is mischievous because of his assumption of knowledge; he is mischievous because he is a coward.—American Economist.

The Passing of the Pirates.

When the ship of state was sailing,
Sailing smoothly and serene,
With the trade winds blowing freely o'er the main,
Came a gang of tariff pirates with a Democrat and a college Dr. Jekyl in command.

But they'd shave alike at the capstan head
When part it comes our turn.
For their letters of marque and their plunder
Ladies bear in the ballot-in election we will burn.

Against the protest of the nation,
Waging ruin and desolation
On a too confiding people by deceit,
They have put on new politics on the pretext of salvation
With their shameless double object lesson for a treat.

Now this chieftain rover, Grover,
Is ransacking the world aver
For a dumping ground to cast away detest.
By his meddling intervention in Hawaii's close contention
He's made the presidential chair a thorny seat.

So they've taken to freebooting
On a hostless, starving people,
While our industries are burdened with distrust.

With the tariff they will monkey and keep trying to get hunky
On an income tax, till sonnie's got to bust.

On their bluster, brag and blunder
We will pour mild thunder
Till the wrangle tangle congress once adjourns,
And we'll turn from election heat to old,
beloved protection
Which the blue yolk election shell confirms.

Pledged to Free Trade.

Dr. C. C. Wells's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee, by authorized agents only, to cure Weak Memory, Loss of Brain and Nerve Power, Lost Manhood, Impotency, Night Losses, Evil Dreams, Lack of Confidence, Nervousness, Lassitude, all Drains and Losses of the Generative Organs, caused by self-abuse or over-exertion; Youthful Errors, Mercurialism, Insanity, Opium or Liquor Habits, Wakefulness, Mental Worry, Depression, Insanity and Death. By mail, in plain wrapper, $1 per package, or six for $5; with written guarantee. Pamphlet free. Sold by druggists. NEW LIFE, a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Pleurisy and Influenza. Small size discontinued; 50c. size, now 25c.; 90d size, now 50c. Sold by druggists. OTARA TEA CO., Sole Agents, Chicago.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

VIGORINE acts powerfully and surely. Young men will regain their manhood, middle-aged men will recover energy and vitality by using VIGORINE. Absolutely guaranteed to cure Nervousness, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Sexual Debility, Impure Blood, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Dizziness, Convulsions, Nervous Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the excessive use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, and Indiscretion. VIGORINE is the only Positive Written Guarantee to cure Lost Manhood, Impotency and Nervous Debility ever issued by any responsible firm. Address PEPPI MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a mortgage executed by George H. Bates and Martha E. Bates his wife, mortgagors, to James M. Lawson, mortgagee, dated April eighth (8th) eighteen hundred ninety-two (1892), and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, April seventeenth (17th) eighteen hundred ninety-two, at eight o'clock a. m. in book (B) forty-eight, of mortgages on page five hundred forty-seven (547) and subsequent pages. Said default consists in the failure to pay the taxes upon the premises described in said mortgage which became due April 5th, 1894, and which became due and payable thereon. Said mortgage has been foreclosed and hereby does declare that the entire debt, secured by said mortgage is now due and payable and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, is one hundred thirteen and 35-100 dollars ($113.35).

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute, made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: The south half of section No. fifteen (15) in township No. one hundred fifty-three (153) north of range No. forty-seven (47) being in Polk County and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said County of Polk, at the front door of the County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County on Saturday, the 11th day of August, 1894 at ten o'clock a. m. at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the debt secured by said mortgage, together with the costs of such foreclosure including the amount of attorney-fee dollars ($25.00) stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated June 6th, A. D. 1894.

JAMES M. LAWSON,
Mortgagee.

LEW A. BUNTOON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, July 6th, 1894.

In the Matter of the Estate of Fred J. Lisoe, Deceased.

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased having this day been granted to Peter Lisoe, of said County.

It is ordered, That all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court for examination and allowance within the time limited by law, and that the same be heard on the following day, Wednesday the 26th day of December, 1894.

It is further ordered, That six months from the date hereof be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said Court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred by order of said Court.

Dated July 6th, 1894.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

(1t-13

Hi, There!

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates ?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in dise season.

Vine Block, Broad-way C OOKSTON

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.

CLEVELAND HOUSE

CROOKSTON, MINN.

THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Is the finest class Dollar a Day House in the city. Good Sample Rooms in connection.

No. 303 Main street, Crookston, Minn.

NELS SWANSON

ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed

Wells Drilled or Bored.

Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.

Crookston, Minn

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Forrest Block, CROOKSTON, MINN

IVORY SOAP 99 44/100% PURE

FOR CLOTHES.

"THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINTI.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by George Jones and Mary Ann Jones, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to the Northern Investment Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 7th day of June, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 205.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $700, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 7th day of June, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $126.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 7th day of June, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 205.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $700, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 7th day of June, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $126.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 7th day of June, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 7th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 7th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $1,253.33, being the sum of $700 principal and $553.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) and the southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northwest quarter (NW¼) of section six (6), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and seventy-nine and 20-100 (179.20) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 47.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 45.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 44.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 43.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Florin Sorenson, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 41.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 46.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of $400, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, the interest accrued and unpaid on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, amounting to the sum of $12.00.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment, dated the 30th day of January, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1894, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 405.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1893, and the interest thereon since January 30th, A. D. 1894, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $453.33, being the sum of $400 principal and $53.33 interest on said mortgage and note to the 12th day of July, A. D. 1894, and $22.50 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said premises, and paid by said mortgagee, and said $275.83 for insurance premiums and premiums for bonds of indemnity, and $25.00 attorney fee stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereafter recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described lands and premises, viz: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of the northeast quarter (NE¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of the southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt secured by said mortgage, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated June 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgage.

LEWIS & BUNTOON,
Attorney for Assignee.
Crookston, Minnesota. 10-7t

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTY'S-AT-LAW,

McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by George Jones and Mary Ann Jones, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to the Northern Investment Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 7th day of June, A. D

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Brainerd, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at 6..... 6:32 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Mouse River, and points north, at..... 7:02 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

Gus. Beaulieu was up from St. Paul last week.

Rev. R. H. Battey preached at Barnesville last Sabbath.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Everybody and his wife calculate to attend the Polk county fair next week.

Henry Nolan has his sewer contract nearly completed. Henry usually gets there with both feet.

Go to the Culiforniu wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. ♥ (5)

W. E. Kelsey went out to Badger, Poplar River and thereabouts this week intending to take a bit of a layoff at Maple Lake on his return.

P. J. McGuire left for St. Paul via Great Northern on Sunday evening to look the field over previous to the state convention of Wednesday.

Tom Dougherty was in from Wylie on Monday. Tom says they could stand a trifle more rain up his way, but thinks crops are all right as yet.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. BROWN.

Ed. Musson has accepted a clerkship in Erickson's fruit and confectionery store.

Comrades Mix, Carlton, Zavrachee and Harris went up to Angus to see Comrade Campion, Saturday, who is reported very ill.

A. Rivard is cementing the vaults at the court house. New revolving shelves will be put in and other improvements added.

The dry weather of the past week is causing farmers a good bit of apprehension, as it is affecting the outlook for hay very materially. Farmers say that we could see more rain to very good advantage just now.

July opens out with extremely hot weather. Prophet Hicks does not offer as much consolation in the line of an early change to wet. The prospects for hay and potatoes are not the brightest—but some locellties show up all right.

The stockholders in the new hotel had a meeting on Friday evening. The committee reported good progress, having secured something like $18,000 in all. Only $2,000 more is needed to insure the success of the hotel, and that will no doubt be forthcoming.

The Thirteen Towns says that Prof. Wishard has sold his farm near Fosston, to S. E. Bagley. The quarter adjoined Mr. Bagley's farm, and makes seven quarters that Mr. Bagley now has all in a body. Mr. Bagley is getting to be quite a bonanza farmer.

Any person or persons who have "Merry-go-rounds," "Boat-Swings" "Ferris-wheels," "Rolling-ponies" or any games of amusement in which there is no gambling—may confer with or write the secretary for space on fair grounds.

J. V. E. WYATT,
Sec'y.
[4t]

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.
[6-tf] D. N. TAYLOR.

For Rent.

Two fine cottages on Elm street. Apply at JOURNAL office.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

C. A. Sharker left Tuesday evening for a trip to Iowa and Illinois points.

Gus Schmidt and Fred Silver attended the Wildenhoefer wedding at Fisher.

C. F. Fiset, B. A., of Grand Forks, was visiting with Dr. Robertson on Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Robertson entertained a number of their musical friends Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. Holloway and daughter of St. Paul, were visiting the family of W. B. Dawley this week.

A number of young lads in the city are in the habit of running over the logs in the river, above the breakwater, and if the practice is not stopped, there will be a drowning occasion to relate.

The suggestion that business men close up their stores at one o'clock in the afternoon during fair time next week, is a good one and seems to meet the approval of business men and will probably obtain.

The county board has issued an order to have Tedille Eugene Duntley, a little boy from East Grand Forks, sent to the state school at Owatonna, for the reason that his mother is not able to care for him.

R. J. Montague, was in St. Paul, last week, to represent the man, Thomas, from Thief River Falls, who is charged with cutting timber on the government land. The case was not called, and Mr. Montague again went to St. Paul, on Tuesday evening.

Probably the Fourth of July was responsible for a bit of excitement at Mrs. Schroeder's store on Main street on Thursday of last week. Fire was discovered under the front steps, but a few pails of water judiciously applied soon discouraged the fiery element and probably saved a disastrous conflagration. The fire is supposed to be the legitimate result of celebrating with firecrackers, some of which had got under the steps.

Quite an unusual sight greeted our reporter on Monday morning at the court house. Janitor E. Extension was busy trying to have a swarm of bees that alighted in one of the little trees in the yard, and it is needless to say that he made a success of it. Treasurer Beaudry is also a great bee fancier and is making a notable success of the business on a small scale. Many farmers could follow these examples to advantage, as there is more money in bees than in any other industry just at present.

Our reporter dropped into Kelley's machine shop, on Monday, and found the force busy as bees, repairing threaher engines, of which a dozen or so stood in the yard awaiting their turn to be doctored. Tom informed us that he had a sufficient amount of such work to keep him busy until next time if all come that have been spoken for. They come from all over the county, even to remote points as Fosston and Thief River Falls. Tom is able to handle all work in his line that is offered.

Messrs Christensen & Tuve have decided to build nine rooms adjoining their dormitory building in Sampson's addition, and thus have their school all together instead of having their class rooms in the McKlunon block as heretofore. By this move they will reduce their expenses and give better satisfaction to their students, who will be saved the inconvenience of trumping over town on stormy weather. The school did remarkably well last year, and they expect to open up next fall with a bigger attendance than ever.

Harry Norrie returned last Sunday morning from St. Paul, where he spent two weeks in A. R. U. work. He also spent two weeks in Chicago as a delegate to the A. R. U. convention in that city, and while there he familiarized himself with the causes which led up to the present railroad strike, and is confident that in the end labor will come out triumphant. It is simply a struggle between labor and capital, and each side realizes that upon the outcome of this strike depends their future.

D. H. Beecher and wife, of Grand Forks, came over on Thursday, to visit with friends until Saturday evening. They came over on bicycles, which was not much for D. H., who is used to a bike, but quite a feat for the lady, who has only had a wheel about a fortnight. Mrs. Beecher, who has not been in our city for some time, expressed great pleasure at the progress the city has made since she was a resident of it several years since.

As dull as the times have been up in this upper country we do not begin to feel the effects of the big strike up here as they do in St. Paul and Minneapolis. Should the matter meet with an early solution—as it now seems likely that it will, we will pull through quite comfortably up here. Should the strike, however, become more general and involve all labor organizations, it would be different altogether. This seems liable to occur should the present difficulty remain long unsettled.

Forepaugh's circus was tied up at Fertile by the N. P. strike last week —that was a case where not only the Forepaughites but the bind pawns also were tied up.

E. C. Carruth wired over to Crookston on Wednesday for compositors to go over and help slinger out the Plaindealer, saying that a strike in that institution had paralyzed his business, good and plenty.

Friday was Crookston day at the East Grand Forks fair, and very many of our citizens improved the opportunity of excursion rates to visit our sister city. All speak highly of the entertainment given.

S. L. Collins and wife, went over to East Grand Forks on Saturday, returning in the evening as far as the residence of Mrs. Collins' father, John O'Brecht, where they put up for the night, returning home Sunday morning.

Dr. A. Nelson, of Fertile, went down to St. Paul on Monday evening to attend the republican state convention as a delegate. Owing to the N. P. strike he was obliged to drive over to Beltrami to take the Great Northern line.

Rev. Spicer returned from Minneapolis on Monday. Says the country was right in it before the popcon vention, with Eli Steenerson as candidate for state auditor, Judge Ives as candidate for chief justice, Robson as candidate for attorney general, and E. E. Lommen as candidate for lieutenant governor.

"This was my busy day," said G. H. Palmer to our reporter on Saturday evening. "The U. S. Land Office has to-day disposed of 3,000 acres of land and I have prepared the papers in 51 cases—nearly the whole amount. This land is all up in Kittson county. Tell our land items, this looks like old boom times."

F. J. Burnham and Rev. Mr. McCormick, of Moorhead, in charge of the office with a friendly call on Friday evening, enroute home from Stephen, where they had been on some business in connection with the work of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Burnham is one of the original first settlers of the Red River Valley, coming to Glyndon in 1872, where a few years later he moved to Moorhead, where he has ever since resided.

E. T. Bigelow was in the city last Saturday. Mr. Bigelow has been employed by the government in looking up the reported timber steals in the Indian reservation, and while the report has not been made as yet we judge that there is more fuss than feathers in the alleged stealing of five timber up there. The facts thus far obtainable show that nothing but down timber has been taken and that in a legitimate manner as a rule.

There is nothing like sticking to it. Having failed in his designs upon the congressional nomination, A. R. Holston braced up and went down to Minneapolis to capture the nomination for attorney general. He said, upon a sober second thought, he had rather remain at home in Minnesota after all. It looks as though he would be accommodated and he allowed not only to "remain at home in Minnesota," but also would be left alone right here in Crookston, Minnesota. Such is life—in politics.

Fred Savory takes exceptions to various and sundry reports that have gone the rounds concerning his runaway, claiming that all of the facts in the case have not been brought to light and requests the JOURNAL to make for him the following statement: "I was setting in my wagon in front of Benoit's meat market holding my horses, waiting for the money for a calf I had just delivered, when I noticed the colt I was driving, had, by rubbing his head against the other horse got his bridle almost off. I wound the lines around the top of the dash board and jumped out of the wagon on the left side to go to the colt's head to to his bridle. Just as I jumped somebody raised the meat market awning partially, which frightened my horses and they started up before I could get their heads. I cried 'whoa' and 'spring' for the lines, catching hold of one line the team stopped, and just then the party at the awning drive at the other pull which made such a racket that the team dashed into a mad run. One front wagon wheel struck me as it passed, knocking me into the middle of the street and throwing me to the ground breaking my hold of the line—end of course the team went and you know the rest. I think the man who raised that awning, when he must have seen that it frightened my team, was more to blame than I was under the circumstances, which were substantially as I have given them to you. I always endeavor to use good care in handling colts, and this affair was the first of the kind to happen to me and this would not have happened had the man who raised the awning used just ordinary every-day good judgment."

The state republican convention was one of the largest ever held in Minnesota, with nearly every delegate present.

The Northern Pacific train on Wednesday evening was guarded by a force of U. S. marshals. Only a few passengers were on board.

Joseph Gervais went to St. Paul this week to attend to some business and, incidentally, take in the republican state convention.

Rumor hath it that on next Tuesday will occur the wedding of Mr. Chas. Marsh and Miss Carrie Brown —two popular young people of Crookston.

If things continue as the present outlook is, it will have a tendency to make harvest help scarce—but what's the difference to the farmer when you get any twine owing to the strike?

E. C. Carruth, manager of the Grand Forks Plaindealer, was through the city on Tuesday evening en route to St. Paul to attend the republican convention—or was it the pop convention in Minneapolis he was going at?

The twenty-fourth general convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, of America will be held in St. Paul, this year commencing August 1st. The Western Passenger Association has made a rate of one fare for the round trip.

The city Sunday schools will picnic at the Lake on Saturday. They will be joined by the Grand Forks and Mentor schools. The children will be carried from the train to the lake free, and enjoy an excursion on the steamer for only ten cents each. This occasion will furnish a chance for a splendid outing for the children. The little folks, who go are assured of a good time.

P. S. Ware informs a JOURNAL reporter that Thief River Falls expects a boom of large proportions in the near future. Several mill men are already prospecting up there with a view of putting in saw mills, to be ready to saw pine lumber just as soon as the Red Lake pine is made available by the government. It is thought this will be accomplished by the time the mills are ready for the business.

The Polk County fair, that commences on Tuesday next, promises to be one of the most interesting events of the kind ever held in the county. Aside from the agricultural features the events on the turf promise to lend everything ever before attempted, as very many noted horses will be on deck. The management has spared no pains nor expense to render this fair entertaining and instructive in every feature, and all who attend can reasonably expect to have a good time. The prospects are that there will be great crowds.

Charlie Misner didn't feel pretty well for a time last week, but he did not get scared, fearing that he would "croak" and make his will, losing his life, and lots of other things as many would have done. Far from it. Instead of that he calmly swallowed a dose of chamberlain medicine, blandly remarked, "Next," turned over gently and—went to sleep. He awoke next morning somewhat dilapidated and with a tired feeling but still in the ring. He now does quietly remarks to each customer: "Use this, but that last dose of 'buttermilk'" was something frightful to contemplate!"

Jane.

The comedy success, "Jane", which will be presented at the opera house, July 14th, is the same "Jane" that ran for over 300 nights at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y. Barring the most laughable and ludicrous of comedies, it is without a peer as a mirth provoking entertainment.

"Jane" was originally produced in Paris, but it has been revised and adapted by William Gillette and it has made the greatest comedy hit in years. The plot is pure and simple. Charles Shackleton, is a young man with prospects, left a fortune by his aunt on conditions that he marries before securing any money. So long as he is able to conduct all his business by correspondence, he succeeds in making his guardian believe that he has a wife and child. Having run deeply into debt, he informs his guardian that he was caused by his extravagant wife. The guardian at last concludes to visit his protege and see his wife regarding her extravagant ways. It now dawns on Mr. Shackleton that his deception will be found out, and to save himself from disgrace he sets about to select for himself a wife, but failing in this, he at last prevails on his pretty house-maid, Jane to play the part of a wife to him during the visit of his guardian. Now as Jane is secretly married to Mr. Shackleton's valet, the compact between Jane and her master causes no end of vexation and trouble to everyone but Jane, whose light-hearted, gay and witty manner is one round of amusement from beginning to end.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Jens Schelstad will leave in a couple of weeks to take a position with the Liberati concert company.

There will be services in the Congregational church next Sunday morning.

Rev. R. H. Battey and family left for Detroit Lake on Thursday evening for an outing of ten days or two weeks duration.

Dog Stolen

A liver and white pointer; last week; had a strap around his neck. Any information as to his whereabouts will be suitably rewarded.

J. A. WARNINGER.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & CO., doing Business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.
SEAL
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O
☞Sold by all druggists, 75.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gentlemen:—Allen's Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.

Charles A. Baldwin & Co.
BANKERS,
40 AND 42 WALL STREET,
NEW YORK.
Accounts of Banks and Bankers received on favorable terms.
Bonds and Other Investment Securities.
Daily Financial Letter Mailed on Application.
CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED.

Bi Chapin came down from Warren on Tuesday evening, remaining over until Wednesday morning, the guest of C. E. Misner.

The grading on State street was completed this week and the council committee, consisting of the older men of the 4th ward, Messrs. Hall and Gervais went over it on Wednesday to see if it had been done according to Hoyle.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved Yorkshire pigs, ready for using next week. Inquire of John Van Tuyl, on the farm.

AARON COOKE.

To Teachers of Polk County.

The State Teachers' Training School will be held at Crookston, beginning July 16th, and continuing four weeks. Men standing high in the profession have been secured by the state to conduct this school, and every effort will be put forth to make this school one of unusual profit to you.

A course of study will be planned to suit your need. Instruction in the subjects you teach will be given, together with methods of teaching those subjects.

No third grade teachers should think of neglecting this opportunity, and no teacher of higher grade can afford to miss it.

Tuition is free. There is no expense but that of board, which can be secured as reasonably as in your own town.

Further notices and plans will be furnished later. Begin now to plan to attend.

A. A. LOMMEN,
County Supt.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address,

CHRISTENSEN BROS.,
Crookston Packing House,
[7-12] Crookston, Minn.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.
[1-tf] A. F. GROMER,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block.
[52tf] ALEXANDER MCKENZIE.

WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED
FARMS
FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.
—o—
REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,
—o—
E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S
GROCERY DEPARTMENT.

20 lbs Granulated Sugar for	$1 00
25 lbs. Rolled Oats for	1 00
24 lbs. Good Rice for	1 00
30 lbs. Pearl Barley for	1 00
30 lbs. Best English Currants for	1 00
20 lbs. Cooking Raisins (choice) for	1 00
12 lbs. Extra Choice California Prunes for	1 00
6 bars Handy soap for	1 00
28 bars Victor Soap for	1 00
26 bars Kirk's Dome Soap for	1 00
Best White Vinegar, per gal	25
Fine Table Syrup, worth 50 cts. per gal	35
1 gallon can Maple Syrup	65
Pure Lard, per pound	10
Best Canned Corn, extra quality, per can	10
Best Canned Tomatoes, extra quality, per can	12½
California canned fruit, Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums and Muscat Grapes, you can find none better, per can	12½
2 gallon pails Syrup	60
Best Patent Flour per 98 pounds, lowest price

TEAS.

You all like a good cup of tea; of course you do—we all do. That's why just why we can recommend the Seal Brand Teas, the only natural, uncolored Japan Tea you ever bought. Ask to see it when you visit us. Note prices:

60c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	40c
50c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	35c
35c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to	25c

COFFEES.

We handle Chase & Sanborn's celebrated line of Coffees. They were served to 21,000,000 people at the World's Fair, and are known far and wide as the best Coffees in the United States.

NOTE PRICES.

3 lbs. Mocha and Java Coffee for	$1.00
3½ lbs. Golden Santos Coffee for	1.00
4 lbs. Guatemala Rio for	1.00
5 lbs. Crushed Java for	1.00

☞ Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention. ☜

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 19. 1894. NO. 14

Historical Society

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

Some Explanations Regarding the Deadlock on the School Board

In the Matter of the Appointment of a School Superintendent.

Interesting Information About the Doings of the Board.

To the Voters of Independent School District Number One.

In view of the falsestatements and misrepresentations employed by the persons who are forwarding the canvass of Mr. John Moore against the re-election of the members of the Board of Education whose terms expire this year, the undersigned members of the Board deem it proper to make the following statement of facts in regard to the action of the Board in respect to the filling of the vacancy now existing in the office of superintendent of schools for this district.

For some time previous to March of this year we became satisfied that the work being done in our schools, especially in the departments below the high school was not as thorough and efficient as it should be, or as work done in schools of corresponding grades in other parts of the country. We also became convinced that the best interests of the schools demanded a change in the position of superintendent held for the past ten years by John Moore. We believed at that time and still believe that there is no reasonable prospect for an improvement of the management of our schools while he remains at the head of them. We also believed at that time and still believe that Mr. Moore's reports to the board and recommendations have not been in all cases actually for the best interests of the schools, but on the other hand have been influenced to a certain extent by his estimate of what effect it would have on his personal standing with the board and the community.

During the last days of March of this present year, Mr. Moore caused a meeting of the Board of Education to be called, representing that several of our lady teachers were receiving calls from other schools for the school year commencing next September, and that if we wished to retain their services it would be necessary to take action on their cases speedily. This meeting was called about the 30th of March. After the transaction of some unimportant routine business Mr. Anglim, the president of the Board, asked Mr. Moore if any business he had to bring before the meeting. Mr. Moore stated substantially the foregoing fact in regard to the teachers, and when asked for his recommendations as to what teachers should be re-elected and what ones if any, should be dropped, he stated that he had not notified the other teachers of the meeting, but that he thought we should begin at the top, and as he was a candidate for the office of superintendent, he would step out for a few minutes and the board could re-elect him and then he would come back and would make his recommendations and we would go on with the business before the meeting. Mr. Moore thereupon retired and the board commenced discussing the question of the re-election of a superintendent. A portion of the board were opposed to electing a superintendent so early in the year, and stated that Mr. Moore each year pressed the question of his re-election at an earlier date than he had the year before.

After discussing the subject of Mr. Moore's candidacy for about one-half hour, the board by a vote of three yeas and three nos decided not to elect a superintendent at that meeting, and upon Mr. Moore's retiring to the meeting he was informed by the president. He was then asked to make his recommendation in regard to the other teachers. He declined at first to do so, but finally did make his recommendations. One teacher he recommended to drop. The cases of two others who have been upon the teaching force for the past six years he submitted without any recommendation although in previous years he had recommended them. On Mr. Moore's recommendation Miss. Hancock was not re-elected. The board then discussed the question of when we should hold another meeting and was about to adjourn for a month when Mr. Moore stated that he would like to have the board pass upon his application as soon as it was convenient, that he had a letter from Prof. Kellie, of the State University, saying that there was a vacancy in the Rochester schools and if he so desired he would present Mr. Moore's name to the board; and if not re-elected here he might want to apply there or elsewhere. In deference to Mr. Moore and in his presence the board fixed upon April 10th for another meeting when it would pass upon his application for superintendent. Mr. Moore at that time did not raise any objection for the time of acting upon his application and was apparently satisfied. On April 10th the board held its meeting and proceeded to ballot on the election of a superintendent. The ballot was taken and there were four votes cast against the re-engagement of Mr. Moore as superintendent and two votes in favor thereof. Mr. Moore came in to the meeting of the board while in session and was informed by the president that the board had voted not to engage him. He stated at that time that he had never had the least intimation that there was any dissatisfaction with his work as superintendent, and that so far as he knew the only men who had any fault to find were Dr. Crumb and Mr. Harris. He also asked what reason the board had for voting as it had. The president of the board said that it had no reason to answer, that the vote was the individual preference of the members of the board. Immediately thereafter Mr. Crumb moved that the salary of the superintendent be cut down for the ensuing year to $1350, and upon it being suggested to him that this would insure the failure of the schools for the ensuing year, as a fit superintendent could not be obtained for that price, he said that he proposed to have a general reduction if a change of superintendent was made. His motion was voted down. He then moved that the salary of the principal be reduced from one hundred to eighty-five dollars per month. This was voted down after a discussion, in which the board practically fixed upon the salary of principal at $90 per month, provided that a satisfactory one can be had for that price. At the next meeting of the board several other meetings were had, at which something like twenty applications for the position of superintendent were received by the board and considered. Of these applications some half dozen were from most competent and experienced, and who came highly recommended by President Northrup of the State University, by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, by superintendents of high schools, and by other eminent educators. At each of the meetings of the board at which ballots were taken for the appointment ever since the one of April 10th, three members have persistently voted for John Moore. They have refused to consider any other person for the position. During the early days of June, the undersigned being desirous of doing everything in their power to fill the position of superintendent to the end that the administration of the schools for the ensuing year should be in the hands of a thoroughly competent man, addressed the following letter to the president of the board of education:

Crookston, June 1st, 1894.

William Anglim, President Board of Education, City.

DEAR SIR: On or about the 10th of April last, the Board of Education voted upon the application of John Moore to be re-engaged as Superintendent of the Crookston City schools for the ensuing school year, and by a vote of four to two his application was rejected. At the next meeting of the Board held some two weeks later, a petition was presented to the board signed by a large number of the voters of Crookston, asking that Mr. Moore be re-engaged as superintendent of the Crookston City schools. No action was taken by the board upon this petition except to receive and file the same. The action of the board in rejecting the application of Mr. Moore has never been reconsidered and Mr. Moore as far as we are informed, has never made any other application for re-engagement. At several meetings of the board at which we have balloted for superintendent three members have voted for Mr. Moore and the other three have voted for various other candidates. There are now numerous applications for this position before the board. At least four or five seem to be entirely qualified and competent for the position. After carefully considering the circumstances of the case and taking into consideration the petition which was presented to the board and the sentiment of very many of the people of the city voluntarily expressed to us personally, the undersigned find themselves unable under any circumstances to vote to re-engage Mr. Moore as superintendent. We believe that the best interests of the school demand that there be a new superintendent. Assuming that yourself and the other members of the board who have voted for Mr. Moore believed that the best interests of the school would be well subserved by his re-election and that some one of us would ultimately vote to re-engage him, we have deemed it best to thus definitely define our position. We have no personal favorites whom we wish to place in this position. We believe that the interests of the schools require that a superintendent should be chosen very soon. For the delay may result in harm to the schools, and we do not see how it is likely to be of any benefit. We are willing to vote with you or any other gentleman of the board to engage any suitable man of the applicants now before the board or any other man who may seem to be qualified so who will be agreeable to you. We therefore suggest that you call a meeting of the Board of Education to the end that a harmonious solution of this question may be reached and the present feeling of uncertainty quieted.

A. A. MILLER,
JOHN R. MCKINNON,
N. P. STROSE.

Pursuant to this letter a meeting of the board was called upon the 12th of June. Some little routine business was transacted, but the president of the board did not present the letter sent to the board, nor did he make any suggestion by which it could be inferred that he had received any such communication. A few days prior to this meeting a written communication embodying a new application for the position of superintendent had been sent to the board by Mr. Moore. This letter was not presented to the board nor any intimation given to the board that such letter had been received by the president of the board inquired if there was any further business to come before the board, and upon not then a motion for adjournment would be in order. Even then the clerk of the board did not present the letter until asked if there was not a communication in the matter of superintendent which should be read before the board. He then produced the application of Mr. Moore. The undersigned then stated to the board substantially the same statements contained in the letter to Mr. Anglim, and said publicly that they would join with any member of the board that had voted for Mr. Moore in the election of any one other good and member should deem suitable and qualified for the position of superintendent. The motion was then made to proceed to ballot upon the application of Mr. Moore and his application was a second time rejected by a vote of three to three. After the discussion of several names for the office of superintendent it was stated by Mr. Crumb, in the meeting, that there was no use to discuss the matter further as the board could not settle it, and that it would have to go to the district for settlement. The board thereupon adjourned. Mr. Moore has persistently sought to give the impression, and his friends have urged as a reason why Messrs. Miller and McKinnon should not be elected as members of the board that by the action of the board Mr. Moore was prevented from getting the position of superintendent at Rochester, which had been offered him. We have made inquiry at Rochester and find that as late as two or three weeks after the action of the board refusing to re-engage Mr. Moore, upon the 10th of April, not only that the position at Rochester had not been offered him, but that he had not even been applied for the same: that he had written to Rochester and inquired if there was a vacancy, saying in that event he might conclude to make an application. There was somewhere from 25 to 40 applications for the position at Rochester on file. The board find not then considered any of these applications, and as a matter of fact the position at Rochester was not filled until the last days of May or until the first of June. Mr. Moore and his friends have also stated repeatedly that they have sought to find out the reason from the members of the board for not voting in his favor. We wish to state that Mr. Moore has not asked any one of us for the reasons for voting against him. We have always been ready to state them, and are still ready to state them to Mr. Moore or any one else in interest. In brief we may say that we are convinced that the interests of the schools and pupils, especially the welfare of the 90 per cent. of the pupils who never reach the high school, demands a change of superintendent.

In regard to the election of Miss Tweten and Miss Fortier we may say that when their applications were before the board in the spring of 1893, Mr. Chamberlin was strongly in favor of Miss Tweten. Mr. Moore at that time urgently opposed the election of both of these ladies. Up to the time of the adverse vote against himself he kept up his opposition to their election, and reported to the board, up to that time, that Miss Tweten's work was not satisfactory, especially as regards discipline. It was only after his own rejection that he turned around and began to commend these ladies. They were in fact elected as teachers at the last meeting of the board by the votes of the very men Mr. Moore and his advisors are trying to have the people reject from further membership on the board. It was only after a visit to Miss Fortier's school in Gentilly by Mr. Miller, and on his favorable report, that she was elected.

A. A. MILLER.
JOHN R. MCKINNON.
N. P. STROSE.

Democratic Convention.

The democrats held their county convention Tuesday, and elected delegates to their state, congressional and legislative conventions, and also put up a complete county ticket with the exception of court commissioner, and they also left the nomination candidates for county commissioners, and it was left to the discretion of the districts as to whether they should make any nominations for these important offices.

W. A. Schreiter, of Red Lake Falls, acted as chairman, and Geo. Fontaine as secretary.

The county ticket is as follows:

Auditor—Ed. Garceau.

Treasurer—Otto Kunkel.

Register of Deeds—M. W. Jenson.

Attorney—E. M. Stanton.

Superintendent—Miss. Anna B. Kane.

Clerk of Court—Geo. Raphael.

Sheriff—J. F. Cremmer.

Judge of Probate—P. E. Lynne.

Coroner Alex. Robinson.

The delegates to the state convention are: A. Gilmore, T. A. Dunlavy, Jos. O'Brien, Louis Fontaine, P. J. Russell, Alex Hellman, A. Rauch, W. A. Schreiter, Jos. Smith, Jacob Lobsinger and Gustave Rhea.

Congressional delegates: George Krumbenhaul, Geo. O'Reilly, Wm. Anglim, A. C. Schmidt, Louis Rivard, E. M. Stanton, J. J. Molstad, Phil A. Kaufer, Eric Hoff, Geo. D. Burlew, W. D. Scott.

Legislative delegates: M. W. Jenson, John Starr, C. A. Fuller, Mr. Montgomery, Wm. Cronin, Mr. Stewart, E. Lundeen. It is expected to vote for Jas. E. O'Brien for state senator, and C. Madson for representative.

The platform adopted bristles with unflinching democracy, and avows a blind, confiding faith in Grover and his government. It stands by the Chicago platform, and in commending the administration; they point with pride to the condition of the country at close of Grover's first term, and deplore the condition which confronted him when he assumed his second term. The republicans are charged with being the cause of the present depression, and are also said to be trying to demonetize silver. The free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver on a basis to be fixed by international agreement, is favored. Congressman Baldwin is commended for supporting the administration and trying to open the Red Lake reservation.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 16th

Thompson J. P.	Burns Anais
Wallis W. E.
Bergeron Zoss
Coloma George
Nelson A.
Norman Geo. W.
Cramer H. O.

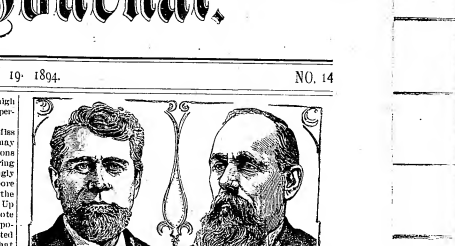
Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

P. E. LEPAGE,
Postmaster.

Home and Abroad.

It is the duty of everyone, whether at home or traveling for pleasure or business to equip himself with the remedy which will keep up strength and prevent illness, and cure such ills as are liable to come upon all in every day life. Hood's Sarsaparilla keeps the blood pure and less liable to absorb the germs of disease.

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. per box.



Wednesday, June 27.

The Democrats of the Sixth Minnesota district will hold their convention at St. Cloud, Sept. 11.

At Nimes two man wars arrested for shooting wives in anarchie, and praising Santo's murderous deed.

Robert H. Hill has been appointed receiver and editor of the Lake Shore road to succeed the late C. L. Leland.

A young man arrested at St. Cloud for vagrancy proved to be a deserter from Fort Buford named Carl Benson.

On Tuesday the Denver mint received gold bullion to the value of $126,000, the highest sum ever reached in a single day.

At Kirksville, Mo., the Populist congressional convention of the First district nominated John M. London of Macon, as candidate for congress.

Summer Stinson, a well-to-do farmer of Pleasant Hill, near Wilcox, Minn., attempted to commit suicide by hanging, but was discovered by his 15-year-old daughter in time to save his life.

Thursday, June 28

The funeral of Archbishop Tachs took place at Winnipeg Wednesday.

A severe rain and wind storm swept over Eastern Tennessee Friday night.

The house of commons has refused to reduce the heer tax from 6 to 3 pence.

The decrease in May earnings on the Pennsylvania lines, East and West, reaches $1,700,000. The statement shows a loss of $1,000,000 on Eastern lines and $700,000 on Western.

The liquidators of the Panama Canal company have signed an agreement with the new company in which the latter is said to have a capital of 90,000,000 francs with which to complete the canal.

A dispatch from Lima, Para, says that the Peruvian government has ordered a general arrest of the supporters of the revolution. It is added that Great Britain has officially recognized Consul Justiniano Bonrgona's government.

Friday, June 29

The Yale-Columbia-Harvard freshman boat race was won by Yale.

Senator Roach has secured a promise from the postoffice department to increase the railway mail service between Manitoba and North Dakota towns.

Lord Charles J. F. Russell, son of the sixth duke of Bedford, is dead. He was born in 1807 and was sergeant-at-arms to the house of commons from 1848 to 1875.

Judge Thayer of the United States circuit court has issued an order authorizing the receivers of the Frisco to borrow a sum not exceeding $400,000 at 3 per cent.

The suit of the Chippewa band of Pottawatomie Indians of Oklahoma against the United States for $510,418, alleged to be due them under treaty stipulations, has been dismissed.

Saturday, June 30.

The third national irrigation congress has been called by the national executive committee to meet in Denver for the next days beginning Sept. 4.

At Danvar J. C. Ellsworth, assignee of the Chamberlain Investment company, sold the assets of the company, the face value of which was $2,000,000, for $100,000 cash.

Judge Lacombe of New York has appointed Albert A. Latonx temporary receiver for the Harney Peak Tin Mining, Milling and Manufacturing company of South Dakota.

Dr. Albert B. Leloux, a metallurgist and mining expert of New York, has been appointed receiver for the Harney Peak Tin Mining company of South Dakota. Judge Lacombe made the appointment on application of the English stockholders who alleged fraud in management of the company.

Monday, July 2.

Since Carnot's death all members of the royal family of England are protected by detectives.

It is officially announced that Sir Charles Russell has been appointed to succeed Lord Coleridge.

The great Tower bridge at London was formally opened Saturday by the Prince of Wales, in the name of the queen.

Six cases of a disease described as cholerine have been reported at Liege. One death from the disease has occurred.

Tuesday, July 3.

Several persons were killed by a storm at Greenville, Miss., Monday.

Fairy Wood won the trotting derby at Minnehaha driving park Monday.

The cash balance in the treasury is $117,384,426, of which $64,873,024 is gold reserve.

The Vermont marble mills at Proctor, Vt., valued at nearly $1,000,000, were damaged by fire Monday.

The jury in the streeter case at Minneapolis failed to agree. Streeter was convicted with the Granaty loan swindle.

The scrol seals at Jones & Laughlin's mill at Pittsburg has been signed and much satisfaction exists among the 4,000 employes of the big plant.

Hon. Peter Butler, a Boston merchant and politician, is dead, aged 74 years. Mr. Butler was an intimate personal friend of Daniel Webster.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road has discharged two-thirds of the forces in its general passenger department. There is no work for the men because of strike. Other roads are also making reductions.

To Care For Flowers.

To keep flowers looking well the water should be changed daily and old leaves thrown away. The stems of roses should be carefully adjusted with relation to each other so no two tall specimens should appear together. A little sunlight may do no harm, but cut flowers exposed to the full rays of a powerful sun wilt at once, and a pretty arrangement is soon spoiled. Early morning is the proper time to pick flowers. They should be immediately sprayed with a rubber sprinkler, which, by the way, is invaluable to one who is gathering fresh blossoms. We are apt to treat flowers carelessly—a handful of them picked in the heat of the day without a good sprinkling is soon in the same condition as a fish out of water.—New York Advertiser.

The Man, the Goat and the Banana.

A big gray goat walked the other day down Whitehall street. When he came near to a vender's cart which was piled with bananas, he thy curb on the east side of the street, he paused and surveyed the fruit with a fixed and expressionless woodeness of countenance. A man who came along as the goat stood there stopped and bought a banana. He stripped the banana and handed the peel to the goat. Then the man and the goat both stood there and ate—the goat with undeviating gravity, the man with a rising smile. When they had finished, the man went on his way, the smile still playing on his features. The goat passed on with a countenance of unbroken woodeness.—New York Sun.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 16, 1894.

WHEAT—Firmer and higher, No. 1 Northern, 60c.

CORN—Steady. No. 3 35c.

OATS—Dull. No. 3 white, 28c; No. 3 30@30 95c.

BARLEY — Steady. No. 2, 53@c.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, July 16, 1894.

HOGS—Market opened at a decline of 5c from yesterday's close; receipts, 1,500.

CATTLE—Receipts very large; light and market slow.

Prime steers, $4.25@4.60; good steers, $3.60@4.15; prime cows, $2.90@3.25; good cows, $2.50@2.90; common to fair cows, $1.50@2.25; light veal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $2.00@3.00; stockers, $2.50@3.00; feeders, $3.25@3.60; bulls, $1.50@2.25.

SHEEP—Steady. Receipts sold to a city butcher.

Muttons, 2.50@3.00 — — — 3.00@4.00

common, $1.25 @2.00

Receipts: Hogs, 1,000 cattle, 60; calves, 10; sheep, 207.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, July 16, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 58½@; July, 61¾; No. 1 Northern, cash, 58½; No. 2 Northern 56¾; No. 3, 52½; Rejected, 45@c. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 60¾c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 16, 1894.

WHEAT—Close, 59¾c; July opening, 59¼c; highest, 60¾c; lowest, 59¼c; closed, 59¾c; September opening, 57¾c; highest, 57¾c; lowest, 57¼@57¾c; closed, 57¾c. December opening, 58½c; highest, 58½c; lowest, 57½c; closed, 58¼c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 59¾c No. 1 Northern, 60¾c; No. 2 Northern, 60¾c.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 16, 1894.

WHEAT—Steady. No. 2, cash 60¾c; September, 57¾@58c; December, 61c.

CORN—Higher. No. 2, cash 43½c; July, 43¾c; September 43¾c.

OATS—Steady. At 28½c. September 29¼c.

THE FACE OF ROSENFELD

BY CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.

Author of "The Crimes of the Rue Morgue," "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," "The Point of a Pin," etc.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

"For the third. Have you never noticed how queerly it knocks at the window frames sometimes? This is one of the days. When I am working here alone, I often notice it, and however much I hear it it never fails to startle me."

"What, the rattle?"

"The rap. There is not so much suddenness in the rattle. That is not it, for when that happens you think of the wind. It is as if the wind did it, but it is not so today. It is not as if the wind did it at all. There is silence, and then comes a sudden dull blow. At first I thought somebody must be throwing something against the pane, but I found after a time that it was only a movement of the window frame. Isn't it curious?"

"Very. You notice these little things, Annette. Do you know, I have worked in this room alone for months, and for my part I never noticed whether the windows rattled or were still. There! Was not that it?"

"I did not hear it then. I was listening to you, Mr. Maxey. Listen again, and it will come. I wish I were not terrified enough to be nervous or to hear it."

In the silence that ensued they could hear each other breathing. Perhaps it was nervousness, but Maxey felt strangely excited. A low knocking—not the knocking they were waiting for—came to their ears through the closed door.

"How very odd!" exclaimed Maxey. "That was not the touch of a ghostly agency, but the substantial rap of somebody tangible who wants to get in."

"It must be a timid person who would knock so low."

"Probably it is. Some beggar dombiess. Impecuniousness is occasionally timid. Don't disturb yourself, Annette."

Maxey stepped into the vestibule and opened the outer door. He regarded the man who had summoned him there with a look of speechless surprise. It was Mr. Dye. There were the woebegone beaver, the shiny, threadbare coat, the faded blue eyes, the long hair falling over the ears, the smooth face with its expression of hopeless melancholy and all that went to make up the peculiar group of mental impressions which Maxey had learned since the first meeting, now weeks ago, to associate with the name Leander Dye.

"You!" was Maxey's only utterance.

"I, sir!" said the somber voice. "For action me if I venture to intrude my unseemly presence upon you thus abruptly without having prepared you previously by timely warning."

"Come in," said Maxey.

Mr. Dye hesitated.

"Pardon me if I am constrained to ask an impertinent question. Are you alone?"

"I am not alone in the house. No."

"But I desire to see only you, no one else. I have no wish to meet the young lady who once bore my name. It would be painful for us both."

"You shall see no one else," said Maxey. "Come in."

The artist ushered Mr. Dye into the parlor and closed the door. Was it that the gloomy presence of the melancholy man communicated a depressing influence? Maxey certainly felt an unreasonable dread—a sort of sinking at the heart—as the door closed and he stood there alone with his visitor.

Mr. Dye stood with his hat in his hand and avoided Maxey's eyes. He never lifted his glance from the floor. The artist noticed that he was more seedy and pallid than when he had seen him first; that there was a shakiness in his whole frame, a palsied tremble in his hands. He began at once, and his voice was like one speaking out of a tomb:

"Sir, your ears are exceedingly good"——

"Indeed!"

"Or you would not have heard my knock. I knocked very softly, as I have knocked at your door so many times and you did not hear. I hoped, and hoped in vain, that you would again let me go away unheeded as before."

"I don't comprehend you, sir. Have you been here before?"

"Sir, I have been here many times before, knocking at your door so softly that you might have mistaken the sound for the gnawing of the rattle of a rat behind the woodwork."

Maxey recoiled.

"Are you mad?" he asked.

"No, no!" said Mr. Dye quickly. "It is not insanity. It is not even whimsical. It is the consequence of entirely logical. Sir, you have heard it said that a man cannot serve two masters. I have sometimes tried. That was my mistake. One forced me to come and tell you something that I knew would be unwelcome to you. You shall I call that cry? Conscience—remorse? The other caused me to desire that you should not receive me, but allow me to go away undetected. Shall I call that other sympathy and regard for yourself or for somebody in whom you are interested? Never mind. It is not to the point now. Your ears were better than I thought they were, and you did hear me. I am here. Sir, why did you not take my advice and have me arrested? I am a heartless, miserable wretch!"

Theatrical air or not, this last sentence came out with a sincerity and a force that startled the artist. The trembling in the limbs increased; the somber man made an effort to loosen his cravat as if he were choking. Maxey hastily pushed a chair toward him.

"Sit down, sir. You are ill."

"Sir, I am not ill. I deny it. I decline all courtesies. Do not offer me any. If you do, you will regret it when I am done. I am to be spurned and spit upon. That is my only use in society, and I may mention parenthetically that society found that out some three days ago. Don't forget that, sir. I will not detain you. I will not needlessly keep you standing here. I have come to tell you what I neglected to tell you before about this child whom I brought up."

"Well?" ejaculated Maxey nervously.

Mr. Dye cast an apprehensive glance at the artist.

"Say you do not want to hear me, sir, even now, and I will go away, and you nor she shall ever see me again. Do you say it?"

Mr. Dye's tone was portentous and beseeching. For an instant Maxey hesitated, but for an instant only.

"No, Mr. Dye, I do not say it. Go on, sir. Tell me the truth."

"Sir, you have pronounced your verdict. For better or for worse I shall tell you and cease my consciences of a bad matter. I told you I did not know this child's parentage. I told you a falsehood. I know both her parents. One was a scapegrace son of a proud family; the other was a servant in his father's house. Now you know the whole. I am done."

The blood rushed to Maxey's head.

"The proofs! Where are the proofs?"

Mr. Dye again glanced at him apprehensively and backed a step or two nearer the door.

"Sir, there are no proofs."

"None?"

"Not a scrap. It all rests upon the word of a worthless vagabond whom nobody would believe, who is in fact such a villain and a liar that he can hardly believe himself. If you wish to believe that he has lied, there is everything to encourage you in that belief, nothing to discourage you."

"And why have you come here to tell me this?"

"Did I not confess? I was forced to."

"By whom?"

"Sir, not by whom—by what. By my conscience."

Maxey rose and his arm with a gesture of impatience. The somber man shrank back as if he expected a blow. He cried out apprehensively:

"Don't believe me! Don't believe me!"

"Do you acknowledge it to be a lie?"

"No, no. Not that, only—don't believe me."

"Mr. Dye," said Maxey suddenly, "will you swear a solemn oath, here in my presence, that you have told me the truth?"

"Sir, I will not. No oaths. Not to-day. No oaths. I have said it, and I will do no more. No, not if the sword falls, I will say no more. That is all I have to say. I have said it. I will go away again."

"Go, then!" cried Maxey hotly. "Go, while you can! Get safely out of my reach, and if ever you show your face in this house again, unless you either come to confess that you have lied or to hold the proofs of what you have said in your hand, you will regret it to the last day of your miserable life. Hold on a bit! Not quite so fast, my good man. I have not done yet. If you ever breathe a word of what you have told me today to any living soul, and I hear it"——

Maxey did not finish his sentence, but he was all the more impressive, for he looked unutterable things.

"Pardon me, sir, the caution is not needed. It has cost me much to say it to you. I shall never repeat it. But I must, I must—am you that I am now the only person who knows this to be the truth? If I had been, I never should have come. Sir, I thought it was better that you should know the whole before when you took any rash step or steps, than hear of it afterward when it would be so much more painful to both her and yourself. You understand me now?"

Mr. Dye suddenly turned, opened the door which led into the vestibule and glided out. Maxey sprang after him, exclaiming:

"Stop, sir, stop! I do not—I do not understand you!"

Maxey reached the vestibule only a second or two behind his strange visitor and was just in time to have dragged him back over the outer threshold, but at the very moment when he put out his hand to seize him he heard the rustle of a woman's dress. He changed his intention in the twinkling of an eye. In another instant Mr. Dye was gone, the street door was closed, and Maxey, pale and bewildering heavily, stood upon the inside with his back against it, facing the astonished Annette, who was coming, quite unconscious of any intrusion, into the vestibule.

"Is anything the matter, Mr. Maxey?"

"Nothing—nothing at all. It was a mere— You startled me that was all. I"——

"Who has been here?"

"You do not know, then? You heard nothing of what he said?"

"Why, how strange you look! How could I?"

"I don't look strange," said Maxey. "It's the bad light I'm in. It was nobody you care to know. Let us go back to work again. There was something I was going to say when I was interrupted."

* * * * * *

Mr. Dye was staggering down the steps, clinging to the railing with one hand, looking the personification of despair. He muttered as he walked and crushed with his left hand a paper in the pocket of his threadbare coat—paper on which a delicate feminine hand had traced these words:

"Prove her a waif then. If they marry, I shall hold you personally responsible!"

"Doubtless the poor girl's last hope," thought the melancholy man, "and I have stranged the life out of it."

At that very instant, however, Julian Maxey, the artist, was making of those words a hollow mockery. He had come back into the room with her and had closed the door. That rapid pulse that Dr. Lamar had warned him was so likely to get the better of his discretion was at its height. He began to woo like impulsively, passionately, before he fully realized it.

"Who has been here?"

She turned so white and speechless that his heart almost ceased beating. The thought that he was at last uttered the irrevocable, fatal words cause to him too late to prevent the utterance of his hope and his longing, but not too late to make the flow of his eloquence tremble and die on his lips. He became as mute as she and almost as pale. For a moment they stood close together by the window, in the fading light from the western sky, looking into each other's eyes with a mutual terror.

"I have frightened you," stammered Maxey.

Ar undoubtable fact, but it was all the artist could think to say at that moment.

Still he could not stand inactive. He sought to take the dainty hand which timidly shrank from the contact. He grew more persistent when he encountered opposition and concentrated all his energies on the capturing of the trembling member. In another moment it was his. Then, with a sudden boldness which astonished even himself, he drew her close, close to him.

He felt her startled heart beating as if it would break next to his. The sensation had ripped open the window, but it had no longer any interest or any terror for them.

"Oh, Mr. Maxey, let me go!"

"No—no—not anything such other first. Tell me that I am a fool or a coward, and I will."

She made him no reply. She struggled a little with her baby strength and gave it up. She was very quiet.

But still the frightened heart beat wildly close to his. She had not spoken.

Softly the artist bent down to look into her averted face. There was the passenger nor term there—only the paleness and the terror.

The two hearts were throbbing now in unison. It was getting dark.

"Annette," he whispered, "tell me a coward!"

She answered him at last in a voice that was so low and hushed that it hardly sounded natural:

"I have no right to tell a lie, and I have no right to answer you in words. You are young, ambitious, rich, with a future. I have not—not even a name."

"No; I am not rich, Annette. You are mistaken, and, depend upon it, your name will be known some day, and it will be as good as mine. But what is that to me? What if you really had no name? I love you for yourself, Annette, for what you are. Annette, would you place your happiness against so flimsy a matter as that if I were nameless and you loved me?"

"Suppose—suppose some day the truth about me should be known and it should be—degrading?"

"Annette!"

"Ah, you have not thought of that! I have. Oh, I have thought of it often—often when I awoke at night or when I even dared to dream of such great happiness as this!——"

Her voice died away to quite a whisper. But those low spoken words did not escape Maxey's ears. They filled him thrilled through his whole being as nothing had ever done before.

"Ah, then you have dreamed of this happiness, Annette? You will not deny it?"

She hung her head and became scarlet. She said not a word. Her very silence was eloquent. But the delighted artist would not leave her unanswered. He felt a wild, delicious joy in the knowledge that the radiant little creature who hung upon his arm was his, body and soul, and he thought, in the certainty, was not unworthy. He thirsted to hear her say it. He persisted:

"Tell me, Annette, you love me! Is it not so?"

The head sank lower still, and she did not reply, but the dark hair moved slightly. A scarcely perceptible little nod in the affirmative was all that she seemed willing to vouchsafe him.

All at once she caressed herself and sought once more to break the tender bonds that held her. She fought to break. She seemed so very much in earnest.

Maxey, terror-stricken for the result, permitted her to go. What she was free, she seemed about to leave him, but at the very threshold of the room she clocked herself with sudden impulse and faced him. It was dusk, yet Maxey could see the dainty features. They told him plainly enough under what a storm of emotion she was suffering. It seemed as if she had intended to speak, but feared to trust her voice. There she stood like a timid fawn, panting and trembling.

Maxey, hardly knowing what he did, stretched out his arms in an imploring gesture.

She uttered a cry, ran toward him, threw herself into his embrace and broke down completely.

"Oh," she sobbed, "how I wish I were strong as I ought to be, as I thought I was! I had made up my mind to tell you 'No.' But I cannot. Oh, I cannot do it! I should lie now, and I am a coward. For your sake I should be willing to break both our hearts, if need be, rather than you make a mesalliance with me."

"No—careless, no," cried Maxey, with unanswerable logic "for I will give you mine. If you had a name, what else could you do but throw it away?"

He bent over. His lips met hers. It was the first kiss. She threw her arms about him with a sudden vehemence that in some degree revealed to the astonished artist her truly his sister had spoken when she told him that he did not know the depth of that emotional nature which he roused in possess.

She cried out hysterically:

"Oh, tell me over and over again, till I cannot help believing you, that when the truth about me is known, whatever it be, you will never, never regret this step you are taking!"

"Never!" answered Maxey, who had reached a state of exaltation beyond anything he had ever experienced. "I swear it!"

It astonished Maxey to find that nobody was surprised.

There was little ceremony, no display. It was a very quiet marriage in the artist's rooms. Dr. Lamar gave away the bride.

Miss Maxey was excited and cried a great deal, and the physician was very thoughtful.

In the world there were busy tongues at work.

One woman, when she heard of this marriage, dashed a costly clock upon the floor and made a wreck of it.

A poor wretch, quivering between a jug of rum and a morning paper, saw the notice on the printed page and uttered a howl of delight. After that outburst he became for a long time still and pale and looked upon the dull brown surface of the jug with a gaze that was fearful and apprehensive. Then he began to mutter to himself.

"Ah! What can it matter? What difference does it make? She has no memory. She never will have a memory of one dark night. Ah, yes! I am safe, still safe for another day of existence—and this."

He stooped the surface of the jug and shivered at his own thoughts. Hagger for was that his window did not look out upon the broad river, and that there was no uncanny, ghostly wind to come tapping at his sash in the dead of night!

CHAPTER XV

TIME AND TIDE

More than once in the course of this history it has been mentioned that the windows of the artist's rooms looked out upon a river. In truth, it was almost impossible to be anywhere in those rooms and escape its presence. He had chosen his suit for the free, open prospect it afforded, and he had gloried in it. It painted a landscape from this lofty vantage a dozen times. It mirrored not in a faint part of the Loop was, today, always something to remind him of the river.

The sweeping curve made by the stream just above the center of the city broadened the otherwise narrow belt of water into a beautiful lake, and there was a vista of miles to the eye. Over this wide surface the wind came and went unopposed. It was never stifling in the windows of the artist's rooms. To one's of a winter's night and hear the mournful passage with full hand for admission was to be reminded of the cold water flowing steadily with the tide, and perhaps the great stone walls in the darkness.

The tide rose and fell in the river for miles above the city. In the dead of winter it lifted the solid white surface, like a mantle floor, through 10 feet twice a day. After a while, when ice broke up, even in Maxey's rooms, could be heard the great blocks grinding against the stone walls. Huge masses drifted variously, as the tide ran back and the stream, to record the narrow space between the banks above the sweeping curve or down beneath the bridges and between the hulls of innumerable vessels out to sea. Only in the space contiguous to the house in Bulevine place was the river uninteresting, for just here a configuration in the land gave a whirling motion to the water. The floating block that drifted near by this spot was inevitably drawn in, and once in there it staid, pounded up and down, now and then coming to the surface, deepened the somber and forlorn effect.

The house in which Maxey lived did not rise directly from the river wall. It stood back and left a little space—a mean and parsimonious space—utilized only by housewives for the hanging out of clothes. A high pickaxed fence prevented the contiguity of the river from being dangerous.

Considerably the janitor of the building, who was supposed to have a protecting eye for all that appertained to it, emerged from the basement where he lived into the yard to cast about him a reassuring glance. One morning in December, when he came, a trifling alteration in the familiar prospect caught his attention and aroused his wonder. The upper ends of two pickets in the high fence were broken short off near the top. One of the severed pieces lay in the snow at the bottom of the fence; the other still hung by a sliver from its place. The janitor shook the wooden post, and his mystification was increased when he found that the two broken pickets were loose. This was such an inexplicable matter that he did not cease to wonder at it. After he had exhausted all his theories and had pursued a fruitless investigation till he was forced from lack of natural means to give it up, being after the time when he made the discovery, it would still recur to his mind. Sometimes he would lose suspiciously into the river just without the fence, as if he more than half believed that it might give the explanation for which he sought, if it would. But such secrets as it had the river guarded well. The vast, dark, cold surface, the better to keep out prying eyes. But still the two broken pickets rose up shorter than their fellows to remind the curious janitor of the something unexplained.

The two broken pickets were loose.

The spring came, and the sun melted the ice. It lingered in the pool without the fence longer than anywhere else, as if it were loth to go. For a long time the bitter breath of the dying winter and the warming rays from the April sky fought for the mastery here. It was a terribly chill, melancholy nook, not easily conquered.

The weeks came and went, and the birds began to sing even in Bulevine place, but when the last vestiges of ice were gone, the water beyond the pickets and fence continued black and fathomless. The suspicious janitor still endeavored to penetrate its obscure depth, but he endeavored still in vain.

The janitor was right. The river did have a secret. The interwoven piles, the rusty spikes and crumbling wood-work for months aided to preserve it. One morning they gave it up, and all the world knew it. It was a ghastly thing to look upon. Little wonder that the horrified beholder turned sick and shuddering away!

Before this day arrived the dwellers in the high-stoned chambers the river had opened their eyes upon strange things.

[CONTINUED.]

MODEL HOMES FOR MODEST INCOMES

A Plan to Minimize the Expense and Drudgery of Housekeeping.

A good many ambitious people who are struggling along on modest incomes will not be surprised to hear that Mrs. Coleman-Stuckert, the bright Denver woman, has concluded that it costs altogether too much to live. That proposition is indisputable. It may surprise a good many, as well as pleases them, however, to learn that Mrs. Coleman-Stuckert has definitely planned

MRS. COLEMAN-STUCKERT

Around the outside of a block of land are to be erected 44 houses, all connected so as to form a square of buildings, with fronts of pressed brick and stone trimmings, tastefully constructed and varied in style of architecture. Each house will have either two or three stories, and none will be more than two rooms deep, so as to afford ample light and abundant fresh air. In the central court will be erected a large two story building, where will be located the kitchen, laundry and cold storage plant and the dynamo and improved heating apparatus for supplying electric light and steam heat for the 44 homes. On the second floor of this building will be a kindergarten, and a library, and a large hall, which can be utilized for any purpose desired.

The "model homes" will all be connected with the central building by speaking tubes or telephones, and an electric conduit for carrying the lamps to and from the kitchen. The refuse and dirty dishes will be sent back to the central kitchen to be washed, unless the families own handsome chinaware, in which case it remains in the home where it can be washed in a portable sink provided for the purpose. Thus the housewife is spared the worry and trouble of preparing her own meals and washing the dishes. The central building is to be provided also with a large dining hall, where those who prefer to do so can eat their meals, and where large dinner parties can be given.

The cook, the engineer, the laundryman, the electrician and their assistants will all be trained experts in their respective lines, as the community can afford to pay good salaries for their services. Large and comfortable sleeping rooms, etc., will be provided in the central building for the skilled employees. The space inclosed by the block of houses and on either side of the central building can be used for lawn tennis and croquet grounds. And around the inside plat of ground will be a raised promenade, which will be provided with rustic seats here and there, and on the corners of which will be erected small summer houses.

The affairs of this model community will be managed by a board of directors elected by the home owners. According to Mrs. Stuckert, all the comforts of the finest private homes can be supplied for less than half the usual cost for the same kind of service. She claims that the table expenses, with a very liberal bill of fare, will amount to but 99 per capita per week.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. NO BETTER SHOE MADE.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELED CALF $4.$3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.$2.WORKINGMEN'S EXTRA FINE $2.$1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES $3.$2.50 $2. BEST DONGOLA.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

You can save money by purchasing W. L. Douglas shoes.

Because, we are the largest manufacturers of advertised shoes in the world, and guarantee the value by stamping the name and price on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and the middleman's profits. Our shoes equal custom work in style, easy fitting and wearing qualities. We have them sold everywhere at lower prices for the value given than any other make. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, we can. Sold by

FONTAINE & ANGLIN.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Christopher Hansen, mortgagor, to the Northern Trust Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of April, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of April, A. D. 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., and duly recorded in book 22 of mortgages, page 141, and assigned by said mortgagee to Leander Dye, by deed of assignment, dated the 15th day of April, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of April, A. D. 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., and duly recorded in book 22 of mortgages, page 142, and assigned by said mortgagee to the Northern Trust Company, by deed of assignment, dated the 15th day of April, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of April, A. D. 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., and duly recorded in book 22 of mortgages, page 143, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the principal sum of two thousand seven hundred dollars, with interest thereon at seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, and by the terms of which said mortgage and note to the same attached, one hundred and eighty-two dollars and fifty cents ($182.50) coupon interest note was due and payable on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1893, at the office of the said Northern Trust Company, in the said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1893, and the sum of two thousand seven hundred dollars, principal, and also the sum of $3,375.00, being the amount of taxes for the year 1890, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1891, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1892, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1894, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1895, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1896, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1897, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1898, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1899, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1900, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1901, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1902, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1903, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1904, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1905, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1906, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1907, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1908, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1909, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1910, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1911, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1912, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1913, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1914, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1915, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1916, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1917, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1918, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1919, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1920, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1921, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1922, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1923, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1924, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1925, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1926, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1927, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1928, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1929, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1930, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1931, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1932, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1933, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1934, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1935, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1936, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1937, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1938, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1939, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1940, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1941, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1942, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1943, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1944, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1945, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1946, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1947, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1948, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1949, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1950, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1951, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, and the sum of $1,350.00 coupon interest note for the year 1952, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, and paid by the mortgagee, and by the terms of said mortgage the mortgagor agreed to pay said taxes with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

In Spite of the Rain-ad Strike Many Thousands Are in Attendance.

CLEVELAND, July 14.—Saengerfest hall, the mammoth auditorium of this city, with a seating capacity of 10,000, was crowded to the doors at the opening of the convention of the International Christian Endeavor convention. It is estimated that 20,000 strangers are in the city, and since the partial resumption of railroad traffic, the numbers are increasing, every incoming train bringing large crowds.

The exercises consisted of two tremendous mass meetings. The one was held in Saengerfest hall, and the other in a big tent in the eastern part of the city. The tent has a seating capacity of 10,000. The address of welcome was delivered by Governor McKinley. The governor was very cordially received and his words were applauded vigorously.

In the absence of President Clark, who was unable to be here on account of illness, Rev. Charles E. Dickens of Boston presided over the principal meeting at Saengerfest hall. After vocal exercises by 1,500 trained voices and short addresses by prominent members and leaders of the society, the secretary read his annual report.

Secretary Baer's Annual Report shows the society to be in a flourishing condition and with an ever-increasing membership, almost phenomenal in proportions.

"The commanding officer," the secretary said, "finds that this host is not a wave of foamy, youthful enthusiasm, a part of it cast upon the shores of Lake Erie. On the contrary, it is an army as strong as steel and as flexible as ribbon." It is a God-given, God-protected, God-advancing army."

The growth of the society during the past 12 months has been the largest since it was organized 13 years ago. During that period 7,260 companies have been added to the rank, against a gain 3,270 companies added to the rolls during the previous year. England has 1,473 regularly enrolled companies, including 93 in Scotland and 68 in Ireland, or a total of 74,000 individual members. The gains have been very heavy in India, Japan, Burmah and in France, Spain, Mexico and other foreign countries. The total individual membership of the society in Canada at the present time is 134,389.

MINNESOTA REPUBLICANS

Governor Nelson Renominated by Acclamation—The Platform.

ST. PAUL, July 12.—Minnesota Republicans have placed their stats ticket in the field, again headed by Knute Nelson and D. M. Clough for governor and lieutenant governor. The convention Wednesday was the largest the party has held in Minnesota for years, being 1,017 delegates. The complete ticket is:

Governor, Knute Nelson; lieutenant governor, David M. Clough; secretary of state, Albert Berg; auditor, Robert C. Dunn; treasurer, August T. Koerner; clerk supreme court, Darius F. Reese; chief justice supreme court, Charles M. Start; associate justice supreme court, Charles L. Collins.

The Platform.

The platform deplores the present condition of American industries, favors a protective tariff equal to the difference between wages at home and abroad, believes in the use of both gold and silver as money metals, at parity of values, favors restoring silver to the world's currency, wants a free ballot and a fair count, opposes trusts and combinations, wants labor justly rewarded, wants objectionable foreign people excluded, demands cheaper and better facilities for shipping farm products to market, declares for fair and generous pensions, objects to class privileges, wants railroad lands taxed, demands a six year term for president, and declares that Minnesota's men in congress are O. K.

OWEN FOR GOVERNOR.

Nominated by the Populists, With Lommen for Lieutenant Governor.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10.—S. M. Owen was nominated for governor by the Populist convention with great enthusiasm and by acclamation. State Senator Lommen, of Polk county, was nominated for lieutenant governor; A. J. Stromberg, state auditor; P. J. Seeberger, secretary of state; F. Borchert, state treasurer; J. A. Keyes, attorney general; Sumner Ladd, chief justice; John W. Willis, associate justice; C.H. Johnson, clerk of the supreme court.

PRENDERGAST HUNG.

The Murder of Mayor Carter Harrison Duly Avenged.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Carter Harrison, was hanged in the Cook county jail at 11:45 a. m. Prendergast made no speech nor demonstration of any kind meeting his fate with great coolness, apparently. His neck was broken by the fall and he was cut down in nine minutes.

Stay of Sentence For Wyman.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Justice Bassett, in the supreme court, granted a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Erastus Wyman. This acts as a stay of sentence, and prevents the commitment of Mr. Wyman to the penitentiary.

Didn't Obey Debs' Order.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 14.—A special to The Post from Lexington says: James Murphy, chief of the A. R. U. for the Kentucky Union road, has received a telegram from Eugene V. Debs, ordering all members of the order to strike. The men, however, refused to go out.

Building Trades Will Stay In.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The building trades council has dessrfid the cause of the A. R. U. strike and will not go out.

The Tornado's Twist.

The tornado and the cause of its formation seem to be less perfectly understood than even the ever mysterious electricity. That a tornado has a violent spiral motion and a distinct ascending movement is well established. The rapid rotary motion tends to form a vacuum in the center of the funnel shaped volume, and this sucking force brings about devastation. When a tornado surrounds a house, the air inside of it forces the walls asunder instantly.

But the inception of a tornado and the causes which lead up to it have not yet been discovered. The scientist tells us that the air of valleys becomes heated and rises, cold air rushes in to take its place, the wind hits against a hill, is changed in its course and goes cavorting down the valley, and that makes a tornado. But what gives it the twist? And there are no mountains in the Mississippi valley, but cyclones form there. Weather hexuses, with all their costly, delicate instruments, have never yet satisfactorily explained what gives the tornado its twist. The world is looking for a man who can discover the tornado in its native lair and definitely define, distinguish and describe it. All this is for the benefit of the neighbors of the east, for the tornado never visits California.—San Jose Mercury.

Too Paltry.

"Mr. Superintendent, I have come to report that last night as I was going home somebody fired a pistol at me, the ball of which went right through my hat here."

"Is that all? You can come again when the bullet has gone through your head. Before then I ap not in a position to deal with the matter."—Ulk.

My wife, after having used Mother's Friend, passed through the ordeal with little pain, was stronger in every way than in a week after the birth of former child. J. J. McCONNEL.

Bemus P[illegible], Tenn.

Mother's Friend robbed me of [illegible] Horrors. I keys the [illegible] Child I ever saw.

Mrs. L. M. AMERS, Cochran, Ga.

Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Book "To Mothers" mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.,
For Sale by all Druggists. ATLANTA, GA.

The County Fair

affords an excellent opportunity for the pick-pocket to get your watch. If you would be proof against his skill, be sure that the bow (or ring) is a

This wonderful bow is now fitted to the Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases, which are made of two plates of gold soldered to a plate of composition metal. Look equally as well as solid gold case, and cost about half as much.

Guaranteed to wear 20 years.

Always look for this trade mark.

None genuine without. Send "To Mothers" mailed free.

Sold only through watch dealers.

A watch case opener which makes a handsome present sent free on request.

KeystoneWatch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO

St. Paul,
Minneapolis,
Duluth
Fargo,
Grand Forks
and Winnipeg

TO
HELENA.	PULLMAN
BUTTE.	SLEEPING CARS,
SPOKANE.	ELEGANT
TACOMA.	DINING CARS
SEATTLE.	TOURIST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	7:04 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:05 a.m.

Have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent, N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Manifold Disorders

Are occasioned by an impure and impoverished condition of the blood. Slight impurities, if not corrected, develop into serious troubles, such as

SCROFULA, ECZEMA, RHEUMATISM

or other troublesome diseases. Then there is required a safe and reliable remedy for purifying the blood. S. S. S. removes all impurities from the blood—the blood and through

S. S. S. builds up the system. Thousands of the most terrible forms of blood diseases have been

Cured by S. S. S.

Send for our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alcide Perreau, an married man, mortgagor, to Joseph Kelso, mortgagee, dated the 16th day of April, 1891, filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. in book 52[illegible] of mortgages on pages 90 to 93, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of three hundred and thirty-eight dollars and fifty-five cents, and no action or proceedings have been or otherwise having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof, and the power of sale in said mortgage contained, a provision that it should be made in the payment of said sum of money, principal and interest, or any part thereof at the time and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, are thereby authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same in the manner and according to the terms in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with all charges and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars, as in said mortgage provided, rendering the surplus money, if any, to the said mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns or his attorney to declare the whole sum thereby specified to be due. And whereas such default has been made in the payment of said sum of money, principal and interest, and no action or proceedings having been had to recover said debt or any part thereof at the time and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, are thereby authorized and empowered to sell the said granted premises, and convey the same in the manner and according to the terms in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on said notes and mortgage, together with all charges and disbursements and an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars, as in said mortgage provided, rendering the surplus money, if any, to the said mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns or his attorney to declare the whole sum thereby specified to be due. And whereas such default has been made in the payment of said sum of money, principal and interest, and no action or proceedings having been had to recover said debt or any part thereof at the time and in the manner therein specified for the payment thereof, or in any of the covenants and agreements of the said party of the first part therein contained, the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty-Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. To outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum in any address

COMING CONVENTIONS.

Democratic state convention, at St. Paul Sept. 5th.

Republican Congressional Convention, 7th District, August 14th, at Fergus Falls.

Republican State Ticket.

For Governor.....EUGENE NELSON
For Lieut. Governor.....DAVID M. CLOUGH
For Auditor.....E. C. DUNN
For Treasurer.....A. T. KOERNER
For Secretary of State.....ALBERT ROSS
For Chief Justice.....CHAS. N. START
For Associate Justice.....LORIN W. COLLINS
For Clerk of Supreme Court.....DUNCE RIDER

PRESIDENDSAY paid the penalty of his crime on the gallows on Friday last. Thus ended the celebrated case. He has gained what he sought —notoriety.

SENATOR H. BUCKMASTER failed to secure the republican nomination for treasurer—and a mighty good man was knocked out at the same time. He has, however, nothing to regret in the manner his campaign was managed, as everything was done in an upright honorable manner.

EVAN HOLSTON is not entirely satisfied. It beats all how ungrateful some people can be! After having permitted him to run for every office within the gift of the people, the populists now find him growling in his hair, because, forsooth, he did not get a nomination for anything. The fact that they patiently allowed him to run ought to count for something!

THE great labor strike seems to have been too top-heavy—at least it appears to be toppling over. While we have entire sympathy with the men and by no means endorse Pullman and his actions, we believe that had the men pursued a judicious course they would have won the fight. Had they kept public sympathy on their side they would have won.

THE Penny Press, A. J. Blethen's new evening daily, may not be a full-fledged populist paper but it seems to have a decided leaning in that direction. The party that saved the country that gave freedom to a million of slaves, that gave homes to thousands of homeless people, the party of the people don't seem to be quite good enough for A. Jay, somehow.

OUR French inhabitants seem to be the best natured lot of people in existence—at least the populist portion of them. Their votes cut quite a figure in the results, but when it comes to offices—why of the whole lot, county, legislative, judicial, congressional and all, they get—just one quite inconsequential office—and even that seems grudgingly given. But of course they will keep right on raking the other fellow's chestnuts out of the fire, maybe!

THE republican ticket placed in the field last week, commends itself for its business ability and will no doubt be elected in November. But that fact will furnish no excuse for any republican to sit supinely down and let the ticket take care of itself. Minnesota should follow in the wake of those states who have already set the seal of condemnation upon the acts of the democratic administration and roll up a fair big gee, more emphatic majority than ever before—and this will require hearty, earnest work all along the line.

A BILL to prevent and settle strikes to settle by arbitration all differences between employer and employes, has been introduced in congress by representative Hudson, of Kansas. The bill provides that all disputes as to wages shall be submitted to three arbitrators appointed by the circuit court, and provides a penalty for refusal or failure to abide by the decision of the board of arbitrators. In view of all of the late unpleasantness, this would seem to be a move in the right direction.

POLK county republicans went before the republican state convention with only one request—the nomination of one of our leading citizens, P. J. McGuire, to be elected if request we were joined by Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Clay and Wilkin counties; but the combined wisdom of the convention saw fit to refuse this request. This may have been good politics, but we doubt it. Under the existing state of things these upper counties have need of every encouragement that can be given and Mr. McGuire's name on the ticket would have been an element of strength that a stranger, however good he may be, cannot give it. Mr. McGuire is a man not only eminently fitted to perform the duties of state auditor well, but he is also a man who is well and favorably known not only in this northern tier of counties but also in southern counties where he would have run exceedingly well.

IT is so seldom that the democrats make a wise move that it is refreshing to notice when they do make such a mistake. The nomination of Edwin M. Stanton is a case in point. If by any means he should be elected the county would have the best attorney it has had for two terms at least.

THE townsite schemers and the officer-seekers who wish to divide Polk county into four parts, have taken a very poor year for the success of their scheme. With the present outlook Polk county farmers will do well if they succeed in making enough to pay their living expenses and taxes, without quadrupling their taxes, as they would do by division. The average farmer of Polk county will not make a cent by division, and just why he should be generous enough to vote money out of his own pockets into those of these schemers and office-seekers we fail to see clearly.

THE Republican state convention held in St. Paul last week, was the largest representative body of men ever assembled in this capacity in the state, over 1,000 delegates being present, and the result was one of the best tickets ever placed before the voters of Minnesota. It will commend itself for its business qualities and will, without a doubt, be triumphantly elected. It has proved the wisdom of large conventions and established a precedent that will probably be followed hereafter. Everybody seems well satisfied with the work of that convention except the pops and dems.

THE manner in which the great daily papers of the country—with a few exceptions—have reported the railroad strike, and the attitude they have taken in their editorial columns, can only have one effect, and that is to still further antagonize labor against capital. They have suppressed and distorted news favorable to the employes, and have done everything in their power to turn public sentiment against the men, and defeat them. With one exception—the Chicago Journal—they all acknowledge that Pullman's employes had a grievance, and a big one at that, but they vilify and abuse the railroad employes because they made an effort to help these Pullman strikers. A fair-minded person cannot help but admit that the spirit which prompted the American Railway Union to take up the cause of Pullman's employes, was a noble one; but it must also be admitted that they made a mistake in the means they took to carry out their ends. Had the press of the country taken this stand, it would have done a great deal to ameliorate the two great elements of society —labor and capital. Had the men been treated fairly by the press; their zealous efforts for down-trodden labor commended, and their errors explained to them in a decent way; instead of being called "anarchists," "dupes," "fools" and "tools," the chasm between these two elements would not have been so wide as it is to-day! Anything which tends to harmonize labor and capital, and bring them closer together, is conducive of good, and that which tends to antagonize them and keep them apart, cannot but result in evil to the future of this country. It is a ruinous policy which the city press is pursuing, and the history of the future will prove it.

"DIVISION of the county into four parts is the proper caper" this fall. We have that on as good authority as the East Grand Forks Review, who says that the resumption of paying the division scheme, is because the East Grand Forks Courier has decided to oppose it. Of course Strong has no personal axe to grind! Of course not. He says in fact that it is the proper thing for him to do because the Courier takes the opposite side of the question, and, of course the voters should 'all vote on this question just to oblige Strong.' He argues that if the county was divided in two parts the taxes would be very much less and therefore we should divide it into four parts. It is not very probable that this wild-cat division scheme will carry, but if it does our taxpayers would have to learn from a bitter experience that a little calm reflection could easily teach them beforehand. If the present state of things should continue for a few years longer, and the present territory of Polk be divided into four parts there is hardly a farmer now within the borders of this county who could

WINNING TICKET.

Minnesota Republicans Hold Their Nominating Convention at St. Paul.

Knute Nelson and D. M. Clough Both Renominated by Acclamation.

Albert Berg For Secretary of State and A. T. Koerner For Treasurer—The Platform.

MINNESOTA REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

Governor—
KNUTE NELSON

Lieutenant Governor—
DAVID M. CLOUGH

Secretary of State—
ALBERT BERG

Treasurer—
AUGUST T. KOERNER

Auditor—
ROBERT C. DUNN

Clerk of Supreme Court—
DAVID F. REESE

Chief Justice Supreme Court—
CHARLES M. START

Associate Justice Supreme Court—
LORIN COLLINS

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS.

ST. PAUL, July 12.—When the Minnesota Republican convention opened Wednesday morning, 1,017 delegates almost floated in perspiration, and several thousand spectators looked on and wished it was last winter.

Bob Evans of Minneapolis nominated Mr. Barto of Stearns county for temporary chairman, and after the delegates shouted their approval, Mr. Barto escorted himself to the platform and said:

The Republican party in defeat is more potent than the Democratic party in victory. The nation is looking to the Republican party, the party that does not live in a graveyard, but goes forward in all good works. The history of the party is the history of the nation. The issues and doctrines of the Republican party are being adopted by the Democratic party, even to the rule for counting a quorum.

THOMAS DIXBY.

Chairman State Central Committee.

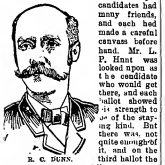
Henry Feig, of Kandiyohi county, was chosen temporary secretary, and while the chair was making up committee, the convention was addressed by Hon. R. G. Horr of Michigan.

Congressman Tawney of the First district addressed the convention, and after committees had been announced, the dripping delegates and spectators took a recess until 2:30 p. m.

The contest for state auditor was expected to be, and really was, the plum most recently sought. Each of the eight candidates had many friends, and each had made a careful canvass before hand. Mr. L. D. Hinn was looked upon as the candidate who would get there, and each ballot showed its strength to be one of the strongest kind. But there was not quite enough of it, and on the third ballot the favor went to the tall and rugged Scotchman of Princeton, Hon. R. C. Dunn.



R. C. DUNN.

NELSON AND CLOUGH.

Both Chosen to Again Lead the Republican Hosts.

At the afternoon session speeches were made by Messrs. Towne of Dunnth and Eustis of Minneapolis. The temporary organization was made permanent and Tom Reed's rules were adopted for the government of the convention. There were no contests and nominating speeches were limited to three minutes.

C. C. Haupt of Fergus Falls nominated Knute Nelson, and the nomination was seconded by Eugene Hay in behalf of Hennepin, and Sam R. Van Sant of Winona. The nomination was made by acclamation on a rising vote.

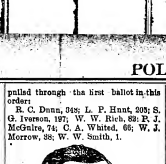
Mayor Eustis moved the nomination of Lieutenant Governor D. M. Clough by acclamation. It was carried unanimously.

Governor Nelson was escorted to the stage and in the midst of great enthusiasm delivered an address of acceptance.

For secretary of state, four candidates, F. W. Brown, J. W. Peterson, A. Berg and J. E. Osborne, went before the convention. Berg was nominated on the second ballot.

When nominations for state auditor closed the good points of eight candidates had been expounded, and they pulled through the first ballot in this order:

R. C. Dunn, 943; L. P. Hunt, 203; S. G. Iverson, 197; W. W. Rich, 89; P. J. McGuire, 74; C. A. Whited, 66; W. J. Morrow, 38; W. W. Smith, 1.



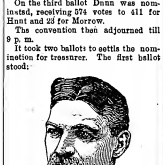
ALBERT BERG.

On the second ballot Dunn received 642 votes; Hunt, 384; Iverson, 208; Whited, 36; McGuire, 86; Morrow, 20.

On the third ballot Dunn was nominated, receiving 574 votes to 431 for Hunt and 23 for Morrow.

The convention then adjourned till 9 p. m.

It took two ballots to settle the nomination for treasurer. The first ballot stood:



AUGUST T. KOENKE.

Koerner, 462; Bloss, 321; Smith, 194; Burk, 94; Overman, 40; Westermann, 2.

On the second ballot Koerner received 668 votes; Bloss, 393; Smith, 2; Burk, 21, 6.

While counting first ballot for treasurer the convention took up nominations for attorney general. Otter Tail county nominated H. W. Childs, and he was chosen unanimously by a rising vote.

H. W. CHILDS.

For clerk of the supreme court, Reese, Holm, McCallom, Schwarz and Gould were candidates. Reese was nominated on third ballot, Gould receiving 461 and Reese 577.

DARIUS F. REESE.

For chief justice of the supreme court Judge Gilfillan and Judge Charles M. Start of Olmsted county were nominated. Start received 729 votes, to 287 for Gilfillan.

For associate justice, Judge Collins was nominated on first ballot by a large majority.

Just before midnight the platform was adopted, and the convention ended.

THE PLATFORM.

The representatives of the Republican party of the state of Minnesota in convention assembled deplore the depressed condition of American industries and the Democratic misrule by theorists and reckless and dishonest experimenters in statesmanship. Discredited in foreign diplomacy, our home industries prostrate and our people idle, there is no aspect of public affairs which a patriot can contemplate with satisfaction.

We contrast with our present distracted condition the decades when, under the guidance of the Republican party, we were blessed with honorable consideration abroad and peace and plenty at home; when wages were high and all our people contented and happy because prosperous.

The Republican party, which took labor from the auction block and made it honorable, and which bases its great economic doctrine on the maintenance of as American standard of wages for American producers, is today, as always, the party of all workingmen. We pledge ourselves in the future as in the past to such care for the interests and rights of all classes of our people that law and order will be maintained; that labor will be assured of its just reward, unrebuked by monopolies and trusts, and industry, secure from danger, will be again free to resume its activity beneficent alike to employer and wage earner.

First—We favor a protective tariff under which, upon imports competing with the products of American labor, duties are levied equal to the differences between wages and labor at home and abroad. And as to imports, other than luxuries not so competing, we believe that the same should be admitted free of duty, so far as the requirements of the government may permit. But the principles of reciprocity should be so incorporated in our tariff laws as to give new and enlarged markets to the products of this country.

Second—The Republican party believes in the use of both gold and silver as money, maintaining the substantial parity of value of every dollar in circulation with that of every other dollar. It believes in bimetalism and that the restoration of silver as ultimate money to the currency of the world is absolutely necessary for business prosperity, proper rates of wages and the welfare of the people.

Holding these views, we believe it should be the policy of the United States to use everything in its power to promote the restoration of silver to the world's currency.

Third—We demand a free ballot and a fair count, and for every citizen the right, unmolested, to cast one ballot in any election, and to have that ballot honestly counted as cast. The mission of the Republican party will not be ended until in every state of the Union all citizens, black or white, native or foreign born, shall be equal in the courts and at the ballot box.

The Democratic party, united in nothing else, was unanimous in the repeal of the federal election laws, thus openly confessing itself the party of fraud.

Fourth—We are opposed to all trusts and combinations seeking to control or unduly enhance the price of commodities, and we are in favor of eradicating or suppressing the same by suitable and effective laws. The manufacturers of twine in this state prison has been and still is a most effective means to protect our farmers against the monopoly of the twine trust.

Fifth—The laboring and industrial classes are entitled to all proper and necessary protection, and therefore we are and have been in favor of laws: (1) to protect the health, the life and the limb of all employes of transportation, mining and manufacturing companies; (2) to establish and maintain boards or tribunals of conciliation or arbitration, whereby the disagreements and differences between employers and employes may be settled and adjusted by peaceful means, without strikes or lockouts; (3) to reclaim and to preserve the public domain for actual settlers under homestead laws.

Sixth—All proper and necessary measures should be adopted and enforced to exclude from our shores all paupers, criminals and other dangerous and undesirable classes of immigrants.

Seventh—The farmers and all other producing classes are entitled to cheap and suitable facilities for storing, shipping and marketing their products, and therefore we are and have been in favor of such legislation as is requisite and essential to secure promptly and without discrimination and at reasonable rates convenient and ample elevator and warehouse accommodations, and proper and speedy transportation to all accessible and appropriate markets.

Eighth—Telegraph, telephone, railroad and all other transportation companies and all corporations or individuals performing any public service or employment, are subject and should be subject to public control; and we favor the enactment and enforcement of such laws as will compel them to render efficient and adequate service at fair and reasonable rates, without favor or discrimination as to persons or places.

Ninth—The pensions awarded by a generous nation to the disabled and needy fortunate veterans of our late war, their widows and orphans, should be given them with a fair and generous hand, and not grudgingly and with restraint. We deprecate the parsimonious, unjust, critical and harrassing attitude of the present Democratic administration in the treatment of the beneficiaries of our pension laws.

Tenth—The Republican party has always advocated equal rights and privileges for all people without any distinction whatever as to classes or individuals. We believe in the fullest rights of labor and of laboring men, and are opposed to class privileges of all kinds. The American workingmen are the producers of our wealth and greatness, and we are and shall be solicitous for their welfare and happiness. We earnestly advocate such legislation as will secure the peaceful adjustment by arbitration of differences arising from time to time between employers and employes, and contains unqualified satisfaction and others who refuse to settle such differences along these peaceful lines. The wanton destruction of property, whether private, corporate or public, should be prevented and such violators promptly suppressed at all hazards. We stand for law and order, for the enforcement of crime, and for the lawful redress of all wrongs.

Eleventh—Whereas, There are now in this state about 4,000,000 acres of railroad lands which are not held or used for railroad purposes and do not contribute to the gross earnings tax or to any state or local taxes, we demand that such lands be taxed by the ordinary method of direct taxation, and that such tax be so distributed to the present gross earnings tax upon railroad properties.

Twelfth—We earnestly and emphatically urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution extending the term of office of the president of the United States to six years, and providing that no person who has been president of the United States shall thereafter be eligible to the same office.

We therefore request congress to propose an amendment to the national constitution that will speedily accomplish this end.

Thirteenth—We commend and indorse the wise, economical and statesmanlike administration of the affairs of the state of Minnesota under Governor Knute Nelson.

We commend the wise and patriotic course of our senators, Cushman K. Davis and William D. Washburn and our Republican representative J. A. Tawney, J. T. McCleary, A. R. Kiefer and Eugene Fletcher in the congress of the United States upon all questions appertaining to the public interests and the welfare of their constituents. They have at all times fully and fearlessly discharged their duty to the people and we give them our hearty commendation.

Free Traders and Mugwumps.

The Lexow investigating committee has shown that New York city is the metropolitan center of political disease. It is also the chief seat of free trade, and as a result of the corruption which has been shown there, at Gravesend and in Brooklyn, free trade presidents were elected. The "holier than thou" free trade Democracy attempts to ride off upon to purify local politics, but in presidential years he accepts the co-operation of corruption to fasten free trade upon the country.

Earn the Income First.

The mass meeting held at New York to protest against the passage of an income tax would have been more profitable worthy had it demanded the postponement of all tariff discussion in order that labor might be given the uninterrupted right to earn an income. A free-trade tax upon incomes savings is as nothing compared to a loss of $2 or $3 in a man's daily income.

Increase of National Debt.

The outstanding interest bearing debt of the United States is being increased at the rate of 8 cents per month for each man, woman and child in the United States, being equivalent to about $60,000,000 annually. The amount for last year from March, 1893, to March 1, 1894, was $68,908,670.

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of 1894, of the State of Minnesota, and the acts amendatory thereof, and supplementary thereto, we, the undersigned, hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate and we hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the company hereby formed shall be Red Lake Milling Co. The general nature of the business shall be the manufacturing of flour, feed and meal and all other products manufactured from wheat, corn, rye, or any of the cereals, and hay, bran and straw or such kind, water-power, machinery, and other appurtenances as may be desirable, convenient and necessary to the operation of its manufacturing business, and to buy, sell and deal in flour and such other products as it may manufacture. Said company may be necessary in storing and handling wheat, corn, rye and other cereals required in the operation of the company's business, and shall have power to maintain, operate, acquire, possess, own and lease such flour mills or mills, together with all other buildings, and to lease, water-power and machinery as may be necessary for the successful carrying on operation of the company's business in the manufacture of flour, feed, meal and such other products or as are usually manufactured in flouring mills, and do all other business necessary and incidental to the said manufacturing business. The functions of said corporation shall forever be limited to the business of manufacturing the articles herein before mentioned and dealing in the same.

The principal place of business of said corporation shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minn.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 18th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be thirty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into three hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same may be paid in at such times and in such instalments as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability that said corporation shall at any one time be subject to is the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming this corporation are as follows: Frank Cawley and C. E. Hyde, Little Falls, Minn., L. Van Heede, Glendale, South Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first board of directors are as follows: Frank Cawley, Albert Cawley and L. Van Heede, and Frank Cawley shall be the president and Charles E. Hyde shall be vice president, and L. Van Heede shall be secretary and treasurer, all of whom shall hold their offices for the first year and until the first stockholders, which shall be held on the 20th day of August, 1894, and until their successors have been elected and have qualified.

The management of the affairs of said corporation and all offices shall be said thereby vested in a board of directors consisting of three members, who shall be elected from the stockholders of said corporation each year at the annual meeting thereof, and the persons said Board of Directors shall hold office for one year and until their successors are chosen and have qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, and the Board of Directors shall have power to appoint such agents as may be found necessary, and may remove any or all officers or the Board of Directors or in any of the offices thereof, and in case of resignation, death or other causes the Board of Directors shall hold office until the succeeding annual meeting and until their successors [illegible] have been chosen and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stockholders shall be held on the second Monday of August, in each year, and the regular meeting of the Board of Directors shall be held immediately after the annual meeting of the stockholders. The number of directors on the Board of Directors may be increased to not exceed seven by the stockholders at any annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the 20th day of August, 1894.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto set their hands this 11th day of June, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY, [seal.]
CHARLES E. HYDE, [seal.]
L. VAN HEEDE. [seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. A. LANDERS JR.,
S. B. CHARTER.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk.

On this 11th day of May A. D. 1894, before me a notary public within and for said County, personally appeared Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Hyde, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing instrument and acknowledged to me that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[seal.] C. A. LANDERS JR.,
Notary Public, Morrison County.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Dickey.

On this 1st day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Heede, to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and annexed instrument and he executed the same as his free act and deed.

[seal.] A. T. COLE,
Notary Public,
Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in my office for record on the 19th day of May, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book "K D" of incorporations on Page 377.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, } ss.
STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF POLK.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 19th day of May A. D. 1894.

JOHN AMUNDSON,
Register of Deeds.

HOOD'S

Sarsaparilla is carefully prepared by experienced pharmacists from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipelissewa, Juniper Berries, and other well known vegetable remedies. The Combination, Proportion and Process are Peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it strength and curative power peculiar to itself, not possessed by other medicines. Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Sores, Boils, Pimples and all other affections caused by impure blood; Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints. It is Not What we Say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla Does, that Tells the Story—Hood's Sarsaparilla

CURES

Hood's Pills are gentle, reliable, effective.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the Saskatchewan Valley,

Address

WM. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston, Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

NOTICE OF CO-TEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 14, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter F. Swanson, against Landis Arnason, for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2, dated June 15th, 1892, upon the S. E. ¼ of Sec. 2, township 153, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, contestant alleging that the said Landis Arnason has wholly failed to break any portion of said land except about twenty acres, and this has not been cultivated for over two years, and that there are no trees, tree seeds or cuttings or grove planted on said tract; and the parties to said entry are hereby notified to appear on the 28th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

WM. ANDRUS,
Receiver.

[13-16]

C. A. FISCHER,

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-boring Barrels, Rebluing Work and all kinds of fine Sporting Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Metz' Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive especial attention.

Hi, There!

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.

Vine Block, Broadway C OOKSTON

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital, - - $100,00
Surplus, - - - 15,000

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. C. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, E. C. Stone, F. D. Childs
Geo. C. Erskine, J. F. Dickinson, A. A. Miller
E. W. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, H. H. Conger

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

First Publication July 12th, 1894.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Hilaire Bouvette and Bridget Bouvette, his wife, of Angora to Kate T. Norris, mortgagee, dated November 2nd, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of November, 1892, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in Book 1 of mortgages on page 49 of said office, and no claim or suit for the upon said mortgage or any part thereof is pending, the undersigned mortgagee will, pursuant to the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage with the appurtenances, to foreclose the property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The Northwest quarter (NE¼) of the Northeast quarter (NE¼) of section twenty and fifty-two hundred (2052) one thousand, one hundred and eighty (1180) acres more or less according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the Sheriff of said Polk county at the front door of the county court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth day of August 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 28th, A. D. 1894.

KATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Moorhead, Clay County, Minn.

[14-19]

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage given by Frank Ellefsen and Ida Ellefsen, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, bearing date the 19th day of May, 1892, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 20th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 2:40 o'clock p. m., in Book 1 of mortgages on page 42 and by assignment of said mortgage dated the 1st day of September 1893 duly recorded on the 2nd day of November, 1893, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book 67 of mortgages on page 43 of said office, at six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, and which said mortgage contains the covenants, conditions and provisions therein contained, and there is due and payable on said mortgage at the date hereof the sum of four hundred seventy-five dollars ($475) principal and interest, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as assignee of said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of Fairfax, Minnesota, by written assignment dated May 19th, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 19th day of May, A. D. 1894, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book 67 of mortgages on page 43 of said office, hereby assigned to the undersigned the said mortgage and the debt and moneys thereon secured, and the sum of $475.25 taxes for the year 1893, assessed and paid by the undersigned on said premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage with the appurtenances, to foreclose the property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The Northwest quarter (NE¼) of the Northeast quarter (NE¼) of section twenty and fifty-two hundred (2052) one thousand, one hundred and eighty (1180) acres more or less according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the Sheriff of said Polk county at the front door of the county court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth day of August 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 28th, A. D. 1894.

NELSON F. HULST,
Mortgagee.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Moorhead, Clay County, Minn.

[13-19]

WILL NOT STRIKE.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR DECLINES TO WALK OUT

In Order to Assist the A. R. U. in Winning Its Strike—Such a Move Would Be Unlawful, and Would Accomplish Nothing—Debs' Proposition to the Managers Returned Unanswered.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The conference of the American Federation of Labor adjourned at 7:30 p. m., after having decided against a general strike. The action of President Debs and the A. R. U. was indorsed, however, and $1,000 voted for a defense fund for the coming trial of Debs. The following address to the public was issued after a long discussion:

The great industrial upheaval now agitating the country has been carefully, calmly and fully considered in a conference of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and the executive officers and representatives of the national and international unions and brotherhoods of railway men, called to meet in the City of Chicago on the 12th day of July, 1894.

In the Light of All the Evidence obtainable and in view of the peculiar complications now enveloping the situation, we are forced to the conclusion that the vast interests of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor demand that they refrain from participating in any general or local strike which may be proposed in connection with the present railroad troubles. In making this declaration we do not wish it understood that we are in any way set against the labor organizations now struggling for right or justice, but rather to the fact that the present unrest has become surrounded and beset with complications so grave in their nature that we cannot consistently advise a course which would bid add to the general confusion.

Debs' Proposition.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The following is the text of the proposition made by President Debs to the General Managers' association through Mayor Hopkins. The managers sent the document back unanswered, declining to accept any proposal bearing the signatures of labor leaders. The existing troubles growing out of the Pullman strike have assumed continental proportions and there being no indications of relief from the unexpected distress demoralization and distress incident thereto, the railway employes through the board of directors of the American Railway union, respectfully make the following proposition as a basis of settlement:

Any or all employes to return to work in a body at once provided they shall be restored in their former positions without prejudice, except in cases, if there be any, where they have been convicted of crime.

Believing this proposition to be fair, reasonable and just it is respectfully submitted with the belief that its acceptance will result in the prompt resumption of traffic, the revival of industry and the restoration of peace and order.

Pullman Makes a Statement.

NEW YORK, July 18.—George M. Pullman has issued a lengthy statement of the attitude of his company in reference to the strike, its causes, its merits and its settlement. He does not declare definitely against submitting to arbitration, but urges that it would be unbusinesslike to consent to an arbitration which might decide that the Pullman works be operated at a loss.

CLEVELAND WILL ACT.

The President to Appoint a Commission of Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—It was officially announced at the White House that the president will appoint a commission by the authority given him by the arbitration act of 1888 to investigate the labor troubles at Chicago and elsewhere and to report to the president and congress. The commission to be appointed has not been selected and it will be a number of days before the appointments are announced. This determination on the part of the president was arrived at after an interview with Secretary-Treasurer Hayes of the Knights of Labor, Messrs. McGuire and French of the executive committee, and Mr. Schonfaber, who were introduced to the president by Senator Kyle and who came bearing credentials from the A. R. U., the Pullmen employes and several labor organizations.

The President Promises.

After discussing the various features of the situation for more than an hour the president promised that if the leaders would return to Chicago and use their influence towards restoring peace and order, he would appoint the commission as soon as the disturbances had ceased to such an extent as to render a careful, thoughtful investigation possible.

The president laid great emphasis on the fact that no steps could be taken in this direction until lawlessness had ceased, and he made his promise contingent on the pledge of the labor leaders to see to it that so far as organized labor is concerned the trouble at Chicago and elsewhere will Immediately Disappear.

There is no disposition on the part of the administration to weaken in the stand which it has taken, but the president fully realizes the gravity of the situation, and, while he will not temporize with the lawless element, he is determined to do all in his power to reach a permanent solution of labor troubles.

Gompers Is Sorry.

CHICAGO, July 14.—President Gompers, when asked about the refusal of the railroad managers to entertain Mr. Debs' proposition, said: "I regret it very much. It was bad for the railways, bad for the men and bad for public interest. It will have, however, no effect on the action taken by the federation in declining to order a general strike."

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, July 11.

The president sent to the senate the nomination of James Carey for postmaster at Berlin, Wis.

A conference of political leaders was held in Guatemala to further that plan for a Central American union.

The Republican congressional convention held at Macon, Mo., nominated C. K. Clark for congressman for the First district.

The switchmen and yard hands of the Louisville and Nashville who struck at Hendersonville, Ky., last Thursday have all resumed work.

The Eagle Iron company has closed its smelter at Spring Valley, Wis. As a result of this the stone quarries have stopped work. The strike is the cause.

The property of the Madison Car company at Edwardsville, Ills., has been taken out of the hands of Pond, Adams, Sage, and restored to the company.

At the Republican congressional convention of the Eighth Iowa district, held at Oscela Hon. W. H. Hepburn was unanimously renominated for congress.

Thursday, July 12.

The Palais de Re thearre recently opened in Brussels was destroyed by fire just after the performance. The appeal to adjoining buildings and the total loss is estimated at 1,000,000 francs.

At Aldersuot Camp, Eng., the queen reviewed 13,000 troops under command of the Duke of Connaught.

A memorial asking for the impeachment of Attorney General Olney has been prepared by the executive board of the K. of L. for presentation to congress.

The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business Wednesday was $119,078,322, of which $81,880,717 was gold reserve.

The secretary of the interior has decided that selections of land for the South Dakota agricultural college can now be made in San Quarre section tions. One hundred and thirty thousand acres are reserved for the use of the college.

Friday, July 13.

S. M. Stockslager was nominated for congress by the Democratic convention at North Vernon, Ind.

Miss Stapleton, aged 30, committed suicide at Cardwell, Caldwell county, N. C., by drinking 17 bottles of Jamaica ginger.

The 7-year-old son of George Tries, living near Hewitt, Wis., lost a leg by being run down by a mower. He died in an hour.

The chemical works of Williams & Clark, at Cateret, N. J., said to be the largest in the world, were almost totally destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Tony Mullane was granted a divorce and $1,200 alimony from the base ball pitcher on the ground of extreme cruelty. She was given custody of the child.

Clifton B. Beach was nominated by the Twentieth Ohio district Republican convention to succeed Congressman W. J. White, who declined to be a candidate for re-election.

The French government has issued a list of 400 anarchists and other evil doers who have been expelled from France and sent it to the various Canadian emigration bureaus.

Saturday, July 14.

The international peace congress at Antwerp has ended.

The state of Kentucky is out of cash. Payments have been suspended.

Robert A. Anderson was hanged at Livingston, Tenn., for the murder of Emanuel Fleming.

There were 143 new cases of cholera and 54 deaths from that disease reported at St. Petersburg Thursday.

Counterfeits are alleged to be in existence of considerable 7 per cent bonds of Erie, Pa. This is the first instance known of the counterfeiting of municipal bonds.

The American line of steamships has cut the steerage passenger rates from London, Liverpool and Queenstown, to any american ports to $9 including cartch.

Professor Hermann Helmholtz, the distinguished German scientist, who was taken suddenly ill on Thursday last, is suffering from paralysis of the left side.

Two children of Charles Carlston one six years and deaf and dumb, and the other four years old, were killed by a passenger train at Bordentown, N. J. They were playing on the railroad track.

Monday, July 16.

Dunraven will build another yacht to sail for the America cup.

At West Union, Ills., 80 persons were poisoned by eating ice cream. One woman died and two others are very low.

Bernard F. Gentsch, one of the best known journalistic pursuits in New York, suicided at Buffalo.

The spread of cholera is causing alarm in Germany and strict measures are being taken at the frontiers to keep out the plague.

A bill had been favorably reported by the house judiciary committee providing that all contracts therefter entered for the payment of any money, whether in gold, silver or coin, may be discharged by any money which is a legal tender for the payment of debts.

Tuesday, July 17.

Illinois national guard officials here abandoned camp duty for this year.

The steamboat Mexico was struck by lightning at New Orleans and one men killed and 18 injured.

Christy Church, aged 32, one of the best known young society men of St. Louis suicided by shooting Monday.

The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business Monday was $122,650,283, of which $64,309,083 was gold reserve.

Among the petitions placed before the New York constitutional convention was one signed by 70,000 workingmen for an anti-conspiracy law.

The Rev. Mary Thoss, the offi ial organ of the A. R. U. of Chicago, which has been publishing daily bulletins since the trouble began, has announced that hereafter it will issue on alternate days.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

TERRIBLE RESULTS OF THE EXPLOSION OF A HOTCHKISS.

Three Soldiers Instantly Killed and a Large Number Injured—Scene Resembled a Battle-field—Windows Were Broken For Miles Around — Walls and Roofs Peppered by Missiles.

CHICAGO, July 16.—A caisson of Battery F, Second artillery, U. S. A., exploded with terrific force shortly after 1 p. m. at Grand and Oakwood boulevards. Two artillery men and one trooper were instantly killed. Nearly a score of other persons—troops, residents in the vicinity and passers-by—were injured, some of them fatally. The list of the killed is as follows:

J. DONOVAN, private, Battery F, Second artillery.

EDWARD DOYLE, private, Battery F, Second artillery.

JOSEPH GAYLES, farrier, Troop B, Seventh cavalry.

The troops left Brighton Park for a long march around the city to exercise the horses. They were in command of Captain Dodd of Troop F, Fifth cavalry, and consisted of Troop F, Third cavalry, 20 men; Troop E, Sixth cavalry, 40 men; platoon of Battery F, Second artillery, forty gun cuss, 32 men; Troop B, Seventh cavalry, 40 men.

Everything Went Smoothly and there were no incidents until the column marched south on Grand boulevard and was just crossing Oakwood boulevard. Then a terrific explosion occurred. Two men on the caisson, supposed to be Donovan and Doyle, were literally blown to pieces and others were thrown many feet by the violence of the concussion. Four of the horses drawing the caisson fell in their tracks, shot through and horribly mangled, while three others were blown 39 feet ahead against the trees on the boulevard, dying instantly. The caisson was blown to atoms, not a piece of it larger than a man's hand being found. The boulevard looked like a battlefield. There was a quick series of explosions after the first report and shrapnel shot rained like hail among the trees on the boulevard and pierced the surrounding dwellings. The concussion broke every window in the houses for blocks away. The walls and roofs of the dwellings of the missiles. Unexploded shells at rear part of the caisson lay strewn over the ground.

Showed the Terrific Effect

It was some little time before the two dead artillerymen could be found. One of them, mangled beyond recognition, but supposed to be Doyle, had been blown over a board sign 35 feet high and was found in a vacant lot behind it. One leg and an arm were gone. The other man, supposed to be Donovan, had been thrown about 300 feet diagonally to the right and was found in a vacant lot near the Lake Shore track. Joseph Gaylor was found near where he was struck.

Great damage was wrought by the explosion to neighboring property. Windows in most of the surrounding houses were blown out and the damage to residences and park property in the neighborhood of the accident is estimated at about $10,000.

SIX MEN KILLED.

Fierce Battle Between Miners and Deputies Near Birmingham, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 15.—A fierce battle occurred at 4:30 p. m. at No. 3 mine at Pratts between mobs of striking miners and deputies, in which six men were killed and nearly a score wounded. The full list of dead and maimed cannot be secured as the bodies were carried off quickly after the fight occurred.

During the morning a mass meeting of striking miners was held on the creek near Pratt mines, and it was decided that the law be taken into their own hands, and that they would kill or be killed. About 4:30 o'clock the time when the employes of the mines left work and came out, a mob of men was secreted in the woods near by. As the negroes would come out one by one a shot would be sent at them and they would drop to the ground, either fatally wounded or dead. After the third negro had fallen, the deputies and a fierce battle took place. B. W. Thorne, the commander of the deputies, fell to the ground. A Winchester ball had pierced his body just above the heart. Another section of the mob made an attack on a train which was carrying the negroes from mine No. 4 to their homes. There were several guards on the engine and the attack was answered with a fusilade of bullets. The first shot from the strikers went through the cab window of the engine and just missed killing the engineer and J. J. Moore, the superintendent of the mines. Telegrams were sent to the town in haste for help and Sheriff Morrow summoned 25 deputies. Governor Jones, who is still in the city, hastily summoned the Birmingham battalion of the state troops.

Opened Fire on the Mob

Fresh Fires Hastily Formed

At noon the Second regiment was relieved from duty. The Eastlake company was still in camp guarding the rients and they were marched to a train and hastily carried to Pratts with the deputies. The governor ordered the Second regiment into camp and closed all the saloons in the county. Out at Pratts

Fresh Fires Were Hastily Formed

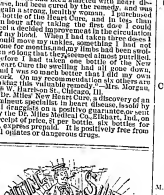
and the woods were scoured for miles, but the miners had made good their escape. The work of hunting up the dead and wounded then began. Ten men were picked up and six are dead.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, and at times grew seriously. For five years I was confined to my bed almost continuously. I was finally obliged to retire on account of my health and gave up doing my housework, as I could not keep about. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and when a person is in a serious condition Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is recommended to me by a friend, who had been afflicted in the same way. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than two days after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my body. I continued taking three doses and could move my limbs without pain. I had not been so encouraged by any medicine before. I have taken one bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure the swelling has all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. I recommend this to all others afflicted with heart trouble."—Mrs. Morgan, 36 W. Harrison St., Chicago.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, is sold by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on a positive guarantee first bottle benefits or druggist will get it for you or it will be sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co. Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle. 6 bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.



FOR EASE AND COMFORT.

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort as close companions as the Siamese twins.

It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of

Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE, And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office.

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skillfully performed.

NELS SWANSON

ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.

Wells Drilled or Bored,

Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.

Crookston, Minn

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fourner Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

$1.50

PER DOZEN

FOR THE TBES CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street, Crookston.

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.,

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.—

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS and TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St., Opposite Reckitt Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., West side

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission, and will be kept and sold by Feeding a specialty.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated the 4th day of March, 1893, executed and delivered by Nels Swanson, of Crookston, County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northern Loan and Investment Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 4th day of March, 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., and was recorded in book 62 of mortgages, on pages 105 & 106, by reason of which default the whole sum of $1,000 secured by said mortgage became due and payable at the date of said mortgage, and has ever since been and now remains so due and payable, and there is now due and claimed to be due on said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of $1,000 principal sum of $375, and interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from the date of this notice the sum of $1,375, together with the sum of $75 attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the sum of $7.85 disbursements, and the sum of $2.50 for the recording of this notice of foreclosure and the cancellation of said mortgage, and also the sum of $2.50 for the recording of the satisfaction of said mortgage upon said premises, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained the said premises described as all that part of the northeast quarter (¼) of the northeast quarter (¼) of section thirty (30) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, lying and being in Polk County, Minnesota, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold at public auction by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, on the 7th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay the debt secured by said mortgage and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and the interest thereon, and the said attorney's fee, disbursements and the amount allowed by law for the foreclosure of said mortgage, which sale will be made subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale as provided by law.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

NORTHERN LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Augus G. Braden,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61603 Minneapolis, Minn. 44-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated and executed and delivered by Nels Swanson and Ingeborg Skaia, his wife, of Crookston, County of Polk, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, to Northern Loan Company, a corporation, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, which said mortgage was dated the 4th day of March, 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., and was recorded in book 62 of mortgages, on pages 105 & 106, by reason of which default the whole sum of $1,000 secured by said mortgage became due and payable at the date of said mortgage, and has ever since been and now remains so due and payable, and there is now due and claimed to be due on said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of $1,000 principal sum of $375, and interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from the date of this notice the sum of $1,375, together with the sum of $75 attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the sum of $7.85 disbursements, and the sum of $2.50 for the recording of this notice of foreclosure and the cancellation of said mortgage, and also the sum of $2.50 for the recording of the satisfaction of said mortgage upon said premises, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained the said premises described as all that part of the northeast quarter (¼) of the northeast quarter (¼) of section thirty (30) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, lying and being in Polk County, Minnesota, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold at public auction by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, on the 7th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay the debt secured by said mortgage and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and the interest thereon, and the said attorney's fee, disbursements and the amount allowed by law for the foreclosure of said mortgage, which sale will be made subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale as provided by law.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

NORTHERN LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Augus G. Braden,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61588 Minneapolis, Minn. 38-7t

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Nels Swanson, of Crookston, County of Polk, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, to Northern Loan and Investment Company, a corporation, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 4th day of March, 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., and was recorded in book 62 of mortgages, on pages 105 & 106, by reason of which default the whole sum of $1,000 secured by said mortgage became due and payable at the date of said mortgage, and has ever since been and now remains so due and payable, and there is now due and claimed to be due on said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of $1,000 principal sum of $375, and interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from the date of this notice the sum of $1,375, together with the sum of $75 attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the sum of $7.85 disbursements, and the sum of $2.50 for the recording of this notice of foreclosure and the cancellation of said mortgage, and also the sum of $2.50 for the recording of the satisfaction of said mortgage upon said premises, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained the said premises described as all that part of the northeast quarter (¼) of the northeast quarter (¼) of section thirty (30) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, lying and being in Polk County, Minnesota, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold at public auction by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county, on the 7th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay the debt secured by said mortgage and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and the interest thereon, and the said attorney's fee, disbursements and the amount allowed by law for the foreclosure of said mortgage, which sale will be made subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale as provided by law.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

NORTHERN LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Augus G. Braden,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61588 Minneapolis, Minn. 38-7t

MRS. ROSE'S

RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch served at all hours.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

TRY US.

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law,

Crookston, Minnesota.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

If you desire your Razor ground and cannot bring it, send it to me with 40 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

RAZORS HONED.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Reckitt Block, Crookston, Minn

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office in Jerome's Addition.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. H. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager

CLEVELAND HOUSE

CROOKSTON, MINN.

THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day House in the city. Good Sample Room in connection.

No. 328 Main street, Crookston, Minn

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

The strike caused a sugar famine at Mankato and other Southern Minnesota towns.

Loren Fletcher has been renominated for congress by Minneapolis republicans.

John Bowman of White Earth was acquitted of the charge of selling liquor to the Indians.

The house of William C. Frey, near Cokato, was burned by children playing with matches.

Sixty Great Northern strike cases are to be investigated by the United States grand jury at St. Paul.

Major Baldwin thinks he will get a favorable report on his bill to establish an assay office at Duluth.

General Cozzey, commander of the commonwealers, delivered an address at St. Paul Sunday night.

The People's party congressional convention nominated M. John G. M. Bowler for congress in the Third district.

A fire destroyed the barn of Charles Ward, near Big Wasson, burning four horses. Loss, $1,000; no insurance.

The Woods Harvester works and the O'Leary Packing company at St. Paul have closed down as a result of the strike.

The State Bank of Halstead has been admitted to do business in this state by the bank examiner. The capital stock is $15,000.

The new St. Paul directory contains 84,992 names, an increase of 8,311 over last year. This would indicate a population of 199,000.

R. C. Long of Nobles county was nominated for congress by the Populist convention at Tracy. Radical resolutions were passed.

The national convention of retail clerks which was to have been held at St. Paul this week has been postponed on account of the strike.

The application of T. S. Slingerland and associates to organize the National Bank of Jackson has been approved by the comptroller of the currency.

The Methodists of Winona have taken the first step to erect a house of worship to cost, with site, $65,000. Of this sum $40,000 has already been pledged.

Arvent Nelson's four-year-old child was killed by a train at Rock cut near Montevideo. The mother was running to save the child when she struck it and threw it into her arms.

The senate committee on commerce has agreed upon an appropriation of $600,000 to build a lock on the Mississippi between the Twin Cities, so as to extend navigation to Minneapolis.

Receipts of the Duluth land office for the fiscal year ending June 30 were over $280,000, being the largest on record for the Duluth office, and it is thought to be the largest on record at any land office.

The Hubbard County Game and Fish club has sworn out six warrants for illegal fishing, has secured the conviction of five men, destroyed 1,000 feet of gill nets, 400 feet of draw seines and 12 fish boxes, and has driven nine fishing gangs from the county.

The Camp Release monument, near Montevideo, was dedicated in commemoration of one of the closing scenes of the Indian war of 1862. Ex-Governors Ramsey and Austin, General C. C. Andrews and Attorney General Childs made the principal speeches.

Abbott Bernard, president of St. John's university, Collegeville, reports the damage done to the buildings of the university by the recent cyclone much greater than originally estimated, reaching close to $60,000, upon which there was no cyclone insurance.

Flour mill at Amboy was burned Thursday together with the depot. It is supposed the fire started from sparks from an engine. The mill had a daily capacity of 200 barrels, and the loss is placed at $8,000; partly insured. The loss on the depot is placed at $1,000.

Fitzgerald Bros. & Sisk, railroad contractors of Lincoln, Neb., have taken a five-year contract from the Rivabik Bessemer company to strip and mine 4,000,000 tons of ore from the big Rivabik mine. Work has commenced and 800 men will be employed and 300,000 tons will be shipped this year.

Workmen while drilling a well on the farm of D. S. Sanders, near Ballston, struck a vein of gas or air of some force. The air, which smells like burnt powder, rushes out of the casing with sufficient force to throw sand and large gravel stones 25 feet in the air. Sparks by means of what is pronounced by some to be gold has been thrown out.

The following figures from the auditor's agricultural statement shows the amount of land now under cultivation in Winona county: Acres, wheat, 9,000; oats, 20,476; corn, 21,498; barley, 49,826; rye, 3,447; buckwheat, 1,298; potatoes, 2,258; beans, 90; sugar cane, 5; cultivated hay, 23,106; fl x, 4,160; other prodnce, 4,561. Total acreage cultivated in 1894, 148,057.

Pension Bureau Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A deputation from the pension bureau consisting of Dr. Marcus C. Bober, Confederal Clerk Charles Donnelly and Alfred C. Ridgeway of the finance division has left for Austin and Preston, Minn., to act as prosecuting witnesses in the cases of a number of medical examining surgeons of the bureau, charged with bribery, growing out of the famous Van Leuven pension frauds.

Equipped for Field Duty.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 11.—Troops A and H, Fourth cavalry, Captains Smith and Wilder, have left for Spokane with two days rations, equipped for field duty.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, July 10

The senate passed the postoffice appropriation bill.

The senate is making up for lost time and is now disposing of the appropriation bills at a rapid rate. The record for the day is three; the diplomatic and consular, the invalid pension and the military academy. The only one of these which excited any debate was the pension bill, and on this a discussion of the respective pensions polities of the Republican and Democratic parties was precipitated.

The house passed the McRae land forfeiture bill, which provides for the forfeiture of unearned grants to railroads. It will restore to the public domain about 54,000,000 acres.

Thursday, July 12

Two more important bills were passed by the senate during the day, the naval and the fortifications appropriation bills, while some progress was made on the river and harbor bill. Several bills of minor importance were passed and conferees were appointed on the military academy and diplomatic and consular appropriation bills.

The house agreed to the senate amendments to the bill for the admission of Utah as a state, and proceeded with the consideration of bills reported from the foreign affairs committee. Eleven bills were passed, none of national importance.

Friday, July 13.

The river and harbor appropriation bill, which usually gives rise to sharp debate and consumes from three days to a week for its consideration, was passed in the senate during the day. Another important bill—the legislative, executive and judicial—was immediately taken up and put well on its way towards passage before the recess was reported.

The house agreed to the report of the conference on the sundry appropriation bill. The remainder of the day was devoted to the consideration of private bills. Although several were debated none were passed.

Saturday, July 14

The house discussed the bill to create a retired list for officers of the revenue marine service, and listened to eulogies of the late G. W. Hunk.

Sunday, July 15

The house adopted a strong resolution approving the president's course in the strike. It was passed without division, the minority not being strong enough to get the yeas and nays. The remainder of the day was spent in an effort to press the Bailey bankruptcy bill, but although it was discussed and read a third time, the quorum failed on the final vote and the final passage will be taken the first thing tomorrow. At 8:30 the house adjourned.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill passed the senate after a long fight, and the District of Columbia appropriation bill was taken up.

PROBABLY CRUSHED BY ICE.

The Steamer Containing the Wellman Party Is Missing.

LONDON, July 14.—A dispatch to The Times from Tromsoe, in the north of Norway, says that the yacht Saide of the Royal yacht squadron touched at Danes Island, on the northwest coast of Spitzbergen, on July 9. The yachtsmen found on the island Professor Oyen, the Norwegian who was joined by the American polar expedition under Walter Wellman to await their return and to guard the depot established on the island. Nothing had been heard of the expedition since their steamer, the Ragnvald Jarl, left Danes Island. The Saide started on a search for her, but returned to the mess blocked by ice. The yacht met su experienced walrus hunter Captain Johannesen coming from the northward. It was his opinion that the Ragnvald Jarl and crushed. Johannesen's views were met, but none of them had been the steamer east of Bergen Hook. The Saide left some supplies with the professor. He declined to return with the yacht, as he was pledged to Mr. Wellman to guard the depot until the Ragnvald Jarl returned. He had for company only one dog. He feared that the supplies would be inadequate for the expedition on its return.

Had Been Beset by Ice

IVORY

IVORY SOAP 99 44/100% PURE

FOR CLOTHES.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINTI.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

NEW LIFE

BEFORE AFTER

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under written guarantee to cure Weak Memory, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Lassitude, all Drains, Loss of Power in either sex, Impotency, Wakefulness caused by Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, which soon lead to Misery, Consumption, Insanity and Death. Ask your druggist for it. Take no substitute. Write for pamphlet. Sold by druggists at $1 a box; 6 boxes for $5, with written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address NERVE TREATMENT CO., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Crookston by Ross & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists.

WHAT VIGORINE DID

VIGORINE Acts powerfully and quickly. Young men should use VIGORINE and avoid self-pollution and the consequences. Middle-aged men will regain their youthful vigor by using VIGORINE. Absolutely harmless. Cures Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of abuse or excesses and indiscretion. Wards off insanity and consumption. Don't let druggist impose something else on you because it pays him better. Insist on having VIGORINE, or send for it. Sold by druggists, or will be sent by mail, sealed, on receipt of price, $1 per package, or 6 packages for $5. Pamphlet free. Address in confidence, Enclose this advertisement. Address PEPPY MEDICAL ASS'N, Chicago, Ill.

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a mortgage executed by George H. Bowers, of the city of Crookston, county of Polk, to Susan N. Lyman, mortgagee, dated April eighth (8th) eighteen hundred ninety (1890), and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, April ninth (9th) eighteen hundred ninety (1890), at eight hours ninety o'clock, a. m. as to book 39, of mortgages on page five hundred sixty-four (564), by the failure to pay the interest upon the principal sum of said mortgage when due, as described in said mortgage which became delinquent June 1st, 1894, and June 1st, 1894, and the failure to pay the sum of (540) ninety-six dollars interest upon said principal sum from June 1st, 1894. Said mortgage has elected and hereby does declare that the entire principal sum of said mortgage is now due and payable and no suit or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of thirteen hundred fifteen and no-100 dollars ($1315.00).

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute, made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that part of section No. fifteen (15) in township No. one hundred fifty-nine (159) north of range No. forty-seven (47) being in Polk County and state of Minnesota, and bounded as follows, to-wit: at the front door of the county court-house, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 17th day of August, 1894 at ten o'clock a. m. at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay the debts secured by said mortgage and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75.00) stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated June 8th, 1894.

JAMES M. LAWSON,
LEW A. HUNTOON,
Attorneys for Mortgagee.
Mortgagee.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, special term July 9th, 1894.

In the Matter of the Estate of Fred J. Limoges, Deceased.

Order for and administration on the estate of said deceased being this day created none desiring to be appointed.

It is ordered, That all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to the Probate Court, in the county of Crookston, on the Probate office, in the city of Crookston, on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1894, and on the 6th day of December, 1894

Ordered further, That notice of the time and the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time (120) days from the date hereof, all claims not presented to be satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless for cause shown further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands be given by the publication of this order once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published in Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 9th day of July A. D. 1894.

By the Court, C. M. BENSON,
(1-3-5) Judge of Probate.

NOTICE OF PETITION.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In District Court, 10th Judicial District.

In the matter of the petition of Hans P. Sol and Anne S. Solum for the appointment of Elena Opsahl, a minor female child, under the provisions of sec. 5, chap. 46, Gen. Stat. 1878, of said child.

The petition of Hans P. Solum and Anne S. Solum for the above named minor having been presented to the court having among other duties that the petitioners are husband and wife and of lawful age, and are and for more than two years last past have been residents of the County of Polk and state of Minnesota, and that said child is a female child of the age of three years last past, and that the petitioners are desirous of having said child adopted by them as their child and heir, and that the petitioners received said child from the Children's Home Society of South Dakota, at Faith, county of Cox, and state of South Dakota, as an adopted child, and in January, 1891, and have ever since maintained and educated said child as their own, and are now the only and sole parents of said child. Therefore, it is ordered by the court, that the superintendent of the Children's Home Society, of North and South dakota, with the consent of said child, and the husband and wife aforesaid, be and appear before this court at the court house in the city of Crookston, Polk county, North Dakota, in the city appointed by statutes, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock a. m. to show cause, if any there be, why the petition should not be granted.

And, it is ordered that the said petition be heard before this court at the court house in the city of Crookston, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock a. m. in the forenoon of said day.

Dated June 29th, 1894.

By the Court, FRANK IVES,
District Judge.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Charles Mette and Vitaline Guilmette, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly and legally incorporated under the laws of the state of Minnesota, as mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of September, A. D. 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of September, A. D. 1893, at 9:20 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, payable annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory notes for the sum of one (1) certain promissory notes for the sum of one (1) hundred dollars ($100) each, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by assignment dated August 1st, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by assignment dated August 1st, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of (one) principal sum of $1000, and interest of said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by assignment dated August 1st, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of (four) annual installments of interest on said note and mortgage on November 1st, A. D. 1893, and May 1st, A. D. 1894, respectively, each for the sum of $60.00.

And whereas the mortgage further provided that in case of default in the payment of any installment of interest on said note, said mortgage and the note therein described, should become due and payable, and in pursuance thereof said mortgage and the note therein described became due and payable, and the mortgagee and assignee of said note and mortgage does elect and hereby declare that the whole principal sum of said note and mortgage did become and remain due and payable, and that the same should be due at the date of this notice the principal sum of $1000, and the interest upon said principal sum at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum from the 1st day of November, A. D. 1893, and the sum of $20.51 taxes paid by said mortgagee upon said mortgaged premises and paid by said mortgagee and assignee of said note and mortgage, and has instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereinto recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that part of section No. fifteen (15) in township No. one hundred fifty-nine (159) north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth principal meridian, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the southeast corner of said section; thence west on the south line of said section 1320 feet; thence north parallel with the east line of said section 1320 feet; thence east parallel with the south line of said section 1320 feet to the east line of said section; thence south on said east line 1320 feet to the place of beginning, containing 40 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court-house, in the city of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75.00), attorney fees as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Angus C. Bruce,
Attorney for Assignee.
G1419 Minneapolis, Minnesota. 119-Tc

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Charles Mette and Vitaline Guilmette, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly and legally incorporated under the laws of the state of Minnesota, as mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of September, A. D. 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of September, A. D. 1893, at 9:20 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, payable annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory notes for the sum of one (1) hundred dollars ($100) each, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by assignment dated August 1st, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of (four) annual installments of interest on said note and mortgage on November 1st, A. D. 1893, and May 1st, A. D. 1894, respectively, each for the sum of $60.00.

And whereas the mortgage further provided that in case of default in the payment of any installment of interest on said note, said mortgage and the note therein described, should become due and payable, and in pursuance thereof said mortgage and the note therein described became due and payable, and the mortgagee and assignee of said note and mortgage does elect and hereby declare that the whole principal sum of said note and mortgage did become and remain due and payable, and that the same should be due at the date of this notice the principal sum of $1000, and the interest upon said principal sum at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum from the 1st day of November, A. D. 1893, and the sum of $20.51 taxes paid by said mortgagee upon said mortgaged premises and paid by said mortgagee and assignee of said note and mortgage, and has instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereinto recorded and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that part of section No. fifteen (15) in township No. one hundred fifty-nine (159) north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth principal meridian, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the southeast corner of said section; thence west on the south line of said section 1320 feet; thence north parallel with the east line of said section 1320 feet; thence east parallel with the south line of said section 1320 feet to the east line of said section; thence south on said east line 1320 feet to the place of beginning, containing 40 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court-house, in the city of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75.00), attorney fees as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Angus C. Bruce,
Attorney for Assignee.
G1419 Minneapolis, Minnesota. 119-Tc

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Joseph Fillion, a married man, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly and legally incorporated under the laws of the state of Minnesota, as mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, at 3:30 o'clock p. m. in book 37 of mortgages at pages 402 and 403.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, payable annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory notes for the sum of one (1) hundred dollars ($100) each, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by assignment dated August 1st, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in book 47 of mortgages at page 42.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of (four) annual installments of interest on said note and mortgage on January 1st, A. D. 1893, July 1st, A. D. 1893, January 1st, A. D. 1894, and July 1st, A. D. 1894, respectively, each for the sum of $60.00.

And whereas the mortgage further provided that in case of default in the payment of any installment of interest on said note, said mortgage and the note therein described, should become due and payable, and in pursuance thereof said mortgage and the note therein described became due and payable, and the mortgagee and assignee of said note and mortgage does elect and hereby declare that the whole principal sum of said note and mortgage did become and remain due and payable, and that the same should be due at the date of this notice the principal sum of $1000, and the interest upon said principal sum at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum from the 1st day of January

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily	For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west and Pacific coast at.....	6:22 p. m.
	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at.....	7:25 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

Napoleon Raptiecame in from the Lake to be on deck for the fair this week.

A. J. & A. McKinnon have painted the tin roofing on their carriage factory.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

Hon. H. Steenerson took his family out to the Lake to spend the Sabbath.

Geo. Candee, deputy state boiler inspector, showed up this week in good form.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Billy Keenan, manager of the Tarbell-Buffington farm, was in the city on Monday.

Messrs. Foote and Losey went up to Hallock on Monday morning, on a brief business trip.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

John O. Bulin, returned last Saturday from the Twin Cities, where he went to see how conventions were run.

Mrs. W. E. Thune left for Duluth on Friday of last week for a visit with relatives and friends in that city.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Brown.

A. G. Gullaseh was down to St. Paul last week—an interested spectator at the great republican convention.

Unless the drouth is soon broken all of the previous prophecies in relation to Red River crops will have to be modified very materially.

F. M. Brown says the call for shorts is unprecedented and they can hardly keep up with the demand. The price has raised from $10 to $12 per. ton since July 1st.

"Moore or no more" that is the question to be decided at the school meeting on Saturday evening. The patrons of the school will have an opportunity to have a voice in the matter if they wish.

The Schelstad concert at the opera house on Friday evening was well attended and a very enjoyable affair, proving that home talent can oftimes furnish as fine an entertainment as imported troupes.

Nice showers were had on Saturday both east and west of the city—but several miles away. It looked at one time as though we should get some of it, but it failed to materialize.

A great deal of dissatisfaction with the populist county ticket exists and should the republicans put into the field a good square-toed business ticket composed of men selected for their business capacity, it would stand a very good chance to win.

The little 15 year-old daughter of Louis Hebel, died on Saturday, at the family residence in Jerome's addition. She had been a sufferer from quinsy for some time, aggravated by complications, that resulted fatally. This is the third child they have lost.

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutter buggy, buffalo robe and harness. Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.
[47-tf] D. N. Taylor.

For Rent.

Two fine cottages on Elm street. Apply at JOURNAL office.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

M. W. Jenson and Doe Gilmore were in from McIntosh this week.

Sundy McDonald with his wife and child drove up on Monday evening to visit with the family of Mrs. Dan. McDonald during last week.

Mail from California for the east has been going over the Great Northern—from two to three cars of mail each way each eastbound train.

And even Bydal is not wholly satisfied with the populist county ticket—but then Bydal would not be satisfied if he was sentenced to be hung—he would die if he couldn't kick.

Tommy Wallace was in on Saturday and remarked in hearing of our reporter: "One of my colts got badly cut up in the wire fence last week—and of course it was the best one and pretty badly cut up. Will probably get along all right, however."

The Corse Payton Company arrived on Sunday ready for their week's business at the Grand. At their prices all who like such things can well afford to gratify their tastes. Early on Monday morning the seats began to go off like hot cakes.

L. O'Brien went out to his farm in the Thirteen Towns last week, and on his return brought to this office a sample of wheat that is the best we have seen this year. The stalks are 6½ feet high with heads an average of five inches in length. O'Brien says there is lots of just such wheat in the Thirteen Towns.

Tom Harris and Dan Hughes went out hunting for grass one day last week and found some down by Vineland. They set two mowers to work and on Monday started for the hay-field with a crew to put up hay. Expect to be haying about ten days or so. Dan says they struck a bonanza—found a lot of good grass.

Marvin Losey says he has got all he wants of politics and thinks that he will settle down to business. He has returned to meet in the honorable way he conducted his canvass and he should remember that it sometimes happens that the less honorable man has the better position he is. Losey has been a model deputy and would make a rattling good business sheriff.

For some unaccountable reason our school board is composed of an even number instead of an odd, as it should be. Had it been composed of 3 or 7 members the deadlock on who shall be superintendent could never have occurred, which would have been far better. It strikes us that this would be a proper subject to have remedied at as early a date as possible.

A. W. Dawley: "I see that Prof. Lugger is inoculating potatoe bugs, same as chinch bugs in southern Minnesota, and with great success. That would be good medicine to introduce up here where the bugs are more plentiful than ever before. Some people fear that we shall have a greater scarcity of potatoes than ever before, but I do not think so as there is at least three acres in potatoes in Polk county to-day to one last year—and we had plenty last year you remember to spare."

The annual school meeting occurs at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, when successors on the board to A. A. Miller and John R. McKinnon are to be elected. We understand that both these gentlemen are up for reelection and it is the general impression that if re-elected it means that the sentiment of the people is against the retention of Prof. Moore as superintendent of schools. Should they not be re-elected it will mean that the sentiment of the city is in favor of retaining Prof. Moore. There should be a large attendance.

The building for a portion of the new tannery is on the site and will soon be fixed up ready for business, and as rapidly as possible the balance of the tannery will be completed and got into working condition. This institution bids fair to be one of great value to our city and the county for the increased trade it will bring to our city and the market it will afford Polk county farmers in hides and pelts. The city has done a good thing by encouraging this industry and could well afford to follow up this beginning by offering inducements for a woolen factory, a starch factory and other industries such as would have a tendency to build up our city and county.

Albert Peterson, a well-to-do farmer in the Thirteen Towns went down to Fisher last week, with a view of trading farms with a farmer near there. Sometime during his stay, together with several others he went into the river to bathe. The party had a boat and one man in the crowd could not swim very well; Peterson, who was a good swimmer, said to the man who could not swim: "It is easy to learn to swim, just watch me, I will show you how it is done;" and suiting the action to the word he jumped out of the boat into the river, sinking instantly and drowning before the party could rescue him. The body was found some days later many miles down the river.

Ain the boys are now grinning at each other over the way in which Andrew compassed the nomination for sheriff—i. e. the boys who wanted that plum for themselves. The way they took it and took it and over the more they realize the fact that as experienced, thorough-bred politicians they are not in it with Steenerson.

Several vigorous and well defined kicks having been registered against the practice of taking water for the sprinkling cart at the engine house the city dads have arranged with Larsen, Carpenter & Co., to put in the apparatus at the corner of Broadway and Robert streets, where the sprinkler will hereafter get its supplies.

Miss Dollie Bunnell was mourning the loss of a parrot last week and for several days that gentle yawp was not heard in the vicinity of her home, for the bird took advantage of a few moments release from the cage to skip out, but after a day or so showed up again in good form and has resumed business again at the old stand.

Nels Muus is disgruntled. Nels is one of the kind of reformers who wanted to do some good for his constituents and now finds that the counties, like nations are sometimes ungrateful to the most eminent of patriots—but it is only his official head that comes off in this case. He has a combination ticket figured out that he says would be a winner—and he is out in it.

The Corse Payton Comedy Company opened at the Grand on Monday evening in "The Plunger," playing to a crowded house. This play affords ample opportunity for Mr. Payton to indulge in his specialty work—in which he is immense, a whole show in himself. Miss. Reed was ill and unable to appear and was missed very materially. The company, as a whole is a good one and entitled to a good business, and from present appearances they will get it.

On Saturday last our reporter met Mr. E. Lanctot, who lives six miles east near the Grandin bridge, and interviewed him as to the crops in his vicinity. He said that early wheat was suffering most, but wheat sowed on May 18th and later was all right and bids fair to be a good crop. "While vegetables and grain are in need of moisture yet I do not consider the situation dispairing by any means and a good rain will brighten things up in a wonderful degree. I have seen good wheat and good hay in many dryer seasons than this has been—in fact the best wheat I ever saw was in one of the dryest seasons we ever had."

Tuesday morning on the fair grounds everything was bustle and confusion, receiving, marking up and arranging the various exhibits offered, but in the after-noon order was restored from chaos and the great fair was on once more. The displays of stock, grain and vegetables are good—far ahead of what might be expected such a year as this has so far been, and, although one good-hearted old lady was heard to remark, in all the bustle and confusion that everywhere reigned on Tuesday morning: "La sakes alive! this don't begin to compare with the World's Fair," yet for all that it is a pretty good show just the same.

On Tuesday morning at 6:30, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Brown, the words were said that united Miss. Cicele J. Brown to Mr. Chas. B. March, the Rev. Mr. Penn, of Grand Forks officating. After a wedding breakfast the happy couple took the N. P. train for Winnipeg, where they will remain a few days after which they will return to make their home in this city. Mr. March is manager of the Red River Valley bee Co., taking the place of W. S. Taylor. Miss. Brown has grown from childhood in our midst and is most favorably known by all. The JOURNAL joins in congratulations.

The directors of the new hotel have called a meeting of the stockholders for the 24th to determine on the site for the hotel. Some eight or ten sites will be offered, among them is the LaChapelle property, on Broadway, the Lancaster property, on Fourth street, the old Jacobus property, the Sherman house property, the Walsh property, corner of Broadway and Fletcher streets, the Larsen & Carpenter corner, the residence property of M. R. Brown, corner of Ash and Fourth streets and the Roach property, corner of Main and Second streets. Of all of these the Brown property seems best adapted—other things being equal, as it is a site about equi-distant between both depots, affords plenty of room for grounds and has fine eastern and northern frontage, and this site, if chosen will not give any loss upon a manner, and the pops body any particular advantage so far as enhancing the value of adjoining business property is concerned. This would be as fine a site as could be selected if the price is as reasonable as its other good points.

Lewis Ellington spent Sunday at the Lake.

A. C. Schmidt went out to Numedal on Monday.

B. S. Buckingham came down from Warren to attend the fair.

Bro. Matson, of the Warren Sheet, was looking the city over this week.

J. D. McPhee, of the Lockhart farm, is taking in the fair this week.

The funeral of Louis Hebel's little girl took place on Monday forenoon at 10 o'clock.

A. W. Foss left the Thirteen Towns district this week while he came down to take in the fair.

The Fosston band came down on Tuesday's train to play on the fair grounds for the balance of the time.

Hon. Lee Cheadle, one of the early settlers of Crookston, is re-visiting old-time friends in Polk county.

A. J. Whiteman, who ran for congress on the democratic ticket against S. G. Comstock four years ago, is in jail for forgery.

The business houses in the city were all closed at 1 p. m. during the fair so that all could have the privilege of attending the fair.

Uncle Robert Cochrane received a pair of live alligators by N. P. express this week. Whatever use upon the farm he intends to make of them puzzles the farmers allinace to determine.

A small blaze in a barn on north Main street on Saturday evening called out the department. The boys only got as far as Charlie Probst's residence, when met by news that the fire was out.

Some fifty or sixty trottlng and racing horses are domiciled at the fair grounds, a big string coming on Monday from Grand Forks. In such a galaxy there should be (and there are) some noted flyers.

"Jane," at the opera house on Saturday evening was not so well attended as the merits of the play and the manner in which it was presented deserved. Those who were there enjoyed it hugely and spoke very highly of the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Larsen have been called upon to part with their little 18 months old boy, that died of whooping cough on Saturday evening of last week. The funeral took place on Monday after-noon at 2 o'clock.

On Saturday of last week J. W. Peterson and Ed Clarey closed a deal by which they succeed to the business of Clarey Bros., the Reckitt racing grooms. The boys are too well known to our readers to need an introduction, having grown to manhood in our city. They are hustlers, Losey to and doubtless will do well. The JOURNAL wishes the new firm abundant success.

Last week three urchins were brought over from East Grand Forks and taken before a justice of the peace, charged with talking sassy to the train hands on the N. P. R. R., calling them "scabs" etc. Before proceeding to trial, however, they were released on a telegram from U. S. Marshal Shortall at East Grand Forks, and sent home rejoicing.

J. E. Harris, who has been around the county considerably this summer, says that he is fully convinced that if the republicanism August 3rd put a good business county ticket in the field it can be elected He says that the ticket first in the field is very unsatisfactory in many particulars and he thinks if the right men are placed in the field the ticket would win. He is not in favor of the independent ticket idea.

In the late canvass, Sheriff Grundysen heartily endorsed and supported the candidacy of his deputy, Marvin Losey, for the nomination for sheriff, but strange as it may seem, this, instead of helping Losey seemed to hurt his cause. And for why? "Because," it was urged, if Losey is nominated and elected, Amy Grundysen will be deputy, and there you have it, the same old combination!" Now, assuming for the sake of argument (though there is no reason to suppose it true) this should be the case what of it? Have not the affairs of the sheriff's office been conducted as well under Grundysen and Losey, as under any other sheriff and deputy Polk county ever had? Have not those men been as attentive to their duties and as true to their party interests as any men could be? Then why is it deemed necessary in the wisdom (?) of party councils to turn Grundysen down, put up a new and wholly untried man to wear his shoes? It may not be necessary always to re-nominate a deputy on a show appreciation of his efforts, but it is not always wise to ignore and snub a faithful partisan worker in haven't a more efficient and capable worker in their ranks than Grundysen has been.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

As the pop congressional convention on Tuesday M. E. Boen was re-nominated by acclamation, there being no other man rash enough to try for election on that ticket this fall. The same old platform was adopted, and if Boen goes back he goes pledged to accomplish just what he has in the past—nothing.

The city council held a special session on Monday evening to consider the good ronds question, as applied to our city streets. It was decided in view of the stringency of the democratic times not to make a break this year.

Ed. H. Lose came down from St. Vincent, to take in the races this week.

The drouth was finally broken on Tuesday evening and a rain, that must have been general throughout the valley refreshed the thirsty soil in great shape. On Wednesday afternoon another shower braced things up again giving hope and encouragement to all.

A little dog (said to be affected with rabies caused a great deal of excitement in the grand stand on Wednesday afternoon. The little animal had apparently, lost its master and was running about distractedly when some one yelled: "Mad dog! Look out for the children!" The dog was finally ejected from the grand stand and policeman Kyle executed it with a club.

The Fosston cornet band have elected many encomiums from our citizens this week, on their excellent music and appearance.

The partnership heretofore existing between Krohn & Reime is dissolved, Mr. Krohn succeeding to the business.

R. B. Vining was brought down from Thief River Falls last Friday on a charge of selling liquor to a confirmed inebriate. He was taken before a city justice, and the trial adjourned until Thursday, July 26th.

Governor Nelson went north this week to inspect the state ditch at Stephen.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co. doing Business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and sworbed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

SEAL

A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public

Hall's Catarh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O

Sold by all druggists, 75.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Polu Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.

Charles A. Baldwin & Co. BANKERS, 40 AND 42 WALL STREET, NEW YORK

Accounts of Banks and Bankers received on favorable terms.

Bonds and Investment Securities.

Daily Financial Letter Mailed on Application.

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED.

WALSH, the Land Man.

The body of Charles Yette, whose sad death was mentioned in last issue, was secured on Friday several miles down the river from where the drowning took place.

In our July 5th issue, in speaking of the Hotel Northern at Grand Forks, the type made us allude to it as a two-story hotel. The copy read three-story, but somehow one story got lost in the shuffle ere the article reached our readers. The Hotel Northern is a three-story brick, containing 30 guest chambers and is managed by one of the most popular hotel men in the Northwest, H. N. Wells. It is conveniently arranged and could serve as a model for our new hotel with more ground space.

The Northern Pacific trestle over the Marias, about four miles from East Grand Forks, took fire early on Monday morning and was destroyel before the fire was discovered. A crew was put to work to rebuild it as soon as possible, meanwhile passengers have to be transferred. Coals from a passing engine are responsible it is said.

Our citizens were surprised and saddened on Saturday morning by the news that William Ross was dead. He died at 5 o'clock that morning of consumption. While it was generally supposed that he could not live long, the end came suddenly as he had been confined to his bed but about a week, and his condition was not considered critical until the fatal hemorrhage set in.

William M. Ross, son of John and Marie Ross, was born on November 27, 1857, at West Lebanon, Indiana. He has been a resident of this city for 13 years, 7 of which he has been in the employ of his brother-in-law, A. C. Schmidt, as a painter. He was a single man and leaves a mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn his loss, as well as hosts of friends. The funeral obsequies occurred on Sunday afternoon, and all that was mortal was laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery.

For Rent.

A twenty room boarding house eligibly located, with good artesian well in connection. Apply to, or address, JOURNAL office for full particulars.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved Cotswhire pigs, ready for weaning next week. Inquire of John Van Tuyl, on the farm.

Aaron Cooke.

Champion Mowers.

Buy your champion mowers and extras, from S. L. Collins & Co., the old reliable dealers. They have the best machines in the business at the lowest living prices.

Estray.

Came to my premises on or about May 4th, one dark roan heifer calf. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take her away.

A. Helmick.

Found.

On May 5th, one note for $100.50. Owner can recover by proving property and paying for the notice. Apply at JOURNAL office.

Cash

For dressed hogs. Address.

Robert Stanton,
Crookston Packing House,
[7-12] Crookston, Minn.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.
[1-tf] A. F. George,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block.
[52tf] Alexander McKinnon.

RED RIVER VALLEY IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED FARMS FOR SALE ON LONG TIME AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,

E. M. WALSH,

Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Polk County Journal.

Historical Society

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1894. NO. 15

PREMIUM AWARDS.

A Complete List of the Awards Made at the Polk County Fair.

Taking Everything Into Consideration, it was a Great Success.

Although the displays in every line at the fair this year were not quite as extensive as last year, they were very fine and, taking into consideration the depressing condition of things throughout the country there is no reason for discouragement. The management has worked early and late, sparing neither labor nor expense to make the fair a grand success in every particular, and our townspeople took hold in a commendable manner, doing what they could to make it a success. The following is a list of the awards as presented us by Secretary J. V. E. Wyatt.

HORSES.

CLYDESDALE—Three years old and over: David Morrow, first; P. J. Carey, 2nd, and Bernhard Sampson, 3rd.

PERCHERONS—Three years old and over: W. Hlumuhlbach, 1st; H. Thompson, 2nd.

STALLION AND COLTS—D. Morrow, 1st.

GROUP OF SIX HORSES—David Morrow, 1st; E. Jorgenson, 3ad.

GRADES—Pair of mares four years old and over; David Morrow.

Best two year-old mare—D. Morrow, 1st.

Best two year-old gelding—T. O. Berglund, 1st; D. Morrow, 2nd and 3rd.

MARES—Three years old and over; T. O. Berglund, 1st; D. Morrow, 2nd; Jos. Fletcher, 3rd.

SUCKING COLTS—Clydesdale: P. J. Carey, 1st; Wm. Senske, 2nd; Chas. Roddle, 3rd. Percheron; T. O. Berglund, 1st. Sweepstakes; P. J. Carey, 1st.

STANDARD BRED TROTTER—Peterson & Warninger, 1st; H. Thompson, 2nd.

COWS.

ALDERNEYS—Jos. LeFramboise, 1st.

SHORT-HORN—M. Knudson, 1st; W. H. Collins, 2nd.

HOLSTEINS—Cow; J. N. Stevens, 1st.

GRADES—W. H. Collins, 1st.

CALVES—Martin Knudson, 1st; W. H. Collins, 2nd.

SHEEP.

SHROPSHIRES—F. Bivins & Son, 1st; W. H. Collins, 2nd.

LAMBS—W. H. Collins, 1st; F. Bivins & Son, 2nd.

HOGS.

BERKSHIRE—For best boar; J. N. Stevens, 1st; best sow; M. LePlant, 1st and 2nd; J. N. Stevens, 3rd.

FOWL.

GUINEA—Jos. LeFramboise, 1st; trio of chicks; W. H. Collins, 1st; Jos. LaFramboise, 2nd and 3rd; Geese and ducks—Joseph LeFramboise, 1st. Parrots—Mrs. J. Bunnell, 1st.

HOUND—Jos. LeFramboise, 1st.

WOOL—Jos. LeFramboise, 1st.

Sheaf of Scotch Fife Wheat—F. M. Davis, 1st; J. M. Stevens, 2nd. Blue Stem—W. H. Collins & Son, 1st. Saskatchewan Fife—Wm. Latta, 2nd.

OATS—W. H. Collins & Son, 1st; J. M. Stevens, 2nd. White Russian Oats—L. S. Davis; 3rd.

Barley—Thos. Thygeson, 1st; J. M. Stevens, 2nd.

TIMOTHY—W. H. Collins & Son, 1st.

CORN—K. Waterstrat, 1st; F. L. Davis 2nd; T. O. Berglund, 3rd.

Cereals of '93—Wheat. Thos. Thygeson, 1st; F. L. Davis, 2nd. Barley —Thos. Thygeson, 1st. Oats—Thos. Thygeson, 1st; Sid Lytle, 2nd. Flax—Wm. Hlumelsbach, 1st.

Vegetables—J. M. Stevens, 1st; F. L. Davis, 2nd; K. Waterstrat, 3rd.

Butter—Mrs. Walter Walker, 1st; Mrs. H. Collins, 2nd; E. Lunctot, 3rd; Mrs. C. T. Baumann, 4th.

Cheese—A. Weber, 1st.

Wine—Mrs. Bunnell, 1st.

Pantry Stores—Pantry Exhibit —Mrs. W. E. Walker, 1st; Mrs. J. H. Bunnell, 2nd; Mrs. A. A. Glenn, 3rd.

Preserved Fruit—Mrs. Wm. Walker, 1st; Mrs. Tom Morris, 2nd; Mrs. J. H. Bunnell, 3rd.

Preserved Pickles—Mrs. J. H. Bunnell, 1st; Mrs. E. M. Walsh, 2nd.

House Plants—Mrs. A. R. Fuller, 1st; Mrs. T. A. Adams, 2nd.

Cut Flowers—Mrs. W. E. Walker, 1st; Mrs. Tom Morris, 2nd.

Women's and Children's Work—Woven Counterpane—Jos. Menard, 1st.

Handkerchief—Mrs. Tom Morris, 1st; Mrs. H. Robertson, 2nd.

Paper Holder—Laura Michaud, 2nd.

Smoking Cap—Laura Michaud, 1st.

Pillow Cases—Mrs. Bunnell, 1st.

Sideboard Scarf—Mrs. Bunnell, 2nd.

Drawn Work—Mrs. Carey, 1st; Mrs Wm. Carey, 2nd.

Crocheted Counterpane—Mrs. Geo. Mageau, 1st.

Pillow Sham—Mrs. Geo. Mugeau, 1st; Wm. Carey, 2nd.

Table Spread—Mrs. H. Robertson, 1st; Mrs. J. Bunnell, 2nd.

Afghan—Miss. Maud Sargent, 1st.

Quilt—Mrs. James Hance, 2nd.

Collection of Crochet Work—Mrs. Bunnell, 1st; Maud Sargent, 2nd.

Scroll Work—Ralph Sawyer, 1st; Harry Hanson, 2nd.

Arasene Embroidery—Alice Green, 1st.

Crocheted Shawl—Mrs. Wm. Carey, 1st.

Fancy Apron—Ella Walsh, 1st; Mrs. H. Collins, 2nd.

Pin Cushion—Mrs. T. Morris, 1st; Mrs. Carey, 2nd.

Knitting—Mrs. C. A. Wyatt, 1st.

Set of Doilies—Bertha Wyand, 1st; Mrs. H. Robertson, 2nd.

Paper Basket—Mrs. J. Hance, 1st.

Tidy—Mrs. Carleton.

Stitching on Linen—Ida Wyand.

Lunch Cloth—Mrs. Walker, 1st; Mrs. Walker, 2nd.

Mrs. Morris premiums on wall banner, skirt, tray cloth, silk embroideries, drapery, throw, piano scarf.

Table Scarf—Mrs. Bunnell, 1st; Ella Walsh, 2nd.

Silk Quilt—Laura Marchant, 1st.

Hem Stitched Sheet—Mrs. A. Wyand.

Lace Spread—Mrs. H. Wyand.

Patch Quilt—Maud Sargent 1st; Mrs. A. Stare, 2nd.

Hand Made Quilt—E. Lunctot.

Worsted Quilt—Mrs. W. Walker, 1st; Mrs. J. P. Marcuse, 2nd.

Silk Quilt—Mrs. W. Walker.

Rug Carpet—Jas. Menard.

Knitted Quilt—Mrs. W. Walker.

Log Cabin Quilt—Mrs. T. Morris, 1st; May Sargent, 2nd.

Educational Map—Chas. Akerland, 1st; Arthur Ittner, 2nd; Bessie Hunt, 3rd.

Stumps—Earle H. Marcum, 1st; Ralph Kirsch, 2nd.

General School Exhibit—Prof. Moore, 1st.

Pencil Drawing—John Sangstad, 1st.

Set of Books—Derward Collins, 1st.

Business Forms—S. L. Flint, 1st. Sweepstakes—Crookston Normal School and Business College.

Oil Painting—1st, Mrs. J. J. Craig, of Bottrmi; 2nd, Mrs. Edward George.

Water Colors—1st, Mrs E. George. Crayons—1st, Mrs. P. J. Carey; 2nd, Mrs. E. George; 3rd, Miss Agnes McLeanan; 4th, Miss Mabel Arnold.

Pencil Drawing—1st, Miss Mabel Arnold.

Fossils—1st, May Sargent; 2nd, Mabel Arnold.

Minerals—1st, Mabel Arnold; 2nd; May Sargent.

Indian Relics—1st, Mabel Arnold, 2nd, May Sargent.

Insects—1st, Mamie Barb.

Sea Mosses—1st, Mabel Arnold; 2nd, May Sargent.

Pebbles and Stones—1st, Al. Glenn; 2nd, May Sargent; 3rd, Mamie Barb.

Hair Work—1st, Mrs. Carlton.

Reciprocity.

Thursday, the last day of the fair was designated as "Grand Forks day." It is lucky that the announcement was made, otherwise the average mortal would not have been able to distinguish "Grand Forks day" from an ordinary every-day sort of day. There MIGHT have been a score of people here from Grand Forks east and west, but we doubt it. We mind how our people just tumbled over each other in their haste to get on board the excursion train for East Grand Forks, to attend the late horse-race at that place, sending over a hundred on that train, buy some fifty or sixty more driven over in their own rigs; how every time Grand Forks has a big fair our people generally patronize it—and to get such a return as this looks decidedly too thin! Our people better take the hint and stop at home next time Grand Forks gets up a big blow-out and invites us over to blow in our stuff for her benefit.

For Rent.

Two fine cottages on Elm street. Apply at JOURNAL office.

Failed to Locate.

The stockholders of the Crookston Hotel company met in the McKinnon hall Tuesday evening for the purpose of selecting a site for the hotel. But they didn't select.

When the meeting was called to order R. J. Montague announced that the articles of incorporation had not been published yet, and that until said publication was made, and the printer's affidavit of publication filed with the secretary of state, the company was not a legal corporation, and that any action taken now would not be legal.

A. A. Miller said the company was a defacto corporation, and no actions of the stockholders could be questioned except by the state of Minnesota.

Martin O'Brien held the same opinion as Mr. Miller, and said that he didn't think the State of Minnesota cared whether a hotel was built here or not.

Mr. Montague still contended that it was dangerous to proceed with business until the legality of the corporation had been established, and said that any stockholder, dissatisfied with the action of the meeting could bring action against the corporation, in the name of the State of Minnesota.

Mr. Watts hadn't booked the matter up, and wasn't prepared to give an opinion.

Mr. Cronk advised a stay of action until the corporation was completed.

Alex McKinnon maintained that the stockholders could go ahead with the business for which the meeting was called, viz, the selection of a site.

The meeting was about to vote on the question of whether to proceed with business, or adjourn for eight days, when Mr. Miller announced that it would probably be better to avoid even the slightest possibility of trouble hereafter, and he favored adjourning.

The meeting thereupon adjourned, to meet on Wednesday evening, August 1st, at 8 p. m., in the McKinnon hall.

A Just Tribute.

A. W. Foss in the Thirteen Towns, Fosston, gives Hon. B. Sampson the following deserved tribute: "Hon. B. Sampson, of Crookston, was in town last Saturday on his way home from a trip east of here after lumber for the tannery he is building in Crookston. Mr. Sampson is very sanguine as to the future of this enterprise. He has secured the services of a Mr. Miller, of St. Paul, to take the management of the business, a man who has had many years' experience in the hide dressing business and has made large premiums at several celebrated expositions. It appears also that Mr. Miller has discovered a new method of preparing leather, whereby he can work ordinary cow hides as soft as the finest calf and is able to dress these hides, with the fur on, in such a way that they may be manufactured into robes, and even coats, which will be both light, durable and fine looking. According to Mr. Sampson's practical figures, this institution will be of great advantage to the farmers throughout this section of the country. They will be able, when the tannery is in operation, to send hides which are now worth from $1 to $2, have them dressed and returned to them at a slight cost, and they will then be worth from $4 to $6.

As Sly as You Keep It.

Herb Newland last week, quietly purchased the Chas. Jefferson house of Charlie Probst, and before any one was aware of the deal he had taken possession and got a fire burn nearly completed. He now has as fine a brick house as one could wish to own and can take solid comfort under his own vine and fig tree—as it were.

That Hotel Site.

A good bit of interest is manifested in the location of the new hotel and this is perfectly natural, but as everybody can't have his way about it, it was the part of wisdom to take the method that was adopted. The JOURNAL desires to see an eligible site selected—and is satisfied that it will be and desires to see our own laboring men and mechanics build it. Even if this why should cost a trifle more still it would be the proper thing to do, and would then indeed be entirely a Crookston institution as we are told it is the intention to get the building materials here.

FAIR---AND UNFAIR.

The Journal Makes a few Suggestions Concerning the Recent Fair.

Minnesota Experiment Station Issues a Bulletin on Russian Thistle.

The JOURNAL is led to indulge in the following reflections by some remarks we have heard concerning the fair of last week. In a new country like this, in any country in fact, cities and villages and the agricultural communities are interdependent, what helps the one must benefit the other, and what hurts the one must of necessity hurt the other. Fairs are too obviously a benefit to need discussion, but no one man, nor even two or three men unaided can successfully get up and bring to a successful issue a good fair—neither can business men unaided by farmers do it any more than can the farmers unaided by business men—it requires the united, hearty co-operation of both classes to make it a success. To provide the grounds, erect the necessary buildings, fences and all that sort of thing requires money—and a good deal of it, and patronage is needed to sustain and carry on the institution, and the benefits arising therefrom are mutual to both farmers and business men. What kind of a fair could the farmers maintain, or reasonable return could they receive from some business centre, unaided by the patronage of the business men in other avocations? By that same token, what kind of an agricultural fair could business men sustain unaided by the farmers? If these fairs are any benefit to a community—and it is a fact that they are, then it is plainly the duty of every public-spirited man to take hold and help any man who is public-spirited enough to invest his money in the endeavor to establish the institution, and not sit down and grout and kick and howl because—possibly—in his zeal for the public good, that man may have made an error of judgment in his management—and a good many times the "error" is purely visionary. If the growlers are not satisfied with what has been done—and if they know—as they say they do, how the business should be done better than those who are doing it, why don't they put up their stuff, buy a controlling interest in the stock and take hold and sent to his house, sown after removing to St. Croix county, Wis., where he lived until November 1877, when he moved to Angus in this county, where by industry and frugality he built a handsome home and accumulated considerable property, having everything comfortable about him and some money out at interest. He has always been a prominent man in the community in which he lived and dies regretted by many firm friends. He was a mason in good standing, belonging to the Warren lodge by which lodge he was buried with Mosquie honors, also a member of Col. Cobham Post No. 90, Crookston, which post sent a guard of honor to act as an escort. A very eloquent and affecting sermon was delivered at the house at 10:30 by Rev. J. P. Schell, who was the pioneer pastor of Angus and Euclid churches, and who came over from his home in Dakota especially for this occasion. In 1859 he was married to Miss Belle Coe of Waukesha, Wis., who with four unmarried children, one daughter and three sons, survive him. Last January he went to Texas in hopes to throw off the attacks of that insidious disease, consumption, where he spent three months, then went to California where he remained two months, but all in vain, and on June 1st he returned home to die. He died in the bright hope of a glorious hereafter, mourned by hosts of friends.

Fosston Thirteen Towns:—"Rev. R. H. Battey, the well known Congregational minister resident for some years past in Crookston, has removed to Barnesville, Minn. The Message, a widely circulated religious monthly, of which he is the editor and proprietor, has also been removed to the same city."

The above item and a similar one from the Thief River Falls Press reminds us of the old adage: "Go away from home to learn the news," Here in the home of the Message, we are not aware that it has been removed to Barnesville. It seems to be doing business at the old stand all the same as usual. Wonder where the boys get their information?

The Journal is glad to call attention to the following bulletin issued by the Minnesota Experiment Station, St. Anthony Park. After discussing the distribution of the weed throughout the Dakotas, Minnesota and other states of the middle north-west, and describing the weed, the Bulletin discusses the importance of keeping it in check and eradicating it. The fact that this weed grows from the slough farmer's lands to the fields of the careful cultivator by blowing before the wind much like the common tumble weed, brings about a new feature of weed troubles. This weed sometimes ruins crops of grain in the Dakotas and will act in the same way in the western parts of Minnesota and will be a pest in the entire state. It is now found in the Twin Cities, at many points along railways throughout the state, and a great body of weeds are infesting the western counties of the state from the Dakotas. Farmers who have really become acquainted with the situation are not a little exercised regarding its appearance. The Bulletin strongly advises that the states and local authorities make and execute laws, which shall at least prevent all weeds growing large enough to tumble before the wind. If this were done each farmer could fight his own battles. It seems quite as unreasonable that the states and government should allow this weed to pester the farmers as that small-pox should not be controlled in the states. Fifteen ways of eradicating this weed applying to all conditions are discussed. Several illustrations show the appearance of the weed, and the Station offers to send to school districts, road over-seerers, railway section foremen and to other officials responsible for the destruction of noxious weeds a copy of this publication enclosing a dried specimen of the weed when in flower. During the next hour or five weeks is the time when this weed should be killed, before it has had time to ripen. Certainly no weed in Minnesota, which would be large enough to roll before the wind should be allowed to mature seeds. Whenever possible all weeds small as well as large, should be prevented from ripening.

Death of Wm. Campian.

On Tuesday morning the news was received of the death of Wm. Campian at his residence at Angus, which sad event occurred on Monday evening at 9:30. Wm. Campian was born July 15, 1843, at Waukesha, Wis., where he lived until he enlisted in the army, early in the war, in Co. D., 38th Wis. Infantry. He was a brave and faithful soldier during the entire war, and at its close was sent to Mexico, where he remained for six months, when he was discharged and sent to his home, soon

That School Meeting.

The school meeting on Saturday evening was well attended nearly six hundred votes being cast for director—Wm. Watts being pitted against A. A. Miller, the former being elected by about a hundred majority. When it came to the next director, John R. McKinnon, who had been nominated against C. N. Lindell and Ole A. Hagen, withdrew in favor of Hagen. Mr. Lindell was elected on a less vote than the first as the defeat of Mr. Miller practically settled the question at issue, which was the retention of Prof. Moore. Never before in the city of Crookston was so much interest manifested in a school meeting and never was such a big vote polled. The vote of last Saturday evening means the retention of Prof. Moore for two years yet if he chooses to stay.

A Merited Promotion.

W. W. Fegan, who has had charge of the Great Northern railway offices here for the past years, has been promoted to the position of traveling freight agent of the Great Northern, with headquarters at Fargo. He will assume his new position on August 1st, and he and his friends here hope that he may be able to have his headquarters in Crookston.

The company has evidently recognized Mr. Fegan's qualifications for securing business, especially freight business, and has placed him in a position where he can be still more useful to the road He has always been faithful to the company's interests, genial, affable and accommodating to the public, and his popularity among the business men has done much to secure business for the road.

J. H. Griffin, who has had charge of the Argyle station for the last 12 years, will succeed Mr. Fegan.

Death of Mrs. H. E. Johnston.

Mrs. Hattie E. Johnston died at Tacoma, Washington, on July 23rd. She had been a resident of this place six years, but her health failing she went back last November to the Pacific Coast, hoping the milder climate would be beneficial. The complication of diseases from which she was suffering, however, had too firm a hold upon her system and she grew steadily worse. Mrs. Johnston was born in Stowe, Vermont, June 23rd, 1832, and was sixty-two years of age. Hers has been an unselfish Christian life, being as near an instance of the Golden Rule fully lived up to as mortal ever attains. Her name is still on the membership roll of the Congregational church of this city, and she endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Whipple, and her sister, Mrs. Alida Newton, are old residents of South Crookston.

Marais Items.

Rain needed badly.

Weather too hot for comfort.

Crops pleasing too rapidly.

Wm. Gunnes, of the Keystone farm, drove to the Marais on Sunday.

Farmers are beginning to cut wild hay, which is very thin.

Miss Cora Nesbit returned home on Friday from a visit with relatives at Halstad.

Mr. J. Cox, of Grand Forks, a McCormick expert, was among the farmers last week fixing binders.

Mr. Jarvis threshed his barley on Wednesday and Thursday.

Wm. Miller, employed on D. Ferguson's farm, received very severe injuries while hitching horses on a binder Saturday. One horse commenced kicking and scared the rest. Mr. Miller while in the act of catching them stumbled and fell, the bull-wheel passing over him. he was also badly cut by the guards in many places.

A dance was given in the warehouse adjoining Mr. Skinner's on Wednesday evening.

Thos. Nesbit, accompanied by J. Lee, Jr., drove to Warren on Monday, on a visit.

Eddie Olson, of Fisher, painted the floors of Jas. McDonald's house the fore part of the week.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date of Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Durand, Druggist.

Russian Thistle or Russian Tumble Weed.

Russian thistle or Russian Tumble Weed is the object of Bulletin No. 33 just issued by the Minnesota Experiment Station, St. Anthony Park. After discussing the distribution of the weed throughout the

THE FACE OF ROSENTEL.

CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.

Author of "The Mystery of the Bell Tower," "Rosentel's Ward," "The Point of a Needle," etc., etc.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER XVI.

THE WIDOW FORSYTHE.

Maxey, gravo and doubtful, looked at his sister.

"You can't imagino what Lamar wants to do now?"

"No? What is it?"

"He wants to bring his—that Mrs. Forsythe here to call."

"Mrs. Forsythe call? Impossible!"

"No, it is not impossible. It is the fact. I could see that Eustace was troubled and reluctant about it. It is evidently not a pet scheme of his own."

"Surely she did not suggest it?"

"She must have done so. Mrs. Forsythe is very anxious to see your wife, is she way he puts it. I suppose it would not be out of place for me to bring her here some even ing?"

"And what did you tell him?"

"I told him—well, I suppose I did more than I ought. I ought to have had more consideration for you and him. I told him to come by all means. What else could I do under the circumstances?"

"Consideration for me!" cried Miss Maxey, reddening. "I don't know what possible consideration for me could urge you to act any differently than you did act. The Widow Forsythe whom I have heard so much about? Why, by all means let her come. Let her come, and the sooner the better! I shall be ready to receive her at her own convenience. Be very sure of that!"

And ready Miss Maxey was when the critical time approached. Maxey thought he had never seen her looking so hand some, with so much color in her cheeks. with such a sparkle in her eyes, as she sat in the front parlor under the brilliant gas jets awaiting the coming of the expected visitors she almost outshone the radiant Annette.

A roll of carriage wheels in the street below, a long and breathless pause, a ring at the doorbell of the artist's suit, which Maxey himself answered, and the visitors came.

"Mrs. Forsythe, my friend, Mr. Julius Maxey, Mrs. Maxey, Miss Ellen Maxey. What is this? You are pale, you are ill Fostelle! Some water, Julian, quick!"

Everybody was startled and alarmed Everybody except Ellen seemed more or less in danger of losing presence of mind. One moment a haughty and disdainful woman in the full bloom of health and strength bowing in a lofty way to her new acquaintances, the next a pale and tottering wreck clinging to the arm of her betrothed! The change was too sudden, too unexpected and mysterious not to be powerful in its effect.

"Thank you, Eustace," said Mrs. Forsythe in a faint voice, taking the water, which Maxey had run to bring, from the doctor's hand. She swallowed a little of the cooling liquid and declared that she felt better. Nevertheless she sank down upon the sofa, whither the physician had led her, faint and helpless.

Lamar bent over her with some solicitude, but more wonder.

"Fostelle, are you in pain?"

"Not at all, Eustace. It is only a little faintness that will soon go away."

He took her hand in his, rested upon the massive gold ornament that encircled her wrist, placed his finger upon her pulse and listened into her face searchingly.

"Shall we take you back to the carriage? Don't you think it would be better to go home at once?"

Mrs. Forsythe was rapidly recovering her color. As Lamar spoke her glance wandered in the direction of the artist's sister, who stood by herself, silent and composed, while all the rest were full of anxiety. A sudden gleam of the eyes and compression of lips followed that glance. Then she said in a voice which, though it trembled slightly, was perfectly clear and audible to everybody:

"No, I will stay. This is only momentary. Don't you see that it has left me? Sit here beside me, Eustace, dear. Pray do not stand any more on my account, Mrs. Maxey. Give yourself no more alarm about me. In a few moments I shall be quite restored."

At this everybody sat down. The unusual came to an end, and the conventional "call" began. Mrs. Forsythe led her word. In five minutes there was no trace of her late indisposition. Ellen Maxey saw, with unwilling admiration for her tact and management, the part that she had decided to play with regard to herself. By no word or look, other than that which the first shock of meeting had drawn on a matter of vital importance to herself and others interested. First of all, said he, 'I want to know if you can tell the cause or the age of a scar on the human body?' To so very vague and general a question I told him I certainly could, give him no satisfactory answer. 'Very well,' said he, 'I will postpone my question until after I have presented my case. I want you to get into my carriage. I will then take you to a place where there is a scar which I wish to have examined. I shall introduce you under a false name, and it is not to be known that you are a physician. All you have to do is to assent to everything 'I say, and when I show you the scar scrutinize it as closely as you can. Afterward I shall ask you for your opinion.

"'I will tell you,' he went on, 'that this is a most important case, and that you are only one of several prominent physicians whose opinions are to be asked. We wish and intend to make this matter as much of a certainty and to have it partake as little of the nature of guesswork as medical science will permit. I do not want to conceal anything from you, however. There is a bare possibility that at some time or other you may be called upon as an expert to repeat the opinion which you shall give me in court. If so, we shall see that you are amply recompensed for any loss of time or interference with your business that such a necessity would occasion. And in view of this possibility I wish you to recollect, just how this matter was presented by me to you, and that so far from endeavoring to control your opinion I have not even told you whether it would be for our interest to find this scar to be old or recent'—Why, what is the trouble, Fostelle? You are pale. Is your faintness coming on again?"

With a sudden effort Mrs. Forsythe overcame the emotion which had made itself so dangerously apparent in her countenance. She forced a smile, and with admirable presence of mind made haste to turn the apprehensive glances of everybody from herself by requesting Lamar to go on.

"Oh, no, Eustace; you're wrong this time, at any rate. I never felt better in my life. Go on, I pray you; I am so interested!"

The physician, almost forced to disbelieve his own eyes, eventually complied with this request.

"'After this preliminary,' he continued, "I got into a closed carriage with my antagonistical friend and was driven to a certain place, where I was ushered into the presence of as pretty a young lady as you often have an opportunity to look at."

"A pretty young lady?" exclaimed Maxey. "You are doing very well, Lamar. Proceed. Don't spare the details."

Everybody laughed, even Mrs. Forsythe, but Ellen, who was watching her with sharp eyes, saw that a new and secret terror was coming over her as the doctor went on. At his last words her hand trembled visibly. Nevertheless she only raised a handkerchief to her lips and did not speak.

Lamar continued: "'Well,' said my friend, the lawyer, to the young lady, 'here is Mr. So-and-so, of whom I told you. He was an old friend of your father's.' He ought to know you very well. You won't object to his examining you, I suppose?' The young woman laughed, as I thought, a little nervously and said: 'Oh, no, not at all. I have no objection. He may inspect as much as he pleases.' Rather more bold and free than I should have liked, but still not offensive. 'Dark hair, you see,' said the lawyer. 'Isn't that right?' 'Oh, yes,' said I, 'quite right.' 'And black eyes. Good again, isn't it?' 'Oh, yes,' said I, 'perfectly good.' And so he went on, making a sort of inventory of her distinctive points, much as though she had been a horse which he was going to sell me. And finally you can't guess what happened."

They all gave it up without trying.

"Well," said Dr. Lamar, "finally the lawyer persuaded the girl to pull off her stocking and show me her left foot."

Mr. and Mrs. Maxey were so intent on what the physician was saying that they did not observe Mrs. Forsythe, but Ellen saw that she looked really ill, and to the minute described a scene of searching, suspicious glance into her own eyes.

"He made her show me her foot," said the physician, "and then I saw that one of the toes was missing. Here was the scar about which he had so mysteriously hinted. Well, that is all, when we were out of the place once more, 'was it old or recent?' 'I am sure I don't know how to answer that,' I said, with a laugh. 'Will you tell me this? Is it 18 years old?' Fostelle, you are ill. It is useless for you to deny it. You look as though you had seen a ghost. Your face is pale. Your hands tremble. I am afraid you are going to be sick. We had better go at once."

She looked at Ellen with an expression of unspeakable rage.

"No," cried out Mrs. Forsythe in a husky voice; "don't stop your story at such an interesting point! you can't discount. Give your answer to the lawyer first. Old or recent, which?"

"By no possibility 18 years.' That was my answer."

Mrs. Forsythe rose up with a vehemence that startled them all. She looked at Ellen with an expression of ungovernable rage and then at the bewildered physician.

"Dr. Lamar," she cried; "has that low breed, false hearted chit of a girl there set you on to tell what you have told?"

Lamar was on his feet in an instant. "Mrs. Forsythe," he said in a terrible voice, "are you mad?"

His look overawed the strong tiger in the woman in an instant. For a minute she gazed into his face, and then her expression changed from rage to terror. Before them all she threw her face about his neck, crying out:

"Oh, Eustace, Eustace, forgive me. I don't know what I have been saying!" and fainted in unmistakable earnest.

CHAPTER XVII.

MISS MAXEY TRIES AGAIN.

The next morning two letters passed by messenger between Ballafoxe place and Dr. Eustace Lamar's office. Here they are in the order of their transmission:

MY DEAR FRIEND—I have a request to make to you which you may think strange and extraordinary—the more so, perhaps, because I cannot explain to you now the reasons why I make it. I do not know that you will feel justified in giving me the information that I desire to ask, but I can only tell you that whether you grant or refuse it it will be a matter entirely between ourselves. Nobody shall ever know that you have told me, not even my brother. In excuse for this very bold letter I can only plead the interest I have in the welfare and happiness of those very near and dear to me. I am sure Dr. Lamar will not think that it is any girlish whim on my part that sends me so to pronounce upon what I am interest he has always shown toward me. If you could tell me in the name of that lawyer of whom you spoke last night, it would aid me greatly in an almost hopeless fight I have undertaken. The truth will. Neither Julian nor Annette is in my confidence in this matter. I do this on my own individual responsibility, without the knowledge of anybody in the whole world. How is Mrs. Forsythe this morning? I trust she has fully recovered from her indispositions of last evening. Your true friend, ELLEN MAXEY.

To Dr. Eustace Lamar.

MY DEAR MISS MAXEY—I reply to your request without an instant's hesitation. The name of the lawyer is Frederick Bornstein, and his office is at 96 Pine row. I know that you will respect this confidence. All that I will ask in return is to ask you again to pour own enthusiasm, my dear girl, will always look upon me as your friend, and that you will not hesitate at any time to ask me anything that is in my power to grant. Rest assured I shall do it. Mrs. Forsythe is quite ill. She desires me to apologize for her wild words last night. She has been suffering severely from excruciating pain all the evening and said that she did not in justice to herself go to her guest and continuous self restraint. She is now asleep and I hope will awaken when she is sufficiently recovered. Yours now, as always, EUSTACE LAMAR.

In the afternoon of the same day in which Miss Maxey received this answer she donned her street garments and went out.

She walked directly to Park row, and in response to her inquiries was shown into the presence of a little gray haired old man with bright eyes, who received her with most scrupulous politeness in an inner room opening off the main office.

"Mr. Bornstein," said Ellen, coming to business without delay, "I must throw myself upon your mercy. I mean to say that my visit to you is strictly private. It is not known even to my most intimate friends."

"Give yourself no uneasiness, miss," said the old gentleman, shutting the door very carefully. "Listening to confidences is a part of my trade. These walls have no ears."

"I must further introduce myself to you, sir. I am Miss Ellen Maxey. My brother, Mr. Julius Maxey, is an artist and lives at 29 Waverley place."

"I am very pleased to know Miss Maxey. Pray, do not stand. Seat yourself, seat yourself, I entreat you."

The polite old gentleman dusted a chair with great diligence and drew it invitingly to the middle of the floor beside the green covered table.

Ellen sat down, and the lawyer followed her example, placing a chair at his office chair on the other side of the table.

"Now, my dear young lady," he obliged in a cheerful little voice, "don't be afraid to speak to me. Say whatever is in your heart to say, and say it as though you were talking to your most confidential friend."

Thus encouraged Ellen began at once.

"I know not sure, sir, that you will not be inclined to think me insane before I have done. I have no advice to ask, no information to communicate. I have simply come here to tell you some facts which have come under my own personal observation, because I believe there is no least a possibility that they may be of great interest to you. If not, I shall have done my duty and have freed my conscience."

The lawyer looked at her with a bland smile and inclined his head encouragingly.

"I have only one request to make," Miss Maxey went on; "and that is that you will never tell anybody, whatever the result of this interview may be, that I came here to see you."

The polite lawyer assured her again that her confidence should be respected.

"Then," said Ellen, "I will begin at once with what I came to say. Do you remember the sensation in the papers last December that the nameless girl who was found caught on a point of rock beneath Somerset sea road?"

"Seems to me I do recollect seeing the headlines. I am very sure I did not read the articles."

"Bridget, it was this: We found the poor child caught on a point of rock below the road, in front of the hotel at Somerset, and brought her ashore with us—my brother and myself. Her mind was gone, but an operation restored her, and she is now in my brother's house. But that does not matter. All that I thought right to do I have intrusted you is this: There was, there must have been some conspiracy to kill her for some unknown purpose. She was brought up by a most extraordinary man named Fostelle Dye, who made no pretense of being her father, but who told us he did not know her parentage."

"Leander Dye, eh? Allow me to inquire, Miss Maxey, if he is a tolerably genteel individual, who looked as though he were continually recovering from a debauch?"

"You could not have described him better, Mr. Bornstein."

"Perhaps the fact that I am going to tell you, sir, which I am about to relate to tell you, is known to you already through the papers. This poor girl without a name by reason of her misfortune has deprived of one of the toes of her left foot."

"Oh devil you say!" cried the little old gentleman, jumping up in a state of great excitement. He recovered himself most immediately. "Oh, I beg of you saying! Something about an accident? Pray go on. Don't mind me. Pray go on."

The lawyer again seated himself, but he no longer directly faced Miss Maxey, and he shaded his face with his hand.

"There is no need, sir," resumed the artist's sister, "of my entering into details until I learn whether all this has any interest for you. I will go on at once to another fact, and one which I now acknowledge for the first time. My brother having been persuaded to give up our new situation into Mr. Dye's strange relations with the girl he had brought up—his cousin, I took it upon myself to look into the matter as well as I could. One afternoon some weeks ago I availed myself of a good opportunity to do the very unladylike thing of following Mr. Dyesthrough the streets. I saw him go into the house of Mrs. Fostelle Forsythe, on Livingston street."

"Ah!" the lawyer did not say more, but he uttered this ejaculation in a short, dry, significant manner, as if he meant to say, "I thought as much!" He fixed his bright eyes keenly on Miss Maxey's face.

Ellen thought she detected distrust and suspicion in his glance.

"Yes, Mr. Bornstein, he remained in that house for some hours. As he came out, I went in. I was received by the servant for a female physician and conducted at once to a chamber on the second floor. There I found Mrs. Forsythe and a young girl about 20 years old, who looked enough like her to be her own child. This same girl I had seen Mr. Dye driving out with Mrs. Forsythe that very afternoon. She was now lying on a bed under the influence of ether. From what I saw I judged that her feet were bare, and there were spots of blood on the sheets that covered them. There was a rolled cambric bandage on some coals and the smell of scorched flesh in the room."

"The devil you say!"

The lawyer suddenly removed the hand with which he had been shading his face and struck his closed fist forcibly on the table:

"Stop, stop!" he cried in a little, sharp voice, very unlike his former urbane tones. "I'm a plain man, Miss Maxey, and an old lawyer. State your claim in plain words, plain words, Miss Maxey. I have dealt with some hundreds of similar cases in the last 14 years, and I feel entirely competent to deal with this one. This beating about the bush may do with a younger man, but it will not do with me. Tell me at once, frankly and fairly, what are your claims? That's the best way—much the best way. What are your claims? What do you know about the Forsythe case? What is your attitude and the attitude of those whom you represent? Sir, why!" a look of astonishment and utter mystification.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Bornstein," she said, "you have forgotten what I said to you when I came here—that I know nothing whatever of this matter except the facts that I have told you. I am very sure that I never in all my life heard of the Forsythe case."

The old gentleman looked at her nonplussed, but still incredulous.

"Oh, come now, come," he said in a milder tone, "that's impossible, Miss Maxey. That's quite impossible!"

"Very well, then," Ellen replied quietly. "Then the impossible is for the truth. I have told you all that I know."

"Then why should you come here?" he will tell you, sir. Almost every day since I saw that, to me, inexplicable scene in Mrs. Forsythe's chamber I have been trying to invent some theory to account for it. Last night I heard—never mind what, for I cannot tell you of it without betraying a confidence. But I heard something which seemed a possible explanation, and as your name was mentioned in connection with the mysterious affair I came to you."

"In other words, somebody told you about the new claim set up by Miss Stevenson?"

"No, sir. I never heard that name before. My information and reference only to a left foot and missing toe."

A light seemed to dawn upon the lawyer's mind.

"Oh, I see. Some doctor has talked. Very well; very well. That may be that may be. I may have to apologize to you, Miss Maxey, for my rudeness. I do not understand you. Where would you take me?"

"I would take you to call on Miss Stevenson, for the purpose of seeing whether you can identify her."

"But who is Miss Stevenson?"

"Never mind that. You will know her if you have seen her before: if not, not. Will you go?"

"I will go."

The lawyer stepped into the adjoining room and spoke to an office boy. In 10 minutes a carriage was at the door.

Miss Maxey was driven by the gray haired old gentleman to a respectable house in a quiet street. She followed him up the stairs to the second story.

Then, in a cheerful room, seated in an easy chair, her feet upon an otto man, reading a novel, was the pretty girl whom Miss Maxey had first seen in the carriage with Mrs. Forsythe six afternoon she had followed the somber Dye.

"Well," chirped the lawyer when they were in the carriage once more, "yes or no. Do you know her?"

"She is the same girl whom I saw on the bed in Mrs. Forsythe's room."

The old gentleman turned his head for the evident purpose of concealing the telltale expression of his face.

"Then I have you to your door, Miss Maxey? No! I will not enter at the beat of the street then. It will be safer perhaps. Don't thank me, Miss Maxey, The obligation is entirely on my own my side. Rest assured that you shall hear from me in time to the point before many days have passed."

A week later Miss Maxey received this letter:

MY DEAR MISS MAXEY—Yours of the twenty-third received. I have carefully examined the memoranda of the events alluded to therein, and have waited for me yesterday afternoon, and I am sorry to say I do not see my way at present in this matter. I am afraid we have before us a very serious case. So far as the interests case is concerned, I do not think I shall have great difficulty, but I fear that I shall be prevented in being brought into court. But leave it there. As for clearing up the mystery of the sea rod, the more I examine into it the less satisfactory the theory that I broached to you seems to me. I can see no way out of this labyrinth, except by the motive test and extreme measures. The failure of the one person who, if my theory were correct, would profit by the removal of the victim or that death would suffice to set up the claim which he could so easily render valid is the great and insurmountable stumbling block. Can we arrest Mr. Dye, Miss Stevenson and Mrs. Forsythe on the very much thinner evidence even as we possess? Most certainly not, though we might possibly frighten them into confessing, as I suggested. But I, who know more of the Forsythe case than you do, tell you that I am seriously doubt whether any one of those three persons is directly concerned in the matter that interests you, and it is entirely possible that it is absolutely impossible to them. Therefore I write this letter of caution you to be extremely discreet, and even that you are not warned to anybody which might betray our suspicions in this matter. Our way is to wait patiently and watch closely. But I want to say to you, as I said to you before, that there is one person who without a doubt holds the key of the whole mystery in her hands. I mean your sister-in-law. I do not know enough about the medical part of the case to know whether I do not murmur anything in the sleep. But it does seem as if all that stood between us and a most vital piece of light is her lack of memory at events during her sickness in your house. Is it not possible to stimulate that memory? Is it not possible to stimulate assault on yourself in the same house, and at least know one who was in the room? At any rate, it would do no harm to try. Question her cautiously, but carefully. I will write again in a few days. Your true friend, FREDERICK BORNSTEIN.

"Alas!" sighed Miss Maxey. "Alas, he asks for the impossible!"

[CONTINUED.]

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. NO DUCKING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELED CALF $4. $3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S $1.75 $2. BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES $3 $2.50 $2. $1.75

BEST IN THE WORLD. CAUTION. Stamped on bottom. W. L. DOUGLAS. Name and price must be stamped on each shoe. Sold by dealers everywhere. Take no substitute. Ask your dealer for them. Sold by FOXFAINE & ANGLIN.

You can save money by purchasing W. L. Douglas shoes at Because, as the largest manufacturers of advertised shoes in the world, and guarantee their value by stamping the name and price on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and the middleman's profits. Our shoes equal custom work in style, easy fitting and wearing qualities. We have them sold everywhere, and can give you the best value for the money for any other make. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, send to

First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred dollars, executed and delivered by Lindell Lumber Company, a corporation, of Polk County, Minnesota, to mortgagors, to the Northwestern Mortgage Company, a corporation, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of August, A. D. 1888, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock a. m. in book 47 of mortgages, page 500.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $500, on the 26th day of August, 1888, and the interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, and default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage in the following respects, to-wit: the non-payment of said sum of $100 and the interest upon said sum of $500 from the 26th day of August, 1893, to the date of this notice the sum of $458.33, being the sum of $100 principal and $358.33 interest upon said mortgage indebtedness, and the sum of $25 attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to foreclose said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statutes in such cases made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises, to-wit: Lots numbered three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), fifteen (15), sixteen (16), seventeen (17), eighteen (18), nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-one (21), twenty-two (22), twenty-three (23), twenty-four (24), twenty-five (25), twenty-six (26), twenty-seven (27), twenty-eight (28), twenty-nine (29), thirty (30), thirty-one (31), thirty-two (32), thirty-three (33), thirty-four (34), thirty-five (35), thirty-six (36), thirty-seven (37), thirty-eight (38), thirty-nine (39), forty (40), forty-one (41), forty-two (42), forty-three (43), forty-four (44), forty-five (45), forty-six (46), forty-seven (47), forty-eight (48), forty-nine (49), fifty (50), fifty-one (51), fifty-two (52), fifty-three (53), fifty-four (54), fifty-five (55), fifty-six (56), fifty-seven (57), fifty-eight (58), fifty-nine (59), sixty (60), sixty-one (61), sixty-two (62), sixty-three (63), sixty-four (64), sixty-five (65), sixty-six (66), sixty-seven (67), sixty-eight (68), sixty-nine (69), seventy (70), seventy-one (71), seventy-two (72), seventy-three (73), seventy-four (74), seventy-five (75), seventy-six (76), seventy-seven (77), seventy-eight (78), seventy-nine (79), eighty (80), eighty-one (81), eighty-two (82), eighty-three (83), eighty-four (84), eighty-five (85), eighty-six (86), eighty-seven (87), eighty-eight (88), eighty-nine (89), ninety (90), ninety-one (91), ninety-two (92), ninety-three (93), ninety-four (94), ninety-five (95), ninety-six (96), ninety-seven (97), ninety-eight (98), ninety-nine (99), one hundred (100), one hundred one (101), one hundred two (102), one hundred three (103), one hundred four (104), one hundred five (105), one hundred six (106), one hundred seven (107), one hundred eight (108), one hundred nine (109), one hundred ten (110), one hundred eleven (111), one hundred twelve (112), one hundred thirteen (113), one hundred fourteen (114), one hundred fifteen (115), one hundred sixteen (116), one hundred seventeen (117), one hundred eighteen (118), one hundred nineteen (119), one hundred twenty (120), one hundred twenty-one (121), one hundred twenty-two (122), one hundred twenty-three (123), one hundred twenty-four (124), one hundred twenty-five (125), one hundred twenty-six (126), one hundred twenty-seven (127), one hundred twenty-eight (128), one hundred twenty-nine (129), one hundred thirty (130), one hundred thirty-one (131), one hundred thirty-two (132), one hundred thirty-three (133), one hundred thirty-four (134), one hundred thirty-five (135), one hundred thirty-six (136), one hundred thirty-seven (137), one hundred thirty-eight (138), one hundred thirty-nine (139), one hundred forty (140), one hundred forty-one (141), one hundred forty-two (142), one hundred forty-three (143), one hundred forty-four (144), one hundred forty-five (145), one hundred forty-six (146), one hundred forty-seven (147), one hundred forty-eight (148), one hundred forty-nine (149), one hundred fifty (150), one hundred fifty-one (151), one hundred fifty-two (152), one hundred fifty-three (153), one hundred fifty-four (154), one hundred fifty-five (155), one hundred fifty-six (156), one hundred fifty-seven (157), one hundred fifty-eight (158), one hundred fifty-nine (159), one hundred sixty (160), one hundred sixty-one (161), one hundred sixty-two (162), one hundred sixty-three (163), one hundred sixty-four (164), one hundred sixty-five (165), one hundred sixty-six (166), one hundred sixty-seven (167), one hundred sixty-eight (168), one hundred sixty-nine (169), one hundred seventy (170), one hundred seventy-one (171), one hundred seventy-two (172), one hundred seventy-three (173), one hundred seventy-four (174), one hundred seventy-five (175), one hundred seventy-six (176), one hundred seventy-seven (177), one hundred seventy-eight (178), one hundred seventy-nine (179), one hundred eighty (180), one hundred eighty-one (181), one hundred eighty-two (182), one hundred eighty-three (183), one hundred eighty-four (184), one hundred eighty-five (185), one hundred eighty-six (186), one hundred eighty-seven (187), one hundred eighty-eight (188), one hundred eighty-nine (189), one hundred ninety (190), one hundred ninety-one (191), one hundred ninety-two (192), one hundred ninety-three (193), one hundred ninety-four (194), one hundred ninety-five (195), one hundred ninety-six (196), one hundred ninety-seven (197), one hundred ninety-eight (198), one hundred ninety-nine (199), one hundred two hundred (200), one hundred two hundred one (201), one hundred two hundred two (202), one hundred two hundred three (203), one hundred two hundred four (204), one hundred two hundred five (205), one hundred two hundred six (206), one hundred two hundred seven (207), one hundred two hundred eight (208), one hundred two hundred nine (209), one hundred two hundred ten (210), one hundred two hundred eleven (211), one hundred two hundred twelve (212), one hundred two hundred thirteen (213), one hundred two hundred fourteen (214), one hundred two hundred fifteen (215), one hundred two hundred sixteen (216), one hundred two hundred seventeen (217), one hundred two hundred eighteen (218), one hundred two hundred nineteen (219), one hundred two hundred twenty (220), one hundred two hundred twenty-one (221), one hundred two hundred twenty-two (222), one hundred two hundred twenty-three (223), one hundred two hundred twenty-four (224), one hundred two hundred twenty-five (225), one hundred two hundred twenty-six (226), one hundred two hundred twenty-seven (227), one hundred two hundred twenty-eight (228), one hundred two hundred twenty-nine (229), one hundred two hundred thirty (230), one hundred two hundred thirty-one (231), one hundred two hundred thirty-two (232), one hundred two hundred thirty-three (233), one hundred two hundred thirty-four (234), one hundred two hundred thirty-five (235), one hundred two hundred thirty-six (236), one hundred two hundred thirty-seven (237), one hundred two hundred thirty-eight (238), one hundred two hundred thirty-nine (239), one hundred two hundred forty (240), one hundred two hundred forty-one (241), one hundred two hundred forty-two (242), one hundred two hundred forty-three (243), one hundred two hundred forty-four (244), one hundred two hundred forty-five (245), one hundred two hundred forty-six (246), one hundred two hundred forty-seven (247), one hundred two hundred forty-eight (248), one hundred two hundred forty-nine (249), one hundred two hundred fifty (250), one hundred two hundred fifty-one (251), one hundred two hundred fifty-two (252), one hundred two hundred fifty-three (253), one hundred two hundred fifty-four (254), one hundred two hundred fifty-five (255), one hundred two hundred fifty-six (256), one hundred two hundred fifty-seven (257), one hundred two hundred fifty-eight (258), one hundred two hundred fifty-nine (259), one hundred two hundred sixty (260), one hundred two hundred sixty-one (261), one hundred two hundred sixty-two (262), one hundred two hundred sixty-three (263), one hundred two hundred sixty-four (264), one hundred two hundred sixty-five (265), one hundred two hundred sixty-six (266), one hundred two hundred sixty-seven (267), one hundred two hundred sixty-eight (268), one hundred two hundred sixty-nine (269), one hundred two hundred seventy (270), one hundred two hundred seventy-one (271), one hundred two hundred seventy-two (272), one hundred two hundred seventy-three (273), one hundred two hundred seventy-four (274), one hundred two hundred seventy-five (275), one hundred two hundred seventy-six (276), one hundred two hundred seventy-seven (277), one hundred two hundred seventy-eight (278), one hundred two hundred seventy-nine (279), one hundred two hundred eighty (280), one hundred two hundred eighty-one (281), one hundred two hundred eighty-two (282), one hundred two hundred eighty-three (283), one hundred two hundred eighty-four (284), one hundred two hundred eighty-five (285), one hundred two hundred eighty-six (286), one hundred two hundred eighty-seven (287), one hundred two hundred eighty-eight (288), one hundred two hundred eighty-nine (289), one hundred two hundred ninety (290), one hundred two hundred ninety-one (291), one hundred two hundred ninety-two (292), one hundred two hundred ninety-three (293), one hundred two hundred ninety-four (294), one hundred two hundred ninety-five (295), one hundred two hundred ninety-six (296), one hundred two hundred ninety-seven (297), one hundred two hundred ninety-eight (298), one hundred two hundred ninety-nine (299), one hundred two hundred three hundred (300), one hundred two hundred three hundred one (301), one hundred two hundred three hundred two (302), one hundred two hundred three hundred three (303), one hundred two hundred three hundred four (304), one hundred two hundred three hundred five (305), one hundred two hundred three hundred six (306), one hundred two hundred three hundred seven (307), one hundred two hundred three hundred eight (308), one hundred two hundred three hundred nine (309), one hundred two hundred three hundred ten (310), one hundred two hundred three hundred eleven (311), one hundred two hundred three hundred twelve (312), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirteen (313), one hundred two hundred three hundred fourteen (314), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifteen (315), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixteen (316), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventeen (317), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighteen (318), one hundred two hundred three hundred nineteen (319), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty (320), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-one (321), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-two (322), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-three (323), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-four (324), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-five (325), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-six (326), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-seven (327), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-eight (328), one hundred two hundred three hundred twenty-nine (329), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty (330), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-one (331), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-two (332), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-three (333), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-four (334), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-five (335), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-six (336), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-seven (337), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-eight (338), one hundred two hundred three hundred thirty-nine (339), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty (340), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-one (341), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-two (342), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-three (343), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-four (344), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-five (345), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-six (346), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-seven (347), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-eight (348), one hundred two hundred three hundred forty-nine (349), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty (350), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-one (351), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-two (352), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-three (353), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-four (354), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-five (355), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-six (356), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-seven (357), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-eight (358), one hundred two hundred three hundred fifty-nine (359), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty (360), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-one (361), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-two (362), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-three (363), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-four (364), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-five (365), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-six (366), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-seven (367), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-eight (368), one hundred two hundred three hundred sixty-nine (369), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy (370), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-one (371), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-two (372), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-three (373), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-four (374), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-five (375), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-six (376), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-seven (377), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-eight (378), one hundred two hundred three hundred seventy-nine (379), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty (380), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-one (381), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-two (382), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-three (383), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-four (384), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-five (385), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-six (386), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-seven (387), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-eight (388), one hundred two hundred three hundred eighty-nine (389), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety (390), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-one (391), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-two (392), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-three (393), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-four (394), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-five (395), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-six (396), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-seven (397), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-eight (398), one hundred two hundred three hundred ninety-nine (399), one hundred two hundred four hundred (400), one hundred two hundred four hundred one (401), one hundred two hundred four hundred two (402), one hundred two hundred four hundred three (403), one hundred two hundred four hundred four (404), one hundred two hundred four hundred five (405), one hundred two hundred four hundred six (406), one hundred two hundred four hundred seven (407), one hundred two hundred four hundred eight (408), one hundred two hundred four hundred nine (409), one hundred two hundred four hundred ten (410), one hundred two hundred four hundred eleven (411), one hundred two hundred four hundred twelve (412), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirteen (413), one hundred two hundred four hundred fourteen (414), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifteen (415), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixteen (416), one hundred two hundred four hundred seventeen (417), one hundred two hundred four hundred eighteen (418), one hundred two hundred four hundred nineteen (419), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty (420), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-one (421), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-two (422), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-three (423), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-four (424), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-five (425), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-six (426), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-seven (427), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-eight (428), one hundred two hundred four hundred twenty-nine (429), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty (430), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-one (431), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-two (432), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-three (433), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-four (434), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-five (435), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-six (436), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-seven (437), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-eight (438), one hundred two hundred four hundred thirty-nine (439), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty (440), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-one (441), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-two (442), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-three (443), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-four (444), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-five (445), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-six (446), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-seven (447), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-eight (448), one hundred two hundred four hundred forty-nine (449), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty (450), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-one (451), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-two (452), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-three (453), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-four (454), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-five (455), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-six (456), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-seven (457), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-eight (458), one hundred two hundred four hundred fifty-nine (459), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty (460), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-one (461), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-two (462), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-three (463), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-four (464), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-five (465), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-six (466), one hundred two hundred four hundred sixty-seven (467),

WORK OF CONGUESS.

Tuesday, July 17

The house passed the Bailey voluntary bankruptcy bill and devoted the remainder of the day to business reported from the judiciary committee. Only two bills, however, were disposed of, one to create an additional circuit judge for the Eighth judicial circuit, and the other making United States railroad corporations for the purpose of jurisdiction citizens of the states through which they pass or into which they go.

The senate devoted the day to the agricultural appropriation bill. Hunsbeagle's million dollar thistle exterminating amendment was incorporated.

Wednesday, July 18.

In the senate today the conference report on naval appropriation bill was presented and agreed to and the Indian bill was considered.

The house transacted no business of national importance.

Friday, July 20.

The house passed the Chinese immigration bill, providing for the inspection of immigrants at the point of embarkation.

Saturday, July 21.

Tucker's resolution proposing to amend the constitution so as to provide for election of senators by the people was adopted by the house.

The senate was not in session.

SEVEN WERE KILLED.

Serious Wreck Reported on the Texas and Pacific.

TEXARKANA, Tex., July 23.—Limited reports reach here of a serious wreck on the Texas and Pacific railroad near Queen City, Tex., in which the engineer, Express Messenger Fred Marshall, Fireman Allen and the train porter, together with three passengers, whose names are unobtainable, were killed. The wrecked train was the northbound passenger from Dallas. A relief train, boarded by Dr. J. A. Lightfoot and a sufficient corps of aids, left here for the scene of the disaster.

MINNESOTA PROHIBITIONISTS.

Fatt Ticket Named by the St. Paul Convention.

ST. PAUL, July 19.—The state convention of Prohibitionists concluded their labors by nominating the following ticket: Governor, H. S. Hilleboe; lieutenant governor, C. M. Way; secretary of state, C. O. Wingor; auditor, S. S. Johnson; treasurer, F. L. Hampson; attorney general, J. E. Childs.

Mail Car Consumed.

LA JUNTA, Colo., July 21.—A mail car on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, California express No. 3 was burned about 20 miles from this city. The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from the engine. Over 200 sacks of papers and 20 ponches of mail, all for California points were consumed.

Cousing Silver Dollars.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Mr. Preston, the director of the mint, has, by direction of the secretary of the treasury, issued orders to the mint authorities at San Francisco and New Orleans to begin at once the coinage of silver dollars and during the present month to coin up to the ordinary capacities of the mints.

Hawaiian Republic.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., July 18.—Advices received here by steamer from Honolulu show that a republic was proclaimed in the Hawaiian islands on July 4. Sanford B. Dole, the provisional president, is the first president of the new republic. When the steamer bringing the advices sailed many person had taken the oath of allegiance.

Four Persons Drowned.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 23.—A quadruple drowning occurred at Otsego lake about noon. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards and son and a hook agent whose name is unknown.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, July 23, 1894.

WHEAT—Weak and lower. No. 1 Northern, 66c; No. 2 Spring, 65c September, bic.

CORN—Steady. No. 3, 43c.

OATS—Steady. No. 2 white, 33c; No. 3, 32@32½c.

BARLEY—Steady and quiet. No. 2, 50@; sample, 123c

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

ST. PAUL, July 23 6'91.

HOGS—Market 5c higher. Range of prices, $4.35@4.70.

CATTLE—Market quiet; demand light. Prime steers, $4.00@4.75; good steers, $3.40@3.90; prime cows, $3.00@3.25; good cows, $ 2@2.40; common to fair cows, $1.50@2.50; big steal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $2.00@3.00; stockers, $1.75@2.60; feeders, $2.25@3.00; bulls, $1.25@3.00.

SHEEP—Dull.

Muttons, $2.50@3.50. lambs, $3.00@4.00; common, $1.25 @3 0

Receipts: Hogs, 2?0; cattle, 30; sheep, 100.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23 1891.

WHEAT—Close, 56c; July opening, 55½c; highest, 56½c; lowest, 54¾c; closed, 55c; September opening, 56½c; highest, 57½c; lowest, 56¼@56½c; close, 57½c. December opening, 58½c; highest, 59½c; lowest, 58c; closed, 59c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 56c; No. 1 Northern, 55c; No. 2 Northern, 54½c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, July 23, 1891.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, cash, 57c; July, 57c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 55¾c; No. 2 Northern, 54c; No. 3, 49@50c. Rejected, 47½. No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 56c.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, July 23, 1891.

CATTLE—Market firm, best grades 5@10c higher.

HOGS—Quality poor. Market active and firm; best grades a shade higher. Sales ranged Common to good light, $4.25@5.20; rough packing, $4.00@4.20; mixed, $4.90@5.30; Pigs, $4.10 4.30.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Market steady; top lambs, $4.35@4.40.

Receipts: Cattle, 11,500; hogs, 33 000; sheep, 8,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 23, 1894.

WHEAT—Steady. No. 2, cash 49¾c; September, 50½c; December, 52½c.

CORN—Higher. No. 2 cash, 43½c; July, 43c; October 42¾c.

OATS—Higher. August, 27½c; September, 27½c; July, 26½c.

PORK—Lower. July, $12.37½; September, $12.65.

SHORT RIBS—Steady. July, $6.02; September, $6.05.

A Happy Family.

The Wool Clip of Australia.

The latest figures of the Australian wool output and value for the 1893-4 season compare with former seasons as follows:

	Total output of Australasia. Bales.	Value of the season's clip.
1888-89.....	1,466,000	$108,360,000
1890-91.....	1,516,000	91,010,000
1891-92.....	1,790,000	87,180,000
1892-93.....	1,807,000	82,150,000
1893-94.....	1,857,000	82,010,000

It appears that within five seasons the entire colonial clip has increased by almost 400,000 bales, while its value has decreased by nearly $16,000,000. The average value of the wool has fallen from $74. down to less than $50 per bale within the same period. Where will the American woolgrower be without protection?

CHILD BIRTH · · · · · · MADE EASY!

"MOTHERS' FRIEND" is a scientifically prepared Liniment, every ingredient of recognized value and in constant use by the medical profession. These ingredients are combined in a manner hitherto unknown

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

WILL DO all that is claimed for it AND MORE. It Shortens Labor, Lessens Pain, Diminishes Danger to Life of Mother and Child. Book to "MOTHERS" mailed FREE, containing valuable information and voluntary testimonials.

Sent by express on receipt of price $1.00 per bottle
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Non-pull-out

is an arbitrary word used to designate the only bow (ring) which cannot be pulled off the watch.

Here's the idea

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and when the bow is pushed down to the pendant, so the bow cannot be pulled or twisted off.

It positively prevents the loss of the watch by theft, and avoids injury to it from dropping.

IT CAN ONLY BE HAD with the Rose Filled or other watch cases bearing this trade mark——

All watch dealers sell them without extra cost. A watch case you want to see is sure to be in one by the manufacturers.

KeystoneWatch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, Grand Forks and winnipeg

TO—HELENA.
BUTTE.
SPOKANE.
TACOMA.
SEATTLE.
PORTLAND

PULLMAN Sleeping Cars,
ELEGANT Dining Cars
TOURIST Sleeping Cars

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Superior. For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West 7:34 p.m.

Daily For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:05 a.m.

Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car Service.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent. N. P. R'R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.
St. Paul, Minn.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated the 1st day of January, A. D. 1892, and duly executed by Bontain and Bridget Boutain, his wife, mortgagors to Kate G. Norris, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1892, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 1 of mortgages on page 49 etc.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of two hundred eighty dollars ($280) principal and interest, besides the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25) for taxes and interest thereon necessarily paid by said mortgagee, and twenty five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, That the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: the south half (S. ½), of the north east quarter (N. E. ¼) and the south half (S. ½) of the north west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section thirty-two (32) in township one hundred fifty-three (153) north of range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, or his deputy, at the front door of the Polk County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the Twenty-Fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day.

Dated June 25th, A. D. 1894.

KATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.
C. A. IVE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[18-91]

NOTICE OF COVTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 18, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Sorenson, that Ludvig Arneson has failed to comply with law, by failure to reside upon his Homestead Entry No. 3,719, dated June 10th, 1893, upon the N. W. ¼, section 12, township 153, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Ludvig Arneson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said land except about twenty acres, and has not resided upon said land since the same, and that there is no house on the same of cuttings standing or growing thereon; said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 28th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[17-91] WM. ANGLIM, Register.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated the 1st day of January, A. D. 1892, and duly executed by Bontain and Bridget Boutain, his wife, mortgagors to L. Ellington, mortgagee, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., and duly recorded in Book 21, of mortgages on page 49, which default the power of sale became operative, and there is claimed to be due on the date of this notice, on said mortgage and the note secured thereby, the sum of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars ($548.75-100) and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover said debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statutes in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage viz: Lot number twenty-three (23) in block number one (1) of the original town of Mentor, according to the plat and survey thereof now on file and of record in the office of deeds in and for Polk county and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston in said County and State on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1894, at (10) ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred forty-eight and 75-100 dollars and interest and costs and taxes, and said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 6th, 1894.

L. ELLINGTON,
Mortgagee.
R. P. PIERCE,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [8-91].

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

First Publication July 12th, 1894.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage dated the 1st day of January, A. D. 1892, made and executed by Bontain and Bridget Boutain, his wife, mortgagors to Kate G. Norris, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1892, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 1 of mortgages on page 49 etc.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of two hundred eighty dollars ($280) principal and interest, besides the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25) for taxes and interest thereon necessarily paid by said mortgagee, and twenty five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, That the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: the south half (S. ½), of the north east quarter (N. E. ¼) and the south half (S. ½) of the north west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section thirty-two (32) in township one hundred fifty-three (153) north of range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, or his deputy, at the front door of the Polk County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the Twenty-Fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day.

Dated June 25th, A. D. 1894.

KATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.
C. A. IVE,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[18-91] Moorhead, Clay County, Minn.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage dated the 1st day of January, A. D. 1892, and duly executed by Bontain and Bridget Boutain, his wife, mortgagors to Kate G. Norris, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1892, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 21 of mortgages on page 49.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly executed and delivered to said mortgagee a certain instrument in writing assigning said mortgage and the money to become due thereon, which assignment was given to secure the payment of $1,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said assignment, with interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain coupon note and ten (10) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said assignment.

And whereas the said the

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. Outside of Polk County 25 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

Republican State Ticket.

For Governor.....KNUTE NELSON
For Lieut. Governor.....DAVID M. CLOUGH
For Auditor.....H. C. DUNN
For Treasurer.....A. T. ROBERTS
For Secretary of State.....ALBERT BERG
For Chief Justice.....CHAS. N. START
For Associate Justice.....LOREN W. COLLINS
For Clerk of Supreme Court.....DARBY HEISE

What a happy ten-party the democratic party is with its "tariff reform" ideas. It sees the rock upon which it foundered, but how to save the wreck it does not know.

The St. Paul Globe was sold by the receiver last Thursday to Chas. S. Weaver of Chicago, who represents the heirs of Norman Kittson. The Globe was founded with Kittson's money, and it was to defend the heirs that a receiver was appointed.

P. J. McGuire is contemplating writing a book the title of which will be "How it was Done." He will Hunt up plenty material and dedicate the work to Jlorrow. One of the actors will be a Chap-in Detroit who was quite conspicuous before the convention. He will Strain every nerve to get at the bottom facts and make the work complete.

The democratic house will not pass the senate tariff bill, and the result will probably be that no tariff laws will be enacted this summer. A square-toed free trade bill could hardly be worse for the country than the wishy-washy dilatory tactics of the democrats have been. And a free trade bill been passed in the states the country could have prepared itself to meet it, but the condition of things that exist, no business interest knows how to prepare for, and it is worse to far than a definite, settled policy could be.

The question that now agitates Minnesota democracy is to fuse or not to fuse with the pops. Whether is it better to suffer the ills they now endure or to flee to those they know not of, is what they don't seem able to decide. We do not imagine the leaders will relish this losing their identity, and even if they should can they deliver the goods? The way is indeed beset with difficulties and while they would like well enough to defeat the republican party, there are good and valid reasons why they should not seek to do it through fusion. The rank and file in the democratic party would not be apt to follow the lead.

The Pioneer Press is a dandy newspaper. Under a head entitled: "From the Exchanges," it publishes clippings supposed to be from some town or city referred to. In its issue of July 24th, it publishes the following nice little advertisement of our city, leaving its readers to infer that the article in question was taken from some paper in Crookston:

"Crookston: Crookston has the poorest restaurant accommodations of any city in the state of its size. No wonder the citizens of that place were organized a stock company to erect a hotel. They need one."

Every occasionally the Press sends its agent up to solicit subscribers, and at such times nothing (by way of promises) is too good for us, but the fulfillment is always sure to be a black eye—like the above sample! We should think our citizens would tumble all over one another in their efforts to subscribe for such a paper—especially when they can just as well take the Minneapolis Tribune, or Journal, or some paper that sometimes has a kind word to say about us—at any rate they never descend to such methods to get a dirty little fling at us. No Crookston paper ever originated the article in question.

Bits, Little Gems.

The senatorial question will cut a big figure in the coming state campaign. The Minneapolis Evening Journal says the two prominent candidates strongly entirely in the field are Senator Washburn and Ignatius Donnelly, and gives a pen picture of Donnelly's distinguished (?) services, by way of chin music principally, as contrasted with all that Washburn has actually accomplished for the state. Referring to the rumors regarding Merriam's candidacy the Journal says:

"To be perfectly explicit, ex-Gov. W. R. Merriam is, in the judgment of all who pay any intelligent attention to state politics, engaged in the most diligent efforts to so adjust the politics of the state that Washburn will be defeated and Gov. Nelson substituted for him in the senate. Mr. Merriam is not doing this because he loves Nelson more or Washburn less, or because of any dissatisfaction which he can point out with Washburn's record in the senate, but he is doing it because he wishes to see arrange matters in the state that, upon the expiration of Senator Davis' term, he may become a successful candidate himself. Sectional feeling and the jealousy of the country districts against the city has led to the claim that it is time for the country to have a senator again, and Mr. Merriam shows well enough that if Mr. Washburn is returned to the senate at this time, the demands of the country districts may be so strong in two years from now as to make it impossible to him, as a citizen of St. Paul, to secure an election. His shrewd political judgment, therefore, admonishes him that the proper thing for William R. Merriam to do for William R. Merriam is, if possible, to defeat Senator Nelson for Washburn, provide the country with a senator, and remove the obstacle of sectional interest from his path four years from now.

That is what the opposition to Washburn means. It is not a question of Washburn's fitness, of his fidelity, of his record, of what he has accomplished or what he can accomplish, but simply a question whether Mr. Merriam is able to so manipulate things as to gratify his own personal ambition and secure the place for himself.

It is very well understood that Gov. Nelson is not making an active campaign for the senatorship. He has assured Senator Washburn that he is not a candidate and will not take a part in the contest for the place. His prominence in that connection is due rather to Gov. Merriam's desire to use him to further his own end."

CLEVELAND ON WOOL.

The President Dislikes Woolgrowers Because There Is No Trust.

President Cleveland has a woolly record.

He expressed himself very plainly, telling the people at least the farmers and their wool in his third annual message to congress, Dec. 6, 1887. He did not commit himself so far as to say that he knew, but he thought "it may be fairly assumed that a large proportion of the sheep owned by the farmers throughout the country are found in small flocks numbering from 25 to 50."

Upon this assumption he argued that the benefit of the present tariff on wool is illusory" and proceeded to show from his point of view that it was a "burden upon the poor, the employed and unemployed, the sick and well and the young and old." He further proved to his own complete satisfaction that it was "a tax which, with relentless grasp, is fastened upon the clothing of every man, woman and child in the land." He did not state upon which part of the clothing it was fastened or whether fastened with a safety pin as well with "a relentless grasp." This was an oversight.

Senator Jones of Nevada, in his great tariff speech of 1892, took up Mr. Cleveland's sheepishness, and estimating 66 per cent as being "a large proportion" showed that we had in 1887 as many as 820,000 separate farmers who owned flocks of 35 sheep each and that there were 4,000,000 persons directly and personally interested in the wool tariff.

As President Cleveland and no free trade in wool because "a large proportion of the sheep owned by the farmers throughout the country are found in small flocks numbering from 25 to 50," the inference is that free wool would never have been thought of by him or his party if the flocks had been large ones, concentrated among few owners, or, in fact, if there had been a sheep trust, a raw wool trust or both. Such a trust could have dictated its own terms, but the unfortunate 820,000 separate farmers must be made to suffer. President Cleveland and his party are monopolists from the word go.

An Umbrella.

"Show me an umbrella," says a manufacturer, "that has holes worn in the silk about the rims at the top, while the body of the material is still intact throughout, and I will show you the owner of an umbrella who doesn't deserve to own one, if it is a good one. And show me an umbrella that has holes in along the ribs between the gores of the cloth, make them come there, and I will show you an owner who carries his umbrella more for the sake of appearances than for utility."

A wet umbrella placed handle down drips the moisture from it at the edges of the frame, and the material with which it is covered dries evenly and leaves no spot still soaked with water. If the handle is upward, the water runs down and to one spot at the top, where the strong cloth about the ring holds a good deal of it and in a comparatively short time rots the material, and it breaks out.

The man who carries his umbrella swathed in its case when it is not called into use by rain will soon find it wearing out from top to bottom.

This is because of constant friction between the case and the cloth, and no matter of how good quality it may be the holes will appear in it long before they should, and the provider of the umbrella will of course be blamed for selling inferior or damaged goods. There are many people so ignorant of the proper treatment of an umbrella that they will buy one, and if by when wet and leave it to rot and mold until the next time they want it for use.—New York World.

APPEALS TO PUBLIC.

A R. U. OFFICIALS ISSUE AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE.

Asking Them to Refrain From Riding In Pullman Cars, and Thus Lend Aid In Crushing the Palace Car Magnate.—No Surrender" Still the Cry of the Leaders.

Chicago, July 23.—Messrs. Debs, Howard, Keliher and Rogers, the American Railway union officials, have issued an address to the public, the substance of which is as follows:

It is almost universally conceded that the Pullman company, through oft repeated reductions of wages, excessive rents and many other causes, has grievously wronged its employes, and whatever may be said about the great railroad strike which resulted in consequence of such grievances, the arbitrary refusal of the Pullman company to submit to arbitration in any form, even to decide the question if there was anything to arbitrate, is proof positive that said company had no faith in the justice of its cause and fears the disclosures. that are certain to result from an honest investigation and in view of heavy losses entailed upon the country such obstinacy on the part of the Pullman company is deserving of the severest condemnation. We propose that the Pullman company shall be brought to justice and this in a way that will not necessitate a strike, with its attendant ills. We have faith in the American people; they uphold justice; they love fair play. And now in the name of justice and fair play we appeal to the great American public, to every good man and every good woman not to ride in a Pullman car until the Pullman company does justice to its employes. Let the cars run absolutely empty. No friend of labor, no friend of humanity, will in a Pullman car. Let this policy be inaugurated and we will see how long the railway companies will be bound by their contracts, as they have induced the public to believe, to haul Pullman cars.

Occupy a Seat or a Berth

We propose to continue this fight against the Pullman company through good and evil report, and ignore regard to consequences, until justice shall be done. There will be no surrender. We will use every available and lawful means to push the contest. It is requested that all papers throughout the land, favorable to labor, to justice, to humanity, copy this statement in full and keep it standing as long as people.

The address is signed by Debs, Howard, Keliher and Rogers.

OREGON'S GOVERNOR ELECT.

Judge Lord Was Born In Delaware and Served In the Union Army.

William Payne Lord, governor elect of Oregon, was born in Kent county, Del., about 53 years ago. He was educated at Dover and at Fairfield academy in Herkimer county, N. Y. He began the study of law at Dover, Del., in 1863, in the office of George P. Fisher, a member of congress and subsequently judge of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The Dover bar was celebrated for its learning at that time, and young Lord was attracted to that town from all over the peninsula.

War's alarms soon interrupted the young man's studies, and his sympathies being with the north he joined the First Delaware cavalry as a private and pointed its major. He served till the close of the war and then resumed his law studies, completing them at the Albany Law school.

In 1868 Major Lord went to Salem, Or., and there formed a law partnership with an old comrade in arms, Lieutenant Colonel Napoleon B. Knight, also a Delawarean and a gallant Union college. Major Lord prospered in his adopted state and was soon able to return east and take one of the fair daughters of Baltimore fr a bride, Miss Julia Montague, a brunette of rare beauty, well bred and highly educated. Mrs. Lord is very popular in the society of Salem and Portland and has materially assisted her husband in the attainment of his ambitions.

Mr. Lord is at present chief justice of the state of Oregon. He will succeed Sylvester Pennoyer as gov ior on Jan. 14, 1895, and for four years will draw the salary of $1,600 a year appertaining to that office.

Free Trade Dogmas In a New Dress.

The Tariff Question Up to Date.

This is the place where the laugh comes in. Is a "war thirty millions, is many years illions

We should pay to the Welshmen for furnishing tle.

Wool! Wool! American wool!
Over the ops of the sheep to pull.
Cheap suits and no credit, you never should dread it,
But don't think of raising American wool.

Trade! Trade! American trade!
All on one side when 'tis properly made.
It brings wealth beyond telling to my without selling
And largely increases American trade.

Gold! Gold! American gold!
For which trade and labor are frequently sold.
England has greed for it we have no need for it.
Empty our vaults of American gold.

Steel! Steel! American steel!
Patrons and beggars no taxes can feel.
So bring your steel axes and clear off the taxes.
We've no other use for American steel.

Cheek! cheek! American cheek!
Hear the free trader in Washington speak.
Take the world for your neighbor, and down with home labor.
Kill our home industries, show your big cheek.

—Stephen E. Hoot, M. D.

The Trim American Foot.

Several London newspapers have been entertaining their readers during the Whitsun holidays by a lively controversy over the respective size and beauty of the feet of English and American women. Some editors, in the face of overwhelming evidence, confess that English feet are out of running in such a controversy and console themselves by asserting that the feet of Englishmen are far more shapely than those of their American brothers. There have been many indignant protests against even this admission. To those deniers, when assured that they may speak incog., regretfully admit that they are unable to fit the trim American foot with any shoe ready made for the fat and flat feet of English women.

Art In a Store Mistress.

"Miss Flimsyfluff is very gloomy," said one member of the opera company to another.

"Why?"

"You see, she's really fond of her husband and hates to be divorced from him, but she feels that her art demands it."—Washington Star.

A Careful Father.

"Look here," said the parent to the schoolteacher, "I see that one of the lines in my boy's copybook is, 'Less haste, more speed.' "

"Yes."

"And here's another that reads, 'The longest way round is the shortest way home.'"

"Yes."

"Well, I want it stopped. I don't want those moldy proverbs festering around his intellect. I'm educating him for business, not the United States senate."—Washington Star.

In the Militia.

Captain—Have you ever been drilled?
Private (who had seen service)—They called it drillin, but it was borin to me.—Detroit Free Press.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences Indigestion, headache, nausea, dizziness, and vertigo indicate need of certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to accomplish, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safest, and useful aperient in pharmacy.

JUDGE LORD.

Mrs. M. A. Brockwell, Harris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is

No Better Medicine,

and have induced many to use it."

"Thirty-five years ago this spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I employed two doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being well again. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 68 years old, but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which number I have used up to this time, and I would no more be without them than I would bread."—E. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

AYER'S PILLS

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Hildegard Elisabeth Isaak, his wife, of Polk county, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of April, A. D. 1892, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., and duly recorded in book 27 of mortgages, at page 446. Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $600 and interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, and the payment of the sum of $100.00 and interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, and the performance of the conditions of one certain promissory note, bearing even date with said mortgage, and described in said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and said note to the undersigned, Thomas Bonner, trustee, by written assignment dated the 26th day of April, A. D. 1892, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 67 of mortgages, at pages 390 &c.

And whereas, default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $600, and the interest thereon since May 1, 1893, and the interest upon said principal sum at the rate of eight per cent per annum from the date of this notice the sum of $100.00, being the amount of taxes paid by said mortgagee on said premises, with interest thereon, and the sum of $13.45 taxes for the year 1894 on said premises paid by said mortgagee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereunto recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described property conveyed thereby, viz: All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, to-wit: The northwest quarter (NE¼) of section eight (8), in township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north of range forty-six (46) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey thereof, will be sold at public auction by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the courthouse, in the city of Crookston, in said county, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day to pay and satisfy the amounts which will then be due upon said mortgage and note, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00), attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid in case of foreclosure.

Dated, July 12th, 1894.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Angus O. Rogers,
Attorney for said Assignee.
G1619 Minneapolis, Minnesota. 41-7t

Republican County Convention.

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 30, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk county, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the city of Crookston, on the 2d day of August, 1894, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing 12 delegates to attend the Republican Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls, Minn., September 11th, 1894, and for the purpose of electing nine delegates to attend the Senatorial and Legislative Convention to be held at Crookston, Minn., September 15th, 1894, and also to place in nomination candidates for the following county offices:

Sheriff.
Auditor.
Treasurer.
Register of Deeds.
Clerk of the District Court.
Attorney.
Judge of Probate.
Court Commissioner.
Superintendent of Schools.
Coroner.
Surveyor.
County Commissioner for Second District.
County Commissioner for Fourth District,
and also for the purpose of selecting a new County committee.

The basis of representation will be one (1) delegate at large for each voting precinct, and one (1) delegate for each fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1892.

All citizens who believe in the principles of the Republican party, as laid down in the National and State Party Platforms, and who intend to support the Republican party and its candidates are cordially invited to attend the primaries, regardless of former party affiliations.

The several voting precincts are entitled to representation as follows:

Andover	3	3d ward	2
Angus	2	4th ward	6
Black River	2	Garfield	2
Badger	2	Garden	2
Brandsvold	3	Gentilly	2
Belgium	2	Gervais	2
Briolet	2	Grove Park	2
Bymbyville	2	Godfrey	2
City of Crookston—		Hammond	2
1st ward	5	Higdem	2
2d ward	5	Hill River	2
3d ward	4	Huntsville	4
4th ward	8	Hubbard	2
5th ward	3	Keystone	2
Columbia	3	Kertsonville	2
Crookston	3	Klug	5
Chester	2	Lambert	3
Emmerville	2	Lake Pleasant	2
Euclid	3	Lambert	2
Eden	2	Liberty	2
Fairfax	2	Lessor	2
Farley	2	Lockhart	3
Eanny	2	Lindsborg	2
Fisher	2	Neshit	2
Grand Forks	2	Nordeu	2
North	4	Norma	2
City of E. Grand Forks—		Nora	2
1st ward	2	Numedal	2
2d ward	2

Onstad	2
Parnell	2
Poplar River	2
Polk Center	2
Queen	2
Red Lake Falls—
Village	4
Township	2
Riels	2
River Falls	2
Rockshary	3
Rosine	3
Rosebud	2
Russia	2
Rhinehart	2
Sarsfield	2
Sandsville	2
Village St. Hilaire	2
Sletten	2
Sedlrum	2
Tabor	2
Terrebonne	2
Tilden	2
Tyrsil	2
Vineland	2
Winger	2
Woodside	2
Wyanlette	2

It is recommended that the primaries be held on Saturday next preceding the convention, at the most convenient time and place in each district of the precinct represented.

By order of the County Committee

W. A. ROBERTSON, Sec. P. J. McGUIRE, Chairman.

ANSWER FILED.

Attorneys For Strike Leaders Appear in Federal Court at Chicago.

Chicago, July 23.—An answer has been filed by the attorneys for the officers of the American Railway union in the contempt proceedings in the United States court, growing out of the alleged violation of the federal injunction against interference with the mails and interstate commerce. The answer, which was formulated by Attorney Gen. W. Ervin of St. Paul, and S. S. Gregory of Chicago, is very lengthy and denies in general terms the allegations in the complaint, including the sending of the telegrams in evidence. Among the matters denied is that any of the members of the A. R. U. committed any of the acts of violence complained of. This, as most of the other denials, is made "upon information and belief."

What the Defense Proposes.

The defense proposes to make its case to the supreme court of the United States in the event of an adverse decision here, and if defeated there to appeal through congress to the people. The policy of the defense will be to question the right and power of the court to issue injunctions like that obtained by the railway companies against Debs and his associates, and then impugn those who joined if the injunction be violated. It will be contended that what the court has done amounts to not given to the federal judiciary by either the constitution or law. The defense will follow closely the lines of the report of the Reuster committee of congress which investigated the injunction and contempt proceedings by Judge Jenkins.

Usurpation of Power

After the reading of the information against the prisoners by the district attorney and the hearing of the answer as read by the defendants' lawyers, Attorney Erwin moved formally that the defendants be dismissed. Mr. Erwin's motion was overruled, and counsel for the defense, and Mr. Walker for the prosecution. At the conclusion of Mr. Walker's argument court adjourned, and in the morning Attorney John S. Miller, who represents the Santa Fe, will speak for the prosecution.

MOVING UNDER GUARD.

Passenger Trains Leave Butte Without Resistance.

Butte, Mon., July 23.—Passenger trains are moving under guard of regulars on the Montana Union and Union Pacific roads. No resistance has been offered or violence threatened by strikers. The crews operating trains were brought from distant divisions of the Union Pacific.

Northern Pacific employes reported for work during the day, about 25 firemen being reinstated. President Calhoun of the local A. R. U. says the strikers have lost on account of the government's interference.

Can Return to Work.

Kansas City, July 23.—At a meeting of A. R. U. men from Argentine and vicinity held here it was mutually agreed that all strikers, excepting Santa Fe, might consider they had got permission to return to work, though the strike, it was stated, was not to be formally "called off."

In 1880 In United States had population of 3 Cities ulation over a million—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and The Northwestern Line is the best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to these cities. [10-tf]

Only 14 In United States in 1870 had population over 100,000, but in 1890, 28, and The Northwestern Line has Direct Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to a large number of these. [10-tf]

A Great Is the Stone Arch Viaduct Bridge across the Mississippi at Minneapolis, which the Northwestern Line runs 16 First Class Fast Express Trains across this bridge every day to Chicago, Duluth, Omaha and Kansas City.

Savage Used to wage war where the Indians lived in Minneapolis and St. Paul now stand. To-day these great cities are inhabited by people of culture and progress, and many travel via The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Peace Is enjoyed by Indians, but Pipe the traveler who likes comfort enjoys smoking over the Duluth Smoking Coach on the Northwestern Limited. [10-tf]

Crows From point to point is the Fly shortest distance, so when they fly from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago they follow The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Soo Sound right but they don't Soo look right to those who go through which The Northwestern Line runs between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha. [10-tf]

Debs Expects a General Strike.

Chicago, July 11.—"The action of the allied trades of this city, I am confident, to followed in other cities," said President Debs. "This is now a battle for the preservation of union principles and labor will rise en masse to help itself."

COMMITTEES IDLE.

Most of Their Work Finished For This Session of Congress.

Washington, July 11.—The committees of the house have nearly completed their work for the session. Of course the most important have entirely ceased to meet, while others hold only occasional sessions. A few matters of importance are still before committees. Foremost among these are the Pacific railroad problem, upon which the committee is exclusively engaged. Next in importance comes the banking bill, which has been given into the charge of a subcommittee and may not materialize this session. The report on the investigation of the Homestead armor plate frauds by the committee on naval affairs is yet to be made, and the labor committee is working on proposed arbitration laws. The immigration committee is expected to recommend some minor changes in those laws, and this week the members of the committee on merchant marine will vote on the McGuire bill to ameliorate the condition of seamen in the merchant service.

Alonzo J. Whiteman, formerly of Duluth, and a member of the state senate, was arrested in Detroit, Mich. He is said to be the head of a gang of forgers whose operations are extensive.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, July 18.

Baron Beyaus, the Belgian minister to France, is dead.

Joseph Hyrtle, the noted Austrian anatomist, is dead, aged 85.

Charles M. R. Leconte de Lisle, the poet and member of the French academy, is dead.

Commonwealers encamped in the vicinity of Washington are in dire straits for food.

The latest telegraphic reports received at Washington indicate that the Corean situation is substantially unchanged.

The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business Tuesday was $134,292,703, of which $64,431,542 was gold reserve.

The Illinois Steel company signed the scale for the Longview works at Milwaukee and 600 men will start to work in the morning.

The president nominated David A. Wells, Jr., of Connecticut to be second secretary of legation of the United States at London.

Thursday, July 19.

The steamer Columbia will take away $800,000 in gold from New York.

Bishop Marty has been removed from the Sioux Falls to the St. Cloud diocese by Archbishop Ireland.

The Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo strike has been settled off, and all the men at Logan, O., returned to work.

Prince Henry of Bourbon, duke of Seville, is dead. His death occurred during a voyage from the Phillipine islands to Barcelona.

The river steamers Nishegorodsets and Dobrovoletz came in collision between Perm and Kasan and the latter was sunk. Twenty-eight persons were drowned.

Wednesday's game of baseball between Philadelphia and Boston at the former place resulted in riot in which several Boston players were injured. The trouble was caused by the unsportsmanlike tactics of the Boston team.

Friday, July 20.

A bridge below Lima, Mod., on the Union Pacific was burned Thursday.

The St. Cuthlds Catholic church at Minneapolis has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $35,000.

Two hundred and eight fresh cases of cholera and 82 deaths were reported at St. Petersburg Tuesday.

The Peoples party of the Seventh Missouri congressional district have nominated G. F. Tippen of Springfield.

The Japanese government has purchased six steamships which belonged to the English line running between Liverpool and China.

The town of Somerset, Ind., was almost totally destroyed by fire. The business portion was destroyed with a large number of residences. The loss is heavy with small insurance.

At Trenton, N. J., Joseph Wallwitz was hanged for the murder of Deputy Prison Keeper J. F. Honecutt, in the state prison, Trenton, on the night of March 1, 1894.

Saturday, July 21.

The cruiser Columbia has sailed for Ensenfada, Nicaragua.

The Northern Pacific has shipped 760 cars of freight from Tacoma eastward since Monday.

A Chicago and Alton train was wrecked at the Bell Line crossing, Chicago. The mail clerk was probably fatally injured.

The miners of the Jellico, Tenn., region have returned to work in accordance with recommendations of a conference held with the operators Monday last.

Wilmore, a small town in Jassamine county, Ky., was badly damaged by a cyclone. At least a dozen people were injured, one of them fatally. The Holiness campmeeting was struck and every tent and cottage destroyed.

The French chamber of deputies has adopted the second clause of the anti-anarchist bill, providing that anarchist trials shall be before a correctional tribunal, composed of judges instead of being tried by juries.

It was stated at the White House that the president has no intention of visiting Atlantic City this season. He has contemplated visiting Mrs. Cleveland at Gray Gables as soon as public business would permit, but probably cannot go until concress adjourns.

Monday, July 23.

The strike on the Southern Pacific has been declared off unconditionally.

Rev. A. A. Armacost of Baltimore was accidentally drowned at Bathbridge, Pa.

The Christian Arbitration and Peace society began its annual convention at Asbury Park, N. J., Saturday.

W. J. Martin, a Muncie, Ind., glassworker, drank two gallons of water on a wager. He died two hours later.

Policeman Thompson of Brunswick, Ga., was murdered by a drunken negro whom he was attempting to arrest.

The Vigilant beat the Britannia by a minute and a half in the regatta on Dublin bay, notwithstanding the latter was light.

Four fresh cases of cholera are reported from Adrianople. The government has declared five days quarantine against all European arrivals.

Tuesday, July 24.

The striking railroad employes at Portland, Or., formally declared the strike off.

A death from cholera is reported from Avignon, in the department of Vancluse, France.

The town of Pontremoli, Italy, was shaken by an earthquake Sunday. No damage was done.

Storms and floods in Western India have caused much damage to the crops. Many lives have been lost.

The khedive of Egypt, Abbas II, is engaged to Emnin, youngest daughter of the late sultan, Abdul Aziz.

Illinois Twelfth district Republicans have nominated J. G. Cannon of Danville for congress by acclamation.

Governor Tillman of South Carolina has issued a proclamation declaring that the dispensary law is in force and will be enforced.

WEAKNESS OF HUMAN NATURE.

Eagerness of People to Take Undue Advantage of a Practical Joke.

"Do you remember me?" inquired the man as he quietly slipped up to the city editor's desk.

"I can't say that I do," replied the city editor, looking him over carefully.

"You remember I was in here some time ago giving policies of insurance on bunches of keys?"

"Oh, yes, I remember now. I took 'em."

"Of course. All wise men do. At the same time, if you recall it, I told you I had a great scheme for insuring umbrellas on the same plan?"

"I believe I do recall it. How did it come out?"

The man threw up his hands hopelessly.

"Well," he said, "before that week was out I had my umbrella insurance company at work, with agents all over town. The success was immediate and phenomenal. Everybody wanted to insure his umbrella. The premium was 50 cents a year. The amount to be paid to persons returning lost umbrellas was $3 —about the average price of an umbrella a man doesn't like to lose, you know. Agents turned in policies by the packet. Rain the first week. I hadn't any idea there were so many half dollars in circulation as I received at my office. Second week they kept coming, and I began to think of plans for a great building on Woodward avenue for the accommodation of the business, to be known as the Umbrella Insurance building. Third week it was still going. Fourth week it rained. Fifth week umbrellas began coming in. I didn't know there were so many umbrellas in the world.

"Sixth week it was worse, and I began to investigate. Watched the people who brought them in and got the $3. Mostly people above suspicion—to look at. Discovered they had been stealing them, always picked out one with our tag in it. Didn't know there were so many people who thought it no sin to steal an umbrella; never thought of that when I got up the company, wasn't an umbrella in the lot worth $3; didn't know so many people were cheap umbrellas; something rotten in Denmark. Just came up here from my office; string of people there reaching half way around the block waiting to get in. There isn't money enough left in the fund to buy a ferry ticket with. I've come here to see if you won't lend me that amount. I'm not going back, but I notice in the paper that Mr. Dingbat, the well known president of the Umbrella Insurance company, having been saddenly called to China, left this morning by way of Windsor and Quebec. Do I get the price of a ferry ticket? Thanks." And he went out, leaving the city editor in a condition of partial paralysis.—Detroit Free Press.

One on Joe Bailey.

Senator Perry J. Lewis tells a story on Congressman Joe Bailey, for which, however, he quotes Senator A. M. Carter of Fort Worth as authority:

"One day," said Lewis, "Carter and Joe Bailey were standing on the street when they saw approaching them a darky mounted on a frisky and spirited horse, whose fine appearance caught the fancy of Carter, who is a lover of fine horseflesh. Carter hailed the darky and remarked:

"'That's a pretty spirited animal you are riding, old man. Is he a good runner?'

"'Well, no, sah, he isn't much of a runnin hoss,' replied the rider.

"'Oh, then he is a good trotter, I suppose,' remarked Carter.

"'No, sah, he ain't no trotter neither,' said Selpha Lecanus.

"'Oh, I see,' exclaimed Carter; 'he is a No. 1 pacer.'

"'Nor, sah, dis hoss ain't no trotter, nor he ain't no pacer needer.'

"'Well, what in he fit for anyhow?' asked Carter.

"'Just ter prance aroun an look fine, hoss,' replied the darky, 'an dat's why I borrowed him from my young friend Marse Joe Bailey dar.'"—Galveston News.

Miss Russell's Fondness For Poker.

I am informed that one reason of the little rift within the Perugini lute consisted in Miss Russell's predilection for poker. This is a science to which the golden diva has devoted much study. She likes a game of poker and plays it for the stake of a dime laid down by General Schenck. Her parties for this diversion are usually composed of four or five people, each of them is a millionaire. But Miss Russell's income averages $50,000, and she can afford to play. The limit is high and the betting freely. Signor Perugini, whose salary is only $150 a week, could not sit down at such a game without losing his entire week's earnings. Consequently he was ruled out and had to solace himself with sentimental airs up stairs while his wife was winning or losing a fortune down stairs. This isolation was a source of quietude to his thoughts, and next morning he was perhaps not so cheerful a companion as a diva would wish at the breakfast table.—New York Press.

A Mistaken Idea.

She was reading over the column of marriage notices.

"I can't be true," she said, "that marriage is a lottery."

"And why not?" asked the young man with her.

"Because there is a law against advertising lotteries, and look at this," she replied, handing the paper to him.—Detroit Free Press.

A Time Killer.

Ed—What do you do to pass away the time?

Ned—Easy enough. I just give my promissory note to some one for 90 days, and the time passes quickly enough, I assure you.—London Quiver.

Something She Would Stop At.

"I don't believe that horrid Miss Bolton would stop at anything."

Bob—Did you ever try her with a soda fountain?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

Work on the Park Rapids waterworks has begun.

Johann Forger is in jail at New Ulm for horse stealing.

The tax levy for Blue Earth county this year is $5,000.

The Isanti County Press has been purchased by George A. Iselin.

The sale of the Winona and Southwestern road will take place at Winona September 8.

John Burmister, a butcher of Slayton, was chloroformed and sandbagged and robbed of $150.

A postoffice has been established at Cushman, Isanti county, with Newton J. Bray as postmaster.

The Mankato school board has recently let contracts for improvements to the amount of $5,000.

Doc Ames wants to be mayor of Minneapolis again, and announces his intention of being a candidate.

At St. Paul a stranger was acquitted of contempt of court, applauded the decision and was fined for contempt.

The new Republican state central committee has been appointed. Tams Bixby will be chairman again.

The $50 men laid off at the Chicago and Northwestern shops at Winona two weeks ago were put to work Friday on a 10-hour schedule.

Nels Sik and Nels Anderson, while hauling a load of hay to Hinckley, were caught by a forest fire and the load and wagon burned. They had a narrow escape.

The house, barn and contents, including 1,000 bushels of wheat and four horses, belonging to Samuel Brown, Jr., were destroyed by fire at St. Cloud; loss, $4,000.

A Mankato correspondent has summarized the work of extraordinary church bags by poison thus far done. The experiment has proved generally successful.

Harry Weitzel of Albany met a horrible death. His hand was caught in a corn shredding machine and the arm and body were drawn into it. He was mashed almost flat.

Fire destroyed the new market house at Minneapolis, together with several adjoining buildings. The loss was half a million. An electric light lineman was killed by touching a live wire.

The St. Paul Daily Globe was sold at auction to Charles S. Weaver on a bid of $65,000 cash. Mr. Weaver lives in Chicago and his bid was in behalf of the heirs of the late Norman W. Kittson.

The Mankato council has passed an ordinance assessing peddlers $4 a day, $12 a week, $90 for six months and $160 a year, also an ordinance allowing fire alarm wires to be strung on telephone poles.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Pendergast has received a most encouraging report from the summer schools in progress in various counties. They are successful far beyond the expectations of their promoters.

Justice Daniel Bonk is slowly improving from his recent severe illness, under treatment of a specialist, and promises to be completely restored to health and ready to resume his seat on the supreme bench in the October term.

The St. Paul Board of Water Commissioners is experiencing great difficulty on account of the unusual amount of vegetable matter in the water. The present flushing of the mains has reduced the cause of complaint, but the trouble still continues to be serious.

FLAMES AT OELWEIN, IA.

Two Men Injured, Perhaps Fatally, by a Falling Building.

OELWEIN, Ia., July 24.—A fire broke out in the lumber sheds of Cole & King and the following property was entirely destroyed: Cole & King's lumber yard, loss $10,000; Frank Kent's store building, loss $1,600; Nott Wood's grocery and saloon, loss $1,500; Oelwein bottling works, loss $1,000. The fire was of incendiary origin. James Conway and Julius Swisko were seriously, perhaps fatally, injured by a falling building.

Iowa Republicans.

DES MOINES, July 25.—Delegates to the Republican convention Wednesday, the 25th, are already coming in. Nearly all the candidates and prominent workers are represented in the lobbies. The convention will nominate candidates for state officers as follows: Governor, auditor, treasurer, attorney general, railroad commissioners, two judges of the supreme court and clerk and reporter of the supreme court.

Packing House to Reopen.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 25.—The Chicago Packing and Provision company, one of the strongest corporations in the country, has secured control of the Silberborn packing house in this city, which has been idle since the financial trouble here, and will reopen it for business. The house has a capacity of 8,500 hogs and 600 cattle a day and is the biggest institution of its kind in the city.

Tried to Wreck a Train.

FARGO, N. D., July 24.—An attempt was made to wreck No. 1 through train on the Northern Pacific just as it was pulling into Moorhead. The switch had been thrown open and locked, and the light put out. The company offers $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

Gave Up Their Charter.

CRESTON, Ia., July 24.—The local lodge of the American Railway union, numbering about 40 members, have decided to surrender their charter and dissolve, and have so notified the A. R. U officials.

SILVER AND GOLD.

Farewell, my little sweetheart,
Now fare you well and free,
I claim from you no promise,
You claim no vows from me.
The reason why?—the reason
Hight well we can uphold—
I have too much of silver,
And you've too much of gold.

A puzzle this, to worldlings,
Whose love to more they,
Who think that gold to silver
Should count as mutual prize!
But I am not a worldling,
And you're not sordid sordid
I have too much of silver,
And you've too much of gold.

Upon our heads the reason
Too plainly can be seen;
I am the winner's local slave,
You are the summer's queen.
You love the years you number,
Too many I have told;
I have too much of silver,
And you've too much of gold.

You have the rose for token,
I have my lover's sighs;
I have the sobbing vesper,
You, morning bells at chime.
I would that I were younger
(Yet you grow never old)—
Would I had less of silver,
But you no less of gold.
—Edith M. Thomas.

Senator Hill appears to be the only real Democrat in the senate.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

No, there must be others. They will show up when the scratch is reached.—New York Sun.

They are already on the scratch, suffering from the Cleveland itch.

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of 1878, of the State of Minnesota, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, we, the undersigned, hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate and the manner adopt the following articles of incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the company hereby formed shall be Red Lake Milling Co. The general nature of the business shall be the manufacture of flour, feed and meal, and the purchase and sale of wheat, coarse grains and flour, and any of the records and the buy, own and lease such land, water power, machinery, and other appurtenances as may be desirable, convenient, useful or necessary in the operation of its manufacturing business, or may buy, own, lease, and operate such elevators, warehouses and buildings as may be necessary in storing and handling its grain, flour and other products connected in the operation of the company's business, and may buy, own, lease and operate one steamer, propeller, barge or boat, and such saw mill or mills, together with all other buildings, railroad tracks, water power and machinery as may be necessary for the complete and perfect operation of the company's business in the manufacture of flour, feed, meal and such other products as are usually manufactured in flouring mills, and do all other business necessary, convenient or useful in connection therewith. The business of said corporation shall, however, be limited to the business of manufacturing the articles hereinbefore mentioned and to business incidental thereto.

The principal place for the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 19th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same shall be paid in seven times and in such installments as the board of directors may determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest bonded indebtedness or liability that said corporation shall at any one time be subject to is the sum of forty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming the said corporation are as follows, to-wit: Frank E. Cawley, Hyde, Lincoln, Minn., L. Van Hecke, Ellendale, North Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first Board of Directors are as follows, to-wit: Frank E. Cawley, Charles J. Hyde and L. Van Hecke, and the said Cawley to be the president and Charles J. Hyde shall be vice president; and L. Van Hecke shall be secretary and treasurer, and they shall hold their offices until the first annual meeting of the stockholders and until their successors are chosen and qualified.

ARTICLE VII.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and the board of directors shall have power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be deemed necessary, and shall have power to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors or in any of the offices caused by resignation, death or other cause whenever the same may occur, and to remove any officer or agent appointed by the board whenever or other cause and until their successors have been appointed and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stockholders shall be held on the second Monday of August, in each year, and the annual meeting of the directors and officers shall be held immediately after its annual meeting of the stock-holders. Special meetings may be called by the Board of Directors by a notice to be mailed seven days before the meeting to each stockholder at his last known address.

ARTICLE VIII.

The first meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the 11th day of August, 1894, at which time a board of directors shall have been elected by the stockholders and such 11th day of August, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY, [seal.]
CHARLES J. HYDE, [seal.]
L. VAN HECKE. [seal.]

Signed in presence of
H. B. CHASTEEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Morrison. }

On this 11th day of May, A. D. 1894, before me a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared Frank E. Cawley and Charles E. Hyde, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[seal] C. A. LINDBERGH,
Notary Public,
Morrison County.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Dickey. }

On this 19th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared L. Van Hecke, to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

[seal] DICKEY COUNTY, N. D.
Notary Public,
Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Department of State. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 19th day of May, A. D. 1894, at 4 o'clock P. M., and was duly recorded in Book "R-F" of Incorporations on Page 397.

F. P. BROWN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, } ss.
COUNTY OF POLK. }

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 7th day of July A. D. 1894.

JOHN ANDERSON,
Register of Deeds

Mrs. E. F. Niskern

Salt Rheum

On my hands often forced me to stop work. When I took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

the flesh had all healed and the skin had become smooth and my hands have been perfectly well since. MRS. E. F. NISKERN, Delavan, Wis.

Hood's Pills are safe, harmless, sure.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the

Saskatchewan Valley,

Address W. M. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer,

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no dif-feaence.

C. A. FISCHER.

PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Guns, Revolvers, Check-boring Barrels, Restock Guns of all kinds; also Novelty Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Mans' Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

DENTIST.

Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Hi, There!

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.

Vine Block, Broadway C OOKSTON

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital,	$100,00
Surplus,	15,500

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

GEO. C. EBERLE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim,	E. S. Chase.	F. D. Childs
Geo. G. Erskine,	Wm. A. Ritchie,	Geo. C. Eberle,
E. M. Wakefield,	Chas. E. Sawyer.	W. H. Crosby

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. On Broadway and Third street.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

G. ERSKINE.....President
L. EARLSTON.....Vice President
A. W. WARNER.....Cashier
A. P. HANSON.....Assistant Cashier

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

(First Publication Thursday, July 26th.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Frederic Desaulniers and Celinda Desaulnis, his wife, to Lucius Hall, dated October 5th, 1885, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 12th day of October, 1885, at 9 o'clock a. m. p. m. in Book "W" of mortgages, on pages 185-186.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of eleven hundred eighteen dollars ($1118), principal and interest, besides the sum of thirty-one dollars ($31) for taxes and interest thereon necessarily paid by said mortgagee, and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: The south-east quarter (S. E. 1/4) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred fifty (150) north of range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof in Polk county and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county or his deputy, at the front door of the Polk county court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 28th, A. D. 1894.

LUCIUS HALL,
Mortgagee.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Moorhead, Clay County, Minn.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

(First Publication July 19th, 1894.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Bernard Hultgren to Ole Hultgren, dated May 1st, 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of December, 1882, at 5.45 o'clock p. m., in Book "U" of mortgages, on page 53-54-55.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of four hundred and fifty-two dollars and fifty cents ($452.50) principal and interest, and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz:

The north half (N. 1/2) of the south east quarter (S. E. 1/4) and the south half (S. 1/2) of the south east quarter (S. E. 1/4) of section two (10) in township one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county or his deputy, at the front door of the Polk county court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 28th, A. D. 1894.

BERNARD F. HULST,
Mortgagee.

C. A. NYE,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Moorhead,
Clay County, Minn.

113-191

LOANS negotiated on Real Estate, Life Insurance, or any Good Security on Long Time and Reasonable Interest. Prompt attention to Collections in all parts of the United and Canada. Local and county managers wanted. Address the Empire Loan and Investment Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

GORMAN'S BIG GUNS.

THE MARYLAND SENATOR OPENS HIS BATTERIES ON CLEVELAND.

He Defends the Senate Bill and Says Cleveland and Carlisle Sanctioned the Concessions Made—Some Inside Democratic History Made Public—A Most Remarkable Scene.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Perhaps no more remarkable scene was ever witnessed in the United States senate than that which occurred there during the day, when for two and a half hours Senator Gorman, the Democratic political leader on the floor, delivered his speech against the president and in defense of the senate tariff bill.

The galleries were packed to the doors and so great was the interest in Mr. Gorman's speech that the members of the house flocked to the senate end of the Capitol, and the house, being unable to hold a quorum, adjourned.

Mr. Gorman, with a frankness that amazed those present, discussed party secrets, opened the door to party canouses and flashed his searchlight into the dark corners of party history. The president was

Assailed With Keenness and Vigor

by the leader of his party on the floor of the senate. He defended the senate tariff bill and its preparation, and charged in turn that both Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Cleveland were not only aware of the concessions made in order to procure its passage through the senate, but that Mr. Carlisle had been consulted at every step and that Mr. Cleveland had sanctioned all that was done. Mr. Gorman is a cool, easy talker, but he gives tone and gestures a dramatic effect that thrill the auditor, and he was at his best. One who was he called Senators Vest, Jones and Harris as witnesses to the truth of his statements. Then, having freed himself from all restraint, he told the inside history of the conference over the tariff bill. He even went back and

Told the Secrets of the Mills bill and the St. Louis and Chicago platforms and the demands made upon the national Democratic committee by the sugar senators in 1892. His personal attack on the president was full of the most sensational characterizations. He told how he had dared, when others had faltered, to walk with Cleveland through the "filth and slime of the campaign of 1894," how he and his colleagues had fought for tariff reform "when cowards in high places would not show their heads," how Mr. Cleveland had tried to "gibbet the senate before the eyes of the country," and said that his action must be attributed to "consuming vanity"—an action that was echoed by those who "chirped when he talked." His references to the president created so much commotion in the galleries, sometimes of approval and sometimes of disapproval, that the presiding officer was obliged to repeatedly caution them

To Preserve Better Order.

He was listened to with wrapt attention throughout his speech, a deep feeling of excitement being printed on every face. Among those who listened most earnestly was Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, who was in the diplomatic gallery. In conclusion Mr. Gorman practically warned his colleagues that, on the material points, it was the senate bill or no bill.

Mr. White of California was the only other speaker of the day. While personally in favor of free coal and free iron ore, he, too, declared it to be the part of patriotism for the Democrats to stand together for the senate bill. After he concluded the senate adjourned with the situation seemingly in as chaotic a state as ever.

Mr. Gorman Leads.

At 12:35, when the conferees report was laid before the senate, Mr. Gorman arose and began his address, speaking from carefully prepared notes. The speaker at once proceeded to detail the history of the tariff bill after it reached the senate, and the manner in which, to meet the objections and secure the support of certain disaffected Democrats, the changes had been agreed upon. He stated emphatically that during the progress of this work, Messrs. Vest and Jones had frequent conferences with Secretary Carlisle, and often times with Mr. Cleveland himself. No material sacrifice of principle was made. The result was, as he declared on a previous occasion, a Democratic measure which, in his opinion, leaned towards the radical tariff reform sentiment, and which he thought would receive the support of a Democratic house, senate and president. He believed the bill to be inherently now, that he had authority for that statement. He charged directly that everyone of the senate amendments had been seen by Secretary Carlisle and scanned by him before they were agreed upon. He drew from his desk and began to read an interview with Secretary Carlisle on April 30, in which the secretary of the treasury gave the bill his sweeping endorsement.

Softened the Hard Places.

That interview, said Mr. Gorman, softened the hard places for those who were trying to to harmonize differences. It did much to aid the Democrats of the senate in getting together. He did not believe that the Democrats would ever have gotten together had it not been for that interview. The secretary of the treasury naturally spoke in a great measure for the president in matters relating to his department. On the morning following the publication of the interview, the papers announced that the president was in entire accord with his great secretary of the treasury. If that was not true, then the 42 Democratic senators on this side of the chamber had been misled. As a compromise Mr. Gorman asserted that the bill as completed was satisfactory to not a single, solitary human being in all its details, but as a whole the structure presented as scanned by the secretary of the treasury and the president, as looked at by us was acceptable as the Best Bill That Could Be Passed.

There was no suggestion anywhere, either from the president or the secretary of the treasury, that the bill as modified was a violation of the Democratic principles. With dramatic emphasis, Mr. Gorman called upon Senators Vest, Jones and Voorhees to bear testimony as to whether his statements had varied a hair's breadth from the truth.

"Let the people have the truth," said he, as he paused.

Mr. Vest arose. He began by saying that he had not himself seen the president since the repeal of the Sherman law last summer, but with the secretary of the treasury he had frequent conversations. Mr. Carlisle had repeatedly and distinctly stated to him that the Greatest Possible Calamity

that could happen would be the failure of any bill. He had distinctly stated to Him that no differences in rates should be allowed to stand in the way of the consummation of some change of tariff reform. The bill did not suit him, Vest. He knew it must have the support of the administration to pass it, and he asked Jones if the president would throw the weight of his influence in favor of it. Mr. Jones reported that the president had said to him:

"I am willing to do anything to pass the bill through congress."

"If we go into this fight the president must be behind us," Mr. Vest had said.

Mr. Jones replied that he was. "Thereupon," Mr. Vest said, "I gave up my personal opinions and resolved to support it. The president's letter was the first intimation to me that he was against us."

Mr. Jones Explains.

When Mr. Vest sat down, Mr. Jones of Arkansas, who was in charge of the bill in the senate, took the floor. He was pale as death. He realized, he said, when the bill came to the senate, that it could not be passed in its form then, and he had gone to work, with infinite labor and pains, to interview every Democratic senator. He ascertained every objection they held, and had carefully noted them. He had talked with Mr. Carlisle about his plan, and the president endorsed it as wise. Then he, Jones, prepared the amendments, after the consultation with Mr. Carlisle. The secretary was thoroughly informed as to the situation, said Mr. Jones, had said to him: "I will not go one step farther if the Democratic party is not behind me."

"I requested him to explain everything to the president," Mr. Jones said. "I saw the president. He was there Mr. Carlisle had explained all, and he, Cleveland, said he thought we were going the wise and proper thing. Among the amendments thus prepared were those placing coal and iron on the dutiable list. Until I read Mr. Cleveland's letter to Mr. Wilson," said Mr. Jones, emphatically, "I believed he cordially approved of our action. I have expressed to him the opinion that it must either be this modified bill or none at all, and he replied that in the alternative he favored the modified measure."

Scored the President.

Mr. Gorman here resumed, with one of the most sensational references of the day to President Cleveland. The senator spoke of the deep regret he was compelled to ask the public testimony of these senators. But the time had come to speak. The limit of endurance had been reached. The senate had been trad uced. An attempt had been made to "try and gibbet it before the country." These charges had been "fondly made from distinguished sources," that they must be met and refuted. The charges were echoed by men "who chirped when he talked." These senators when summoned had fought for tariff reform when "cowards in high places would not show their hands."

Mr. Gorman said he could conceive no reason for the remarkable notice that had been taken, unless perhaps the one responsible for it was "consumed by vanity" in having the country regard himself as the author of all that was right in tariff reform. As Mr. Gorman made each reference to the president, there was a commotion in the galleries, which compelled the presiding officer to interpose earnest cautions against further demonstrations.

At the conclusion of Senator Gorman's speech Senator White spoke briefly on the merits of the senate bill and at 3:36 the senate adjourned.

LEADERS IN CONFERENCE.

Democratic Senators Discuss the Tariff Situation.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Immediately after the adjournment of the senate there was a conference of the Democratic leaders of that body in the room of the committee on appropriations. Among those present were Senators Gorman, Brice, Cockrell, Harris, Ransom and Blackburn, comprising most of the Democratic steering committee. The conferees met a long time and when they departed no conclusion had been reached as to the best way out of the present delicate position in which the majority found themselves. The proposition for a caucus was discussed but was not decided.

SITUATION GRAVE.

War Between China and Japan Inevitable. Not Yet Declared.

LONDON, July 23.—Dispatches were received at the Chinese legation from Tien-Tsin during the day showing that war between China and Japan had not yet been declared, but it is admitted the situation is most grave. The opinion expressed in official circles here is that war is inevitable. The Chinese and Japanese ministers had long and separate conferences at the foreign office with the officials of the government.

THE TOILING MASSES.

They Are to Be Gathered Under One Banner, If Plans of a New Organization Succeed.

THE AMERICAN LABOR UNION

Launched Upon the Troubled Seas of the Labor World—Debs Behind It, It Is Said.

CHICAGO, July 23.—A new labor union has been launched forth on the troubled seas of the labor world, which, its leaders say, will gather under one banner the whole army of the toiling masses. The new American Labor union held a meeting in the ante-room of Corcoran's hall. The directors claim it will take the place of the Knights of Labor. The declaration of principles, say the directors, have taken into consideration many obstacles that will be encountered.

First will be the assailing of the characters of the prime movers by the so called labor leaders, caused by the fear of our disrupting older organizations and their leaders pull with politicians, corporations and shysters of every description.

Second will be the arduous task of convincing the masses that it is necessary to their welfare that the welfare that the so called labor leaders are too numerous and are thriving on the hard earned wages of the toiling masses, and that the time has arrived when of labor is sufficient to successfully give labor's voice a hearing in all things pertaining to its welfare. The American Labor Union believes in organization on the principle of every member being a leader, and every member participating in the settlement of the wage-worker's problems. It believes the 200 or more labor leaders are a source of, widespread dissatisfaction among organized workmen. The A. L. U. offers a remedy for these evils by coming into the world with one universal brotherhood of workingmen.

Only One Organization

One general head, shorn of all power to precipitate the order into any conflict or strike, the grievance of any one member will be the concern of the whole organization.

Trades and classes have frequently been fighting corporations single handed, to be overwhelmingly defeated in nearly every instance. The A. L. U. protects its members to its full strength, sacrificing every member to meet combined capital with combined labor, under one grand brotherhood of man. Its motto is: "The cause of one is the cause of all."

Officers of the New Organization.

The officers of the union are: W. C. Walsh, president; W. H. Brown, vice president; M. A. Cogley, secretary and treasurer.

The officers of the new organization say organizers will be put in the field immediately, and the union extended throughout the country.

Resolutions were adopted pledging financial support to L. W. Rogers and pledging co-operation to the American Railway union.

J. S. McFadden, a personal friend of Debs, stated to a reporter in Kansas City, that Debs and his co-workers are behind the American Labor union.

"It is the intention," he said, "to include in this organization all labor of whatever kind and nature under the head of railroading. It will be affiliated with the A. R. U. and doubtless be controlled by the same officials."

MOVING UNDER GUARD.

Passenger Trains Leave Butte Without Hindrance.

BUTTE, Mon., July 25.—Passenger trains are moving under guard of regulars on the Montana Union and Union Pacific roads. No resistance has been offered or violence threatened by strikers. The crews operating trains were brought from distant divisions of the Union Pacific.

Northern Pacific employes reported for work during the day, about 25 firemen being reinstated. President Calderhead of the local A. R. U. says the strikers have lost on account of the government's interference.

Can Return to Work.

KANSAS CITY, July 25.—At a meeting of A. R. U. men from Argentine and vicinity held here it was mutually agreed that all strikers, excepting Gants Fe men, might consider they had permission to return to work, though the strike, it was stated, was not to be considered "called off."

A. R. U. Murder Trials.

WOODLAND, Cal., July 25.—The preliminary examination of the five A. R. U. men charged with murder and train wrecking is still dragging along. The day's proceedings were devoid of exciting incidents. Nearly all the testimony taken tended to identify the prisoner Worden as the man who conducted the party of supposed train wreckers to the trestle, just west of Sacramento, where the disaster occurred.

An Organizer Jailed.

IRONWOOD, Mich., July 25.—Organizer A. M. Knuton, who came here to manage the strike of the Gogebic mine employes, was arrested on a charge slandering him with slander. Bail was fixed at $6,000, which he was unable to procure, and he was taken to jail. All the mines are again working with small forces.

The War Reported Off.

LONDON, July 25.—A private dispatch, the authenticity of which has not been established, says that Japanese gunboats have opened fire upon a Corean port.

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing speaks so strongly to a mother's heart as the daughter. Her building into womanhood, fulfilling her every hope. Our daughter, Blanche, now 18 years of age, has been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had it in its worst form. We had suspired physicians, but all seemed to benefit them them. The first of last August we weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervina she now weighs 96 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone she attends school regularly, and studies with comparative ease. We have recovered complete use of her arm, her spirits are buoyant, and no words can express our gratitude for the health Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my mother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would continue to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the first dose gave her immediate relief.—R. R. Wilcox, Bellefontaine, O.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

FOR EASE AND COMFORT

Our Summer Outing Suits take the palm. That's why so many buyers are taking them for the season which will soon be upon us. Anticipate its advent by a judicious purchase from our stock of outing suits which will make you and Comfort a close companions as the Siamese twins. It's just as easy to be easy as it is to be otherwise, and in one of our outing suits, it's a trifle easier, and certainly a hundred times pleasanter and more comfortable.

Our stock of

Ready-made Clothing

And Gents' Furnishing Goods IS COMPLETE,

And our Prices the Lowest.

Boston One-Price Clothing House,

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,

PROPRIETORS.

G. G. HENAULT,

PRACTICAL DENTIST

Office over Times Office,

SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON.

All work in my line promptly and skilfully performed.

NELS SWANSON

ARTESIAN WELL CONTRACTOR.

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.

Wells Drilled or Bored.

Will work by the job, by the foot or by the day.

Crookston, - Minn

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

$1.50

PER DOZEN

FOR THE TRES CABINET

Photographs

AT

P. E. Lynne's Gallery,

Robert Street Crookston.

THE VALLEY

Roller Mills

CROOKSTON, MINN.,

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS,

MADE FROM SELECTED RED —RIVER HARD WHEAT.—

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS

Always on hand.

BROWN,

The Cigar Man,

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

Manufactory On Second St.

Opposite Reckitt Block.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,

Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

Proprietor of Main Street

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

MRS. ROSE'S

RESTAURANT

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON.

Everything New, Neat and Nice. Fine Lunch Counter in connection.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT

TRY US.

H. STEENERSON,

Attorney-at-Law,

Crookston, Minnesota.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

CITY BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZOR HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and calmot bring it, send it to me with 50 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Reckitt Bloc... - Crookston. Minn

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office in Jerome's Addition.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by Lyndon Greenly Land Company, a corporation, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 12th day of April, A. D. 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 12th day of May, A. D. 1893, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on pages 548-549.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $3,000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of eight (8) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by an instrument in writing, dated the 12th day of June, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on pages 490-491.

And whereas there is now due and payable upon said mortgage and note the sum of $3,000, principal, and $1,350 interest thereon since the 12th day of April, A. D. 1893, and the sum of $300 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereby recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following property, thereby described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter (NE¼) of section thirty-two (32), in township one hundred forty-seven (147) north of range forty-one (41), containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage, including the taxes, as aforesaid, with interest thereon, together with the costs, the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.) dollars, attorney's fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid in case foreclosure.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Attorney for Assignee.
G1308 Minneapolis, Minn. 38-71

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by Lyndon Greenly Land Company, a corporation, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 8th day of February, A. D. 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on page 151.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $750, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by an instrument in writing, dated the 12th day of May, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on page 490.

And whereas there is now due and payable upon said mortgage and note the sum of $750, principal and $337.50 interest thereon since the 8th day of February, A. D. 1893, and the sum of $5.04 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereby recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following property, thereby described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter (NE¼) of section thirty-two (32), in township one hundred forty-seven (147) north of range forty-one (41), containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage, including the taxes, as aforesaid, with interest thereon, together with the costs, the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.) dollars, attorney's fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid in case foreclosure.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Attorney for Assignee.
G1309 Minneapolis, Minn. 44-71

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by Lyndon Greenly Land Company, a corporation, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 8th day of February, A. D. 1893, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on page 151.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $750, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by an instrument in writing, dated the 12th day of May, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in Book 67 of mortgages, on page 490.

And whereas there is now due and payable upon said mortgage and note the sum of $750, principal and $337.50 interest thereon since the 8th day of February, A. D. 1893, and the sum of $5.04 taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and thereby recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following property, thereby described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter (NE¼) of section thirty-two (32), in township one hundred forty-seven (147) north of range forty-one (41), containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage, including the taxes, as aforesaid, with interest thereon, together with the costs, the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.) dollars, attorney's fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid in case foreclosure.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

INDUSTRIAL TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
Attorney for Assignee.
G1310 Minneapolis, Minn. 43-71

H. DUNKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BERNHARDT, Business Manager

CLEVELAND HOUSE

CROOKSTON, MINN.

THIS HOTEL has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Refurnished. Only first class Dollar a Day House in the city. Good Sample Room in connection.

No. 333 Main street, Crookston. Minn.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TRAVELER.

Frank Vincent's Mileage Is Equivalent to Fourteen Journeys Around the Globe.

Frank Vincent, the well known traveler, who has just returned to New York from a 65,000 mile trip, has been making the acquaintance of different parts of the earth for 12 years, during which he has covered altogether about 360,000 miles, a distance equivalent to about 14 journeys around the world at the equator.

FRANK VINCENT.

He has thus won the right to be called the great American traveler. When Mr. Vincent left Yale about a quarter of a century ago, he found himself possessed of a large fortune and a great ambition to hobnob with the strange peoples of the earth. He believed that a man should thoroughly know his own country before he began on the others, and accordingly he made a two years' tour of the United States, visiting the capital of every state.

Then he descended upon South America, mastered the, countries and their customs from Venezuela to Terre del Fuego and wrote a book describing the interesting things he saw. Europe was his next geographical feast, and for desert he took in nearly all of Asia. When he had sealed the great wall of China, he made thousand mile excursions through different parts of the great empire. From China he traveled to India, and from India to Australia.

Three years ago Mr. Vincent planned a 65,000 mile trip as nonchalantly as most men would plan a visit to a neighboring city. It included a jaunt through central Asia, the thorough exploration of the island of Madagascar, which is as large as France, and a trip entirely around the great continent of Africa. In the course of his African trip he frequently left the coast line he was following and made long journeys to the interior. He traversed Stanley's trail up the Congo, visited Lake Hangweole, where Livingstone died, inspected the gold mines of the Transvaal and the diamond fields of Kimberley, looked over Dahomey, the land of the warlike Amazons, visited Liberia and spent seven months in the Congo Free State.

He says German Africa is a hopeless country. The natives are cowed by brutal rule, and a headload of captives en route to the unsalubrious market is a common sight on the Congo. Mr. Vincent is 6 feet 2 inches tall and is so confident of his ability to look out for himself that he always travels unaccompanied by other white men.

THE WHEEL IN WAR.

A Boston Inventor Attaches Something Resembling a Gatling Gun to His Bicycle.

No less an authority than General Nelson A. Miles, the world famous Indian fighter and veteran of the late war, has testified to the practical value of the bicycle for signal service work and scouting in time of hostilities. Further than this, nearly every army of note in the world has a bicycle corps for its work, and not a few companies, equipped in "heavy marching order" have made long runs across country in much less time than the same distance could have been covered on horseback. Inventer B. D. Stevens of Boston has given the wheel even a more terrible aspect. He has invented a sort of gatling gun attachment for a bicycle which is designed to transform the inoffensive, silent steed into a machine gun. The entire equipment is simple and does not add five pounds to the weight of the wheel. A metal jacket the shape of a large pistol is attached to the front of the wheel and when the rear wheel of the machiner goes forth with warlike intent he can slip the pistol into his jacket, connect it with the battery carried by a series of rods and in a few moments find himself ready to give an enemy a very warm reception. The pistol carries 19 cartridges, and eight more may be fed into it automatically from the magazine above.

BICYCLE WITH AUTOMATIC FIRING REVOLVER.

The soldier wheelman thus has 14 shots at his disposal, and, what is more important, the apparatus is so arranged that by pressing a lever on the handle bar the revolver is fired automatically by the revolving of the front wheel of the bicycle. If the rider continues to press the lever, the entire 14 shots may be fired, but by releasing it at a given time he may fire only as many as he desires. Another peculiarity of the attachment is the fact that the pistol has an arc of fire as great as the distance the handle bars will turn to right or left. If the scout is brought to bay and forced to dismount, he may either stand beside his wheel and fire the pistol by hand or attach the weapon to a light shoulder piece carried on the wheel and use it as if it were a rifle. General Miles has seen the apparatus and speaks very highly of it. The inventor is 61 years of age. His best known work thus far is the Stevens dynamite shell, which the government has successfully tested.

Forestry In Switzerland.

Stringent efforts are being made to reforest Switzerland. More than 40,000,000 young trees, it is officially reported, have been planted in that country in the last seven years.

TARIFF LOW, EXPORTS LOW.

Contrary to Free Trade Belief, Protection Increases Exports.

It is a free trade theory that we do not and cannot export manufactured goods' unless we have free trade, the statistics of the treasury department to the contrary notwithstanding. The London Iron and Coal Trades Review has the following to say upon the subject:

"There are many good people who will not admit that there is any real likelihood of the United States becoming in the near future a rival to our own country in neutral markets. They argue that the high rate of wages paid in the United States and the great distances that generally separate the raw materials from the finished product will always stand in the way of successful competition with England, where the rate of wages is generally much less, where the materials are usually found in close juxtaposition to each other and to shipping facilities, and where we have the command of a larger supply of highly skilled labor."

The Review then goes on to prove the fallacy of this free trade belief both here and in England, showing that in 1860 the total value of our exports of American manufactured goods amounted to $40,000,000, or 12½ per cent of the total exports of this country; that in 1880 we shipped abroad $105,000,000 worth of American manufactured goods, and that in 1891 such shipments had risen to $169,000,000, or about 19½ per cent of our total exports of all kinds of commodities.

During the period under review our tariff was lowest in 1860, when our exports of manufactured goods were lowest. The tariff was highest in 1891, when our exports of manufactured goods were highest and when wages were also highest. It is gratifying to find a London authority acknowledging that protection has been the means of increasing our export trade in American manufactured goods, while it has also increased the rate of wages paid to American labor.

"My Measure."

A measure has been produced on the floor suggested in my message.—President Cleveland's address to Congress, Dec. 4, 1893.

I beg the cone of protection,
The greatest, the best on earth.
A blessing it's been to this nation
Until it gave rise to the birth
Of "my measure."

Work is abundance it gave us,
Good pay and steady living too.
But Grover then came to amuse us
With all that he threatened to do
With "my measure."

We were happy, contented and rich,
But he thought that we wanted "a change,"
So he plunged us all into the ditch
Of starvation, and there let us range
On "my measure."

It isn't good eating, we find,
And no work rolls up pretty poor pay.
But even if once we were blind
We'll reckon up some other day
By our measure.

Our homes now are desolate, bare,
Our furniture's gone into pawn.
But Wilson and Gorman declare,
Since they've labored and brought forth and borne
"My measure."

Such robbery entirely to rob,
While living in comfort and wealth,
Perhaps history may not record a job,
Should have a regard for their health,
We've their measure.

—C. B. Pockland.

IVORY SOAP
99⅔ 100% PURE
FOR CLOTHES.
THE FOOTH & GAMBLE CO. CINTI.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.
GRADUATE
McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.
Office in McKinnon Block.

NEW LIFE
BEFORE AFTER

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee, by authorized agents only, to cure Nervousness, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of Alcohol or Tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain resulting in Insanity, Loss of Power, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Lack of Confidence, Nervous Dyspepsia, Impaired Memory, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power of Either Sex, caused by over-exertion, Youthful Indiscretion, or the use of Tobacco, Opium or Liquor, which leads to Consumption, Insanity and Death. By mail, one package $1, six packages $5, with written guarantee to cure or refund money. WEST'S NERVE AND BRAIN TREATMENT is a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Wasting Coughs, Sore Throat. Promises to take Small size (Consumption) pill, one size, now 50c; old size, now 25c. GUARANTEES issued only by

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

VIGORINE
WHAT VIGORINE DID
BEFORE AFTER

VIGORINE is a positive cure for all weakness in either sex, however caused. Young men will regain their lost manhood, and old men will recover their youthful vigor by using VIGORINE. Especially illustrated to cure Nervousness, Lack of Energy, Nervous Prostration, Nightly Emissions, Lost Manhood, Impaired Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of self-abuse or excesses and indiscretion. Ask your druggist for VIGORINE, and take no substitute. If he cannot supply you, write us. We will send you, by mail, sealed from observation, on receipt of price, $1 per package, or six packages for $5. Pamphlet free. Address, THE VIGORINE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man.

Sold by F. L. Durand.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONDITIONS of a mortgage executed by Daniel H. Bates and Martha E. Bates his wife, mortgagors, to James H. Lovejoy, mortgagee, dated April eighth (8th) eighteen hundred eighty-four (1884), and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twenty-first (21st) day of October, (1884), at 4 o'clock p. m. as Document No. (8530) o'clock, p. m. in book (48) forty-eight, of mortgages on page (24) twenty-four, and by assignment and subsequent pages. Said default consists in the failure to pay the notes upon the premises described in said mortgage which became delinquent and due in the year 1888, and in the said failure to pay the sum of (96) ninety-six dollars taxes assessed against said premises for 1894. Said mortgage has not been foreclosed and does declare that the entire debt, secured by said mortgage is now due and payable and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. The amount claimed to be due and unpaid upon said debt and in this notice is the sum of thirteen hundred seventy-two dollars ($1372.00).

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the land and premises therein described and all of the south half of section No. fifteen (15) in township No. one hundred and forty-three (143) north of range No. forty-seven (47) west of the fifth principal meridian, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 11th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the debt secured by said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the disbursements allowed by law, and the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, including the attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage, in case foreclosure should be made, which said premises are described as follows, to wit: All of the south half of section fifteen (15) in township one hundred and forty-three (143) north of range forty-seven (47) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing three hundred twenty (320) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota.

Dated this 11th day of July, A. D. 1894.

WILLIAM FLANKINTON,
Mortgagee.

C. A. RYE, Attorney for Mortgagee,
Moorhead, Clay County, Minnesota.
[14-20]

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Daniel Bates and Martha E. Bates, husband and wife, Hiram Gutmundson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of September, A. D. 1887, and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of September, A. D. 1887, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 47 of mortgages at page 427.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1000, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per centum (10%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, and whereas default has been made in the payment of the interest coupons aforesaid on the said principal sum of $1000 and the whole principal sum or any part thereof is now due and payable, and is presently claimed and demanded to be due and payable, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover the said principal sum or any part thereof.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the notes secured thereby to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated September 20th, A. D. 1890, and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 20th day of September, A. D. 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages at page 427.

And whereas default has been made in

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east, south, west, and Pacific coast at.....to ..... 2:02 p. m.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at..... 7:22 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

J. E. Harris and wife went out to the lake on Sunday.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

W. S. Russel was over from Grand Forks this week.

I. I. Hillestad came down from Fosston on Tuesday evening.

The first train-load of sheep of the season arrived at the stock-yards on Monday.

What about those republican caucuses? Isn't it about time that they were called?

Mrs. J. Hummell left this week for a visit to friends at Winona. Expects to be away a fort-night or so.

Wall paper and paint at cost at A. C. Schmidts assignee's sale. Will be open every afternoon from 1 to 6.

H. F. Brown.

C. Delbruyn Kops went down to St. Paul from Detroit on Saturday evening to attend the funeral of Mrs. John Knuppe.

For all the times seem to be so dull real estate seems to be moving quite freely—quite a number of sales have been made.

Misses. Tillie and Olive Fortier have gone to Seattle, Washington, on a visit to the Copelands and other friends on the coast.

Conductor and Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. R. A. Wilkinson and Mrs. A. D. Stephens, started for the coast this week to visit friends in Tacoma and Seattle.

T. J. Fanning, one of the most noted hydraulic engineers of the country, is in the city this week, on business in connection with the water works.

Mine Host Westerberg has put up a new sign, which reads: "Scandia Hotel." instead of "Scandinavian Hotel" as formerly. The house has been recently fixed up in fine style.

A. C. Schmidt: "I shall vote for Tom Reed for next president if you republicans will give me a chance by nominating him. I have been a faithful democrat, but I know when I have had enough."

George Carpenter is getting around on crutches, the result of a bad sprain he received while in Minneapolis a week or two since, getting off a street car. Crookston street cars don't use him that way.

The excursions to Maple Lake are all the rage this summer. If the road only touched the lake at any point very many more would go than do at present. And then a large hotel would be a positive necessity.

W. D. Wilson gave a dance last Thursday night in McKinnon hall and raffled off his bicycle. Every holder of a ticket to the dance was entitled to a chance on the wheel, and Oscar Olson of Fosston held the lucky number and got a $150 bike for $1.00.

Secretary J. V. E. Wyatt has worked so hard to make the fair a success that he is a fit subject for a physician's care and will get there if he ain't careful He is talking of going out to Maple lake for a rest hoping that will answer the purpose. Since he recovered from that attack of quinsy he has labored early and late—day and night and the task has proved too much for his enfeebled frame. John is entitled to a good long vacation.

Awarded
Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Big fires are reported to be raging in the woods about Duluth.

Lewis Kluger commenced barley harvesting last week.

Money to loan on good farm security. CHRISTIANSON BROS. [15]

Farmers predict that wheat harvest will commence earlier this year than usual.

Dr. Warnluger was summoned to Fosston on Tuesday morning on an important veterinary case.

Miss Evelyn Hall left for Minneapolis on Tuesday evening to take a course at the State University.

New potatoes are selling in this market for $2 per bushel. No money in potatoes did you say?

A. N. Hixson expects to have his portion of the Lowell ditch completed this week. Mr. Schlevright will finish next week.

Martin O'Brien: "I am not satisfied with the deal the democrats are giving by a long shot, and I am not fully persuaded that the republicans would improve on it much. So I think I shall look to the populists for the relief that neither old party seems to offer us"

Alderman R. G. Marlette came down last week after his family. He found the drays all so busy with fair work that he was obliged to wait a day or so before he could get help to move his goods to the depot. R. G. says times are very good up in Argyle—lots of business, plenty of money and crop prospects of the very best.

An elderly lady giving her name as Mrs. Maria Kirkland, was taken up by the police last week, and on being taken before Judge of Probate Benson, she was adjudged insane and sent to the hospital for insane, at Fergus Falls. She claimed to have come from Winnipeg, and was formerly from Ontario.

Fisher Bulletin: "James Bain, who for the past four weeks has been confined to his chamber by illness, ventured upon the streets on Saturday last. Friend James approached so near the dark and mysterious river, that one more step would have landed him in that great unknown country."

Wynkoop Lemna had W. L. Davies arrested Monday on charge of assault with a dangerous weapon—the weapon in question being a rusty old firelock that couldn't shoot to save its life. The whole shooting matches out of a district school imbroglio that was aired in the courts last term.

The Jolly Rover Base Ball Club, of this city defeated the ball nine of Fisher, at the fair on Wednesday by a score of 13 to 7. The pitching done by Malone for Crookston was good in which he struck out 10 men in seven innings, and only let one man to his base on balls.

The score by innings.

Fisher—0 2 0 2 0 1 2 0 0-7.
Crookston—4 0 3 4 0 1 0 1 x-13.

Chris Steenerson was up from the west side last week. He said to our reporter: Our crop prospects are brilliant down there, both agriculturally and politically, one of the best signs of returning prosperity being that we are all turning republican. We begin to appreciate the fact that the grand old party principles are the best for the country after all and we shall roll up about the old time republican victory.

A private letter from Comrade Geo. W. Truax assures us of his continued good health, and mentions that he would like to return to Crookston—intends to as soon as he can raise the stuff. Of matters political he says: "I have always voted the democratic ticket heretofore, but have had enough of it, and there are a great many others like me here in Ireland. You will see the biggest land-slide in Ohio next fall you ever did."

Lewis Peterson was in the city on Monday morning with a face on him that would suggest that he had interviewed Corbet—but he hadn't, it was only two foot-pads that had him out near the powder-house, and knocking him down proceeded to go through him in the latest approved style. They got about $4 in change, but fortunately missed quite a wad that he had concealed about his person. He had been working for Hixson on the Lowell ditch and was coming in to bank his stuff when assaulted.

The stockholders in the new hotel met in the council room on Tuesday evening to vote on the location of the new hotel. There was such a big crowd that the meeting was adjourned to McKinnon's hall, but before the voting commenced someone raised the point that the company was not legally organized—as the articles of incorporation had not been published one week. The meeting was then adjourned for one week. The Sherman house corner, the Hack & Gallnsch corner, the Commercial House corner and the Jacobus corner seem to be the most prominent in the minds of all concerned.

Have you secured your twine?

J. G. McGrew came up from Duluth on Tuesday morning.

Peter Nelson moves into the cottage on Fifth street recently vacated by H. Newland. O. W. Mathews takes possession of the next cottage west.

Hugh Thompson: "I am sorry to say so, but I am forced to the conclusion that we need not expect more than 40 cents per bushel for wheat this fall."

A nice rain on Wednesday refreshed the thirsty fields, and gladdened the heart of the husbandman. A trifle late for most grains, but great for potatoes.

Ole Hagen, who had the brick foundation to build for the new brewery, has his contract completed and that part of the new tannery will soon be ready for occupancy.

The JOURNAL is informed that Jake Ide had a good commencement made in his barley harvest as early as one week ago to-day. That is the first cutting reported to us this season.

A horse that East Grand Forks veterinarians had been for sometime trying to cure, was on Tuesday brought over to Dr. M. Legoe for treatment. If anybody can cure the animal Mike can.

Talking about a successor to W. W. Fegan, what's the matter with Fred Mix? He's all right: He has been a faithful employe of the company at this point for to those many years and would make a most worthy successor to Fegan.

Dr. M. Legoe was called out to see a sick horse for J. B. Roome on Monday. Says Mr. R. has just returned from Maple Lake, where he went in hopes to find a whole lot of red raspberries, but on account of the drouth there were no berries this year to speak of.

Considerable fighting has been done this week on hotel sites. The contest seems to have narrowed down to the Hack & Gallnsch corner and the Jacobus corner, with the latter in the lead. It is understood that this property has been offered at a very low figure.

Major C. H. Mix, commander; J. O. Sargeant, post chaplain; Neis Olson, senior vice commander; J. W. Kelly, officer of the day; W. D. Carlton, M. S.; and Paul Felix, of Col. Cobham Post, went to Angus on Wednesday to act as a guard of honor at the funeral of comrade Campbell.

Wm. Marin has been busy fixing up the house near Geo. W. Peake's, that the captain of the Salvation Army was living in last winter when it was nearly destroyed by fire. Lee Lostan and A. A. Olds have the papering and painting job. The house has been rented and is to be occupied this week.

W. J. Murphy, managing editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, is spending a few days in the city this week. The Tribune is one of the best daily papers in the state. It has an editorial opinion of its own and that opinion is not a purchasable commodity. This fidelity to principle has ever been its rule and guide.

Frank Bruner left for Hot Springs Tuesday evening to take a course of treatment for rheumatism. Some six or eight weeks ago Charlie Misner conceived the idea of sending Frank away for treatment, and headed a hat to procure funds which have at last been raised and Frank departed happy.

Notwithstanding that three men were sent to the penitentiary from here for stealing goods out of cars on the Great Northern tracks, some one has the temerity to again attempt the same thing. Last Sunday night a car was broken into in the Great Northern yards here, and a case of hats, gloves and mitts stolen. The goods were billed to a house in East Grand Forks, and a box of hats was found in the river on Monday morning.

Ed. Schreader: "I expect to see wheat used for horse feed before another harvest—and plenty of it. With the scarcity of oats and hay, and the low price of wheat, that staple will be much the cheapest for feed. It may not be an unmixed evil, after all, as wheat is actually worth more for feed than it will be for flour, and it will tend to keep the price of wheat nearer to a living rate than would be the case if the country had produced the usual amount of oats and barley.

The Corse Payton company finished a week's engagement on Saturday evening at the Grand in The French Princess playing to a good house. This is one of the best troupes on the road and their prices being very reasonable they drew a good house every night, with "standing room only" at the Saturday matinee. Corse Payton is a natural born actor, one who does not tire an audience, and he is extremely happy in the selection of a company to aid him. As long as he holds out thus he will always find a warm welcome in this city.

Quite a good many hobos around these days.

P. C. Schmidt was up from Duluth on Wednesday.

John Tiedeman was in from Euclid on Monday.

Fred Savory has purchased an elegant rig for delivering vegetables.

C. E. Hinze went up to Angus on Wednesday to attend the funeral of Wm. Campinu.

Still the burning question of the hour in the city: "Where will the hotel be located?"

The street commissioner is grading north Main street in front of the court house.

August Geefgen and Halvor Steener son went over to Grand Forks on a business trip Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Thompson are rejoicing in the arrival of a little daughter on Tuesday.

Miss Daisy Fargocuse down from Euclid on Wednesday evening for a week's visit in the city.

A number of Crookston young people drove out to J. W. Ralston's on Tuesday evening for a dance.

Dee Horton had a box of goods stolen from the railroad platform at Mentor one day last week.

Collins & Creamer have received a carload of Champion Binders which are going off like hot cakes.

Mrs. A. P. Grosner and little daughter left last week for Ashland, Wis., where they will visit friends.

There are 64 teachers in attendance at the training school, most of whom will stay through the whole term.

Mrs. Fred Anderson has been quite ill during the week. At first typhoid fever was feared, but this proved a false alarm.

Alfred Mott, the 13-year-old son of A. W. Mott, formerly of Edna, was drowned in the 32nd inst., at his home at Harrison, Idaho.

Dave Miller was down from Angus on Monday. He sat up with Comrade Campinu Sunday night, and says he is a very sick man.

Howard Misner went up to J. M. Palmer's, at Angus, on Friday intending to stay through his vacation—if he don't get too home-sick.

Al. Schmidt is driving a fine 2-year-old Marshall Ney filly that he recently bought of Will Walker. The animal is a dandy stepper and Schmidt says she is a bird.

Hay is selling in this market for only four dollars per ton. Now is a good time to lay in a supply for winter.

P. L. Reane rode up to Angus and back on his wheel on Wednesday—the ride 25 miles in less than half a day actual running time.

J. P. Landin, of Stephen, was interviewing the boys on Wednesday. It is said that J. P. is a candidate for the senate on the republican ticket this fall. They might look further and do much worse.

Monday morning Fred Anderson was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Chris. O. Hood, charging him with assault and battery. The defendant appeared before Judge Holt, and the case was set for trial next Monday, at 10 a.m.

A report was current in the streets on Wednesday, that burglars had gone through the residence of Gus. Akerland and made away with some of the coin of the realm. The police are extremely reticent on the subject and are not giving away all they know about it.

A driving circuit, composed of the villages of Fosston, Fertile and McIntosh, has been formed, with the following officers: B. S. Bennett, of Fosston, president; Geo. Kronchanbel, of Fertile, vice president; S. H. Drew, of McIntosh, secretary, and Trueman West, of the same place, treasurer.

The two Silvers, Markman, Capt. Dunlava and Dr. Dunlop compose a party that started for Lake Bemedji this week to be gone ten days or so, but Russell was missing on being one of the party, but at the very last minute Uncle Sam found out that he could not spare Pat from the land office, so he reluctantly stays at home.

David Huggard came in Saturday evening from a trip through Marshall and Kittson counties. He says that the crops up there are looking quite fair, in fact they have withstood the dry weather in a remarkable manner. But the hay crop all through these northern counties is very light, and he predicts that the price of hay will reach a very high point next winter.

W. R. McCracken, expert for the Champion binder folks, started in this season way down in Tennessee, and worked his way north as far as Crookston, overland, attending to the Champion binders in the crops enroute. He says that not until he reached Southern Minnesota did he see one good crop, and the further north he came the better the crops are.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

For Sale Cheap.

One fine driving mare, cutte buggy, buffalo robe and harness Will sell cheap for cash or on time to suit.
[47-tf] D. N. TAYLOR.

For Rent.

A twenty room boarding house eligibly located, with good ortlarge well in connection. Apply to, or address, JOURNAL office for full particulars.

I have for sale on my farm on section 9, Fairfax a few improved Yorkshire pigs, ready for weaning next week. Inquire of John Van Tayl,or the farm.

AARON COOKE.

Champion Mowers.

Buy your champion mowers and extras, from S. L. Collins & Co. the old reliable dealers. They have the best machines in the business at the lowest living prices.

Extray.

I now have money again to loan on good improved farms.
[1-tf] A. P. GROSNER,
Opera Block.

Money to Loan.

I have again perfected arrangements by which I am now prepared to loan money on good farms. Call at my office in the Odd Fellows block.
[32tf] ALEXANDRIE MCKINNON.

A Grand Feature

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and sends it coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla made a new person of me." It overcomes that tired feeling so common now.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co. doing Business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and sworibed, in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

SEAL

A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O

Sold by all druggists, 75.

Charles A. Baldwin & Co.,
BANKERS,
40 AND 42 WALL STREET,
NEW YORK.
Accounts of Banks and Bankers received on favorable terms.
Bonds and Investment Securities.
Daily Financial Letter Mailed on Application.
CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED.

CROOKSTON

Normal School & Business College

Strawbridge College Co., Prop's.

Experienced and Competent Teachers
Courses Thorough and Complete.

Best Dormitory and Boarding Hall in the North west.

General Tuition $1 per Week.

Term begins October 2d, 1894. Fall Term begins October 2d, Bond $2. Furnished Rooms 50c to $1. Fall Term begins October 2d, 1894. For Catalogue address

B. A. STRAWBRIDGE,
or R. S. KNUDSON,
Crookston, Minn.

WALSH, the Land Man.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED
FARMS
FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.
REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,
E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Polk County Journal

Historical Society

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1894. NO. 16

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor.....Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor.....David M. Clough.
Secretary of State.....F. P. Brown
Attorney General.....H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist...Halsdor E. Boen

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist.....E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist....John D. Knutson. S. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....J. J. Elliott, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District.....Frank Ives
Clerk of Court.....Nils Munn.

County.

Auditor.....C. U. Webster
Treasurer.....J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds.....John Lumsden
Attorney.....A. R. Holsten
Sheriff.....Arny Grandjean
Judge of Probate.....C. W. Lommen
Supt. of Schools.....A. A. Lommen
Surveyor.....O. L. Ramery
Coroner.....Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.....John E. Oppegaard
Second District.....Andrew Linden
Third District.....M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District.....C. P. Benson
Fifth District.....A. C. Blauchert

THE CITY.

Mayor.....John Cronin
Office in Merchants National Bank.
Clerk.....W. A. Lancot
Office in McKinnon Block
Treasurer.....Ole O. Christianson
Office in Anderson Block
Comptroller.....E. H. Webb
Office in Fournier Block
Assessor.....C. H. Mix
City Attorney.....Defoest Buckien
Office over Merchants National Bank
City Engineer.....George Selph
Office in Fournier Block.
City Justices.....Fournier Block
G. H. Holt.....McKinnon Block
Constables.....A. A. Olson and Wm. Bloom
Street Commissioner.....Jas. Creighton
Chief of Police.....Louis Gonyea

ALDERMEN.

At Large.....J. W. Wheeler
First Ward.....A. U. Jennings, Geo. O. Bulen
Second " .....J. E. Morrisey, W. H. Norris
Third " .....Wm. Watts-M. E. Kirsch
Fourth " .....Wm. S. Gerrish, Fred Hall
Fifth " .....R. G. Narlette, A. McGregor

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Rivlin	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Beltrami,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Bray
Badger	P N Savalrud	Mentor
Brandsvold,	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Beyer	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Andrew Grunde-on	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flunders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	W. A. Lancot.	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Lindsey
Chester,	E L Wickerman,	Brooks
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Euclid
Euclid.	H C Missor	Olga
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Crookston
Fairfax,	Wm Hunnebaback,	Warren
Farley,	W A Lambert,	Euclid
Fenny,	J O McVicker,	Fisher
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, rii.,	Frank Ives	Fertile
Fertile,	L E George	E G Forks
Gc Forks	E J Hoger	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J R Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Gordon,	John Hanson	Hingdal
Gentilly,	H T Goudeau,	Gentilly
Gervais.	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	Mentor	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Emsal Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	Northland
Hill River,	Fred S Sycerenon	Lindsey
Hubbard.	Andrew Jorenson.	Nelsville
Kersten.	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Knutson,	G H Frost.	Gentilly
Kelly,	Fred Benoit	Steinfeldt
King,	J D Knutseson.	Euclid
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	R L Falls
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	Lambert
Lambert,	Samuel Gebeau,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clemmensen	Fisher
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Owatia
Lovel,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Lockerville.	Benjamin Dalbec	Hoot
Nebish,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norris	Harry Beye,	R T Falls
Norden,	H D Reardson	T. R. Falls
Northland,	M S Mercier	Northland
Numedal,	Hesner E Alhue,	Twedt
Onstad.	W A Marin	Melvin
Parrell,	S W Bliss	Crookston
Poplar River,	J S Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre.	Chas. Peterson.	Wylie
Quets,	Hans S Houkom	Fosston
R L r, village,	A P Tougin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Iddag Bartl	R L Falls
Riels,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	John Peterson,	St. Hilaire
Rockabury,	F Engested	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boudine.	Neby
Rosebud,	John E Reverod,	Crookston
Rustic,	Geon Simmons	Crookston
Sanders.	Nils L Anderson	St. Hilaire
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	Northland
St. Hilaire,	J L Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sisston.	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan.	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Valley,	F J Cornwell	Tabor
Vesper,	Edonor Perreau	Terrebonne
Tilden.	.....	.....
Tyrnid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger.	Albert Johnson	Rindal
Woodside,	Thos. Halderson,	Maple Bay
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart.	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	Adam Zeb.	T R Falls

J. M. Harris of Fairview, S. D., under date of Jan. 25, 1894, writes: "Your Heller's Barb Wire Liniment is the best remedy I have ever used for barb wire cuts, collar galls, sores and wounds of every description on horses. I consider it unequalled and will use no other. F. L. Durand sell and guarantees this liniment.

HOTEL LOCATED.

The First National Bank Proposition Accepted by the Stockholders.

Governor Nelson Opens the Campaign with a Speech at Argyle.

Death of Dave Hatlestad—Republican Primaries—Other Local Matters.

The meeting of the stockholders, held at McKinnon's Hull on Wednesday evening for the purpose of locating the new hotel was largely attended, both by voters and others who take an interest in the welfare of our city. Fifteen propositions were submitted and on the informal ballot the vote indicated that the Jacobus corner would be selected, but this did not prove to be the case however, and the lots adjoining the First National bank received a majority of the votes and were selected. This would be as fine a location as could be selected if it included the corner upon which the bank itself is situated, as a hotel office should occupy a corner. At present this may not be so essential, but when our city shall have doubled its population and business, a good hotel, with its office located on a corner will draw the most of the trade.

Gov. Nelson's Speech.

Minneapolis Evening Journal:

Gov. Nelson's speech at Argyle, on Saturday, is the practical, common sense, business answer to the flippant theory of feather headed demagogues which have been proclaimed about the state during the past few years. The governor opposed solid facts to vaporous theory. The great "cosspiracy" against the farmers he effectively disposed of by showing the enormous growth of our agricultural interests and the real and natural causes which have led to the lower-ing of prices for farm products—a process which is surely offset by the cheapening of production, by labor saving agricultural implements and the heavy decrease in transportation rates, while the farmer, in view of the excessive wheat production in the world and competition therefor by engendered can find compensation in the growing of a variety of crops and get out of the straight wheat rut, as many Minnesota farmers are doing to their profit.

The farmer will find more intelligent satisfaction indeed, in recognizing the old principle of supply and demand as the governing factor in business and dominating the grain market, than in trying to change the state of the market to the defeat of silver free coinage, to the lack of government ownership of railways, elevaters and storehouses and too secure of other things cited by demagogues as the sources of all human ills.

Gov. Nelson properly devoted some space to showing the utter fallacy of the silver lie in free coinage scheme, which if effectuated, would reduce the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar one-half. The free coinage bull is a game which may properly be called a scheme to impoverish the American people. Sound to the core is Gov. Nelson when he tells the farmers that the silver dollar of our umtage is only potential as 100 cents because of the certainty of its ultimate redemption in gold, and we flout the largest umount of silver ever flouted in this country because we have a gold redemption fund. The governor perspicuously explained why a silver dollar, not convertible into a gold dollar, such a coin as the free coinage men desire, will sink to the market value of silver bullion in it and drive gold out of the country.

The governor's speech is worthy of extensive circulation. It is perspicuous in every detail. It goes back to the rudiments. It sets forth the world's experience in finance, as the "long result of time." In this progressive age the party which stands on a platform of exploded theories will have a disastrous tumble. Populism has taken up the rotten refuse of the ages of experimentalism. The farmers of Minnesota are too intelligent to be beguiled by such stuff. The governor is abreast the age and it is safe to follow him and his party. That speech should be read and digested by every voter in the state.

There is no sophistry about it. It is in reassembling of irrefutable facts. It would be well to send forth this speech, not only in its entirety, but each topic treated should be lashed and distributed as a separate document, complete in itself. Many a voter will read a special topic well treated in brief and compact form. The financial portion of the governor's speech could be properly distributed as a separate document. So the portion relating to crops and farming. The speech is entirely unanswerable.

Dave Hatlestad's Death.

Attorney D. E. Hatlestad died at the county hospital, of consumption on Sunday afternoon at 4:30. This insidious disease had been coming on for a year, but so naturally strong and vigorous was his constitution that he was enabled to work and attend to his duties up until about the very last day of his life; he having been in the hospital but two days.

David E. Hatlestad, son of Erick and Ingeborg Hatlestad, was born in Winneshiek county, Iowa, on May 13, 1855, one of a family of eight, five girls and three boys, three only of the entire family surviving him. He attended the common schools during boyhood, entering the Decorah Institute (better known as the Breckinridge School) in 1874, where he remained till 1876, when he commenced teaching, continuing in that avocation until 1878, when he entered the Iowa State Institute, entering the Law School in due time from which institution he graduated in 1880, and went to Viroqua, Wisconsin, to practice his profession, remaining there until the winter of 1882, when he came to Crookston to make his future home. On December 20, 1885, he was united in marriage to Miss Amelia H. Nelson, at Spring Grove, Houston county, Minn., by whom he had one daughter that lived only a few brief months, and was followed by the mother who died Feb. 15, 1888, leaving David bereft of all he held most dear, to battle with life alone to the end. During the time he practiced law here he was the partner of Judge Frank Ives for a time, which partnership was dissolved when the Judge took his seat on the bench. Always genial he made many friends who will learn with regret of his early death while they drop the silent tear to his memory. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock on Tuesday at the Baptist church attended by the Bar Association of Polk County in a body and a host of friends.

Republican Caucuses.

Republican caucuses were held in the various wards in the city and delegates to the republican county convention, to be held on August 3d, elected as follows:

First Ward—Geo. O. Bahn, C. E. Sawyer, A. G. Anderson, Casper Sands, H. E. Cooke.

Second Ward—R. G. Thompson, Jos. E. Greenlaigh, John Monroe, W. A. Lunetot, Louis Gonyea.

Third Ward—M. R. Brown, R. J. Montague, W. E. Kelsey, W. Page.

Fourth Ward—A. A. Miller, August Gesurge, W. A. Hammond, Andrew Elken, W. A. Robertson, C. O. Christianson, C. N. Lindell, D. H. Turner.

Fifth Ward—E. D. Childs, W.; F. Hitchcock.

WARD CONVENTIONS.

The chairman of the First ward appointed the following gentlemen as ward committee for the ensuing two years: C. Christinuson, Joseph Gervais and C. E. Sawyer.

Scandia Opening.

On Saturday evening the new Scandia hotel was the scene of a festive gathering. The house was one blaze of light, and hundreds called to greet the genial host and hostess, to examine the neat little hotel over which they so ably preside and to partake of the viands with which the table was loaded. Hon. H. Steenerson made the dedicatory speech in a neat felicitous style—a style peculiarly his own and Hon. A. R. Holsten indulged in a few happy post-prandial remarks. Something like 500 people must have visited the house during the evening, as the rooms were all well filled and people were certainly coming and going until mid-night and, everybody seemed to enjoy it highly. Some three years ago Charles Westerberg rented the Scandinavian hotel, which contained some six or eight bed rooms. He soon found his quarters altogether too limited, and bought the Scandia residence with one-lot intervening. Again he found he could not room enough, so this spring he erected a building connecting the two wings, which gives him 26 bedrooms with a capacious dining room, kitchen, sitting room and parlor. The whole institution has just been renovated throughout, and this house warming was intended to dedicate the completed structure. The hotel has all of the modern improvements and, that it is a popular one is shown by the fact that with their regular boarders and the transient custom the genial host and hostess seldom have a sleeping room vacant for a night. The JOURNAL is pleased to note this success of its neighbor and indulges in the hope that the custom of the Scandia may so increase as to demand another addition in the near future.

Third Ward Resolutions.

At the Third ward caucus on Saturday evening Mr. M. R. Brown introduced the following resolutions that were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That not more than two and if practicable not more than one person from the city of Crookston, should be nominated for a county office by that convention.

Resolved, That all factional fights and the leaders of the same in the republican party of this county, be buried forever; that these rival leaders of cliques and rings have, by their quarrels, slate-making, scheming and manipulation, solely for the division of the spoils of office between themselves, disrupted the republican party in this county and driven more than one thousand voters from its ranks; That they have bolted nominations of the party when not made by their dictation; That these rival leaders of rule or ruin, and that the success of the party demands that they be ignored, and that their rule be supplanted by the rule of the people.

Resolved, That the county committee should be selected by vote of the convention, and none of the old committee selected; that such a course is essential to the reorganization of the party; that even if in effect be to drive out half a dozen of these factionists and manipulators, more than one hundred honest voters will be ready and willing to take the place of each one of them for the advancement of the party and its principles. That all nominations should be made by ballot, and the utmost opportunity be given for open work and discussion in the convention.

Mentor Items.

Harvesting now in full blast in Grove Park, the crops are very light on the ridges, but quite good on the lower lands.

C. A. Benson was in town and stopped over Sunday, looking after his crop interests in the north part of the town. He must have found them disappointing, as we failed to hear from him again.

Andrew Elken went through on the train Tuesday looking up wheat trades with his fall's harvest.

J. H. Fulton has rented the hotel at the Lake for the balance of the season, as Cleveland failed to serve his term out; we should like to see all divorce fiends do the same.

D. E. Fulton has accepted the position of wheat buyer for the St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator Co., at this place and will soon be at the old stand. The house can't get along without Dave, no matter how often it changeshands.

R. Barker has decided to buy next year, and extra excursion trains. What we need is a spur running down to the Lake from Mentor, and then there would be sufficient trade to warrant Sunday excursion trains all summer.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending July 28th

Geroulus Mhell	Gudvangsen E F.
Hoagh E. A.	Hurtell Estate
Holmes Jo	Grand Master
Hoglund Nels	Gould Sadie
Hopkins Olof Dater	Myrkley Tohlf
Easley C.	Andersen Curtis
Storey John Albert
Rolind Frank
Corneli Henry
Anderson A. C.
Cherington F. C.

Persons calling for the above please say advertised.

F. E. LEPAOE,
Postmaster.

For Rent.

Two fine cottages on Elm street. Apply at JOURNAL office.

EXPERT THIEVING.

HOW PRIVATE HOUSES ARE WORKED BY INGENIOUS CROOKS.

Some of the New Tricks Well Calculated to Deceive the Cautious—Calling For Articles Not Delivered—A Cunning Game In Connection With Lost Articles.

During the cold weather of the early part of the year an eastern lady visiting at a well known house in the heart of the city ordered from a prominent furnisher a costly wrap of Russian sable. Attentions in the garment were necessary, and as they would require time and the lady was about returning east she requested her hostess to receive the wrap and forward it to her. The long box was delivered on the promised day, and the sable wrap was just being packed for expressage when the front door bell again pealed sharply, and a message, purporting to come from the furrier, was brought.

It was to the effect that an alteration, particularly directed, had been overlooked. The furrier requested the return of the garment and the mistake would be rectified that same afternoon. The huge box was about to be intrusted to the messenger when a fortuitous impulse came to its guardian. She returned word that inasmuch as that she declined to take the responsibility of permitting anything so valuable to be taken away without a written order, but would herself call at the furrier's the following morning. That call confirmed suspicions. The furrier had authorized no one to recover the wrap. It was easy to draw conclusions.

Again, and yet more recently, a lady resident of West Walnut street found on her return home one mild afternoon that a valuable jewel case had fallen from its chatelaine and left no traces behind. That evening her husband hastened to have the loss advertised in the morning papers. At breakfast the "Lost and Found" columns were carefully read. The valuable chatelaine watch was described in the "Lost" lines, and to the joy of husband and wife another "ad." was found detailing the discovery of a lady's jeweled watch on the street in the same vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, as they may be called, were still discussing breakfast and the lost watch when a man was announced.

"About a lost watch," so ran his message, "picked up the previous evening in the basement below."

"My watch, I'm confident," she exclaimed, springing from her chair.

"So you said a few moments ago, when you read the 'Found' advertisement," remonstrated her husband. But she hurried through the doorway, the caution, "Be careful what you say," ringing in her ears.

"You lost a watch; I found one," so began the man. "Describe yours, please." Mrs. Smith did so, while the stranger kept his left hand closed, seemingly, over the lost trinket.

"Your watch number—that I must have," continued the man as she finished the description of her watch. She expressed by his concise, businesslike manner, she consulted a card on which she had hurriedly jotted down her remarkable number. The man repeated the figures slowly after her.

"After all, this doesn't appear to be your watch," he said coolly, exhibiting a cheap timepiece of rolled gold.

Mrs. Smith was for the instant moments, she quickly donned her street suit and hastened to the neighboring house from where the "Found" notice had issued. She was met on the threshold by the neighbor herself, whose excited greeting was:

"So glad we were the fortunate finders of your beautiful watch. Bridget saw it shining on the pavement as she was lighting the vestibule lamp. When your husband called 20 minutes or so ago we were as pleased to give him the watch as he was to get it. Of course we were careful to be sure described, which he did accurately, giving the exact number," etc.

Mrs. Smith is still minus her pretty jewel, but she has learned a costly lesson.

The audacity of these house thieves is often really amusing. They will go to any extent and take the greatest risk to accomplish their ends. One more example like the aforementioned, a true one: In a conspicuous down town residence a valuable ornament in the library is a bust of Andrew Jackson, cut in solid marble by a master hand. The owner's bead, now in the "great majority" ranks, was a man noted for his wide sympathies and progressive views. It did not excite much comment at his house when, one day, a couple of men called and stated that the colonel had directed them to carry the Jackson bust to his office, not far distant, where it was to figure in an early political demonstration.

The ladies of the family were not at home, but an old Irish woman, who had for years been a fixture in the kitchen, thought sight of the bust as it was being carried out of the house. She was attached to the family and had served so long, their interests were hers, and she managed to gain upon the two men, who were harrying down the street, burdened with the heavy marble.

"You take that figger right back to the house," commanded the aproned captain. "Take it back, or I'll call a perlecemun. Ef the colonel wanted that figger, he'd a-written fur it. You kerry it back."

The men saw that the dumpy, calico gowned maid meant business, army did "kerry" the bust back, else the colonel would have mourned a valuable ornament, for he had not authorized its removal.—Philadelphia Times.

A Stange Congregation.

Little Flossie—The people at the Episcopal church are very slangy, don't you think, mamma?

Hamma—No, dear. What makes you think so?

Flossie—Well, every time the minister stopped reading they all said ah there.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

BERLIN MANNERS.

Customs That Proved Rather Mortifying to Two American Girls.

Two young girls were made miserable by an unwritten law which laid no law not long ago, writes a lady correspondent in Berlin. They were calling upon German women, and as they entered the room they saw that the least comfortable seat was the sofa, where they naturally seated themselves. One after another of the older women surveyed them until they became intensely uncomfortable, not knowing what dire accident could possibly have befallen them. At last the hostess rose majestically, saying:

"Young ladies, will you be so kind as to get up and give your seats to these older ladies?"

The poor things were crushed. My own encounter with the sofa regulation was funnier than it was crushing. I went to a musicale given by a countess. Two daughters of titled houses had been cordial in their overtures, and I was having a beautiful time watching little differences of manner and wondering if all young women were expected to courtesy and kiss the hands of married women, as my vis-a-vis was doing. As the evening wore on I considered what well bred people were, after all, the same everywhere. When supper was announced, there was a slight confusion in the placing of the guests, and I found myself in a smaller room with a few others, among them the most important woman of the assembly. The table had been drawn to a sofa, and there is where I made my mistake. My new friend, the countess' daughter, motioned me to the sofa, which seemed the best solution of the entanglement into which our hostess had led us in a moment of flurry, for a German does not approach the ease and surety of an American hostess. At the same time the woman of importance took a seat on the sofa also. As she apparently spoke neither English nor French, and as I had not been here long enough to have acquired fluency in German, her attempt at a conversation was soon given up.

When our hostess came to see if we were all happy, our lady of importance asked who I was, and on receiving a whispered reply sat up very erect and threw herself back on the sofa, exclaiming, "Ah mais c'est trop!" I was seized with a horrible fear that my hostess had told her that I was an American reporter, and I was intensely uncomfortable in spite of my companion's friendliness. After that the great lady was very stiff, and I fear I was insufferable. Looking again to see if she had fainted, I saw her calmly eating with her knife and no longer feel conscious that I was accursed me for any reason, I certainly should be ashamed of her at my own table. I learned afterward that I was from an American woman versed in German proprieties that my unpardonable offense had been in presuming to sit on the sofa beside my lady without a European title of high rank to back me up.

Roman Standards.

In the Roman army there was a very highly developed system of military ensigns, which, just as among modern nations, were regarded not merely as a rallying point for a given body of men, but as an emblem of the state, and were therefore surrounded with a veneration which degenerated into idolatry. From a tactical point of view, the Roman standards were of more importance than the flag at the present day, for the movements of the troops were entirely regulated by them.

According as they were raised and carried forward, planted in the ground or borne forward toward the rear, in obedience to the sounds of the horns of the "cornicines," the army broke up its camp and marched or retreated and halted. In the camp the standards were planted before the general's tent, where their presence ansecified the spot as though it were a temple and rendered it a safe depository for the money collected by the legion. It was to the standards the soldiers swore allegiance, and the first step of a pretender was sought to become emperor was to seize the standards, as he thereby secured the fidelity of the legion.—All the Year Round.

Photographs of "Sip Speech."

What is regarded as the greatest triumph of the photographer was the recent successful experiment by Professor Dumery of Berlin in taking photographs of "lip speech." By making successive negatives of the movements of the lips of a rapid talker he managed to arrange photographs printed from them in such a manner that deaf mutes who were familiar with "lip speech" could plainly interpret every word that the speaker uttered.—St. Louis Republic.

Sympathy.

Mándo—I'm in an awful fix. I am in love with a young man who is poor.

Belle—And he won't marry you?

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Wednesday, July 25.

Ex-Speaker Reed has been renominated for congress by acclamation.

Congressman J. A. T. Hull was renominated by the Republicans of the Seventh Iowa district.

The Vigilant won another race from the Britannia, this time by over 3 minutes. This makes three out of twelve.

The Indian Territory miners have declared the strike off, accepting the company's terms.

Frank Matchics, Michael Delonong and Charles Jarwinus were drowned in the Susquehanna river at Plymouth, Pa.

Representative Harter has introduced a tariff bill in the house providing for a reduction of all taxes to 20 per cent ad valorem.

The cash balances in the treasury at the close of business Tuesday was $124,091,678, of which $61,177,232 was gold reserve.

Thursday, July 26.

The thermometer registered 115 in the shade at Perry, O. T., Tuesday.

Since Saturday eight new cases and four deaths from cholera have been reported at Liege.

At noon 1,317 miles of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company's new cable had been laid, the Scotia then being in latitude 52.13 north, longitude 17.02 west.

The body of the 13-year-old boy found in the whirlpool on the Canadian side of Niagara Falls, proves to be that of George Hartutz of Pittsburg. He was drowned at Edgewater over a week ago.

The phylloxera, or vine pest, is making such ravages in the wine districts of Spain, according to United States Consul Adams, at Cadiz, that the government has appropriated $100,000 for the extermination of the disease.

The body of Martin O'Connor, who was smothered by a cave-in while digging a well a week ago at Edna Mills, near Minneapolis, has been recovered after much difficulty. It was about 75 feet beneath the surface.

Friday, July 27.

Rev. J. B. McCullough, the editor of the Philadelphia Methodist, is dead.

Tropical heat prevails in Berlin and many deaths from sunstroke have been reported.

J. W. Scott of the Chicago Herald has been re-elected president of the Fellowship Club.

B. V. Brookshire has been renominated for congress by acclamation at Corsicana, Ind.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman reports a good trade for the past week, though prices continue low.

The keel rivets on the cruiser Charleston are found to be badly rust eaten and will be replaced.

Wilson Sonds, one of the wealthiest men in Rochester, N. Y., was accidentally killed by being thrown from his carriage.

The steamer St. George collided off Sunderland with the steamer Bracken. The latter sank. The crew of the Bracken was saved.

Saturday, July 28.

The Philadelphia-Toronto cricket match ended in a draw.

Hon. W. H. H. Brown of the Eighth North Carolina congressional district has been nominated to succeed himself.

The Atlantic and Danville Railroad company has notified all its employes, including officers, that their salaries will be reduced fin Aug 1.

Rev. Francis A. Hoffman, aged 83 years, the oldest preacher in the Evangelical church in the United States, died at Reading, Pa., Thursday.

The Republicans of the Third Mississippi district declined to make a nomination for congress against General Catchings, the Democratic nominee.

Colonel Edward Herrick Castle died at Chicago of old age. He was born in 1811, in America, N. Y. Colonel Castle was at one time general agent of the Erie railroad.

General Parsons of Flora, Ills., Colonel Sexton of Chicago, and Captain Steinwedell of Quincy, trustees of the Soldier's home at Quincy, have begun an investigation of the management.

Monday, July 30.

A disastrous conflagration has destroyed 2,000 houses at Cottel, Bulgaria.

Mayor Gilroy of New York announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Fire in New York city Sunday destroyed a 6-story block, causing a loss of $100,000.

The governor of Hong Kong places deaths from plague in the Canton district alone at 120,000.

In a quarrel about the payment of rent at Farmer City, Ills., James Kirkpatrick killed J. E. Smith.

Perry Anderson of Alexia, a member of the Illinois state senate, died suddenly. He was 41 years old.

Bonsee's oil tank and novelty works at Fort Wayne, Ind., were destroyed. Loss, $100,000. Two persons were killed.

Tuesday, July 31.

The state convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence union is in session at St. Paul.

Congressman Atkins has been unanimously renominated for congress in the Sixth Michigan district.

Charles H. Warren has been appointed general manager of the Great Northern, succeeding C. W. Case.

Mayo college, the leading educational institution of North Dakota, at Casper, Delta county, was destroyed by fire Monday.

Eastbound shipments from Chicago last week amounted to 47,255 tons, against 20,146 for the preceding week and 49,881 for the corresponding week of last year.

Senator Squire of Washington has presented a memorial to congress for a national park on the Pacific coast surrounding the celebrated Mount Ranier, near Puget sound.

A dispatch to the London Times from Berlin says Princess Bismarck fell from her bed on Sunday and was rendered unconscious by the fall. She has since remained in that state. Her condition excites alarm.

CASES CONTINUED.

The Contempt Proceedings Against Debs et al, Postponed to Sept. 5.

CHICAGO, July 26.—In the Debs contempt case Judge Woods delivered a brief opinion, formally overruling the motion of the defense to quash the informations against the American Railway union officers. Judge Grosscup then announced that he had taken no part in the decision on the motion to quash, and he announced further that he would take no further part in the contempt proceedings, for the reason that the defendants are under indictment in the United States district court over which he presides, and the same question of law will be raised under the indictments. In fairness to the defendants, Judge Grosscup said, he would not sit any longer in the investigation of the charge of contempt. After making this announcement, Judge Grosscup Left the Bench.

District Attorney Milchrist announced that Special Counsel Edwin Walker was ill and could not attend the hearing. He said that he, Milchrist, will go out of office Aug. 2, and Mr. Walker will be left the sole counsel in the case, and suggested that the hearing be postponed until Mr. Walker is able to take charge of it. After considering the district attorney's suggestion, the court announced that the case would be continued until Sept. 5.

Debs, Howard, Kelliher and Rogers, after a lengthy conference with their attorneys, decided to give bail. Since their commitment to jail the prisoners have refused numerous offers of aid, but because of the continuance of the hearing until September, decided to change their tactics. William Skabel and William Fitzgerald appeared as bondsmen and the four men were released.

AN APPEAL GRANTED.

Cases of President Debs and Others to the Court of Appeals.

CHICAGO, July 28.—President Debs and the American Railway union have been granted an appeal to the United States court of appeals in the chancery proceedings in the United States circuit court. The appeal was granted by Judge Woods at Indianapolis, and the order was received by mail. The appeal will bring proceedings in the circuit court under the bill filed July 2, on behalf of the railroads, but it leaves the injunction in force and does not interfere with the contempt proceedings against Debs and his associates.

WELLMAN HEARD FROM.

The American Arctic Explorers Get Through the Pack Ice Safely.

LONDON, July 28.—Carl Sonntvers, the Norwegian Arctic enthusiast, has received a telegram from the captain of the Erling, a Norwegian sealer, which has just arrived at the island of Tromsoe, Flumark, Norway. The captain of the sealer said in the telegram that near Amsterdam island the Erling spoke the Ragnvald Jarl, the steamer which was surveying the Wellman Arctic expedition to the edge of the pack ice. The Ragnvald Jarl, in replying to signals, asked to be reported to the nearest place the Erling touched at, saying that all were well on board. The Ragnvald Jarl had been beset by pack ice, which delayed her progress considerably, but Wellman and his party were then free of the pack ice, and they should now be well on their way to the North pole.

DEFECTIVE MISSILES.

Report of the Commission That Investigated the Chicago Caisson Accident.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The report of the commission appointed to investigate the caisson explosion has been completed and turned over to General Miles, who will forward it to Washington. The report says that the explosion resulted from defection of shells, in which the "plunger" which explodes the shell was loose. Many defective shells were found at Fort Sheridan, and it is said the report recommends that the manufacture of the missiles now used be stopped, and others substituted that are less liable to accident. The shells are supposed to requires blow of 100 pounds to explode them, but many of those at Fort Sheridan showed loose plungers and were likely to explode with rough handling.

Damages Asked by Railroads.

CHICAGO, July 28.—The first suit of the many that are to be brought against the city of Chicago by the railroads for damages incurred during the strike was filed by the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railway. The suit will serve as a test and is for $5 damage to a freight car.

Takes Another Big Drop.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Saturday's outgoing steamers from New York carried $5,300,000 in gold, which was drawn from the New York sub-treasury for export. This leaves the gold reserve at $63,228,226, or over $6,000,000 less than the lowest point reached prior to the February bond issue.

All Quiet in Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—The steamship Australia arrived today, after a half days' from Honolulu, bringing Hawaiian advices to July 21. Peace prevails, according to Consul Hay, and all now government appears to be firmly established.

Receiver For the Switchmen's Society.

CHICAGO, July 28.—A receiver has been appointed for the Switchmen's Mutual Aid association. The liabilities are placed at $75,000. The bill attributes the insolvency to the acts of the defendants, ex-Governor Simcoxt.

McKane Downed Again.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 26.—In the general term of the supreme court Justices Brown, Cullen and Dykman denied the motion for a new trial for John Y. McKane, the ex-boss of Gravesend, thereby confirming the decision of the lower court.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

C. F. Buck has been appointed postmaster at Winona.

Races at the Hamline tracks are to be continued two weeks.

Coal of good quality is said to have been discovered at Morton.

Minneapolis exposition directors want to sell the building to the city.

A considerable quantity of smuggled clothes were seized at St. Vincent.

Plans for a new jail in Itasca county have been received by Secretary Hart.

Mankato citizens want their coal rate case before the state railroad commission.

An elevator burned at Mankato, Minn., with about 40,000 bushels of wheat.

State and national conventions of Catholic total abstainers are being held in St. Paul this week.

The week ending Saturday hivaraged 21 degrees warmer than any corresponding week recorded by the St. Paul weather bureau.

Doctors Jones and Love of Preston were acquitted in the United States court at St. Paul. They were charged with pension frauds.

The assessed valuation of Minneapolis is to be raised about 6 per cent for the sake of meeting contingencies, despite the depreciation in realty.

At the meeting of the Republican state central committee Friday Ozma Bixby was elected chairman and Harris Richardson of Minneapolis secretary.

Arrangements are being completed for a meeting of the alumni association of the Mankato normal school, Aug. 15 and 17 at Mankato. It is the quarter centennial.

J. M. Myers, a Minneapolis real estate dealer, was robbed of $480 as he was alighting from an interurban car. He had just received the money in a business transaction.

At a meeting of the state high school board in the governor's room at the capitol 86 high schools were found to be entitled to state aid, and $400 was appropriated to each.

Eric Wirshing's house at Eagle Lake burned Thursday. During the panic he drew his money from the bank—$1,300 —and has kept it in the house ever since. It went up in smoke.

Charles F. Dann and F. M. Luther of St. Paul, were drowned in Lake Superior, Friday, while on a fishing trip. Mr. Dana has been chief deputy collector of Ramsey county for nine years.

The new directory contains 90,346 names. This number multiplied by two and one-half gives Minneapolis a population of 225,615, an increase of 1,966 since the first of the year. Not bad.

Governor Nelson has appointed ex-Governor Lucius F. Hubbard as a member of the board of regents of the Minnesota Soldiers' home, in place of A. J. Hancock, who has removed from the state.

Minneapolis horse owners are much alarmed over the prevalence of glanders. It is almost epidemic, according to views of many. During July Sanitary Inspector Woodbury shot eighteen glandered animals.

The state supreme court has handed down a decision in which the validity of the state game law is upheld, especially as regards the provision against having on hand certain kinds of game after the close season has begun.

There is a rumor that the West hotel at Minneapolis will be closed and that Colonel West has written to several local capitalists stating that he will be compelled to take that step unless something is done. He declines to be interviewed on the subject.

During the past year experiments have been made at the state farm to determine the condition of the land as to tuberculosis. It was found that 12 out of 63 animals were affected. The tests were made by tuberculin and verified by post mortems.

TENANCY AND OWNERSHIP.

Labor Commissioner Powers Has Compiled Interesting Statistics.

ST. PAUL, July 31.—Labor Commissioner Powers has completed that part of his forthcoming report which relates to farm mortgages and tenancy, and gave the substance of the results of recent investigations in a short interview. Mr. Powers says that attention has been directed of late to the fact of the increase of farm tenancy. The number of tenants in Minnesota in 1880 was 8,653, while in 1890 it was 17,862. One thing in regard to this increase is that it indicates the creation of a permanent tenant class, the result of excessive debt and excessive mortgage foreclosures, and that the men who are now tenants are those who have formerly owned their farms.

Reasons For the Increase.

"Our investigation," said Mr. Powers, "gives no color to this theory. We find the largest increase of farm tenancy in the most prosperous counties, and where there are practically no foreclosures, while in counties having many foreclosures we find the fewest tenants. Of 1,709 farmers visited we found only 20 who had formerly owned farms, but are now tenants, and of those only two had lost their farms by foreclosure.

"Of those who had risen from tenancy to ownership there were 1,200 as many, or 235. The constant tendency in the older counties is for farms to be more properties than farms

OUR REGULAR ARMY.

ITS EFFECTIVE FORCE IS RATHER MORE THAN TWENTY THOUSAND.

In Case of Trouble Ten Thousand Would Be Needed to Guard Government Property.

The National Guard—General Schofield, the Commanding Officer.

There has been much talk of late about the regular army of the United States and the national guard of the several states. The army is a little one, but, as the people believe, a good one. It numbers all told, including engineers, recruiting parties, hospital service, etc., less than 30,000 men. There are 10 cavalry regiments with 432 officers and 6,050 men, five artillery regiments with 280 officers and 3,075 men, 25 infantry regiments with 877 officers and 18,125 men, engineer battalion, hospital services, Indian scouts, West Point cadets, signal corps and general service, in which there are 567 officers and 4,142 men, a total of 29,148. Of this total about 20,000 may properly be spoken of as fighting men, but this does not mean that the entire 20,000 could be put into the field in case of an emergency requiring active service, for it would require 10,000 men to guard the government's buildings, arsenals, forts, etc., removed from the scene of trouble.

Of course the national guard, which is declared by General Howard, who has charge of the forces at Governor's island in New York harbor, to be a most efficient and well drilled body of men, could be called upon and in any emergency could be relied upon and could be depended upon to a man. The national guard numbers 110,726, to be exact, or an available force of about 100,000. In case of serious conflict with organized labor it is not likely, in view of the developments of the past few weeks, that fighting orders would be universally obeyed by the citizen soldiers. Just how great a defection would cause in such a case cannot be even estimated, of course.

MAJOR GENERAL J. M. SCHOFIELD.

Major General John M. Schofield, senior and commanding officer of the army, is stationed at Washington. He is a man of middle height, inclined to be stout and with white hair which he is beginning to be thin at the top of his head. His eyes are light blue in color and deep set. He wears side whiskers and mustache, and his head is well formed and well set on a pair of good, sturdy shoulders.

General Schofield is a native of Chautauqua county, N. Y., and was born in 1831. His father was a farmer, and the family removed from the Empire State to Bristol, Ills., while the future general was yet little more than a babe. Before the lad had passed his teens a second move was made, this time to Freeport. From this town the lad entered West Point in 1848, graduating five years later. He was at once assigned to Fort Moultrie and a little later to service in Florida. Between 1853 and the breaking out of the civil war he was assigned much of the time to teaching service in West Point and Washington university, St. Louis. When Sumter was fired upon in 1861, he was acting as mustering officer for Missouri, and he entered the service as major of the First Missouri volunteers.

His fighting qualities were quickly developed, and by reason of special bravery he was very shortly made captain of the First artillery. By Nov. 21, 1861, he had risen to the rank of brigadier general of volunteers and of the Missouri militia. In November, 1862, he was appointed major general of volunteers. His rise to his present rank followed by regular service, and his promotions were won by gallant services in the Army of the Cumberland and during the invasion of Georgia. He took part in the battles of Resaca, Dallas, Kenesaw Mountain and Kulp's Farm. After the capture of Atlanta he was placed, under Thomas, in charge of the forces that opposed Hood in his advance toward Nashville. At this time General Schofield was directly fighting an old classmate, for Hood was in the same West Point class as his Federal adversary.

Then Schofield was made commander of the department of North Carolina, where he had a hand in the capture of Fort Anderson and of Wilmington. He joined Sherman at Goldsboro on March 22, 1865, and was in at the surrender of Johnston at Durham Station, April 26, and executed the military convention of that capitulation.

When the war was over, he was detailed for European service till Aug. 16, 1866, and then commanded the department of the Potomac until March, 1867. During the Belknap imbroglio, from May 28, 1868, to March 11, 1869, he served as secretary of war. He was then made a major general of the regular army by President Grant. In 1876 he took charge of the West Point academy. In 1881 he was assigned to the division of the Missouri. When Hancock died, he was placed in charge of the division of the Atlantic. The first Mrs. Schofield died some years ago, and in 1891 the general married Miss Georgia Kilbourne, a young lady who was a great friend of his daughter. He will shortly be retired because of age, and this is greatly regretted all around.

TRINITY SUNDAY.

Oh, for one hour of Athazzas the saint!
To stand against a world in every creed,
To guard the glory of the great white throne,
To answer the agnostic's shallow plaint,
To bearing doubting souls who shrink and faint.
As dwelling in believers on One unknowned
It is not with that not by bread alone
Shall man have life! His inborn fatal taint
Requires each word proceeding from God's lips.
How shall God's awful voice reach earthly ears?
How can the soul's dull sense be stirred aright?
The Spirit's light dispels the day's eclipse,
The Father's speech once more the lost child hears
Translated to him by the Word made flesh.
—Rev. Walter Mitchell in Churchman.

IN THE DAYS OF TOM SAYERS.

Lahoocher's Description of Scenes at a Prize Fight Thirty Years Ago.

Among my many sins I have attended a prize fight, and for the corpus of rank blasphemy and reckless blackguardism it was an exhibition at Newgate or Horsemonger Lane jail very close. The police were dead against them, the fights were scenes for a gigantic form of extortion. Two ruffians of the lowest class contracted to batter one another about in order to extract the guineas from the swells, the toffs and the supporters of the "noble art of self defense." A programme had to be secretly arranged, a special train had to be secured for the army of men, the swells shoot town and the scum of the metropolis, who lived upon the excitement or the pelf of prize fights. There was a certain official countenance to these illegal "mills." The editor of Bell's Life in London constituted himself the arbiter on these occasions. This was the organ of the prizefighter. The editor received the stakes deposited, acted as referee and afterward described the fights in a jargon delightfully humorous. "Topping the dessert," "Ops in the bread basket," "A ronser on the conk," were all phrases invented by the editors of Bell's Life.

The night before it was necessary to go to a sporting pub to get "the office" and to receive for a valuable consideration the special railway ticket. The vigil of the fight was usually spent in the "ken" with "pal," for in those days there was no closing hour. Restaurants and public houses could keep open as long as they liked. Race week North or Epsom Haymarket at 3 o'clock in the morning, and about 4 or 5 the "swells," all in evening dress, would assemble at the railway station, each one in charge of a specially appointed prizefighter.

The scenes at the railway station was indescribable. The officials made themselves scarce, and the station was handed over to mob law. On the platform the pockets of every unprotected man or youth was emptied, and when the train started amid a chorus of obscenity and blasphemy no one knew the destination. It might be a deserted shanty, set up on old quarry, or a lonely wood, or a river marsh. Suddenly the train would stop, and away went the scientific pugilists racing over field and meadow. The principals were muffled up. The attendants carried the ropes and stakes when the ring was pitched every one who had a sovereign left was fleeced to buy the chief card out before the morning air or the mad excursions during the mill. When a Johnson's eye was bunged up with a blow, his second lanced it and then sucked it into fighting condition. I have seen the ring broken in upon by the faint at the hideous sight of a prize fight—soldiers, most of them, who would have given odds without flinching.—London Truth.

She'd Had Enough of Them.

"Don't you say a word to me about them life insurance companies," said old Mrs. Redbob the other day. "They aren't any good for poor, common folks. Only rich folks and big bugs can do anything with 'em. When my poor husband lay here with fever two years ago, I sent for the agent of one insurance company to come and insure him for $5,000 right away, and, do you know, that there agent never came near me and my poor husband up and died. Don't talk to me about life insurance! It's all a fraud!"—Pomona Progress.

IVORY

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100% PURE

FOR CLOTHES.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CIN'TI.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

NEW LIFE

BEFORE AFTER

Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment is sold under positive written guarantee, by authorized agents only, to cure Weak Memory, Loss of Brain Power, Hysteria, Headache, Nervous Prostration, Weak Eyes, Lassitude, Lack of Confidence, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Impotency, Lecoucheles, all Drains, Loss of Power of the Generative Organs in either sex, caused by Over-exertion, Youthful Errors, or Excessive Use of Stimulants or Tobacco, which lead to Misery, Consumption, Insanity and Death. By mail in a box; 6 for $5, with written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Pamphlet free. Sold by druggists. Ask for Gouden, Cook, Arthurs, Stonehill, Crump, Bell, Hall, Hoffman, Hoffman & Co., and Hall and Goodchild's agents. Only $5.00, size, small 30 days' treatment. GUARANTEED issued only by

Sold by F. L. Durand, Crookston.

VIGORINE Acts powerfully, and quickly, in every case where Nervousness, Lack of Energy, Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, or Sexual Organs, Wasting Diseases, Kidney and Urinary Troubles, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power, Failing Memory, Wakefulness, Nervous Prostration, Lack of Confidence, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Hysteria, Pain in the Back, Seminal Emissions, Spermatorrhœa, Impure Blood, Pimples on the Face, Aversion to Society, Unfitness to Marry, Exhausted Vitality, Impaired Nutrition, Unnatural Discharges, Lassitude, Prostration, Want of Energy, Despondency, Unfitness for Study, Nervousness, Unhappiness, Sexual Decay, Defective Memory, Blushing, Bashfulness, Shyness, Nervousness, Sunken Eyes, Pain in the Head, Backache, Hot Hands, Cold Feet, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Weak Stomach, Sour Eructations, Wakefulness, Bad Dreams, Mental Depression, Loathing of Society or Marriage, Leucorrhœa, Female Weakness, Barrenness, Unnatural Losses, Lack of Sexual Desire or Passion, Nervous Headache, Unfitness for Business, Organic Weakness, Impaired Memory, Sexual Exhaustion, Physical Decay, Wasting Away, Consumption, Insanity and Premature Death. Vigorine is a Vegetable Compound, and is the discovery of a physician who has made a life study of Nervous Diseases and Sexual Weakness. Vigorine is the only remedy that will restore lost Vitality, Impotency, Nervousness, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Lack of Confidence, Nervous Prostration, Lost Manhood, Wasting Diseases, Kidney and Urinary Troubles, Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County

SUBSCRIPTION RATE:

One dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County it costs must be added for postage. It not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

Republican State Ticket.

For Governor.....KNUTE NELSON
For Lieut. Governor.....DAVID M. CLOSSER
For Auditor.....R. C. DUNN
For Treasurer.....A. T. KEITHER
For Secretary of State.....ALBERT BERG
For Chief Justice.....CHAS. E. START
For Associate Justice.....LORIN W. COLLIER
For Clerk of Supreme Court.....DAVID E. HERR

District Convention.

The seventh district convention of the republican party will be held in the city of Fergus Falls on Tuesday, the 7th day of August, 1894, at 11 o'clock a. m., to place in nomination a candidate for congress, and to transact such other business as may properly be brought before the convention. The basis of representation shall be two (2) delegates at large and one (1) delegate from each county, and one additional delegate for each one hundred (100) votes or major fraction thereof cast for Knute Nelson for governor at the election of 1892. Under this apportionment the various counties in the district will be entitled to the following number of delegates in said convention:

Becker	4	Norman	5
Big Stone	3	Otter Tail	9
Clay	8	Polk	10
Douglas	4	Pope	5
Grant	3	Stevens	3
Kandiyohi	5	Swift	4
Kittson	3	Traverse	3
Marshall	4	Wilkin	3

Total number of delegates entitled to seats in the convention, 76.

BRONSON STRAIN, Chairman.
Battle Lake.

P. E. O'CONNOR, Sec., Graceville.

The prospects are that the House will adopt the Senate tariff bill after all and adjourn soon. Wonderful reformers these democrats.

The governor's speech at Argyle last Saturday was well received by the people, and we have heard very many favorable comments upon it from those who heard it.

SMALL, the republican party of Polk put a county ticket in the field next Friday by all means, we should say yes! Put a square-toed business ticket in the field and it will come pretty near winning.

The coming republican convention has it in its power to do much toward healing the disaffection that has existed in the party and bring the grand old party back to the proud position it once occupied in this county. And this may be done by carrying the principles the party was formed to perpetuate—the greatest good to the greatest number; by putting into the field a ticket that will commend itself to the people for its business qualifications, a ticket in the selection of which every delegate in the convention shall exercise a free and untrammeled voice.

THE Penny Press, of Minneapolis, takes to demagogical arguments as naturally as a duck takes to water, believing that there is a large share prejudice existing in the state against W. R. Merriam the Press assumes that Merriam has been to Ohio and pledged the State of Minnesota to Wm. McKinley and then mildly shrieks: "Votes of Minnesota, how do you like to be sold out by Bill Merriam?" A. J. Blethen knows as well as does every wall informed person that McKinley is so highly regarded in Minnesota, as not to need the aid of machine politicians to give him its support if in the field. Mr. B. knows that McKinley is a true friend of the common people, and if elected president their interests would be sacred in his eyes, but for some reason Blethen is trying through demagogic means to prejudice the people against McKinley—against their own true interests. Verily, Blethen is not far removed from rank popalism.

Bronson Strain in the Battle Lake Review says: "Some of the delegates to the State convention went Hunting around the crowd trying to find a candidate for State auditor who would promise to make them Rich, but after finding themselves Dum up by the good Sam-aritan, they Retired out and make arrangements to reach home on the Morrow."

Pioneer Press: "The public is informed that the treasury officials at Washington are not a bit disconcerted by the fact that the gold reserve is less than it was when the last bond issue took place, and far lower than it ever was at any time since the resumption of specie payments. They give as the reason for their confidence their assurance that some sort of tariff will be passed within a week, and then revived business will add so largely to receipts that their difficulties will vanish. We wonder if it occurs to them what admission is involved in this statement of their position? It is a confession by democrats of high official responsibility that all the business depression, all the intolerable distress that has filled the country with suffering for the last year is to be credited to democratic tinkering with the tariff. By saying that business will revive when this uncertainty is ended, it admits that the uncertainty is the cause of past and present stagnation. We have now the best democratic authority for stating that the unparalleled misfortunes of the country are the deliberate work of a democratic congress and administration, hurried only in order that the party might pass a tariff bill which is a mockery of reform and a thank-offering to the trusts."

What the Pops Would Do.

It used to be said of Kittie Hoivor son, when he was in congress that he didn't do enough, he was like a dose of homeopathic medicine—if he didn't cure he wouldn't kill; but the same can not be said of the present member of congress from the 7th district, for if Boen could by any means succeed in forging his measures through, the country would be ruined in short order. He wants to kill off the National banks, wants the government to buy all lands owned by aliens, wants the government to build new railroads all over the United States, also to expend $50,000,000 for public buildings, wants $50,000,000 a year for river and harbor improvements, $100,000,000 a year for building roads, in fact, to expend over one billion dollars a year (in fat money) for the various and sundry little "improvements" that he deems essential. Verily the people of the 7th district had better resign Boen before he bankrupts the entire country. Of these wild cat schemes the Minneapolis Evening Journal says:

"Let us suppose a populist administration at Washington, with Donnelly or Allen or Peffer in the White House, Boen as secretary of the treasury, other populists in the cabinet and departments, and a populist congress and a populist supreme court. The congress would, of course, pass bills "to increase the per capita," and Treasurer Boen would grind out irredeemable currency, at the rate of four or five billions a year. The general "relief" would be made. Every one-horse village would have its costly government building and group of paid officials. Secretary Boen would have costly structures erected in every village in the Seventh district. The pops would build railroads to every populist farm. For a while the dance would go on vigorously, until some fellow would object to paying $150,000 for a pair of boots, as was done in the old continental currency times, and then the game would be up; the crash would come; the lambs would be slaughtered. The era of cheap money and free loans would end in a catastrophe, as all such eras have. Perhaps Mr. Boen doesn't expect his bills to pass at this session of congress. Perhaps Senator Allen doesn't look for the immediate acceptance of his "free distribution" project. If either of these gentlemen, however, thinks that the American people are really drifting to such insanity he will find himself mistaken."

THE REVIEW TABLE.

Secretary of the Interior, Hoke Smith contributes to the August number of the North American Review an able article dealing with a question upon which he is peculiarly fitted to write—"The Resources and Development of the South." It is an important addition to the series of articles by Cabinet Ministers which the Review has recently given to its readers.

Fashionable White Toilettes For Ladies.

As the summer season advances white gowns are the favorites for the seashore and mountains. White flannel as well as serge are adopted for mountain costumes or yachting wear, and are even worn in bicycle riding. For the morning, white duck, effects of pique, duck and linen are seen in endless combinations. Besides these, the following materials are largely in demand: Chine silks, barges dotted or embroidered, Swiss muslins, and all the varieties of nainsook and lawn. Among the novelties in summer millinery white is also popular. Artistic hats are made of tulle, and the delicate millinery gauze trimmed with white moire and white flowers in picturesque confusion. The favorite wrap at the summer resorts is the golf cape, in white duck, lined with some bright color in plaid or fancy cade. In the McDowell Fashion Magazines are found numerous details concerning these novelties. The patterns of which are offered in the form of coupons at very moderate prices. "LaMode delParis," and "Paris Album of Fashion," cost $3.50 each per annum, or 35 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" at $2.00 per year, or 20 cents a copy. "LaMode," a unique fashion magazine in the colored plates, costs only $1.50 per year, or 15 cents a copy. The three first mentioned publications offer each $1.00 worth of coupons patterns and "LaMode" fifty cents worth of the same as a premium for a yearly subscription. If you are unable to procure any of these journals from your newsdealer do not take any substitute from him but apply by mail to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, July 24.

The house today passed by a party vote the bill for the reinstatement of clerks dismissed from the railway mail service between March 15 and May 1, 1893. The vote was yeas, 140; nays, 93. The bill providing for classification of lands in the grants of the Northern Pacific road in Montana and Idaho, with regard to mineral deposits, was passed after a running debate led by its author, Mr. Harrison of Montana.

In the senate Mr. Hill again spoke in defense of the president's position regarding the tariff bill.

Wednesday, July 25.

The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was laid before the house and gave rise to considerable discussion, principally on the clause giving the commissioner of pensions $250,000, a compromise between the $200,000 of the house and $300,000 of the senate, for making special examinations. The report was agreed to.

The senate held only a short session, during which the debate on the tariff conference report was continued. Senator McCaffrey occupied most of the time.

Thursday, July 26.

The day's proceedings in the house were dull in the extreme and one by one the members left their desks, until by 3:30 o'clock there were not half a hundred members in the chamber. The conference report on the fortifications bill was agreed to.

The senate continued the debate on the tariff conference report.

Friday, July 27.

There was not a quorum of members in the house at any time, and all business was transacted by unanimous consent. Only once was there a break in the smooth running congressional machinery, and in this case advantage was taken of the absence of a quorum to prevent action on a bill.

The senate sent the tariff bill back to conference without instructions.

Saturday, July 28.

The house passed a few private bills and discussed the question of extending the powers of the federal courts, adjourning early on account of the intense heat.

The senate was not in session.

Monday, July 30.

The senate wore an aspect of peace and serenity during the day in electing contrast to the excitement of last week. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Allen providing for the issue of $50,000,000 in treasury notes in the distribution pro rata among the states "for relief of the needy poor." It was referred to the finance committee.

Beyond the passage of a few unimportant bills by unanimous consent, nothing was done by the house today. Mr. Bourelle offered a resolution congratulating and recognizing the Hawaiian republic, but on a point of order was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

UPHAM FOR GOVERNOR.

The Wood County Candidate Finally Selected by Necessity Republican State Convention.

MILWAUKEE, July 28.—Major W. H. Upham of Wood county was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention on the first ballot of the day and the seventh of the convention. The delegates assembled at 11 o'clock and the time was lost in resuming the struggle over the gubernatorial nomination interrupted by adjournment. During the night the strength of several candidates whose chances were deemed last slight, had crystallized for Upham. The ballot resulted, Upham 216, Haugen 99, Schofield 17, Blackstock 2, Rudd 3. Upham's nomination was made unanimous.

Judge Bnesch For Second Place.

Judge Emil Baensch of Manitowoc county was nominated for lieutenant governor on the second formal ballot. The ballot was: Baensch 254, Copeland 61, Stone 27, scattering 2. The nomination was made unanimous.

The other nominees are: Treasurer, Sevell A. Peterson of Barron; attorney general, W. H. Mylrea of Marathon; superintendent of public instruction, J. Q. Emery of Dane; railroad commissioner, Duncan J. McKenzie of Buffalo; insurance commissioner, W. A. Fricke of Milwaukee.

More Militia Relieved.

CHICAGO, July 28.—The seventh infantry of the national guard of Illinois has been relieved from strike duty. This now leaves but three infantry regiments on duty.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30, 1894.

WHEAT—Cash, 64¾c; July opening, 64½c; highest, 65¾c; lowest, 64½c; closed, 65¼c; September opening, 67¾@67½c; highest, 67¾c; lowest, 1 (4)4¾c; closed, 67¾@67½c; December, opening 2 c; highest, 59½c; lowest, 59½c; closed 59½c. On track—No. 1 hard, 66¾c; No. 1 Northern, 65¾c; No. 2 Northern, 63¾c.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, July 31, 1894.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, 66¾c; No. 1 Northern, 65¾c; December, 66¾c; May, 69¾c. OATS—No. 2, 27½c; rejected, 24½c; to arrive, No. 2 Northern, 30½c.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, July 30, 1894.

CATTLE — Market dull; prices 10@20c lower.

HOGS—Market demoralized. Sales ranged from $4.95@5.30 for Common to good assorted, $4.60@4.90 for light, $4.85@5.30 for packing, $4.75@5.30 for mixed; $4.65@5.30 for heavy packing and shipping lots, $4.75@5.30 for pigs, $4.75@5.30.

SHEEP—Market dull; prices 10@15c lower.

Receipts: Cattle, 23,000; hogs, 50,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 30, 1894.

WHEAT—Firm. September, 56½c; December, 57½@57¾c.

CORN—Higher. No. 2 cash, 46½c; July, 46½c; September, 46½c; October, 46½c.

OATS—Dull. September, 19½c.

PORK—July, September, $12.82½.

SHORT RIBS—Lower. July, $6.70; September, $6.85.

LARD—Lower. July, $6.90; September, $7.07½.

Milwaukee Grain.

MILWAUKEE, July 30, 1894.

WHEAT—Market steady. No. 1 Northern 64c; September, 61½c.

CORN—Higher. No. 3, 48c.

OATS—Lower. No. 2 white, 26½c; No. 3, 25½c.

BARLEY—Steady and quiet. No. 2, 56c; sample, 54c.

RYE—Steady No. 1, 49½c.

WITH WOOL ON THE FREE LIST.

Sheep Will Be Sent to Market and Our Flocks Forever Disappear.

If wool be put on the free list, the American woolgrower will have to submit to the disadvantages of raising wool in this climate on even terms with his foreign rivals, who do not have such difficulties to contend with, and so without adequate protection must necessarily be driven out of the business. Our seventh largest agricultural industry, producing annually $66,000,000 worth of wool and representing an investment of $100,000,000 of sheep, will be destroyed by free trade.

Sheep will be fattened and will then be sent to market as lambs or wethers and the farmer who now sells direct to the consumer close to his home saves the middleman's profits and the cost of transportation, which otherwise always lessen the net price to him when he has to find a market abroad.

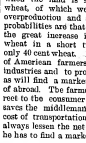
The Abbe de Marolles, in one of his latest works, calculated that he had collected 123,161 verses, and yet the public had not seen enough to appreciate him as a poet.

MARTHA WASHINGTON

COOK-BOOK

FREE!

320 PAGES. ILLUSTRATED.



One of the best Cook Books published. It contains recipes for all kinds of cooking. Also deserts, Candies, Omelettes, Salads, Pastrie, and Toilet recipes. Send 2c for hand fan.

MAILED FREE,

In Exchange for 20 LARGE LION HEADS and Trade Mark Bottle Wrappers and 2 Cent Stamp.

Write for list of our other Free Premiums. We have many valuable Pictures, also a Rifle, Guns, Watches, Silverware, Dishes, Base Ball Goods and Lots of Useful Articles.

WOOLSON SPICE CO. Toledo, Ohio. Office of Toledo, O.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

—OF THE—

Scandia-American Bank

At Crookston, in the State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of July, 1894.

RESOURCES

Bills receivable	$170,894.79
Overdrafts	2,000.00
Banking house	10,000.00
Furniture and fixtures	900.00
Real estate	1,500.00
Current Expenses	3,500.00
Taxes paid	1,625.12
Cash on hand	96,514.17
Total	$285,433.83

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$50,000.00
Surplus fund	5,000.00
Undivided profits	2,433.83
Individual deposits subject to check	56,621.27
Certificates of deposit	50,878.73
Deposits	14,500.00
Total	$285,433.83

I, J. W. Wheeler, cashier of the Scandia-American Bank, of Crookston, Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk, }

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of July, 1894.

[SEAL.] C. O. CHRISTIANSON, Notary Public, Polk County, Minn.

Correct—Attest:

L. ELLINGTON, }
E. P. PIERCE, } Directors.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication August 2d, 1894)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Anderson and Olena Anderson, his wife, mortgagors, to the Northwestern Loan Agency, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of January, 1893, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of January, 1893, at 9:00 o'clock a. m., in Book Sixty-four (64), on page 403, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of notice, five hundred sixty-two dollars and sixty-three cents ($562.63) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

And said mortgage was duly assigned by an instrument duly executed and delivered by the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company to C. E. Eaton, dated 8th day of March, 1893, and recorded in said office of the register of deeds, on the 30th day of March, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Book Sixty-four (64), on page 404, and

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, which sale will be made at the front door of the court house in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county or his deputy, duly appointed as agent in said behalf, on the 20th day of September, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., and further notice is hereby given that on said day of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fee, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are, the lot, piece, or parcel of land situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lot number (2), of the Northeast quarter (¼) of Section (31), and the west (½) and two (2) east section (43) lines of Section thirty-one (31), township (150) north of range forty-four (44), west, containing one hundred fifty-one and 41-100 (151-41-100) acres more or less according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated at Moorhead, Minnesota, this 28th day of July, 1894.

GEORGE B. DAVIS,
Executor of the last will and testament of George B. Davis, deceased, assignee for mortgagee.

ERWIN ADAMS,
Moorhead, Minnesota,
Attorney for assignee of Mortgage. (16-26).

Republican County Convention.

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 30, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk county, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the city of Crookston, on the 3d day of August, 1894, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the Republican Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls, Minn., August 14th, 1894, and further the purpose of electing nine delegates to attend the Senatorial and Legislative Convention to be held at Crookston, on the 4th day of September 18th, 1894, and also to place in nomination candidates for the following county offices:

Sheriff.
Auditor.
Treasurer.
Register of Deeds.
Clerk of the District Court.
Attorney.
Judge of Probate.
Court Commissioner.
Superintendent of Schools.
Coroner.
Surveyor.
County Commissioner for Second District.
County Commissioner for Fourth District,
and also for the purpose of selecting a new County committee.

The basis of representation shall be two (2) delegates at large for each voting precinct, and one (1) delegate for every twenty votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1892.

All citizens who believe in the principles of the Republican party, as laid down in the National and State Party Platforms, and who intend to support the Republican party and its candidates are cordially invited to attend the primaries, regardless of former party affiliations.

The several voting precincts are entitled to representation as follows:

Andover	3	3d ward	2
Augus	2	4th ward	2
Black River	2	Garfield	6
Bray	3	Gentilly	2
Badger	3	Gentilly	3
Brandsvold	3	Gervais	3
Belgium	2	Grove Park	3
Brandt	2	Godfrey	3
Bygland	2	Hammond	3
City of Crookston—		Higdem	2
1st ward	5	Hill River	3
2d ward	5	Huntsville	4
3d ward	4	Hultdale	3
4th ward	8	Keystone	4
5th ward	2	Kertsonville	3
Columbia	3	King	2
Crookston	3	Kunte	2
Chester	2	Pleasant	2
Emardville	2	Lambert	2
Euclid	2	Liberty	2
Eden	2	Lee	2
Fairfax	2	Lowell	3
Farley	2	Louisville	2
Ennny	2	Nesbit	3
Fisher	2	Norden	2
Grand Forks	2	North	2
City of E. G. Forks—		Northland	3
1st ward	2	Numedal	2
2d ward	2

Onstad	3
Powell	2
Poplar River	2
Polk Center	2
Queen	2
Red Lake Falls—
Village	3
Township	2
Reis	2
River Falls	2
Rocksbury	2
Rollestad	2
Rosebud	3
Rustic	2
Rhinehart	2
Saunders	2
Sandsville	2
Village St. Hilaire	3
Sletten	2
Sullivan	2
Tabor	2
Terrebonne	2
Tilden	2
Tyssil	2
Vineland	2
Wylie	3
Woodside	2
Wyandotte	2

It is recommended that the primaries be held on Saturday next preceding the convention, at the most convenient time and place in each precinct. No proxies will be admitted except the holder is a bona fide resident of the precinct represented.

By order of the County Committee.

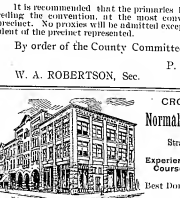
W. A. ROBERTSON, Sec. P. J. McGUIRE, Chairman.

CROOKSTON

Normal School & Business College

Strawbridge College Co., Prop's.

Experienced and Competent Teachers
Courses Thorough and Complete.



Best Dormitory and Boarding Hall in the Northwest.

General Tuition $1 per Week.

Board $2. Furnished Rooms 50c to $1. Fall Term begins October 23, 1894. For Catalogue address

B. A. STRAWBRIDGE,
or R. S. KNUDSON,
Crookston, Minn.

RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE

ON

LONG TIME

AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE,

E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

WALSH, the Land Man.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 19, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peter P. Swanson against Ludvig Arneson for failure to comply with law as to Timber-Culture Entry No. 4,724, dated June 15th, 1885, upon the N. W. ¼, section 26, township 153, range 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Ludvig Arneson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said land except about twenty acres; and this has not been cultivated for over two years, and that there are no trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing thereon, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 28th day of November, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

16-161 HIRAM TROWBRIDGE, Register.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 23, 1894.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Nels Bergreen against Erick J. Anderson for failure to comply with law as to Timber-Culture Entry No. 5304, dated August 15, 1892, upon the S. W. ¼, section 29, township 152, range 45, in Polk county, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that said Erick J. Anderson has wholly failed to break or cultivate any part of said land since date of entry except about ten acres thereof broken in 1893, which was never hard—no seed broken up—no weeds—and grass, and that claimant has wholly failed to plant to trees, tree seeds or cuttings any of said land since date of entry, and that there is now no cultivation on said land nor any trees seeds or cuttings standing or growing thereon, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 1st day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

16-221 HIRAM TROWBRIDGE, Register.

In 1880 In United States had population 50,000,000.

3 Cities station over a million—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and The Northwestern Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to these cities. [10-tf]

Only 14 In United States in 1870 Cities had population over 100,000, but in 1890, 28, and The Northwestern Line is the Best Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to a large number of them. - [10-tf]

A Great Is the Stone Arch Viaduct Bridge across the Mississippi at Minneapolis, and The Northwestern Line runs 16 First Class Fast Express Trains across this bridge every day to Chicago, Duluth, Omaha and Kansas City. [10-tf]

Savage Used to wage war when Indians Minneapolis and St. Paul now stand. To-day these great cities are inhabited by people of culture and good taste and they travel via the Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Peace Is enjoyed by Indians, but Pipe the traveler who likes comfort enjoys smoking best in the Buffet Smoking Coach on the Northwestern Limited. [10-tf]

Crows From point to point by the Fly shortest distances, so when they fly from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago they follow The Northwestern Line. [10-tf]

Soo & Sound right but they don't Sue look right for Sioux City through which The Northwestern Line runs Superb Pullman Sleepers between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha. [10-tf]

A BAD BLUNDER

Japan May Get Into Serious Trouble For Sinking the Kow Shing.

FLOATED THE BRITISH FLAG.

The Mistake May Cost Much Money and a Humiliating Apology.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—It is the opinion of diplomats here that the Japanese have made a great error in sinking the transport Kow Shing, and one that is likely to cost them much money in reparation, besides the humiliation of an apology. The Kow Shing was one of a line of coasting steamers belonging to Hugh Matheison & Co., and trading between Chinese ports. The vessel was under the British flag when she was sunk. Although she carried Chinese troops to Corea, it is said here that she did not in so doing violate the law of neutrality, for there has been no declaration of war or open acknowledgment by either China or Japan that a war prevails.

The vessel, therefore, was engaged in legitimate traffic, and the Japanese are likely to pay dearly for sinking her and destroying the lives of the ship's company.

An Interesting Explanation of the present attitude of Japan towards China was furnished by a diplomat of much experience in Asiatic affairs. He first pointed out the fact that internal conditions in Japan are, and have been for some time, very much disturbed. There has been great friction between the mikado and his cabinet on the one side and the parliament and people on the other. This steadily increased until the parliament actually passed a resolution requesting the mikado to remove his cabinet and replace it by other men more nearly in accord with their ideas, which are distinctly reactionary and marked by resentment at the presence of foreigners in Japan and the extension of modern civilizing systems.

Chinese After American Arms.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 31.—Although both the Winchester and Martin arms companies refuses to confirm the report, it is believed that arms and ammunition to the extent of two carloads have been sold by the former company to the Chinese government.

German Press Suspicious.

BERLIN, July 31.—The German press regards with suspicion Russia's attitude toward the Japan-China conflict although the comments of the Russian newspapers indicate that the St. Petersburg government is far from pleased with Japan's energetic action.

Ordered Torpedo Boats.

BERLIN, July 31.—China has ordered four torpedo boats of German firms.

CREW OF FOUR DROWNED.

Little Schooner Glad Tidings Sunk in Detroit River.

DETROIT, Mich., July 31.—The little schooner Glad Tidings was sunk in the Detroit river near Ecorse by the whaleback propeller Pathfinder. A portion of the schooner's upper rigging is hanging on the steamer's bows and was identified as that of the Glad Tidings. The crew were all drowned. They are Michael Westpfal, captain; August Westphal, Joseph Glayaka and August Mini. The Glad Tidings was formerly owned by Captain Bundy, the sailor evangelist, and used as a gospel ship. A misunderstanding of the steamer's signals seems to have caused the collision.

Severe Storm In New Hampshire.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 31.—From 6 o'clock p. m. until afternoon this city was entirely cut off from the outside world by telegraph and telephone, a result of the most disastrous storm that has visited this section in years. At Lake Massabesic, four miles from the city, the storm was accompanied by a cyclone, which wrecked buildings, blew down large trees and destroyed much valuable property.

Train Into a Freight.

CINCINNATI, July 31.—Shortly before 6 p. m. the St. Louis express on the Ohio and Mississippi, ran into a freight on the siding at Codurna, Ind., 20 miles from this city, wrecking the passenger engine and a dozen freight cars. John Little, engineer of the passenger train, was killed and several other persons seriously injured.

Yachters Drowned.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A small yacht carrying six persons was capsized in the Hudson river, opposite Hastings, during a severe squall and thunderstorm that passed over the river, and three of the passengers are reported to be missing. It is feared they were drowned.

Cyclone Wrecks a Town.

EL RENO, O. T., July 31.—News came to El Reno of a terrific cyclone that visited Watonga, county seat of Blaine county, destroying many buildings and crops and injuring a great many persons. The town was totally wrecked.

Seven Deaths From Heat.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—Seven deaths and five prostrations resulted from the heat in this city during the day. The thermometer reached but 90 degs. and the greatest humidity was 66 degs.

Ministry Resigns.

SYDNEY, July 31.—The ministry presided over by Sir George Dibbs has resigned and Mr. Reid, leader of the opposition has consented to form a new ministry.

BY FIRE AND WATER.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE AT PHILLIPS, WISCONSIN.

Some Burned to Death and Some Perished In the Lake While Trying To Escape. Probably a Score Dead—The Town Was Totally Destroyed and Three Thousand Are Homeless.

MILWAUKEE, July 28.—A heavy loss of life resulted in Phillips from the fire. It is estimated that between fifteen and twenty-five persons were either burned to death or drowned in their efforts to escape from the flames that destroyed the town. The only refuge from the fire was the lake and hundreds of people fled to the water to avoid death in the fire. In the rush the weaker ones fell down or were carried into the deep water and perished. Others, overcome by the heat and smoke, fell in the streets and were burned to death. The entire northern part of the state

Is a Sea of Fiame.

The country is dotted with the homes of farmers and homesteaders and with lumber camps. There is no doubt that hundreds of these buildings have been burned, while the fate of the people is in doubt. It is probable that many of these people have also lost their lives. Of those who perished here three babies have been found. The citizens who escaped the fire are homeless and without food or clothing, and are in a state of the most serious destitution. Fire telegraph operator sending the news from Phillips, tapped the telegraph wire in the woods, and with a board for a table and the earth for a seat sent the message with a pocket telegraph instrument.

THE PHILLIPS FIRE.

Three Thousand People Rendered Homeless—Town Entirely Destroyed.

MILWAUKEE, July 28.—A special to the Wisconsin from Phillips, Wis., says that 3,000 people have been made homeless there by the forest fires. Not a building is left standing, and property valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 has been swept away. All day the flames surrounded the village. Hundreds of men battled with the fire, but without success. The pine forests were as dry as parchment and the flames leaped from tree to tree with such rapidity that they seemed on fire. The baking soil sent up a gas that ignited and the Atmosphere Itself Seemed to Blaze.

When the fire reached the city it swept from house to house and in an hour had the entire village in flames. The people fled to the railway, where trains were standing, and were hastily conveyed to neighboring towns. Nothing but a few personal effects were saved. There are rumors of losses of life, but in the confusion they cannot be confirmed. Fatalities are separated, some members having taken to one place, and others to another, and it is impossible to learn whether or not they have all escaped. The heaviest losses by the fire are those of the John R. Davis Lumber company, $800,000, and Fayette Shaw, tanner, $200,000.

Hilibert Also Scorched.

A dispatch to the Wisconsin from Chilton, Wis., says that nine buildings were consumed by fire at Hilbert. The wind was blowing strong and the whole town was threatened with destruction. A fire engine and company from this city rendered assistance. The burned buildings included the railroad depot of the St. Paul road.

THIRD BIG FIRE.

City of Minneapolis Visited by Another Destructive Conflagration.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 31.—The third disastrous fire in the history of Minneapolis broke out about 8:30 p. m. in the lumber yards of the Shevlin-Carpenter company on the bank of the Mississippi river in the foot of Eighth avenue north. It spread with remarkable rapidity, and before it was controlled destroyed property valued at nearly $800,000. Besides 300,000 feet of lumber, the gas manufacturing plant of the Omaha Railway company, the roundhouse, toolhouse, sandhouse and turntables of that road, nearly 40 freight cars, some of them loaded with merchandise, and the office building of the Shevlin - Carpenter company were burned. The sawmill, the planingmill drying kilns and storehouse for manufactured and prepared wood, although in the very heart of the fire district, were saved by the efforts of the firemen, aided by a fortunate change in the direction of the wind. Help was summoned from St. Paul to stay the conflagration and four engines with fall crews were sent over from that city. The insurance will be about $250,000.

OSHKOSH'S BIG LOSS.

The Recent Fire Destroyed Property Valued at $200,000.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 1.—The fire in this city Saturday destroyed property to the amount of about $200,000. The Diamond Match company's loss on lumber piles in Stanchfield, Amos & Co.'s yards is $60,000; loss to residences, $7,000; loss to Stanchfield, Amos & Co. on lumber, $30,000 to $40,000; loss to planing firms employ many men, and the loss falls heavily at this time of the year. The total number of lumber piles burned are 150, covering three acres.

Mulligan Is Dead.

MAYNARD, Mass., July 28.—James Mulligan of "Mulligan Letter" fame is dead. He was born in 1831, is a little village in the north of Ireland and came to this country when he was 15 years old. For a number of years he has lived in Boston but recently moved here.

MAY MODIFY THE BILL

POSSIBILITY OF A COMPROMISE ON THE TARIFF.

Senators Are the First to Waver—Urgent Appeals to Pass a Bill in Line with the Party Platform Having an Effect—The Compromise Suggested.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—For the first time since the tariff bill has been in conference there are signs of wavering in the strong line that has stood behind the senate bill. "Senate bill or no bill" has been repeated during the day, but less frequently and with less emphasis than heretofore. The only explanation for the brief conference during the day is the fact that the house conferees feel that the situation is changing in their favor. There are many reasons advanced to show that this statement has good foundation. It is known that the mails and the telegraph are bringing to the Democratic senators urgent appeals to pass a bill which will not favor the trusts and which will be in line with the Demands of the Party Platform.

In fact these requests upon the senators are endorsements of the position of the president and the house in the main points of difference. That these telegrams are having effect cannot be denied and have caused the senators who are most insistent upon the senate bill as regards coal, iron ore and sugar, no little concern. The house members also find considerable comfort in their analysis of the speeches made by the Democratic senators when the conference disagreement was before the senate, in which they find that but one Democrat besides Mr. Hill made any pledge of his vote, and that was Senator Caffery, who declared that if the

Louisiana Sugar Interests

were not protected he would not vote for the bill. None of the other senators, it is claimed, burned the bridges behind them; none of them declared absolutely that they would vote against any bill in the one-eighth differential on sugar was not retained, or if the duty on iron ore and coal was stricken out. But more than this, many of the senators declared their desire to obtain a bill which would secure all Democratic votes. It is pointed out that none of these senators, not even Mr. Caffery, have placed themselves in a position in which they cannot support a bill if it is returned without a differential protection to the sugar refiners and with coal and iron on the free list. It is known that a great deal of pressure is being brought to bear on the Democratic conferees of the senate to secure an agreement with modifications of the three principal items, a Compromise Being Suggested

to the extent of flat ad valorum rate on sugar of 45 per cent, with an extension of the time for the duty to take effect, ore, coal 40 cents a ton with a reciprocity provision that coal shall be admitted free from any country which may enforce admission to coal produced in the United States. While this proposition has not been submitted with any assertion that it is an ultimatum of the house conferees, there is a good deal of talk that such a proposition is likely to be presented. This, it is believed, will secure the votes of the Louisiana senators, the two Populists, Allen and Kyle, and Irby of South Carolina. In that event it would take three other Democratic senators besides Hill to defeat the bill, and the house members declare the number cannot be found.

Allen's Relief Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The senate wore an aspect of peace and sedentary dignity the day in striking contrast to the excitement of last week. Vice President Stevenson has returned and occupied the accustomed chair. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Allen providing for the issue of $50,000,000 in treasury notes to be distributed pro rata among the states "for the relief of the worthy poor." It was referred to the finance committee.

Insist on Killing Thistles.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The report of the conference committee on the agricultural appropriation bill, except as to the Russian thistle item, was agreed to in the senate and the conferees were directed to insist upon this amendment. It appropriates $1,000,000 for the extermination of the thistle in the several Western states.

NORTH DAKOTA DEMOCRATS.

The Grand Forks Convention Selects a Complete Ticket.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., July 30.—The Democratic candidates are as follows: Congress, N. G. Larimore; governor, F. M. Kinzer; lieutenant governor, E. A. Uehling; secretary of state, Thomas Sletts; superintendent of public instruction, Mrs. Eisenhuth; auditor, A. W. Porter; treasurer, Knut J. Nesland; commissioner of agriculture, George Kurtz; insurance commissioner, James Cudhie.

An Arbitration Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—At the session of the house committee on labor it was decided to report to the house favorably Representative Springer's arbitration bill. This action of the committee sidetracks bills of a similar nature offered by Representatives Tawney and Kiefer.

Brady Means Business.

NEW YORK, July 28.—W. A. Brady, manager of Champion Pugilist James J. Corbett, has arrived by the Britannic. He appears to be deeply interested in bringing about a meeting between Corbett and Jackson.

Property Owners Ask Damages.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The claims of the property owners on Grand boulevard have been sent to Washington by General Miles. The aggregate amount asked by the owners of the properties damaged by the explosion of the artillery caisson July 16 is $60,000.

Quickly Arranged.

Foreign terms are apt to occasion confusion in the minds of those who are ignorant of their meaning, because, as one old lady who thought mirabilia meant a "rough, noisy crowd o' folks," said, "They don't scrooge over stand for what they'd order, judging by the sound!"

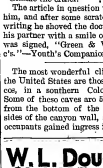
A Western man wished to file a paper for his partner and himself in the circuit court and affixed to the firm signatures the words "per se."

"I reckon that won't do," said the partner, whose education was somewhat more extensive. "'Per se' is sin'gler and means just you, and ther's two of us."

"Oh, all right! I can fix that easy enough," responded the other easily. "Gimme the ersaser."

The article in question was passed to him, and after some scratching and rewriting he shoved the document over to his partner with a smile of triumph. It was signed, "Green & Wilson, per 2 c's."—Youth's Companion.

The most wonderful cliff dwellers of the United States are those of the Mancos, in a northern Colorado canyon. Some of these caves are 500 or 600 feet from the bottom of the perpendicular sides of the canyon wall, and how their occupants gained ingress is a mystery.



W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. $5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF. $4 $3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN, EXTRA FINE. $1.75 $1.25 $1 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES $2.50 $2 $1.75 BEST DONGOLA. SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

You can save money by purchasing W. L. Douglas shoes. They are the best shoes of any advertised shoes in the world, and guarantee their value by stamping the name and price on the bottom, which protects you against high prices and the middleman's profits. Our full line of equal custom work is for sale by shoe dealers everywhere. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, we can. Sold by

FONTAINE & ANGLIN.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the payment of a certain mortgage dated and executed by Elizabeth Hall to Elizabeth Hall his wife of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation as mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of April, A. D. 1889, and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 3rd day of April, A. D. 1889, at 2:40 o'clock p. m., in Book 35 of mortgages on page 42 and

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of $1,000 and interest from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, payable semi-annually according to the conditions of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupons for the interest of said note to be due said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to Frank E. Ellsworth, by assignment dated the 1st day of April, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 3rd day of April, A. D. 1893, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in Book 39 of mortgages on page 230.

And default has been made in the payment of the sum of $600 principal and $42.00 interest due upon said mortgage according to the conditions of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupons for the interest of said note to be due said mortgage, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the amount due thereon.

Said mortgage, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and the statutes in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: The south half (½) of section eight (8), in township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north of range forty-two (42) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States survey, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the city of Crookston, in said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 20th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, together with the taxes, the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), Attorneys' fee, as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid.

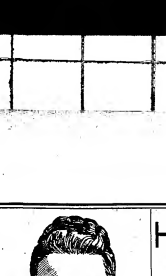
Dated this 1st day of July, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. ELLSWORTH, Assignee of Mortgagee.

Attorney for said Assignee.

Minneapolis, Minnesota.

01647 135-Ft



Mrs. E. F. Nisbern

Salt Rheum

On my hands often forced me to stop work. When I took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

the flesh had all healed and the skin had become smooth and my hands have been perfectly well since. MRS. E. F. NISBERN, Delavan, Wis.

Hood's Pills are safe, harmless, sure.

Scandia-American Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital, - - $50,000.

Surplus and undivided profits. $25,000.

Transacts a General Banking Business

Steamship Tickets Sold at Lowest Rates.

Special Attention to Collections.

Interest Paid on Time Deposits.

O. HENDRICKSON ..... President
L. ELLSWORTH ..... Vice President
J. W. WHEELER ..... Cashier
A. P. HANSEN ..... Assistant Cashier

First National Bank

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commenced Business Oct. 1881

Paid in Capital, $100,00
Surplus, - - 15,000

Interest on Certificates of Deposit.

Accounts of Farmers and Business Men solicited.

ERIC O. ERICKSON, President.
WM. ANGLIN, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglin, K. S. Chase, F. D. Childs
Eric O. Erickson, J. F. McKinnon, A. J. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

S. J. CHAFIN.

ARTISTIC

Photographer.

Broadway, Crookston,

Makes the finest Cabinet Photographs for

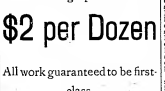
$2 per Dozen

All work guaranteed to be first-class.

Best Equiped Gallery in the Northwest.

Cloudy weather makes no difference.

C. A. FISCHER.



PRACTICAL GUNSMITH.

Repairs Gun, Revolvers, Clock-boring Barrels, Rounds Guns of all kinds; also Novelty Repairing. Work done on short notice and satisfaction guaranteed. Shop at Rasmussen & Nott's Hardware Store.

Any work sent in by express or otherwise will receive special attention.

W. A. ROBERTSON,

D. D. S. Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Operative and Mechanical

DENTIST.

Nitrous Oxide Gas. (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN MCKINNON BLOCK.

Hi, There!

DO YOU WANT

The Choicest Cuts

At Lowest Rates?

Try George Vine's New

MEAT MARKET.

Fish, Flesh and Fowl of every kind in due season.

Vine Block, Broadway C OOKSTON

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Prop.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade. Cor. Broadway and Third Sts.,

CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

Articles of Incorporation

OF THE

RED LAKE MILLING COMPANY.

For the purpose of organizing a corporation under Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of 1878, of the State of Minnesota, and the acts amendatory thereof, and supplementary thereto, we, the undersigned, hereby associate ourselves in a body corporate and do hereby adopt the following articles of incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the company hereby formed shall be Red Lake Milling Co. The general nature of the business to be transacted shall be milling of flour, feed and meal and all other products manufactured from wheat, corn, rye or any of the cereals and may buy, own and lease such land, water power, machinery and other appurtenances as may be desirable, expedient, or necessary for the purpose of carrying on said milling business, or may buy, own, lease, and operate such elevators, warehouses and buildings as may be necessary for storing and handling wheat, corn, rye and other cereals required for said manufacture of the company's business and shall have power to manufacture, operate, acquire, possess, own and sell or rent said mill or mills, together with all other buildings, machinery, tools, fixtures, and appliances for the manufacture of flour, feed, meal and other products as are usually manufactured in flouring mills, and do all other business necessary and incidental to its said manufacturing business. The location of said corporation shall, however, be limited to the business of manufacturing and handling flour, feed and meal products at the present mill of the company.

The principal place for the transaction of the business of said company shall be at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of the corporation shall be the 16th day of June, A. D. 1894, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be sixty thousand dollars, which shall be divided into six hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and the same shall be paid in as such shares and in such instalments as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability that said company may incur at any one time be subject to in the sum of sixty thousand dollars.

ARTICLE V.

The names and residences of the persons forming this corporation are as follows: F. E. Cawley, Red Lake Falls, Minnesota; Chas. E. Hyde, Red Lake Falls, Minnesota; Frank E. Buxton, Red Lake Falls, Minnesota; L. Van Hecke, Ellendale, North Dakota.

ARTICLE VI.

The names of the first Board of Directors are as follows: Frank E. Cawley, Charles E. Hyde and L. Van Hecke and Frank E. Buxton shall be the first officers of said company, to wit: the president and vice-president, and the secretary and treasurer, all of whom until holding their offices until the first annual meeting of the stock-holders, which shall be held on the 5th day of August, 1895, and until their successors have been elected and have qualified.

The first Board of Directors of the active management of its affairs shall be and is hereby declared to be the above named persons and three persons shall be elected by and from the stock-holders of said corporation each year at the annual meeting of the stock-holders and said Board of Directors shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and have qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer who shall be elected by the Board of Directors at their annual meeting and shall hold for the term and one year and until their successors are chosen and have been qualified. The Board of Directors or officers appointed by the board of directors may have power to appoint such other officers and agents as may be found necessary, and shall have power to call meetings of the Board of Directors or in any of the officers named in these articles of incorporation and the Board of Directors shall have power to call a special meeting for the election of directors or other users and until their successors have been chosen and have qualified.

The annual meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the second Monday of August, in each year and the annual meeting of the Board of Directors shall be held immediately after the annual meeting of the stock-holders. The number of directors on the Board of Directors may be increased and not exceed seven by the stock-holders at their annual meeting.

ARTICLE VII.

The first meeting of the stock-holders shall be held on the 16th day of August, 1894.

In witness whereof the subscribers have hereunto set their hands this 16th day of May, A. D. 1894.

FRANK E. CAWLEY. [seal]
CHARLES E. HYDE. [seal]
L. VAN HECKE. [seal.]

Signed in presence of
C. A. LIVERSEDS.
S. B. CRAGUN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Marshall.

On this 16th day of May A. D. 1894, before me a Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared FRANK E. CAWLEY and CHARLES E. HYDE to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[seal] A. T. COLE.
Notary Public.
Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, } ss.
County of Dickey.

On this 16th day of May A. D. 1894, before me, A. Notary Public within and for said County, personally appeared L. VAN HECKE, to me known to be the person described in and who executed the foregoing and within instrument and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

[seal] A. T. COLE.
Notary Public.
Dickey County, N. D.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Department of State.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 17th day of May, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. and is duly recorded in Book 2-A of incorporations on Page 36.

F. P. BROWN.
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF DEEDS, }
STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
COUNTY OF POLK.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 17th day of May, A. D. 1894.

JOHN AMUNDSON.
Register of Deeds.

THE FACE OF ROSENFEL.

BY CHARLES HOWARD MONTAGUE.

THE ROMANCE OF THE DOLLY-TOP. ROMANCE BY THE LEAGUES. THE FRONT OF MAIN STREET.

COPYRIGHTED, 1894, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE PICTURE.

"Excellent, excellent!" was Maxey's admiring cry.

Dr. Lamar adjusted his eyeglass to have a better look at it. The chandelier blazed at its fullest in the front parlor. The picture was placed on an easel in the projecting window space, and all four stood back a little way to behold it. Miss Maxey's arm was about Annette's waist, and she expressed the sentiment the work had awakened in her by an occasional admiring squeeze. Maxey was simply radiant. Dr. Lamar was impressed, but puzzled. Mrs. Maxey appeared both pleased and frightened by the warmth of the reception of her latest attempt.

It was a life-size sketch in crayon of a strong and characteristic face, somewhat shadowy and ghostlike in its effect, but so bold and striking in conception and execution that it commanded and held the attention.

"I don't know so much about the technique of art as I ought," commented Dr. Lamar, "but it strikes me that you have handled your subject remarkably well, Mrs. Maxey. Notwithstanding the curious, vague and misty atmosphere which you have managed to throw about it, the picture impresses you as a reality."

"That's it exactly!" exclaimed Maxey. "That is just the soul of true art. It is a recreation of nature. I claim that this is a masterpiece. I shall take it to the studio tomorrow and hang it up in a conspicuous place."

Mrs. Maxey started.

"Oh, no! Don't do that, please."

"Why not, I should like to know?"

"Because—I would rather you did not."

Dr. Lamar turned from a contemplation of the picture to a wondering scrutiny of the young wife's features. There was an unmistakable scared look in her face.

"Why, you silly little goose!" exclaimed Maxey, with a laugh. "What are you afraid of?"

"Oh, I'm not afraid! Only I would rather not have this picture put up in a public place. It is better to wait until I have done something more worthy."

"Nonsense," said Maxey. "This is one of your attacks of modesty. You will think better of it in the morning."

"And this is nobody's face?" questioned Lamar gravely. His eyes were still fixed on the young wife's features.

"A fancy sketch simply," returned Maxey. "That is why I think so highly of it. I call it remarkable."

"It is remarkable," agreed Lamar. "Where did you get the idea, Mrs. Maxey?"

The scared look on her face deepened, but she forced an uneasy laugh and replied:

"What a question! How does anybody get an original idea?"

"Pure originality is a delusion," said the philosophic physician. "We could trace the most startling fancifulness if we had the means at hand. But in this case you must be able to tell when you first saw this face which you have put upon the canvas. Did you sit down to sketch with any definite idea in mind, or did it come to you as you were drawing it?"

"Oh, the face was in my mind before I thought of sketching it."

"When did you first become aware of its being in your mind?"

"How ridiculous!"

Mrs. Maxey again laughed nervously.

Dr. Lamar's steady gaze had confused her. Her glance was averted. Her whole appearance indicated that this persistent questioning was extremely distasteful to her.

Maxey and his sister naturally attributed all this wholly to her natural shyness.

"What are you up to now, Eustace?" laughed Maxey. "Some new metaphysical theory, I suppose. Haven't you done experimenting on my wife yet?"

Whatever his theory was, or however great his desire for experiment, Dr. Lamar kept it to himself. He voluntarily changed the subject by reminding them that Miss Maxey had promised to sing.

They went into the back room to gather around the piano, leaving the portrait under the full glare of the gaslight.

Later in the evening the door softly opened, and Lamar came in. He wanted to see this strange picture alone and undisturbed. He stood back, looking at it. In that steady light the ghostlike face seemed to float as through a misty space.

The ghostlike face seemed to float.

What was it that made it so remarkable? For it was a remarkable face. The features were stern and grim, fixed and full of hard lines. It was not that. It was the face of a man of strong character. It was the embodiment of relentlessness and determination. It was not that. It spoke volumes for the mental strength, but never a word for tenderness or veneration. It was an utterly unscrupulous face. It was not that. The eyes glared. The lips parted as if the breath came too quickly for the nostrils alone.

Ah, that was it! The expression! No man ever sat for his portrait with his features cast in a mold such as this. This made the novelty and the strangeness. It was not a look as the human face sometimes in great emergencies, in a time of high pulse and excitement, wears for a fleeting instant. Nowhere outside a madhouse could it become fixed and changeless.

Yes, that was it indeed. The perpetuation of the expression of a moment, like the work of instantaneous photography, with all the latent power and sense of breathlessness that such a fact involves.

The brows were contracted into a deep scowl. The thin lips seemed almost to quiver, and with its staring eyes and changeless look in the glare of the gaslight this fearful countenance seemed to float on through space.

The sound of music came from the other room. Miss Maxey was singing the "Ave Maria."

Dr. Lamar felt himself safe from interruption. An odd fancy, suggested perhaps by the peculiar character of the subject, came to him. He reached up and turned off the gas jets one by one till but a single light remained. He produced this until it was the feeblest spark and stepped back to see the effect.

There was a fire in the open grate. The light of the coals flickered and fell, and the room was full of shadows. But the face! Truly the lip quivered! And the eyes! Did they not move? The scowl! Was it not deeper? Surely this cannot be water through which it looks! But a moment ago it was space. Now its seems as if the tide were flowing—the steady and relentless tide—and as it flows its ceaseless motion causes the face to seem to writhe. The eyes seem to grow hollow, to fade away, leaving unmeaning cavities, and as this happens the quivering lips break into a mocking leer. A fierce breath from the unseen river rises to rap with a hollow rattle at the windows. The sound breaks the spell.

Horrified at his own sensations, Lamar turned and hurried from the room.

When Dr. Lamar rejoined the party in the next room, he found Mrs. Maxey in tears.

"Did you notice how affected she was?" Ellen asked him in an undertone. "Isn't it queer?"

"By the singing of Schubert's 'Ave Maria.' Don't you remember, it was the song that made her faint? Do the old days! I have never sung it since. Somehow I thought of it tonight, and mindlessly we found her crying. And it seems it was something her mother used to sing it."

"Ah! Dr. Bently was right then. It was a reminiscence."

Lamar took a look at the door. Maxey answered it. He closed the entrance to the rear chamber after him and turned on the gas in the vestibule before he opened it to his visitor.

He was seized with a sudden trembling at his knees when he saw who the visitor was. Paler, ghastlier, more funereal than ever, the melancholy Dye, whose vengeance had and wreathed, cost exhibited a still deeper shade of desolation, stood upon the threshold.

"You again?"

"Sir, again."

"In spite of all that I told you?"

"Sir, I have borne your insinuations till mind. I have forgotten nothing. It remains for you to say whether you will admit me or no."

Mr. Dye did not look at Maxey when he addressed him. In truth, he did not seem to have energy or spirit enough left to raise his head, and he certainly did not appear at all anxious to be invited into the room.

The growing conviction that this man was not the prime mover, but only the instrument in the hands of a more powerful personage who kept himself always in the background, leaped to a most mature plan in the artist's mind.

"Admit you!" he exclaimed, suppressing the tendency to loudness in his tones for fear of exciting the curiosity of the adjoining chamber. "That I shall do most certainly, since you have come. Walk in, Mr. Dye, and state your business, and let us see if we cannot come to something approaching a mutual understanding. That is a point which we have too long been dodging about, Mr. Dye, and I have a very distinct idea that it would be well for us to reach it tonight."

The somber man raised a look of mild inquiry to the artist's face, said simply, "As you will," and passed into the parlor.

Maxey closed and locked the door and turned on two of the gas jets.

Then he noticed that Mr. Dye was trembling. It was a chilly evening, and it occurred to him that the threadbare coat could not be very warm.

"You are cold, man," he said. "Draw up here by the fire."

He placed a chair as he spoke in front of the open grate. Mr. Dye bowed gravely.

"Sir, I thank you."

He had only looked at Maxey himself. He sat down with his back to the picture and began at once to warm his hands over the coals. He did not wait for the artist to question him, but immediately, with his most ceremonial air, began:

"Sir, you are doubtless exceedingly surprised and, may I venture to add, not inconsiderably annoyed by my appearance in this house. When I went away from here, sir, you adjured me, upon pain of personal injury, never, except upon certain conditions, to appear in your presence again. But at the risk of that personal injury I have once more, and for the last time, come. Upon a former occasion I might have feared you, but, strange and paradoxical as it may seem, now that I am much weaker and less capable of self defense I no longer dread the violence of your resentment."

"Well," said Maxey impatiently as he paused, "have you come here to challenge me? If not, please come to the point."

"Sir, you must pardon me, but I cannot be abrupt. Before I come to the point I want to prepare you for what I am going to say by recalling, perhaps unnecessarily, a fact to your mind. Sir, I told you on a former occasion that I was a contemptible rascal. Bearing that in mind, my business here tonight will not very much surprise you. Lost to honor and self respect and to every sentiment which makes a man a man, you will not be astonished when I tell you what I have come to tell. If, when I have told it, you wish to throw me to the street and break every bone in my worthless body, I shall not resist you. In fact, I could not if I would. I am too weak. Observe, for instance, that."

He extended toward Maxey one of his lean and sallow hands. It shook like a leaf.

"That is the effect of the whisky. As long as money remains to me to purchase oblivion I do not care for luck or the devil. I am one of those unconquerial, solitary individuals who purchase a jug into an obscure place, lock the door and hide the key from myself. After I have become a maniac, a fool and an inanimate brute by turn I emerge again into the light, more emaciated, more broken down, one step nearer the much to be desired rest that comes at its end for us all. A cheerful life, sir, is it not?"

He turned his faded blue eyes with the bloodshot corners toward the artist, who vouchsafed him no reply, and continued:

"Sir, you are saying to yourself: 'In this man seeking to excite my sympathy, or what is his object? What possible interest does he think I can have in his gruesome narrative?' Very little, sir, indeed. Only it will afford some excuse for me perhaps for the performance of the most heartless and despicable act of my whole accursed career."

Mr. Dye uttered the last words savagely and vehemently. His speech indeed sounded as much like the ravings of a broken intellect that Maxey involuntarily drew back a pace or two.

Mr. Dye did not heed him. He went on:

"You behold in me, Mr. Maxey, a man who believes in predestination—a destiny which may be as chronic as the victim as a bed of torture, as plain before him as the seams in my coat, and which still he cannot escape. He sees the little steps which lead to the great end in the distance, he measures themselves one after the other before him, and he knows that if he fails to take any one of them he is undone. He would be changed, but still he never fails to take them. Sir, that is my life —my religion, if you will. And as I am here, impelled by the same inexorable fate which has pursued me from the first, and which will pursue me to the close, to bring a shame and an unhappiness into the midst of joy."

"Well, sir, what is it? I am quite prepared by this time for anything, Mr. Dye. I do not fear anything you can say."

"Sir, you are too confident of that. When I left this room you asked me for proofs of the shameful story that I told you then. I have brought them."

There was a pause of silence, and then Maxey advanced a step and said in a quiet voice:

"Well, sir, I am waiting for you."

Mr. Dye did not look up. He put his trembling hand solemnly into the breast of the threadbare coat and drew forth a little package of paper. Maxey took it and saw that it consisted of two documents of a legal aspect, which were variously superscribed, "Affidavit of Mary Stephenson" and "Affidavit of George Stephenson."

Maxey compressed his lips and looked no further.

"Ah," murmured the wretched Dye, "if you only knew what I have purchased by placing these accursed papers in your hand, you would not think of me hereafter with so much bitterness."

"Mr. Dye," said Maxey suddenly, "the time to drop this mask of yours is fully ripe."

The somber man half turned in his chair.

"Sir, I fail to understand you."

"No? Suppose that I were to tell you that I know who sent you here?"

The words had a marked effect on Mr. Dye. He instantly completed that which the former question had caused him to begin and turned wholly about in his chair, facing the artist with an ashy countenance. As he did so his eye fell upon the picture.

Maxey noticed his sudden silence, though he imperfectly understood the cause.

Mr. Dye sat in his chair without motion, his faded eyes wide open, looking intently at the portrait on the easel.

There would have been complete stillness in the room but for the ticking of the clock on the mantel, the escape of the burning gas, the distant sound of voices in the rear chamber.

Then Mr. Dye arose, steadying himself on the chair back with his shaking hand—arose, and turning his eyes on Maxey held out his free arm in a quaint sticking way toward the easel.

"What is the matter? Are you ill? I don't understand you. That is a picture my wife sketched."

A terrible trembling came upon every portion of the somber man's frame. He cried out in a hoarse voice:

"The Jew's face! The Jew's face!"

There was a rush like the breath of unseen wings from over the darkened room. The ghostly hands leaped at the window, and Mr. Dye fell down upon the floor.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE LOCK AND THE CUP.

Maxey's first impulse was to call assistance, but the discovery that Mr. Dye had not wholly lost consciousness deterred him. By the aid of wine, which he was able to procure without exciting any suspicion as to the use he would make of it, he succeeded in resuscitating the stricken man. After swallowing the contents of a glass Mr. Dye was able to sit, or rather to recline, upon the sofa and to speak. His first dread was of the portrait. His first utterance was:

"Turn the accursed thing away from me!"

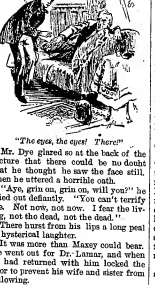
Maxey moved the easel, but even then the faded eyes would occasionally wander in that direction with a look of uneasy suspicion, as if he more than half mistrusted that it was able to turn back upon him at its own volition.

The somber Dye was utterly crushed. The theatrical air and oratorical flourishes, which even in his most earnest moments he had never wholly forgotten, had vanished, but the despair in his face was deeper than ever.

He asked Maxey to draw the center table, on which had been placed the decanter of wine, closer to him that he might reach it without assistance. Frequently a nervous tremor would shake his whole frame, and then he would seize the glass and swallow a mouthful with the desperate energy of a man who was fighting his last fight. Meanwhile he talked rapidly, fiercely, like one in a delirium.

"Why do you have that here? Why was it necessary for you to scare me to death? You certainly could suspect nothing. You told me that she drew that face. I should have seen through the trick of that joke. Ha, ha, ha! Bright of you, wasn't it? You are so much smarter than you look, sir. But you weren't enough so to detect me in playing a part the first day I came here. Say, you never would have believed that I had been in this house before, would you? Didn't I do my part well? Ask Bridey if I showed the least tremor, if I faltered in my step, when I saw the house into which he was taking me. I was strong, but I cannot bear everything. But the picture? You bought it of course? Of course you bought it! Why did he have his face drawn like that? It's the expression I am talking about. The eyes, the eyes! There! There, it is around again looking at me. Turn it about, I tell you; turn it about!"

"I have turned it about. It is not looking at you," said Maxey nervously.



"The eyes, the eyes! There!"

Mr. Dye glared so at the back of the picture that there could be no doubt that he thought he saw the face still. There he uttered a horrible oath.

"Ayo, grin on, grin on, will you?" he cried out defiantly. "You can't terrify me. Not now, not now. I fear the living, not the dead, not the dead."

There burst from his lips a long peal of hysterical laughter.

It was more than Maxey could bear. He went out for Dr. Lamar, and when he had returned with him locked the door to prevent his wife and sister from following.

Lamar examined the shaking, cowering wreck upon the sofa, and Maxey, impatient of delay in his decision, questioned:

"What's the matter with him?"

"I should say he'd been drinking too much."

"Is that all? I thought it delirium tremens."

"There is not a great deal of difference," said Lamar after listening to some of Dye's vehement utterances, "and perhaps we must get him away from here at once."

"No!" cried Maxey, "he shall not go, not if I have to pay him a couple of thousand devils. He shall not go alive unless he has told the truth and all the truth!"

"The truth? What does he know?"

"He knows everything. He knows my wife's parentage. He knows the secret of that affair on the sea road. He knows this face that Annette has sketched, and if the power remains to him he shall tell!"

Mr. Dye heard and evidently partly comprehended these words, for he cried out:

"Right, Mr. Maxey, right! Make him tell! He's a scoundrel! Make him tell!"

Maxey sprang toward him and seized him by the arm, as if he would drag his secrets from him by physical force.

"Speak out now, old man," he said, "for the time for playing with me is passed. I will have the truth now. You recognize the Jew's face. Who is the Jew? What are your relations with him?"

"The Jew, eh? You want to know about the Jew and my relations with him? Relations is a pretty word. I will tell you, Mr. Maxey, my relations with him. I was a whining cur. He was a lion."

"Go on quickly," whispered Lamar in Maxey's ear. "Humor him. He is ripe for a confession. Make him talk while he can."

"Why did you fall down when I told you my wife had painted the lion's face?"

"Why? Because she never saw the Jew. She was a crafty woman. He ruled her destiny, but he never showed himself, never but once, and then— Tho wine! Give me the wine! Why will you keep that accursed thing in the room? Take it out, I say! Take it out of my sight."

Dr. Lamar promptly removed the easel, and Mr. Dye seemed to breathe easier. Maxey asked another question:

"The Jew, the lion, ruled her destiny? What was his name?"

Mr. Dye bent close down and answered in a whisper:

"His name was Felix Rosenfel, and I killed him!"

Maxey shrank back.

"It startles you, does it?" went on the voice with a hiss. "It makes you draw away from me? You did not know the Jew, or you would feel more like humbling yourself before me. Ah, a man can be crushed and ground and trampled underfoot and despised and spat upon, and then the time may come when even the cur will turn and rend the hand of the persecutor. His first utterance was Lamar—'you're a good judge. Is that so?'"

"Undoubtedly," said Lamar encouragingly. "Undoubtedly that is very true. His spat upon you, and you killed him. Very good. He had been grinding you under his feet for a very long while?"

"Gentlemen, this will be a private affair between us, strictly private. We will review this case together, and we shall judge together whether I did well. There shall be no judge, no jury, no hangman's rope about this, will there, sir?"

"Decidedly not."

"No. Well, put it down first that a very long time ago I was a merchant's clerk, and Felix Rosenfel was that merchant's private secretary. Got that down? Well, I stole money, and he found it out. That was the beginning. But it was not the end; no, not the end!"

Mr. Dye talked in a rapid, feverish manner and clutched the sleeve of Maxey's coat. His faded eyes had so much the appearance of a maniac's that the artist could not help an involuntary shrinking.

The wretch's manner was variable. A fierce outbreak was succeeded by a period of comparative calmness. After his last scene he suddenly burst out again with a peal of forced laughter. He turned from Lamar and Maxey in turn as though they were the most obvious objects of mirth.

"I had a pair of simpletons pat, are gentlemen! Do you expect me to go on and tell you all about my affairs with the Jew before his hands. That's a deal matter. People gave up looking for a solution a long time ago. Don't let us take it up at this late day and bury my people's souls needlessly. Besides it doesn't concern any of us."

"Very well, sir," said Lamar, "let it go. It amounts simply to an understanding that this Jew kept you involved in a crime the detection of which would have hanged you."

Mr. Dye caught his arm and supplicated him.

"Oh, my good man, don't talk that way! You hurt my feelings, for I've got them, bad as I am, and besides it's not my last card. Esteem my confidence, and I'll whisper to you a secret. When I get reduced to the last extremity and I want only one more drink to carry me off, I have an ambition deferred to which you can sell my knowledge. How does that seem for a plan? It can't hang me then, for I shall be dead, and I shall have had my whisky."

Mr. Dye suddenly became mirthful and chuckled.

"This is terrible!" murmured Maxey.

Mr. Dye immediately grew fierce again.

"But it isn't for my regard of him that I keep silent. Don't mistake me there. But for that accursed Jew I might today have been well and respectable, with a home, a wife, children, perhaps. How does it turn out? Info dies of a broken heart. I am an outcast. The only child I ever had was one whom I reared from her infancy—I cannot bear to the face. I am a broken, tottering wretch, with a hand like a leaf. Do you wonder, then, that I killed him? Do you wonder? There was that affair on the sea road. I told him that she was a part of the secret. He got white with rage, and I cringed before him. He held me in chains for it. Curse him! How had I done? I have kept you alive all these years. You have lived on my bounty, you wretched cur! Ha, ha! You gentlemen, he called me a cur. So I was too. You couldn't blame him for that. He was right. But it cramped me to hear him say it. I knew I was, but he made me so. Oh, to have strangled him then and there! Then he said, 'Go go home and come again when I have thought about it.' That is what I did, just what he told me; always his slave and his tool.

"Then when I came again he says with that devilish smile of his: 'It is all right, Dye, my boy. We must write a letter from that Hartford woman. She'll be likely to believe in her. We must get her out of town to some lonely place. The Jamestown road will do. I have thought it all out.' What for, what for, old Jew?' 'Because it is necessary. That's enough. Let us bring her to the sea road Tuesday night. I will be in a sleigh, on foot. She will wait by the side of the road. You will walk

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 7.]

f what in his delirious state he t be impelled to do. He only spoke nocksingly:
ow, Jew, Felix Rosenfel, the Jew, ap out of your place in the cold
r and dare to say that I have lied!"
s was silent a minute. His body be-rigid and then convulsive.
eir combined strength was barely cient to hold him. His whole frame me contorted, and crying out in a ble voice: "There he comes! There comes! He is there on the carpet, and dripping!" he fell back, frothat the mouth.

[CONTINUED.]

SHE HAD HER WEIGHT.

as a Posthumous Triumph, but It Was Hers All the Same.

When a woman makes her mind up nything," said the man with the w beard, "they ain't no way of prein her from reachin the end she s at."
Thorsten she, dies, of course," re-
ked the grocer.
It does look to me," said the man h the ginger beard to the meek inapter, "like you have the most nat-gift of tellin what you don't know y time you open your mouth of any
I ever knowed. I will admit, tinued the man with the ginger rd as the preacher assumed a humbled ression, "that you are all right in grocery business. Fact is, a man had have to be pretty smooth to make ivin out of the kind o' stock you
p. Now, the time you explained the e bein in the butter because the hut-wasn't strong enough to hold itself ether without it was plumb good.
esmower, it looks like rain, an I 't waste no more time on you. Now, here woman"——
"Which woman?"
"This here woman I was thinkin of en I spoke was just like all the rest em. When her mind was set, it was Pore thing, she had to die to git own way, but she got it."

"Love affair?" asked the man from ake creek, who had a romantic streak his mental composition.
"Love affair nothin! She was marrit her third husband. They hadn't been rrit for more'n a week, I guess, bee the old man begins twittin her ut the size of her. Thin an wonderin why Lord couldn't 'a' seen fit to make weigh as much as his first wife.
ow much did the dear angel weigh?'
asked him kinder sarcastic like one y when they had been jawin a little re than common.
"'Just exactly 158 pounds,' says he.
"'Well,' says she, 'I'm a-goin to to that weighin if it takes me a huned years.'
"Howsomever, 'stead of gettin any ter she gits thinner an thinner right ng till at last she ups an dies.
ell,' says the old man, 'seems like e didn't get to that there weight she ired for after all. I guess she weighed ater 65 than 158.' But that's all he owed about it. About two years after ce was a house in real estate, an the l graveyard turnin out to be pretty od town lots the folks had to move, is here woman among the rest. When ey come to dig her up, she had petri-

"Petrified, I suppose you mean," said e schoolteacher.
"Anyhow, I mean she had turned to ck. An just for curiosity they eighed her. Funny thing too. She nso exactly to that there 155 pounds e allus said she'd git, an they won't never nobody make me believe that she dn't know what she was doin all the me."—Indianapolis Journal.

SHE WANTED HER PACKAGE.

nd She Got It, Too, After Some Emphatic Explanations.

Judging from something that took ace in one of the express offices, I am stided that all women don't acquire e faculty for scolding after they are arried. A young woman who lives a ong way out on Jefferson street came to one of the express company's offices ith a postal card she had received from e company stating that a package was ere for her. She presented the card nd asked for the package. Then the rouble began. The agent first asked her here she expected the package from.
"Most anywhere," she replied.
"But that isn't satisfactory," said
e agent. "Is there any place in parcular you expect a package to be sent rom?"
"Yes, a good many places in particu-
r," she answered very sharply.
"Well, what is it you expect?" asked e agent.
"I expect a good many things," she eturned, hanging the point of her umrella down on the floor very sharply, nd, what's more, if there is a package
ere for me I want it."
"Excuse me," said the agent, with natalining coolness, "but our rules ust be observed, and the rules are that ersons unknown to us must be identiied, and you must be identified before e can give you the package that this ard calls for."
The girl's eyes snapped. She choked a ew times, and then, punctuating every ord with a sharp rap of her gloved fist n the desk, she said:
"Look here! My — uame — is —
I'm — going — to — be — married — ext — week — after — this — package s — wedding — present. I — expect — many — more — but — I — want — this — one — nd — I'm — going — to — have — it!"
The agent looked as though some trong man had struck him behind the ar.
"Yes, ma'am, you can have it," he aid. "Sign your name right here," and e presented the book for identification.
ut another word. He brought the pack-ge and handed it to her. She snatched t away from him spitefully and walked out as though she weighed more than he soldiers' monument.—Buffalo News.

Look Toward the Light.

In a sickroom there was a little roseush in a pot in the window. There was only one rose on the bush, and its face was turned full toward the light.
This fact was noticed and spoken of,
when one said that the rose would look no other way save toward the light.
Experiments had been made with it; it had been turned away from the window, its face toward the gloom of the interior, but in a little time it would resume its old position. With wonderful persistence it refused to keep its face toward the darkness and insisted on ever looking toward the light. The rose has its lesson, for us.

We should never allow ourselves to face toward life's gloom. We should never sit down in the shadows of any sorrow and let the night darken over us into the gloom of despair. We should turn our faces away toward the light and quicken every energy for braver duty and truer, holier service. Grief should always make us better and give us new skill and power; it should make our hearts softer, our spirits kindlier, our touch more gentle; it should teach us its holy lessons, and we should learn them, and then go on with strong and sacred ordination upon us to new love and better service.—Selected.

Farmers and Wool.

If the woolgrowers of the United States hope to secure any tariff legislation by which wool is to be protected, it is advised that they at once organize a trust. They then may hope to succeed. The Sugar trust, controlled by a few persons, in which the total number engaged is 7,320, are able to secure rates which take from the people $48,000,000 annually. Why do not the woolgrowers try their hand, as it appears from the record now being made in congress that the trusts and combines are always able to have the duty increased, while the free list seems to be the place where individual enterprise alone is sent.

CHILD BIRTH . . . MADE EASY!

"MOTHERS' FRIEND" is a scientifically prepared Liniment, every ingredient of recognized value and in constant use by the medical profession. These ingredients are combined in a manner hitherto unknown

"MOTHERS' FRIEND"

WILL DO all that is claimed for it AND MORE. It Shortens Labor, Lessen Pain, Diminishes Danger to Life of Mother and Child. Book to "MOTHERS" mailed FREE, containing valuable information and voluntary testimonials.

Sent by express on receipt of price $1.00 per bottle
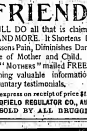
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Non-pull-out

Is an arbitrary word used to designate the only bow (ring) which cannot be pulled off the watch.



Here's the idea

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant, and the bow fits into the grooves, thereby locking the bow to the pendant. The collar is so arranged that it cannot be pulled off, but it is quite convenient when it is desired to wind the watch. It positively prevents the loss of the watch by theft, and avoids injury to it from dropping.

IT CAN ONLY BE HAD with Jas. Boss Filled or other watch cases bearing this trade mark.——

All watch jobbers sell Boss cases without extra cost. A watch case opener will be sent free to any one by the manufacturers.

KeystoneWatch Case Co.,
PHILADELPHIA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, Grand Forks and winnipeg

TO HELENA.	PULLMAN
BUTTE.	SLEEPING CARS.
SPOKANE.	ELEGANT
TACOMA.	DINING CARS
SEATTLE,	TOURIST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave	For St. Paul, Minneapolis
Crookston	Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	7:34 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grande, Brandon and Winnipeg.	8:30 a.m.

Have Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For information, time cards, maps and tickets, call on write Ticket Agent N. P. R. R. at Crookston, or

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

S.S.S.

S. Heals Running Sores. S. Cures the Serpent's Sting. S.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

In all its stages completely eradicated by S. S. S. Offensive sores and ulcers yield to its healing powers. If remedies called blood purifiers fail to relieve, S. S. S. will cure. A treatise on the disease is mailed free.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

FOR INFORMATION

As to how to secure

A FREE FARM AND LOW RATES,

in and to the Saskatchewan Valley,

Address

WM. RITCHIE,
Grafton, N. D.

Or L. A. HAMILTON,
Winnipeg.

G. S. Chesterman,

Undertaker,

Embalmer and Funeral Director.

(Successor to J. V. E. Wyatt.)

Coffins, Caskets and Funeral Supplies always in stock.

Particular Attention paid to Picture Framing, Furniture Repairing and Upholstering.

OFFICE ON BROADWAY.

Residence, Fifth street, opposite St. Mary's church.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christoffer Gasaasly Loen Company, a corporation, as mortgagor, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes of even date with said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes attached thereto and which said note

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Angus G. Braden, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, by an instrument in writing dated the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.; and default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $300, and the interest thereon since April 17th, A. D. 1893, and the taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and likewise recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the following described property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter (W. ½ of N. W. ¼) of section seventeen (17) in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) of range forty-three (43) containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 25th day of August, A. D. 1894, at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to pay said debt or sum secured by said mortgage, and the taxes, the costs and expenses of said foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, attorney's fee, as is stipulated and agreed to be paid in said mortgage, if the premises shall not be redeemed from said sale as by law provided.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

ANGUS G. BRADEN,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

Northwestern Trust Company, Trustee,
Attorneys for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61-73 Minneapolis, Minn. 3-6-11

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

First Publication July 12th, 1894.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage given by Hilaire Bassin and Hedwige Bassin, his wife, mortgagors to Rose T. Norris, mortgagee dated November 3rd, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of thereof of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 1.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of six hundred eighty dollars ($680), principal and interest, besides the sum of twelve dollars ($12) for taxes and interest thereon paid and to be paid by said mortgagee, and twenty five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, That the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: the south half (S. ½) of the south east quarter (S. E. ¼) and the south half (S. ½) of the north west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section thirty-two (32) in township one hundred fifty-four (54) north, in range forty-three (43) west, containing three hundred and twenty acres more or less, according to the Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the Twenty-fifth day of August, and at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day.

Dated June 30th, A. D. 1894.

KATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.

ALBERT LEE,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
(15-36) Resident. Clay County, Minn.

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christoffer Gasaasly Loen Company, a corporation, as mortgagor, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes of even date with said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes attached thereto and which said note

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Angus G. Braden, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, by an instrument in writing dated the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.; and default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $300, and the interest thereon since April 17th, A. D. 1893, and the taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and likewise recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the following described property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter (W. ½ of N. W. ¼) of section seventeen (17) in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) of range forty-three (43) containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 25th day of August, A. D. 1894, at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to pay said debt or sum secured by said mortgage, and the taxes, the costs and expenses of said foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, attorney's fee, as is stipulated and agreed to be paid in said mortgage, if the premises shall not be redeemed from said sale as by law provided.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

ANGUS G. BRADEN,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

Northwestern Trust Company, Trustee,
Attorneys for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61-72 Minneapolis, Minn. 3-6-11

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christoffer Gasaasly Loen Company, a corporation, as mortgagor, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes of even date with said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes attached thereto and which said note

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Angus G. Braden, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, by an instrument in writing dated the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.; and default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $300, and the interest thereon since April 17th, A. D. 1893, and the taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and likewise recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the following described property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter (W. ½ of N. W. ¼) of section seventeen (17) in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) of range forty-three (43) containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 25th day of August, A. D. 1894, at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to pay said debt or sum secured by said mortgage, and the taxes, the costs and expenses of said foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, attorney's fee, as is stipulated and agreed to be paid in said mortgage, if the premises shall not be redeemed from said sale as by law provided.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

ANGUS G. BRADEN,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

Northwestern Trust Company, Trustee,
Attorneys for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61-69 Minneapolis, Minnesota. 61-71

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christoffer Gasaasly Loen Company, a corporation, as mortgagor, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes of even date with said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes attached thereto and which said note

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Angus G. Braden, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, by an instrument in writing dated the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.; and default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $300, and the interest thereon since April 17th, A. D. 1893, and the taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and likewise recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the following described property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter (W. ½ of N. W. ¼) of section seventeen (17) in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) of range forty-three (43) containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 25th day of August, A. D. 1894, at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to pay said debt or sum secured by said mortgage, and the taxes, the costs and expenses of said foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, attorney's fee, as is stipulated and agreed to be paid in said mortgage, if the premises shall not be redeemed from said sale as by law provided.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

ANGUS G. BRADEN,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

Northwestern Trust Company, Trustee,
Attorneys for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61429 Minneapolis, Minnesota. 61-77

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Christoffer Gasaasly Loen Company, a corporation, as mortgagor, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes of even date with said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per centum (7%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes attached thereto and which said note

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the undersigned, Angus G. Braden, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, as mortgagee, by an instrument in writing dated the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 55 &c.; and default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $300, and the interest thereon since April 17th, A. D. 1893, and the taxes for the year 1893, levied and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and likewise recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the following described property therein described, lying and being situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter (W. ½ of N. W. ¼) of section seventeen (17) in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) of range forty-three (43) containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 25th day of August, A. D. 1894, at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to pay said debt or sum secured by said mortgage, and the taxes, the costs and expenses of said foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, attorney's fee, as is stipulated and agreed to be paid in said mortgage, if the premises shall not be redeemed from said sale as by law provided.

Dated July 2nd A. D. 1894.

ANGUS G. BRADEN,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

Northwestern Trust Company, Trustee,
Attorneys for Assignee of Mortgagee.
61429 Minneapolis, Minn. 61-75

[First publication July 12, 1894.]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage deed, executed and delivered by Paul Hanson and Hedwige Bassin, his wife, mortgagors to Rose T. Norris, mortgagee dated November 3rd, 1892, and duly recorded in the office of thereof of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in book 30 of mortgages, on page 1.

The amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of six hundred eighty dollars ($680), principal and interest, besides the sum of twelve dollars ($12) for taxes and interest thereon paid and to be paid by said mortgagee, and twenty five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage.

Notice is hereby given, That the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: the south half (S. ½) of the south east quarter (S. E. ¼) and the south half (S. ½) of the north west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section thirty-two (32) in township one hundred fifty-four (54) north, in range forty-three (43) west, containing three hundred and twenty acres more or less, according to the Government survey thereof, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, which said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the County court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the Twenty-fifth day of August, and at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day.

Dated June 30th, A. D. 1894.

KATE T. NORRIS,
Mortgagee.

ALBERT LEE,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
(15-36) Resident. Clay County, Minn.

FEMALE PILLS.

NEW DISCOVERY. NEVER FAILS. Relieves in 24 hours. Cures in 48. Prevents Miscarriage. Dissipates Tumors. Cures Leucorrhœa. Cures Ovarian Troubles. Cures Nervousness. Cures Hysteria. Cures Fits. Cures Nervous Prostration. Cures Nervous Headache. Cures Neuralgia. Cures Backache. Cures Kidney Troubles. Cures Dizziness. Cures Sleeplessness. Cures Melancholy. Cures Dragging Pains. Cures Bearing Down Pains. Cures Pain in the Back. Cures Pain in the Side. Cures Pain Over the Hips. Cures Pain in Any Part of the Body. Cures Suppressed Menstruation. Cures Irregular Menstruation. Cures Painful Menstruation. Cures Excessive Menstruation. Cures Change of Life. Cures Flooding. Cures Whites. Cures Ulceration of the Womb. Cures Inflammation of the Womb. Cures Displacement of the Womb. Cures Anteversion of the Womb. Cures Retroversion of the Womb. Cures Prolapsus of the Womb. Cures Falling of the Womb. Cures Bearing Down Sensations. Cures Pain in the Loins. Cures Pain in the Kidneys. Cures Pain in the Bladder. Cures Pain in the Groins. Cures Pain in the Thighs. Cures Pain in the Knees. Cures Pain in the Ankles. Cures Pain in the Feet. Cures Pain in the Toes. Cures Pain in the Heels. Cures Pain in the Soles of the Feet. Cures Pain in the Ankles. Cures Pain in the Knees. Cures Pain in the Thighs. Cures Pain in the Groins. Cures Pain in the Loins. Cures Pain in the Kidneys. Cures Pain in the Bladder. Cures Pain in the Back. Cures Pain in the Side. Cures Pain Over the Hips. Cures Pain in Any Part of the Body. Cures Suppressed Menstruation. Cures Irregular Menstruation. Cures Painful Menstruation. Cures Excessive Menstruation. Cures Change of Life. Cures Flooding. Cures Whites. Cures Ulceration of the Womb. Cures Inflammation of the Womb. Cures Displacement of the Womb. Cures Anteversion of the Womb. Cures Retroversion of the Womb. Cures Prolapsus of the Womb. Cures Falling of the Womb. Cures Bearing Down Sensations.

Sold by P. L. Durand, Crookston.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM'S

GROCERY DEPARTMENT.

25 lbs. Rolled Oats for	1 00
24 lbs. Good Rice for	1 00
25 lbs. Pearl Barley for	1 00
20 lbs. Best English Currants for	1 00
20 lbs. Cooking Raisins (choice) for	1 00
12 lbs. Extra Choice California Prunes for	1 00
30 bars Handy soap for	1 00
28 bars Victor Soap for	1 00
25 bars Kirk's Dome Soap for	1 00
Best White Vinegar, per gal	25
Fine Table Syrup, worth 50 cts. per gal	35
1 gallon can Maple Syrup	65
Pure Lard, per pound	10
Best Canned Corn, extra quality, per can	10
Best Canned Tomatoes, extra quality, per can	12½
California canned fruit, Egg Plums, Green Gages, Gold Drop Plums and Mussent Grapes, you can find none better, per can
2 gallon pails Syrup	60
Best Patent Flour per 98 pounds, lowest price

TEAS.

You all like a good cup of tea; of course you do—we all do. That's just why we have the finest Cream Tea, the most natural, unadulterated Japan Tea you ever bought. Ask to see it when you visit us. Note prices:

60c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to.....40c
50c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to.....38c
35c uncolored Japan Tea reduced to.....25c

COFFEES.

We handle Chase & Sanborn's celebrated line of Coffees. They were served to 21,000,000 people at the World's Fair, and are known far and wide as the best Coffees in the United States.

NOTE PRICES.

3 lbs. Mocha and Java Coffee for.....$1.00
3½ lbs. Golden States Coffee for.....1.00
4 lbs. Guatemala Rio for 1.00
5 lbs. Crushed Java for 1.00

Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention.

WE AIM

To sell only the very best goods in the line of FARM IMPLEMENTS, and every thoughtful person will admit that our stock is well selected when they notice the following:

Rushford Wagons, John Deere Plows, Hollingsworth Rakes, Flying Dutchman Plows, Deering Binders AND Mowers, Advance Threshers and Engines.

They are all winners, for they have merit. We also have a nice line of BUGGIES and CARTS, and also Single and Double Harness, which we sell at rock bottom prices. We defy competition on the quality and price of our harness goods. If you call we can convince you.

MERIT WINS.

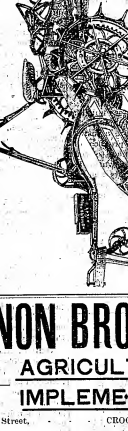
Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert Sts., Crookston.

The Hoover Potato Digger.

- DIGS SIX ACRES PER DAY. -

A Practical, Cheap Machine



For Full Particulars

See J. M. STEPHENS, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Dealers in all the leading

McKinnon Block, Main Street, CROOKSTON, MINN.

BEFORE PURCHASING GIVE US A CALL.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily

For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth, Chicago, and all points east and south, west and Pacific coast at.....6:52 p. m.

For Grand Forks, Grafton, Winnipeg, Brandon, and points north, at.....7:22 a. m.

Trains leaving Crookston daily have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car, and Dining car attached.

'Round Home.

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

L. D. Marshall was up from Minneapolis on Saturday.

John Boe died on Sunday with cancer of the stomach.

Senator Peterson of New Ulm, was in the city last week on business.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5)

Wall paper at cost at A. C. Schmidt's.

The Salvation Army will serve ice cream at their church on Friday evening.

The Steenerson men claim to have carried 17 out of the 24 delegates to the convention on Saturday evening.

Fred Chapin is keeping bachelor's hall while Mrs. Fred and the little one are visiting in Brandon, Manitoba.

John Uness was in last Saturday, making arrangements to start up his threshing machine in barley and oats this week.

The five year-old son of Mrs. Nelson, a widow woman living in Sampson's addition, died last Friday of typhoid fever.

John Wyand commenced cutting oats this week. Says he considers the prospects for crops fully as good this year as in any previous year.

John Miller, the jolly mine host of the Germania house, was married on Thursday of last week, to Miss Annie Wittek, Judge Benson performed the ceremony.

There seems to be lots of twine in the city, every day some dealer secures a car-load or so. The farmers are hauling it out to the fields by the wagon-load however.

Judge Cochrane stopped off the Great Northern train from St. Paul on Monday morning and, after spending an hour or so in the city, Tommy Johnstone sent him over to Grand Forks by team.

The case of C. O. Rood vs. Fred Anderson, of which mention was made in these columns last week, was tried before Justice Holt on Monday and $8 and costs were taxed up to Mr. Anderson.

The whole village of Shirley, seven miles north of this city, was destroyed by fire on Sunday night. The village consisted of one wheat warehouse—hardly large enough to be dignified by the name of elevator.

Strawbridge & Knudson have rented the McKinnon hall for class rooms for their college. With the Palace hotel for their dormitory and boarding hall, and the McKinnon hall for their school room, Messrs Strawbridge & Knudson will have the best equipped college in the northwest.

The festive tramp does not like the new program pretty much. He is arrested, taken before a justice, fined and if he fails to produce the coin of the realm he is made to work the line out at street work. He does not like the plan lots and the result is that in the future he will be likely to boycott the city entirely.

Chris Houston says some of the ambitious hunters in Crookston must be a little more careful if they do not wish to get into trouble. He complains that they are shooting prairie chickens under pretense of breaking young bird dogs. Chris says chickens are going to be very plentiful this fall if they are not all shot before the season opens.

Awarded Highest Honor-World's Fair

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT—MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

R. A. Wilkinson is up from St. Paul this week.

Mrs. Leslie Crawford took a run out to Maple Lake on Tuesday.

Alderman Morissey made a business trip to Ada last week.

Two funerals at St. Ann's church on Tuesday morning—Mrs. La Plant and John Boe.

Day hands in haying get from 50 to 75 cents. Wheat at 42 cents is not very inspiring.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McKinnon has been very ill this week.

T. A. Harris sent men and tools to Fertile Monday evening to raise J. S. La Due's store building, for a foundation.

Superintendent Lommen—There are 92 teachers enrolled at the training school, and the instructors are doing excellent work.

According to the Thirteen Towns, Andrew Ekren went up to Fosston on Saturday and made arrangements for handling wheat up there this fall.

A great deal of quiet work on the Maple Lake road has been done this week for the various sites proposed for the new hotel. The JOURNAL is satisfied that the city gets this improvement in a good location without kicking because we may think we could have been suited better personally.

J. V. E. Wyatt returned from Maple Lake on Tuesday evening very much in the flesh—very much alive, but with one optic closed for repairs—neuralgia in it. Otherwise he was feeling quite well thank you, notwithstanding the grue-some rumors that had obtained concerning him.

A German shoe-maker disappeared from Red Lake Falls in the fall of 1892, and one day last week a badly decayed body was found in the river that has been identified as his by a pair of shoes, such as he had on when he left home. It is supposed that he committed suicide by drowning.

Judge Grindeland came down on Monday evening to attend the funeral of his cousin, D. E. Hatlestad. He was met at the depot by a committee of the Polk County Bar Association, that had been appointed to draft resolutions of respect in memory of their devoted brother member Mr. Hatlestad.

A. N. Hixson's driving horse got a bit frisky on Tuesday evening and indulged in a bit of a spin about town. He spilled A. S. out upon the free soil of America and then took a whirl all by himself over on Sampson's Woodland addition, where he was gathered in and further mischief prevented.

Rev. R. H. Battey had the misfortune to get his face and eyes filled with poison ivy while at Detroit Lake last week, which laid him on the dry docks for repairs a few days. He seems to be able to go around the latter part of the week, and get the Message out early next week. He is now confined to his room in Crookston.

Geo. M. Swift came down on Monday with some potatoes for that two dollar market, and found an arrival that he could only sell them for one dollar per bushel. Early last week they would have readily sold for $2. He says that there will be very few potatoes around Mentor this fall on account of the extreme drouth.

Last week Engineer Fred Chapin received a letter from his brother Stuart, who went to Phoenix, Arizona, not long ago. Stuart writes that he likes the country so well that he has bought it—that is, 320 acres of it, and will at once plant it to town-site seed and grow up with the country. The JOURNAL wishes Stuart abundant success in his new home, and a safe return to civilization at an early day.

Lew Gooler came in from a 9 days trip in the eastern part of Polk county on Monday. He furnished a school-house in Woodside with a set of furniture. Says he has seen many poor crops in Polk county and many quite fair ones. Anent the county division question he finds more of division sentiment on the east side than on the west side of the county.

Knute S. Aker was up from the town of Hubbard on Monday. Says he had wheat ripe enough to cut on Friday of last week, but as he had not yet bought his twine he did not commence. Would start a reaper in his wheat just as soon as he could get home on Tuesday. Reports that up-land hay is scarce, but slough grass is better. Thinks crops down there will average up with last year though it is rather early to determine that as yet.

Judge Benson has been doing considerable matrimonial business lately—for other people. Last Thursday he united in marriage Mr. John Miller and Miss Annie Wittek, and on Sunday evening he performed the same service for Andrew Kolstad and Annie C. Haggestrom, both of Polk county. The Judge is said to have the marriage ceremony down fine, and is open for all engagements in that line.

The Kittson county congressional delegation was instructed for Hon. H. Steenerson.

Jack McPhee was up from the Lockhart farm on Monday.

Comrade Frank Zarruchet, who was on the sick list last week is very much better.

What's the matter with August George for county auditor on the republican ticket? He's all right.

The M. E. church people are fixing up the basement to their church edifice by putting in a brick wall.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Thompson, died on Tuesday morning of cholera infantum.

C. E. Sawyer and family and Mrs. I. U. Jennings went out to Maple Lake Saturday morning, returning Tuesday evening.

C. R. Andrews, of Ada, went out to Maple lake on Thursday's train with his little boys to spend a few days in rusticating.

Robert Cosney was down from Euclid on Monday. Says harvest is commenced and that grain will be light in that vicinity.

Herman Rasmussen started on Monday evening for Colorado Springs for the benefit of his health, which has been poor for sometime.

Wheat harvest commences this week in Polk county. Next week it will be pretty general. It is considerably earlier this year than last.

Gov. Nelson came up to Beltrami on Monday morning to inspect the big ditch near there, and Capt. A. C. Rhinehart went down to meet him there.

The telephone company are stringing their poles along the proposed line and getting them ready to plant. The lines will soon be ready for business.

G. S. Barnes, of Minneapolis, was in the city on Saturday. In the afternoon he drove about looking at crops with Hugh Thompson and Marcus Johnson.

Mrs. Fred Anderson, who was reported quite ill in our last issue, (supposed to be typhoid fever) was so much better on Saturday as to be able to be out again.

The populists will open the campaign in this county next Monday evening, when Mrs. Keckel, of Kansas City, will deliver an address at McKinnon's hall in this city.

J. H. Griffin the new station agent in place of W. Fegan, came down last week to familiarize himself with his new duties and took the helm on Monday morning.

The nominees of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches are contemplating hiring a pastor jointly. Under the circumstances it strikes us that such a move would be a wise one.

Rudy Burkhardt took his family and a few friends for a drive in the country on Sunday. They went ten or twelve miles northwest and Rudy says he found the crops looking better than he supposed they were.

Mat Danner and John Lester have opened a laundry on Broadway in the building formerly occupied by Johnson Bro's & Wing as a crockery store. The boys are good hard workers, hustlers and ought to do well.

The expedition to Lake Bemidji, consisting of Dr. Dunlop, Capt. Duluva the Silvers and Fred Markham, returned to civilization about 2 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, looking very much fatigued and tanned. They report having a very enjoyable trip.

Mrs. J. W. Wheeler, Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson, Will Olds, Prof. Mayne, Miss Hewitt, Paul Wilkinson, Bruce Harris and Fred McGregor returned Tuesday morning from Detroit, where they attended the inter-state summer assembly.

The Grand Forks News hints that Hugh Thompson has held out flattering inducements for a big institution to move to Crookston. The institution referred to must be the Grand Forks Milling Association, as Mr. Thompson has large personal interests in that concern.

Crookston can boast of no luxuriant a growth of vegetation as any city in the northwest. Especially is this noticeable along the streets and on the vacant lots. Despite the drouth, this vegetation has attained an alarming height, with no one to check its progress or make it afraid. Unless a hail storm or cyclone comes along the city will be able to harvest a larger crop of weeds this year than usual.

A suit was brought in Judge Gossman's court Monday, in which some parties from Thief River Falls were interested. Louis Staell had worked for A. Wright, a log contractor, last spring, and brings suit to recover $60 which is due him. Wright claims that it is not due him until "the logs come down," and there is much uncertainty as to when that will occur. The case was adjourned to August 30th.

Agent Sisson left Wednesday for a six weeks vacation.

T. A. Harris will put a big smoke stack on the Fournet block this week.

Contesting delegations will come from the Fourth ward, East Grand Forks.

C. H. Warren succeeds Case as general manager of the Great Northern road.

J. P. Enston, of Warren was visiting friends in the city on Wednesday.

The funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Thompson occurred on Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Chapin, of Euclid is talking of moving two buildings and is figuring with T. A. Harris for the job.

Miss Ollie Halverson has returned from her summer vacation and resumed her place in the post-office.

About 30 men, who have been employed on the big ditch at Beltrami, arrived on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Mary St. George Laplant, who had been living in the Fifth ward of the city, died Sunday afternoon of consumption, in her 24th year.

John E. Davidson arrived on Monday morning from Clark Co., S. D., summoned by a dispatch announcing the critical condition of his brother, D. E. Hatlestad. He arrived too late to see his brother alive.

A contesting delegation will show up from the town of Crookston. On Saturday a caucus was held and E. Linstad, W. H. Collins and Peter Hegvik were elected, and on Monday evening a caucus was held electing E. O. Flanders, G. W. Roberts and J. M. Stevens.

A. C. Wilkinson returned this week from a three weeks fishing trip to Dunn county, Wis., with Judge Ives. The Judge returned with him as far as St. Paul where he was met by his wife, and together they go for a fortnight's visit with friends in southern Minnesota.

W. W. Fegan started in on his new duties on Wednesday morning. His first step is to Minot from whence he has a drive of 60 miles across the country. His headquarters will be at Fargo, but his home will be here for the present, and everybody is hoping that he will be permitted to bring his office here.

Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt came down from the lake Saturday evening to spend the Sabbath at home, returning on Tuesday morning. On Monday morning a rumor to the effect that John had grown very much worse since she left was circulated in the streets, but the family had not been notified up to the time Mrs. W. returned to the lake on Tuesday morning.

The prospects indicate that the republican convention to-morrow will find plenty of material for candidates to choose from—and good material too. The object should be to select men well fitted to perform the duties of the office and those men not all from any one local city, and in that event the ticket would have more than a good fighting success at the polls. A few blunders would absolutely destroy all chance of defeating the ticket.

Governor Nelson went north on Saturday morning as far as Argyle; returning on the 9 p. m. train He spent the time until the arrival of the train from the west. If o'clock, visiting with friends in the city. The governor is preparing for an active campaign and will soon take the stump in earnest. It is said on all sides that he is one of the best governors the state ever had and there is not much doubt that he will be given a second term. While the republicans can by no means count upon the old-fashioned large majority, the republican ticket will no doubt be elected.

